
PERIODICAL
ML5
.M85
v.2.
1901

L.71.63

No. 695

THE MUSICAL TIMES

Price 4d.

JANUARY 1, 1901.

The Best English Upright Pianos are

THE

"CHALLEN" PIANOS

Testimonials from the Greatest English Musicians, including:—

SIR JOHN STAINER, SIR GEORGE MARTIN,
FRANKLIN TAYLOR, C. HARFORD LLOYD,
FREDERIC H. COWEN, ALFRED GILBERT,
JOHN FRANCIS BARNETT, FREDERIC LAMOND,
FREDERIC CLIFFE, W. H. CUMMINGS,

And other Eminent Members of the Musical World.

HIGHEST INTERNATIONAL AWARDS, 1862, 1877, 1878, 1881, 1886, 1895, 1897.

CHALLEN & SON, 46, Oxford Street, London, W.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

THE GENUINE

SCHIEDMAYER PIANOS

(Trade Mark:—SCHIEDMAYER PIANOFORTE FABRIK.)
(Formerly:—J. and P. SCHIEDMAYER.)

DR. HANS RICHTER writes on Sept. 21, 1900:—
"We unpacked the Schiedmayer Grand Pianoforte yesterday. I played on it all the evening, and am quite delighted with its perfection and exquisite quality of tone."

THE SCHIEDMAYER PIANOS
HAVE RECEIVED THE HIGHEST POSSIBLE AWARD, VIZ.: THE GRAND PRIX AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

ARCHIBALD RAMSDEN, Ltd.
(SOLE IMPORTER INTO GREAT BRITAIN),
103, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON; 12, PARK ROW, LEEDS. and also at his Branch Establishments at SCARBORO', DARLINGTON, MIDDLESBRO', JARROW, BLYTHE, GATESHEAD, BISHOP AUCKLAND, CONSETT, WEST HARTLEPOOL, MORECAMBE, NEWARK, DONCASTER, HULL, & YORK.

These Instruments may be had from the Principal Dealers throughout the Kingdom.

KAIM & SOHN,

THE KING OF THE MODERN PIANO.

Call and read the Opinion of Artists of the highest standing, including Jenny Lind, Ella Russell, Marie Engle, Marie Elba, Felix Weingartner, Hermann Zumpe, Bernhard Stavenhagen, Georg Liebling, Stanley Hawley, Barron Berthald, Ffrangcon-Davies, and Hundreds of others.

FOR FURTHER PARTICULARS APPLY TO

KAIM HOUSE (F. Kaim & Sohn),

67, BERNERS STREET, OXFORD STREET, W.

ESTEY ORGANS.

OVER 319,000 SOLD

Unrivalled in Tone and Quality, Beautiful in Model and Finish.

LARGEST ORGAN MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE:

12, RATHBONE PLACE, OXFORD ST., W.

Paterson, Sons & Co., Sole Agents for Scotland. Thompson & Shackell, Ltd., Sole Agents for South Wales.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE POST-FREE.

CHAPPELL PIANOS.

AMERICAN ORGANS (by Clough & Warren) from 6 Guineas.
HARMONIUMS (by Alexandre) . . . from 7 Guineas.

Their latest creations of high-class English Pianos are unquestionably the finest that have ever been produced either by an English or Continental maker. Pianinos, 25 Guineas; Full Cottages, 40 Guineas; Upright Grands, 50 Guineas; Horizontal Grands, 135 Guineas. Hire or Instalment system. Illustrated List Post-free. Established 1808.

CHAPPELL & CO., Ltd. { Pianoforte Manufacturers, } 50, New Bond St., London, W.

TO TEACHERS. CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY SESSION.

THE NORMAL OR TEACHERS' COURSE

OF THE

VIRGIL PIANO SCHOOL and SCHOOL OF PUBLIC PERFORMANCE.

A Two Weeks' Course in Technic and Method of Pianoforte Instruction for Teachers and Players.

Term begins Monday Morning, January 7, 1901. Closes Saturday Evening, January 19.
The previous Sessions have been attended by over 350 Pianoforte Teachers. See "Statement" by Musicians who were in attendance.

THE COURSE COMPRISES:
- 6 Hour Private Lessons in Technic.
- 6 Hour Class Lessons in Technic.
- 6 Lecture Lessons by Mr. EMLYN LEWYS.
- 6 Pianoforte Recitals with Technical Demonstrations.

Send for Circular containing full particulars.

"Mr. A. K. VIRGIL,—The method of study and practice which your unparalleled and original Technic Course and the Clavier make possible is deserving of the highest praise.—VLADIMIR DE PACHMANN."

CLAVIER HALL,

12, PRINCES STREET, HANOVER SQUARE, LONDON, W.

THE VIRGIL PRACTICE CLAVIER (BRITISH) CO., LTD. ALBERT BATE, Managing Director.

N.B.—The Winter Term for Pupils of the Virgil Piano School begins Monday, January 21, 1901.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND

SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

(FOUNDED 1844.)

VOLUME XLII.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

1901.

6975
X
4041.23
42
1901

MUSIC IN VOLUME XLII.

NO.	SACRED.
695.	All people that on earth do dwell	John E. West.
696.	Blessed are the poor in spirit ..	.. Henry Hiles.
697.	If ye then be risen	.. H. M. Higgs.
698.	The King shall rejoice	.. John Goss.
701.	Hearken unto this	H. Elliot Button.
705.	Come and worship the Lord ..	Thomas Adams.
706.	The King of Love my Shepherd is	A. Davidson Arnott.

NO.	SECULAR.
699.	By the lone sea shore ..	.. S. Coleridge-Taylor.
700.	Lilian	.. S. P. Waddington.
702.	All the world is bright	H. E. Hodson.
703.	Cupid detected. (Arranged by J. F. Bridge)	Henry Lawes.
704.	Sweet love, if thou wilt gain	A. Redgrave Cripps.

EXTRA SUPPLEMENTS.

SACRED.

696.	Thou art gone to the grave	C. Lee Williams.
—	Vesper Hymn	Arthur Sullivan.
—	God rest our Queen (Funeral Hymn)	B. Luard Selby.
697.	Now late on the Sabbath day	S. Coleridge-Taylor.
698.	{ Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei. No. 1 / Do. do. do. No. 2 } From the Service No. 2, in A and D	John Stainer.
—	The roseate hues of early dawn (Hymn)	Arthur Sullivan.
701.	Look on the fields	Charles Macpherson.
—	The Joy of Harvest	J. H. Maunder.
702.	Be merciful, be gracious (Chorus, 'Dream of Gerontius')	Edward Elgar.
705.	Rejoice in the Lord	Alfred Hollins.
706.	In the beginning	Charles Macpherson.
—	The Prince of Peace	A. Herbert Brewer.

SECULAR.

695.	Britons, alert (Epilogue 'Caractacus')	Edward Elgar.
699.	Before me, careless lying	C. H. Lloyd.
700.	Creation's Hymn	Beethoven.
—	The Chase	Edward German.
703.	The Dawn of Song	E. C. Bairstow.
704.	Since thou, O fondest	C. Hubert H. Parry.

PORTRAITS, ILLUSTRATIONS, FACSIMILES, &c.

SPECIAL PORTRAIT SUPPLEMENTS.

Beethoven	January.	Boyce, Dr.	July.
Mozart, Wolfgang (aged 7)	February.	Faning, Eaton	August.
Verdi, Giuseppe	March.	Malibran, Madame	September.
Goss, John	April.	Hollins, Alfred	October.
Stainer, John	May.	Arne, Dr.	November.
Wilhelmj, August	June.	Arne, Dr. (Caricature Portrait by Bartolozzi) ..	December.

	PAGE
Arne, Dr. (Portrait)	714
Arnold, G. B. (Portrait)	720
Beethoven (Facsimile)	163
Bell, W. H. (Portrait)	607
Bellini, Vincenzo (Portrait)	729
—— (The house in which he was born)	729
Black, Algernon (Portrait)	728
Bosville, A. W. M., J.P. (Portrait)	316
Boyce, Dr.	445
Brewer, A. Herbert (Portrait)	668
Canterbury Cathedral	94
Chrysander, Friedrich (Portrait)	663
Cibber, Mrs. (Portrait)	715
Cooper, George (Portrait)	380
Faning, Eaton (aged 16)	513
—— (Facsimile MS., Song of the Vikings)	516
—— (Ingenious monogram)	524
Gibbons, Orlando (Monument to)	95
Gibney, Somerville (Portrait)	517
Gloucester Cathedral	669
Gloucester Festival Rehearsal, A	671
Goss, John (Portrait, with autograph inscription) ..	266
—— (The Cenotaph in St. Paul's Cathedral)	379
—— ('The Sergeant's Wife.' Quadrilles)	382
—— (Three-part Fugue)	227
Harrow School Buildings	515
—— (Ducker, the bathing-place)	521
—— (Fourth Form Room)	519
—— (The Speech Room)	525
Hollins, Alfred (Portrait, aged 11)	651
—— (Organ Composition, Braille type)	655
Hopkins, E. J. (Facsimile)	670
Kilburn, N. (Portrait)	519
Klein, Hermann (Portrait)	803
Leeds Town Hall (exterior)	732
—— (interior)	733
Mendelssohn, Fanny (Portrait, aged 11)	156
—— (Portrait, Frau Hensel)	157
Mendelssohn's Organ Sonatas (Facsimiles of Autograph)	207

	PAGE
Miller, Dr. Edward (Portrait)	736
Mozart Family, The	83
Musical Doctor and his Scholars, A (Caricature) ..	802
Mutlow, William, Malibran's Sketch of	587
—— (Portrait)	589
Perrin, H. C. (Portrait)	96
Piatti, Alfredo (Portrait)	535
Pole, William, F.R.S. (Portrait)	103
Queen Anne (Wax Effigy)	168
Redhead, Richard (Portrait)	411
Russell, Henry (Portrait)	27
St. Luke's Church, Chelsea	229
Salaman, Charles (Portrait)	531
—— (Facsimiles)	532-3
Schiller's 'Ode to Joy' (the house at Gohlis, where it was written)	591
Schubert's 23rd Psalm (Facsimile of Autograph) ..	593
Spark, Fred. R., J.P. (Portrait)	735
Stainer, John (aged 12)	302
—— (aged 21)	303
—— Early Efforts (Facsimile Sketch)	299
Sullivan, Arthur (Portrait)	22
—— (Facsimile)	100
—— (the house in which he was born)	241
Tallis, Thomas (Medallion Portrait)	808
United Free St. George's Church, Edinburgh	653
Wagner, Richard (Caricature)	373
—— Concert Programme (Facsimile)	595
Weber Concert Ticket (Facsimile)	162
Wesley, Dr. S. S. (Memorial Window in Gloucester Cathedral)	674
—— (Key-board of Gloucester Cathedral Organ) ..	675
Wesley, Samuel (Facsimile Album Leaf)	10
Wilhelmj, August (Portrait, aged 17)	371
—— The Long-Bow (Caricature)	372
Willis, Father (Portrait)	164
Winchester Cathedral (interior)	721
Zapotecano, The, or Marimba	310, 311, 312

INDEX.

—*—

LEADING ARTICLES.

Page

America, Music in (H. E. Krehbiel), 41, 256, 331, 750
Arne, Dr. 713, 798

Bach Festival in Berlin (Otto Lessmann) 319
—— at Bethlehem, U.S. (H. E. Krehbiel) 463
Beethoven: his portrait, and—its blot... 15
Beethoven's Choral Symphony, Notes on the words of 590
Bell, W. H. 606
Bellini in England 604
Berlin, Music in (Otto Lessmann) ... 188
Boyce, Dr. 441, 529, 805
Bridlington Musical Festival 316
Bülow, Hans von, in his letters (C. A. Barry) 90

Cambridge, Musical Evening at ... 239
Canterbury, a visit to, on New Century's Day 93
Carols, English and Foreign (Sir John Stainer) 785
Christmas Present, A (Mendelssohn's Op. 72) 807
Chrysander, Friedrich 661
Church and Organ Music ... 25, 101, 171, 242, 317, 389, 461, 536, 607, 672, 736, 808
Contredanse, La (J. F. R. Stainer) 97
Curious Musical Instrument, A (W. H. Rundall) 310

Dibdin, Charles (Joseph Bennett) ... 656
Dumps (Joseph Bennett) 13

Ear Training (W. G. McNaught) ... 172
Educational Music in Manchester ... 550
Ethical Aspects of Music, Professor Niecks on the 542, 609

Faning, Eaton 513, 614
Fifths Permissible (F. E. Gladstone) 235
—— and otherwise (F. Corder) 449
Funeral Anthems, Three Royal 169

Gauntlett Organ, A curious 101, 171, 265
Gloucester Festival 545, 668
—— Gleanings 673
—— Novelties 605
Goss, Sir John 225, 375

Hallelujah Chorus, curious arrangements 458
Handel's Borrowings (J. S. Shedlock) 450, 520, 596, 756
Heidelberg Festival, the (Otto Lessmann) 550
Hollins, Alfred 649
Hopkins, E. J. (obituary) 169
—— Scotch Minister's Tribute 171
Hymn Tunes (Joseph Bennett) 231

International Congress of Publishers ... 477

Leeds Festival and its Conductorship 177, 731
—— Gleanings 735
—— Novelties 667
Lower Rhine Musical Festival at Cologne (C. A. Barry) 475

Malibran and Mutlow ... 585, 667, 674
Manchester Music Makings 234
Melodrama, Professor Niecks on ... 96
Mendelssohn, Fanny 156
Mendelssohn's Christmas Pieces ... 807
—— Organ Sonatas 794
Mozart, Nannerl 82
Munich Prinzregenten Theater (Vernon Blackburn) 748
Music in England in the Nineteenth Century 9, 88, 160
Music in Scotland 723, 789

New Century, A Happy 9
New Festival Composer, A (W. H. Bell) 606
Nineteenth Century, Music in England in the 88

Piatti, Alfredo 534
Pole, W., F.R.S. (obituary) 103
Psalm Singing (Joseph Bennett) ... 453

Queen Victoria and Music 374

Page

Royal Academy (of Arts) Exhibition, Music in (Herbert Thompson) ... 383
Russian and English Music and Musical Critics 807

Salaman, Charles (obituary) 530
Schubert and British Poets 659
Schubert's Setting of the Twenty-third Psalm 592
Scotland, Music in 723, 789
Sisters of two Great Composers, the—
I. Nannerl Mozart 82
II. Fanny Mendelssohn 156
Spiritual Songs (Joseph Bennett) ... 85
Stainer, John (obituary) 297
Sullivan, Arthur, as a Church Musician 21
—— Mr. Vernon Blackburn on 92
—— New Anecdotes and Fresh Reminiscences 99, 165
—— Sir Alexander Mackenzie on ... 459
—— The Chapel Royal Days of (C. V. Bridgman) 167
—— The House in which he was born 241
Swiss Musical Festival, the Second (Otto Lessmann) 551

Verdi (Joseph Bennett) 153
Victoria, our beloved Queen 81
Vienna, Music in (Mandyczewski) 118, 188, 256, 329, 406, 820

Wagner as a Concert-Giver 594
What a High Sheriff may do for Music (Herbert Thompson) 316
Wilhelmj, August 369
Winchester, a Visit to 719
Wonderful Achievement, A (H. E. Krehbiel) 463

Zapotecano, The, or Marimba (W. H. Rundall) 310

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

Page

Abbreviations, Curious Effect of ... 806
Additions to Vocabulary of Musical Critics 387
'Adeste Fideles,' Earliest Appearance of 386
—— Latin Version, with varied accompaniments 804
Alfred the Great and Music 666
Allgemeiner Deutscher Musik-Verein (Festival, 1902) 602
Anthems and Anthem Composers (M. B. Foster) 313
Art Songs, H. T. Finck on 456

Bach Choir re-organised 17
Beethoven and our National Anthem ... 163
Bell, W. H., New work for the Philharmonic Society 806
Bellini Festival and Anecdotes 729
Black, Algernon, Retirement of 728
Borland, John E., on Orchestral and Choral Balance 806
Bosville, A. M. W., Analytical Programmes, Bridlington Festival 314, 315
Boyce, Dr., Addenda to Biography 529, 805
Branscombe, Edward, Canadian Tour 530, 730
British Exhibition at Herr Manskopf's Musical Museum, Frankfort 804
British Museum, Annual Additions to... 601
Broadwood, John, & Sons, Ltd. ... 729
Broadwood, Messrs., Exhibition of Pianofortes 239
Browning, Robert, the Musician, Miss Goodrich-Freer on 312
—— 'Abt Vogler' (Rev. Dr. Monro Gibson) 312
Buths, Professor Julius, at Düsseldorf... 237

Cambridge University, Honorary Degrees to Musicians 19
Camidge, John, Overture to the 'Canterbury Tales' 315
Cardiff Festival, Prospects of Resuscitation 313
Chappell, Arthur, as 'Turnover' at the Pops. 603

Page

Cheap Music Lessons 313
Chess and Music 731
Choral Societies, Weeding Out 164
Cigars and Music 166
Cowen, F. H., Presentation 20
—— Public Orator's Speech 19

Davison, J. W., on the Crowd at the Unveiling of Beethoven's Statue 166
—— Anecdote of 602
Dibdin, Charles, Bibliographical Account of Works 529
Doulton Institute and Good Music ... 313

Eccentricities in Musical Announcements 731, 806
—— in Reporting ... 21, 93, 239, 314, 387, 530
Elgar, Edward, 'Dream of Gerontius' at Worcester 388
—— Herr Otto Lessmann, on 20
—— Public Orator's Speech 19
—— 'Variations' in Germany ... 164, 805
Elgar, Frank, and the Worcester Civil Military Band 730
English Music at Dieppe 666
—— at Naples 18
—— at the Promenade Concerts ... 730
Examination Papers, Curious Answers 387

Fifteenth Century Music (English), an Undescribed Collection 457
Finck, H. T., on Songs and Song Writers 456
Foster, Myles Birket, Anthems and Anthem Composers 313
Funeral Marches, Christian v. Non-Christian 456

German or English Dances 315
'God Save the King' and Beethoven ... 163
Grand Duke Michael, The (flute player) 163

Hampstead Cemetery, Musicians' graves 164
Handel's, A precious relic of, J. S. Shedlock on 163
—— 'Acis,' Additional accompaniments to 803
—— Naturalisation, Act of Parliament concerning 313
Haydn's 'Il ritorno di Tobia' 600
—— 'Insanæ et vanæ curæ,' History of 600
Hipkins, A. J., Tribute from Dr. Oscar Bie 93
Hobbies or recreations of musicians ... 165

Inspector of Music, The new 665
Instructions (Revised) as to Singing in Day Schools (Dr. W. G. McNaught) 665
International Loan Exhibition Catalogue 18
Internationalen Musikgesellschaft, Publications of 239
Italian Military Bands, The King of Italy and 315

'Job,' Musical Settings by John Hilton 664

Kilburn, W., Article on Additional Accompaniments to Handel's 'Acis' 803
—— Biographical Notes 19
Klein, Hermann, Biographical Notes ... 803
Krieger, Johann, 'Anmuthige Clavier Uebung' 163

Lahee, H. C., Music-Lovers' Series ... 92
Late Musical Critics 603
Lemare, Edwin H., Visit to the United States 21
Lessmann, Otto, on Dr. Edward Elgar 20, 805
Lincoln, Henry J., and J. W. Davison ... 602
—— on Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto 602
Liszt and Charles Salaman 665
Lloyd, Edward, Farewell Tour 20
London County Council Parks Bands ... 387
London Musical Festival 237
Lortzing, Albert, Centenary of Birth ... 804

Mackenzie, Sir Alexander, Concert at Florence 237
Manchester Vocal Society, Retrospect... 728
Manns, August, an Appreciation in the Spectator 806

Page

Many happy returns of the day 665, 727, 803
Margery and the beats 315
McKinley, President, Music at Memorial Services 665
McNaught, Dr. W. G., and the Inspectorship of Music 665
—— on the Revised Instructions as to Singing in Day Schools 665
Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' the Pall Mall Gazette on 666
—— Violin Concerto, First Performance in England 602
Millett, Miss Eileen, a New Soprano from Toronto 92
Mozart's 'Don Giovanni,' the Athenæum on 601
—— The Pall Mall Gazette on ... 601
Music for Employés during the Dinner-hour 166
Musical Association, Proceedings, 1900-1901 806 —— Speakers at Annual Dinner ... 806
Musical Conundrum, A 806
Musical Criticism and Information, Eccentricities of 21, 93, 239, 314, 387, 530, 731, 806
Musical Museum, Frankfort, British Exhibition at 804
Musicians, Good Work by Sons of (Mr. H. C. Lahee), 92; (Stainer, Mr. C. L.) 166 —— Itinerant, and the Landlord ... 806

Neale Pianotype, The 731
'New Creation,' The 731
Newman, Robert, New Works at Queen's Hall 805
Niecks, Professor, on Funeral Marches, Christian v. Non-Christian ... 456
—— Last Historical Concert 238
—— on a Music School for Scotland ... 730
—— Programme of Third Historical Concert 165

Opera Libretti, Curious Titles of ... 166
Organist's Punctuality 93

Peters, C. F., Centenary Celebration ... 18
Peterson, Franklin, Appointed Professor of Music, Melbourne 20
Philharmonic Society, Presentation to Artists, 1833 529
—— Prospectus, 1901 92
Phonetic Translation of Italian Musical Terms 21
Prince Consort, The Music at Memorial Service 19
Printer's Boy again, The 387
Promenade Concert in 1838 Programme 666
Purcell's 'Fairy Queen,' Discovery of Score with Autograph 388

Queen Victoria and Beethoven, Anecdote 166
—— Funeral Service at Berne 163
Quick Despatch of Music 18

'R. A. M.' Club Magazine ... 92, 387
Royal Academy of Music Scholarships (Mrs. Ada Lewis) 530
Royal Choral Society Prospectus ... 667
Royal College of Organists, Peculiarities of Candidates' Names 166
Russell, Henry, Andrew Deakin on ... 93

Sacred Harmonic Society, Signal for Chorus 602
Saint-Saëns, Dr., New Opera 731
Salaman, Charles, Eighty-Seventh Birthday 237
—— Pianists of the Past 665
Scotland, Professor Niecks on a Music School for 730
Somervell, Arthur, Inspector of Music 665
Squire, W. Barclay, Notes on an Undescribed Collection of English Fifteenth Century Music 457
Stainer, C. L., 'Speeches of Oliver Cromwell' 166
Stainer, Sir John, on Dr. Pole and the Musical Association 91
—— at Florence 237
—— Memorial 456
Stanford, Professor, and Arthur Sullivan 602
Sullivan, Arthur, Funeral of 16
—— and Costa 386
—— In Memoriam Concert, Crystal Palace 17, 18
—— Memorial Meeting 388
—— Memorial Tablet 529
—— Mr. Vernon Blackburn on (Fortnightly Review) 92
—— Reminiscences (Mr. E. Peacock)... 165
—— Sonnet 17

Taylor, James, Memorial to 18
Translation, Errors in 457

Page

Valuable Violin, a Cheap 313
Verdi, Signor, Illness of 93
—— International Monument to ... 165
Vocabulary of Musical Critics, Additions to 387

'Who's Who?' 165
Worcestershire Philharmonic Society (Testing Performing Members) ... 164

Yorkshire Post, Musical Critic of, and Mr. Bosville 314

REVIEWS.

Page

Allen, Alfred J. The Fallacy of Modern Music 614
Amies, W. F. An' thou wert my ain ... 114
Apthorp, W. F. The Opera Past and Present 817

Bach, J. S. Sleepers, Wake! (Wachet auf) 546
—— Two and Three-part Inventions (Edited by Busoni) 114
Bache, Constance. Brother Musicians (Edward and Walter Bache) 612
Battle of the Orchestra, The (11 composers) 115
Baughan, C. E. Britannia's call ... 113
Bavin, J. T. The Elements of Singing 391
Beethoven's Leben (Erster Band) ... 112
Bell, W. H. Cradle Song (Violin) ... 547
Bellairs, R. H. Irish Romance (Violin and Pianoforte) 464
Bridges, Robert. A practical Discourse on some Principles of Hymn-Singing 608
Brown, Thomas Conway. The Military Church Parade Service Book 390
Bülow, Hans von. Briefe und Schreiben (Band V.) 90
Busoni, F. B. Bach's Two and Three-part Inventions 114
—— Ferruccio. Zweite Sonate für Clavier und Violine 748
Byrd, William. Mass for Three Voices (Arundel Masses, No. 1) 319

Campbell, H. A. J. Songs of the Seasons 818
Colberg, P. Legende in E minor ... 185
Coleridge-Taylor, S. Four Characteristic Waltzes (Quintet, Pianoforte and Strings) 115
—— The Blind Girl of Castél-Cuillé ... 667
Cowan, William, and James Love. The Music of the Church Hymnary and the Psalter in Metre 390
Cowen, F. H. Six Songs (3rd set) ... 113
Cox, Garnet Wolseley. Last Night and Love Song. Daffadowndilly 546
Crawford, Mary. Prelude, Capriccio, and Gavotte 185
Curwen, John. How to Observe Harmony 172

Davis, J. D. Arioso (Violin and Pianoforte) 464
Denkmäler der Tonkunst in Oesterreich, VIII Jahrgang. Hammerschmidt und Pachelbel 612

Elgar, Edward. Chanson de nuit (Viola and Pianoforte) 185
—— Intermezzo from the 'Variations' 185
—— Mazurka. Sérénade Mauresque. Contrasts. Chanson de nuit. Chanson de matin (Military Band) 614
Elliston, Thomas. Organs and Tuning 391
Erb, M. G. Six Songs 113

Finck, H. T. Songs and Song Writers 456
Fisher, O. P. The Training and Capabilities of Voluntary Church Choirs 608
Fletcher, P. E. Harvest Praise 546
Foster, Myles Birket. Anthems and Anthem Composers 808

German, Edward. Harvest Dance (The Seasons). Bourrée et Gigue (Much Ado) 244
Glasenapp, C. F. Life of Richard Wagner, Vol. I 112
Glazounow, A. C. Memorial Cantata ... 667
Godard, Benjamin. Love-Letters, No. 2 Our Dream of Happiness 613
Goodeve, Mrs. Arthur. A Song of the Morning 613
Gostelow, F. Dream Thoughts 546
Grey, Robin (Edited by). Studies in Music 747
Griffith, G. W., and W. S. de Winton. Renderings of Church Hymns from Eastern and Western Office Books ... 608

Page

Hann, Sidney. How to Learn the Fingering of Scales and Arpeggios ... 391
Happy New Year. Collection of Pianoforte Pieces 818
Harris, Clement A. Notes on the Singing of Hymns 608
Harris, Cuthbert. In the Merry Month of May 113
Hateley, W. Six Lyrics 176
Haynes, Battison. The Sea Fairies ... 819
—— Twelve Two-part Songs 677
Henry, Alfred S. Cradle Song. Calm at Sea. Huntsman's Song 676
Higgs, H. M. Communion Service in C 676
Hunecker, James. Chopin the Man and his Music 176

Instructions to H. M. Inspectors as to the Examinations in Singing 172

Jadassohn, S. A Practical Course in Ear Training 172
Janotha, Natalie. Mazurka 245
Jenner, Harold. Sweet Lovers love the Spring 546

Kidner, W. J. How to Start a Men's Choir 614
Kirby, W. H. Ma Nacelle 613
Krœger, E. R. Scherzo und Drei Mythologische Scenen. Arion, An den Ufern des Lethe, und Ixion. Neun Klavier-Gedichte, in Etudenform und Chromatische Etüden 748
Kühner, Conrad. Georg Friedrich Handel's Klavierwerke. Book I. ... 319

Lahee, H. C. Famous Pianists, Violinists, and Singers 92
Lavigne, Ernest. Twenty-five Songs 547
Lawson, Joseph. Manchester Philharmonic Society, 21 Years' Review ... 614
Lehmann, Liza. Ah! Moon of my Delight (Violin) 547
Lemare, Edwin H. Original Compositions for the Organ :—
Nos. 8, 9 and 10 113
Nos. 11 and 12 318
—— Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ :—
Nos. 16, 18 and 19 113
—— Recital Series of Transcriptions for the Organ :—
Nos. 10 to 20 112
Litauische Volks-Weisen 115
Löhr, Hermann. A Song of the March Wind 113
Love, James, and William Cowan. The Music of the Church Hymnary ... 390

Mallard, C. Daybreak 114
Marches for the Organ, Twenty-four ... 747
Mees, Arthur, Choirs and Choral Music 877
Mendelssohn, Life of (Stratton) 747
Meyer-Helmund, Eric. The Magic of Thy Voice. I am Thine 613
Moser, Andreas. Life of Joseph Joachim 175
Mottl, Felix. Pan in Busch 245

Newton, Ernest. Why do I love Thee? 613
Nicholl, N. W. Praeludien und Fugen 748
—— Symphonische Praeludien und Fugen 748
—— Symphonische Sonate in A moll 748
Novello's Anthem Books :—
Books 2, 3, 4 and 5 28
—— Music Primers :—
No. 58 319
No. 41A 817
—— Octavo Anthems :—
Nos. 660, 662-3 114
Nos. 668, 695 244
Nos. 653, 654, 655, 657, 658 ... 318
Nos. 670, 671, 674, 675, 687 ... 464
No. 711 546
Nos. 659, 661, 667, 672, 676, 678 ... 547
Nos. 682, 689, 692, 693 613
Nos. 679, 697, 699 676
Nos. 680, 681, 684-5, 688 747
—— Original Compositions for the Organ :—
Nos. 285 to 288 113
289 and 293 318
—— Orpheus, The :—
Nos. 334, 335, 339 to 342 114
—— Parish Choir Book :—
Nos. 437, 439, 446-7, 449, 450, 451-2, 468, 470, 471, 476-9 28
Nos. 483-7 244
Nos. 489, 490, 496, 502, 506, 513 ... 464
Nos. 513, 526, 529 614
Nos. 525, 532, 535 676
Nos. 493, 499, 500-1 818

Page

Novello's Part Song Book :—
Nos. 778, 834-5, 837-40 28
Nos. 841-4 318
Nos. 855-859, 861 613
Nos. 845-9, 852 818
—— School Marches (Book 2) 185
—— Services and Anthems for Men's Voices :—
Nos. 51 and 52 817
—— Short Anthems :—
Nos. 102 to 105 244
No. 111 676
—— Village Organist, The :—
Books 25 and 30 747

O'Neill, Norman. The Indian Serenade 176

Palmer, E. Davidson. The Boy's Voice 391
Parker, Horatio W. An Even-Song ... 818
Pasmore, H. B. Six Songs 113
Peace, A. L. Organ Annotations ... 816
Plain-Song and Mediæval Music Society. The Litany and Suffrages, with Music 391
Primitive Methodist Sunday School Hymnal, with Tunes 390
Purcell, Henry. Three songs from 'The Fairy Queen.' If Love's a Sweet Passion. When I have often heard. Hark! hark! the ecch'ing air 185

Ramsay, K. M. Once only at the garden gate. I will make you brooches ... 113
Reeves, Sims. On the Art of Singing 391
Reger, Max. Zwolf Stücke für die Orgel 748
Ricci, Vittorio. Pastelli Musicali ... 113
Ritter, F. J. Musical Dictation ... 172
Rowton, S. J. The Organist's Chant Book 391
Rubens, Paul A. Bridal Song and Graceful Dance (Twelfth Night) ... 464

Saunders, Gordon. Examples in Strict Counterpoint 817
Sawyer, F. J. Ear Training 172
Sevcik, Otakar. Böhmishe Tänze (Violin and Piano) 464
Shapleigh, B. Fünf Lieder (Op. 18), Fünf Lieder (Op. 19), Wo kann mein trauter Richter sein? (Op. 33), Elfenliebe (Op. 35), Rhapsodie (Op. 37), Persisches Lied (Op. 38). Fitnes Gesang. Ein Cyklus von sieben Gesängen (Op. 40) ... 818
—— Six Songs 113
Shaw, M. Fallas. Reverie (Violin) ... 547
Shinn, F. G. Elementary Ear Training. Book I.—Melodic 172
Smythe, J. Stewart. Concise Scale and Arpeggio Manual... 391
Sparmann, Helene M. Lessons in Audition 172
Squire, W. H. Consolation (Violoncello) 547
Stainer, John. Communion Service in G 547
—— Communion Service (Men's Voices) 818
Stratton, S. S. Mendelssohn (The Master-Musicians' Series) 747
Sullivan, Arthur, Souvenir of 612

Thayer, A. W. Life of Beethoven. Dr. Deiter's 112
Thorley, W. Handel. Ballade (Violin and Pianoforte) 464
Tosti, Paolo. Parted 176
Tschaikowsky. A Dance and a Dream 613
Tuckwell, L. S., and J. Stainer. The Psalms, Canticles, &c., pointed ... 391

Vernham, J. E. First Steps in the Harmonisation of Melodies 319
Villanis, Luigi Alberto. L'Arte del Clavicembalo 746

Waddington, S. P. Whimland 676
Wagner, Richard, Life of (Glasenapp). Das Leben Richard Wagners. Vol. I. 112
Wallace, W. Shuttle and Loom. The Jacobite 676
Warner, H. Waldo. Elegie and Scherzo (Violin and Pianoforte) 185
—— Ditto (Violoncello) 547
Webster, C. A. Albert Lortzing ... 390
Wells, W. J. Souvenir of Sir Arthur Sullivan 612
Who's Who? 165
Williams, C. F. Abdy. Handel 319
Wood, Charles. A Dirge for Two Veterans 667
Wright, Ellen. Violets 176

CORRESPONDENCE.

Page

Aldermanic Organists 317, 389, 462
Anti-Abbreviation Society, The 756
Antipodes, Organ Music at 542
Arne, Dr. 'Thomas and Sally' 265, 338, 412, 483, 557, 621

Balliol College, Oxford, Music at ... 621
Beethoven Correction, A 265
Bellchambers, Miss 483

Cork, 'Martyr of Antioch' at 52

Dibdin, Charles 828

Gauntlett Organ at St. Olave's, The ... 265
(See Miscellaneous.)

Handel's Borrowings 756
'Helmsley' (the Hymn-Tune) 195
Hymn-Tune, A Scotch Snap 338

'Innocents' (the Hymn-Tune) 317
Inspector of Music, The, and The Board of Education 685

Jewish Method of rendering Psalm xlvi. 621

Mapleson, The late Colonel 828

Oxford History of Music, An 265

Plain-Song Mutilations 746

St. Michael's College, Tenbury 124

'Thomas and Sally' (See Arne).

Wesley's 'Wilderness,' Organ part of ... 25

OBITUARY.

Archer, Frederick 827
Audran, Edmond 621

Barbier, Jules 124
Barnett, Alice 338
Benoit, Peter 264
Biggar, Alexander 621
Birch, Miss 195

Chrysander, Friedrich 661
Cohen, Jules 124
Cole, Wentworth L. 52

Davies, William 685
Dibdin, J. C. 550
Dow, J. Ramsay 338
Doyle, C. W. 827

Farmer, John 556
Freake, Lady 52
Friswell, Mrs. 338
Frost, H. F. 411

Groves, John 412
Gurlitt, Cornelius 483

Hall, C. J. 412
Haweis, H. R. 195
Haynes, William 411
Henschel, Mrs. 827
Hopkins, E. J. 169

Kleinmichel, Richard 685

Liddell, Mrs. 556
Lincoln, Henry John 620
Lunn, Mrs. H. C. 756

Macfarren, John 827
Mapleson, J. H. 827

Piatti, Alfredo 534, 603
Pole, William 91, 103
Porges, Heinrich 52
Preyer, Gottfried 406
Pye, Kellow J. 685, 756

Quarterman, Percival 195
Queen Victoria 81

Read, J. F. H. 338
Redhead, Richard 411
Richardson, James, J.P. 408
Rivers, Percy Edgar 685
Rivière, Jules 123
Rogers, Georgina Hale 338
Rudd, Kingston 195
Rummel, Franz 411
Russell, Henry 27, 93

Salaman, Charles 483, 530
Shinner, Emily 556
Simrock, Fritz 685
Sims, F. H. 827
Smith, Jeremiah Oakley 338
Stainer, John 297

Verdi, Giuseppe 153

Waldauer, August 124
Willis, Henry 164
Woolf, Benjamin E. 256
Woolhouse, Charles 621

LECTURES.

Page

Bache, Miss Constance. Russian Music 21, 825
Borland, John E. On Orchestral and Choral Balance 806
Branscombe, Edward. On English Madrigals and Glees 339
Bridge, J. C. Recorders 185
Bridge, J. F. An Hour with Henry Lawes 806
—— A Seventeenth Century View of Musical Education 237

Cobbett, W. W. Music and Musicians of the Walloon Provinces of Belgium 115
Curwen, J. Spencer. The Music of 1800 20

Gandy, W. On Arthur Sullivan ... 313
Gilbert, Alfred. Methods of the Masters of Musical Design 123

Macfarren, Walter. Beethoven's Sonatas 18
—— Pianists, Ancient and Modern ... 731
Mackenzie, A. C. On Arthur Sullivan 309, 459
MacLean, C. The Libretti of Wagner 412

Newmarch, Mrs. Rosa. Art Songs of Russia 240
Niecks, Professor. A Music School for Scotland 730
—— Melodrama 96
—— The Ethical Aspects of Music 388, 483, 542, 609

Parry, C. Hubert. Music of the Seventeenth Century 42

Rose, Algernon S. The Balalaïka ... 21

Sawyer, F. J. The Teaching of Harmony as a Basis of Ear Training ... 21
Shedlock, J. S. A Precious Relic of Handel's 163
Shinn, F. G. Instrumental Music of the Nineteenth Century 44
Stainer, John. Old Metrical Psalters 26
Statham, H. H. The Æsthetic Treatment of Bach's Organ Works ... 326

Weatherly, F. E. Thirty-three Years of Song Writing 548
Webb, W. C. Music in Public Worship 412
Westerby, Herbert, Chromaticism in Harmony 473

MISCELLANEOUS.

Adelaide, University of. Professorship of Music 603
American Guild of Organists 461
Answers to Correspondents 54, 125, 197, 263, 342, 414, 484, 558, 622, 685, 758, 830
Antigua, Organ at 102
Antipodes, Organ Music in 542

Bach at St. Anne's, Soho 102, 745
Bach's Cantata 'Wachet auf' 757
Bache, Edward and Walter (biography) 123
—— Walter. Liszt, Scores of 667
Berlin Photographic Company. "The Gentle Music of the By-Gone Day"... 622
Bewan, Frederick (Appointment) ... 123
Birmingham Festival Accounts 41
Blow, John, Nuptials of 242
Brixton Oratorio Choir 685, 816
Buck, P. C. (Appointment) 388

Cathedral Organist, A lady 603
Chanting the Psalms, Bishop Westcott on 607
Choir Appointments 26, 102, 172, 243, 318, 389, 462, 542, 673, 746, 817
Choir Benevolent Fund, Annual Meeting 196
—— Patronage of the King 339
Chopin, Monument to 757
Cummings, Richard 614

Page

Dicker, Seymour (Appointment) ... 685
Diocesan, Festival Choirs, Efficiency of 461
Durham University (Degrees) 330
Dvorák, Antonin (Appointment) ... 603

Elgar, Edward, 'Dream of Gerontius' at Düsseldorf 603
English, F. de G. (Appointment) ... 483
Erard, Messrs. 51
Eyre, the Misses 757

Foster, Miss Muriel 185
Fulkerson, H. L. 685

Gade's, 'Erl-King's Daughter' Dramatised 677
Gauntlett Organ, a Curious ... 101, 171
Gill, Allen (Appointment) 119
Glasgow Exhibition, Specification of Organ in 536
Gordon Mission Hall, Bethnal Green ... 757
Grove, Sir George, Life of 667
Guildhall School of Music (New Secretary) 339 —— Prize Distribution 826

Harcourt, Miss Olive 265
Helmore's Psalter 317
'Helmsley' Hymn Tune 23
Hewitt, Harold 757
Higgs, James (Degree and Banquet) 165, 412, 462
Hopkins, Dr. E. J., Scotch Minister's Tribute to 171
Hunt, Hubert W. (Appointed to Bristol Cathedral) 530
Hutt, William 685
Hymn Tunes (Anonymous) ... 171, 317

Incorporated Society of Musicians (Annual Conference) 115
—— Orchestral Works 266
Incorporated Staff Sight-Singing College, The 549
'Innocents,' The Composer of the Tune 317

Joachim, Joseph (Degree) 603

Kirk, Music in the 243

Lay Clerk and J.P. 172
Lemare, E. H. American Tour ... 667
Lenten Performances 317
London Chamber of Commerce, Music Trades Section (Annual Meeting) ... 825
Löwe, The Misses 757
Lower Rhine Musical Festival, The 338, 475

Mackenzie, Alexander, Degree of LL.D., Glasgow 457
Macpherson, Charles (Appointment) ... 731
Madrigal Society 805
McNaught, Dr. W. G. (Presentation) ... 30
McNaught, W. G. (Operetta) 123
Mendelssohn, Herr Franz von. Presentation of Portraits to Berlin Museum 457
Mendelssohn. House in which he was born 734
Miller, Dr. Edward 736, 816
Mockridge, Whitney 196
Mozart's 'Don Giovanni' autograph score 667
Music Competitions:—
Blackpool 123, 401
Brigg 402
Carlisle 402
Cumberland 123
Feis Ceoil, The (Dublin) 403
Kendal (Westmoreland) 400
Kensington 91, 248
London Girls' Clubs 403
Madresfield, The 402
Merthyr Tydfil 614
Morecambe 402
National Eisteddfod, The 614
North-West Norfolk Village Choir Association (Hunstanton) 339
Summerscales, The 557
Swaledale 475
Wensley Dale 474
York 460
Music Teacher's Advertisement 665
Musical Association. Annual Dinner ... 806 —— Proceedings, 1900-1901 806

'Nearer, my God, to Thee.' History of 672
Newman, Robert, Marriage 166
Niecks, Professor (Presentation) ... 320
Nonconformist Choir Union Orchestra 51
North London Choirs' Association ... 243

Old-Time Criticism on Church Music ... 243
Orchestral Association, Removal ... 51
'Orchestral Times and Military Bandmaster Record.' Publication of ... 166 Organ Appointments 26, 102, 172, 243, 318, 389, 462, 542, 673, 746, 817
Organ Recitals 25, 102, 172, 243, 317, 389, 462, 483, 542, 672-3, 746, 816, 817
Organists, Aldermanic ... 317, 389, 462

Paque, Philippe (Appointment) ... 826
Parratt, Walter. Appointment 731
—— Cross of the Royal Victoria Order 163
Parry, C. Hubert. 'The 17th Century' (Publication) 167
Peterson, Franklin. Farewell Presentations 186
Phillips, C. L. (Presentation) 483
Piatti, Signor. Morton Latham on ... 603
Plain-Song Mutilations 746

Queen's Hall Organ 816

Richards, H. W. (Appointment) ... 412
Richardson, Stephen (Appointment) 826
'Rockingham' (Hymn-Tune) ... 736, 816
Roosevelt, President, Voice 667
Rootham, Cyril B. 603
Rowton, S. J. (Appointment) 483
Royal Academy of Music. Gift of Scholarships by Mrs. Lewis ... 530
—— Patronage of the King 309
—— Scholarships 32, 91, 266, 338, 412, 482, 557, 622, 756, 825
Royal College of Music. New Organ .. 461
—— Scholarships 266
Royal College of Organists. Successful Candidates 104, 557
Russell, Madame Ella, and the Moody-Manners Opera Company 189

Saint-Saëns, Camille. Prussian Order Conferred 603
Sharpe, L. G. (Concert Agent) 123
Sinding's Violin Concerto, First Performance (Correction) 339
Society of Arts (Examinations)... ... 557
Special Services 26, 389
St. Catherine's Church, Feltham ... 256
Stainer, John (The Abbey Glee Club and St. George's Glee Union)... ... 338
Stanford, Professor (Appointment, Leeds Festival) 93
Stratford Musical Festival, Programme of, 1901 51
Streatham 243
Streatham School of Music 265
Sullivan, Arthur, Statue to 757
Sweeting, E. T. (Appointment) 603

Tann, W. R. B. (Appointment, Bach Choir) 123
Thomas, John (Harpist to the King) ... 412
Thorne, E. H. Bach Recitals ... 102, 745
Toms, Miss Amy, Llewellyn (Correction) 483
Tonic Sol-fa College. Holiday Lessons for Music Teachers 483
Trinity College. Prize Distribution ... 825
—— Scholarships, &c. 557
Trio Competition (Oboe, Horn and Pianoforte) 196

Union of Graduates in Music, Roll of ... 115
University Intelligence 756
University of London (Degrees) ... 123

Virgil Piano School (Lectures, &c.) ... 557

Walenn, Herbert (Appointment) ... 731
Walthew Concert, A 51
Wesleyan Hymn Book 25
Wesley's 'Wilderness,' The Organ Part of 25
Westcott, Bishop, on Chanting the Psalms 607
—— on the Culture of Music 25
Westminster Chapel 757
Westmoreland Musical Festival (Programme) 240
Wetton, H. Davan (Appointment) ... 331
Wyndham, H. Saxe (Appointment) ... 339

York Minster Organ, Specification ... 242

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS.

Alexandra Palace. Choral and Orchestral Society 554
—— Re-opening 404, 479
Antonietti, Aldo 479
Artists' Popular Concerts, The 478

Bach Choir 825
Backhaus, Wilhelm 553
Barnet Choral Society 118
Barns, Ethel, and Charles Phillips 248, 819
Bauer, Harold 404, 478
Bechstein Hall (Opening) 479
Bermondsey Settlement Choral and Orchestral Union 43, 405
Bishopsgate Choral and Orchestral Society 43
Bispham, David 552
Bow and Bromley Choir 44
Bruckshaw, Kathleen 43, 478
Burnham, Thuel 187
Busoni 43

Carreño, Teresa 478
Castles, Amy 820
Cerasoli, Signorine ... ... 43.
Chaplin Trio 819
Cleather, Gordon 329
Cleaver, Eleanor 43
Clinton, George A. 404, 478
Coming Season, The 677
Cooke, Waddington 404
Croydon, Conservatoire 554
Crystal Palace Amateur Orchestral Society 405
—— Brass Band Contest 750
—— Concerts 186, 245, 327, 328, 329, 474
—— Military Concert 553
Curtius Club Concerts 43, 479

Dawson, Frederick 478, 713
Dene, Otto 256
Devonshire Square Church Choral Society 118, 405
Dulwich Philharmonic Society 44, 187, 329, 825

Ellis, Grace 43
Elzy, Marguerite 43

Fillunger, Kate 553
Finsbury Choral Association ... 187, 329, 825
Forest Gate Congregational Choral Society 329
Frederiksen, Mr. and Mrs. 479
Frickenhaus, Madame 329
Friedheim 477
Fry, Charles, Recitals 819
Fryer, Herbert 248, 553

Garay, Don Arciso 553
German, Edward, 'The rival poets' ... 247
Girls' Friendly Society 479
Girod, Mdlle. 478
Godowski, M. 478
'Golden Legend,' Crystal Palace ... 474
Goldmark's 'Cricket on the Hearth' ... 31
Good Friday Concerts 328
Green, Richard 329
Greene, Plunket, and Leonard Borwick 248
Grimaldi, Madame 553
Grimson, Jessie 404
Grosvenor, The Hon. Norman 31
Grylls, Cordelia 479
Guildhall School of Music 42
—— The Basoche 248
Gumthorpe, Edith 43
Gunning, Lilian 43

Halkett, Mrs. 553
Hambourg, Mark 750
Handel Society, The 256, 403
Henkel, Lily 248
Highbury Philharmonic Society 42
Highgate Philharmonic Society 320
Hirschbein, Ethel 553

Iles, Edward, Song Recital (Dr. Charles Wood's New Songs) 328, 820
Imperial Institute 187

Joachim Quartet 187, 399

Kensington Amateur Harmonic Society 480
Kensington Chapel Association 248
Kensington Choral Society 405
Knutzen, Martin 43
Korbay, F. 43, 479
Kreuz, Emil 247
Kruse Quartet 819
Kubelik 404, 479, 553
Kupferschmid, Hugo 42
Kyrle Choir 187, 825

Larkcom's, Agnes, pupils 819
Lehmann, Liza (Daisy Chain Cycle) ... 118
Lewisham Choral Society 118
Lierhammer, Dr. 31
Lloyd, Edward, farewell 30
London Church Choir Association ... 816
London County Council Parks Bands (dress rehearsal) 387
London Gregorian Choral Association 449
London Musical Festival ... 237, 391
London Octuor, The 339, 404

London Organ School 43, 405, 557
London Sunday School Choirs ... 187, 553
Lonsdale, Gertrude 43
Lucas, Miss Stanley, and Lucie Johnstone 404
Lyndhurst Road Church Hampstead ... 240

Mackenzie, A. C., Dramatic Suite ... 474
—— Music to 'Coriolanus' 327
Magpie Madrigal Society 479
Marlborough Place Amateur Orchestral Society 405
Maze Pond Choral Society ... 43, 405
McEwen, J. B. 479
Metcalfe, Susan 553
Mile End Road. Great Assembly Hall. 'Elijah' 329
Moody-Manners Opera Company ... 405
Moore, Bertha 43
Moore, F. G. H. 256
Mozart Society 685
Mulder, Jan 553

National Co-operative Festival (Crystal Palace) 412, 601
New Jerusalem Church, Camden Road 256
Newman, Robert. Albert Hall Concerts 819
—— Symphony Concerts ... 42, 186, 246, 819
—— Three Orchestral Concerts ... 478
Nicholl, William 43
Nonconformist Choir Union ... 479, 825
North London Orchestral Society 43, 404
North-West London Baptist Choir Union 329

O'Neill, Norman 31
O'Sullivan, Denis 247
Oxford House Musical and Dramatic Association 51, 553, 825

Pachmann 478
Paderewski 478, 552
Palliser, Esther 553
Palmer, Mrs. Charles 187
Parkin, Louie 553
People's Palace Choral Society 404
Pery, Mdlle. 478
Philharmonic Society ... 245, 326, 399, 464
Phillips, Charles, and Ethel Barns 248, 819
Pianoforte Recitals 477
Popular Concerts (Saturday) 42, 117, 186, 246, 327, 819
Promenade Concerts, Queen's Hall 614, 678, 730, 749, 819
Purcell's 'Fairy Queen' 388, 472
Purcell Performances—Coronet Theatre 327
Putney... 816

Ranstead, Florence 248
Richmond Philharmonic Society ... 44
Richter Concerts 403, 478, 730, 819
Rihil, Maud, and H. Walenn 404
Rooy, Van 328
Rosenthal, Archie 187
Royal Academy of Music Concerts 32, 186, 328, 474, 819
—— Opera, 'Mignon' 547
Royal Amateur Orchestral Society 42, 247, 404
Royal Artillery Band ... 248, 328, 820
Royal Choral Society 31, 186, 819
—— 'Hiawatha' 245
Royal College of Music 41
—— Opening of New Hall ... 472, 548
Royal Opera 399, 472, 548

Saint-Saëns (Quartet in E minor) ... 118
Sarasate 404, 479
Sauer, Emil 248, 329
Schelling, Ernest 478
Schrader, Mr. and The Misses 329
Sicard, Michel de 404
Sidcup Musical Society 405
Sinico, Madame 404
Somervell, Mr. Arthur 247
—— Princess Zara 480
South Hampstead Orchestra 477
South London Choral Association 256, 328
South Western Polytechnic Institute ... 43
Squire, Hope 404
St. Agnes, Kennington Park 187
St. Joseph's, Highgate, Philharmonic Society 329
Stanford's 'Much ado about Nothing' 472
Steinhauer-Mallinson, Madame 43
Stock Exchange Orchestral and Choral Society 42, 246, 328
Strolling Players' Amateur Orchestral Society 42, 247
Suart, Evelyn 478
Sullivan and German ('The Emerald Isle'), Savoy 391
Sullivan's In Memoriam Concert ... 819

Tew, Whitney 404
Thomas, John 553
Toms, Amy Llewellyn 404, 483
Tonic Sol-fa Association 479
—— College 404
Tours, Frank (Opera, 'Melnotte') ... 731
Tovey, D. F. 399, 478, 819
Trinity College (London) 248, 479

Union Chapel, Islington 44

Various Concerts and Recitals 44, 187, 256, 405, 480, 554, 820
Verdi's Requiem, Queen's Hall 474
Vert, N. 730
Victoria Madrigal Society ... 43, 328

Warner, H. Waldo 187
Wessely, Hans 819
West Ham Choral Society 44
—— Philharmonic Society 256
West Hampstead Choral and Orchestral Society 187
West Kensington Park Wesleyan Church 329
West Norwood Choral and Orchestral Society 44
Westminster Orchestral Society 42, 328, 478
Wietrowetz Quartet Party 819
Williams, Charles, Orchestra 187
Wilton Square Choir 405
Wood, Mrs. H. J., and Mdlle. Tosta de Benici 553
Woods, F. Cunningham ('Tempest' Music) 32
Woolwich Choral Society... 248 —— Orchestral Society 405

Ysaye 404
Ysaye, Becker and Busoni 819
Ysaye and Busoni 478, 819

PROVINCIAL AND COLONIAL.

Abergavenny... ... ... 266, 484
Adelaide 52, 124, 484, 829
Andover 124, 196, 339

Banbury 52
Barnet 332
Barnstaple 52
Basingstoke 419
Bath 266, 339
Bedford 484
Belfast 44, 119, 189, 257, 331, 407, 751, 820
Biggleswade 339
Birmingham 41, 44, 119, 189, 257, 331, 407, 480, 545, 678, 751, 820
Bishop Auckland (Festival) 32
Bishop's Stortford 52, 829
Blackpool (Festival) 123, 401
Blairgowrie 124
Bolton 266
Bootle 266, 829
Boston 266, 461
Bournemouth 317, 339, 387, 825
Bournemouth Municipal Orchestra ... 387
Bradford 50, 121, 193, 262, 824
Bradwell (near Sheffield) 622
Brecon 332
Bridlington Musical Festival 316
Brighton 266, 757, 829
Bristol 45, 119, 190, 258, 332, 407, 752, 821
Bristol (Re-opening Colston Hall) ... 29
Bromley 196
Burton-on-Trent 339
Bury 52
Bury St. Edmunds 339

Cambridge 120, 239
Campbeltown 124
Canterbury 93, 267, 412
Carlisle 196
Caterham 339, 412
Chagford 412
Chatham 339
Chelmsford 52, 339, 484
Cheltenham 196, 267, 339, 412
Chester 484
Chesterfield 757
Chichester 412
Chorlton-cum-Hardy 52
Christchurch, New Zealand 484
Clare 412
Cleckheaton 122
Colwyn Bay 757
Coventry 53, 124, 340, 557, 829
Crawley 412
Croydon 340, 554
Cumberland (Festival) 123

Darlington 53
Darvel 267
Deane (Bolton) 557
Devizes 340
Dorchester 413
Dover 196, 340, 413, 484, 829
Downside Abbey (Bath) 608
Dublin 45, 120, 190, 258, 332, 407, 480, 554, 752, 821
—— ('The Feis Ceoil') 403
Dudley 196
Dunedin 124, 622
Durban 622, 829

East Anglia 46, 190, 258, 332, 407, 480, 554, 752, 821
Eastbourne 340
Edinburgh 46, 191, 259, 333, 461, 480, 554, 752, 822
—— University 165, 238
Enfield 196
Exeter 53, 267, 557, 757

Frizinghall 53
Frome 340

Glasgow 46, 120, 191, 259, 333, 408, 678, 753, 822
Gloucester 53, 267, 822
—— (Festival) 545, 668
Grahamstown 557, 757
Gravesend 340
Grimsby 124
Guernsey 267

Halifax 122, 193, 263, 340, 824
Hamilton (Ontario)... 267
Hampton Hill 484
Handsworth 413
Hanham 340
Hanley 124, 829
Harrogate 50, 825
Hobart (Tasmania)... 196
Holmfirth 267
Holyhead 267
Huddersfield 50, 122, 194, 263
Hull 53, 825
Hunstanton 622

Ilford 267
Ilkley 672

Keighley 825
Kendal 124, 340
Kettering 413
Kilmarnock 340
Kimberley (South Africa) 558, 757

Leamington 413, 829
Leeds 49, 193, 196, 262, 336
—— Festival... ... ... 117, 731
Leicester 53, 267
Leigh (Kent)... 124
Lesmahagow 340
Lincoln 53, 408, 746
Lisburn 484, 558
Liskeard 125
Liverpool 47, 192, 197, 260, 334, 409, 622, 683, 753, 822
London (Ontario) 484
Lowestoft 340, 484
Luton 267

Madeley 197, 267
Manchester 47, 53, 121, 192, 234, 260, 334, 550, 683, 753, 823
Marlow 341
Melbourne (Australia) 125, 413
Merthyr Tydvil (National Eisteddfod) ... 614
Middlesbrough 341, 829
Morley 263

Newport (Monmouthshire) 413
Newtown (North Wales) 341
Northumberland and Durham 47, 260, 334, 409, 754, 823
Norwich, St. Andrew's Church 673
Nottingham and District 48, 192, 261, 335, 554, 683, 754, 823

Oxford 48, 261, 480
Oystermouth... 268

Perth (St. Ninian) 608
Perth (Western Australia) 757
Peterborough 413
—— (Festival) 549
Petersham 52
Plymouth 829
Ponkey (North Wales) 125
Port Elizabeth 53
Portland 53
Portsmouth 53, 341
Preston 53

Page

Reading 413
Ripon Festival 549
Rochdale 197, 268
Rochester 413
Rugby 268
Ryde 341

Salford (Manchester) 341
Saltburn 54
Scarborough 51, 54, 197, 341, 825
Seaham Harbour 341
Sedgley 125
Sevenoaks 268
Sheffield and District 49, 192, 261, 335, 409, 684, 754, 824
Shrewsbury 757
Singapore 125
Sleaford 622
South Brent (Devon) 484
Southport 341
St. Asaph 341
St. John's, Antigua (West Indies) ... 197
St. Neots 53
Staffordshire 49, 262, 335
Stalybridge 125

Taunton 341
Tenbury (St. Michael's College) ... 745
Tewkesbury 125
Timperley 197
Tonbridge 413
Treorky 125
Troon (Ayr) 558

Ventnor 341

Wales 49, 121, 193, 262, 335, 409
Watchet (Somerset) 341
Wellington (New Zealand) ... 54, 197, 268, 341, 830
West Bromwich 413
West Tarring 268
Westmorland (Festival) 240
Weston-super-Mare 558
Weybridge 413
Weymouth 622
Wincanton 125
Winchester 719
Windsor 54
Woodhouse Eaves 830
Worcester. Civil-Military Band ... 730
—— Musical Society 341
—— Philharmonic Society ... 117, 388

Yorkshire 49, 121, 193, 262, 336, 754, 824

FOREIGN NEWS.

Page

Agram 826
Aix-la-Chapelle 122
Altenburg 122
America 44, 256, 330, 750, 828
Antwerp 336, 410, 481
Athens 263
Augsburg 194, 481

Baden 619
Barmen 194
Bayreuth 51, 122, 194, 263, 481, 619
Bergen 410
Berlin 188, 457, 555, 619
—— (The Bach Festival) 319
Berne 163
Bethlehem, U.S. (Bach Festival) ... 463
Bezieres 684
Bingen 410
Bologna 555
Bonn (Beethoven, Haus, Chamber Music Festival) 315
Bremen 51, 122, 194, 481, 315
Brescia 481
Brünn 336
Brussels ... 122, 336, 410, 619, 755, 826
Bucharest 122
Budapest 51, 122, 194, 336

Campinas (Brazil) 51
Carlsruhe 122, 194, 410
Cassel 122, 263
Catania 481, 684
Chiere (Italy) 410
Christiania 481, 826
Cologne ... 122, 263, 410, 555, 619, 826
—— (Lower Rhine Musical Festival) 338, 475
Crefeld 482, 826

Darmstadt 51, 410, 555, 684, 755
Dessau 826
Dieppe 666
Dortmund 194, 619
Dresden 122, 194, 263, 336, 410, 482, 555, 684, 755, 826
Duisburg 194
Düsseldorf 164, 237, 337, 619

Ferni 482
Florence 237, 410, 482
Frankfurt-on-Main 122, 194, 263, 555, 619, 755, 826
Freiburg (Switzerland) 755

Eisenach 684, 755
Esslingen 337

Geneva 482
—— (Swiss Musical Festival) 551
Groningen 410

Hague, The 337
Hall 555
Hamburg 122, 337, 410, 684, 826
Hanover 194
Heidelberg 122
—— (Festival) 550
Helsingfors 410
Humm 263

Innsbruck 122, 194, 264

Königsberg 122, 826

Laibach 684
Leipzig 51, 122, 194, 264, 337, 410, 620, 684, 755, 826
—— International Congress of Publishers 477
Lemberg 482
Liegnitz 337, 684
Linz 337

Page

Lisbon 620
Louvain 555

Madrid 194, 620, 755
Magdeburg 410
Malines 482
Mannheim 122, 555
Marienbad 684
Mayence 684, 826
Mexico 337
Milan 194, 264, 337, 555, 755, 826
Monte Carlo 337
Montecatini 620
Montreux 337
Moscow 51, 264, 406
Munich 123, 194, 264, 337, 410, 482, 555, 684, 748, 826

Naples (English Music) 18
Neustadt 620

Olmütz 555
Ostend 620

Palermo 482, 620
Paris 51, 123, 194, 264, 337, 410, 482, 555, 684
Pau 337
Pesaro 555
Pforsheim 410
Prague 51, 123, 194, 264, 337, 410, 620, 755, 826
Pressburg 51
Pyrmont 555

Reichenberg 755, 826
Rome 123, 195, 264, 555, 620, 684
Rouen 482
Rudolstadt 410

Saarbrücken 410
Salzburg 620, 684
San Francisco 620
Scheveningen 620, 684, 755
Schwerin 264
Sinigaglia 482
Sondershausen 51, 123, 556
St. Petersburg ... 123, 264, 482, 556, 826
Stockholm 264, 410, 827
Strassburg 264, 755

Teplitz 123, 195, 620
Tournai 264
Trieste 556
Turin 264, 482

Ulm 410
Utrecht 556

Valence 755
Venice 195, 337, 482, 755
Verona 756
Vienna 118, 188, 256, 329, 406, 620, 820
Visby 685

Wahrenbrück (Saxony) 410
Warsaw 264, 410, 620
Weimar 482
Wiesbaden 264, 756
Worms 482

Zurich 556
Zwickau 482

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 695.—Vol. 42. JANUARY 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

THURSDAY EVENING, JANUARY 24, AT 8.

SCENES FROM

"THE SONG OF HIAWATHA"

SET TO MUSIC BY

COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

Artists:
Miss ELLA RUSSELL.
Mr. BEN DAVIES.
Mr. ANDREW BLACK.

BAND AND CHORUS, ONE THOUSAND.

Organist: Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; (Unreserved), 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Patrons: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.

Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., F.R.A.M.

Lent Term begins Monday, January 7. Entrance, January 3, at 2.
Lectures by Walter Macfarren, Esq., F.R.A.M., on "Beethoven's Thirty-two Solo Sonatas," Wednesdays, January 9, 16, 23, 30; February 6 and 13, at 3.15.
Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Christmas F.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 7, 1901. The solo-playing tests are: Con Moto in B flat, H. Smart, No. 1 of Five Organ Pieces in various styles (Ashdown). Fantasie and Fugue, No. 3, in D minor, J. Schneider (Breitkopf and Härtel, Novello and Co., Augener and Co.). Sonata for the Organ, No. 4, Op. 31, A. G. Ritter (Novello and Co.; Augener and Co.).
The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on January 14.
All candidates, including those claiming exemption from fee, must send in their names for FELLOWSHIP by December 21, for ASSOCIATESHIP by December 29. In the case of new Members, proposal forms, duly filled up, must be sent in before December 21. No names will be entered after the dates hereby announced.
The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.
Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.
The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—Estab. by the Corporation of London, 1880.—Principal: WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A. Lessons daily, 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Every branch of Vocal and Instrumental Music. Students trained for Opera and Drama in the new Theatre. Prospectus on application. By order of the Committee, HILTON CARTER, Secretary. Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.
For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

MR. ROBERT

NEWMAN'S CONCERTS,

1900-1901,

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA.

CONDUCTOR:

MR. HENRY J. WOOD.

PRINCIPAL VIOLIN .. .. MR. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
ACCOMPANIST .. .. MR. PERCY PITT.

SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

QUEEN'S HALL.

1901—Jan. 26; Feb. 9; March 2, 16, at 3 p.m.

THE SUNDAY CONCERT SOCIETY'S

SUNDAY AFTERNOON CONCERTS

Every Sunday Afternoon at 3.30.

CHEVALIER'S RECITALS,

Daily at 3; Thursdays and Saturdays, 3 and 8.30.

NEW YEAR'S DAY CONCERT,

January 1, 1901, at 3 p.m.

ASH WEDNESDAY CONCERT,

February 20, 1901, at 3 p.m.

GOOD FRIDAY CONCERTS,

April 5, 1901, at 3 and 7.30 p.m.

LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1901,

April 29 to May 4.

Particulars of the above Concerts, when ready, may be obtained at

MR. ROBERT NEWMAN'S BOX OFFICE,

Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. .. GRANVILLE BANTOCK.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 17—December 22); Winter Term (January 21—March 30); Summer Term (April 1—June 22).

Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF ARGYLL.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
GEORGE PRIOR, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. BENTLEY, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M. (Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: CHURCHILL SIBLEY, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.
First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.
Metropolitan Examination in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., and F.V.C.M., commencing December 6, 1900.
Local Theoretical Examinations, December 6, 1900.
Practical Examinations are now being held at the various centres.
Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.
Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.
All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.
GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, BERNERS STREET, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Patron: His Grace the ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.
President: The Very Rev. FRANCIS PIGOU, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in November and December, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.
Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.
The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.
Free register for Organists requiring appointments.
Annual Banquet and Conference, January 28, 1901.
For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

THE NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

Patron: HER GRACE THE DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH. [LTD.
Warden: Dr. TINDALL, A.T.C.L.

Special Exam. for Medals (Feb.); also Local Exams. all grades and for Diplomas.
Educational Department: Professors Dr. Tindall, Dr. Kahlenberg, Stretton Swann, Mus. Bac., Travers Adams, Sewell Southgate, E. Polonaski, &c. All particulars Sec.,
W. J. MOSS, 192, Sutherland Avenue, W.

BAKER STREET CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, LTD.,

6, UPPER BAKER STREET, N.W.
(One Minute from the Metropolitan Station).
The Rev. Canon FRANCIS J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

PIANO.—Mr. Oscar Beringer, Miss Ethel Boyce, A.R.A.M., Miss Bryant, certificated Frankfort Hoch Conservatoire, Miss Jessie Davies, A.R.A.M., Miss Kate Robinson, certificated Raff Conservatoire, Frankfort, Misses M. Moore and D. Lucas.
VIOLIN.—Herr Josef Ludwig, Miss L. M. Nunn, R.A.M., Miss Eveleigh, L.R.A.M., Silver Med., R.A.M.
VIOLONCELLO.—Miss A. F. Vernet, L.R.A.M.
ORGAN.—Mr. F. A. W. Docker, A.R.A.M., Organist of St. Andrew's, Wells Street, Professor of the Organ at the Guildhall School of Music, &c.
SINGING.—Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Margaret Barter.
SIGHT READING AND ENSEMBLE PLAYING.—Miss Harrison and Miss Holland: Piano and Strings.
ELOCUTION.—Miss Chute.
HARMONY CLASSES.—Orchestral Practices, during Lent and Christmas Terms.

For Prospectus, &c., apply to the Headmistress, Miss Lilla B. Strong, 6, Upper Baker Street, N.W.

A COMPETITION between LADIES' CHOIRS will take place at the Kensington Town Hall on Thursday, March 21. Dr. W. G. McNaught will act as Judge. Hon. Sec., Miss C. E. Denison, 2, Strathmore Gardens, W., who will send rules and list of music on application.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
(R.A.M. Cert. and Prize-winner). Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c. German Songs a speciality. Lessons given.
25, Upper Richmond Road, East Putney, S.W.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano)
And Teacher of Singing.
441, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne; or, care of Miss A. Joseph, 7A, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

MISS AMY FLETCHER (Soprano)
Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.
45, Aberdeen Road, Highbury Grange, N.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MISS AMY HARDING (Soprano)
(Of Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, &c., Concerts).
Recommended by Sir George Grove, W. H. Cummings, Esq., &c.
For critiques, &c., address, 14, Palace Road, Norwood, S.E.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MISS CLARA HOWARTH (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Willow Cottage, Littleborough, Lancs.

MADAME FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto)
MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor)
Suffolk Villa, 142, Junction Road, N.

MISS LOTTIE SWEENEY, I.S.M. (Contralto)
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Address, Miss Sweeney, Vocalist, Armley, Leeds.

MISS ALICE WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto)
Address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor).
"Mr. Beaumont is a tenor of decided promise."—Daily Telegraph.
"Mr. Beaumont is a most artistic singer."—Morning Leader.
"Mr. Beaumont is a tenor of great promise."—Musical Courier.
"Mr. Beaumont is the possessor of a fine voice."—Musical News.
"Mr. Wright Beaumont's splendid tenor voice was heard to the best possible advantage in the choicest of ballads."—The Era.
Address, 1, Dorothy Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. WALTER DRIVER
(Pupil of William Shakespeare, Esq., London).
Principal Tenor, King's College Chapel, Cambridge.
For Concerts, &c.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral Society Concerts).
Winner of Joseph Maas Memorial Prize, Goldberg Prize, Evill Prize, and Rutson Prize, at the Royal Academy of Music.
Of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts.
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. H. WADSWORTH (Tenor)
(Two years at Milan. Great success.)
English, Italian, French. Equal quality of voice—not throaty. Perfect enunciation. Satisfaction given or no fee accepted.
St. Ives, Huntingdon.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. GEORGE UTTLEY (Baritone)
(Professional Pupil of Mr. Santley for over two years.)
"Mr. Santley . . . sent an excellent substitute in his pupil, Mr. George Uttley."—Yorkshire Post, Feb. 7, 1900.
Hampden House, Phœnix Street, N.W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. P. GORTON YOUNG (Bass, and Handbell Solos)
MISS LILLIAN RANDALL (Soprano).
Concerts, Banquets, &c. 21, Josephine Avenue, Brixton Hill, S.W.

MISS MARIAN JAY (Solo Violinist)
(Sauret Prize-winner, Bronze and Silver Medals, Certificate, R.A.M.).
Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
26, Wigmore Street, W., and 5, Hollywood Road, South Kensington.

MISS NELLIE NETTLESHIP
(Medalist, R.A.M.)
Pianist, Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Dances.
Elmore, Abbeville Road South, Clapham Park, S.W.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

BEATRICE E. KENT (Lyric Authoress)
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

NOTE CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MR. SAMUEL MASTERS (Tenor), from Surbiton, to 54, Alexandra Road, Wimbledon.

MR. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE begs to announce that he has RESIGNED his APPOINTMENT as Lay Vicar of Westminster Abbey and is now at liberty to accept Sunday Engagements. In future all communications should be addressed direct to The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

MR. AVON SAXON (Baritone) returns to London December 25, after his most successful South African tour with Madame Belle Cole. Terms for Opera, Concert, or Oratorio. Address, London Musical Courier, 21, Princes St., Cavendish Sq., W.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass). Oratorios, Concerts. Can provide Quartet. Lessons given. 45, Pentonville Road, London, N.

MR. WALTER ROWLEY, Lightning Cartoonist and Topical Vocalist, in his Unique Entertainment (20 to 30 minutes), for Concerts, &c. 110, Richmond Road, N.E.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO),
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO)
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO)
AND
MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE)
Beg to announce their Change of Address to—56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MISS
KATHERINE NASH, G.S.M.
(SOPRANO),
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq.
Address, 9, Ruskin Road, Tottenham, N.

MADAME
ANNIE NORLEDGE
(SOPRANO)
23, Millgate, Newark-on-Trent.

MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
140 Marylebone Road, N.W.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MISS NELLIE WILLIS
(SOPRANO).
Address, 120, Bentley Road, Doncaster.

MDME. EDITH EDWARDS
(CONTRALTO),
Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music.
"Miss Edwards' voice is sweet and well managed."—Manchester Guardian.
"With the selections by Madame Edwards the auditory were quite charmed, and her finished rendering of 'Ave Maria' (Gounod) plainly revealed her as a most accomplished singer."—Flintshire County Herald.
For Concerts, Oratorios, Recitals, &c. Address, 40, Grosvenor Chambers, Manchester: or, Belgrave Road, Oldham.

MR. SADLEUR BROWNE
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
St. Saviour's Collegiate Church, Southwark.
On emergency works taken at a few hours' notice.

MR. OTTO DENE
(TENOR),
Ullswater Lodge, West Norwood, S.E.

MR. W. TREVOR EVANS
(TENOR).
Baroness PATTI-CEDERSTROM (Madame Adelina Patti) states:—"I am delighted with his voice, which I consider charming."
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, London, N.W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
"MESSIAH."—LANCASTER CHORAL SOCIETY.—"Mr. Fred. Fallas possesses a sweet, clear voice, and he put a wonderful amount of sympathetic expression into his part. In 'Comfort ye' and the air 'Every valley' he created a very favourable impression, which he sustained throughout the evening, and at the close of the series of recitatives and airs in the second part, ending with 'But Thou didst not leave,' which he sang with fine effect, he was deservedly applauded from all parts of the house."—Lancaster Guardian, Dec. 14, 1900.
"JUDAS."—MALTON CHORAL SOCIETY.—"Mr. Fred. Fallas's sweet tenor voice took hold of the audience from his first number, and the stirring air, 'Sound an alarm,' also showed that he is in no wise lacking in power and effectiveness."—Malton Gazette, Dec. 15, 1900.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900).
Oratorio, Concerts, &c., 64, Clovelly Road, Ealing, W.

MR.
JAMES LEYLAND
(TENOR),
106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. HENRY PETTITT
(TENOR)
(Pupil of Davidson Palmer, Esq.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Glenavon, Potters Road, New Barnet.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. DAN BILLINGTON
THE CELEBRATED YORKSHIRE BARITONE (Vide Press)
(Soloist of the Leeds Festivals, Sir Chas. Hallé's and the Principal Provincial Concerts).
34, Hanover Square, Leeds.

MR. JOHN BROWNING
(BARITONE),
SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1898,
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal Bass, Leeds Parish Church, &c.
Extensive Répertoire, about 100 works.
"CARACTACUS" AT SHEFFIELD.—"Mr. John Browning, an old Sheffield favourite, in the title-rôle, had made a close study of his part. It is a colossal part for a bass soloist, one calling alike for dramatic instinct and vocal attainment beyond the average. Mr. Browning in each respect gave the fullest satisfaction. He sang the part of the hero heroically. His apostrophe to the sword and his defiance of the Emperor were both finely sung."—Sheffield Independent, Nov. 30, 1900.
"Mr. John Browning . . . undertook the part of the British King, and his singing was the feature of the performance, which stands out most clearly in the memory. . . . He sang the lament, 'O, my warriors,' with deep pathos."—Sheffield Telegraph, Nov. 30, 1900.
"ELIJAH" AT HUDDERSFIELD.—"One of the best interpretations of the music and words of the Prophet that we have heard for many years was given by Mr. Browning. His voice was of fine resonant, musical, even, and pliant quality over the whole of its wide range, and he sang most artistically, accurately, and tunefully. Much more than that, he gave ample evidence of having thoroughly studied the music and words, and so delivered them as to illuminate their deepest and loftiest dramatic and devotional import in every phase of human emotion. . . . Mr. Browning made Elijah a life-like character, taking his place with due prominence and impressiveness in the great sacred drama."—Huddersfield Examiner, Dec. 14, 1900.
Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(Professional Diploma, Incorporated Society of Musicians)
(BARITONE).
Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts.
For terms and Press notices, address, 24, Station Road, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. DENNIS DREW
(BARITONE).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes.
Ormefield, Church End, Finchley.

MR. WILLIAM DYOTT
(BARITONE). 1, Myrtle Crescent, Acton, W.

MR. WILLIAM FREEMAN
(BARITONE).
For Oratorios, Ballads, &c.
34, Chancery Lane, W.C.

MR. DAVID HUGHES
(BARITONE).
"MESSIAH."—CARDIFF FESTIVAL.—"Mr. David Hughes's delivery of 'Thus saith the Lord' was one of the finest examples of Handelian declamation within my experience. Not only every note, but, what is more important, every word told the story belonging to it. So in other parts of the work this singer had to do."—Daily Telegraph (Mr. Joseph Bennett).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

MR. & MRS.
WALLIS A. WALLIS, I.S.M.
(Baritone and Soprano, Elocutionists).
Quartet, Concerts, Resident and other Pupils. Sharon, Acton, W.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN
(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. CHARLES TREE
(BASS-BARITONE).

	1900.
GOLDEN LEGEND—Luton Choral Society	November 21.
GOLDEN LEGEND—Newcastle Choral Society ..	November 28.
ELIJAH—Blackburn	November 29.
GOLDEN LEGEND—Harrogate	November 30.

GOLDEN LEGEND.
"It is impossible to speak too highly of the way in which he filled the part of Lucifer. For power and dramatic effect it could scarcely have been surpassed. His incitement to the demons was worthy of the theme, and 'Here am I too' he sang in magnificent style, but nothing he did could compare with the masterly way in which he sang 'My guests approach.'"—Bedford News.
"A fortunate selection was Mr. Tree as Lucifer. He has not only a fine voice, but possesses also in a remarkable degree that dramatic feeling so essential, but so often found wanting. He proved himself a worthy associate of Mr. Edward Lloyd. His singing was admirable."—Newcastle Journal.
"Mr. Tree's singing was of a high order, and thoroughly harmonised with the admirable work of the great tenor (Mr. Edward Lloyd)."—Yorkshire Post.

ELIJAH.
"His numbers were exceptionally well sung. In a word, his performance was solid, musical, powerful, and most effective."—Blackburn Standard.
"To Mr. Tree, as the Prophet, belonged the premier honours. It was a fine treat to hear the numerous bass solos and recits. interpreted with such pathos and fervour."—Blackburn Telegraph.
"In Mr. Tree the part of the Prophet had a most efficient exponent. The descriptive passages were admirably given, the deeply pathetic portions receiving a heartfelt portrayal."—Blackburn Times.

Address, 23, Clifton Road, Maida Vale, W.

MR. WILLIAM C. HARRISON
(SOLO VIOLINIST).
Concerts, &c. (Solo or Orchestral); also Lessons.
Address, 43, Fontenoy Street, Dublin.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)
(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

MISS ALICE MARY SMITH
(Mrs. Alfred Dymes)
Associate of the Royal College of Music,
HARPIST.
Care of Messrs. C. Holdernesse and Co., 105, New Oxford Street, W.C.

QUARTET.
MR.
MONTAGUE BORWELL'S
ORATORIO QUARTET are now booking Engagements:—
Miss WINIFRED MARWOOD, Sop. | Miss GERTRUDE MACAULAY, Con.
Mr. HENRY TURNPENNEY, Tenor. | Mr. MONTAGUE BORWELL, Bar.
For terms and vacant dates, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N. or, usual Agents.

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.
MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.
PRESIDENT, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.
Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.
A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

SOLO BOYS.
MR. W. R. B. TANN begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to No. 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W., where communications respecting Solo Boys for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Organ Recitals, &c., should in future be addressed. Mr. Tann's Solo and Chorus Boys may be heard by appointment.

"An excellent programme of music."—Daily Telegraph.
THE CLAYTON CONCERT PARTY.
Miss ANNETTE MAFFERT, Soprano and Violinist.
Madame FLORENCE CROFT, Contralto.
Mr. D'ARCY CLAYTON, Tenor.
Mr. FRANCIS WARWICK, Baritone and Humorist.
Complete or part Vocal and Instrumental Programme.
For terms, &c., address, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton, Suffolk Villa, 142, Junction Road, N.

THE EUTERPEAN VOCAL QUARTET.
Misses ANNIE SWINFEN, ANNIE WILSON.
Messrs. ALBERT CORNISH, MUSGROVE TUFNAIL.
Musgrove Tufnail, 24, Grove Road, Brixton, S.W.

LADIES' SELECT CHOIR
FOR THE
PRACTICE AND PERFORMANCE OF WORKS
FOR FEMALE VOICES
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF
MR. W. DE MANBY SERGISON.

Ladies desiring introduction in ensemble singing (good readers with good voices) should apply for terms and conditions of membership to Mr. Sergison, at his Music Studio, care of DOREMI, 9, Argyll Place, Regent Street, W.

MR. STEDMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY
(Established 1877).
Artists for Opera, Theatre, Oratorio, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Choruses, Choir Boys and Girls.
Singing Lessons and Coaching.
58, Berners Street, W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.
SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. JAMES BATES, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities, Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of six hundred and fifty. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto: gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., May and November, 1900; MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1900, and previous years; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music and Pianoforte Teaching), 1897, 1898, and 1899; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1900; CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L. and A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899 and 1900; Senior Associated Board; Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. Upwards of 580 Diplomas and Degrees and several Gold and Silver Medals gained by pupils. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that EIGHTEEN of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1900. Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1900, FIFTY-SIX passes; L.R.A.M., 1897-1900, NINETEEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

MR. ARTHUR POLLITT, Mus.B., Durh., L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., prepares CANDIDATES for University and other Examinations BY CORRESPONDENCE. Thorough individual attention. Recent successes. Address, Shaw, Lancs.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. W. DE MANBY SERGISON, Voice Specialist, Organist of St. James's, Marylebone, begs to announce to his Professional and Private Pupils and friends that his NEW MUSIC STUDIO is at 9, Argyll Place, Regent Street, care of DOREMI, where all communications respecting Lessons in Voice Production, Singing, and the Pianoforte should be addressed.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the Pianoforte, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES and PREPARES CANDIDATES for all MUSICAL EXAMS. For terms, &c., address, 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppell St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

MR. J. HERBERT WILLIAMS, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Piano), Conductor of the Westbourne Park Choral Society, gives LESSONS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SINGING, and THEORY, at 60, BERNERS STREET; or, at WESTBOURNE PARK INSTITUTE. Organ Lessons at Westbourne Park Chapel (opposite Royal Oak). Vacancy for an Articled Pupil (exceptional advantages). Schools attended. Pianoforte Lessons at the Balham School of Music, &c. Full particulars on application. Interview by appointment. Address, 47, Elgin Crescent, W.

VOICES TRAINED (Altos included) and Sight-Singing and the PIANOFORTE TAUGHT by Mr. W. A. FROST (Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral), at 16, Amwell Street, Myddelton Square, E.C. Many pupils of Mr. Frost have obtained Cathedral and other Choir Appointments in open competitions. Latest success at St. George's, Beckenham.

TRAINING of TENORS.—Mr. E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N. The principles on which Mr. Davidson Palmer's Method is based are fully explained in his book, "THE RIGHTLY-PRODUCED VOICE," which contains information of the utmost importance to tenors. Price 1s. 6d.; or, bound in cloth, 2s. 6d., Post-free, from the Author.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for REPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

VIOLIN LESSONS.—Lady can accept PUPILS, at own residences or in Schools; also Engagements for Concerts, At Homes, &c. Address, V., Henderson's Library, N.E.

WIMBORNE MINSTER CHORAL SCHOLARSHIPS.—Two valuable SCHOLARSHIPS at the Grammar School will shortly be offered. Applicants must have good strong voices and some former experience. Apply, at once, to the Organist, Wimborne Minster.

LINCOLN CATHEDRAL CHOIR.—A TRIAL of BOYS to fill up VACANCIES will be held on Friday, the 11th of January. Apply to the Precentor (Rev. H. R. Bramley), The Precentory, Lincoln.

BERKELEY CHAPEL, John Street, Mayfair.—CHOIR BOYS WANTED. Ample remuneration to suitable candidates. Apply, on Thursday evenings, between 6.30 and 7. Services of Alto also required, same time and place.

EXETER CATHEDRAL CHOIR.—There is a VACANCY for an ALTO. Salary, £80. For particulars, application should be made to Rev. H. de Vere Welchman, Succentor, Cathedral School, Exeter.

ETON COLLEGE CHAPEL.—LAY CLERK WANTED (Alto voice), to commence duties after Easter. Salary, £100. Apply, by letter, enclosing copies of two testimonials only, to Dr. C. H. Lloyd, Precentor, Eton College, Windsor.

CHESTER CATHEDRAL.—There is a VACANCY for a TENOR LAY CLERK. Age not over thirty. Salary, £100 a year. For particulars, apply to The Rev. the Precentor.

TENOR and BASS WANTED, at St. Jude's, Commercial Street, Whitechapel (near Aldgate). Light duties. £8. Write, Mr. Darley, 12, Mayflower Road, Stockwell.

WANTED, for Voluntary Church Choir, Kensington. Bass voices; fair readers. Beautiful church and good musical services. Please address, Mus. Bac., 150, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

BASS WANTED, for St. Augustine's, Queen's Gate, S.W. Salary, £20. Must be a first-rate reader, used to a full choral service, and capable of taking solo work. Apply, by letter to John E. West, 1, Berners Street, W.

VOCALIST REQUIRED, for Ballad and Choral Concerts in Lancashire. Those with engagements in Midlands and North write, providing list and dates of this season's engagements and stating lowest terms, to Conductor, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

SOPRANO (Cert. R.A.M.) would give SERVICES at high-class Concerts, &c., for expenses. Address, G., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ALTO disengaged on Sunday afternoons, or for week-day services. Would deputise. Alto, 16, Kelvin Rd., Highbury, N.

A TENOR (Pupil of eminent Master) will give his SERVICES for a short time for expenses only. Oratorio or Ballad Concerts. M. J. S., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL PLAYERS.—There are VACANCIES in an ORCHESTRA (established fifteen years) for Violins, Violas, Double Bass (practice instrument provided), Flutes, Oboes, Bassoons, Horns. For particulars, apply, Hon. Sec., 16, Clephane Road, Canonbury, N.

JESUS COLLEGE, Oxford.—An ORGANIST EXHIBITION of £60 a year will be filled up in January. The Exhibitioner elected, if not already a Member of the University, will be required to matriculate at once, and to proceed in due course to the Degree of B.A. Applications, stating age, together with testimonials as to musical acquirements and evidence as to ability to pass Responsions, to be sent to the Vice-Principal, from whom further particulars may be obtained.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, at a Congregational Church. Apply, stating salary, qualification, and references, to Alpha, Gwyn, Bookseller, Lowestoft.

WANTED, CHOIRMASTER and ORGANIST for Manor Park Congregational Church. Apply, with full particulars and copies of testimonials, to Secretary, 122, Hampton Road, Forest Gate.

ORGANIST, fully qualified, desires POST in English Church on the Continent. Graduate in music (Oxon). Highest testimonials. Address, F. J. P., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUNG MAN desires POST as ORGANIST or ASSISTANT-ORGANIST (not Choirmaster). Salary secondary consideration. Write, F. C., 2, Alexandra Rd, Selhurst, S.E.

SCHOOLMASTER wishes to take up Musical Post in connection with good School. Boy voice a specialty; also Solo Singing, Choir, Strings, and Orchestra. Refs. from high educational authority. Address, School, Novello & Co., Ltd., Berners St., W.

PIANO.—A lady, trained Royal College of Music, desires PUPILS at own residences; also two afternoons at small private school, in or near London. Harmony, Correspondence, Lessons. K., 23, Mortlake Road, Kew.

TUNER WANTED, not under 26, thoroughly experienced in Horizontal Grands and able to do repairs to same. Own connection. Geo. Rogers and Sons, 60, Berners St., W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER, reliable and steady, open to ENGAGEMENT. American Organs, Harms., ordinary repairs, &c. Francis, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TRAVELLER REQUIRED, by Music Publisher. Must be good Salesman and experienced in calling on trade and profession. All communications treated in strict confidence. Apply, stating age and previous experience, to Traveller, care of Pool's Advertising Offices, Bouverie Street, Fleet Street, E.C.

MANAGER, or ASSISTANT, seeks RE-ENGAGEMENT in first-class Music Warehouse. Is smart and energetic, has a fair knowledge of tuning, and knows the trade thoroughly. Highest references. Staccato, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC PUBLISHER'S BUSINESS, in Paris, for SALE, with Copyrights for all Countries. Specialties for Mandolines, Guitars, and Estudiatines. Sales for last year 39,612 frs., with net profit of 19,000 frs. Paris, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827). Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

CHURCH or CHAPEL ORGANS, new and second-hand, with 3 manuals, 24 stops, pneumatic pedals; would be constructed to suit building. Three Organs, 2 manuals, 12 stops; pedals, full compass, straight and concave. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 115 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 8. Saturdays, 3.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE. Two manuals and pedals, 15 stops; an excellent instrument; £150. Also One-manual, £60. Full particulars, EUSTACE INGRAM, Organ Builder, only address, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N. Specifications and estimates for new Organs, &c. free.

ÆOLIAN GRAND for SALE. Good as new. Cost £125; price £60. Reason for selling, having a manual organ. A. B., care of Housekeeper, 4, Tokenhouse Buildings, E.C.

SWEET-TONED Three-Manual ORGAN for SALE (London), CC to G. Nearly new. Decorated front pipes, 22 speaking stops, 6 couplers, tremulant, and spare slide to swell. Extra powerful bellows. Width, 13 ft. 6 in. to 14 ft.; height, 19 ft. 6 in.; depth, 9 ft. 3 in. Photo and specification to bonâ-fide enquirers. Can be seen by appointment. Price £325. Apply, Organist, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1 ers Street, W.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 115 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 8. Saturdays, 3.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANO.—WANTED, a SET of ORGAN PEDALS to Piano, in good order. Apply, stating particulars and price, to J. Drysdale, West-End Studio, Dunfermline.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOFORTES. Scale as desired. G. R., Pa k Road, Uxbridge, Middlesex.

ORGANISTS, &c.

RUMMENS'

Organ Pedal Attachment to Pianofortes

FOR HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.

STRAIGHT AND CONCAVE, RADIATING AND CONCAVE

Or any other form of Pedal Board.

UNRIVALLED FOR TOUCH, APPEARANCE, DURABILITY, AND PRICE.

Sir JOHN STAINER: "I can confidently recommend it . . . nothing more valuable."

Sir FRED. BRIDGE: "I have tested it . . . successful . . . will give satisfaction."

Sir GEO. MARTIN: "I think very highly of it . . . clever."

Dr. HARDING: "I am delighted with it . . . in every way a success . . . the best."

Similar Testimonials from the most distinguished Organists and Musicians.

Particulars free. Write or call.

1, WYNNE ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.

(ESTABLISHED 1841.)

Specifications and Estimates sent free.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

REMOVAL.—MUSICAL OPINION and MUSIC TRADE REVIEW Office is now REMOVED (from Holborn Bars) to 35, Shoe Lane, Holborn, E.C.

TO CHORAL and ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.—Several CHORAL WORKS, PART-SONGS, and ORCHESTRAL WORKS for SALE. Applications for lists to Dr. Bunnett, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

THREE VALUABLE BOOKS.

The Bristol Tune Book

SPECIAL TERMS TO CHOIRS.

THE BRISTOL

Chant, Anthem, & Service Book.

(UNDENOMINATIONAL.)

The first large edition of this new work being exhausted in little more than twelve months, is the best proof of its having met the growing need for Service Music of a congregational character.
Prices, in Sections, from 1s. 6d. upward; complete, 5s.
SPECIAL TERMS TO CHOIRS.

A NEW WORK FOR THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND PARISH CHURCHES

THE BRISTOL

Psalter, Service, & Anthem Book.

Prices, in Sections, from 1s. 6d.; or, complete, 6s.

BRISTOL: W. CROFTON HEMMONS,
By whom Copies are sent to the Clergy and Organists at Special Rates on application
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Full particulars on application to the Bristol Publisher.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, MUS.D., CANTAB.

SERVICES.

Te Deum in G.	Four voices	..	..	..	..	..	..	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G		..	..	..	..	..	..	3d.
"	"	"	Tonic Sol-fa	..	..	..	..	1½d.
Benedicite in E	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2d.
" in F	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2d.
Cantate and Deus in E.	Four voices	..	..	..	..	..	..	3d.
Communion Service in E	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	9d.
Preces and Responses.	Arranged	..	..	..	..	..	..	4d.
Amen. On Card	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1d.
Story of the Cross	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2d.

ANTHEMS.

Lead me in Thy truth (Lent).	Four voices			..	..	..	..	3d.
The Good Shepherd has arisen (Easter)			..	..	..	..	..	3d.
If we believe (Easter)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	4d.
" Tonic Sol-fa	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	1½d.
If ye love me (Whitsunday)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3d.
I will magnify (Whitsunday)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3d.
I was glad (Festival)	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	3d.
" Tonic Sol-fa	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	2d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TE DEUM in A.—T. ALFRED BELL, Organist and Choirmaster, St. Thomas's Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Suitable for Festival or Ordinary Services. Price 6d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Sixth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat.
By WILLIAM S. VINNING, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—"Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE CHORISTERS' REGISTER and ORGANISTS' RECORD for 1901, by Chas. Wilkes, F.R.C.O., is a compact and useful Handbook for Organists and Choirmasters. TWO SHILLINGS, POST-FREE. Further particulars from WILKES & Co., 88, Walworth Road, London, S.E.

NEW EDITION. NOW READY.
The very successful Lent Cantata

PENITENCE PARDON AND PEACE

BY

J. H. MAUNDER.

The Musical Times, 1/1/99: "An admirable example of a commendable class of Church music. Consists of writing of that melodious and effective nature for which the composer is so widely famed."
Musical Opinion, 1/2/98: "A fine Church composition."
Musical News, 15/1/98: "We have no hesitation in cordially recommending it."
Musical Standard, 5/3/98: "Deserves considerable popularity."
Organist and Choirmaster, 15/2/98: "For the music we have nothing but praise."
Birmingham Post, 5/3/98: "The music is of a high artistic value."
Liverpool Courier, 2/8/98: "A work of great merit in every respect."
Manchester Courier, 9/3/98: "It will doubtless be used in many quires and places where they sing.'"
Newcastle Leader, 23/2/98: "A well-written work."
Western Morning News, 25/3/98: "A good composition. Striking and original."
Chester Chronicle, 16/4/98: "A beautiful work, very tuneful, and exceedingly effective."
Lichfield Mercury, 4/2/98: "Extremely effective, containing some really beautiful music."
Journal of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, 1/2/98: "A well written work. We can strongly recommend it."

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Paper boards, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words, 2s. per 100.

 A Specimen Copy will be sent for six stamps to any Clergyman, Organist, or Choirmaster, on application to the COMPOSER, Hill Top, Belmont Park, S.E

Band Parts may be hired or purchased from Messrs. Goodwin and Tabb, 71, Great Queen Street, W.C.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

COMPOSITIONS

BY

T. MEE PATTISON.

CANTATAS.	Staff. s.	d.	Sol-fa. s.	d.
The Ancient Mariner	2	6	0	6
Do. do. (Choruses only)	1	0
The Lay of the Last Minstrel	2	6
Do. do. (Choruses only)	1	0
May Day	1	0	0	6
The Miracles of Christ (Sacred)	1	0	0	6
ANTHEMS, &c.
All Thy works praise Thee (Harvest)	0	3	0	1
Thou visitest the earth (Harvest)	0	2
I know that my Redeemer liveth (Easter)	0	3
There were shepherds (Christmas)	0	2
Thirteen Offertory Sentences	0	4
Six Kyries	0	2
Te Deum laudamus (in F)	0	3
ORIGINAL ORGAN COMPOSITIONS.
Fifteen Introductory and Concluding Voluntaries			3	6
Five Concluding Voluntaries			1	6

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SUNG AT A UNITED CHILDREN'S SERVICE IN EXETER CATHEDRAL, JUNE 28, A.D. 1900.

CHILDREN'S MISSIONARY HYMN

FOR

S.P.G. BICENTENARY CELEBRATIONS

BY

S. CHILDS-CLARKE
(Vicar of Thorverton, Devon)

MUSIC BY

JOHN E. WEST.

Price One Penny. Words, 3s. per hundred.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

INSTITUTED 1872.)

President:
The Right Hon. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., Q.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.

LENT TERM opens on Thursday, January 17, when the individual tuition in all Practical and Theoretical Musical Subjects, as well as class tuition in the Theory of Music (during the day and evening), to professional and amateur students, will be resumed.

The lessons in the Theory of Music by correspondence also recommence.

Students are received for Single Studies or Course.

The Fees are from Five Guineas per Term for the Course, and from Two Guineas for Single Instrumental or Vocal Studies, and One Guinea for Theoretical Subjects.

The tuition of the College is intended to serve as a preparative for public Musical Examinations, including the Examinations for University Degrees.

Weekly Lectures are delivered by the Warden during Term, and are especially addressed to Students intending to enter for the Higher Examinations.

Students' Concerts are given at the College at intervals during Term.

The College Choir, under the direction of Dr. Pringuer, meets on Tuesdays at five o'clock.

The Orchestral Class meets on Mondays at 4.30 p.m.

The Orchestra, the Choir, Lectures, and Concerts are free to Students.

The Scholarships and Exhibitions for the Pianoforte, Organ, and all Stringed Instruments, are open to all-comers, for which Examinations are held in July each year.

Classes Prospectus, entry form, and full information on application.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD

OF THE
ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC AND ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS, 1901.

Entries will be received by the Honorary Local Representatives, or by the Secretary, up to February 15, 1901, or, with extra fee, to March 1, 1901.

For particulars see SYLLABUS A.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1901.

Entries for the March and April Examinations must be received at the Central Office on or before February 1, 1901, or with extra fee, on or before February 16, 1901.

For particulars see SYLLABUS B.

Copies of Syllabus A and B will be sent Post-free on application to the Secretary.

Theory papers set in 1896, 1897, 1898, and 1899 can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year, Post-free.

JAMES MUIR, Secretary.

32, Maddox Street, London, W.
Telegraphic address: "Associa, London."

Cloth, Royal Octavo. Price Four Shillings and Sixpence.

HYMN TUNES

COMPOSED BY

J. STAINER

COLLECTED FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

These Tunes, 161 in number, which the Composer has during the last thirty years contributed to various hymnals, or written for Choral Festivals or the use of friends, are here brought together for the first time. Many among them are new, including some Processionals of an original form.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

BROADWOODS' (ESTD. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (HIGHEST POSSIBLE AWARD)

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.
Established 1865.
Principal: T. H. YORKE TROTTER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. Yorke Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

Telegraphic address—"Initiative, London."

The Next Term will commence on Monday, January 7, 1901. Entrance Examination, January 4.

Sixteen FREE OPEN SCHOLARSHIPS will be competed for in January next. Last day for receiving official entry forms, accompanied by stamped certificate of birth, is December 31.

The Next Examination for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will take place in April, 1901.

A JUNIOR DEPARTMENT is now open for Pupils up to 16 years of age at Reduced Fees.

Syllabus and official entry forms may be obtained from—
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

WITHDRAWAL OF SPECIAL PRICES.

The undermentioned special prices will be withdrawn on February 1, 1901.

GROVE'S DICTIONARY OF MUSIC

PRICES OF THE FOUR VOLUMES

UNTIL FEBRUARY 1, 1901, ONLY.

Cloth Binding	£2 0 0
Half Morocco	3 0 0
Full Morocco	4 0 0

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TWO Extra Supplements are presented gratis with this number. (1) A signed Portrait of Beethoven, by permission of the Governors and Court of Assistants of the Royal Society of Musicians; (2) 'Britons, alert!' Epilogue from 'Caractacus,' by Edward Elgar.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

JANUARY 1, 1901.

A HAPPY NEW CENTURY! to every reader of THE MUSICAL TIMES.

To call the hundred years which terminated on the last day of 1900 'a wonderful century' is to repeat what has now become a more or less commonplace utterance. But it is nevertheless true, and the art of music has every claim to be included in the statement. Let us test its veracity by looking back a hundred years, and asking the questions: How was it with music in England in the year of Our Lord, 1801? How will it compare with 1901? Comparisons are said to be odious; but they are often interesting, and, as in the present case, no one will deny that they may be profitable. In order, however, to bring this comparison vividly before our readers, let us, in imagination, apply the camera to the musical life of England in January, 1801. The result will, we venture to think, not only be a little startling, but will give us much cause for thankfulness that we live in these times. In taking this photograph, greatly in evidence will be the negative. No Bach's '48' (the work was not published abroad before the year 1800).—No Beethoven's symphonies (No. 1 was first issued at the end of 1801).—No compositions by Mendelssohn, Chopin, Schumann, Brahms, or Wagner (they were not born).—No Philharmonic, or any other orchestral, Society.—No Royal Academy of Music, nor its younger brothers (or sisters) the Royal College of Music and the Guildhall School of Music.—No 'Grove's Dictionary.'—No conductors.—No musical examinations (Happy days!).—No Tonic Sol-fa.—No analytical programmes.—No organ, pianoforte, or vocal recitals.—No lady alto chorus-singers.—No female fiddlers.—No surpliced choirs.—No four-manual organs.—No cheap music.—No musical journals!

This last 'negative quantity' leads us, at the beginning of a new year, to say a few words of a more or less personal nature to our readers.

THE MUSICAL TIMES is the oldest existing musical journal in England. It was started on June 1, 1844, and is now in the fifty-seventh year of its existence. Moreover, no other periodical devoted to music in this country has lived so long. It is not for us to say whether this journal has justified its long career. But the fact that our last number ran 'out of print' a few days after publication is a most gratifying and encouraging sign.

So much for the past. What of the future? First: no standing still. In these days of modern journalism 'readableness' is a sine quâ non. While keeping well in the foreground this saving grace of readableness, special attention will be given to illustrations, thus continuing a feature which has been so much appreciated of late by our many kind readers. Secondly: every effort will be made to hearten the art of music, so to speak, of which there is great need in these days of over-much technique bowing the knee to theoretical attainment. Therefore, all such pedantic profundity as the examination question: 'How many semidemisemiquavers are there in a double-dotted minim? (could Beethoven have answered it?), and such repulsive technicalities as 'the shortest time in which it is possible to chant the 78th Psalm,' will be avoided. Finally: it will be our earnest endeavour to make this journal interesting, instructive, helpful, and companionable to all true lovers of music.

We are glad to be able to carry out our desire expressed a year ago, and, in so doing, we now extend to all our readers the right hand of friendship and, with the grip of goodwill, wish them very heartily—

A HAPPY NEW CENTURY!

MUSIC IN ENGLAND IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

A BRIEF AND UNCONVENTIONAL SURVEY.

To write even 'A Brief Survey' of music in these sea-girt isles during the nineteenth century is no easy matter, even were considerations of space not an important essential. Fortunately, however, much of the ground has been covered in the articles entitled 'Victorian Music,' which appeared in these columns during the year 1897, to commemorate the sixty years' reign of our Beloved and Gracious Queen. It may therefore be of greater interest if in these articles the first forty years of the century are treated of more in detail than the subsequent period, especially as its musical history is not so well known and the information is not so easily attainable.

Stagnation seems to have been the condition of England at the beginning of the last century. The art of music was almost dead. Of existing musical institutions there were only two—the Madrigal Society and the Royal Society of Musicians. The latter gave (May 13, 1801) a performance of 'The Messiah,' when the advertisements announced: 'N.B.—Refreshments between the Acts.' Mr. R. J. S. Stevens, the glee composer, had just succeeded Dr. Aylward as Gresham Lecturer on Music, and in all probability his discourses were deadly dull. The Antient Concerts, whose music-makings were more aristocratic than artistic, had 611 subscribers. It chiefly subsisted on Handel, with just a sprinkling of Purcell, Corelli, Martini, and others. The instrument mostly in favour was the German Flute, which is thus described in one of the magazines of the day: 'A flute is a musical weed which springs up everywhere.' The opera was moribund. Bianchi's 'Semiramide' ('with choruses') and 'Alzira,' with Arne's 'Artaxerxes' were the attractions. Thomas Attwood was organist of St. Paul's; but his services to the art were doubtless more appreciated in the theatre, for which he wrote, than within the walls of the Metropolitan Cathedral. The most important creative musician was Samuel Wesley, a real genius, then thirty-five years old; but, judging from the subjoined facsimile, 'Old Sam,' as he was familiarly called, did not derive much pecuniary benefit from his productive avocations.

If Punchsons, or Pipes, of Flattery, could either have fattened, or enriched a Man
Sir John Falstaff had been a very Shrimp; and King Croesus a mere Beggar, in Comparison of
S. Wesley
August 19. 1828

FACSIMILE OF AN ALBUM-LEAF IN THE HANDWRITING OF SAMUEL WESLEY.

Let us take a glimpse into the actual musical doings in London during the year 1801, such an one as two of the leading newspapers of the time afford. The first thing that strikes our notice is (on January 5) an advertisement of 'New music published by John Longman, Clementi and Co., No. 26, Cheapside,' which states: 'The Creation, by Dr. Haydn, adapted for the voice and pianoforte by Muzio Clementi, £1. 6s. 0.'—that being, of course, its cheapest price. The Lenten oratorios—or 'Oratorios at Play-house prices during Lent'—were being given at Covent Garden and Drury Lane. On February 20 we find the announcement of the first performance in England of 'the Requiem, or Grand Funeral Anthem, composed by the celebrated Mozart, of Vienna.' Its 'Overture' consisted of the 'Dead march,' presumably from 'Saul,' with 'Corno Basettos, Double Bassoons and Two pairs of Kettle Drums.' Books of the words, containing a translation of the Requiem and 'a Biographical Sketch of the Life of Mozart to be had at the Theatre. Price 6d. each.' Among the instruments in the orchestra was a Serbano, and Mr. Attwood played the Bass Trumpet. No one will take exception to this criticism on the first performance in England of Mozart's swan song: 'In many of its passages there is a stile of grandeur and sublimity.'

In the region of oratorio Dr. Arnold's 'Elisha, or the Woman of Shunem,' was produced, on March 13, at the 'Haymarket Oratorio,' and has been dead for many a long day. The professional gentleman who 'has vacancies for a few more pupils'—quite as a matter of condescension on his part—was in existence a hundred years ago. His advertisement was a little more wordy than that of his similarly situated brother in the present day, if we may judge from the following:—

Music—Composition, Voice, Piano forte.

A Teacher, Composer, and Player, whose methods, works and performances are flattered, and held in estimation, whose testimonials, references, and recommendations are so distinguished as to wave [!] any doubt that may arise through this public channel, for constant employ sake, wishes to add to the number of his pupils, at the very moderate price of four lessons the guinea (although from private recommendation, he will not accept less than half-a-guinea each lesson). The instructions he will present are so methodised, and of such force, as to complete in a few lessons, rendering a voice a secondary object, and so extending the style of piano forte playing, as to ensure success to the doubtful or timorous. A note will only meet attention. Address to G. L. at Mr. Barron's, Baker, Tottenham-court-road. (Morning Post, November 27, 1801.)

The year 1801 witnessed the first performance in England of Beethoven's Septet. It was played at Salomon's concert, April 23, and designated 'New Grand Septetto (MS.): Luigi van Beethoven.'

'Arrangements' flourished finely in the early years of the century. At the Lenten Oratorios Byrd's 'Non nobis Domine' was arranged as an overture and grand chorus by Mr. Baumgarten. Mr. Greatorex was very great at the 'arranging' business. Handel's 'Harmonious Blacksmith' (so-called) was hammered out for 'full orchestra' by this gentleman for one of the Birmingham Festivals, and later on we find Mr. Bochsa, harpist and mountebank, arranging Handel's 'airs and choruses for harp and flute'!

Birmingham was the only one of the Festivals that attracted much attention. In 1802 the population of the Midland town had reached to 60,000. The Festival Committee included refreshments within the scope of their operations. These good men and true 'agreed that ordinaries should be prepared at the two principal taverns—the Stork and the Shakespeare—but that the charge should not exceed 5s. per head, including malt liquor; and it was further decided that not more than ninepence per head should be paid for tea at the ball.'

Various dates have been given for the first performance in this country of the additional accompaniments to Handel's 'Messiah,' 'by the celebrated W. A. Mozart, of Vienna.' This event took place at the Lenten Oratorios, Covent Garden Theatre, March 29, 1805, under Ashley's conductorship. The Sun, a leading London newspaper of the day, gave its opinion upon the novelty in these terms :—

THE ORATORIOS.—The Messiah was last night performed at Covent Garden Theatre, with new accompaniments composed by Mozart. We entertain a very high respect for the genius of Mozart, but we also hold the unrivalled powers of Handel in due reverence, and therefore must enter our protest against any such alterations in works that have obtained the sanction of time and of the best musical judges. There is an integrity in the productions of this great Master, the result of the most powerful talents in his art. His harmonies have a firm and united character. The accompaniments of last night, though manifesting taste and feeling, did not assimilate with the grandeur and energy of the original subject. We trust, therefore, that when The Messiah, or any other work of Handel, is performed, it will appear without change and interpolation. Handel is an Englishman by adoption; he produced all his works in this country, and is still very little regarded in his own. We should therefore guard him in Music as well as Shakespeare in the drama, from daring innovation. Such as The Messiah was, however, in its improved state last night, it was well supported by Braham, Miller, Miss Munday, Mrs. Bland, and Mrs. Ashe. (The Sun, March 30, 1805.)

Organ recitals in England may be said to have originated in the year 1809, when Benjamin Jacob began his remarkable series of organ performances in Surrey Chapel, the scene of the ministrations of that eccentric but worthy divine, the Rev. Rowland Hill. But as this subject was somewhat exhaustively treated in THE MUSICAL TIMES for September, 1899, there is no need to enlarge upon it here.

In the first decade of the century, Samuel Wesley was red hot with enthusiasm in propagating the works of J. S. Bach in England.* At a 'Musical Morning Party'—in other words, a morning concert at the Hanover Square Rooms—he introduced several compositions of the great Cantor. This was in 1809. A year later he began the publication of the first English edition of 'Das wohltemperirte Clavier' (the '48'), and in the same year (1810) Wesley produced his own masterly motet 'In Exitu Israel,' a noble specimen of native genius.

One of the most active and intelligent professors of music in the early years of the century was Wesley's attached friend, Vincent Novello. In 1811—he was then thirty—Novello issued, in two folio volumes, his 'Collection of Sacred Music.' From 'A short history of cheap music as exemplified in the records of the house of Novello, Ewer and Co.,' we learn that 'the expenses of engraving and printing these volumes were provided for by himself out of his hard earnings as a professor of music; no publisher was to be found who would undertake the risk of giving the works to the world, so he himself became perforce his own publisher, and thus laid the foundation of the house.' Its subsequent development, more especially in the cause of cheap music, has been so fully and interestingly told in the little volume above mentioned that any further reference thereto is unnecessary.

Incongruity was not absent in the musical doings of long ago. At one of the earliest concerts given in the Argyll Rooms, Domenico Corri (the son-in-law of Dussek) and his pupils performed (in 1812) Pergolesi's 'Stabat Mater,' which was followed by a ball—thus affording an interesting study in contrasts. The Argyll Rooms—located at what is now No. 246, Regent Street, and a portion of which still stands—became an important music-making centre. It was here that the Philharmonic Society found its first home—from 1813 to 1830. In the latter year (February 6) the Argyll Rooms were destroyed by fire, on which occasion a steam fire engine was used for the first time in London. And this leads us to say something about the initiation of the Philharmonic Society, without, however, in the least degree implying that we wish to throw cold water upon that venerable institution.

* See a series of articles entitled 'Bach's Music in England,' by the present writer, THE MUSICAL TIMES, September to December, 1896.

The low state of orchestral music in England at the beginning of the last century prompted the foundation of the Philharmonic Society. With the exception of a popular symphony or two at certain benefit concerts, orchestral music was practically dead. This unfortunate state of affairs caused a few earnest-minded musicians to meet in order to discuss the possibility of forming a society whereby the symphonic creations of the great masters could be worthily interpreted. This important meeting took place at the house of William Dance—a patronymic more suggestive of Terpsichorean than Philharmonicon enterprises—No. 17, Manchester Street. The first idea of the Society, however, was due to one Anthony Corrie, who communicated it to Mr. Dance and to old John Cramer. Clementi countenanced the scheme, and the Philharmonic Society came into existence in the year 1813.

Here is the original prospectus, which, we believe, is not generally known. Though not a perfect model of literary construction, it may speak for itself.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The want of encouragement, which has for many years past been experienced by that species of Music, which called forth the efforts, and displayed the genius of the greatest Masters, and the almost utter neglect into which Instrumental Pieces in general have fallen, have long been sources of regret to the real Amateur and to the well educated Professor; a regret that, though it has hitherto proved unavailing, has not extinguished the hope that, persevering exertions may yet restore to the world, those compositions which have excited so much delight, and re-kindle in the public mind, that taste for excellence in Instrumental Music, which has so long remained in a latent state.

In order to effect this desirable purpose, several Members of the Musical Profession have associated themselves, under the title of THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY; the object of which is to procure the performance, in the most perfect manner possible, of the best and most approved Instrumental Music; consisting of Full Pieces, Concertantes for not less than three principal Instruments, Sestetts, Quintetts, Quartetts, and Trios, excluding Concertos, Solos, and Duets; and requiring that Vocal Music, if introduced, shall have Full Orchestral Accompaniments, and shall be subject to the same limitations.

This Society consists of Thirty Members, who have the entire government of it, and an unlimited number of Associates, from whom alone all future Members must be chosen. Both classes are Professors of Music, and pay an annual subscription of three guineas each, and no emolument whatever can accrue to any individual (all money received being strictly appropriated to the public purposes of the Society only) nor can any Member or Associate who shall assist at the Concerts, receive any pecuniary recompense.

From among the Members seven Directors, for the management of the Concerts, are to be annually chosen.

The Institution being for the reciprocal gratification of the Members and Associates, no distinctions of rank, as to stations in the Orchestra, are allowed to exist.

Subscribers will be admitted to the Concerts on the introduction of a Member, and on paying four guineas each for the season; and the resident Families of any Subscriber on paying two guineas for each individual, for the season. No Tickets are transferable.

The Concerts for this year will be at the Argyll Rooms, on the following Mondays, viz., March 8th, 15th, and 29th; April 19th, May 3rd, 17th, 31st; and June 14th.

The Directors for the present season are:—

Mr. CRAMER, 23, Sloane-street.
Mr. P. A. CORRI, 9, Portman-place, Paddington.
Mr. DANCE, 17, Manchester-street.
Mr. F. CRAMER, 39, Margaret-street.
Mr. BISHOP [afterwards Sir HENRY], 111, Long-acre.
Mr. CLEMENTI, 29, Alfred-place, Bedford-square.
Mr. AYRTON (Treasurer), 4, James'-street, Buckingham-gate.

In addition to the above-named gentlemen, the original members of the Society included Thomas Attwood, William Horsley, Charles Neate, Vincent Novello, J. P. Salomon, William Shield, Sir George Smart, and Samuel Webbe. Among the Associates are to be found the names of Bridgetower, Dr. Crotch, Cipriani Potter, Samuel Wesley, and T. F. Walmisley.

The first concert took place at the Argyll Rooms on March 8, 1813. The following is an exact reproduction of the original programme, printed on a card, and for which probably the sum of one shilling was not charged:—

UNDER THE IMMEDIATE PATRONAGE OF

His Royal Highness the Prince Regent.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

BRITISH MUSEUM 26 JY 73

First Concert, Monday, March 8th, 1813.

PART I.

Overture to Anacreon	Cherubini.
Quartetto, two Violins, Viola and Violoncello, Messrs. F. CRAMER, MORALT, SHERRINGTON, and LINDLEY	Mozart.
Quartetto & Chorus, Nell' orror, Mrs. MORALT, Messrs. HAWES, P. A. CORRI, and KELLNER	Sacchini.
Serenade, Wind Instruments, Messrs. MAHON, OLIVER, HOLMES, TULLY, and the PETRIDES	Mozart.
Symphony	Beethoven.

PART II.

Symphony	Haydn.
Chorus, Placido e' il mar, Mrs. MORALT, Miss HUGHES, Messrs. P. A. CORRI, C. SMITH, &c.	Mozart.
Quintetto, two Violins, Viola, and two Violoncellos, Messrs. SALOMON, CUDMORE, SHERRINGTON, LINDLEY, and C. ASHLEY	Boccherini.
Chaconne, Jonelle, and March	Haydn.

Leader, Mr. SALOMON.—Piano-Forte, Mr. CLEMENTI.

The Second will take place on Monday next, the 15th March.

Reynell, Printer, 21, Piccadilly, London.

The symphony was No. 1 of 'the immortal nine.' The following extract from a criticism—probably inspired—in the Morning Chronicle of March 10, 1813, may be quoted:—

It [the concert] commenced with Cherubini's overture to Anacreon, a piece of music which, we believe, has never been even attempted to be performed in this country. It is a composition that must be placed in the highest class, both on account of its originality and its extraordinary effect; it seemed to transport the audience, for it was repeatedly interrupted by loud bursts of applause, and was encored by every voice.

F. G. E.

(To be continued.)

DUMPS.

For Widdrington I needs must wail
As one in doleful dumps.
Old Ballad.

O let us be joyful.
Old Hymn.

I beg the reader not to accuse me of heading this article with a slang word. Dump—plural, dumps—is a very respectable monosyllable, of ancient origin, and belonging to a family members of which are found in every country of Northern Europe—in every land, that is to say, where man and nature come into conflict and the human has a hard time of it. Dump boasts more than one meaning, but the larger definition is this: 'A dull, gloomy state of the mind; sadness; melancholy; sorrow; heaviness of heart; as to be in the dumps.' In this sense the word is consecrated by classic use. Shakespeare employs it to the same effect on several occasions, as when, in 'Much Ado about Nothing,' he sings 'of dumps so dull and heavy,' and when, in 'Titus Andronicus,' he makes a personage exclaim, 'Come out of those dreary dumps.' An earlier writer than Shakespeare, Sir Thomas More to wit, uses the word in a like sense. In 'Cumfort against Tribulation,' he writes: 'Some of our poore familie be fallen into such dumpes that scantly can any such cumfort as my poore uit can geue them anything asswage their sorrow.' So Fletcher, in his 'Loyal Subject': 'Gent. But where's my lady? Peter. In her old dumps within, monstrous melancholy.'

These citations serve to show that dumps is a word of good family, and keeps excellent company. So let it stand where I have put it, at the head of this writing, especially as it is not without a musical connection. Dump was the name by which our fathers knew a dance—a slow dance, of course, and attributed to an influential personage. ('The devil's dump had been danced then.'—Fletcher.) The word signified, also, a musical piece, either dolorous:

Visit by night your lady's chamber-window
With some sweet concert: to their instruments
Tune a deploring dump.
Two Gentlemen of Verona.

—or joyous:

Play me some merry dump to comfort me.
Romeo and Juliet.

As to the dumps in music—which is the subject that most concerns me here—few will venture to deny that they are a very common feature, especially in the case of Northern nations. 'The peculiar character of the popular music of a nation,' wrote the late Carl Engel, 'appears to be in great measure determined by the climate of the country, by the occupations and habits of the people, and even by the food upon which they principally subsist. The influence of climate is traceable if we compare the tunes derived from the different districts of a large country. In mountainous Southern Germany, with its exhilarating air, the minor key is almost unknown, the triple time prevails, and the popular melodies are almost all capable of being harmonised with only the two common chords of the tonic and dominant. In flat Northern Germany, the minor key is less foreign, the common time occurs almost as frequently as the triple time, and the modulations are, on the whole, more complicated than those of the South. In countries where the people commonly drink wine, the songs are more brisk and cheerful than in countries where beer is the favourite beverage.' Engel, in continuation, points out that the popular music of Norway, generally sad, is varied by tunes of unbounded joy and cheerfulness.'* This he regards as, in a sense, non-natural, remarking that the Norwegians may be compared to a hypochondriac, 'who occasionally, though but seldom, gives himself up to an almost excessive merriment.' A like peculiarity is met with in Russia, where the strains of the people are marked, on the one hand, by profound melancholy, on the other by noisy and frantic excitement. The second of these phases has become particularly well-known to us in England; not experimentally, Heaven be praised, but by abundant observation. I might easily accumulate evidence to the purport of the foregoing, but it will not be contested that the music of a people who dwell in a harsh climate, whose days are gloomy, whose summer is short, and to whom Nature turns in other respects a frowning face, must, almost as by a natural law, conform to these conditions and reflect the prevailing melancholy.

We of England, though not treated so rigorously in the foregoing respects as our Continental neighbours of the same latitude, are by no means free from the peculiar influences of a Northern clime. Yet, strange to say, our folk-music was, in days not so long past, of a very cheerful and hearty nature. Either England was 'merrie England' when those songs prevailed, or the ditties are joyous offshoots from a root of sadness—a phenomenon as unnatural as the growing of figs on thorns. I am tolerably familiar with the old song-collections, and find their cheerfulness, their humour, their frank manliness—in a word, their healthiness—a most interesting and, by comparison with the corresponding effusions of to-day, even a surprising feature. On this evidence it would appear that our fathers were a jolly race, fond of laughter, delighting in any show of what passed with them as wit or humour, and keeping the dumps at arm's length. They sang of love, protesting that never, no never, would they plant in the adored one's bosom a thorn;—a truly commendable sentiment. They sang of war with heart and voice, but without any tendency to hysteria and street escapades. They were fond of loyal songs; believed that Britannia was the pride of the ocean, and prayed that the King

* This is mentioned by Nansen in his 'Farthest North.'

(God bless him) might be spared long to reign over them.

Quite in keeping are the tunes of the olden time which have come down to us hand in hand with the words; each, but the melodies more especially, an embodiment of the national temperament The tunes, it is true, are wanting in the peculiarities of rhythm and scale which so readily draw attention to the folk-music of some other peoples. No doubt the lack of these has much to do with a very common idea that there is no such thing as popular strains of a distinctly English cast. The notion is false, and so false as even to be absurd. Any one who has studied the matter at all can as readily distinguish a genuine English tune as he can a Scottish melody, though, in the first-named case, he obtains no help from a 'snap' or from the pentatonic scale. This, however, by the way. What I desire to point out is the virility, the straightforwardness, the natural strength of our native melodies. They are a reflex of the manly qualities which have made this nation what it is—qualities which, let us hope, will never desert us, despite some indications of a weakening attachment. 'What!' exclaims the reader, 'do you mean to suggest that, as a people, we are losing our hold upon the ancestral virtues?' I suggest nothing so sweeping; but I do mean to say that the popular music we have inherited is strong evidence that our forebears were not given to snivelling or maundering; that they found no pleasure in contemplating imaginary woes; and that they took the cheerful view of life which is a proof of healthy feeling. Again the reader interposes: 'Are we unlike them? Are we given to the dumps?' Let us see what can be advanced in support of an affirmative answer.

At least one close observer of social phenomena cherishes a belief that whatever may be the condition of the upper classes against whom Tolstoy inveighs, the middle and lower classes remain, for the most part, as they were in the past. 'The Philistine or the Proletarian,' says Nordau, 'still finds undiluted satisfaction in the old and oldest forms of poetry, if he knows himself unwatched by the scornful eye of the votary of fashion, and is free to yield to his own inclinations. He prefers Ohnet's novels to all the symbolists, and Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" to all Wagnerians and to Wagner himself; he enjoys himself royally over slap-dash farces and music hall melodies, and yawns or is angered at Ibsen; he contemplates gladly chromos of paintings depicting Munich beer-houses and rustic taverns, and passes the open-air painters without a glance. It is only a very small minority who honestly find pleasure in the new tendencies, and announce them with genuine conviction as that which alone is sound, a sure guide for the future, a pledge of pleasure, and of moral benefit.'

So far, the opinion of this authority encourages hope, but he proceeds in another strain:—

'This minority has the gift of covering the whole visible surface of society, as a little oil extends over a large area of the surface of the sea. It consists chiefly of rich, educated people, or of fanatics. The former give the ton to all the snobs, the fools, and the blockheads; the latter make an impression upon the weak and dependent, and intimidate the nervous. All snobs affect to have the same taste as the select and exclusive minority, who pass by everything that once was considered beautiful with an air of the greatest contempt. And thus it appears as if the whole of civilised humanity were converted to the æsthetics of the Dusk of the Nations.'

I do not know what people, if any in particular, the author of this strong language had in his mind's eye when using it; but I am compelled to recognise an uncommonly clear reflection upon our own worthy selves. For the most part—that is to say, exclusive of honest fanatics—we English folk lead a double life. There is the natural man and the man artificial; the one as God and his ancestors have made him; the other as moulded by surrounding influences and by his own idea of social obligation. The artificial man generally predominates, but he cannot change the nature of the other, which is the actually human and, therefore, as fixed as a divine decree. Sometimes, in quiet moments—you know it, Sir, or Madam, as well as I do—we hear the voice of our natural self, and it does not compliment us. Possibly it covers us with shame; possibly it makes us see the ludicrous, and we laugh at our own folly. The other day, a party of young men and maidens met to recite poetry and music. Coming away, it suddenly occurred to one of them that in the course of the evening they had witnessed four deaths and shed a bucketful of tears in song. The current of the time had carried them into the dumps, and when their real selves awoke to the fact, a quiet suburban road echoed with merry laughter. Going into society, we leave the actual man and woman in the street. The Philistine part of us has no business in the temples of the elect. What wonderful hypocrites are we when once inside. Say we go to a concert of the kind described in the following words: 'The music must continually promise, but never perform; must seem about to tell some great secret, and grow dumb or break away ere to throbbing hearts it tells the word they wait for. The audience go to their concert-room in quest of Tantalus moods, and leave it with all the nervous exhaustion of a pair of young lovers, who for hours at the nightly tryst have sought to exchange caresses through a closely barred window!' There may be such exhaustion, but our fatigue under the circumstances described is due much more frequently to the labour of pretending to understand and enjoy music which our natural selves declare to be unintelligible and distasteful. We do pretend very hard indeed. Fashion requires it of us. We must be in the mode, or, if not, had better be out of the world. So we strain and strain—O the weariness of it all!—even nearly to the breaking point. But even then, so severe is the discipline, we speak the words required and murmur the applauses which are en regle. Sometimes human weakness declares itself, however. We brighten visibly at a bit of pure tune, and, if it be at all in the nature of a lilt, nod our heads to its rhythm, but hope, the next moment, that nobody has seen us, and make a pretence of absorption in a vigorous polyphony which summons the attention in several directions at once.

For some years past musical people have worn the mantle of woe. Why this should have been decreed is hard to say, but there is no denying that the dumps are fashionable. No person in the mode would think of singing a merry song, or even a song in which what may be called mere work-a-day feeling finds expression. That would be Philistinism, and the Philistine is in as bad a case as a poor savage who has broken taboo. So we go about, where music is, wearing weepers, and clad in crape. We want our men-singers and women-singers to harrow up our souls with strains inspired by the death chamber or the churchyard; by lovers on the point of killing themselves most gallantly for love; by poor little chorister boys, who, instead of developing into serviceable tenors and basses, catch cold in a damp church, and go warbling hoarsely to heaven. Even our love songs are touched by the same blight of bathos. The adored one is fading away, or has faded, and the adorer indulges in bursts of sickly sentiment—not the manly grief of 'To Mary in Heaven'—over the bed or the tomb. So it is, more or less, all through the chapter, and the reader can supply further illustrations for himself. Why this weepiness? or, rather, why so much of it? Music must go through the gamut of human feeling, but one would suppose that in a world where real sorrow is plentiful and cannot be avoided, as little as possible of the grief which is imaginary would serve our turn. But no; our best composers write Requiems and various lamentations, or set death-bed scenes to music, and their example is followed in degree down through all the ranks of the hierarchy to which they belong. As to the cause, Max Nordau would bluntly speak of degeneration, and say: 'The old Northern faith contained the fearsome doctrine of the Dusk of the Gods. In our days, there have arisen in more highly developed minds vague qualms of a Dusk of the Nations, in which all suns and all stars are gradually waning, and mankind, with all its institutions and creations, is perishing in the midst of a dying world.' If this be so it is hardly a matter for wonder that we are musically morbid, melancholy, and tearful.

But the real state of affairs is not so bad as the fears of the distinguished pessimist I have quoted. A nation, like the individuals composing it, has passing moods, and our present state of dumps may be one of them. Perhaps the sun of the new century will draw us out of it, put some of the traditional joy of English life into our hearts, and set our composers to the task of writing in keys with the greater third. I question, however, whether weepiness is more a mood than a mode with the vast majority of English people. That we have been 'got at' by degenerates is true. True it is, likewise, that they have cajoled or forced us to accept the cult of unhappiness; to believe that the groanings of low 'reeds' are the strains of the heavenly muse; that harmonising the wailing chromatic scale is the function of genius; that avoidance of a pretty melody is the paramount duty of a musical man. But we don't believe this in our hearts, do we? When you and I meet at a musical 'At Home,' and have listened with the hypocritical acceptance of our artificial selves to the usual weepings and groanings, we are surprised, perhaps, by the advent of the funny man. He may not be very funny really, but do we not welcome him? We are 'Souls' no longer, but men and women. We resemble the black brother who, having left his native Africa to be veneered in England, returns home, strips himself, and has a real good time in the old way. So it comes to pass that, having obtained leave of each other by a sort of tacit understanding, we change into our real selves in presence of the funny man, and are immensely the better for a bout of Philistinism. Why cannot we always be our real selves and frankly enjoy the life and the art that suit us? Are we afraid of the superior people and the fanatics? They are as harmless as Giant Pope in the 'Pilgrim's Progress.' Never mind them; let us come out of the dumps and exercise all the capacity for genuine gladness that is in us.

JOSEPH BENNETT.

BEETHOVEN: HIS PORTRAIT, AND—ITS BLOT!

THE great Sun of the nineteenth century in the realm of music was BEETHOVEN! Time has not dimmed the splendour of its radiance, and to-day, as we stand on the threshold of a new century, it shines with a refulgent brightness, in whose rays all music-loving souls 'feel that it is well with them.'

What more appropriate, therefore, than for the first MUSICAL TIMES portrait of the new century to be that of the great tone-poet who bore the honoured name of Beethoven? Although Beethoven was thirty years of age at the dawn of the departed century, he had not composed his greatest and—may we not add?—his immortal works. These are the birthright of the hundred years that have just faded into the past. Bearing this in mind, who will deny that the nineteenth century has been a glorious period in the art of music? But let us return to the blot-portrait, which forms one of our Extra Supplements.

In the year 1815 Charles Neate (1784-1877), a worthy English musician and an excellent pianist, visited Vienna. During his sojourn in the Austrian capital he enjoyed the close friendship of Beethoven. If he was not exactly his pupil, he greatly profited by the advice given to him by the great composer. One day Beethoven presented Neate with a copy of his portrait, then recently published. But the story connected with the gift had better be told in the words of Neate's old, and now veteran pupil, Mr. Charles Salaman, who about twenty-five years ago visited his nonogenarian master at Brighton.

'I noticed,' records Mr. Salaman, 'hanging on the wall above Mr. Neate's easy chair, an engraved portrait of Beethoven, published by Artaria, of Vienna, in 1814. "Was that like Beethoven?" I asked. Neate at once rose up from his chair, and advancing with feeble steps towards the portrait, said: "That is the very image of him, the only true likeness." But was his complexion so dark, or is the engraving darkly printed? I asked. "Beethoven was like a Moor; that is the image of him," replied Neate. "Can you read the German inscription?" he continued. Of course, I can, said I, and read,

To my friend Neate from his (friend) L. v. Beethoven.

"Do you see that blot on the left of the inscription?" asked the aged musician. Yes, I answered, but how came it there? Neate, still standing before the portrait, said, "I happened to be with Beethoven when several prints of the portrait were sent to him by the publisher. Beethoven gave me a copy, and while writing the inscription which you see, filled his pen too full of ink, and made that blot. He was about to tear it up, and give me another copy in lieu of it; but I preferred the copy containing Beethoven's blot, and I insisted upon keeping it."'

Charles Neate, who died on March 30, 1877, at the age of ninety-three, bequeathed his precious portrait possession to the Royal Society of Musicians, of which he was a member.

For permission to reproduce this Beethoven treasure we are greatly indebted to the kindness of the Governors and Court of Assistants of the Royal Society of Musicians.

It may be added that Charles Neate was the first to introduce into England Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat (Philharmonic concert, May 8, 1820) and Weber's Concertstück (Philharmonic, April 11, 1825)—he playing the solo parts of each work. At his concert on April 26, 1830, Neate gave the second performance in this country of the Choral Symphony. 'It was executed admirably,' records the musical critic of the Harmonicon, the only musical journal of the day, 'and seemed to afford the audience much satisfaction. We certainly do not at present rank ourselves amongst its admirers, and moreover, cannot suppose that we shall ever enjoy a work in which there are so many extravagances, which is of so heterogeneous a nature, and is an hour and a quarter in duration.' Poor 'we'!

Beethoven had much correspondence with his 'très cher ami' Neate concerning the English publication of his works and their performances here. The composer of the C minor Symphony evidently did not disdain to read the London newspapers. In one of his letters to Charles Neate, Beethoven refers to the Morning cronigle!

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

The funeral of Sir Arthur Sullivan, on November 27, bore striking testimony to his great popularity as an English composer. It was a happy thought that prompted the Queen to give her gracious permission for the holding of the funeral service in the Chapel Royal, where, as one of the Children, Arthur Sullivan had so often sung, and where he became inoculated, so to speak, with those vocal attributes which are so characteristic a feature of his compositions. A very representative assembly filled the regal sanctuary. The Queen, who sent a wreath, was fittingly represented by her Master of Musick, Sir Walter Parratt, who occupied the central place in Her Majesty's pew in the end gallery of the Chapel; the Prince of Wales was represented by Sir Hubert Parry; the Prince and Princess Christian by Colonel the Hon. C. Eliot; the Duchess of Argyll by the Hon. Alexander Yorke; the Duke of Cambridge by General Bateson; and the German Emperor (who also sent a wreath) by Prince Lynar. The pall bearers were Sir John Stainer, Sir George C. Martin, Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir George Lewis, Sir Frederick Bridge, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Colonel Arthur Collins, and Mr. François Cellier. The chief mourners were Mr. Herbert Sullivan (nephew), Mr. John Sullivan (uncle), and Miss J. Sullivan (a cousin of the deceased musician), while immediately following were Mr. Wilfred Bendall (secretary) and Mr. Rupert d'Oyley Carte. Amongst the representative congregation gathered together to do honour to the distinguished composer must be mentioned the venerable Dean of Westminster (the late Sir George Grove's brother-in-law) and Mr. Choate, the American Ambassador. The music sung on the mournful occasion included the solemn Sentences of Croft, Psalm xxxix., to a chant by Sir John Stainer, and, by the composer whose mortal remains were temporarily resting in the Chapel, the anthems, 'Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death' and 'Wreaths for our graves.' The service was sung by the Children, clad in their quaint state uniform of scarlet and gold, and the Gentlemen of the Chapel Royal, while the Sub-Dean (the Rev. Edgar Sheppard) read, in most impressive tones, that magnificent chapter from the Epistle to the Corinthians which forms the Lesson in the incomparable Burial Service of the English Prayer Book. Dr. Creser, who presided at the organ, played appropriate voluntaries, entirely selected from the works of Arthur Sullivan—viz., the Andante espressivo from his Symphony in E (the unpublished score of which had been kindly placed at his disposal), 'God shall wipe away all tears,' the 'Pastorale,' and 'In Bethany,' the three pieces last-named being taken from the Oratorio of 'Light of the World.'

A LARGE number of people lined the thoroughfares along which the funeral procession passed from the Chapel Royal to St. Paul's Cathedral, where the mortal remains of Arthur Sullivan worthily found their last resting-place. It was a people's tribute of respect which had a true significance, and which, in the case of a musician, is almost unprecedented in this country. During the interval of waiting at St. Paul's, the band of the Scots Guards (under the able direction of Mr. Fred. Wood) played with thrilling effect Chopin's Funeral March and a funeral march attributed, but without sufficient cause, to Beethoven. The service at St. Paul's was almost a repetition of that at the Chapel Royal. Special mention must, however, be made of the exquisitely beautiful rendering of 'Yea, though I walk,' sung under the direction of Sir George Martin, who came from his place among the pall bearers to conduct these simple unaccompanied strains of the dead composer and beat time with his hand, while a small choir boy, standing at the entrance to the Choir, held a copy of the music. It is only just to the St. Paul's Choir to record that, in their interpretation of this anthem, they excelled themselves. After the coffin had been lowered into the crypt and the Dean had pronounced the Benediction, the ladies and gentlemen of the Savoy Theatre sang, under the direction of Mr. François Cellier, Arthur Sullivan's setting of the well-known lines of Dean Milman (a former Dean of St. Paul's), 'Brother, thou art gone before us.' The peculiarly touching manner—voices tremulous with deep emotion—in which those beautiful words, with their equally beautiful music, were sung, was not the least impressive feature of a memorable funeral service. The concluding strains came from the organ, at which Mr. Charles Macpherson, the sub-organist of St. Paul's, ably presided, and were, appropriately enough, the time-honoured Dead March in 'Saul' of Handel.

THE last musician buried in St. Paul's Cathedral was Thomas Attwood, on March 31, 1838, though it should be mentioned that the remains of Dr. Maurice Greene were re-interred (upon being transferred from the Church of St. Olave's, Old Jewry) in the grave of Dr. Boyce on May 18, 1888. In addition to the above-mentioned musicians there must be added the name of Jonathan Battishill, whose remains found (in 1801) a last resting-place in the crypt of the great Metropolitan cathedral.

THE Sullivan In Memoriam concert at the Crystal Palace, on the 8th ult., calls for special mention by reason of the fact that it was at Sydenham that the genius of Sullivan was first made known to the world. Moreover, the veteran August Manns was Sullivan's sponsor, so to speak, at that memorable Saturday concert, on April 5, 1862, when the 'Tempest' music captivated by its charm all those who heard it, including Charles Dickens. And here, after an interval of nearly forty years, was the grand old man of the Crystal Palace, with all his youthful vigour, conducting the works of his young friend and protégé. All honour to him for the warm and practical interest he has ever taken in English music and musicians! The programme on the 8th included the 'In Memoriam' Overture and selections from the Festival Te Deum, the 'Martyr of Antioch,' the 'Golden Legend,' the 'Tempest' music, the 'Merchant of Venice' music, &c. 'O hush thee, my babie,' was also in the programme. And this gives us the opportunity of correcting a slight error, due to writing against time, which appeared in our biographical notice of Sir Arthur Sullivan (THE MUSICAL TIMES, December, 1900, p. 786, col. ii., line 11). 'O hush thee, my babie,' was first sung at the first concert given by Barnby's Choir at St. James's Hall, May 23, 1867.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

THE master mind of Melody and Song
Has left us mourning—gone to join the throng
Of joyous voices in a higher sphere!
Should we be grieving that from pain set free,
From stress and tumult of the struggle, he
At last wins clear?

RUTLAND BARRINGTON in the Evening News.

THE Bach Choir is being reorganised on a larger basis than heretofore. It is of the highest importance that a choral society which has for its aims the performance of all the best works of the best masters, both ancient and modern, should be enabled to continue its labours efficiently as well as with the same worthy object for which it was founded. In future the performing membership of the Society will consist of: (1) Full members, (2) Associates, and (3) Honorary members. As the last-named, after being duly tested for efficiency, will not be called upon to pay any subscription, it is hoped that a large number of new honorary members—even up to 200—will join the ranks of the Society. The former members of the choir have all been tested by a musician outside the Society, with the result that in several instances their performing activities will in future be only a memory! We understand that the whole choir will in like manner be put to the test every three years—in other words, a triennial weeding out. Full particulars as to rehearsals, &c., will shortly be made known. Professor Villiers Stanford retains his post as musical director and conductor.

THE music in the Royal Mausoleum, Frogmore, on the 14th ult., at the service to commemorate the death of the Prince Consort, was, as usual, sung by the choir of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, under the direction of Sir Walter Parratt, Master of the Musick to the Queen. It was entirely unaccompanied and consisted of (1) a hymn, written by Mr. C. A. Benson, beginning—

God of loving kindness,
Pity Thou our blindness!
Loving Lord, be near us!
Tender Spirit, hear us!

sung to a tune brought from Biarritz by Princess Henry of Battenberg, who heard it in a convent there; (2) an anthem by Tschaïkowsky, a setting of the words—

How blest are they whom Thou hast chosen, and taken unto Thee, O Lord.

Their memorial is from generation to generation. Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia.

and (3) 'Wreaths for our graves,' by Sir Arthur Sullivan.

A LARGE and representative committee, with Sir John Stainer as chairman, has been formed to raise subscriptions for a memorial to the late Dr. James Taylor, organist of New College and of the University of Oxford. Many of the personal friends and pupils of Dr. Taylor have expressed a desire to co-operate in such a scheme and have promised their assistance. Subscriptions may be sent either to the 'Taylor Memorial Fund,' Old Bank, Oxford, or to the hon. secretary, Mr. Ralph H. Bellairs, 29, Banbury Road, Oxford, who will be happy to furnish all particulars.

A CONCERT consisting entirely of English orchestral music at Naples! Surely this must be placed in the category of a hitherto unheard of event. But there can be no doubt about it. The said concert—or, in the words of the vernacular, 'Concerto Orchestrale di autori Inglesi'—actually took place on the 9th ult. Moreover, it was under the patronage of the Queen of Italy, and 2,800 gay Neapolitans listened to the English strains. Here is the programme:—

1. Prélude, 'Colomba'.. .. .. .. Mackenzie.
2. Variazioni su di un tema originale .. .. Elgar.
3. Ballata (dalla Sinfonia in Do minore) .. .. Cliffe.
   Danze (Henry VIII.) (a) Morris (b) Shepherds' (c) Torch .. German.
4. (a) Benedictus .. .. Mackenzie.
   (b) Scherzo (dalla Sinfonia Irlandese) .. Stanford.
5. Ouverture, 'In Memoriam' .. .. Sullivan.

Diretto da

FLORESTANO ROSSOMANDI.

THE inception of this novel concert was due to Signor A. Bocchi, an enthusiastic Italian musician resident in London, who, during a visit to Naples, espoused the cause of English music. 'But there is no English music,' said the Neapolitans. Whereupon Signor Bocchi took steps to prove the contrary, with results that are extremely gratifying. In this connection full tribute must be paid to Signor Florestano Rossomandi for the skill and enthusiasm he displayed in bringing the concert to a successful issue. We understand that Dr. Elgar's 'Variations' made such a great impression that the work is soon to be repeated at one of the Naples Symphony concerts, and that but for the length of the programme Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Four Characteristic Waltzes' would have been included in the scheme; the waltzes will, however, be played on some other occasion. The following extracts from the Neapolitan press will be read with interest:—

The performance included the Prelude to the opera 'Colomba,' by Sir A. Mackenzie, and the Benedictus by the same composer, both compositions being distinguished by rich melody and orchestrated in a masterly manner. . . . But space does not permit us to speak of every number in the programme in detail. We will only add that the 'Variations on an original theme,' by Elgar, the third movement of a symphony by Cliffe, the dance movement from 'Henry VIII.,' by German, the Scherzo from the 'Irish' Symphony of V. Stanford, and the overture 'In Memoriam,' by Sullivan (which latter closed the successful concert), sufficiently demonstrated the ability on the part of modern English composers to enter into a rivalry with the leading musicians of other nations.

A select and distinguished audience had assembled for the purpose of becoming acquainted with some aspects of contemporaneous English music. Taking into consideration the short space of time available for such a purpose in a single concert, the choice of pieces made by Signor Rossomandi has been an excellent one. . . . The five English masters found in Signor Rossomandi a most able and sympathetic interpreter, capable of rendering full justice to their works. The audience signified their appreciation by very frequent applause and the demand for encores.

The 'Variations on an original theme,' equally well executed by the orchestra as the Mackenzie pieces, were even more favourably received. Mr. Elgar is indeed a truly elegant composer, possessing great mastery over the resources of his art. . . . The Variations certainly were amongst the most highly approved numbers in the programme.

The 'Benedictus,' by Mackenzie, is a composition of high inspiration, and exhibits, moreover, great ability, both as regards its instrumentation and general workmanship.

The Scherzo from V. Stanford's symphony, a most graceful composition, was vociferously applauded.

THE following prestissimo-charged paragraph appeared in the Doncaster Gazette of the 14th ult., in noticing a performance of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha':—

An incident occurred connected with the concert which, if only out of compliment to Messrs. Novello and Co., ought to be published. At a few minutes to four o'clock on Tuesday afternoon it was discovered that the bassoon copies of 'Hiawatha' were lost. Novello and Co. were at once wired to, being asked to forward two copies by the guard of the train from King's Cross (which is situated two miles from their premises) to Doncaster in time for the performance. A minute or two before 'Hiawatha' was commenced a packet was handed on to the stage. That packet contained the desired copies.

'MUSICAL instruments and memorials of musicians' is the title of an interesting pamphlet (published at the office of Musical News), which forms the catalogue of the International Loan Exhibition (1900) at the Crystal Palace. Introductory notes on the various groups of instruments are contributed by Mr. D. J. Blaikley, Mr. W. W. Cobbett, Rev. F. W. Galpin, Mr. J. G. Morley, and Mr. T. Lea Southgate, and the pamphlet contains abstracts of lectures delivered by Mr. E. F. Jacques, Dr. W. H. Cummings, and the Rev. F. W. Galpin.

THE well-known music publishing firm of C. F. Peters, in Leipzig, celebrated, on the 1st ult., the hundredth year of its existence. The business was founded in 1800, as a 'Bureau de Musique,' and taken over by Carl Friedrich Peters in 1814. The establishment and speedy popularisation of the world-famed 'Edition Peters' is due to the ability and enterprise of the late chief, Dr. Max Abraham, who, we much regret to record, died at Leipzig on the 8th ult.

'WOULD that we had more of such tuneful, healthy, vigorous, and enlivening music at our disposal!' Thus wrote Mr. C. A. Barry in the concluding sentence of the analytical programme-book of the recent Arthur Sullivan In Memoriam concert at the Crystal Palace. Let us repeat those well-expressed words of 'C. A. B.' They deserve to be writ large—

TUNEFUL! HEALTHY! VIGOROUS!
ENLIVENING MUSIC!

MR. WALTER MACFARREN will deliver a course of twelve lectures during the ensuing term, at the Royal Academy, on 'Beethoven's thirty-two solo sonatas,' in which he will treat this interesting subject from its historical and analytical points of view. These discourses will be given on Wednesdays, at 3.15 p.m.

DR. SANDYS, Public Orator of the University of Cambridge, Fellow and Classical Lecturer of St. John's College, delivered two eloquent Speeches in the Senate House of Cambridge in presenting for the degree of Doctor of Music honoris causa Mr. FREDERIC H. COWEN and Mr. EDWARD ELGAR, on St. Cecilia's Day, November 22, 1900. The following is an English rendering of the general purport of the Latin Speeches in honour of Mr. Cowen and Mr. Elgar.

THE Public Orator began by remarking that two eminent representatives of English music would, by a happy coincidence, receive their degrees on a day dedicated to St. Cecilia, of whom it had been said that the angels came down from heaven to listen to her song, and that a celestial messenger brought two crowns of undying roses to place on the brow of herself and her companion. Mr. COWEN'S 'Dream of Endymion,' his 'Sleeping Beauty,' his 'Fairyland,' his oratorio of 'Ruth,' his 'Water-lily,' and his 'Rose Maiden,' his 'Language of Flowers' and his 'Ode to the Passions' were the theme of a series of allusive phrases. . . . Born amid the Western islands of England's empire, and devoted to music from his earliest years, Mr. Cowen had not only been conspicuous as a wielder of the baton in some of England's greatest cities, but had also visited Australia on an auspicious occasion, when (in the words of one of his many songs) 'the stars were with the voyagers.' Under the spell of his music, his audience might follow the varied fortunes of 'St. Ursula,' and of 'King Harold,' of Pauline and Claude, and of Signa and Gemma; they might enter the solitudes of Wales and Scandinavia, and in his 'Scandinavian' Symphony might listen, through the Northern night, to the sound of joyous horns wafted over tranquil lakes, to the silvery tinkle of the horses' bells borne across silent snows, and to the tremulous sighing of the North wind in the vast and gloomy pine-woods. The lyrics he had set to music were as impossible to number as the voiceful leaves of the oracular oak in the forest of Dodona; but it might well be hoped that not a few of his innumerable songs would be immortal.

Turning next to Mr. ELGAR, the Orator alluded in appropriate terms to his cantata of the 'Black Knight' and his oratorio of 'Lux Christi.' He also mentioned Mr. Elgar's 'Scenes from the Bavarian Highlands' and from the 'Saga of King Olaf,' his cantata of 'Caractacus,' his 'Sea Pictures,' his 'Banner of St. George,' and his 'Imperial March.' In his 'Dream of Gerontius' Mr. Elgar had lately lavished the resources of his art on that solemn story of the soul speeding through illimitable space in the briefest moment of time, and had set to marvellous music the songs of the celestial choirs: 'Praise to the Holiest in the height, and in the depth be praise.' In the previous year he had proved his mastery of all the resources of orchestration in his Orchestral Variations. In his use of the Leitmotiv he had been mainly influenced by the example of Mendelssohn, without becoming the slavish follower of any single master. If ever this votary of the Muse of song looked from the hills of his present home at Malvern, from the cradle of English poetry, the scene of the vision of Piers Plowman, and from the British camp with its legendary memories of his own Caractacus, and saw in the light of the rising sun the towers of Tewkesbury and Gloucester and Worcester, he might recall in that view the prelude of his own career, and confess, with modest pride, like the bard in the 'Odyssey'—

> 'Self-taught I sing; 'tis Heaven, and Heaven alone
> Inspires my song with Music all its own.'

THE other English musicians whom the University of Cambridge has similarly honoured in recent years are Sir John Goss, Sir George Macfarren, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Sir Hubert Parry, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and Professor Stanford, in addition to the honorary degree of LL.D. conferred on Sir Frederick A. Gore Ouseley and the degree of M.A. on Sir George Macfarren and Dr. George M. Garrett.

MR. NICHOLAS KILBURN, of Bishop Auckland, is one of those enthusiastic and earnest-minded amateurs to whom the art of music in this country owes so much. An ironmaster in a large way of business, and also a partner in the engineering firm of Messrs. Lingford, Gardiner and Co., Mr. Kilburn well maintains the business traditions of his family, who have been connected with the engineering and iron trades in Bishop Auckland for a number of generations. He is also a Justice of the Peace for the County of Durham. Born at Bishop Auckland on February 7, 1843, Mr. Kilburn was privately educated in music. Twenty years ago, under Sir G. A. Macfarren's professorship, he took the degree of Bachelor in Music at the University of Cambridge. The leisure of his busy commercial life has been most zealously devoted to the culture of music in the district, whereby he has worthily won the title bestowed upon him by our special correspondent in another column—'The Musical Apostle of the North.' Mr. Kilburn has conducted the Auckland Musical Society since 1875, the Middlesbrough Musical Union since 1882, and the Sunderland Philharmonic Society since 1885. Moreover, he has conducted concerts at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and has frequently lectured on musical subjects. In the region of composition there has to be put to Mr. Kilburn's account the following works, as recorded in Brown and Stratton's invaluable 'British Musical Biography':—

(From a Photograph by Mr. A. M. Cromack, Newborough Street, Scarborough.)

'Grant us Thy peace' (sacred cantata), 'St. Thomas' (oratorio), both for soli, chorus, and orchestra, the latter produced at Bishop Auckland, December, 1886; Psalms 23 and 137 (both published) for chorus and orchestra; 'The Golden River' and 'The Silver Star' (cantatas for female voices, both published); Suite for orchestra (1894); Duologue for pianoforte and violin.

Mr. Kilburn has not been idle with his pen in regard to the literature of music, as he is the author of the following useful pamphlets: 'How to manage a choral society,' 'Notes and notions on music,' 'Wagner's "Der Ring des Nibelungen,"' 'Wagner: a sketch of his life and works,' 'Wagner's "Parsifal," and the Bayreuth Festspielhaus.' The last-named was written many years ago, at a time when to advocate Wagner incurred almost a heavy penalty. Mr. Kilburn is to be congratulated upon so excellent an exercise of his hobby—a hobby which results in such splendid work for the cause of music in the neighbourhood reaping the benefit of his ministrations.

Mr. Edward Lloyd has every reason to be gratified at the success of his Farewell Tour, which culminated in such an extraordinary outburst of enthusiasm at the Royal Albert Hall, on the 12th ult., and to which we make reference elsewhere. Starting on October 8 at Hull, and ending, so far as the provinces are concerned, at Birmingham, on the 10th ult., Mr. Lloyd and his party visited no less than fifty cities and towns, singing by night and travelling by day. As he sang six songs at nearly every performance, it is no wonder that he felt a certain amount of fatigue when the tour terminated. But he retains the pleasantest recollection of his adieu journey by reason of the kindness received from the great British public, whose heart beats so true to trusted favourites. The artists forming the concert party were Miss Evangeline Florence, Miss Sarah Berry, and Miss Gertrude Peppercorn (solo pianist); Mr. H. Lane Wilson, M. Johannes Wolff (violin), and Mr. Percy Starnes (accompanist). In the large cities—Liverpool, Manchester, and Birmingham—Mr. Lloyd had the additional help of his old colleagues, Madame Albani and Mr. Santley. For the sake of future reference we give a list of the cities and towns visited by the great tenor on his Farewell Tour:—

Hull	Cardiff	Manchester
Huddersfield	Bristol	Newcastle-on-Tyne
Middlesbrough	Penzance	Doncaster
Sunderland	Plymouth	Nottingham
Sheffield	Torquay	Liverpool
Barnsley	Exeter	Douglas (I. of Man)
Edinburgh	Oxford	New Brighton
Glasgow	Cambridge	Morecambe Bay
Aberdeen	Bedford	Barrow
Perth	Bournemouth	Kendal
Dundee	Wolverhampton	Lancaster
Gloucester	Derby	Carlisle
Cheltenham	Warrington	Bradford
Bath	Leicester	Harrogate
Portsmouth	Northampton	Birmingham
Brighton	Leeds	London
Eastbourne	Grimsby

Mr. Franklin Sievewright Peterson, of Edinburgh, who has recently been elected to the Chair of Ormond Professor of Music in the University of Melbourne, was born in Edinburgh, February 24, 1861. He studied music at Dresden, where he was an organ pupil of Herr C. Aug. Fischer, and in 1884 became organist and choirmaster of Palmerston Place Church, in his native city. In June, 1891, he took the degree of Bachelor of Music in the University of Oxford. In addition to holding the posts of music master at the Edinburgh Ladies' College and Fettes College, and following a busy teaching career in Auld Reekie, Mr. Peterson has given many lectures on music in various places in connection with the Scottish University Extension Scheme, the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution, and other bodies. He was one of the organisers (in 1888) of the Edinburgh Society of Musicians, and he founded the Edinburgh Bach Society in 1887. The new occupant of the Ormond Chair is the author of 'Elements of Music,' 'Introduction to the study of theory,' 'Pianists' Handbook' (Parts 1 and 2), and 'Catechism of Music.' Mr. Peterson has been a frequent contributor to periodical musical literature, and since 1888 he has been special correspondent in Edinburgh for The Musical Times.

Mr. J. Spencer Curwen delivered a highly interesting lecture before the Tonic Sol-fa Association, at 186, Aldersgate Street, on the 8th ult., when he took as his subject 'The Music of 1800.' Various songs of the period were admirably rendered by Miss Eleanor Coward (a daughter of Dr. Coward, of Sheffield, and the possessor of an excellent soprano voice), Mr. Fred. Williams, and Mr. W. Seemer Betts; while the Victorian Glee Singers contributed, in first-rate style, some male-voice glees popular in 1800. Two harpsichords (single and double keyboard) belonging to Mrs. Curwen, and which have been in her family for more than a century, were exhibited, played upon, and described. The following is a syllabus of the lecture:—

Music of 1800 in the Church, the Concert Room, the Drawing Room, and the Street—Popular Composers of the Day: Arne, Shield, Hook, Dibdin—The Public Gardens of London—First performance of Haydn's 'Creation'—The popularity of Glees and Catches—Dibdin compared with Kipling—The Singers of the Day.

Mr. W. Roston Bourke was the chairman.

Herr Otto Lessmann, the distinguished German critic, thus records his impression of Dr. Edward Elgar as a composer, in the course of an interesting notice of the recent Birmingham Musical Festival, contributed to the columns of the Allgemeine Musik Zeitung, of which he is the editor. Herr Lessmann says:—

If I mistake not, the 'coming man' has already risen in the English musical world, an artist who has instinctively freed himself from the scholasticism which, till now, has held English art firmly bound in its fetters; an artist, who has thrown open mind and heart, to the great achievements which the mighty tone masters of the century now ebbed away, have left us as a heritage for the one to come; Edward Elgar, the composer of the only considerable, sacred choral work, 'The Dream of Gerontius.' . . . He is not only a musician who shows himself a master in all the arts of composition, but before all he is a poet, to whom the weaving of sounds is a means of expressing the pictures which arise in his active imagination. His orchestration teems and blossoms with clever instrumental and bold harmonic ideas which give an important and characteristic illustration in tones, to the poetic burden of the text; what the composer writes down, flows, guided by a finely cultivated appreciation of art, from the depths of his heart and touches its hearers quite irresistibly.

Dr. F. H. Cowen was, on the 15th ult., presented by the Executive and members of the Bradford Permanent Orchestra with an inkstand and pair of candlesticks in solid silver as a mark of their esteem.

DR. FRANK J. SAWYER read a paper at the Musical Association, on the 11th ult., when he took for his subject 'The teaching of harmony as a basis of ear training.' (We hope shortly to have an article dealing with this subject.) Dr. Sawyer's lecture was followed by a short but interesting paper, contributed by Mr. Algernon S. Rose, on 'The Balalaika' (bal-la-la-ik-a), which is the Russian national folk instrument. It is of the guitar family, and there are nine varieties, ranging from the 'piccolo' to the 'contra-basso.' It is not a good solo instrument, although some exceptionally clever players can make it effective. In ensemble playing the majority of the players play pizzicato only, the leaders using a plectrum. The Balalaika is very popular with the lower classes, and it is common for schools and factories to have bands entirely made up of these instruments. It is now becoming a fashionable instrument amongst ladies of the upper classes, and is often very expensively made. Mrs. Newmarch, who spoke after the reading of the paper, said that the Balalaika was a comparatively modern instrument.

THE festive season covered by Christmas and the New Year—and the New Century—is made more festive by the humours of the printing office. From far away Sydney we find that an organist in that capital is credited with having played 'the preludes and faques of Mendelssohn.' Coming nearer home, in a busy northern manufacturing centre, we are told that a certain tenor was heard to great advantage in 'Ye people, mend your hearts,' and 'Then shall the neighbours.'

MISS CONSTANCE BACHE will give a course of 'six lectures on Russian music,' at King's College for Ladies, 13, Kensington Square, on Wednesday afternoons, at 3 o'clock. The lectures, which will commence on the 30th inst., and are sure to be most interesting, will be musically illustrated. The secretary for the course is Miss L. M. Faithfull, 13, Kensington Square. The following is the syllabus:—

General survey of Russian Music from early times—Poetic forms of the old mythological worship—Common origin of these—Adaptation of them to the Christian religion—Love and Marriage Songs—Khorovod or Spring Songs—Kolyadki or Christmas Songs—Zaplachki or Wailing Songs—Old instruments and Folk Songs—Religious Music—Music in the reign of Catherine II.—Music in the nineteenth century—Glinka, Dargomuijsky and Serov—Rubinstein—The 'New School,' with Balakirev, Cui, Moussorgsky, Borodine and Rimsky-Korsakov—Their principal works and influence on modern Russian Music—Tschaïkovsky—Liadov, Arensky, Glazounov—Conclusion.

MR. EDWIN H. LEMARE sailed from Liverpool in the White Star liner Teutonic, on the 19th ult., for New York. He will give organ recitals in various cities in the States during his three weeks' sojourn in America. May he have much success on 'the other side.'

A TEACHER writes: 'While it is very dangerous for a pupil to give a phonetic translation of some Italian words used in music—e.g., Stringendo = play on the strings—no such limitation exists in regard to the word Accentuato, which may be freely translated by young folks as—Accent you are to!'

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN AS A CHURCH MUSICIAN.

IN the many biographical notices of Arthur Sullivan that have recently appeared, comparatively little attention has been paid to the church-musician side of his genius. The mere fact that the gifted composer returned to his first love—church music—in the last completed composition he has left behind him is a sufficient justification for the following remarks.

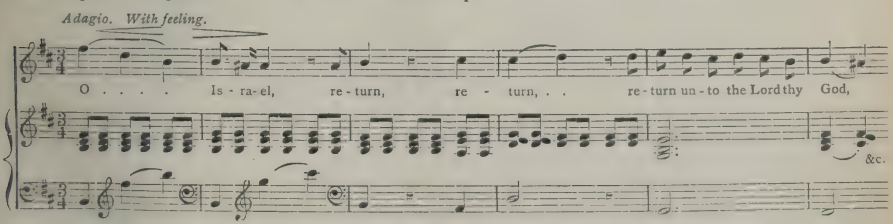
The Chapel Royal, of which Sullivan was a chorister from 1854 to 1857, proved to be an excellent training school for the young musician. English church music owes not a little to this traditional nursery. Have there not passed through it such distinguished Children as John Blow, Henry Purcell, William Croft, Thomas Attwood, John Goss, and Edward John Hopkins? And Sullivan himself would have been one of the first to acknowledge his indebtedness to the pure vocal atmosphere of that regal sanctuary in St. James's Palace.

Sullivan's first-published composition, written when he was thirteen years of age, was a sacred song bearing the following title:—

O ISRAEL. Sacred song composed and dedicated to Mrs. C. V. Bridgman (Tavistock, Devon) by ARTHUR SULLIVAN, chorister of H.M. Chapels Royal.

London: Sacred Music Warehouse, J. Alfred Novello, Music Seller by appointment to Her Majesty, 69, Dean Street, Soho, and 35, Poultry; also in New York at 389, Broadway [November, 1855].

Here is the opening strain of the voice part of this Opus 1:—



The young chorister had doubtless heard Jenny Lind sing 'Hear ye, Israel'! His next appearance in print is in 'The Accompanying Harmonies to the Hymnal Noted' (1857), edited by his ever kind friend, the late Rev. Thomas Helmore, then Master of the Children. To young Sullivan, Mr. Helmore entrusted the harmonization of four stately plain-song melodies.

During his Royal Academy of Music and Leipzig pupilage there are no evidences that Sullivan cultivated his church music muse in the matter of production. But upon his return from Leipzig, he, like many other young musicians, had to face the world with plenty of brains but not overmuch money. He accordingly took an organ appointment and became

'chief musician' of St. Michael's Church, Chester Square, Pimlico. The exact date of his appointment cannot be ascertained, but it was of course subsequent to 1860. Through the kindness of Mr. Edward Mills, Professor of Music at St. John's College, Battersea, we are enabled to give an interesting side light on Sullivan's St. Michael's organistship. Mr. Mills, who was his deputy at that time, writes as follows :—

Dear Mr. Editor.—I willingly respond to your request for a few particulars of Sullivan's organist period. In 1867 he invited me to assist him in his post at St. Michael's,

ARTHUR SULLIVAN IN THE UNIFORM OF A STUDENT AT THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

(From a Photograph kindly lent by Miss Helmore.)

Chester Square, where the services were then of a very plain type. The three-manual organ occupied three sides of a small west gallery, the choir was located in the front and central space. The boys were selected from the National School. The adult members were mostly drawn from the neighbouring police station, and attended in plain clothes when there was no 'constabulary duty to be done.' It was a long stretch to play on the swell of the St. Michael's organ, and Sullivan, who was certainly not a Longshanks, once lost his balance and brought his forearms down on to the Great manual with electrical effect! His style of playing was eminently legato and quiet, and scrupulously in keeping with the general feeling of the words; but when occasion required, the louder portions of the instrument would gradually be drawn upon for a well-conceived climax, such as is found in Haydn's tune

'Austria.' He rightly considered his thoughtful accompaniment of the service to be his strongest point as an organist, and which, by the way, caused him to be better remunerated than many a man of much greater powers of execution.

At this time (1867) a new church was being built by Mr. (afterwards Sir) Charles Freake in an open space off the Fulham Road, now occupied by Cranley Gardens and neighbourhood. Sullivan accepted the additional post of organist here, and the church was consecrated on St. Peter's day (June 29, 1867), the Chapel Royal boys helping in the anthem 'Praise the Lord,' by Goss, the music and its composer (his old master) being most dear to Sullivan. The organ here was placed in a chancel chamber. The choir was eventually surpliced and installed in the chancel, and the services gradually approached to the Cathedral type, which had always been the rule for the great festivals, on which occasions some of his anthems were sung for the first time from MS., such as 'Sing, O Heavens,' and 'I will mention.' His simple Kyrie of the Service in D was written at the organ at St. Peter's, and the whole service was frequently sung.

On one occasion Sir John Goss attended the evening service, and upon his coming up to the organ at the close, the choir sang his fine setting of the hymn, 'Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven.' Sullivan, in a little speech to the choir on that occasion, described this as the first hymn tune in existence. The choir then sang Sullivan's setting of 'The strain upraise.' This was followed by a few appropriate words from Goss, who kindly retaliated on his pupil!

On another occasion Sir Frederick Ouseley visited the church and extemporised a fugue on the opening phrase of the tune 'Hanover.' For two years Sullivan held the two appointments and I was his deputy. In 1869 he resigned that at St. Michael's, where he was succeeded by Mr. Franklin Taylor, but retained his post at St. Peter's until February, 1872, when he finally relinquished church organist duties.

His voluntaries, which were mostly drawn from vocal or instrumental works—Mendelssohn perhaps being the favourite—were as orchestral in colour as the small organ would admit, a soft 16 feet reed on the swell being the chief solo stop. Sullivan edited 'Church Hymns,' the first hymnal, as far as I am aware, that was furnished with expression marks.

The reference of Mr. Mills to the policemen tenors and basses at St. Michael's is interesting. At that time the late Sir Richard Mayne, then Chief Commissioner of the Metropolitan police, was a distinguished worshipper at the church, and this, doubtless, accounted for the presence of the constables in the choir. Mr. Joseph Bennett, in some happily expressed reminiscences of his late friend, Arthur Sullivan, thus furnishes another side-light on those organist days in the sixties. Mr. Bennett says:—

For some time during the early years of our acquaintance, Sullivan was organist at St. Michael's, Chester Square; his choir, as regards the adults in it, being made up of policemen. I sometimes accompanied him to rehearsal, and never ceased to admire the way in which he kept the constables at the boiling point of enthusiasm, as well as on the brink of laughter. The organist's good spirits were infectious, and though, as he himself sang in after years,

> Taking one consideration with another,
> A policeman's life is not a happy one,

I would be bound that the 'able-bodied' of St. Michael's were, during rehearsal, as cheerful as all the birds in the air. They could not help it, neither could their musical chief help it either, so ebullient was his good-nature, and so captivating his charm.

Whatever may have been the musical qualifications of the gentlemen forming this constabulary choir, it may naturally be assumed that those enthusiastic policemen were experts in the matter of the beat.

The first vicar of St. Peter's, Cranley Gardens, where Sullivan held his second and last organ appointment, was the Rev. and Honble. Francis C. Byng, now Earl of Strafford, who from 1865 to 1889 also held the office of Chaplain to the Speaker and subsequently became Chaplain to the Queen. The Earl of Strafford, in response to our request, has very kindly furnished his recollections of his former organist and attached friend, Arthur Sullivan, in the following words:—

Arthur Sullivan was all affection, sympathy, and kindness. I enclose you one of his comparatively recent letters to me. It may amuse you—his opinion of my intoning incapacity. I was present, by his invitation, at a dinner party he gave at his house—when Tennyson and Millais were present. Tennyson read 'The Window, or Songs of the Wrens,' Millais gave his notions of the illustrations which would be suitable, Sullivan suggesting the music. An unique and pleasurable privilege. I suggested to A. S. that I represented 'Ignorance' of all three—Poetry, Music, and Art!

Here is the 'intoning' letter to which the Earl of Strafford refers. It will be observed that it was written by Sullivan twenty-seven years after he had held his organistship at St. Peter's:—

Ashbridgewood, Wokingham,
Berks, 27 Sept., 1899.

My dear Strafford,

Rumour is not quite right in stating that I am writing a chapter myself for Lawrence's book.* But I let the author have a 'talk' with me a short time ago, and its matter will be embodied in a supplementary chapter. Your name, of course, had already been introduced in an early part of the book, but not as a great musician. There is, however, still time I think to rectify that.

I might graphically describe how, in endeavouring to intone, you led choir, congregation, and organist an exciting chase over a gamut of about two octaves, we vainly doing our utmost to follow you.

You were heroic—we never could run you to earth; that is, pin you down to the same note for two consecutive prayers or collects. I hope you are all well and flourishing. I long to see you all again. I shall be here three weeks longer. It is a small place I took for a couple of months to work in—hard and quietly.

Ever yours sincerely,
Arthur Sullivan.

The Tennyson-Millais dinner referred to by the Earl furnished an amusing anecdote which is thus recorded by Mr. Arthur Lawrence in his 'Life' of the composer, and told by Sir Arthur Sullivan in his own words:—

The first time Tennyson came to dine at my house, the door was opened to him by a parlourmaid who had been with us many years, and was like one of the family. She was fairly staggered by the appearance of the visitor, who, as will be remembered, always wore a deep, broad-brimmed black felt hat, and a black cape or short cloak which made him look exactly like a conspirator in an Italian or Spanish play. Our little party consisted of Tennyson, Millais, Francis Byng (now Earl of Strafford), myself, my mother, and another lady. We met to discuss the proposed work in collaboration, which afterwards was published without Millais' illustrations as 'The Window; or, the Loves of the Wrens.'

* 'Sir Arthur Sullivan.' By Arthur Lawrence. London: James Bowden. 1899.

When the guests had departed, Kate, the maid, said to me, 'Was that really the great poet, Master Arthur? [I was nearly thirty!] Well! he do wear clothes!' 'Of course,' I replied with subtle irony, 'all poets do. Besides,' I added, 'you forget that he is Poet-Laureate.'

She hadn't forgotten it, for she had never known it. Then after a slight pause, she said thoughtfully: 'What a queer uniform!'

But to return to matters more ecclesiastical. The following is an attempt at a complete list of Sullivan's sacred music, with some particulars in regard to the dedication of the anthems which may be of interest:—

Service.

Te Deum, Jubilate, and Kyrie in D.

Anthems.

O love the Lord. Dedicated to 'his esteemed master and friend,' Sir John Goss.

We have heard with our ears. Founded on the 8th Gregorian tone, 2nd ending. Dedicated to the Rev. T. Helmore.

O taste and see. Dedicated to the Rev. H. R. Haweis.

Rejoice in the Lord. Specially composed for the wedding of the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick, in Westminster Abbey, April 16, 1868. Dedicated to the Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick.

Sing, O heavens. Dedicated to the Rev. and Honble. Francis Byng (now Earl of Strafford).

O God, Thou art worthy to be praised. Specially composed for the wedding of Mr. Adrian Hope and Lady Ida Duff, at St. Andrew's Church, Wells Street, June 3, 1867. (This composition has two foot-notes: 'This Anthem is suitable for the Marriage Service,' and 'N.B.—A harp part can be had for this last chorus.')

I will worship towards Thy holy temple. Composed expressly for the 12th Commemoration of St. Michael's College, Tenbury. Dedicated to the Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart.

I will mention the loving-kindnesses of the Lord. Dedicated to Sir John Stainer.

I will sing of Thy power.

Hearken unto Me, My people.

Turn Thy face from my sins.

Who is like unto Thee. Dedicated to Sir Walter Parratt.

Wreaths for our graves. Composed by command of the Queen, and first sung at the Royal Mausoleum, Frogmore, December 14, 1897.

Sacred Part-songs, &c.

O Israel (Song).

Six Sacred Part-songs. Dedicated to Franklin Taylor.

I sing the birth was born to-night.
Lead, kindly Light.
Through sorrow's path.
Say, watchman, what of the night?
The way is long and dreary.
It came upon the midnight clear.

All this night bright angels sing
Upon the snow-clad earth
Hark! what mean those holy voices!
The strain upraise of joy and praise.
} Carols.

Arrangements, &c.

Turn Thee again, O Lord.
Mercy and truth are met together } Choruses from music of the Russian Church.

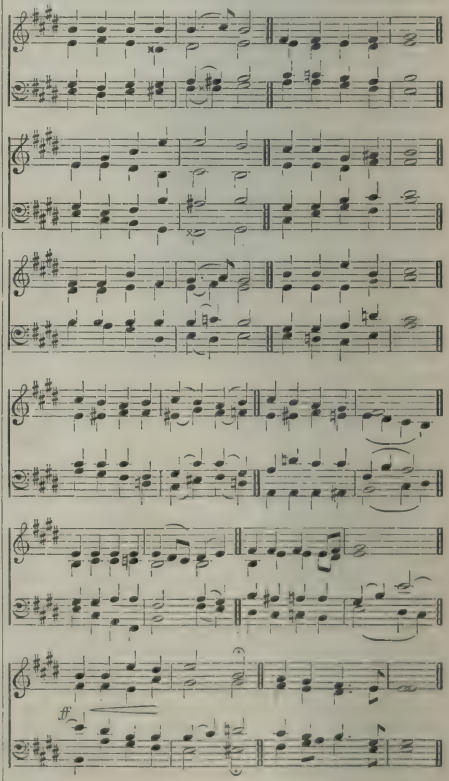
Completion of 'There is none like unto the God of Jeshurun.' Anthem by Sir John Goss.

The Son of God goes forth to war (St. Anne's tune arranged).

We think that we can point to the first rendering of this well-known arrangement of 'St. Anne's.' It formed the anthem at the opening of the organ in Quebec Chapel (now the Church of the Annunciation), Bryanston Street, London, on Sunday, July 5, 1868, when Sir (then Dr.) John Stainer presided at the new instrument at each of the three services on that day. 'The Son of God' was sung at the second and third services from proof copies. The Rev. R. Brown-Borthwick, the editor of the 'Supplemental Hymn and Tune Book,' in which Sullivan's arrangement first appeared, was then curate of Quebec Chapel.

Sullivan wrote about fifty hymn-tunes. These he contributed to various collections, including the 'Hymnary' (twelve tunes) and 'Church Hymns with Tunes.' He was the editor of the latter work, published in 1874.

There is no need to dwell on the wide popularity which his martial setting of 'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' has attained—not only in this country, but in Greater Britain and in America. (By the way, it first appeared in The Musical Times!) Its martial and easily 'picked up' melody, no less than the grit characteristic of its diatonic harmonies, has caused it to become a well-beloved church-song of the people. Such simple harmonic structure, however, has evidently failed to satisfy a certain American musician, judging from the following version, or perversion, of Sullivan's familiar strains:—



The name of this tinkering gentleman is Benjamin Blodgett!

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

THE LORD BISHOP OF DURHAM ON THE CULTURE OF MUSIC.

During an interval in a recent performance of 'The Messiah' given by the Auckland Musical Society at Bishop Auckland (which we record on p. 32), the President of the Society, the Lord Bishop of Durham (The Right Rev. Dr. Westcott)—after paying a high tribute to the beneficent labours of Mr. N. Kilburn, as conductor of the Society—spoke as follows:—

He was the truest benefactor who was able to lead, to introduce them to sources of pleasure which were ennobling; and amongst all those forms of pleasure, he would almost say the foremost was music. Music was essentially a social art, and the modern form of music—a fact he thought strangely overlooked—was both historically and characteristically a Christian Art. For what was its special mark? It was that it depended upon the combination of different elements for the production of its greatest effects. And their faith, as they knew, had for one of its master principles, Fellowship—the combination of men, widely different among themselves, for the fulfilment of common work. Modern music, then, he ventured to say, was one embodiment of a central Christian thought, distinguished from the ancient music by taking harmony and not melody as its master principle. They would all remember that in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, England was prominent for the skill of its people in vocal music. In those days every cultured man was supposed to be able to take his part in a madrigal, and he thought he was right in saying that even now the glee was characteristically an English form of composition. When he looked back upon the progress which music had made in his own time he could not help believing that music would again become a leading characteristic in our national life. And surely that was what we needed most earnestly to seek; for just in proportion as they were able to enjoy that which was ennobling and refining, all that was coarse and mean was overcome, and that was the work of music. Often, when it was his duty and his great joy to visit the elementary schools, and when he listened to the children entering on their elementary lessons with the keenest interest and using gladly the little knowledge which they had gained, he could not but desire most earnestly that those rude beginnings might be remembered, cherished, and cultivated, and that the keen interest of the children should in due time become the delight of riper years. When he saw there so many who were undoubtedly gifted with musical skill, he could not but reflect on what music had brought to them, and then to consider whether it might be possible that in some way they might help this work, begun so happily in children, to riper and richer results. It was not only a service well worth rendering to the country, but really a matter of national importance. Therefore it was well for them to remember that every gift and every capacity was offered for their stewardship—a trust which they should hold for those whom they loved.

THE ORGAN PART OF WESLEY'S 'WILDERNESS.'

Mr. John E. West writes:—

May I venture to call the attention of my brother organists to the fine organ accompaniment contained in the folio edition of Wesley's 'The Wilderness'? I am led to do this because I have reason to think that it is not so well-known as might be supposed. In this edition the bass solo, 'Say to them that are of a fearful heart,' and the quartet and chorus, 'For in the Wilderness,' are furnished with a special accompaniment written in three staves, a simplified version being added below in two staves and in smaller notes for the 'Pianoforte or Organ,' as stated by Wesley. But the octavo edition contains the simplified version only, and, unless the folio copy is used by the organist, the majority of Wesley's beautiful manual contrasts and other characteristic features are lost.

The worthy Doctor himself must have revelled in the masterly passages contained in the more elaborate version of the accompaniment to the bass solo, and obviously he intended this version to be used in preference to the simpler one.

The folio edition, moreover, furnishes an index to some of the special effects of organ-colour which Wesley desired—e.g., the passage at the words 'But the redeemed shall walk there' (p. 162 of the octavo edition) is marked Swell Sesquialtera (Swell to Mixtures, closed, is perhaps a good approximation of this effect). It is really surprising to find that the folio edition of 'The Wilderness,' with its necessary organ accompaniment, is not always used. Quite recently a well-known organist, who has frequently accompanied this typical Wesley composition, confessed to me that he did not even know of the existence of this indispensable edition!

The Wesleyan Methodist Church has taken initiatory steps in the direction of issuing a new hymnal, not, we venture to say, before it was wanted. A curious experience befel the musical editorship of its predecessor, issued in 1877. The editorial work was originally given to Dr. Gauntlett. He died during the progress of preparation, and then George Cooper was appointed. Cooper very soon followed Gauntlett into the silent land, whereupon Dr. E. J. Hopkins, who has learnt the secret of living long, came upon the scene as editor No. 3.

The old tune 'Helmsley' (so long associated with the hymn, 'Lo! He comes with clouds descending') was doubtless sung in many churches on Advent Sunday, in spite of the fact that it does not find a place in 'Hymns Ancient and Modern,' nor in some other Hymnals issued in recent years. 'Helmsley' was sung in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, on Advent Sunday, and also at the service held in the private chapel in Windsor Castle, at which the Queen attended. Some years ago, when the present private organist to the Queen commenced his duties, he inadvertently played the tune as set in 'Hymns Ancient and Modern'; but a request came from Her Majesty that the old tune should in future be used on Advent Sunday, and this has since been the custom. The old story that 'Helmsley' is derived from a hornpipe danced by Miss Catley in the 'Golden Pippin' has been refuted by that accurate investigator, the late Major G. A. Crawford (vide 'Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians,'—Art. 'Lo! He comes with clouds descending,' Vol. II., p. 161).

ORGAN RECITALS.

From a large number of programmes sent to us during the past month we select the following:—

Mr. Edwin H. Lemare, St. Margaret's, Westminster, and St. Barnabas, Pimlico (Intermezzo in D flat, Hollins). Mr. E. E. Chesteney, Congregational Church, Yarmouth (Sonata da camera, A. L. Peace). Mr. R. E. Parker, Parish Church, Wilmslow. Mr. James Brown, Parish Church, Bishopwearmouth. Mr. Allan Paterson, St. Paul's, Greenock (Introduction and Variations on an original theme, Hesse). Mr. James Tomlinson, St. James's, Whitechapel (Handel's Second Concerto). Mr. Roger Ascham, Feather Market Hall, Port Elizabeth (Grand Chœur, Hollins). Mr. James M. Preston, Presbyterian Church, Jarrow-on-Tyne (opening of new organ, built by Messrs. Abbott and Smith). Mr. H. Crackel, St. John the Evangelist, Masbrough (Sonata in F minor, Merkel). Mr. H. J. Taylor, Christ Church, Dover. Mr. P. K. de Villiers, Paddington Chapel (Con moto in B flat, Smart). Mr. W. Cary Bliss, St. Michael's, Lyndhurst. Mr. Arthur S. James, St. Peter's, Rickmansworth (an old English March, Purcell). Mr. Fountain Meen, Presbyterian Church, Stoke Newington (with Mr. T. E. Gatehouse as violinist). Mr. R. W. Strickland, College Street Chapel, Northampton (Overture, 'Athalia,' Handel). Mr. John Lowe, St. Columba's, Church of Scotland, Pont Street (Grand Solemn March in E flat, Smart). Mr. G. Bernard Gilbert, Town Hall, Stratford (Fantasia on 'St. Ann's' tune, E. Silas). Mr. H. M. J. Gibbon, St. John Baptist, Leamington Spa (English organ music—Toccata in A, Henry Purcell; Larghetto in F sharp minor, S. S. Wesley; Air with variations and final fugato, Henry Smart; Andante, Basil Harwood; and Toccata in A, W. T. Best). Mr. Alfred Hollins, St. George's Presbyterian Church, Darlington (Overture, No. 1, Hollins). Mr. F. Cunningham Woods, St. Mark's, Battersea Rise (Fugue in C, Buxtehude). Mr. J. A. Gaccon, Llandaff Cathedral (Sonata, No. 9, Rheinberger). Mr. T. Keighley, St. John's, Dukinfield (Sonata, No. 1, Guilmant). Mr. Walter Alcock, Holy Trinity, Sloane Street (Fantasia in E minor, Silas). Mr. Gatward, Bethlehem Cathedral, Pa., U.S.A. (Sullivan programme, including the 'In Memoriam' Overture).

SPECIAL SERVICES.

At St. Paul's Cathedral, Spohr's 'Last Judgment' (on the 4th ult.), which, under Sir George Martin's direction, and with Mr. Charles Macpherson at the organ, was rendered with all its wonted impressiveness.——The 'Last Judgment' was also given at Holy Innocents' Church, Hammersmith (on the 6th ult.), under the direction of Mr. Herbert Gresham (organist); and at Hornsey Parish Church (on the 12th ult.), with Mr. Herbert Baggs (assistant-organist) at the organ and Mr. Henry. J. Baker (organist) as conductor.——At Brixton Church, Parts 1 and 2 of Haydn's 'Creation' were given with full band and chorus on Sunday, the 16th ult.—one of the excellent series of oratorio services in this church—under Mr. Douglas Redman's conductorship.——Stainer's 'Daughter of Jairus' was rendered at the usual monthly musical service in the Parish Church, Portsmouth (2nd ult.), with Mr. R. H. Turner at the organ.——At Stoke Newington Presbyterian Church, Spohr's 'God, Thou art great,' was sung at the service of praise on Sunday, the 2nd ult., with Mr. David Watkins as conductor and Mr. W. E. Lane at the organ.

ORGANIST AND CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Guy C. Ambrose (organist) and Mr. A. J. Hopper (choirmaster), Berkeley Chapel, Mayfair.

Mr. Healey Willan, Christ Church, Wanstead.

Mr. Clement Bishop, St. Paul's Church, Tottenham.

Mr. John Robson, St. Simon's, South Shields.

Master E. Miller, Whittlebury Parish Church.

Mr. A. W. Hinton, Parish Church, Llangfwrog, Denbighshire.

Mr. George Hume, Brandon Street United Free Church, Motherwell, N.B.

Mr. W. J. Scruton, Clarence Road Free Christian Church, Kentish Town.

Mr. J. Turton Smith, St. Mary's, Pembroke.

Mr. Fred. W. Norcup (tenor), Westminster Abbey.

SIR JOHN STAINER ON OLD METRICAL PSALTERS.

On November 13 a paper was read before the Musical Association by Sir John Stainer, on 'The Musical Introductions found in certain Metrical Psalters.'

The subject selected by the reader seems, oddly enough, to have been almost entirely overlooked by musical historians. They do, it is true, barely mention the fact that musical instruction is affixed to certain Psalters, but they have failed to discover the interesting conclusions to be drawn from a careful examination of such prefatory matter. And this interest is not limited to English Metrical Psalters; much can be gathered from those of France, Germany, and Switzerland. Sir John Stainer commenced by dealing with early English Metrical Psalters. 'A short introduction to the science of musicke, made for such as are desirous to haue the knowledge thereof, for the singing of these Psalms,' is first found in the Sternhold and Hopkins of 1561. Only two copies of this date are known to exist—one in MS., the other in print. The former is one of the treasures of the library of Christ Church, Oxford, the latter is in private hands. The whole of this will be published in the Proceedings of the Association, although the reader only gave the gist of it. As it must have been written at least thirty-seven years before Morley's 'Plaine and easie Introduction,' it is of considerable value. The expression, 'signed keys,' is the early effort to obtain our useful term key-signature; but the three words, clef, key, and note, had not yet received their distinctive meanings, they are used indiscriminately. For example: the author calls the hexachordal names keys; he speaks of two keys an octave apart, meaning of course two notes; he also calls his C and F clefs keys. The old term, rules, is used for the lines of the stave, and they are reckoned from the top downwards. He mentions the voyce or note Fa, but later on he makes some effort to distinguish between them. This Introduction seems to have been found too difficult for the ordinary public, for in 1570 was issued a Psalter having the sol-fa names of each note printed by its side. This simple method had been adopted by Bourgeois fourteen years previously. In 1560 Davantes tried to simplify the art of singing tunes by using numbers to represent notes.

The lecturer distributed a facsimile of a page of Davantes from the copy kindly placed at his disposal by Mr. Alfred Littleton. He then explained the system of placing dots on either side of a number to show the nature of its hexachord; he showed that the attempt to keep a fixed number for each line and space, and yet to have a C clef on three different positions, led to practical difficulties and theoretical anomalies which were sufficient to account for the failure of the system. The French Metrical Psalter, by Pierre Valette, probably published in the same year as Davantes', had the sol-fa name of every note printed over it. Some of his directions are of a somewhat primitive type; he says that when one sees a sharp, it means that 'the voice is to be raised a little higher than usual.'

Sir John then made a digression on the subject of those Psalters in which the music is printed continuously over the words, not merely over the first stanza. This was not attempted in England (probably on account of the cost) until 1688, when one was printed by Everingham. In the preface to this, the author advocates a numerical system of notation founded on a fixed set of numbers, leading to the same absurd results as Davantes' attempt. But as the music in this particular English Psalter was printed in full, there was no necessity for using numbers in the body of the book.

The lecturer then continued to give interesting extracts from Psalters of various nationalities, which are too copious to be quoted here, but which will be of value to musical historians, owing to the full information he gave as to the titles, dates, and publishers of each. One striking fact was brought to the front—namely, the hopeless inability of the human mind to cast aside what is obsolete and useless. The hexachordal system rested over practical music like a nightmare, and yet, when an extended compass of the scale and the use of keys having three or four sharps or flats had become common, theorists and teachers made strong efforts to make the old system fit into the new, or the new into the old. The emancipation from the chains of hexachordal sol-faing took place in this country about the middle of the seventeenth century, when the fa sol la fa sol la mi fa method became gradually established. This held its sway until about fifty years ago, when the much inferior fixed do was imported from the Continent. Though practically a novelty, it was at once accepted by many as of decent antiquity, and is still called the 'old system' by those who ought to know better. But we must return to the remarks of Sir John Stainer, who had carried us through the story of Introductions and Instructions for more than two centuries, and had at last reached the period when our English Psalmody, following the bad example given previously in France, began to be overloaded with graces, a due explanation of which appears in nearly every Psalm book towards the close of the eighteenth century. But while lamenting over this, Sir John found hope in the fact that forms of art, when decaying, leave a residue from which springs something more useful, or beautiful, or at least better adapted to its purpose. In this respect, Art follows the laws of organic nature.

HENRY RUSSELL.

The composer of 'Cheer, boys, cheer' has sung his last song on this side of the grave. At the fine old age of eighty-eight Henry Russell drew his last breath on the 8th ult., at his residence, Howley Place, Maida Vale. Very remarkable was his career. Born at Sheerness, on Christmas Eve, 1812, he appeared on the stage as a mite of three in a travelling theatrical company that visited the Kentish port. He began to study the pianoforte at the age of six. For a time he was a boy in a chemist's shop, when he took sixpenny lessons in music from a man in Seven Dials! In 1828 young Russell appeared at the Surrey Theatre (then under Elliston's management) at a salary of thirty shillings per week. The playbills record that he sang in Weber's 'Abu Hassan' and such songs as 'The Death of Nelson' and 'The Pilgrim of Love.'

Russell became an outdoor student—at the age of fourteen—at the Bologna Conservatoire. He subsequently studied under Rossini at Naples, and met in Italy Balfe, Bellini, Donizetti, and other musical celebrities. Upon his return to England he was for a short time chorus-master at Her Majesty's Theatre. Wishing, however, to put a little more money into his pocket, Russell started his one-man entertainments which became so immensely popular. He selected Canada—a very wild country seventy years ago—and America as a possible field for his operations, and landed at Montreal after a voyage that lasted nine weeks. Some of his Canadian experiences were very amusing. At one outlandish place he came across a shanty to which was affixed a signboard having these words:

GINGER BEAR SOLD HEAR ALSO GOODE STUMBLING FOR ORSES AND GOODE BEDS.

For a time Russell was organist of a Presbyterian Church, but he soon began that wandering life which brought him so much fame. From 1833 to 1841 he travelled in Canada and America, singing his well-known songs: 'Cheer, boys, cheer'; 'There's a good time coming, boys'; 'A life on the ocean wave'; 'Oh! woodman, spare that tree,' and many others, with extraordinary success.

In 1842 Russell returned to England, and began his entertainments in his native land at the Hanover Square Rooms (the first, March 8, 1842). Curiously enough, the advertisement in the Musical World of that time stated 'Mr. Henry Russell (from America) has the honour to announce that he will give two vocal entertainments . . . he will give his most popular compositions, consisting of dramatic and descriptive scenes and cantatas; also illustrative songs and characteristic ballads.' His receipts were as much as £117 per night, and the remarkable success which had attended him in the far West was repeated in the British Isles.

Henry Russell's songs became household words. In his entertaining book, 'Cheer, boys, cheer,' he has related some amusing incidents connected with his famous songs. After singing 'Carlo, the Newfoundland dog' (suggested by the saving a child from drowning while crossing the Atlantic), two men rose in the gallery, and one of them, after clearing his throat, addressed the singer as follows: 'Good evenin', Mr. Russell, this is my friend Joe Taylor' (whereupon Mr. Joe Taylor bowed two or three times). 'Was that dog yourn?' 'No, it was not,' Russell replied. 'Did he save the child?' 'He did.' 'Wall,' he exclaimed, 'I should like a pup. Could you get us one?' Again, following upon the singing of 'Woodman, spare that tree,' a gentleman in the audience rose and excitedly asked, 'Was the tree spared, sir?' 'It was,' came the reply. 'Thank God for that,' he answered, with a sigh of heartfelt relief. At Hanley, at the time of much distress and destitution in the Pottery district, Russell gave his entertainment in aid of the impoverished potters. After he had sung 'There's a good time coming,' there was overwhelming enthusiasm, which reached its culminating point when a man rose in the gallery, and, in exciting tones, shouted, 'Muster Russell, can you fix the toime?'

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Barrauds, Ltd.)

Thus did Henry Russell furnish many an evening of pure enjoyment to thousands of listeners who hung on his lips while, with wonderfully clear articulation and dramatic feeling, he sang the songs which have immortalised his name. Of these the Admiralty paid him the compliment of ordering that 'A life on the ocean wave' should be used as one of the regimental marches of the Royal Marines, and 'Cheer, boys, cheer'—his best known song—has been most aptly designated 'the anthem of optimism.'

The remains of Mr. Russell, who had lived in retirement for thirty-five years, are interred in Kensal Green Cemetery, where so many interesting people in literature, art, and music have found their last resting-place. Two of his sons have become distinguished—Mr. Clark Russell, the celebrated novelist, and Mr. Landon Ronald Russell, the composer known as 'Landon Ronald.'

REVIEWS.

CHURCH MUSIC.

Communion Service.

Thomas Adams, in D.

Te Deum.

E. W. Naylor, in E flat.
Edward German, in F.
Edwin H. Lemare, in F and E flat.

Benedictus.

G. H. Westbury, in A.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis.

Hamilton Clarke, in B flat.
Henry Gadsby, in D.
Battison Haynes, arranged to Gregorian Tones (also Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei).
B. Luard Selby, in C.
John E. West, in F.
Thomas Adams (Three Settings to Gregorian Tones).

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The Communion Service may be warmly commended. It is devout and beautiful music and, well sung, would be most impressive. The Sanctus is most effective, rising from a soft piano to a fine climax delivered fortissimo. The chorus parts in the Benedictus are surmounted by a soprano solo, with exquisite result at the close; the Agnus Dei contains an expressive passage for tenor solo, and the Gloria is admirably conceived and written.

The voice parts of Dr. E. W. Naylor's Te Deum in E flat are in unison throughout, and the setting is suitable to choirs of the most modest abilities. Considerable skill is shown in the organ accompaniment, whereby variety and contrast are happily secured.

The setting of the Te Deum, by Mr. Edward German, is somewhat elaborate in design. The composer makes no hesitation in repeating the words, and the organ accompaniment shows his confidence in the singers to hold their own. The vocal parts are easy to read, but demand adequate rhythmical equipment. Solo passages are written for soprano, alto, tenor, and bass, and the pianissimo conclusion is very impressive.

The Te Deum in F, by Mr. E. H. Lemare, has met with an acceptance so wide that it is unnecessary to say more than to recommend it to those to whom it is unknown, especially when a setting of moderate difficulty is required for festival occasions.

The same composer's Te Deum in E flat, written for the thanksgiving service of the House of Commons at St. Margaret's, Westminster, June 20, 1897, is laid out on a somewhat extensive scale, with an expansion of the vocal portion, at the close, into eight parts. The work opens in an imposing manner by a quotation of the first phrase of 'Ein' feste Burg,' and the character thus suggested is admirably sustained in what follows. The sixteenth and seventeenth verses are set for a baritone soloist and provide an effective contrast to the massiveness of the other portions. Although the music demands a large and well-trained choir it presents no exceptional difficulties.

Choirmasters who have adopted Mr. Westbury's setting of the Te Deum in A should make their choirs acquainted with the Benedictus from the pen of the same composer. It is also in A and is a companion work in intention and style. Simplicity and effectiveness are happily combined. Mr. Hamilton Clarke's setting of the Evening Canticles will interest a choir of well-trained voices, the vocal parts being melodious and independent; choirmasters who do not know the Evening Service in D, by Henry Gadsby, will here find an easy and bright setting for voices in unison with organ accompaniment.

The arrangement of the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis to Gregorian tones, by the late Battison Haynes, is intended to be supplementary to the well-known series by Sir John Stainer. In the harmonic treatment the church modes have not been adhered to, dominant and diminished sevenths being freely introduced, but when the harmony is assigned to the voices a section of the choir sing the plain-song to lead the congregation. The setting shows the skill of the practised musician in a marked manner. The music of the Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei is, as might be expected, extremely graceful and expressive, and will be found easy both to sing and play.

Mr. Luard Selby is one of our most earnest church musicians, and the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C fully sustain his reputation. Written for one of the Salisbury Diocesan festivals, the service is consequently laid out for a large and well trained choir. It should be added, however, that the music in itself is not difficult. Its demands are more on the intelligence of the singers than on executive skill. A distinctive feature is the variety of the vocal treatment, the voices being written for responsively.

Mr. John E. West's Evening Service in F is chiefly designed for voices in unison with harmonized organ accompaniment. Effective contrast is obtained by occasional four-part vocal harmony and by the sections of the choir having certain passages assigned exclusively to them.

Mr. Adams has made fitting use of the Gregorian tones. The vocal parts are cleverly treated, though some lovers of the old church modes may object to the voices occasionally singing in four-part harmony; but it must be admitted that the procedure provides effective contrast. The organ accompaniment is simple and well varied.

Novello's Anthem Book. Books 2, 3, 4, and 5.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

This large instalment of a useful publication fully comes up to the standard of the initial book. Selecting one anthem from the twelve contained in each book, we find the following: 'O Saviour of the world' (Goss), 'Seek ye the Lord' (Varley Roberts), 'Let us now go' (Hopkins), and 'Oh! for a closer walk with God' (Myles Foster). If, to slightly alter an old proverb, anthems speak louder than words, there is nothing more to be said in favour of this 'Collection of popular anthems for festival and general use throughout the year.'

VOCAL PART-MUSIC.

Firm in her native strength. By A. C. Mackenzie.

God save the Queen. Arranged by Henry Hiles, Sir Michael Costa, and Sir Frederick Bridge.

Flora's Queen. Madrigal. By J. Stainer.

The Laughing Waves. By Reginald Somerville.

A Love Symphony. By J. Arthur Clegg.

(Novello's Part-Song Book.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The words of 'Firm in her native strength' are by Mr. Arthur C. Ainger and are of a patriotic character, but they happily avoid the boastful spirit which disfigures many versifications on England's greatness. Sir Alexander Mackenzie's music is in fine keeping with the dignity of the poem, and in its effective contrasts and fine climaxes shows the hand of a master. The part-song should be often heard this winter for it sympathetically reflects the spirit of our times.

There has been of late, and there probably will be in the near future, much singing of our 'illiterate' National Anthem, and consequently vocal arrangements of the familiar hymn will always be in demand. In regard to the three arrangements of 'God save the Queen' now before us, Dr. Hiles begins his version with tenors and basses in unison, but in the third bar these male voices sing in four parts. The second verse is led off by the sopranos and altos and there is some effective contrapuntal writing. This style is maintained with rich harmonic effects in the third verse. The arrangement by Costa, first published in November, 1883, is too well known to call for comment. Its chief merit is its simplicity, and this is probably the secret of its popularity. That by Sir Frederick Bridge is 'for special use in church' and contains the altered form of the second verse as amended by Dean Hole. In this verse the varied harmony used by the Westminster Abbey organist is taken from Attwood's anthem 'I was glad,' performed at the Coronation of Queen Victoria.

That the art of madrigal writing has in no wise been lost is shown by Sir John Stainer's 'Flora's Queen.' The words by his son, Mr. J. F. R. Stainer, although referring to our Queen, cleverly suggest the style in vogue at the time when England's other great queen reigned. The music is still more faithful to the days of long ago, chords of the thirteenth and modern harmonic progressions being eschewed. It should be added that the madrigal is laid out for first and second sopranos, alto, tenor, and first and second basses.

'The Laughing Waves,' as described by Mr. Shapcott Wensley, and allied to music by Mr. Reginald Somerville, will provide bright moments for those who may give them attention. This is one of those part-songs which are as pleasing to sing as to listen to, being instinct with life and health.

The words of 'A Love Symphony,' written by Mr. Arthur O'Shaughnessy, relate the devotion of a lover to whom the flowers, the birds, and the sea seem to sing of his mistress. The daintiness of the lyric is admirably reflected in Mr. Clegg's music, which gained the well deserved prize in the Morecambe Festival part-song competition of last year. The music requires neat and crisp singing, but will repay careful rehearsal.

RE-OPENING OF COLSTON HALL, BRISTOL.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

A city without a public hall proportionate to its size is poorly equipped, and Bristol has been in that case since a fire, originating in an adjacent clothing factory, destroyed the rendezvous of its inhabitants—the building wherein nine triennial festivals, and concerts innumerable, had taken place. But the 'devouring element,' though it consumed much property, really came as a blessing in disguise. The first Colston Hall was not an ideal place of its kind. It held only 2,500 people, and, for festival and concert-giving purposes, that is not enough. Then its acoustics were poor, and its immediate approaches inconvenient. Altogether the hall was not worthy of a great and flourishing city. But if Bristol did but poorly with what it then possessed, it could only do much worse with nothing, and, after the fire, everybody looked to the Colston's Hall Company for the spirit necessary to the creation of a larger and better building. In this matter there was no disappointment. The Company rose to the occasion, purchased more land, and on the enlarged site put up an edifice of the most commodious character. The new hall accommodates 4,000 persons on the floor and in its double gallery; the acoustics are excellent, and ample provision has been made for the comfort of audience and performers alike. Now, therefore, Bristol can go ahead again as a festival city, and take its place in line with Birmingham, Leeds, and Sheffield.

The hall was opened on Tuesday, November 27, when the Company, represented by Mr. Lewis Fry, in the absence through illness of the chairman, Mr. Herbert Thomas, received a large number of guests, including what reporters sometimes call 'the élite of city and suburban society.' Who were there, and in what the formal proceedings consisted, need not be told in this place, nor is it necessary to enlarge upon the delights of the ball with which the festivity closed. But certain musical doings are in our province and may not be passed over. There was, to begin with, the formal presentation, by Sir W. H. Wills, Bart., of the new Willis organ, which he had caused to be built at a cost of £5,000. Concerning the instrument itself we cannot give an opinion, since only part of it was in working order at the inaugural ceremony. Enough now that what was heard held out satisfactory promise as to the rest. But none the less heartily for its incompleteness was the gift received by the donor's fellow-citizens.

In the course of the evening the well-known capableness of Bristol vocal societies received striking demonstration, and contributed much to the pleasure of the more musical guests. There are three such societies in the forefront of Bristolian art. These appeared in order of seniority. The Madrigal Society led the way, under Mr. D. W. Rootham's command, singing 'In going to my lonely bed' and 'Sir Patrick Spens.' Next came the Royal Orpheus Glee Society, under Mr. George Riseley, charged with a mission to deliver 'Ossian's Hymn to the Sun' (Goss) and Viotta's 'Dying Child.' Lastly came the Society of Bristol Gleemen, marshalled by Mr. Walter J. Kidner, under whose direction were performed Hatton's 'Warrior's Song' and Callcott's 'Peace to the Souls of the Heroes.' We are not going to speak comparatively of the work done by the three organisations. That would be 'odious' in a special degree. But it was good to hear such fine examples of English vocal compositions as those above named, and most creditable to Bristol that the three societies so well discharged their respective tasks. Amid much Baal worship in music, and going astray after doubtful gods, here was evidence of the true faith and culture. It should be added that Mrs. Mary Davies contributed various solos in the course of the musical proceedings, which were thus pleasantly varied.

The 'opening' was continued on the 29th and two following days by a series of festival performances, under the direction of Mr. Riseley; the Bristol Choral Society (650 voices) supplying the chorus, and an efficient orchestra of eighty performers answering for the instrumental department. Nothing new appeared in the programme—nothing, indeed, but works long on the familiar list. This was a prudent arrangement; the occasion not being a festival, or subject to festival responsibilities, but rather one for a series of popular gatherings which well-known music could best promote.

'Elijah' led the way, and, of course, Mendelssohn's oratorio drew a great audience, who, though curious about the new building, were none the less ready to welcome, and, we were going to say, applaud the music. But there was no applause, save at the end of each part. Othello sent word to the street minstrels that he preferred music 'which might not be heard.' There is applause to match this, expressed through silent and deep attention. So much did 'Elijah' and its interpreters receive. Of course the performance was capital, and worthy of the occasion. At once Mr. Riseley's choir made a mark. It did not, we understand, muster in full strength, inasmuch as the space at command avails for no more than 500 singers; but the number actually present sufficed for all the effect desired. The Bristol voices are not specially powerful, but they are of excellent quality, flexible and well managed. Hence the favourite choruses came out well; those of the more gentle order being satisfactory beyond common. The solo singers included Madame Medora Henson, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. H. Beaumont, and Mr. Watkin Mills. Regarding the competency of these artists to deal with such familiar music it is quite needless to speak.

The evening concert brought Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' and the finest audience of the week, the hall presenting a very brilliant appearance. It is likely that many tickets had been bought in expectation that the composer would conduct, according to announcement. In one sense, Sir Arthur was present—that is to say, in the sorrowing memory of all lovers of music. In another and more material sense he was absent indeed. As though to make up for this as far as possible, Mr. Riseley gave a really splendid performance of the 'Legend'—a performance marred only, as far as we observed, by a slight lowering of the pitch in 'O gladsome Light.' The rest was beautiful in its technical perfection and appropriate expression. We have rarely enjoyed so good a rendering of the lovely work. To this general excellence the solo vocalists contributed in no mean degree. Touched by the spirit of emulation, they sang their very best, and all due praise must be given to Madame Henson, Miss Wilson, Mr. W. Green, and Mr. Watkin Mills. Following the cantata came a short miscellaneous selection, including Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' Overture, Stanford's 'Last Post,' and certain numbers from Gounod's 'Mors et Vita.' The overture enabled the orchestra to give a good account of itself.

On Friday morning the proceedings were not so satisfactory as those just noticed, and Gounod's 'Redemption' left, in its performance, a good deal to desire. Yet the executants were those who had previously done very good work! There is no accounting for such lapses. Everybody knows they do occur at the best regulated concerts; why or how is a mystery. In the present case, the choir repeatedly failed to keep the pitch. It was Birmingham over again, but happily in a much milder sense than the Midland city's disastrous attempt on 'St. Gerontius.' Even the soloists, or some of them, were infected by the uncertain tonality, and thus the execution of Gounod's music was not one to look back upon with entire complacency. In the evening, which was devoted to the ubiquitous Wagner, matters righted themselves, and a large audience enjoyed a spirited performance of 'The Flying Dutchman' (overture and last two acts), followed by a number of excerpts which, possibly, are not so hackneyed in Bristol as in London. Madame Emily Squire, Miss E. Leslie, Mr. F. Harford, and Mr. Andrew Black were among the 'principals' on this occasion.

'The Messiah' was given on Saturday morning, and the series closed in the evening with a miscellaneous concert, in which the orchestra and chorus were assisted by the band of the Coldstream Guards. Miss Squire and Mr. Arthur Wills, the soloists, did good service, and a varied assortment of 'odds and ends' for chorus and orchestra, including the 'Dies Iræ' from Berlioz's 'Requiem,' engaged the attention of a very satisfied audience. So ended a musical 'inauguration' which, generally speaking, did honour to an important civic event, and reflected great credit upon Mr. Riseley and the musical resources of Bristol.

MR. EDWARD LLOYD'S FAREWELL CONCERT.

Multitudinous was the throng—in number seven thousand—that found its way to the Royal Albert Hall on the 12th ult. to hear Edward Lloyd sing his last song. The occasion was almost unique. Here was a man who for thirty years has steadfastly served the public, giving of his best—and a wonderful best it has been—and affording pleasure to countless hearers. The British public, in spite of the opprobrium cast upon them by Thomas Carlyle, have warm hearts, and they are not forgetful of those who have, as Mr. Lloyd himself has said, 'pursued the even tenor of their ways.' Again: the great tenor leaves the concert platform in the plenitude of his powers—no deterioration of his wonderful vocal organ is in the least degree apparent. Yes, Edward Lloyd retires with a clean bill—of health, means, and a magnificent voice.

In recording the details of this Farewell Concert the place of honour must, of course, be given to him who bade his adieu on this eventful occasion. Including encores, he sang five times: The 'Prize' Song (Wagner's 'Die Meistersinger'); 'Lend me your aid' (Gounod's 'La Reine de Saba'); 'I'll sing thee songs of Araby' (Clay's delightful song); 'The Holy City' (accompanied by the composer, Mr. 'Stephen Adams,' otherwise Mr. Michael Maybrick); and 'When other lips' (Balfe), with its appropriate refrain, 'Then you'll remember me.' All these favourite songs from Mr. Lloyd's large répertoire were sung, it is hardly necessary to say, in a manner which gave intense satisfaction to the huge audience.

That Mr. Lloyd was well supported on this leave-taking occasion it is only necessary to mention the names of those who lent him their aid. Dr. Richter, a host in himself, conducted his orchestra in Wagner's 'Rienzi' Overture and 'Kaisermarsch,' and showed his master-hand in orchestrally accompanying the hero of the day not only in Wagner, but in Gounod! The vocalists included Madame Albani, Miss Evangeline Florence, Miss Sarah Berry, and Miss Clara Butt (who sang two of Edward Elgar's 'Sea Pictures,' conducted by the composer); Mr. Ben Davies, Mr. H. Lane Wilson, the veteran Charles Santley (who sang Sullivan's 'Thou'rt passing hence, my brother,' with orchestral accompaniment), and Mr. Plunket Greene (who gave a fine and characteristically pathetic rendering of Frederick Clay's weird setting of Charles Kingsley's words 'The Sands o' Dee'). There must also be added the assistance rendered by Mons. Johannes Wolff (violin) and that clever young pianist, Miss Gertrude Peppercorn; while the conductors and accompanists, in addition to those already mentioned, were Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, Mr. H. R. Bird, Mr. F. A. Sewell, and Mr. Percy Starnes.

After Mr. Lloyd had delivered his last message, 'Then you'll remember me,' a remarkable scene occurred. Headed by Madame Albani and vigorously seconded by Miss Clara Butt (Mrs. Kennerley Rumford), several of the artists came forward, leading Mr. Lloyd on to the platform. Madame Albani then started 'For he's a jolly good fellow,' in which many of the audience joined with right good will. This was the signal for still greater enthusiasm, which so encouraged Madame Albani and Miss Butt that, with hands orthodoxically clasped in true Scotch style, these two ladies, with Edward Lloyd, Ben Davies, and Kennerley Rumford, sang 'Auld Lang Syne,' the excited and highly amused audience adding their vox populi to those of the distinguished hand-clasped vocalists. It was a thoroughly English episode, as spontaneous as it was hearty—an incident which will not easily be forgotten by those who were present, and certainly not by the hero of the hour—Edward Lloyd.

A word of hearty congratulation is due to Mr. Vert—a veritable Napoleon of managers—who has been Mr. Lloyd's invaluable agent for many years.

PRESENTATION TO DR. McNAUGHT.

A goodly company of present and former members of the Bow and Bromley Institute Choir and Orchestra foregathered in social intercourse on the evening of the 14th ult., at Bromley Vestry Hall. The specific object of the reunion was to furnish Dr. McNaught with some tangible proof of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the Society which he founded twenty-five years ago and of which he has just resigned the conductorship. After the performance of a selection of music—which included an excellent In memoriam rendering of Sullivan's 'O hush thee, my babie'—speeches were delivered by Mr. Andrew Ashcroft (Dr. McNaught's first teacher and a devoted lover of Bach), Mr. J. Williams Benn, of the London County Council, and Mr. Leonard C. Venables—all old friends and true. Many conductors of East End choirs were also present.

Mr. E. W. Coney then read an address—to which 176 signatures were attached—containing expressions of personal esteem and gratitude to Dr. McNaught, their late conductor, for all the enthusiasm, energy, and skill he has thrown into the work of conducting the Choir and Orchestra for the period of a quarter of a century, and the high artistic attainment which has resulted therefrom. 'To all of us,' the address records, 'the recollection of our connection with the music of the Bow and Bromley Institute under your guidance will remain one of lasting pride and delight.' An accompaniment to this address was provided in the presentation (by Mr. J. G. Rendall on behalf of the subscribers) of a fitted travelling dressing case to Dr. McNaught, and an additional accompaniment in the form of a gold necklet to Mrs. McNaught, in acknowledgment of her valued services 'in the somewhat tedious and thankless task of accompanist at rehearsals.'

Dr. McNaught, in reply, expressed his heartfelt thanks and those of Mrs. McNaught for these gratifying tokens of regard, and his high appreciation of the kind words contained in the address, which he should greatly value. He warmly thanked the members for having so long furnished him with such a splendid field wherein he had been able to cultivate that experience which is of the greatest possible value to him as an adjudicator in choral competitions. Dr. McNaught incidentally mentioned that he had sat in judgment upon nearly 400 choirs during the year which has just closed, and gave this as an indication that up and down the country the cultivation of choral music is by no means on the wane, though there are evidences that it is not in so healthy a condition as it should be in London. It may be that for part-songs and madrigals we should have to return to the old plan of meeting for the sake of practice rather than with a view to performance. In referring to the circumstances that compelled him to resign his conductorship of the Society, Dr. McNaught, in a heartily cheered sentence, held out some hope of their coming together again as executants and conductor. The arrangements of this most successful gathering were admirably carried out by Mr. George H. Lawrence.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

'JUDAS MACCABÆUS.'

THE performance of Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus,' on the 6th ult., by the Royal Choral Society, under the direction of Sir Frederick Bridge, fully sustained the prestige of this famous body of choristers. It is doubtful if the numbers 'O Father,' 'Disdainful of danger,' and 'See the conquering hero' have ever been more finely rendered, with regard to wealth of tone, magnificent precision of attack, and, what is equally important, crisp cessation of sound. Miss Esther Palliser, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. Watkin Mills did full justice to the familiar solos, and able assistance was given by Miss Maggie Purvis and Mr. William Fell. Immediately before the interval there was sung, in memory of Sir Arthur Sullivan, his setting of Cardinal Newman's hymn 'Lead, kindly Light.' This was rendered, unaccompanied, with a tenderness of expression and exquisite finish that, under the circumstances, was deeply affecting.

THE HON. NORMAN GROSVENOR.

ON the 4th ult. a concert was given at Steinway Hall of the compositions of the late Norman Grosvenor, who died in 1898. He was a son of Lord Ebury, and after retiring from the Army he became M.P. for Chester and Director of the Sun Company and remained all his life an ardent sportsman, giving evidence of taste and abilities rarely met with in a musician. He was, in effect, an 'amateur' in the sense in which Borodine was and Rimsky Korsakoff is an amateur, in that he combined music with other, apparently, contradictory pursuits. But he was not an amateur in the sense that he failed to take art seriously or studied it casually. Indeed, his works give evidence of high ideals, of an extremely fastidious and self-critical taste, and of much conscientious work and a keen sense of proportion. Moreover, he always wrote sincerely. But the most marked characteristic is a gentle elegance, which is very attractive and piquant in its combination with a modern idiom not usually associated with things either gentle or elegant. His matter is always graceful and serene; his manner often that of those who suffer from the maladie du siècle, from which he was quite free. If he ever went through a period of storm and stress, there is nothing in the works chosen for performance to show it. The connected pieces were two movements from a trio for pianoforte, violin and violoncello ('Rustic Wedding'), which are pleasant and cheerful, and three movements from an unfinished Serenade for two pianofortes, harmonium (in lieu of wood-wind), strings and drum. The unusual combination is due to the special occasion for which the work was written, and it was left unfinished at his death. The first movement is broad and dignified and its fine climax is suggestive of the methods of Sir Hubert Parry; the slow movement has a continuous flow of grateful melody, and the minuet is full of vivacity. Though less attractive at first hearing, a set of Variations for two pianofortes shows perhaps more solid attainments. The vocal music of Mr. Grosvenor is of varying merit and the solos sung by Madame Eldée appeared less successful than the part-songs. Of the four trios sung by Miss Delia Mason, Miss Gleeson-White, and Dr. W. Aikin, the best was a setting of Austin Dobson's 'As for the pipe.' This is delightfully melodious and very happily reflects the old-world grace of the words without any affectation or pedantry, and it is very gratefully written for the voices. The artists engaged included, besides those already named, Dr. H. Walford Davies (who conducted the Serenade), Mr. D. F. Tovey, Mr. W. H. Squire, and Mr. Hubert Hunt. Mr. Percy Pitt accompanied.

MRS. NORMAN O'NEILL'S CONCERTS.

TWO exceptionally interesting chamber concerts were given at Steinway Hall by Mrs. Norman O'Neill—Madame Adine Rückert—herself a very able pianist of Madame Schumann's school. At each of them unfamiliar English works were played, and it is pleasant to record that each justified its inclusion in the list. At the first concert, on November 23, we heard a pianoforte trio by Mr. Norman O'Neill, who has studied mainly at Frankfurt, under Professor Knorr. It is a work which, while giving proof of the most solid acquirements, is full of charm and melody. A set of variations and a fugue for pianoforte, by the same composer, played at the second concert, on the 6th ult., gave a still higher impression of his gifts and knowledge. A pianoforte quartet by Mr. Ernest Walker is also full of ability, but in it there is a trace of the desire to display learning for its own sake, a thing not uncommon in modern English chamber music. It may be a fault on the right side, but it is a fault. A pianoforte trio by Cyril Meir Scott, played at the second concert, introduced us to a composer of real promise. He is a native of Birkenhead, and has also studied under Professor Knorr, and is barely twenty. The trio is melodious, and, while avoiding any extravagances, is original in the best sense. The best movement is the first, which is full of vigour. Its most striking feature is a gloomy Tschaikowsky-like Coda, introduced by a violin solo, which comes when it is least expected, yet fits perfectly into the scheme. The performers, who did the work ample justice, were Mrs. Norman O'Neill, Herr Hugo Hundt (violin), and Mr. Herbert Walenn (violoncello).

DR. LIERHAMMER'S RECITAL.

DR. THEODORE LIERHAMMER, of Vienna, who gave a recital at St. James's Hall on the 10th ult., is a Lieder singer of exceptional ability. He has a voice of ample but not unusual dimensions, and of agreeable though not exceptionally charming quality. He makes his effect by the skill with which he phrases and interprets. He has the power of varying his tone colour; and, above all, he has a particularly good mezza-voce. Moreover, he has the secret (indispensable to a real singer) of seeming to let his voice, so to speak, hover just over a phrase and touch it almost imperceptibly. The only adverse criticism that can be made is that he is (to judge by his programme) unduly fond of melancholy songs. But he can sing music of a widely different kind with great success too, as witness his powerful rendering of Hermann's grimly humorous 'Drei Wanderer.' He sang Liszt's 'Es muss ein Wunderbares sein' with exquisite charm and had to repeat it, and won a great success too in Hildach's charming song, 'In der Heimath.' Mr. Henry Bird found, in accompanying him, a task after his heart, and Miss Marguerite Elzy, who played some pianoforte solos, improved the excellent impression her first appearance had made.

GOLDMARK'S 'CRICKET ON THE HEARTH.'

THE first performance in England of Goldmark's 'Heimchen am Herd' ('The Cricket on the Hearth') was given at the Brixton Theatre, by the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, on Friday, November 23. The adaptation from Dickens's story is the work of Herr A. M. Willner, and the English version (which is above the average of such things) is by Mr. Percy Pinkerton.

It must at once be premised that the music of Goldmark must not be judged from a Dickensian standpoint. The libretto is far less homely than the story, and the music follows Herr Willner rather than Dickens. The Cricket is transformed into a fairy, who has very near relations in pantomime, and she has a chorus of attendant crickets with her. John Peerybingle and Dot, Mr. Tackleton, May, and Edward Plummer remain, but Caleb Plummer does not figure in the libretto.

The music gets still farther away from Dickens. Simplicity and naïveté are the last qualities that can be claimed for it. And, indeed, as Goldmark calls his work an opera, he would seem to claim for it high dramatic qualities. And the claim may be ungrudgingly allowed.

The whole opera leaves a very pleasant impression, and it has the great merit of improving as it goes on. Probably Goldmark, at the beginning, felt the simple subject strange to him; he is so used to move in gorgeous Eastern temples, and amidst the glittering pageantry of courts. A strange feature of the music is that while it is full of reminiscences—which only just escape being plagiarism, and seem to lay all music under contribution with Catholic impartiality — the whole yet has the note of originality. And that there is abundant mastery over the orchestra goes without saying. Perhaps the gem of the whole is the quintet in the second act. The great fault of 'The Cricket on the Hearth' is its undue length, but perhaps that is only another way of saying that the composer has adopted the grand opera manner, and elaborated the music accordingly.

The performance of the Carl Rosa Company, under Mr. Goossens, was a highly creditable one. Mdlle. Aurelia Révy, as Dot, was distinctly successful by reason no less of her vivacious and intelligent acting than of her sympathetic singing. Mr. Isidore Marcil played Tackleton extremely well in the Bispham manner, and Mr. Arthur Deane, as John, also deserves commendation.

FESTIVAL AT BISHOP AUCKLAND.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

Just twenty-five years ago — the exact date was September 25, 1875—a meeting was held at Bishop Auckland, in the County of Durham, to discuss the establishment of a choral society. The prime mover was Mr. Nicholas Kilburn, a local amateur, who took up the conductorship of the new society and has retained it to this day. Not content with his sufficiently exacting labours at Bishop Auckland, he has since then become conductor of two important societies in the district—at Sunderland and Middlesbrough—societies which have under his guidance done a good work. This is, however, 'another story,' to which I refer only as a proof that there is some reason for dubbing Mr. Kilburn a 'Musical Apostle of the North.'

What concerns us more nearly is the career of the Auckland Musical Society during the past quarter of a century. It is a record of which a town of some ten or twelve thousand inhabitants has the best reason to be proud. In addition to the usual classics, many modern works have been given, in not a few cases when they were absolutely strange to the English provinces. Dvorák, Liszt (13th Psalm and 'St. Elizabeth'), Goetz, and Max Bruch ('Fair Ellen') are among these. The list of English composers is a striking one. Taking the names as they occur in the order of their appearance in the programmes, we find Macfarren, Cowen, Armes, Sterndale Bennett, Goring Thomas (whose 'Sun-Worshippers' appears in 1881, the year of its first production), Prout, Mackenzie ('Jason,' in 1883), Sullivan, C. H. Lloyd, Barnett, Bridge, H. W. Parker (whose 'Kobolds' was given in 1894, five years before 'Hora Novissima' made him famous in this country), Stanford, Walthew, Elgar ('King Olaf,' 1897), and Coleridge-Taylor. There is a spirit of healthy enterprise here that may be commended to many societies of far more ample means than that of Bishop Auckland.

Such a career as that which I have briefly indicated deserved a fitting celebration. Instead of a personal testimonial, or the customary banquet, with 'For he's a jolly good fellow' as the great morceau d'ensemble, it was understood that some good and complete musical performances would be more in harmony with Mr. Kilburn's desire, and accordingly a miniature festival was organised and took place on the 4th and 5th ult. The Society began its work twenty-five years ago with Handel's 'Messiah,' and accordingly this was chosen for the opening concert. There is no need to criticise minutely a good all-round performance, in which Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mrs. Burrell, Mr. W. Green, and Mr. David Hughes formed a quartet of more than common artistic distinction. A welcome departure from the stereotyped selection was made by the inclusion of the fine bass solo, 'Thou art gone up on high,' the duet, 'O Death, where is thy sting?' and the very expressive soprano air, 'If God be with us.' During the interval the Lord Bishop of Durham, whose Castle is the one distinguishing feature of the town, showed his lively interest in the society of which he is President by giving a sympathetic address and calling upon the secretary to produce and read an illuminated address destined to adorn Mr. Kilburn's house.

The second concert had a miscellaneous programme of exceptional interest. Mr. Coleridge-Taylor had come specially to conduct his 'Wedding-Feast,' of which, it will be remembered, Mr. Kilburn's Sunderland Society gave the first public performance. It was given with admirable spirit, and Mr. William Green sang the solo as perhaps no other of our concert tenors can sing it, now that Mr. Lloyd has retired. Mr. Coleridge-Taylor also conducted some of his 'Characteristic Waltzes,' and the 'Danse Nègre,' which, if a jeu d'esprit, is a very clever and exhilarating one. The orchestral pieces deserve to be recorded, for they were quite out of the common run and were full of interest. Two movements from Dittersdorf's symphony, 'Die vier Weltalter,' in which are sought to be depicted, with means that seem to us curiously inadequate, the four ages of the world, furnished a highly interesting musical curio; while modern symphonic writing was illustrated by the delicious Minuet from Brahms's Serenade (Op. 11) and the Allegro giocoso from his Fourth Symphony. The introduction to Act III. of 'Lohengrin' was in keeping with the general air of rejoicing, and the 'Fledermaus' Overture of Johann Strauss may be said to have typified the champagne at this musical banquet. The vocalists were Miss Nicholls and Mr. Green, and Mr. Kilburn shared with Mr. Coleridge-Taylor the duties of conducting, which were admirably performed by both.

Herbert Thompson.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The concert given by the pupils of the Royal Academy of Music, on the 13th ult., at Queen's Hall, was distinguished by three compositions of exceptional merit. The first of these, a symphonic march, by Mr. A. von Ahn Carse, is a clever and well scored composition that testified to excellent tuition. The next was a pianoforte concerto by Mr. Harry Farjeon, a young composer of whom we have previously spoken in favourable terms. The concerto is Mr. Farjeon's most serious effort, and in it so much is achieved that the good opinions expressed regarding his abilities are fully justified. The principal theme of the opening movement not only possesses character, but it is developed in a skilful and interesting manner. The slow movement is remarkable for romantic use of the soft notes of the horn, and the Finale is exceedingly vivacious. The solo part was admirably played by Mr. Cuthbert Whitemore and the work evoked prolonged applause. The most important composition, however, was a setting for solo, female choir, chorus, and orchestra, by Mr. John B. McEwen, of the first scene from Shelley's 'Hellas.' Mr. McEwen is a professor at the Academy, and his work deserved a better place than at the end of a lengthy programme, for it is estimable music, strong, imaginative, and knit with masterly command of resource. It was effectively interpreted, on the whole, but we hope to hear it again under more favourable conditions. The crisp and intelligent rendering by Miss Mary S. Burgess in the solo part of Liszt's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat and the promising violin playing by Miss Irene Penso in Saint-Saëns's Concerto in B minor merit record, as also does the singing of Miss Zara Baroni, Miss Florence J. Hoole, and Mr. Henry Rojas. The concert was preceded by the Dead March in 'Saul,' played in memory of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan, an old student of the Academy. Sir Alexander Mackenzie conducted with his customary skill.

The following awards have recently been made:—

Heathcote Long Prize—Edwin York Bowen (London). An additional prize was awarded by the examiners to George Dorrington Cunningham (London).
Sainton-Dolby Prize—Edith Nutter (London).
Rutson Memorial Prizes—Soprano, Katie E. B. Moss (London); Tenor, John Strafford (Yorkshire).
Bonamy Dobree Prize—Ethel Pettit (London).
Potter Exhibition—Marion White (London).
Hine Prize—Marjorie Hayward (London).
Westmorland Scholarship—Ernest Torrence (Edinburgh).

Mr. F. Cunningham Woods conducted the first performance in London of his tuneful music to 'The Tempest,' at a Students' concert of the Metropolitan College of Music, on the 10th ult.

All people that on earth do dwell.

THANKSGIVING ANTHEM

FOR THE OPENING OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.

Words by Rev. W. Kethe (1560-1). Composed by John E. West.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; and NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., New York.

Copyright, 1900, by Novello and Company, Limited.

sing to the Lord with cheer - ful voice; Him serve with sing to the Lord with cheer - ful voice; Him serve with sing to the Lord with cheer - ful voice; Him serve with sing to the Lord with cheer - ful voice; Him serve with fear, mp
mp Sw.
fear, His praise forth tell, Come ye be - fear, His praise forth tell, Come ye be - fear, His praise forth tell, Come ye be - fore . . Him, His praise forth tell, Come ye be - f mf
cres.
f Gt.
- fore Him, come ye be - fore Him, be - fore Him, and re - joice,
- fore Him, come ye be - fore Him, and re - joice, come ye be - fore Him, come ye be - fore Him, and re - joice,
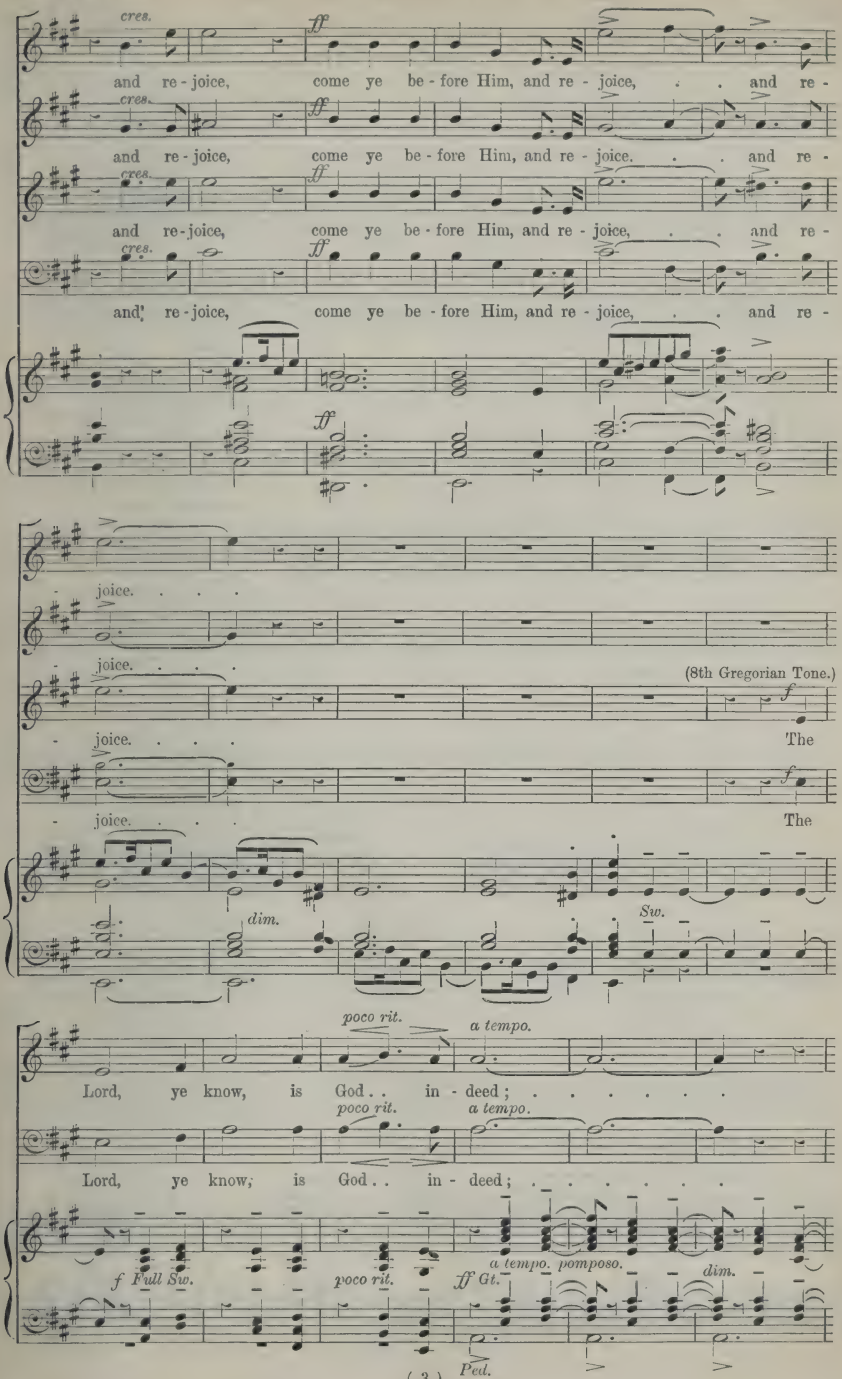
- fore Him, come ye be - fore Him, and re - joice,



cres.
ff
and re - joice, come ye be - fore Him, and re - joice, and re - and re - joice, come ye be - fore Him, and re - joice, and re - and re - joice, come ye be - fore Him, and re - joice, and re - and re - joice, come ye be - fore Him, and re - joice, and re - joice.
joice.
(8th Gregorian Tone.)
f joice. The joice. The dim.
Sw.
poco rit.
a tempo.
Lord, ye know, is God . . in - deed;
Lord, ye know, is God . . in - deed;
f Full Sw.
poco rit.
ff Gt.
a tempo. pomposo.
dim.
Ped.

Without our aid He did us make; . . . .
Without our aid He did us make; . . . .
Full Sw.
Gt. ff
dim.
Poco meno mosso.
Sopranos. mp tranquillo.
We are His
Poco meno mosso.
p
Sw.
p flock, He doth us feed, And for His sheep He doth us take, soft Ped.
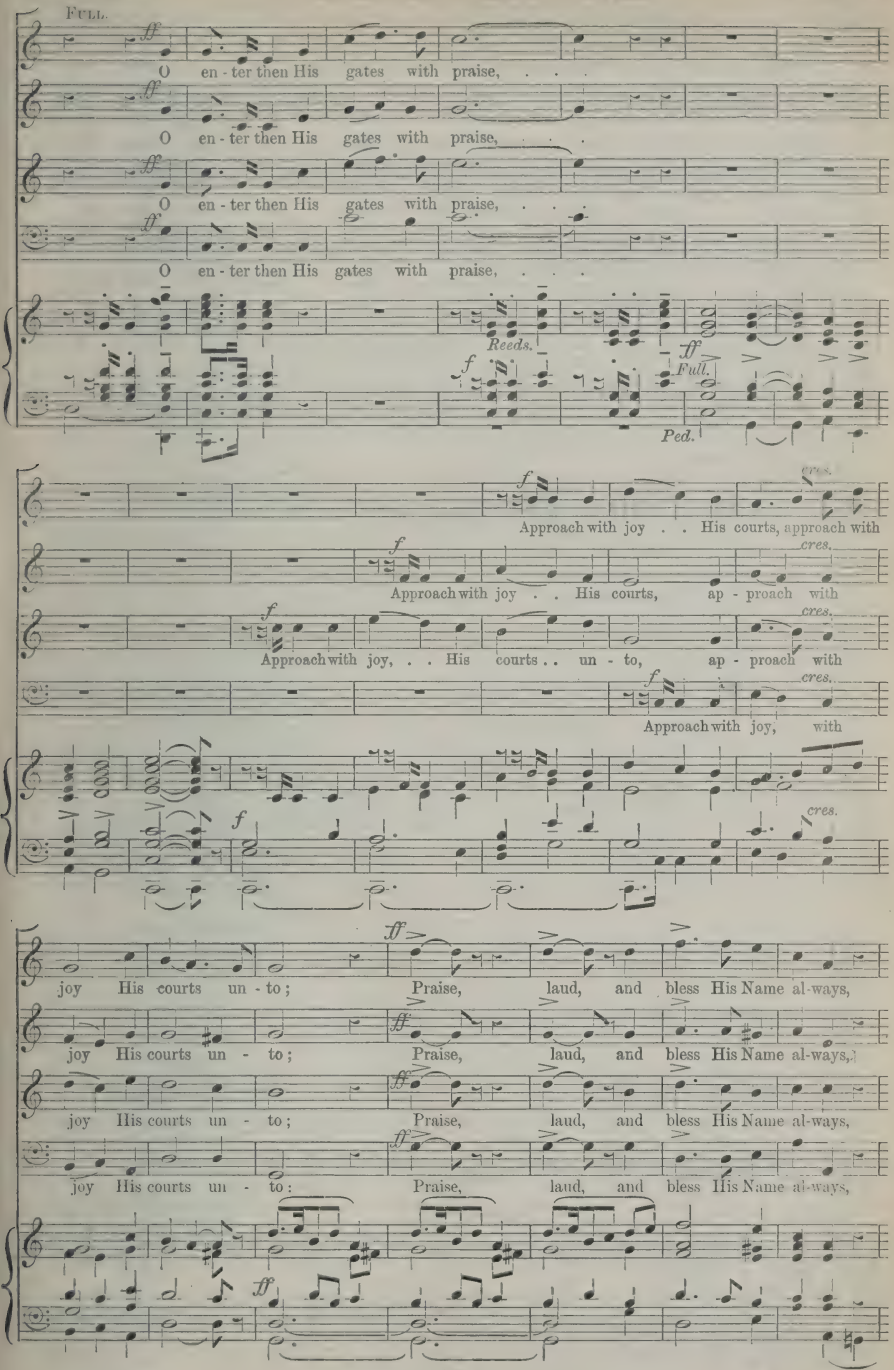
cres.
Tempo 1mo.
for His sheep He doth us take.
Tempo 1mo.
cres.
mf Gt.
cres.
Ped.



Full.
ff
O en - ter then His gates with praise, . . .
O en - ter then His gates with praise, . . .
O en - ter then His gates with praise, . . .
O en - ter then His gates with praise, . . .
Reeds.
Full.
Ped.
f
cres.
Approach with joy . . His courts, approach with Approach with joy . . His courts, ap - proach with Approach with joy, . . His courts . . un - to, ap - proach with Approach with joy, with joy His courts un - to;
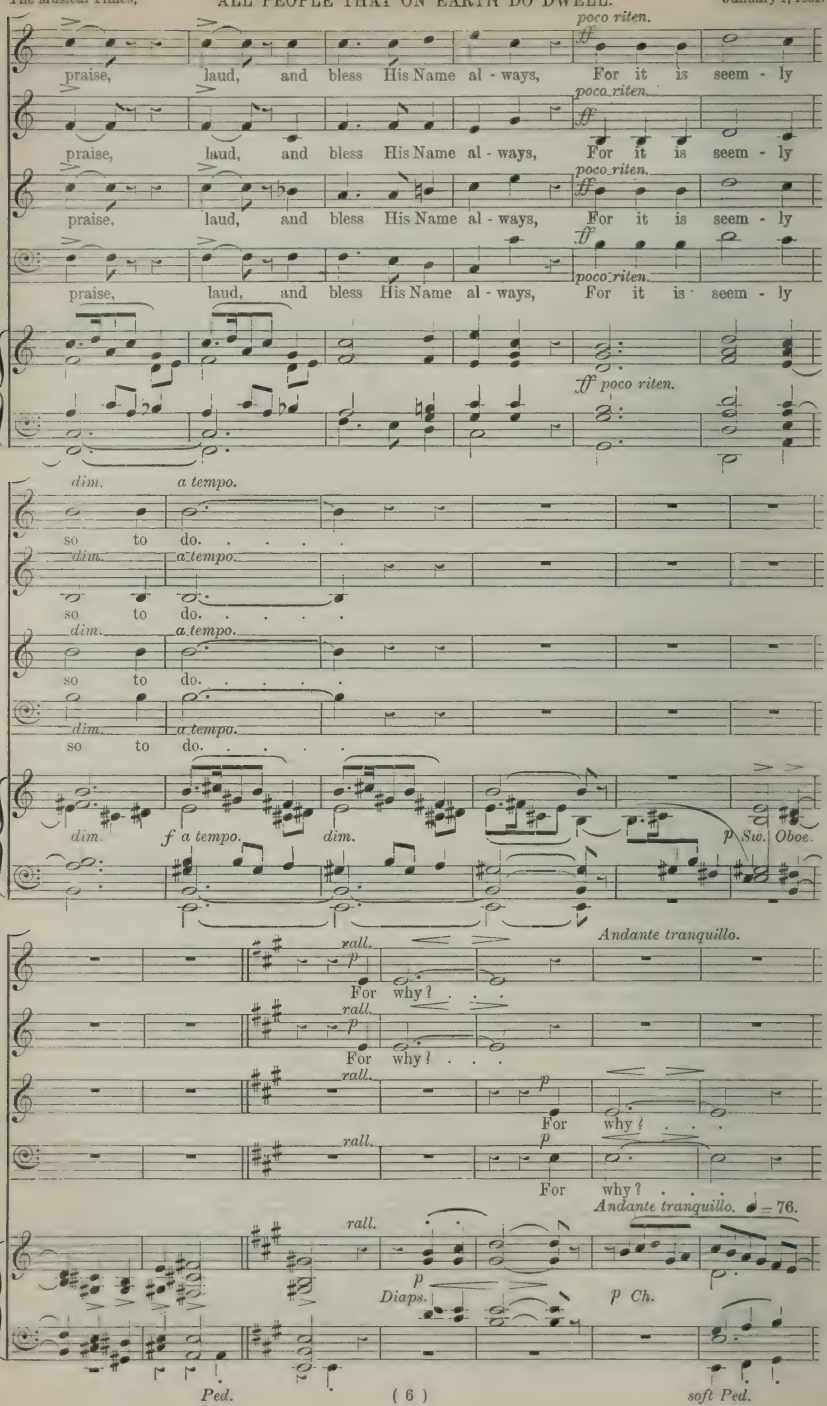
Praise, laud, and bless His Name al-ways,
joy His courts un - to;
Praise, laud, and bless His Name al-ways,
joy His courts un - to;
Praise, laud, and bless His Name al-ways,
joy His courts un - to:
Praise, laud, and bless His Name al-ways,



poco riten.
ff
praise, laud, and bless His Name al - ways, For it is seem - ly poco riten.
ff
praise, laud, and bless His Name al - ways, For it is seem - ly poco riten.
ff praise, laud, and bless His Name al - ways, For it is seem - ly
ff
poco riten.
praise, laud, and bless His Name al - ways, For it is seem - ly ff poco riten.
dim. a tempo.
so to do. . . . .
dim. a tempo.
so to do. . . . .
dim. a tempo.
so to do. . . . .
dim. a tempo.
so to do. . . . .
dim. f a tempo. dim. p Sw. Oboe.
Andante tranquillo.
rall. p
For why? . . .
rall. p
For why? . . .
rall. p
For why? . . .
rall. p
For why? . . .
Andante tranquillo. ♩ = 76.
rall.
p Diaps.
p Ch.
Ped.
soft Ped.

mf
The Lord our God is good; His mer-cy is for ev-er sure;
mf
The Lord our God is good; His mer-cy is for ev-er
The Lord our God is good; His mer-cy is for ev-er sure; mf His sure; The Lord our God is good; His mer-cy is for ev-er sure;
mf Gt.
cres.
f truth . . . at all times firm - ly stood, And shall from age to mf
cres.
f
His truth at all times firm - ly stood, And shall from age to mf
cres.
f
His truth at all times firm - ly stood, And shall from age to mf
cres.
f
His truth at all times firm - ly stood, And shall from age to cres.
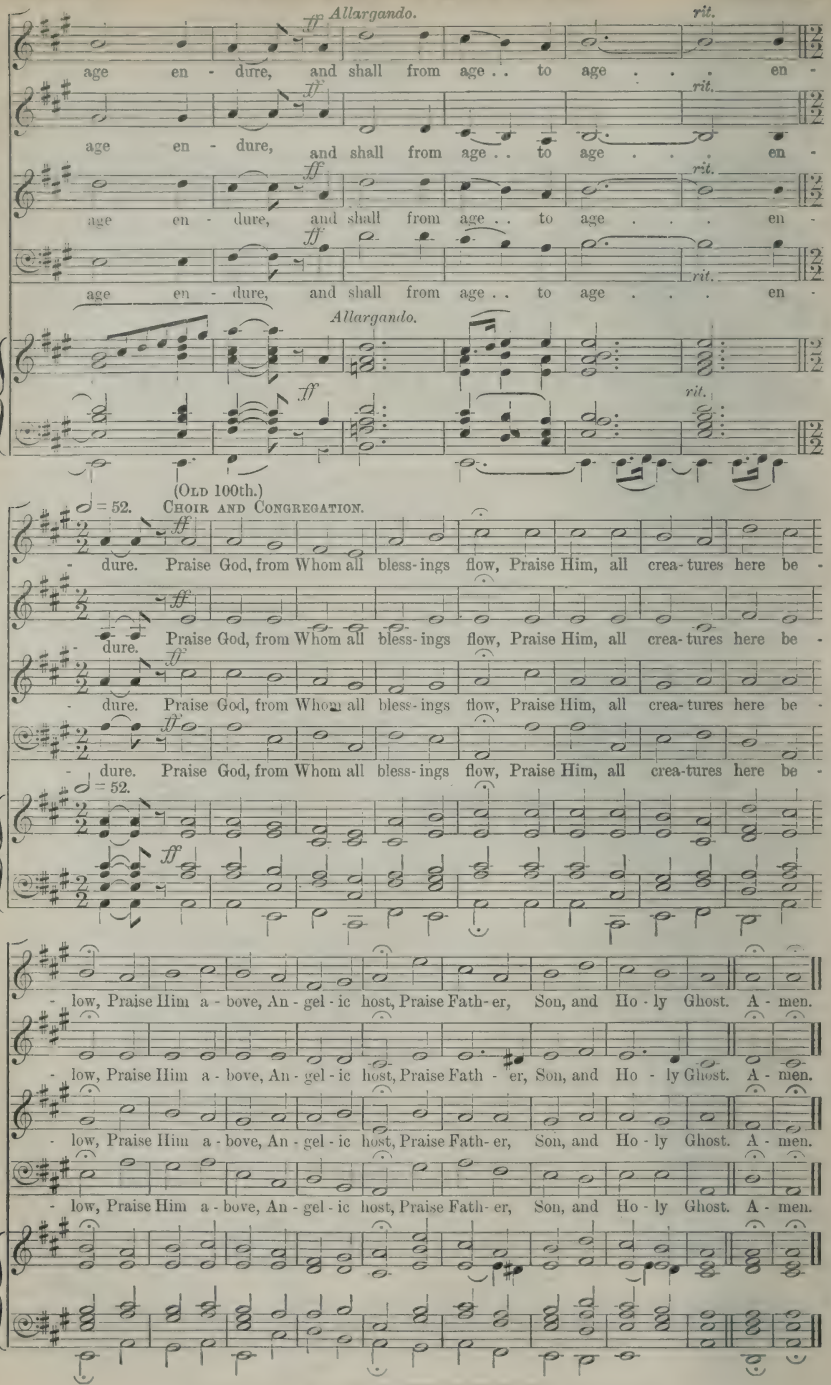
f cres.
rall.



Allargando.
rit.
age en - dure, and shall from age . . to age . . . en - (Old 100th.)
Choir and Congregation.
♩ = 52.
- dure. Praise God, from Whom all bless-ings flow, Praise Him, all crea-tures here be -
- low, Praise Him a - bove, An - gel - ic host, Praise Father, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost. A - men.
- low, Praise Him a - bove, An - gel - ic host, Praise Fath - er, Son, and Ho - ly Ghost. A - men.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1170, price 1½d.

No. 785. NOVELLO'S OCTAVO CHORUSES. Price 3d.

BRITONS, ALERT!

EPILOGUE FROM "CARACTACUS"

WRITTEN BY H. C. ACWORTH, C.I.E.

COMPOSED BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Copyright, 1900, by Novello and Company, Limited.

path of pow'r, Op - po - sing co - horts gath-er, And path of pow'r, Op - po - sing co - horts gath-er, And path of pow'r, Op - po - sing co - horts gath-er, And path of pow'r, Op - po - sing co - horts gath-er, And sf

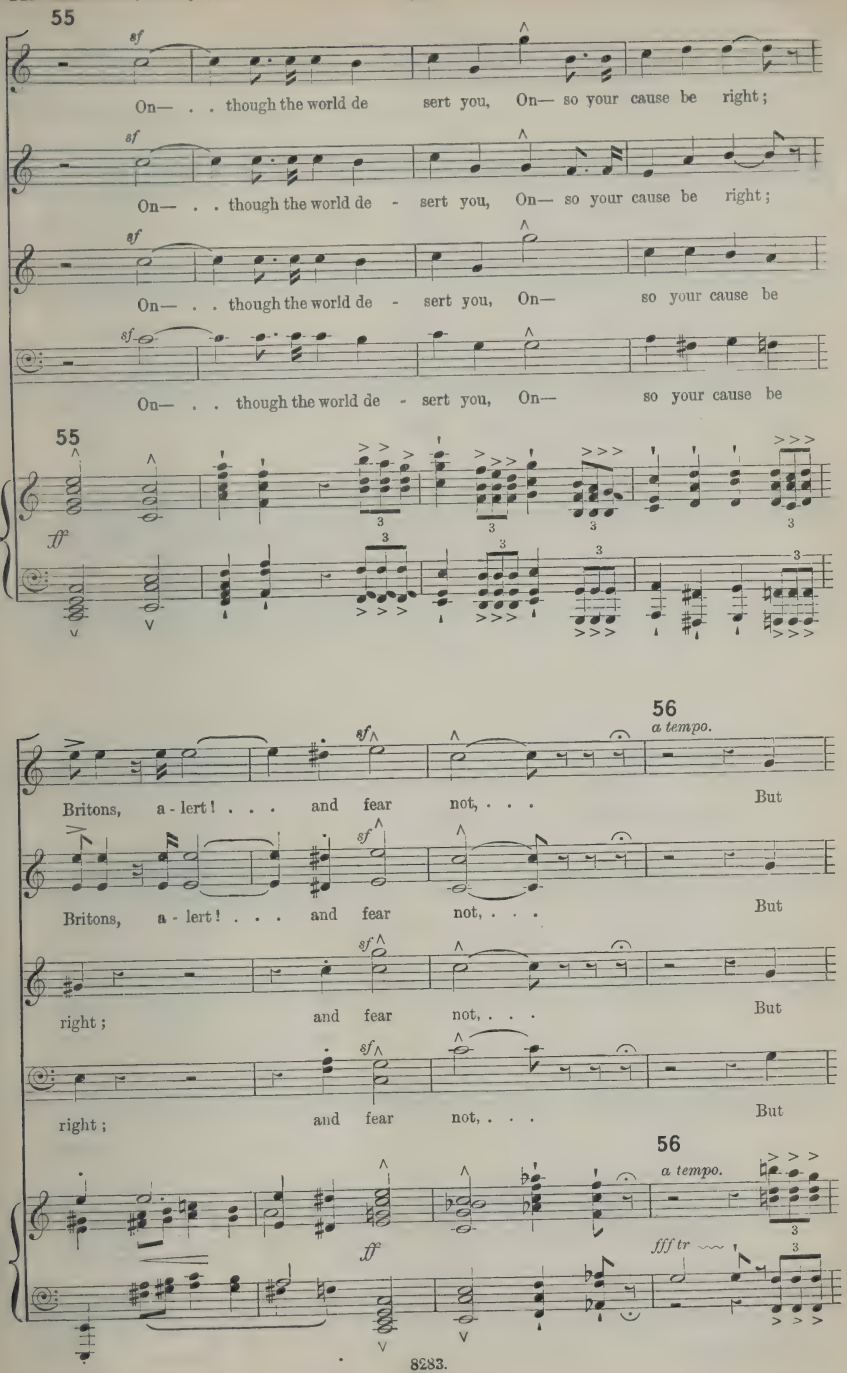
jea - lous ty - rants low'r;
jea - lous ty - rants low'r;
jea - lous ty - rants low'r;
jea - lous ty - rants low'r;
sf



55
sf
On— . . though the world de sert you, On— so your cause be right;
On— . . though the world de - sert you, On— so your cause be right;
On— . . though the world de - sert you, On— so your cause be
On— . . though the world de - sert you, On— so your cause be 55
ff
56
a tempo.
Britons, a - lert! . . . and fear not, . . . But Britons, a - lert! . . . and fear not, . . . But right; and fear not, . . . But right; and fear not, . . . But 56
a tempo.
ff fff tr

gird, gird your loins for . . fight. . . . . And gird, gird your loins for fight. . . . . .
gird, gird your loins for fight. . . . . .
gird, gird your loins for fight. . . . . .
fff
p 8va sf dim.
Ped.
ev - er your do - min - ion From age to age shall grow O'er
And ev - er your do - min - ion From age to age, from O'er
O'er molto sostenuto.

57

peo - ples un - dis - cov - er'd, In lands we can - not know; And age to age shall grow In lands we can - not know; And peo - ples un - dis - cov - er'd, In lands we can - not know; And peo - ples un - dis - cov - er'd, In lands we can - not know; And 57

dolce. legato e sostenuto.

where the flag of Brit - ain Its tri - ple cross - es rears, No slave shall be for dolce. legato e sostenuto.

where the flag of Brit - ain Its tri - ple cross - es rears, No slave, no dolce.

where the flag of Brit - ain Its tri - - ple cross - es rears, dolce. p legato

where the flag of Brit - ain Its tri - - ple cross - es rears, And pp pp molto legato e sostenuto.

sub - ject, No tro - - phy wet with tears, . . no tro - phy legato e sostenuto.
slave shall be for sub - ject, no slave shall be, no
legato e sostenuto.
No slave . . shall be for sub - ject,
e sostenuto.
where the flag . . of Brit - ain Its tri - ple cross - es rears, No

58 wet with tears, no tro- phy wet with tears ; But .
slave shall be for sub - ject, But folk shall bless the ban - ner, And No tro - phy wet with tears, . . But folk shall bless, shall slave shall be for sub - ject, No tro - phy wet with 58

59
. . folk shall bless the ban - ner, And bless the cross - es twin'd, bless, . . and bless the cross - es twin'd, That bear the gift of bless the ban - ner, . . And bless the cross - es twin'd, That bear the tears; But folk shall bless . . the cross - es twin'd, That bear the gift of 59
p
cres.
That bear the gift . . of free - dom, of free - dom, On
cres.
free - dom, that bear . . the gift of . . free - dom On
cres.
gift, the gift of free - - - - dom On ev - - 'ry
cres.
free - - dom, the gift of free - dom On . .
cres.

60
ev - 'ry blow - ing wind;
ev - 'ry blow - ing wind;
blow - ing wind; . . Nor shall her might dim - in - ish While ev - 'ry blow-ing wind; . . Nor shall her might dim - in - ish 60
Ped.
And
Of e - qual law to all men— And firm . . she holds the faith Of e - qual law to all men— And While firm she holds the faith Of e - qual law to all men— And holds it to the death;

holds it to the death;
holds it to the death;
holds it to the death;

61
Grandioso.
For all the world shall learn it— Though long the task shall
For all the world shall learn it— Though long the task shall
For all the world shall learn it— Though long the task shall
For all the world shall learn it— Though long the task shall 61 Grandioso.

62 be— The text of Brit - ain's teach-ing, The mes - sage of the free; And be— The text of Brit - ain's teach-ing, The mes - sage of the free; And be— . . The text of Brit-ain's teach - ing, The mes - sage of the free; And be— . . The text of Brit - ain's teach-ing, The mes - sage of the free; And 62
Ped. *
allargando. ten. sf sf rit.
when at last they find it, The na - tions all shall stand And allargando. ten. sf sf rit.
when at last they find it, The na - tions all shall stand And allargando. ten. sf sf rit.
when at last they find it, The na - tions all shall stand And allargando. ten. rf sf sf rit.
when at last they find it, The na - tions all shall stand ten.
rf allargando. sf sf rit.
ten.

63
sostenuto.
hymn the praise of Brit - ain, . . the praise of sostenuto.
hymn . . the praise, the praise of Brit - ain, and hymn the praise of sostenuto.
hymn . . the praise, the praise of Brit - ain, . . and ffz
Hymn the praise of 63
sostenuto.
ffz
64
Brit - ain, . . . Like
Brit - ain, and hymn, and hymn the praise of Brit - ain, the hymn . . the praise, and hymn the praise of Brit - ain, and Brit - ain, . . . and 64
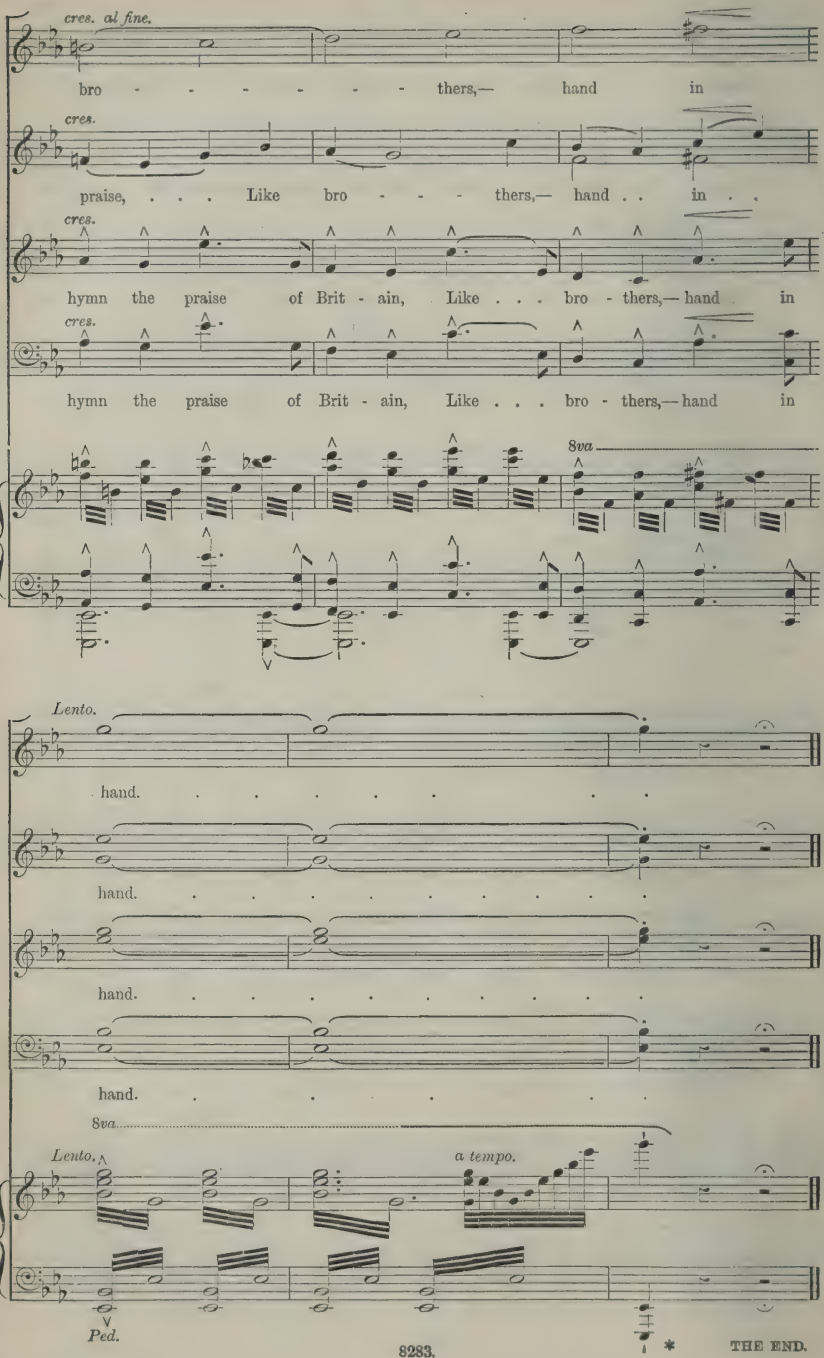
ffz



cres. al fine.
bro - - - - - - - thers,— hand in
cres.
praise, . . . Like bro - - - - thers,— hand . . in . .
cres.
hymn the praise of Brit - ain, Like . . . bro - thers,— hand in
cres.
hymn the praise of Brit - ain, Like . . . bro - thers,— hand in 8va Lento.
hand. . . . . .
hand. . . . . .
hand. . . . . .
hand. . . . . .
8va
Lento.
a tempo.
Ped.

* THE END.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

'EURYANTHE.'

THE Royal College of Music—true to its policy of reviving operas of artistic interest rather than presenting works in which the singers are likely to appear frequently in after-life—chose Weber's 'Euryanthe' for its annual operatic performance, which took place at Daly's Theatre on November 30. The work has dropped out of our répertoire, and has not been heard in London since 1882, when it was performed by the German company which was visiting us. So entirely shelved is 'Euryanthe' that the Royal College authorities were obliged to borrow the orchestral parts from the Berlin Opera! The revival was one of uncommon interest, for it proved to listeners of the younger generation how important a figure in the history of opera Weber is. Though not his greatest work, 'Euryanthe' has had more influence on the later developments of opera than any of his other and better known music. Wagner may well have said of Weber, in the words of Saint Augustine: 'Pereant qui nostra ante nos dixerunt.' For, indeed, in 'Euryanthe' we seem to hear the voice of Wagner and Wagner's idiom. And the framework of many of the scenes is the scaffolding Wagner used in building up 'Lohengrin' and 'Tannhäuser.' It would be possible to compare the libretti scene by scene and find similarities in nearly every one. To take only two instances. In 'Euryanthe' there is a duet between the soprano and the tenor, interrupted by an attack on the tenor, of which the soprano warns him, and which he repulses. Only in 'Euryanthe' it is a snake—not seen by the audience; in 'Lohengrin' it is Telramund, who is seen. The suffering soprano is accused by the wicked baritone, in the presence of the King and the Court in both operas, and in neither does she clear herself. Only in 'Euryanthe' the whole thing is absurd, because she might easily have spoken, and when she does speak (in the following act) the King at once recognises that she has a perfectly valid defence.

It is a commonplace of musical criticism to say that Weber's orchestration paved the way for Wagner's use of the instruments; but till one has heard 'Euryanthe' one cannot realise how true it is, nor, on the other hand, how immense the progress Wagner made. When we say that a man began where his predecessors left off we do not say that he is unoriginal, and the extreme Wagnerites who attempt to make light of Wagner's obligations do him a grave disservice in the eyes of posterity. For they would have us regard him as an abnormal portent, and as a usurper, not as one taking his legitimate place in the dynasty of Music.

The performance of the opera, under Professor Stanford, was in all respects more than creditable. The band was excellent, and the chorus was equally good as far as the singing went. But only a few of the singers seemed to be able to move and carry themselves with ease. And this helped one to realise what difficulties Covent Garden must have to contend with in this matter. The chief parts were very capably rendered by students who should have successful careers. To criticise them in detail is not necessary, but it will be of interest to record their names: Miss Esmé Atherden was Euryanthe; Miss Cicely Gleeson-White, Eglantine; Miss Florence Macnaughton, Bertha; Mr. Walter Hyde, Adolar; Mr. Samuel Epstein, Lysiart; Mr. Norman Ridley, King Louis; and Mr. Harold Wilde, Rudolph. The dresses and properties (including a gigantic sword with which Adolar demolished the snake) were lent by Mr. Neil Forsyth, of Covent Garden.

THE accounts of the recent (1900) Birmingham Musical Festival show that the total receipts amounted to £15,202 17s. 1d., and the profits, after meeting the expenses, were £6,009 6s. 7d. The receipts of the Festival of 1899 amounted to £14,282 17s. 5d., and the profits to £5,147 5s. On that occasion £5,000 was paid over to the General Hospital and the balance remained in the hands of the orchestral committee. The committee of the 1900 Festival have paid over the entire net balance this year of £6,009 6s. 7d. to the General Hospital.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

New York, December 12.

As I write we are in the middle of the last week of English opera (or, more accurately, opera in English) at the Metropolitan Opera House, and Mr. Grau's song birds are flitting eastward from the Pacific coast to take possession of the gilded cage in Upper Broadway as soon as the other flock shall leave it. The English season has, in some respects, been an interesting experiment. Cheap methods produced cheap performances. The use of the stage and scenery of the Metropolitan Opera House enabled Mr. Savage to make brave pictures when he essayed 'Tannhäuser,' 'Lohengrin,' and other works in which spectacle can be made to play a part; but the surroundings dwarfed the singers, and only the operas of a lighter character gave satisfaction. What the newspapers ordinarily describe as a 'sumptuous revival' of 'The Mikado' was so much to the popular taste that the opera was given sixteen times; 'Pinafore,' which followed, had nine performances in one week, the receipts at cheap prices reaching $,18,000. Of the novelties promised by the management, only one was given—Goring Thomas's 'Esmeralda.' The work made a favourable impression upon the critics, but, owing to the shortcomings of one of the principal singers, it was not heard at its full value. In all seventeen operas will have had 108 performances when the season comes to an end on the 15th inst. Three days later the regular season of French, German, and Italian opera will begin.

Five itinerant pianists of European repute are devastating the American concert field, and more are coming. Those here are Dohnányi, Gabrilowitsch, Sieveking, Harold Bauer, and Madame Carreño. Madame Sembrich is also here and is devoting the month of December to song recitals in New York, Boston, and adjacent cities. Beginning in January, she will head an Italian opera company and begin a tour of the West which will reach San Francisco. Her welcome in New York has been one of phenomenal proportions, audiences of three and four thousand gathering to hear her interpretation of songs. Her programmes are as full of interest as of charm. She sings classical arias, and English, German, French, Polish, and Russian songs—all in the original tongues. Thus far her English selections have been Haydn's canzonet 'My mother bids me bind my hair,' Morley's 'It was a lover and his lass,' and the ancient ballad of the 'Three Ravens.' These she sings ravishingly.

New York City's list of orchestral concerts has been extended by two organisations with similar aims but differing methods. The American Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Sam Franko, is giving eighteenth century music in the manner of the century—that is, with the old allotment of instruments and in a small room. A feature of the second concert was Dittersdorf's 'Phaëton' Symphony, which both borrowed and gave curiously instructive light by coming into close juxtaposition with Richard Strauss's 'Heldenleben,' performed by the Philharmonic Society. This symphonic poem, which, I believe, England has thus far been spared, is the latest, most copious, and most cacophonous word that has yet been spoken in instrumental music of the descriptive or programmatic type. Its offence against all recognised principles of beauty is rank and cries to heaven. Dittersdorf, simple soul that he was, thought that he could picture the adventures, or misadventures of Phaëton in the symphonic form. He writes a straightforward, Haydnish minuet with alternativo, puts over it a verse from Ovid's 'Metamorphoses,' second book (Pœnituit jurâsse patrem), and with the help of a convenient annotator depicts the growing anger of Phœbus, his regret that he had given his oath, and the joy of Phaëton (the last in the trio). Everything is as ingenuous as one of the old Kuhnau sonatas on Biblical stories; and the music is pretty. Strauss gathers together an orchestra with three large flutes, one piccolo flute, three oboes, one English horn (interchangeable with a fourth oboe), three clarinets, four bassoons (one contra), eight horns, five trumpets, three trombones, two tubas, two harps, and all the kinds of drums that you can think of, besides the usual quota of strings, and proceeds to tell his conception of the story of his own life by means of combining themes on the principle set forth in the German axiom, 'Reim dich oder ich fress dich!' He doesn't say that he is his own Held; but when he pictures the 'Hero's works of Peace' he recapitulates in wonderful polyphony the themes of all his symphonic poems, an excerpt from his opera, and a bit from one of his songs. It is all marvellous, all extremely difficult to do; but, as Dr. Johnson would say again: 'Would to God it were impossible!' Strauss's attitude towards programmatic music, despite the protestations of his advocates, is as naïve as that assumed by the manager of one of your vaudeville theatres (who was it?), when he solemnly asked Mr. Silas (I believe) to write him some music descriptive of an Englishman who had gone abroad, changed his religion, and lost his umbrella.

A movement to popularise orchestral music has been begun, and the first of the concerts, to be called 'People's Symphony Concerts,' will be given this week. Good music of the kind generally neglected by the larger symphonic organisations will be given, with the cost of admission ranging from fivepence to two shillings. Bach's B minor Mass was creditably performed by the Oratorio Society, under the direction of Mr. Frank Damrosch, on November 24.

H. E. Krehbiel.

LONDON CONCERTS, &c.

MR. ROBERT NEWMAN'S SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

No new work was presented at the concert on the 8th ult., at the Queen's Hall, but effective performances were given of Brahms's Second Symphony in D (Op. 73), the 'Siegfried Idyll,' Lalo's 'Rhapsodie Norvégienne,' and Dvorák's lively 'Scherzo Capriccioso,' one of this composer's most 'Bohemian' pieces. The solo part of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto was brilliantly rendered by M. Emile Sauret, and Señor Paoli sang.

SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

Lady Hallé has been principal violinist, and the solo pianists on the 1st, 8th, and 15th ult. respectively were Mr. Leonard Borwick, Mdlle. Stockmarr, and Miss Suart. Mrs. Henry J. Wood made her first appearance at these concerts on the 1st ult., and introduced two fine and little known songs, 'Suspense,' by Tschaikowsky, and 'Warum schimmert dein Auge,' by Grieg, both of which were beautifully sung. At the other performances the vocalists were respectively M. Meux and Miss Beatrice Spencer. The concerts will be resumed on the 5th inst., when M. Ysaye's Quartet Party will make its first appearance in England.

HIGHBURY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The fate of many compositions produced at provincial festivals was exemplified at the concert of the Highbury Philharmonic Society, given on November 27, by the first performance in London of Mr. Frederick Corder's cantata 'The Sword of Argantyr,' written for the Leeds festival of 1889. Mr. G. H. Betjemann is to be highly commended for thus bringing to metropolitan notice a work that is admirably suited to small choral societies. The solos were effectively sung by Miss Ethel Wood, Messrs. Ben Davies, Dan Price, and Henry Rojas, and the choral and orchestral portions were intelligently rendered. Clay's 'Lalla Rookh' was also performed, Miss Gertrude Maxted joining the above-named soloists, and between the two works the choir sang Sullivan's 'Brother, thou art gone before us,' in memory of the composer whose remains were laid to rest earlier in the day.

WESTMINSTER ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

Mr. Stewart Macpherson not having returned from his Colonial examining tour for the Associated Board, the sixteenth season of the Westminster Orchestral Society was opened under the baton of Sir Alexander Mackenzie, who secured a most praiseworthy performance of Beethoven's Second Symphony. Novelties in the programme were an Interlude in E from an Irish opera, entitled 'The Ardrigh's Daughter,' by Dr. Annie W. Patterson, and the first movement from a suite of five numbers, called 'Idyllic,' by Mr. C. Meir Scott. Both excerpts proved pleasing and well-written music, but obviously little more can be said with fairness until more is heard of the respective works. Mr. Henry Parsons was the pianist, and Miss Helen Niebuhr, an American contralto, sang with refinement.

STOCK EXCHANGE ORCHESTRAL AND CHORAL SOCIETY.

Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Tschaïkowsky's '1812' Overture were the chief works played at the opening concert of the Stock Exchange Orchestral and Choral Society, on the 5th ult., at Queen's Hall, and both compositions were interpreted in a manner that testified to the careful and skilful training of Mr. Arthur Payne. There was also played the suite from M. Thomé's ballet d'action 'Les Noces d'Arlequin'—graceful and imaginative music—and M. Godard's Violin Concerto Romantique in A minor, the soloist in the latter being Miss Dorothy Bull, a young executant of promise. Miss Florence Schmidt contributed vocal solos with her usual charm and finish, and the Male-Voice Choir, under the direction of Mr. Munro Davison, sang an excellent selection of part-music.

ROYAL AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

The Society which Mr. Ford so ably conducts opened its twenty-ninth season, on November 29, at Queen's Hall. The most important work of an admirable selection was Mendelssohn's 'Scotch' Symphony, which was rendered with intelligence and spirit. The solo part of Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto was neatly rendered by Mr. Brightwell, and the agreeable singing of Miss Ruth Lamb enhanced the enjoyment of the evening.

THE STROLLING PLAYERS ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

This Society held the second concert of its present season, on the 13th ult., at Queen's Hall. No symphony was presented, but effective interpretations were given of Sterndale Bennett's 'The Naiads' and Sullivan's 'Di Ballo' Overtures, and the first suite from the incidental music to Bizet's 'L'Arlesienne.' The vocalists were Miss Maisie Cabrera and Mr. C. Dwight Edwards. Mr. Norfolk Megone conducted.

Sir Hubert Parry delivered an interesting lecture on 'Curious and Interesting Corners in the Music of the Seventeenth Century,' on the 4th ult., to an audience of over a thousand people, in the Westbourne Park Institute. In the course of his remarks, Sir Hubert pointed out some curious features in the melody, in the harmonic structure, and in the vocal rendering of the music of the period, the last-named being illustrated by a solo from Monteverde's 'Orfeo,' in which the curious throat-catching staccato effects in the runs were well shown by Mr. Frank Pownall. That gentleman also sang the opening scene from Cavaliere's 'Rappresentatione di Anima e di Corpo,' and joined Miss Atherden in a very fine rendering of the dialogue between Charon and Philomel, composed by William Lawes. Miss Atherden also sang with great charm 'The blessed Virgin's Expostulation,' by Purcell. A small band of lady violinists played the Overture to Monteverde's 'Orfeo' and an Entr'acte in Locke's 'Tempest.'

At the Students' Orchestral concert of the Guildhall School of Music, on the 12th ult., the chief feature of interest was the performance of a new suite, 'Mignonne,' by Henry E. Geehl. The suite consists of four movements, entitled Burlesque, Menuet, Legende, and Valse Caprice, and is a highly promising composition. The concert, which was conducted by the Principal, Dr. W. H. Cummings, included his new song, 'A welcome to the C.I.V.'

Herr Hugo Kupferschmid, a new-comer, gave an orchestral concert on November 26 last, at St. James's Hall, and proved himself an accomplished violinist. His tone, though somewhat weak, is sweet in quality. He possesses a neat and fluent technique, and his playing of Beethoven's and Mendelssohn's concertos testified to a musical and refined temperament. Good performances were also given of 'Der Freischütz' and 'Fidelio' Overtures, under the conductorship of Mr. Gustave Ernest.

Mr. Martin Knutzen, a pianist from Christiania, who made his first appearance in London at an orchestral concert on November 26 last, at St. James's Hall, gave a recital, in the same place, on the 4th ult. He was born in 1863 at Drammen, Norway, and has studied under Madame Backer-Grondahl, Herr Heinrich Barth, and M. Leschetitzky. His technique is equal to modern requirements, and his readings were intelligent, but somewhat unsympathetic. He was assisted by M. Leroy, another new-comer and an excellent violoncellist.

Madame Steinhauer-Mallinson gave two vocal recitals at the Steinway Hall, on the 3rd and 14th ult. respectively, of exceptional interest. Madame Anna Steinhauer is a Danish soprano and a cultured and gifted singer. Her husband, Mr. Mallinson, whose songs provided the entire programme of the second recital, is a Yorkshireman, born at Leeds in 1870. His compositions include a Quartet in D minor, a Trio in G minor, a Sonata in E minor for violin and pianoforte, two choral works, and over a hundred songs. All those heard on the 14th ult. bore witness to artistic intention and ability and happy musical expression. Some of them are really beautiful and of a very high order. Of such are 'Snowflakes,' 'Slow, horses, slow,' 'Apple-blossom,' 'The Message and the Song,' and 'Elëanore,' all of which should appeal to cultured vocalists. Miss Regina Nagel, an American contralto, assisted.

The North London Orchestral Society would now seem to be firmly established and, under its conductor, Mr. Lennox Clayton, to be doing good work. The programme of its twenty-fourth concert, which took place at Portman Rooms on the 3rd ult., comprised Mendelssohn's 'Fingal's Cave' Overture, Beethoven's Sixth Symphony, and Saint-Saëns's Second Pianoforte Concerto, with Mr. Richard H. Walthew as soloist. Miss Stanley Lucas was the vocalist.

Signor Busoni gave a pianoforte recital on November 27, at the Queen's Hall, when he gave a splendid interpretation of Chopin's Sonata in B minor (Op. 58), and rendered other pieces with the utmost brilliancy.

Madame Bertha Moore gave a lecture-recital, entitled 'Three Centuries of English Song,' on the 5th ult., at 13, Lansdown Road, Holland Park. Madame Moore attacked her comprehensive subject with firmness, and gave a lucid sketch of the progress of English vocal art, speaking with enthusiasm and patriotic pride of our native composers and singing numerous examples with great charm. Mr. Algernon Lindo was the pianist.

Miss Marguerite Elzy gave a pianoforte recital on November 26, at St. James's Hall, when her playing testified to the excellence of the tuition she has received from Mr. Oscar Beringer.

Miss Grace Ellis showed great advance as a pianist at her recital at the Steinway Hall, on November 27. Her touch has become sympathetic, crisp, and delicate, and there were evidences of fine feeling in her playing.

Miss Edith Gumthorpe, who gave a pianoforte recital on November 30, at the Queen's (Small) Hall, is only fourteen years of age, but she is manifestly gifted with a musical temperament, and her style and present executive ability reflect great credit on her teacher, Miss Mathilde Verne.

Madame Eleanor Cleaver, at her recital on the 4th ult., at St. James's Hall, is a vocalist whose appearances will always give pleasure to music-lovers. Her voice is of rich quality and manifestly dominated by an artistic temperament. She was assisted by Mr. Leonard Borwick.

Miss Kathleen Bruckshaw's pianoforte playing, at her recital on the 7th ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall, showed that she is gifted in a manner that should enable her to acquire a prominent position in her profession. She not only possesses exceptional technical command of the keyboard, but is endowed with a power of expression that indicates remarkable musical sensitiveness.

The Signorine Cerasoli proved, at their pianoforte recital on the 5th ult., at the Salle Erard, that they are now very pleasure-giving executants. Their duet playing was delightfully crisp and exhilarating. Mr. Frederick Keel sang.

Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, who gave a recital on the 5th ult., at Queen's (Small) Hall, is the possessor of a rich toned mezzo-soprano voice, which has been well-trained, and her singing indicated good taste and musical intelligence. Assistance was given by Miss May Mukle, Miss Ellen Bowick, Mr. Gordon Tanner, and Mr. Carl Weber.

The Curtius Club concert, on November 28, was given by Herren Schönberger and Hugo Heinz, and that on the 5th ult. (the last before Christmas) by Mdlle. Camilla Landi, a vocalist who should be more frequently heard in London.

Mr. William Nicholl's two lectures on the 'Art of Singing,' at the Salle Erard, on the 3rd and 10th ult. respectively, contained much valuable information and advice, and were admirably illustrated by the lecturer.

Mr. Francis Korbay gave the first of a course of three lectures on 'Hungarian Songs,' on the 10th ult., at Leighton House, Kensington. A number of most interesting examples were expressively sung by Miss Janet Duff and Mr. Plunket Greene.

Miss Lilian Gunning gave an artistic concert, on the 12th ult., at the Salle Erard. The programme included César Franck's Sonata for violin and pianoforte, the latter instrument being played by Miss Hirschfeld. Miss Clegg was the vocalist.

The Victoria Madrigal Society, conducted by Dr. Stanley Murray, began its fifth season on the 13th ult., at St. Martin's Town Hall, when an excellent selection of madrigals and part-songs were admirably rendered by the choir. The enjoyment of the evening was increased by the singing of Miss Cecile Vicars and Mr. Ben Johnson, violin pieces contributed by Miss Marion Joy, and recitations by Mr. James McGregor. This Society merits generous support.

Highly creditable performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's opera 'Princess Ida' were given by the students of the London Organ School at the Cavendish Rooms, on the 10th and 14th ult. The chorus was represented by Mr. Henry Beauchamp's choir, who sang throughout with spirit and steadiness, and the solo parts were, on the whole, very well represented. Members of the string orchestra of the School (led by their director, Mr. Edward O'Brien) gave an excellent rendering of the accompaniments. Mr. Beauchamp, who conducted, may be congratulated on the success of the performances.

The Maze Pond Choral Society, Old Kent Road, began its winter's performances, on the 6th ult., with Handel's 'Samson,' the choir numbering 100 voices. The choruses were very finely sung and the audience specially signified their appreciation of the rendering of 'Then round about,' 'Fixed in His everlasting seat,' and 'Let their celestial concerts.' The soloists were Miss Nellie Handel, Madame N. Robinson, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. Vernon Taylor. A band of eighteen gave material help in the instrumental music; Mr. E. Partridge was the organist and Mr. W. Doxter Miller conducted with his usual care.

On the 13th ult. the Bermondsey Settlement Choral and Orchestral Union gave a performance of Gounod's 'The Redemption,' in the Bermondsey Town Hall. The principal vocalists were Miss Helen Jaxon, Miss Edith Lane, Mr. Henry Franckiss, and Mr. Bertram Mills, while Miss Florence Morgan was associated with Miss Jaxon and Miss Lane in the two trios for female voices. The full orchestra and chorus, under the conductorship of Mr. John E. Borland, did excellently.

The Bishopsgate Choral and Orchestral Society gave its first concert this season, on the 13th ult., at the Bishopsgate Institute, when Mendelssohn's 'Athalie' and a miscellaneous selection were performed. The solo vocalists were Miss Kathleen Loughnan, Miss Madge Howison, Miss Alice Stroud, and Mr. Harry Greene. Mr. Arthur Trickett conducted.

The students of the South-Western Polytechnic Institute gave a concert on the 15th ult., under the direction of Mr. J. W. Ivimey, when the chief feature of the programme was Elgar's cantata 'The Banner of St. George.'

THE first concert of the season by the Bow and Bromley Choir was given at the People's Palace, on the 8th ult., when the programme included Barnby's 'Rebekah' and Mendelssohn's 'Loreley.' Miss Maggie Davies, Mr. Alfred Pinnington, and Mr. Daniel Price were responsible for the solo music. Mr. R. G. Custard was at the organ and Dr. W. Lemare conducted.

AT Union Chapel, Islington, on the 13th ult., Mendelssohn's 'Athalie' was performed by the Psalmody and Choral Class, under the direction of Mr. G. H. Betjemann. Mr. Fountain Meen presided at the organ and also gave a short organ recital.

OTHER concerts and recitals worthy of being placed on record are: The Misses Lilian Hovey and Constance Colborne's vocal and violin recital, November 29, Salle Erard.—Mr. Arthur Foxton Ferguson's vocal recital, 3rd ult., Steinway Hall.—Miss Ethel Barns and Mr. Charles Phillip's second chamber concert, 4th ult., Steinway Hall.—Miss Maud Rihll's pianoforte recital, 5th ult., St. James's Hall.—Mr. Edgar Hulland's concert, 7th ult., Steinway Hall.—Madame Blanche Marchesi's vocal and instrumental recital, 11th ult., St. James's Hall.—Miss Emma Barnett's pianoforte recital, 12th ult., St. James's Hall.—Miss Fannie Hirsch's vocal recital, 13th ult., Steinway Hall.

SUBURBAN CONCERTS.

THE West Ham Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul,' on the 4th ult. The choir and orchestra (led by Mr. Frank Bonner) consisted of about 120 performers and the solo music was safe in the hands of Madame Clara Samuell, Miss Alice Crowe, Mr. Samuel Masters, and Mr. A. H. Gee. Mr. H. T. Ellingford presided at the organ and Mr. W. Harding Bonner conducted.

THE West Norwood Choral and Orchestral Society gave its first concert this season, in the Public Hall, West Norwood, on the 13th ult., when Mendelssohn's 'Athalie' and Stanford's choral ballad 'The Revenge' constituted the programme. The choir was efficient and there was an excellent orchestra, the whole performance being very creditable. The solo vocalists were Miss Esmé Atherden (an excellent young soprano), Miss Ethel Spark, and Miss Mary Connell, the illustrative verses being admirably recited by Mr. Adrian Harley, who was warmly applauded at the end of the accompanied recitation. M. Percy S. Bright conducted with care and skill.

THE Richmond Philharmonic Society gave its first concert of the present (eleventh) season on the 12th ult., in the Pavilion of the Star and Garter. Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' Overture was played as a tribute to the memory of the departed composer. The programme included Gade's 'The Crusaders,' Max Bruch's ballad 'Fair Ellen,' and the mis-named 'Tragic' Symphony of Schubert (No. 4, in C minor). The performance was admirable. In Gade's cantata and in Max Bruch's strong and musicianly ballad the chorus reached a very high level of excellence, their singing being quite notable for intelligence and expressiveness. Mr. James Brown conducted with his usual command and individuality, and Miss Winifred Marwood, Mr. Montague Borwell, and Mr. Horace Lott were capable vocalists.

THE Dulwich Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen,' at the Crystal Palace, on the 15th ult. The choruses were sung excellently, especially as regards attack and phrasing. The soloists were Miss Maggie Davies, Mr. Gwilym Richards, Miss Bertha Salter, and Mr. Robert Maitland, of whom Mr. Maitland is specially worthy of mention. The accompaniments were fairly well played by the orchestra. Mr. Arthur Fagge was the conductor.

DR. FREDERICK G. SHINN delivered a lecture on 'Instrumental Music of the Nineteenth Century' before the Incorporated Society of Musicians (London section) at 20, Hanover Square, on the 8th ult.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Philharmonic Society gave its two usual Christmas performances of 'The Messiah,' on the 14th and 15th ult. The solo parts were sung by Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Gertrude Calvert, and Messrs. Whitworth Mitton and Andrew Black. The mere statement of the performance of this, the greatest of oratorios, is generally sufficient; but the concert of the 14th deserves more than a bald statement of the fact of performance, for at it the entire work (as in Novello's published score) was given without any 'cuts,' save in two of the solos, when the repetitions were slightly abbreviated. As a special favour Mr. Black sang the usually omitted 'Thou art gone up on high' and the second part of 'The trumpet shall sound.' The Ulster Hall was crowded in every part, as there was great local interest shown in the exceptional performance. Strange—and yet not strange—to say, scarcely anyone left until the last 'Amen,' and the generally expressed opinion was that the numbers generally omitted are as interesting and wonderful as the more familiar parts.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ON November 27 Mr. Halford's third Orchestral concert was given in the Town Hall. There was a Beethoven programme, comprising the 'Leonora' Overture (No. 3), the Violin Concerto (soloist, Mr. Willy Hess), the 'Eroica' Symphony, and the Overture to 'Egmont.' Very fine performances were secured. Mr. Hess was highly successful in the Concerto, and also played pieces by Joachim and David, to the pianoforte accompaniment of Dr. Winn. The fourth concert took place on the 11th ult., when Mr. Halford submitted a Tschaïkowsky programme. This consisted of the Overture 'L'Orage,' the 'Pathetic' Symphony, the Pianoforte Concerto (Op. 23), and the 'Sleeping Beauty' Suite (Op. 66). The first and last were new here and caused much interest. The Symphony was magnificently performed, its full significance being revealed. Miss Katie Goodson made a most successful first appearance here and her part in the Concerto was beautifully executed. Mr. Halford is really great as a conductor of Tschaïkowsky's music.

Mr. Max Mossel's second drawing-room concert was held at the Grand Hotel, on November 29. Herr Moritz Rosenthal made his début here, and created a sensation by his wonderful playing. He was assisted by M. Marix Loevensohn (violoncellist) and Miss Georgine Delmar (vocalist). The programme included the Duo-Sonata (Op. 32) for pianoforte and violoncello, Saint-Saëns; Schumann's Études Symphoniques, and Liszt's 'Don Juan' Fantasia.

The same evening the Amateur Orchestral Society gave a concert at the Midland Institute, the programme beginning with Chopin's 'Funeral March' (transcribed for orchestra), in memory of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan. This was followed by Sullivan's Overture to 'Macbeth.' The other pieces were Brahms's Symphony (No. 1) and Tschaikowsky's 'Casse-Noisette' Suite. Herr Willy Lehmann achieved a success in the Violoncello Concerto of Saint-Saëns and Mr. Arthur Fitzpatrick contributed some songs. Mr. Halford conducted.

Miss Margaret S. Holloway, a talented local violinist, pupil of M. Emile Sauret, gave a recital in the Masonic Hall, on November 30. She played Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, and, with Madame Marie Fromm, Beethoven's Sonata (Op. 24), and both artists gave solo pieces. The young violinist is an executant of a high order, and she was most successful. Mr. G. H. Manton acted as accompanist.

Mr. Wymark Stratton gave a concert in the Masonic Hall, on the 3rd ult. The programme included Beethoven's Septet and Dvorák's 'Bagatellen' (Op. 47), Mr. Stratton playing the bassoon in the former and the harmonium in the latter. He also played a pianoforte solo, and acted as accompanist. Mr. T. M. Abbott played Coleridge-Taylor's Ballade in D minor and Mr. Joseph Owen played Elgar's 'Chanson de Nuit' for violoncello. Miss Carrie James was the vocalist.

The Festival Choral Society gave a concert-recital of Gounod's 'Faust,' in the Town Hall, on the 6th ult. The vocal principals were Miss Alice Esty, Miss Lily Moody, Mr. Robert Cunningham, Mr. Louis Frölich, and Mr. Ottley Cranston. Mr. Perkins was at the organ, and Dr. Sinclair conducted. The performance was good, but not up to the Society's standard. The Ballet music was included and the orchestral playing was the finest work of the evening.

The Chamber Concert Society's second concert was given in the Masonic Hall, on the 12th ult. The executants were the same as before, but Mr. Timperley, contra-bassist, assisted in Schubert's 'Trout' Quintet, and Mrs. Helen Trust was the vocalist. Novelties here were Glazounow's Quartet for strings, 'Novellettes' (Op. 15), and Eduard Behm's Violin Sonata (Op. 15). The Max Mossel Quartet played well, and the concert was most enjoyable.

The City Choral Society held its second concert in the Town Hall, on the 13th ult. As a tribute to the late Sir Arthur Sullivan, the function opened with his 'In Memoriam' Overture, the audience standing during the performance. A fine rendering was then given of 'The Golden Legend,' the chorus showing great improvement. 'O gladsome light' and the Epilogue went especially well. The principals were Madame Amy Sherwin, Miss Emily Foxcroft, Mr. Herbert Grover, and Mr. Louis Frölich. Mr. F. W. Beard conducted.

The Saturday evening concert of the 15th ult. was devoted to Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and Mendelssohn's 'Loreley.' Madame Annie Norledge and Mr. Edwin Bryant were the soloists. The concert was much above the average of the Saturday night entertainments and there was a very large attendance. Mr. T. Facer conducted.

The School of Music, with Mr. Granville Bantock, principal, gave its terminal concert on the 15th ult., when good work was shown; and the Amateur Orchestral Society gave a second concert at the Midland Institute, on the 17th ult. The Railway Guards' Friendly Society's concert was held in the Town Hall, on the 12th ult. Mesdames Annie Norledge and Alice Gomez, Messrs. Charles Saunders and Ivor Foster (vocalists), and Messrs. W. H. Henley, Percy Hall, Arthur Cooke, and C. W. Perkins (instrumentalists), contributed to a popular programme. There was a large and appreciative audience.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE first occasion on which there was a gathering in Colston Hall after the opening concerts given by the directors was on the 5th ult., when the Bristol Post Office Band gave its annual performance. Under the direction of Mr. Clohesy the musicians played creditably some popular compositions. The vocalists were Madame De Vere Sapio, Miss Ada Crossley, and Mr. E. C. Hedmondt. There was an immense audience.

The Ladies' Night of the Society of Bristol Gleemen, on the 6th ult., at the Victoria Rooms, was the most successful in its history. Of the ninety members, few were absent, and a well arranged scheme of unaccompanied part pieces was given, the conductor being Mr. W. J. Kidner. The compositions sung by the choir for the first time were Mr. Hamilton Clarke's 'Hark! hark! the lark,' Mr. John E. West's 'Beware,' and Dr. Cowen's 'Have you seen my lady's eyes?' Miss Katherine Nash was the special vocalist. On this occasion the Gleemen used the new orchestra presented by the President, Sir Frederick Wills, M.P.

St. Anselm's Choral Society, on the 6th ult., gave a concert at All Saints' Hall, Mr. Arthur W. Merrick conducting. The programme consisted of Gade's 'Erl-King's Daughter' and a miscellaneous selection. The soloists were Miss Maude Southey, Miss Sylvia Tippett, and Mr. Arthur Jupp. Mr. Harold Bernard led the orchestra.

There was a large attendance at the Clifton Orchestral concert, held at the Victoria Rooms, on the 8th ult. The compositions presented included Schumann's Symphony (No. 1), Mozart's 'Le Nozze di Figaro' Overture, and a selection from the first act of 'Parsifal.' In the last-named selection, the chorus was sung by the members of the Clifton Choral Society. Mr. F. W. Rootham conducted.

At the Clifton Subscription Chamber concert, on the 10th ult., the performers were the Theodore Lawson Quartet, who played Dvorák's Quartet in F (Op. 96) and Haydn's in D (Op. 64, No. 5), known as 'The Lark.' Mrs. Helen Trust was the singer and delighted by the beauty of her vocalisation.

There was a large attendance, on the 12th ult., at the Merchant Venturers' Technical College, where Sir Frederick Bridge lectured on some Mozart MSS., which were interesting as showing the manner in which the master improved the efforts of his English pupil, Thomas Attwood. Facsimile copies of two MSS., supplied by Messrs. Novello, were distributed, and the lecturer recommended his hearers to read the particulars of Attwood which appeared in THE MUSICAL TIMES for December. The illustrations of the lecture were rendered by the Rev. E. H. Fellowes (first violin), Miss Trotman (second violin), Miss C. Fyffe (viola), and Mr. R. Le Duc Bucknall (violoncello), with Sir Frederick Bridge at the pianoforte.

The Weston-super-Mare Philharmonic Society, on the 3rd ult., gave a performance of 'Elijah,' at the Victoria Hall, under the direction of Mr. Edward Cook, of Bristol. There was a competent orchestra, chiefly of Bristol players. The principal vocalists were Miss Lenora Sparkes, Miss Mary Wood, Mr. Bright Jones, and Mr. Watkin Mills.

On the 13th ult. the Oriana Society, of Bristol, gave a concert at the Assembly Rooms, Weston-super-Mare, under the direction of Mr. Ulrich Jüst. Compositions for a male-voice choir with orchestra were given, and Mr. G. F. Blanchard's part-song 'The River,' dedicated to the Society and sung for the first time, produced a favourable impression.

The Bristol Choral Society, on the 15th ult., gave a performance of 'The Messiah' at Colston Hall, under the direction of Mr. George Riseley. There was a large attendance. The principal vocalists were Miss Estella Linden, Miss Edith Leslie, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Francis Harford.

The Riseley Male-Voice Choir, the most recently formed local society, gave its first concert on the 17th ult., at the Victoria Rooms. Mr. Riseley conducted a highly successful rendering of Mendelssohn's 'Antigone,' Gernsheim's 'Salamis,' and Grieg's 'Landerkennung,' Mr. Francis Harford being the solo vocalist in each work. The choir, numbering nearly 160 voices, displayed superb tone and sang with great vigour and excellent expression, and there was a competent orchestra of players from Bristol and Bath. Miss Olive Kennett and Mr. Charles Fry, who recited, were enthusiastically recalled at the conclusion of 'Antigone.'

The opening of the new Colston Hall is recorded on page 29.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE concert given by Mr. d'Alton, on November 26, was rendered exceedingly attractive by the charming singing of Madame Kirkby Lunn. The Dublin Glee and Madrigal Union sang some part-songs with admirable finish and refinement; so well, indeed, that one cannot refrain from wishing that these gentlemen would study a better class of unaccompanied music. Mr. d'Alton made a good effect in two charming songs in the second part.

Mr. Charles Kelly's annual concert took place on the 15th ult. An attractive programme was arranged, in which Miss Perceval Allen, Master Coatte, and Mr. d'Alton took part. Mr. Kelly was in very good form and sang his various solos with great effect.

Dr. Culwick's Orpheus Society gave its first concert on the 4th ult. The Society numbers over a hundred voices, and one may always expect a good performance of the various part-songs. The best of these were Danby's 'Awake, Æolian lyre,' John Ward's 'Die not, fond man,' and Bishop's 'Chough and Crow,' the soprano solo of which was sung by Miss Agnes Treacy, whose charming singing also of Stanford's beautiful song, 'There's a bower of roses,' was one of the best pieces in the programme. The conductor's 'Fairy Song' was sung by the choir, the orchestral accompaniments being played as a duet by Miss Townshend and Miss La Touche.

The second concert of the Dublin Orchestral Society was noted for the first performance in Dublin of Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' Overture, which, with Mozart's 'Jupiter' Symphony and Dvorák's 'In der Natur' were admirably performed. Massenet's effective piece for the muted strings, 'Le dernier sommeil de la Vièrge,' had to be repeated. Miss Florence Schmidt sang 'Bel raggio' very finely and an air from Mozart's 'Idomeneo' with less effect.

Signor Esposito's second recital took place on the 1st ult. Chopin's Sonata in B flat minor was the most important piece and was magnificently played. Pieces by Tschaïkowsky, Brahms, Scarlatti, and Handel were also included, and the programme concluded with Liszt's Second Rhapsodie, to which the pianist added a cadenza of his own, admirably constructed from materials of the piece.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

A musical service was held in St. Mary's Baptist Chapel, Norwich, on the 13th ult., when Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm was given by the chapel choir, with Mr. R. Lowne at the organ. The solos were sung with commendable care by Miss E. Lancum and Miss L. Plummer. The service also included Gaul's 'Eye hath not seen,' Mendelssohn's trio 'Lift thine eyes,' and several organ solos.

The first series of Dr. Bunnett's Saturday evening organ recitals were concluded on the 15th ult. On several occasions St. Andrew's Hall has been quite filled with audiences, who fully appreciated the good music provided by the vocalists and the instrumentalists engaged to give variety to Dr. Bunnett's excellent selection of organ solos.

A Nonconformist Choral Union has just been started in Norwich, conducted by Mr. R. Lowne, with Mr. F. A. Bond as organist. The Society will be managed by delegates from each choir in union, with the Rev. Dr. G. S. Barrett as president.

The Lynn Musical Society gave a very creditable performance of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' on the 12th ult., conducted by Mr. A. H. Cross. The principal vocalists were Miss Stella Maris, Miss Florence Croft, Mr. d'Arcy Clayton, and Mr. S. Heath, while a capable orchestra of forty performers, with Mr. Jones at the organ, gave a good rendering of the accompaniments.

On the following evening the Hunstanton Choral Society, a body also conducted by Mr. Cross, gave the first part of 'Elijah,' with the same soloists as sang at Lynn the previous evening.

Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was given at a special service held in Beccles Church, on November 27, which was conducted by Dr. F. Bates, organist of Norwich Cathedral. The choir, assisted by the local choral society, were responsible for the choruses, while the solos were sung by choristers P. Phillips and H. Sampson (from the London Training School for Choristers), Mr. H. Sawford Dye, and Mr. F. A. Daines, the two last-named gentlemen being members of Norwich Cathedral choir. Mr. W. W. Harvey was at the organ.

The new organ erected in the Parish Church of Hopton, near Great Yarmouth, by Mr. Eustace Ingram, of London, was opened on November 29, when Mr. Haydon Hare, organist of St. Nicholas, Great Yarmouth, gave a recital. The fine case of the old instrument has been retained.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Messrs. Paterson's fourteenth annual series of Orchestral concerts was successfully inaugurated, in the McEwan Hall, on the 3rd ult., before a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Dr. Cowen, the new conductor of the Scottish orchestra, was warmly received. Additional interest was lent to the occasion by the appearance of Mr. Moszkowski, as pianist, composer, and conductor. He played his own concerto and conducted two numbers from an orchestral suite, also of his composition.

At the third concert of the series (17th ult.) the Edinburgh Choral Union, under the direction of Mr. Collinson, gave the first performance in Scotland of Elgar's cantata 'Caractacus.' The many beauties of the striking work were well brought out in an extremely careful rendering. The orchestra gave the chorus better assistance than on any previous occasion on which the two bodies have been associated under the choral conductor, and the Choral Union members did their very best to answer every demand of their highly esteemed chief. The soloists were Miss Gleeson-White, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, Mr. Andrew Black, and Mr. Robert Burnett.

Mr. Denhof's enterprising scheme of Chamber concerts is meeting with a most encouraging amount of success, and the second concert (12th ult.) was given to an audience which quite filled the Music Hall.

The Edinburgh Musical Education Society held two meetings (November 28 and 5th ult.), at which papers were read by Mr. Franklin Peterson and Dr. Kennedy.

The Edinburgh Bach Society held its second meeting (November 27) in St. Giles's Cathedral, and the third in the Musicians' Rooms, on the 14th ult., when Mr. Franklin Peterson resigned the office of President, in consequence of his leaving Edinburgh. Mr. R. F. McEwen was elected to act as President until the close of the present session.

The Edinburgh Society of Musicians is to entertain Mr. Peterson on Saturday, 12th inst., before he leaves to take up his new duties in Melbourne.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Glasgow Amateur Orchestral Society gave a successful concert on November 27. The programme included Beethoven's 'Egmont' Overture, Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony, and Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor. The playing of the symphony was marked by great intelligence and sympathy. Mr. Frederick Dawson gave an admirable rendering of the solo part of the concerto, and Mr. W. T. Hoeck ably conducted.

Great interest centred in the opening concert of the Choral and Orchestral Union on November 29, by reason of the début of Dr. Frederic Cowen as conductor of the Scottish Orchestra. Dr. Cowen comes among a public familiar with his compositions, and perfectly cognisant of his success as a conductor in London, Liverpool, and Manchester. His reception, by an audience which completely filled St. Andrew's Hall, was most enthusiastic and cordial. The personnel of this year's orchestra is slightly changed, chiefly in the string and brass sections; but the management has succeeded in bringing together a band of musicians capable of rising to the highest level of orchestral interpretation. The programme in which Dr. Cowen elected to make his first appearance was sufficiently varied to test the conductor's versatility: Overture to 'Fidelio' in E (Beethoven); Concerto for violin and orchestra (No. 1) in G minor (Max Bruch); Harvest dance, 'Summer' (Edward German); Adagio from Violin Concerto, No. 9 (Spohr); and Symphony (No. 4) in F minor (Tschaïkowsky). On listening to the performance it was difficult to believe that conductor and band had met each other for the first time a few days before, so solid, so confident, so finished in detail was the playing. From beginning to end of the concert there was the most complete understanding between the conductor and his forces. Lady Hallé took the solo part in the Concerto and in Spohr's Adagio. Both pieces suited her admirably, and for the latter she received an enthusiastic recall. As a tribute of respect to the memory of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan, who conducted the Orchestral concerts here in 1875-6 and 1876-7, the 'Dead March' was played before the opening number of the programme.

The first Popular concert, on the 1st ult., was remarkable for a fine performance of Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 1, in F.

Miss Muriel Foster made a highly successful first appearance at this concert. At the second Subscription concert, on the 4th ult., Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was performed by the Choral Union, under the conductorship of Mr. Bradley. The chief feature of this performance was the excellence of the choral singing. The soloists were Madame Ella Russell, Miss Muriel Foster, Mr. Tom Leyland, and Mr. Daniel Price. The orchestral accompaniments were excellently played, and Mr. Berry lent judicious aid at the organ. A novelty, in the form of two movements from Mr. Percy Pitt's 'Cinderella' ballet music, a repetition of Tschaïkowsky's symphony, and the appearance of Miss Jenny Taggart, a young local soprano, were the main attractions at the Saturday 'Pop.' on the 8th ult.

The programme at the third Subscription concert, on the 11th ult., included J. S. Bach's 'Concerto for violin and orchestra of strings' (No. 1) in A minor, and Beethoven's Symphony in A. Mr. Maurice Sons, the leader of the orchestra, was most successful in his interpretation of Tartini's sonata 'Il trillo del Diavolo.'

The executive council of the Glasgow International Exhibition, 1901, are making considerable efforts in connection with music. Their desire is to make it truly international, and they have secured the services of Sousa's band from America, the Belgian Guides, and many other of the best Continental bands. The pupils of the Royal College for the Blind, Norwood, will contribute a week's performances. The best choral organisations in Glasgow and the West of Scotland have also been engaged.

During the month organ recitals have been given by Mr. Hutton Malcolm in Claremont Church, Mr. Wilby in Pollokshields East Church, Mr. D. S. Eadie in Pollokshields West Church. The choir of Govan Baptist Church gave a capital performance of Gaul's 'Ruth' on the 14th ult.

The most important choral concert of the present series took place on the 18th ult., when Elgar's 'Caractacus' was performed, for the first time in Glasgow, by the Choral Union and the Scottish Orchestra. The soloists were Miss Cicely Gleeson-White and Messrs. Lloyd Chandos, Robert Grice, and Andrew Black. The work is by far the best 'novelty' produced here for many years, and, in the preparation of it, infinite pains had evidently been bestowed. The choral singing was exceedingly fine. In the title-role Mr. Black was magnificent, and Mr. Bradley conducted with conspicuous skill.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The second concert, on the 11th ult., of the series of concerts given by Mr. Theodore Lawson, in the Philharmonic Hall, was not so well filled as one would wish to see it. Chief interest centred in the appearance of Lady Hallé, who led the Beethoven Quartet in C minor, her associates being Mr. Haydn Inwards, M. Emil Kreuz, and M. Jacques Renard, and, with Miss Fanny Davies, the already named players rendered Schumann's Quintet in E flat with conspicuous effect and artistic resource. Madame Sobrino was the vocalist.

The second concert of the Hallé Society, under the conductorship of Dr. Richter, took place on the 8th ult., in the Philharmonic Hall. A novelty, as regards Liverpool, was introduced in the Overture to 'The Barber of Bagdad,' by Cornelius. Two Wagner contributions, Dvorák's Symphony 'From the New World,' and Grieg's 'Peer Gynt' Suite filled the programme.

The concerts of the Philharmonic Society, which took place on November 20 and the 4th ult., included 'The Idyllic' Symphony by Dr. Cowen, performed for the first time in Liverpool. Miss Macintyre was the vocalist, and Miss Maud Powell played Max Bruch's Violin Concerto with warm effect. At the earlier concert (November 20) Tschaïkowsky's 'Polish' Symphony was given with full point and discernment of its intrinsic qualities. 'Elijah' was given at the sixth concert, on the 18th ult., the principal singers being Madame Ella Russell, Madame Ada Crossley, Mr. William Green, and Mr. Santley.

Concerts worthy of special notice and commendation are those given by the Schiever Quartet (under the able leadership of Mr. Ernst Schiever), assisted by that talented pianist, Miss Margie Bennett, and supported by Mr. V. Akeroyd, Mr. C. Courvoisier, and Mr. W. Hatton, on the 1st ult.; and the Liverpool Orchestral Society (under Mr. A. E. Rodewald's skilful conductorship) at the City Hall, at which Mr. Alfred Ross, a young Liverpudlian artist, gave a highly meritorious performance of the Andante and Rondo from Vieuxtemps's Concerto for the violin.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

At the Hallé concert on November 29 an admirable performance was given of the 'Faust' of Berlioz, under Dr. Richter's direction. How wise was the discrimination of Sir Charles Hallé in introducing into this country the dramatic legend is proved by the fact that at the eighteenth performance the hall was as crowded as at all the previous renderings, and as it is on a 'Messiah' or an 'Elijah' night. Mr. Andrew Black and Mr. Ben Davies were excellent, Miss Jaxon was efficient, and a student of our Royal College of Music—Mr. Fowler Burton—thoroughly proved his right to be heard. It was fitting that when Lady Hallé again appeared on the platform she so oft has graced, the gentlemen of the orchestra should rise respectfully to welcome her, as did the whole audience when she was recalled. Beethoven's Violin Concerto was never more nobly played, and Bruch's Romance in A afforded another opportunity for showing the grace and finish of her style. Dvorák's Symphony 'From the New World' was nobly interpreted. At the gathering of the 13th ult. Mr. Borwick was the soloist, and the Symphony, No. 2, of Brahms.

A good deal is, just now, being said about choral performances being confided to the care of the choir-trainer; and there is no doubt respecting the prudence of entrusting the two annual renderings of 'The Messiah' to Mr. F. H. Wilson, who has so carefully directed our Christmas oratorio in former years.

To Mr. Brodsky's meeting of the 5th ult. a special interest was imparted by the production of Mr. Dayas's new Duet for pianoforte and violoncello. Not so lengthy as the violin and pianoforte duet of two or three seasons ago, the listeners were better able to follow its meaning and design; and, with Mr. Carl Fuchs, the author was warmly recalled. The programme was completed by Dvorák's Quartet in F major (Op. 96) and Beethoven's Quintet in C (Op. 29).

Mr. Max Mayer's recitals of chamber music are always welcome, and especially when he brings back to us our old friend Willy Hess; although the early Quartet of Richard Strauss betrays a youthful inexperience of which, probably, he would now be ashamed. Many who have followed with great interest the progress of Miss Néruda's pupil, Mr. Edward Isaacs, were extremely gratified by the success of his modest undertaking at the Athenæum, on the 10th ult., when he had the assistance of his friend, Mr. Wladimir Hefft, also a youthful aspirant. To the Schiller Anstalt, Mr. Carl Fuchs brought down, on the 1st ult., Miss Maude Eisele and Herr Kruse, with Mr. Edward Iles as a vocalist; and the third Harrison Subscription concert was enlivened by the pianoforte playing of Miss St. Angelo and the skilled violin playing of Mr. William Henley.

The Vocal Society of Dr. Henry Watson gave, on the 12th ult., an excellent concert, including Byrd's five-voice Mass.

That the first appearance in oratorio of so great an artist as Madame Blanche Marchesi should excite the widest interest goes without saying, and Mr. Lane's bold enterprise could not fail to meet with highest reward. The whole interpretation of 'The Messiah,' on the 19th ult., was worthy; but Madame Marchesi rendered it altogether exceptional.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union gave its first concert of the season in Olympia, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on November 28, which proved to be an event of considerable importance. The works produced were Sullivan's 'Golden Legend' and Te Deum, which were preceded by the 'In Memoriam' Overture, as a tribute of respect to the memory of the composer. The whole of these works were exceedingly well rendered, the choral portions especially surpassing in excellence anything of the kind that has been heard in this district for a very long time. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Florence Bulleid, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Charles Tree, and Mr. Sidney Poyser, who were admirably chosen for their respective parts. Great credit is due to Mr. James M. Preston, the conductor of the Society, for the state of proficiency to which he has brought his choir and for the skilful manner in which he conducted the works performed.

Excellent service in the cause of good music is being done by the Newcastle Postal Telegraph Choral Society, which has for its president Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor, and for its conductor, Mr. J. R. Andrews. During the past six years this Society has performed many important works, its latest effort being the production of Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Death of Minnehaha,' which took place in the Town Hall, Newcastle, on the 10th ult. The performance was in every respect highly satisfactory, the singing of the choir being perhaps the most meritorious feature. The Society is to be congratulated upon being the first to introduce this delightful work to a Newcastle audience. The first part, 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' was, it will be remembered, performed last season, under the direction of the composer. The soloists on the present occasion were Miss Agnes Nicholls and Mr. W. Peacock. At the same concert Schubert's 'Song of Miriam' was performed, with Miss Agnes Nicholls in the solo part, and two part-songs, 'As torrents in summer,' from Edward Elgar's 'King Olaf,' and 'Phyllis tarries,' by Mr. C. Francis Lloyd, were charmingly sung by the choir, the latter being encored. Mr. J. R. Andrews conducted with his accustomed skill.

On the 11th ult. the South Shields Choral Society gave a performance of Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus,' under the conductorship of Mr. M. Fairs. The members of the choir were quite familiar with the well-known choruses and sang with that confidence which is so essential to success. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Bessie Furze, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Ivor Foster.

The Sunderland Philharmonic Society gave Dvorák's 'Spectre's Bride' and Schumann's 'Song of the Night' in the Victoria Hall, Sunderland, on the 12th ult., with Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. William Llewellyn in the solo parts of the first-named work. In Dvorák's work and in Schumann's delightful but rarely performed 'Song of the Night,' the singing of the choir was excellent. The orchestra also was thoroughly efficient. Mr. N. Kilburn conducted, as usual. This Society has an excellent record of forty years' good work, and deserves a much larger share of public support than it receives.

Inspired probably by the success of the Postal Telegraph Choral Society, the National Telephone Vocal Society was formed last season, and gave its second concert on the 12th ult., in the Town Hall, Newcastle, the work selected for performance being the cantata 'King Arthur,' by Mr. J. More Smieton. The soloists were Miss Maggie Wilson, Mr. Joseph Reed, and Mr. J. Browning.

Two other concerts given on the 12th ult. were those of the Gateshead Vocal Society, in the Town Hall, Gateshead, which consisted of selections from the works of Handel, with Madame Goodall, Madame Fisher Heath, Mr. Tom Child, and Mr. W. Thornton as soloists, and Mr. Newton Laycock as conductor; and the Durham Amateur Orchestral Society, in the Town Hall, Durham. In this case Miss Miriam Edwards was the vocalist and Mr. Arthur Wallerstein the conductor, the programme consisting of works by Beethoven, Grieg, Haydn, Mendelssohn, and other composers.

On the 13th ult. the Newcastle Amateur Vocal Society gave a performance of Dr. Prout's 'Alfred,' in the Town Hall, Newcastle, under the conductorship of Mr. J. E. Jeffries, and with Madame Medora Henson, Mr. Henry Brearley, and Mr. John Nutton as soloists. This Society is now in its twenty-sixth season and continues the excellent work it accomplished for many years under the direction of Dr. William Rea.

Also on the 13th ult., the Tynemouth Amateur Vocal Society made its first appearance, under its new conductor, Mr. M. Fairs, in the Albion Assembly Rooms, North Shields, and gave very creditable performances of Goring Thomas's 'The Sun-Worshippers' and Thomas Anderton's 'The Wreck of the Hesperus.' The principal vocalists were Miss Winifred Wynne, Mr. Joseph Reed, and Mr. John Duncanson.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Nottingham Orchestral concerts opened their third season on the 12th ult., with Mr. Henry J. Wood as conductor, Mr. Lyell Taylor as leader, and Madame Kirkby Lunn as vocalist. The performances throughout the programme were of the highest order, especially the second and last movements of Mendelssohn's 'Italian' Symphony and Beethoven's 'Leonora' Overture (No. 3). Madame Lunn's rendering of 'Gerechter Gott' ('Rienzi') justified the recall she received.

The Grantham Philharmonic Society gave its first performance of this season on the 6th ult. The chief pieces were Stanford's choral ballad the 'Revenge' and the 'Last Post' by the same composer. The soloists were Miss Florence Brierley and Mr. Ford Waltham, both of whom gained the approbation of the audience. The orchestra was heard to advantage in Beethoven's 'Prometheus' Overture, and great credit is due to Mr. H. P. Dickenson, the conductor.

The Mansfield Choral Society gave its first performance on the 11th ult., when the chief item of interest was Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen.' The vocalists were Madame Norledge, Mr. Renshaw, Mr. Buxton, and Mr. Ellis.

At Derby, on the 11th ult., Mr. Harold Henry's Orchestral Society commenced its ninth season with a concert of considerable interest. Mr. Henry, as solo violinist, was heard to advantage in the Allegro from David's Concerto in D, and the 'Peer Gynt' Suite (No. 1) was ably rendered; but perhaps Coleridge-Taylor's 'Dance Nègre' was the best performed piece during the evening. Miss Annie Smart proved a useful vocalist and the direction of the orchestra was in the able hands of Mr. Sydney T. Sadler.

The Melbourne Glee and Madrigal Society gave a performance of Cowen's 'Rose Maiden' on the 11th ult. The soloists were Madame Jeannie Bentley, Miss Gertrude Gill, Mr. Edgar Wollatt, and Mr. Arthur Lakin.

MUSIC IN OXFORD.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

IF we have not had quite so large a number of concerts here this Term, yet in one great essential—the quality of the music—we have been most fortunate, for this has been almost uniformly excellent. The first concert of importance took place in the Town Hall, on November 8. This was an orchestral one, under the auspices of the Musical Club, when the programme consisted of Wagner's 'Faust' Overture, Beethoven's Violin Concerto (solo, Carl Halir), and Schubert's Symphony (No. 9) in C major. The orchestra, which was that of the Royal College of Music, under Professor Stanford, maintained its usual high level of excellence.

On the 19th ult., under the auspices of the Musical Union, a Chamber concert was given in the Examination Schools, by Herr Ludwig's String Quartet, which included a fine performance of Beethoven's Quartet in A minor (Op. 132).

On the 22nd, in the same hall, the Oxford Gleemen gave their usual winter concert, consisting mostly of the old well-worn glees and part-songs.

On the 5th ult. the Professor of Music, Sir Hubert Parry, gave a very interesting lecture in the Town Hall, on 'The development of varieties of musical style.' Illustrations were given by the Professor's choir from the works of Monteverde, Stradella, and Lasso.

The excellent concerts at Balliol have gone their accustomed round, and (in consequence of the continued indisposition of Mr. J. Farmer) have been ably conducted by Dr. E. Walker.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Among the most interesting Orchestral concerts during the past month have been those given by the Sheffield Amateur Instrumental Society, on the 10th ult., under Dr. Coward (Mendelssohn's 'Italian' Symphony and Sullivan's 'Merchant of Venice' music); the Brincliffe Musical Society, directed by Mr. J. H. Parkes (Haydn's 'Clock' Symphony); the Heeley Orchestral Society (conductor, Mr. W. Chapman), and the Sheffield Orchestra (Dr. Coward). The last-named calls for more than passing mention, as it formed part of a scheme the object of which is to establish a permanent professional band in the city. Under Dr. Coward's able direction, Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, Sterndale Bennett's 'Naiades' Overture, Cowen's 'Language of Flowers,' and Wagner's 'Ride of the Valkyries' were performed. Miss Violet Simpson and Mr. J. Lycett were the vocalists. At Rotherham the re-organised Orchestral Society played an excellent programme, which included two of Mozart's overtures and Haydn's Second Symphony. Mr. T. Brameld conducted.

The Doncaster Musical Society opened its thirteenth season on the 11th ult., when the 'Spring' section of Haydn's 'Seasons' and 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' were performed, under the baton of Mr. T. Brameld. Vigorous and expressive chorus singing was a feature of the concert. The principals were Miss L. Brooks, Mr. H. Brearley, and Mr. R. Crawshaw. Mr. Charles Reasbeck led the band and Mr. H. Moore was at the organ.

The Sheffield Male Glee and Madrigal Society made two appearances during the month, singing on the 3rd ult. at the Albert Hall, when, in conjunction with Madame Albani and Mr. Douglas Powell, it sang a selection from 'Tannhäuser,' including the 'Pilgrims' chorus,' which was given with fine effect; and later, on the 13th ult., winning fresh laurels at its ordinary Winter Subscription concert. On the latter occasion the programme included Mendelssohn's 'To the sons of art,' Stainer's 'Bind my brows,' and a number of shorter pieces. Miss Margaret Cooper and Miss Ethel Griffith were the soloists and Mr. J. A. Rodgers conducted.

Reference should be made to the excellent performance of Mr. Elgar's 'Caractacus' given by the Sheffield Choral Union, on November 29, too late in the month for notice in the last issue. The work was performed in the Albert Hall, under Mr. S. Suckley, and was warmly received by a large audience. The chorus singing gave evidence of painstaking preparation, and the principals, Madame Goodall, Mr. Tom Child, Mr. J. Browning, and Mr. T. C. Fagg acquitted themselves with credit. Mr. Phillips was at the organ. The orchestra played the overtures to 'William Tell' and 'Tannhäuser.'

The Norton Lees Choral Society gave Mr. Elgar's 'King Olaf' on the 14th ult., in praiseworthy style, and performed its task with credit to itself and Mr. Horace Reynold, who conducted. The principals were Miss Ethel Bird, Mr. J. Farnsworth, and Dr. C. H. Cairns, and Mr. A. Farnsworth accompanied.

The performance of 'St. Paul,' by the Sheffield Amateur Musical Society, on the 18th ult., was in some respects the best thing the Society has done, the choir singing with pure, full tone and working up to a number of imposing climaxes in several of the more elaborate choruses. Mr. Schollhammer conducted, Mr. John Peck led an excellent orchestra, and Mr. J. W. Phillips rendered invaluable service at the organ. The soloists were Miss Maggie Jaques, Miss A. Whitehead, Mr. H. Brearley, and Mr. J. Lycett.

At Barnsley, the St. Cecilia Society does admirable work under Dr. Coward, and in its performance of Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' (complete), on the 18th ult., it scored another success. The solos were sung by Miss Alice Esty, Mr. Gregory Hast, and Mr. Charles Copland. Mr. G. W. Buckley led a capable orchestra.

The St. Peter's (Abbeydale) Choral Society gave a successful concert on the 10th ult., performing Mendelssohn's 'Walpurgis Night' and 'Hear my Prayer,' under Mr. Wm. Gadsby.

The Baslow Choral Society (Mr. E. U. Ireland, conductor) performed Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus' on the 19th ult., and on the same date the newly-formed Penistone and District Choral Society gave its initial concert under Mr. James Cooper, singing selections from 'The Messiah' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer.'

MUSIC IN STAFFORDSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Albrighton Choral Society recently gave its first concert of the season in the Assembly Room. The performance was very successful and there was a large audience. The first part of the programme consisted of Roland Rogers's cantata 'The Garden.' In this Miss Ella Field was heard to advantage in the solo, 'Oh! the sunny day has fled,' and in several duets with Mr. W. Whitehouse. The band and chorus were under the conductorship of Mr. Ernest Darby.

The Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society opened its thirty-third season on November 29, under circumstances which must have evoked mixed feelings, for not only has the Society itself had to mourn the death of its popular conductor, the late Dr. Heap, but the main feature of the concert was one of the noblest works of Sir Arthur Sullivan. On this occasion Mr. Henry J. Wood, the successor to Dr. Heap, made his début before a Wolverhampton audience and fully bore out his high reputation. Sullivan's chorus from the 'Martyr of Antioch,' 'Brother, thou art gone before us,' was sung as a mark of respect to the memory of the late conductor, Dr. Swinnerton Heap. To this succeeded Sullivan's 'Golden Legend.' The principals were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Alice Lakin, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Daniel Price. Mr. John Shinton, a member of the Society, also took a small part. Seldom, if ever, was the choir in such magnificent form and voice. Mr. Wood was heartily cheered at the close.

The Stafford Choral Union gave a good performance of 'The Messiah' on the 18th ult.

MUSIC IN WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Cardiff Musical Society gave its first concert for the season on November 28, when the 'Spectre's Bride' (Dvorák) and the 'Revenge' (Stanford) were performed, the soloists being Madame Sobrino, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. David Hughes. Mr. Aylward conducted with his accustomed care and ability, the performances being of high merit throughout. During the interval Handel's Dead March in 'Saul' was played on the organ in memory of Sir Arthur Sullivan.

On November 29 the third of a series of organ recitals was given by Dr. Arthur Bly, at Llandaff Cathedral, the programme including compositions by Schumann, Sullivan, Guilmant, Saint-Säens, Wagner, Tschaïkowsky, Bairstow, and Widor. Mr. J. Lane Herbert contributed two solos from 'Elijah.' These recitals have drawn large congregations and are evidently much appreciated.

Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was very successfully rendered at Barry, Glamorganshire, on the 12th ult., by the local choral society, under the baton of Mr. W. T. Samuel, and an effective orchestra, led by Mr. Paul Draper and Mr. A. G. Roberts. The solo parts were entrusted to Miss Drinkwater, Miss Rachel Thomas, Miss Rees, Mr. Todd Jones, and Mr. David Hughes, whose singing of the part of the Prophet was, as usual, of a very high order.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

LEEDS.

Leeds has been distinguished during the past month by two choral concerts of exceptional excellence which may be said to indicate that competition is sometimes as good for art as it is proverbially declared to be for trade. On November 21 the Philharmonic Society gave a most interesting performance of Dr. Stanford's 'Elegiac Ode,' than which he has written nothing that may so advisedly be styled 'charming.' There are certainly very few works by native composers that are so fresh in melody, so refined in colour, and so fragrant in feeling. The composer has been genuinely inspired by Walt Whitman's poetic imagery and musical, though irregular, diction, and an opportunity of hearing a work that has been unduly neglected was very welcome, especially in view of a remarkably good performance, in which Miss Agnes Nicholls was the soloist. The 'Prologue in Heaven' from Boito's 'Mefistofele' gave variety to the concert, and the highly original music, perhaps bizarre, but undoubtedly impressive, was enjoyable on its own account. Mr. Andrew Black's fine declamation of the part of Mefistofele was a striking feature of the performance, in which Dr. Stanford had taken great pains. The concert ended with a really fine rendering of the Choral Symphony, in which the joint efforts of the Philharmonic chorus and the Hallé Orchestra marked the Society's highest achievement, and one that has, on the whole, never been surpassed at Leeds, even on the three occasions when the work has been heard at Leeds Festivals. Miss Ada Crossley and Mr. Lloyd Chandos completed the quartet of soloists. A week later, on November 28, the Leeds Choral Union undertook the whole of Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' Trilogy. Conducted by the composer himself, the work met with what was probably the best performance it has yet had. The choir, though a very large one, sang with spirit and great beauty of tone, while their close acquaintance with the music must be placed to the credit of their ordinary conductor and trainer, Mr. Benton. The soloists were Miss Evangeline Florence, Mr. Brearley, and Mr. Black. Though on a much smaller scale, a concert by the St. Chad's Choral Society, under Mr. H. P. Richardson, must be singled out for especial notice, since it revived an almost unknown Handelian work: the incidental music written for Smollett's 'Alceste.' Like every Handelian revival, it revealed some interesting features, and was efficiently performed.

The other concerts of the month require only a brief chronicle. Miss Eisele, a well-known Leeds pianist, gave a good programme of chamber music on the 3rd ult., being assisted by the Schiever Quartet in works by Saint-Saëns, Beethoven, and Brahms (the Pianoforte Quintet in F minor). On the 10th ult. Miss Edith Robinson, the Manchester violinist, gave a very pleasant concert, Miss Fanny Davies appearing as pianist and Mr. Fröhlich as vocalist. The third of the Messrs. Haddock's 'Musical Evenings,' on the 11th ult., introduced Liza Lehmann's now well-known song-cycle, 'In a Persian Garden,' which was sung with moderate success by Madame Amy Sherwin, Miss E. Foxcroft, Mr. Mandego Jackson, and Mr. W. Llewellyn; with Mr. H. D. Thomas as accompanist. Mr. Liebling was the pianist and Mr. Clensy played some violin solos. The Leeds Symphony Society gave a concert on the 17th ult., under Mr. Grimshaw's conductorship, the chief thing in the programme being Schumann's 'Rhenish' Symphony, played with moderate success by the orchestra, which is largely amateur in its composition. Miss G. M. Dawson played one of Mozart's violin concertos and Miss Ada Beecroft was the vocalist.

BRADFORD.

The second of the Subscription concerts, which took place on November 23, was of the miscellaneous order, but of more artistic interest than is generally implied by this description. Not only were the songs that were sung by Miss Palliser, Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Denham Price well chosen, but these artists, perfectly accompanied by Mr. Henry Bird, gave a really brilliant performance of the 'Persian Garden' cycle. Miss Maud Powell's artistic violin playing and Mr. Rosenthal's extraordinary technical achievement as a pianist were the other features of the concert. The next concert of the series was on the 7th ult., when 'The Messiah' was given. It is understood that this was chosen as the fittest work to celebrate the close of the century, and, though there is nothing very distinctive in one more added to the innumerable 'Messiah' performances in the West Riding at this season, it is certainly a striking testimony to the enduring vitality of an oratorio written more than a century and a half ago. This occasion was interesting as being the farewell of Mr. Edward Lloyd, with whom was associated the veteran, Mr. Santley, whose singing was quite remarkable for its power and artistry. The chorus of the Bradford Festival Choral Society sang well, if not brilliantly, and the Hallé Orchestra had an easy task. Dr. Cowen conducted, his reading of the music following the accepted lines.

On the 15th Dr. Cowen, who has done much for music in Bradford of late years, conducted the Permanent Orchestra's concert, at which the first three movements of Raff's 'Lenore' Symphony were played with much fire, the strings being particularly good. Mr. Landon Ronald's clever and attractive 'Suite de Ballet' was also introduced to Yorkshire. The vocalists were Miss Palliser and Mr. W. Green. After the concert the Society presented its conductor with a handsome testimonial in recognition of his having been raised to the Doctorate.

On the 4th ult. Miss Annie Robinson, a young pianist of very exceptional promise, gave a most successful recital, her programme showing command over an extraordinary range of styles and periods. She was assisted by Miss Wehner, an artistic singer, whose name was inadvertently mentioned in our last in connection with Miss Lummert's concert, in which she took no part.

OTHER YORKSHIRE TOWNS.

The two Huddersfield Subscription concerts that have taken place during the past four weeks do not need criticism. The Glee and Madrigal Society, conducted by Mr. Ibeson, gave one of its programmes of concerted vocal music on the 11th ult. At Dewsbury the Choral Society, which is less active this season than it has been of late, gave a miscellaneous concert on November 26, singing Schubert's 'Miriam's Song' and a tuneful little cantata, 'Spring,' by a local amateur, the Rev. J. F. Downes. Mr. Rawdon Briggs's string quartet party and Madame Bertha Moore gave variety to the concert, which was conducted by Mr. T. L. Chadwick. The Morley Choral Society, under Mr. Alfred Benton, gave Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's three 'Hiawatha' cantatas on November 29. The performance was a very plucky one, though Mr. Benton's tempi differed in several cases from the composer's. Madame Sadler Fogg, Mr. Brearley, and Mr. Uttley were the principals. At Keighley the Musical Union opened its season on November 27 with 'Judas Maccabæus,' which was efficiently performed under Mr. J. B. Summerscales, who is also conductor of the Keighley Orchestral Society, at whose concert, on the 12th ult., Beethoven's 'Eroica' Symphony was most creditably given. Miss May Mukle was the violoncellist and Miss Palliser the vocalist. The Pudsey Choral Union chose 'Elijah' for its concert, on November 26. The soloists were Madame Storer, Miss Ramsden, Mr. T. Child, and Mr. Lightowler, and Mr. Albert Jowett conducted. One of the excellent Wakefield Chamber concerts, which are organised by an enthusiastic lady amateur, took place on November 22, when a remarkably brilliant rendering of Brahms's Pianoforte Trio in C minor (Op. 101) was given by Miss K. Goodson, Miss Maud Powell, and Mr. M. Loevensohn, all of whom contributed solos, while Mr. Lawrence Rea proved a highly artistic vocalist.

At Harrogate a Sullivan programme was given, on November 30, by the Choral Society, which has made very satisfactory progress since Mr. C. L. Naylor became its conductor. The 'Golden Legend' was the chief composition and was effectively given. Of the soloists, Miss Agnes Nicholls and Mr. Charles Tree (Lucifer) were the most efficient. York has been unusually active in musical matters of late. On November 26 the Musical Union gave a chamber concert, Mr. Kruse's excellent quartet party being the artists. On the 1st ult. Mrs. Burrell and Miss Bigge gave a very pleasant concert in aid of the Minster organ fund, which now, owing in large measure to the activity of the York ladies, reaches about £4,000. On the 6th the Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. T. T. Noble, gave a concert, of which Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony and a Mozart concerto (with Mr. Padel as pianist) were the principal features. The Musical Society is now also under

Mr. Noble's direction, and gave, on the 11th ult., the first performance in York of the "Wedding-Feast" and 'Death of Minnehaha,' with Miss Atherden, Mr. W. Green, and Mr. J. Sandbrook as principals. Mr. Noble's conducting was marked by much vivacity and energy, and he will undoubtedly increase the efficiency of the society. On the 8th ult. Miss Edith Robinson gave a concert in York similar to that which has been already chronicled at Leeds. At Malton an interesting Chamber concert was given on the 17th ult., by Miss Wheelhouse, a violinist of the Joachim school. She was assisted by Miss Alderson-Smith (violoncello), Miss Bigge (pianoforte), and Miss McLaughlin (vocalist).

At Scarborough a concert was given, on the 4th ult., by Dr. Ely's Select Choir, Elgar's cantata 'The Black Knight' being followed by a miscellaneous selection; and, on the 10th, one of Messrs. Cass and Owen Williams's Chamber concerts took place, quartets by Mendelssohn and Schumann being included in an interesting programme.

The Scarborough Choral Union gave 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and Cowen's 'Rose Maiden,' on the 14th ult., Mr. Pitcher conducting, and Miss Raper, Mr. Brearley, and Mr. John Browning being the principals. A MS. overture by the conductor was an interesting feature of the concert.

FOREIGN NOTES.

BAYREUTH.—Siegfried Wagner has completed the score of a new opera, 'Herzog Wildfang,' to which he has likewise written the libretto. It is to be first produced in the course of the present month at the Munich Royal Theatre.

BREMEN.—The first performance took place, on November 29, at the Stadt-Theater, of a new three-act opera by Alexander von Fielitz, a composer already well-known in German musical circles. The work, entitled 'Das stille Dorf' ('The quiet village'), is founded upon a popular story by R. Baumbach, the score being highly effective and replete with tuneful melody. It was received with great favour.

BUDAPEST.—At the second Philharmonic concert of the present season a new orchestral suite, entitled 'In the Hungarian style,' by Akos von Buttykay, proved a clever and effective work, which was received with much favour. ——A new opera, entitled 'Rosamunda,' by Vavrinecz, was brought out at the Royal Opera, last month, and achieved a brilliant success, such as has been vouchsafed hitherto to no national composer here, with the exception of Erkel and Goldmark.

CAMPINAS (BRAZIL).—A monument, the requisite funds for which (300,000 francs) have already been fully subscribed, is about to be erected here to Carlos Gomes, composer of 'I Guarany,' and the only native musician who has hitherto achieved a European reputation.

DARMSTADT.—A new symphonic poem, entitled 'Zwei Königskinder,' by the well-known Mayence conductor, Fritz Volbach, was produced last month for the first time, at a Symphony concert of the Court orchestra, under the composer's direction, and received with great favour.

LEIPZIG.—The Riedel-Verein opened its new season with the performance, on November 18, of 'The Messiah' (Dr. Chrysander's version), and, on November 21, of Bach's 'Hohe Messe,' the latter occasion being rendered special on account of its being the 250th concert given by this excellent society. The Riedel-Verein was founded in 1854, and has been the first to institute annually recurring performances of Bach's stupendous Mass. Both the works referred to received an admirable interpretation, under Dr. Georg Goebler's direction, the solo parts being in very able hands, and Herr Paul Homeyer ably holding the important post of organist. Heinrich Zöllner's 'Die versunkene Glocke' was produced at the Stadt-Theater for the first time last month with marked success.

MOSCOW.—A new opera, 'King Soltan,' by Rimsky-Korsakoff, was brought out at the Imperial Opera last month, and very favourably received.

PARIS.—Under the name of Opéra Populaire, a new lyrical stage has been added to the theatres of the metropolis. It was opened, on November 27, with the performance of Gounod's 'La Reine de Saba,' a work which had not been heard in Paris since its first production in 1862, and, having been well mounted, it achieved a measure of success.—— On the 1st ult. the excellent choir and orchestra of the Schola Cantorum, under the direction of M. Ch. Bordes, gave the first of a series of three performances devoted to Johann Sebastian Bach, a composer as yet but little known and appreciated by the generality of French amateurs. The programme included the cantata 'Alles nur nach Gottes willen' and the Pianoforte Concerto in A, the latter ably played by Mdlle. Berth Duranton. M. Guilmant was the organist.

PRAGUE.—A posthumous opera, in three acts and a prologue, by the recently deceased national composer, Zdenko Fibich, was produced for the first time, last month, at the Czech National Theatre, with great success. The work is entitled 'Pád Arkuna,' a Sclavonic subject, effectively treated by the librettist, Agnes Schulz, who also wrote the books of several others of the same composer's operas. The performance, under the direction of Capellmeister Kovarovic, a pupil of Fibich, was an excellent one, and the audience were most enthusiastic.

PRESSBURG.—In the presence of a very numerous congregation, including many well-known musicians, Beethoven's 'Missa Solemnis' was performed on November 28, at the Krönungs Dom, in connection with the celebration of High Mass. This is believed to have been the first occasion on which that sublime work has been used in association with the liturgy of the Roman Catholic Church.

SONDERSHAUSEN.—A new Symphony in D minor, with the motto 'Durch Kampf zum Sieg,' by Carl Kleemann, was produced with considerable success at a recent concert of the Hofcapelle, under Professor Schroeder's direction.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE good work of the Oxford House Musical and Dramatic Association, to which we have already called attention, continues to make satisfactory progress. The choir has now over 100 members, drawn from all classes of working people. At a performance of 'The Messiah,' on the 15th ult., with full orchestral accompaniment, the Bishop of Stepney gave an address on Hooliganism. It is very gratifying to learn that some 16,000 persons were present at the twenty-eight performances during last winter. Mr. Mr. A. P. Charles, Excelsior Hall, Bethnal Green, is the hon. secretary.

THE 'Programme for 1901' of the Stratford Musical Festival (founded in 1883) is, as usual, an interesting document, which gives evidence of the continued vitality and success of this competitive undertaking. The various contests are announced to be held in the Town Hall, Stratford, on March 18, 20, 22, and 23. As heretofore, the energetic Secretary is Mr. J. Graham, 70, Dacre Road, Upton Manor.

'A WALTHEW CONCERT,' consisting entirely of the compositions of Mr. Richard H. Walthew, formed (on November 25) one of the series of the South Place Sunday Popular Concerts. The new compositions by the rising young composer performed on this occasion included a String Quartet in E minor and Drei Intermezzi for violin and pianoforte.

THE orchestra of the Nonconformist Choir Union will resume its Saturday afternoon rehearsals, at 3 p.m., on the 5th inst., in Essex Hall, Essex Street, Strand. Mr. T. R. Croger is the conductor.

THE Orchestral Association has removed from 39 to 28, Gerrard Street, Soho, where the Society has acquired more suitable premises for the carrying on of its important work.

MESSRS. S. AND P. ERARD have recently opened additional showrooms at 189, Regent Street.

THE current issue of the School Music Review contains an article (with music type examples) on '"O hush thee, my babie" (Sullivan)—A study in arrangements.'

OBITUARY.

HEINRICH PORGES, the distinguished Munich musician and critic, whose death, at the age of sixty-three, occurred in that city on November 17, was a native of Prague. He was editor for some time of the Neue Zeitschrift fur Musik, the journal founded by Schumann, and upon taking up his residence in the Bavarian capital he became the highly influential musical critic of several leading journals there. Both in his numerous writings and in his double capacity of professor at the Royal Musikschule and conductor of a choral society founded by him, the deceased artist proved himself throughout an enthusiastic exponent and consistent champion of the works of Berlioz, Liszt, and Wagner. He took a leading part in the foundation of the Bayreuth Theatre, assisted in the rehearsals for the original 'Nibelungen' representations, and in 1882 was chorus-master in the 'Parsifal' performances, his admirable training of the flower maidens in the last-named drama causing the poet-composer humorously to bestow upon Porges the name of 'Blumenvater,' which clung to him through the remainder of his distinguished career.

On the 13th ult., at 5, Stanford Road, Kensington, WENTWORTH LINDSAY COLE, aged sixty-four years. Mr. Cole, who was for many years connected with the management of the Royal Albert Hall, took an important part in the establishment of the Royal Choral Society and of the Royal Amateur Orchestral Society, and rendered Messrs. Novello invaluable aid in their series of daily concerts in the Royal Albert Hall in 1873 and 1874.

On November 26, at 30, Cranley Gardens, ELIZA PUDSEY, widow of the late Sir Charles Freake, Bart., of Cromwell House, South Kensington. Only four days before her death Lady Freake sent a wreath to be placed on the coffin of her old friend and protégé, Sir Arthur Sullivan.

The death of Mr. HENRY RUSSELL is referred to in another column.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A CORK CORRECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

SIR,—Referring to your Belfast notes in the current number, I beg leave to state that the 'Martyr of Antioch' was performed in Cork by the local Musical Society some time between the year 1880—the year of its publication—and 1882, under the conductorship of Dr. J. C. Marks. As a boy soprano, I lent my puny aid to that performance, and had also the pleasure of being a unit in the Belfast Philharmonic Chorus (as a bass), on the 16th ult.—a unique experience. With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

G. C. JEFFERYES.

136, Fitzroy Avenue, Belfast,
December 10, 1900.

[We are able to supply, from THE MUSICAL TIMES, Mr. Jefferyes with the exact date of the Cork performance to which he refers, and at which he lent his aid. It took place in the Assembly Rooms, Cork, on March 15, 1882, when the solo vocalists were Mrs. T. Wood, Mrs. Murphy, Mr. J. H. Scott, Mr. J. Sullivan, and Mr. E. Herbert. The foregoing information, and the fact that Dr. Marks conducted, is duly recorded in the issue of this journal for April, 1882.—ED., M.T.]

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ADELAIDE.—Gounod's 'Redemption' was performed by the Choral Society, assisted by the Adelaide Grand Orchestra, on October 4. The performance was under the direction of Mr. C. J. Stevens, who was the first to introduce the work here—some eleven years since. The choir numbered 250 voices and it was evident throughout that the work had been most carefully rehearsed, the choir showing great power and precision, and the orchestra (led by Mr. A. C. Quin) being highly efficient. The solo vocalists were Misses Guli Hack, Ethel Hack, and Emily Lyall; Messrs. J. Chamberlain, F. G. H. Allen, J. J. Virgo, P. Dawson, and W. S. Deane. Mr. J. M. Dunn presided at the organ, and Mr. C. J. Stevens, who conducted, is to be congratulated on a very successful performance.

ALL SAINTS', PETERSHAM (SYDNEY, N.S.W).—The thirtieth anniversary of the dedication of the above church was held with befitting solemnity on November 1. The anthems were 'Give thanks, O Israel,' by Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, and 'I will sing of the mercies of the Lord for ever.' A distinct improvement was noticed in the singing, and the marking of light and shade was observed with commendable care and taste. The ordinary choir was augmented by St. James's choir, Sydney, All Saints' Mission Church, and portions of other church choirs, which made altogether about 125 strong. Mr. William T. Wood, hon. choirmaster, conducted; Mr. William Angus, organist of All Saints', ably presided at the organ; Mr. Arthur Mason, organist of St. James's, Sydney, playing the concluding voluntary.

BANBURY.—The first concert of the Banbury Philharmonic Society was given on the 11th ult., when the programme included 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' (Coleridge-Taylor), 'Elizabeth's Prayer' (Wagner), and the 'Hymn of Praise' ('Lobgesang') (Mendelssohn). Mr. Coleridge-Taylor conducted his own work, which was most enthusiastically received, and Mr. W. L. Luttman (conductor of the Society) directed the band and chorus through the rest of the programme. The band and chorus numbered 175 performers, and Miss Amy Sargeant and Mr. Henry Franckiss were the vocalists.

BARNSTAPLE.—The first concert this season of the Musical Festival Society took place in the Music Hall, on the 3rd ult., when Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' was performed (for the first time here), together with Dr. Edwards's fine motet 'Praise to the holiest' and a miscellaneous selection. Mr. Henry Beaumont gave the solo in 'Hiawatha' and Madame Emily Squire that in the motet. The choir sang excellently throughout, and the orchestra played the accompaniments in the two choral works and some overtures very brilliantly. Dr. Edwards conducted, and the performance was entirely successful.

BISHOP'S STORTFORD.—The fourth concert of the Musical Union took place on November 28, the chief feature of the programme being Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' which was very creditably rendered by choir and orchestra. The solo vocalists were Miss Zippora Monteith, Miss Adelaide Lambe, and Mr. Samuel Masters. Mr. A. Eaglefield Hull conducted.

BURY.—The members of the New Road Congregational Church choir gave a performance of Handel's 'Samson' on the 4th ult. The choir, which numbered over sixty voices, sang with intelligence and precision. The soloists were Miss N. S. Cummins, Madame Ellen Schofield, Mr. Thurgate Simpson, Mr. Frank Barker, and Mr. Jesse Lee. Mr. J. A. Meale presided at the organ, and Mr. George Webb, who conducted, deserves much credit for his care in training the choir.

CHELMSFORD.—The Musical Society gave a good performance of 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and the 'Death of Minnehaha,' in the Corn Exchange, on the 11th ult. The solo parts were undertaken by Miss Esther Palliser, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Lawrence Rea. The band (led by Mr. G. H. Wilby) and chorus comprised over 100 performers, and Mr. F. R. Frye conducted.

CHORLTON-CUM-HARDY.—The first concert by the Choral Society this season took place on the 8th ult., in the Public Hall, when Handel's 'Samson' was performed. The solo vocalists were Miss Nellie Teggin, Madame Barker, Mr. Harry Berrey, and Mr. Fowler Burton. Miss A. M. Norquoy and Mr. G. F. Walter presided at the pianoforte and organ respectively, and, in addition, this accompaniment was augmented by a small string band. The choruses were sung with precision, under the direction of Mr. T. M. Ferneley.

Coventry.—The Musical Society gave a performance of Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus,' in the Corn Exchange, on the 4th ult. The choir displayed satisfactory results of its training by the conductor, Mr. Hoyle, the choruses, 'Fallen is the foe' and 'See, the conquering hero,' especially being sung with much vigour and expression. The orchestra was also excellent. The soloists were Madame Siviter, Miss Alice Lakin, Mr. Herbert Grover, and Mr. S. J. Bishop. Mr. W. Aubrey Edwards was at the organ.

Darlington.—The Darlington Choral Society was founded in 1856 and the Orchestral Society in 1878. This year an amalgamation has been effected between the two societies and the first combined concert was given in the Drill Hall on the 13th ult. The programme included Rossini's 'L'Italiana' and Gounod's 'Mirella' Overtures; Beethoven's Symphony, No. 2, in D; Dvorák's Sclavonic Dances, Nos. 1 and 4; Serenade for strings (Pierne); Hungarian March from 'Faust' (Berlioz), and the March and Chorus from 'Tannhäuser.' The choir was heard in Gaul's part-song 'The silent land' and Bishop's 'Now tramp.' Madame Goodall was the solo vocalist and Mr. T. Henderson conducted.

Exeter.—Mr. Bishop is doing excellent work here in his efforts to establish concerts of high artistic merit, as indicated by the fact that the programmes of the afternoon and evening concerts, given on November 23, included Beethoven's Trio (Op. 97) and Tschaïkowsky's Trio in A minor, performed by Mr. W. Henley, Mr. Marix Loevensohn, and Mr. Arthur Cooke. So good an enterprise deserves, if it does not command, success.——The Oratorio Society gave two concerts on the 14th ult., in the Victoria Hall. In the afternoon, Dr. H. J. Edwards's oratorio 'The Ascension' was performed, and received an excellent interpretation under the direction of the composer. The solo vocalists were Madame Emily Squire, Miss Fanny Emerson, Mr. Reginald Brophy, and Mr. W. Llewellyn. The programme also included Professor Stanford's 'The Last Post'; and Sullivan's 'Brother, thou art gone before us,' in memory of the late composer. In the evening 'The Messiah' was performed.

Frizinghall.—Haydn's 'Creation' was creditably performed by the Choral Society, on the 4th ult., in Aireville Road Church, under the direction of Mr. Fitton. Mr. J. H. Patrick presided at the organ, and the solo vocalists were Miss Maud Sugden, Mr. F. Fallas, and Mr. W. Roberts.

Gloucester.—The Choral Society scored a great success in its production of Coleridge-Taylor's complete trilogy, 'Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha,' on the 4th ult. The choir, which has received a large accession of members since last season, sang with great spirit and admirable expression. The members seemed impressed throughout with evident appreciation of the beauties of the work, which they sang con amore, and great credit attaches to Mr. A. Herbert Brewer for his admirable training and spirited conducting. The orchestra, led by Mr. E. G. Woodward, was also excellent. The solo vocalists were Miss Adelaide Mullen, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Robert Grice. The cantata was preceded by a concert-overture in A, composed by Mr. J. W. G. Hathaway, which was played with much spirit.

Hull.—An interesting ceremony took place in the Vestry of St. Mary's Parish Church, at the close of the morning service on Advent Sunday, when Mr. Walter Porter, who on that day completed his twenty-fifth year as organist and choirmaster, was presented by the choirmen with a walnut revolving bookcase in commemoration of the event.

Leicester.—The New Musical Society gave a successful performance of Handel's 'Samson' on November 29. The choir sang with precision and vigour, reflecting much credit on their conductor, Mr. Hancock. The solo vocalists were Madame Annie Norledge, Miss Ethel le Marchant, Mr. C. Saunders, and Mr. Charles Knowles, the last-named artist being specially successful in 'Honour and arms.'

Lincoln.—The autumn concert of the Lincoln Musical Society, of which Dr. G. J. Bennett (organist of the Cathedral) is hon. conductor, took place in the Drill Hall, on November 28. The first part of the evening was devoted to the performance of Handel's 'Acis and Galatea,' which was received with every sign of satisfaction by a crowded and fashionable house. There was a full orchestra (leader, Mr. Edward O'Brien) and a chorus of upwards of 200 performers. The soloists were Madame Bertha Rossow, Mr. William Green, and Mr. Charles Woodward (of the Cathedral choir), all of whom greatly distinguished themselves. A notable feature of the choral singing was the rendering of 'Wretched lovers,' which was given with splendid volume of tone and admirable precision. The second part of the programme included a fine performance of P. Cornelius's ballad 'Die Vatergruft,' the solo being sung by the Rev. H. A. Tapsfield, priest-vicar of the Cathedral, who has just been appointed to a minor Canonry at St. Paul's Cathedral. The orchestra contributed Mendelssohn's 'Ruy Blas' Overture, two movements from Delibes's ballet 'Sylvia,' and Rubinstein's ballet music from 'Feramors.'

Manchester.—The Whalley Range Choral Society gave its first concert of the season, on November 26, at the Whalley Range High School. Sullivan's oratorio 'The Prodigal Son' occupied the first portion of the programme and the choruses, on the whole, were admirably rendered. The second portion consisted of miscellaneous items, including Leslie's 'Lullaby of Life' and Elgar's 'It comes from the misty ages,' the latter of which was specially appreciated by the audience. In memory of Sir Arthur Sullivan, Mendelssohn's Choral from 'St. Paul,' 'To Thee, O Lord, I yield my spirit,' was sung at the commencement of the concert. Mr. Harold Elveston presided at the pianoforte and Mr. Oliver West at the organ. Mr. John Browning conducted.

Port Elizabeth.—Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' was sung at St. Augustine's Roman Catholic Church on November 22. The choir and orchestra numbered fifty performers, almost entirely consisting of resident amateurs, conducted by Mr. C. W. Smart, organist of the church. Such performances deserve far better support than the one referred to received.

Portland.—The Choral Society gave its eighth concert in the Jubilee Hall, on the 5th ult., when a selection from Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus' was given, under the able conductorship of Mr. Matthew W. Loam, the choir singing with firmness and spirit. The soloists were Miss Ethel Beetlestone and Messrs. Dean Trotter and Norman Kendall. A small orchestra (selected from several naval bands here and led by Mr. Alec Stone) acquitted itself well. Mrs. M. W. Loam accompanied on the pianoforte and Mr. W. H. Markham Lee was at the organ.

Portsmouth.—The choice of Coleridge-Taylor's 'The Song of Hiawatha' (Parts 1 and 2) for performance by the Borough of Portsmouth Philharmonic Society at its recent concert was fully justified, as a repetition of the work is already contemplated. The singing of the chorus, under the excellent direction of Mr. W. Monk Gould (hon. conductor to the Society), was deserving of highest praise, and the orchestra, with Mr. Matthew Lewis as leader, gave a good account of themselves in performing the bright and picturesque accompaniments to the work. The soloists were Madame Bertha Moore, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Francis Harford. The concert—the first of the twentieth season—which took place in the Town Hall, on the 13th ult., was crowned with success.

Preston.—The first concert given this season by the Choral Society took place on the 10th ult., when the programme included Parry's 'Blest Pair of Sirens,' Schubert's 'Song of Miriam,' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer,' the solo parts in the last two works being superbly sung by Madame Ella Russell. The choir sang with excellent expression, the voices being admirably balanced, and the orchestra was fully efficient, both in the accompaniment of the choral work and in the performance of Mendelssohn's 'Italian' Symphony, Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' Overture, and Mackenzie's 'Benedictus.' Mr. E. Richardson was at the organ and Mr. Risegari conducted with much skill.

St. Neots.—The Choral Society gave an excellent performance of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' on the 18th ult., under the direction of Mr. A. Thompson.

Saltburn.—The Choral Society gave a concert in the Assembly Hall, on the 6th ult., when Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and Elgar's 'Banner of St. George' were very creditably performed by the choir, assisted by an efficient string orchestra (led by Mr. Arthur Wilson). Some songs and a string quartet by the conductor, Mr. H. R. Wooledge, were also included in the programme.

Scarborough.—The Scarborough Choral Society performed, on the 14th ult., in the Grand Hall of the Spa, Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' Cowen's 'Rose Maiden,' and an orchestral overture by the conductor, Mr. R. J. Pitcher, which was well received. The principals were Miss M. Raper, a fine mezzo-soprano singer who has recently made her début, Mr. T. H. Brearley, and Mr. J. Browning.——On the 17th ult. a lecture on Schubert was delivered by Mr. R. J. Pitcher, in the Mechanics' Institute, to a good audience. Among the several illustrations was Schubert's Duet (Op. 70) for violin and pianoforte, which was performed by the lecturer and Mr. W. H. Cass.

Wellington (N.Z.).—A musical welcome was given, on October 15, to Mr. Robert Parker, on his return from England, by the Glee and Madrigal Society, the Wellington Liedertafel, and the choir of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, of which bodies Mr. Parker is director. A delightful programme, chiefly of old English music, had been prepared, the most successful pieces being Dowland's 'Awake, sweet love,' Weelkes's madrigal 'As Vesta was,' Orlando Gibbons's 'The Silver Swan,' and Pearsall's 'In Dulci Jubilo' and 'When Allen-a-Dale'; all of which were sung with admirable expression and perfect balance of parts, under the direction of Dr. Kingston Fyffe. Three of Henry Purcell's songs were artistically interpreted by Madame Eveleen Carlton, Dr. Fyffe, and Mr. John Prouse. In reply to a congratulatory speech made by the Rev. T. H. Sprott, vicar of St. Paul's, Mr. Parker gave a brief account of some of his musical experiences in England.

Windsor.—The Windsor and Eton Choral Society gave its first concert of the season on the 10th ult., at the Royal Albert Institute, when the programme included Handel's 'Alexander's Feast' (Sir Walter Parratt accompanying the recitatives on the pianoforte), Stanford's choral ballad 'Phaudrig Crohoore,' and Mozart's Symphony in C major. The orchestra consisted of members of the Windsor and Eton Amateur Orchestral Society. The solo music was interpreted by Miss Delia Mason, Mr. J. W. Dempster, and Mr. Eaton Cooter. Dr. Harford Lloyd conducted.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Student.—We know of no book treating of the Commercial aspect of 'Copyrights' and 'Royalties'; but as regards the legal side of the question, you will find the whole subject simply, yet exhaustively, dealt with in the last edition of Stainer and Barrett's 'Dictionary of Musical Terms' (Novello) under 'Copyright.' It would not follow that the payment of a sum down by a publisher necessarily transferred the Copyright to him, nor is publication by the composer himself usual in the case of Royalties.

J. M.—It is possible to make organ pipes of paper; there is an example in the Royal Victoria and Albert (South Kensington) Museum. It is a fifteenth century Positive organ. We know of no recent instances nor of any treatise where the making such pipes is described. Mr. Thomas Elliston, of Siam House, Sudbury, Suffolk, has written the latest book upon organ construction; he would, perhaps, answer your question authoritatively.

C. C.—The proportion for each succeeding equal semitone in the ascending musical scale may be thus found (we quote from Dr. A. J. Ellis's History of Music Pitch):—'Form a series of equal tones by continually adding 12½ per cent. . . . then the semitones may be found by adding 6 per cent. to each of the tones, and afterwards subtracting 1 in 2,000. The result ought not to be wrong by a tenth of a vibration anywhere.'

Exam.—In many old editions of pianoforte and other music the slurs may be regarded more or less as in the nature of engraver's flourishes—ornamental or otherwise—than as phrasing indications per se. Modern editions, though not always above reproach, are more musicianly in this important respect.

695.—It is rather difficult to put into cold print phonetic pronunciation. The following must be considered as being the approximate pronunciation in singing:—

Dulci = Doolchi. | Cælorum = Chaylorum.
Princeps = Princheps. | Regis = Ragis (g soft).
Jesu, Jubilo = Yeasoo, Yubilow.

H. E. W.—As aids to score reading (one or more C clefs) try 'Studies in Strict Counterpoint,' by Gordon Saunders (No. 41 of Novello's Primers), and the volume of examination papers published by the Royal College of Organists, Hart Street, Bloomsbury.

Novice.—The book by John Hullah to which you refer is probably 'Time and Tune in elementary schools,' published by Messrs. Longmans. Stainer's Harmony Primer, and 'A Course of Harmony,' by Bridge and Sawyer, might be of service to you.

W. M.—We have already had submitted to us half-a-dozen poems on the late Sir Arthur Sullivan—all of which have been returned to the poets who kindly sent them—and we cannot entertain any more: not even a sonnet!

Musicus.—Mendelssohn's 'Athalie.' The Overture may be played:—Maestoso con moto, crotchet = 96; Molto allegro, minim = 120; the March, crotchet = 132.

I. S. M.—We are sorry that we cannot trace the lines, although we have made every effort to do so. Send your enquiry to Notes and Queries.

Ex.—Most of the oratorios are published in folio size by Messrs. Novello, either in complete form or in separate numbers.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

BRIDGE, J. FREDERICK—"O Lord, Thy word endureth." (No. 690. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 6d.

—— "O tarry thou the Lord's leisure." Anthem (from "Mount Moriah"). For Four Voices. 3d.

BURNSIDE, MARGARET—"Song of the Virgin to her Child." Christmas Carol. 1d.

CLARKE, HAMILTON—"To a red rose." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. (No. 849. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

CRONK, CUTHBERT H.—"The Works of Anton Rubinstein." A Study. 1s.

CURZON, NINA—Two Kyries. 3d.

DAVIES, H. WALFORD—"Prospice." 1st Violin, 6d.; 2nd Violin, 6d.; Viola, 6d.; Violoncello, 6d.; Bass, 6d.

ELGAR, EDWARD—"Caractacus." Book of words, with Analytical Notes. 1s.

—— "Britons, alert." From "Caractacus." (No. 785 Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 3d.

FORM OF PRAYER TO ALMIGHTY GOD. Used at St. Paul's Cathedral, December 31, 1900. 6d. Words only, 2d.; or, 10s. per 100 net.

FOX, ARTHUR M.—"At last." Hymn. 2d.

GERMAN, EDWARD—"The Chase." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. Revised edition. (No. 847. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

GIFFARD, W. J. F.—"See, the Babe of Bethlehem lies." Christmas Carol. 1½d.

GOODHART, A. M.—"Wassail." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. (No. 624. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

HEGNER, ANTON—Deux Morceaux: (a) Berceuse; (b) Gavotte. For Violoncello and Pianoforte. 3s. 6d.

—— Ditto. For Violin and Pianoforte. 3s. 6d.

HOLLINS, ALFRED—"Intermezzo." (No. 288. Original Compositions for the Organ.) 1s. 6d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

HOPKINS, J.—"The earth is the Lord's." (No. 687. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

HUNT, ARTHUR E.—Kyrie. On card. 1d.

JONES, C.—"Lord of all." Hymn of Thanksgiving. 1d.

K., G. A.—"Oh, heart of mine." Song. For Soprano or Tenor. 2s.

LIEBLING, GEORG—"The great glorious Spirit." Song. For Soprano or Tenor. 2s.

—— "Sacred Fire." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

MACFARREN, G. A.—"Girls and boys, come out to play." Madrigal. For S.A.T.B. (No. 851. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEM BOOK. A Collection of Popular Anthems. For Festival and General use throughout the Year. Books V. and VI. Each 1s.

PARKER, HORATIO—"A Wanderer's Psalm." Vocal Parts. 1s. each.

PARRATT, WALTER—"The face of death." Anthem. For Funeral and In Memoriam Services. (No. 689. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 2d.

POWELL, REV. J. BADEN—"Hail! Festal Day" (No. 2). Procession. For Dedication of a Church. 3d.

PURCELL, HENRY—"If love's a sweet passion." No. 1 of Three Songs from "The Fairy Queen." For Soprano. 2s.

—— "When I have often heard." No. 2 of Three Songs from "The Fairy Queen." For Soprano. 2s.

—— "Hark! Hark! The Ecch'ing Air." No. 3 of Three Songs from "The Fairy Queen." For Soprano. 2s.

RICHMOND, C. A.—"The Four Winds," and other Child Songs. 5s.

SCHOLEFIELD, C. C.—(in G). Benedicite, omnia Opera. 3d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 103. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Christmas Eve." Junior Unison Song. By ALFRED MOFFAT. "Joy Bells." A New Year's Hymn. By J. STAINER. "The Golden Carol." Old French Melody. Arranged by J. STAINER. "Evening." Round for Three Voices. By W. W. PEARSON. 1½d.

STAINER, J.—"Cupid, look about thee." A Fa La for A.T.T.B. (No. 343. The Orpheus.) 4d.

—— "At the Manger." A Litany of the Incarnation. (No. 536. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d. Words only, ½d.; or, 2s. 6d. per 100.

TILLEARD, J.—"King of Peace, in justice reigning." (No. 6. Hymns for Thanksgiving after War.) 1d. Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT:—

No. 1163. Jack Horner .. .. THEODORE DISTIN 1½d.
,, 1164. There shall come a star .. CUTHBERT HARRIS 1½d.
,, 1165. Day of wrath .. .. J. STAINER 1½d.
,, 1167. Crown Him, the Virgin's Son B. LUARD SELBY 1d.
,, 1168. In pride of May .. .. T. WEELKES 1d.
,, 1169. We are but strangers here ARTHUR SULLIVAN 1d.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEM BOOK. Books 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6. Each 9d.

TORRANCE, REV. G. W.—"A Welcome to the Queen." Part-song for S.A.T.B. 3d.

TOZER, FERRIS—"O God, Thou art my God." (No. 679. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

TRASENSTER, REV. E. A.—(in D). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 3d.

WARNER, H. WALDO—"Elegie." For Violin and Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

—— "Scherzo." For Violin and Pianoforte. 2s.

WEST, JOHN E.—Fantasia. (No. 19. Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ. Edited by EDWIN H. LEMARE.) 2s. 6d.

—— (in G). Benedictus. (No. 528. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

—— "All people that on earth do dwell." Thanksgiving Anthem. (No. 695. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

WHINFIELD, REV. W. G.—Seven Carols (including Two War-Christmas Carols). Edited by Rev. A. A. TOMS. 6d. Words only, 1d.

WILHELMJ, AUGUST, AND JAMES BROWN—A Modern School for the Violin. No. 18. ("Styrian Dances." By JOSEF LANNER.) 2s.

—— A Modern School for the Violin. No. 23. (Twelve Christmas Carols.) 2s.

CONTENTS.

	Page
A Happy New Century	9
Music in England in the Nineteenth Century	9
Dumps	13
Beethoven: his Portrait, and—its Blot (with Portrait)	15
Occasional Notes	16
Sir Arthur Sullivan as a Church Musician (with Portrait)	21
Church and Organ Music	25
Sir John Stainer on old Metrical Psalters	26
Henry Russell (with Portrait)	27
Reviews	28
Re-opening of Colston Hall, Bristol	29
Mr. Edward Lloyd's Farewell Concert	30
Presentation to Dr. McNaught	30
Royal Choral Society	31
The Hon. Norman Grosvenor	31
Mrs. Norman O'Neill's Concerts	31
Dr. Lierhammer's Recital	31
Goldmark's 'Cricket on the hearth'	31
Festival at Bishop Auckland	32
Royal Academy of Music	32
Royal College of Music	41
London Concerts	42
Suburban Concerts	44
Music in America	41
,, Belfast	44
,, Birmingham	44
,, Bristol	45
,, Dublin	45
,, East Anglia	46
,, Edinburgh	46
,, Glasgow	46
,, Liverpool and District	47
,, Manchester	47
,, Northumberland and Durham	47
,, Nottingham and District	48
,, Oxford	48
,, Sheffield and District	49
,, Staffordshire	49
,, Wales	49
,, Yorkshire	49
Foreign Notes	51
Miscellaneous	51
Obituary	52
Correspondence	52
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	52
Answers to Correspondents	54
Music published during the last Month	54
Thanksgiving Anthem for the Opening of the New Century—'All people that on earth do dwell.'—John E. West	33
Chorus—'Britons, alert!'—Epilogue to 'Caractacus.'—Edward Elgar.—(Extra Supplement.)

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

MISS CHARLOTTE DICKENS (Soprano)
(Medalist, R.A.M., Med. Soc. Arts.) Concerts, Oratorio, Opera, &c.
Grove House, Prince of Wales Road, Battersea Park, S.W.
January Engagements include "Faust" (Marguerite), 7 and 8, before H.R.H. Princess Henry of Battenberg, at Cowes.

MADAME CLARA NEIMAN, R.A.M.
(Former Pupil of Walter Macfarren).
Concerts, At Homes, &c. Good sight-reader. Lessons.
Highest testimonials. 3, Tolmers Square, N.W.

MISS LILIAN CLOSE (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
9, Hetley Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE (Contralto)
Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, 1898; Sheffield Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 30, Mornington Crescent, N.W.

MR. J. G. BLANCHARD
(Principal Tenor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden).
"HIAWATHA."—"The solo, sung with good effect by Mr. J. G. Blanchard."—Daily Telegraph.
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 41, Savernake Road, N.W.

HERBERT BROWN (Baritone)
Gold and Silver Medalist.
"28, Carlton Hill, N.W.,
"London, Feb., 1900.

"I am happy to say that I had an opportunity of hearing Mr. Herbert Brown sing the bass solos from my 'Ancient Mariner,' and was greatly struck by the beauty of tone and effective character of his voice, as well as his excellent style of singing. I feel sure that a most successful career is before him.

"JOHN FRANCIS BARNETT."

For terms, apply, Oakworth, Keighley.

MR. WALTER HELLIWELL (Baritone)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 54, King Street, East Rochdale.

MR. WILLIAM WILD (Tenor), of the Sir Charles and Lady Hallé South African Concert tour, 1895 (pupil of Andrew Black, Esq.). Specially recommended by the late Sir Charles Hallé. Numerous re-engagements. Success everywhere. Address, Grosvenor Square, Stalybridge.

MADAME LOUISE BURNS
(SOPRANO). Silver Medalist, R.A.M.
Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Opera, Recitals, &c.
Erin, Riffel Road, Willesden Green, N.W.

MISS HONEYBONE
(SOPRANO).
"Miss Honeybone is an artist who possesses a voice of exceptional range. Her rendering of song, 'O divine Redeemer' (Gounod), was a most artistic effort."—Ashton-under-Lyne, Oct., 1899.
41, Hampden Street, Nottingham.

MISS GERTRUDE WESLEY
(MEZZO-SOPRANO AND HARPIST),
Doncaster.

MR. HENRY BEAUMONT
(TENOR, I.S.M.) For Oratorio.
Choral bookings include: Bristol Festival, "Elijah," "Redemption," "Flying Dutchman," "Lohengrin's Narration"; Gloucester Choral, "Hiawatha"; Cardiff Festival Choral, "Hora Novissima"; Bristol Choral, "Messiah"; Todmorden Choral, "Hiawatha"; Hebden Bridge Choral, "Faust"; East End Choral, "Golden Legend"; Barnstaple Choral, "Hymn of Praise" and "Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast"; Reading Philharmonic, "Last Judgment" and "Stabat Mater"; South London Choral, "Judas"; Portsmouth Choral, "Hiawatha"; Leicester Choral, Beethoven in C and "Engedi"; Sowerby Bridge Choral, "Maritana"; Bristol Choral, "St. Christopher." Address, 83, Maida Vale, London, W.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES
(BARITONE),
Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, and Chester Musical Festivals, Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts, Crystal Palace and Principal Provincial Concerts.

Choral Society Engagements include: Highbury (London), "Faust"; Cambridge, "Judith"; Batley, "Golden Legend"; Bradford, "Seasons"; Accrington, "Hiawatha Trilogy"; Sheffield, "King Olaf"; "Acis and Galatea," "Building of the Ship," "Creation," &c., in addition to ballad and orchestral concerts.
Terms for Oratorio and other Concerts on application to—
24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

"An exceptional Baritone."—Vide the late Madame Patey.
MR.
ALEXANDER MUSGROVE
Of the Covent Garden, Crystal Palace, and principal Concerts.
Address, 70, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. EDWIN GELLETT
(BASS).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Address, 7, Canonbury Grove, N.

THE BELL HARMONIC QUARTET
Miss LILLIAN RANDALL. | Madame STEPHANIE OLIVE.
Mr. RICHARD EVANS. | Mr. P. GORTON YOUNG.
Humorous Quartets, Glees, Handbell Solos.
Concerts, Banquets, &c., apply, 21, Josephine Avenue, Brixton.

VICTORIA MADRIGAL SOCIETY.

A few additional Members are required by this Society. Good voices and fair reading necessary. No subscription or entrance fee.
Apply, St. Peter's Institute, Buckingham Palace Road, Victoria, on Tuesday evenings, 9 o'clock, after Rehearsal.

THE LONDON ORATORIO QUARTET
Madame LOUISE BURNS. | Mr. D'ARCY CLAYTON.
Miss FLORENCE CROFT. | Mr. SAMUEL HEATH.
A thoroughly reliable Quartet for Choral Societies.
Address, Arch. E. Swanson (Manager), 5, East India Avenue, E.C.

TO VIOLINISTS, SCHOOLS, &c. — Young Pianist offers Accompanying or Teaching and nominal sum weekly for London home. Highly recommended. Address, H., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MEZZO-SOPRANO.—Young Lady, for 18 months principal Soloist and Leader in City Church, desires CHURCH APPOINTMENT. Address, L., Novello & Co, Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

ALTO PART-SINGER, for six years in popular Male-Voice Quartet (now disbanded), is at liberty to join similar party. Soloist at well-known musical church in North London. Good appearance. Height, 5 ft. 8 in. Write, stating full particulars, to A. P. S., Novello & Co., Ltd., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

WANTED, LEADING TENOR. Sundays and one practice. Salary, £6 per annum. Apply, Christ Church, Endell Street, W.C. Friday, 8.30.

CHOIR BOYS at St. Peter's Ch., Vere St., W., receive FREE EDUCATION at the Polytechnic School, Regent Street, after a short term of probation. Previous experience not essential, but good voice and musical instinct desirable. School work in no way interfered with. Write, for appointment, Mr. Augustus Toop, 18, Berners Street, W.

CHOIR BOYS in the American Church in Paris, receive FREE EDUCATION and BOARD and the advantage of acquiring a practical knowledge of the French language. Requirements: Good, full voice (essential) and some choir experience. Boys between 10 and 11, living in London, can be trained free of expense to parents. Write, for particulars or appointment, Mr. Augustus Toop, 18, Berners Street, W.

CHOIR-TRAINING.—Mr. AUGUSTUS TOOP makes this a specialty, and is prepared to undertake the management and training of Church Choirs in London. Mr. Toop will be pleased to arrange for any of the Clergy to hear his Choir at St. Peter's Ch., Vere St., W., on any Friday evening, by appointment. Address, 18, Berners Street, W.

ALTOS WANTED, for Ladies' Quartet. First-class vocalists only. Apply to Sandos, 26, Upper George Street, Hyde Park.

ST. ANNE'S, Soho.—VACANCY for TENOR SOLOIST, able to sing Bach's "Passion" (St. John). Salary, about £20. Precentor, 28, Soho Square, W.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir for a BASS, either a Lay Clerk or a Choral Scholar. Stipend offered, £80 a year (with certain allowances in case of Choral Scholar). Date of competition, February 13, 1901. For further information, apply to the Dean, King's College, Cambridge. Applications to be sent in by February 6.

BROMPTON ORATORY.—WANTED, DEEP BASS (not Baritone). Must be good reader. Salary, £25. Apply, Musical Director.

ST. ASAPH CATHEDRAL.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, to succeed Dr. Wilson, appointed to Ely. (Dr. Wilson succeeded Dr. Allen at St. Asaph on his appointment to Ely, and who is now Organist of New College, Oxford). Apply to Chapter Clerk, St. Asaph.

CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Earnest communicant. Two Sunday services and two practices. Salary, £20. Must reside within a walk. Apply, by letter, stating age, &c., to V., 88, Bravington Road, Maida Hill, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, for Wesley Chapel, Redruth. Salary, £40 per annum. The new organ will be ready about March 1. Applications, with testimonials, to be sent to the Secretary to the Trustees, Humphry T. Williams, Claremont, Redruth.

A CAPABLE ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is REQUIRED for the Congregational Church, Guildford. Salary, £40 per annum. Apply, by letter, with testimonials, to R. Salsbury, East Hill, Guildford.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, immediately, at Trinity Congregational Church, Brixton, in consequence of illness of present Organist. Salary, £20 per annum. Full particulars to Mr. D. Messent, Maxton, Loats Road, Clapham Park.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for St. John's Church, Lewisham High Road, S.E. Salary, £60. Apply to The Vicar.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, thoroughly successful in boys' voice production, desires APPOINTMENT after January 1. Organist, Broadhurst, Melbourne Road, Ilford, E.

THE ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of an important Abbey Church has VACANCIES for one or two ARTICLED PUPILS (resident). The course of study offers a complete preparation for the organists' profession. Fine four-manual organ and Cathedral services. Apply, by letter, A., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE ORGANIST of Norwich Cathedral has a VACANCY for a PUPIL, who would, when competent, act as his Assistant in the Cathedral. Apply to Dr. F. Bates, The Close, Norwich.

THE Organist of Christ Church, Doncaster, has VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL. Exceptional advantages and sound musical instruction. Full Catholic services. Apply as above.

WOLFGANG MOZART

AT THE AGE OF SEVEN.

From a scarce French Print.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 696.—Vol. 42. FEBRUARY 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 20, AT 8.

H. W. PARKER'S

HORA NOVISSIMA

AND BEETHOVEN'S

NINTH (CHORAL) SYMPHONY.

Artists:

Madame SOBRINO.

Madame GIULIA RAVOGLI.

Mr. WILLIAM GREEN.

Mr. ANDREW BLACK.

Organist: Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; (Unreserved), 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., F.R.A.M.

Lent Half-Term begins Monday, February 18. Entrance, Wednesday, February 13, at 2.

Lectures by Walter Macfarren, Esq., F.R.A.M., on "Beethoven's Thirty-two Solo Sonatas," every Wednesday until end of March.

Organ Recital, Monday, February 11, at 3.

Chamber Concert at St. James's Hall, Thursday, February 21, at 3.

Fortnightly Concerts, Saturdays, February 9 and 23, at 8.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.

Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.

Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

Telegraphic address—"Initiative, London."

The Half-Term will commence on Wednesday, February 13, 1901.

The Next Examination for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will take place in April, 1901. Last day for receiving forms of application, March 9.

A JUNIOR DEPARTMENT is now open for Pupils up to 16 years of age at Reduced Fees.

Syllabus and official entry forms may be obtained from—

FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Midsummer F.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 15, 1901. The solo-playing tests are: Prelude and Fugue in C, Bach, No. 1, Vol. 4, Peters' Edition (Novello and Co., Augéner and Co.); Sonata in E flat, No. 6, Op. 119, Rheinberger (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.); Orgel-Sonate in D minor, J. G. Töpfer (Augener and Co.).

The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 22.

The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.

Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

MR. ROBERT NEWMAN'S

SYMPHONY CONCERTS,

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA

OF 110 PERFORMERS.

PRINCIPAL VIOLIN .. .. .. MR. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.

ORGANIST AND ACCOMPANIST .. MR. PERCY PITT.

CONDUCTOR:

MR. HENRY J. WOOD.

SIXTH CONCERT.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9, AT 3.

Huldigungsmarsch .. .. Wagner.

Symphony, No. 5, in E minor .. .. Tschaïkowsky.

Violin Concerto in D .. .. Brahms.

Overture—"The Taming of the Shrew" .. .. .. Percy Pitt.

VOCALIST: Miss FLORENCE SCHMIDT.

SOLO VIOLIN: Lady HALLÉ.

SEVENTH CONCERT.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2, AT 3.

New Overture—"The Butterfly's Ball" .. .. F. H. Cowen.
(First performance.)

Symphony in C (The "Jupiter") .. .. Mozart.

Pianoforte Concerto in B flat minor .. .. .. Tschaïkowsky.

Verwandlungs Musik ("Parsifal") .. .. Wagner.

VOCALIST: Madame AMY SHERWIN.

SOLO PIANOFORTE: Signor BUSONI.

EIGHTH CONCERT.

SATURDAY, MARCH 16, AT 3.

Overture—"Iphigenia in Aulis" .. .. Gluck.

Symphony, No. 9, in D minor (The "Choral") .. .. Beethoven.

Violin Concerto in G minor (No. 1) .. .. Max Bruch.

Serenade in E flat (Op. 11) for Wind Instruments .. Richard Strauss.

Ride of the Valkyries .. .. Wagner.

VOCALISTS: Madame LILLIAN BLAUVELT. Madame KIRKBY LUNN. Mr. LLOYD CHANDOS. Mr. DANIEL PRICE.

SOLO VIOLIN: Madame VON STOSCH.

Single Tickets: Reserved, 7s. 6d. and 5s.; Unreserved, 2s. 6d. and 1s.

AT ROBERT NEWMAN'S BOX OFFICE,

Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—Estab. by the Corporation of London, 1880.—Principal: William H. Cummings, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A. Lessons daily, 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Every branch of Vocal and Instrumental Music. Students trained for Opera and Drama in the new Theatre. Prospectus on application. By order of the Committee, HILTON CARTER, Secretary. Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.
For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. .. Granville Bantock.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 17—December 22); Winter Term (January 21—March 30); Summer Term (April 1—June 22).
Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.
Prospectus and further information may be obtained from
ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

THE NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

Patron: Her Grace the Duchess of Marlborough. [Ltd.
Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L.
Examinations in London and Provinces (March), Local (four grades), Diplomas and Medals.
Educational Department (distinguished Professors). Teachers' Union forming.
W. J. MOSS, Secretary, 192, Sutherland Avenue, W.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC, Ltd.
Established 1895. Incorporated 1900.
Central Office, 22, Berners Street, London, W.
Warden: Professor Alexander Phipps, Mus. Bac.
Thorough Musical Education, all subjects. 30 Professors. Next Local Examinations (all Towns) in April. Medals and Prizes. Diplomas of Associate-Licentiate and Fellow granted. Apply, Secretary.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.
J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.
Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.
West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.
First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.
Metropolitan Examination in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., and F.V.C.M., commencing April, 1901.
Local Theoretical Examinations, April, 1901.
Practical Examinations are now being held at the various centres.
Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.
Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.
All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.
GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.
President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in June and July, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.
Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.
The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.
Free register for Organists requiring appointments.
Annual Banquet and Conference, January 28, 1901.
For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

ST. ANNE, Soho.—BACH RECITALS, E. H. Thorne. Saturdays, Feb. 2, 9, 16, 3.30 p.m. Admission Free.

MR. WILLIAM NICHOLL, F.R.A.M., will give THREE LECTURES (vocally illustrated) on the SINGING and SPEAKING VOICE, at the Salle Erard, on Mondays, February 25 and March 4 and 11, at 3 p.m. Tickets for the three Lectures, 7s. 6d.; single tickets, 3s. each. Usual Agents; Adlington, 224, Regent Street, and W. Nicholl, 46, Canfield Gardens, N.W.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

METROPOLITAN EXAMINATION, 1900.

The following CANDIDATES have passed:—

IN SINGING.

As Teachers.—Bella Deyns, Fanny Passmore.

As Performers.—Jeannie Bateman, Constance Antonia Harman Brown, Amy Maude Dewhurst.

Examiners.—Messrs. Francis Korbay, William Shakespeare, Fred. Walker, and Alberto Randegger (Chairman).

IN PIANOFORTE PLAYING.

As Performers and Teachers.—Mary Anderson, Catherine Nairne Arnold Baker, Russell Bonner, Margaret Maria Broughton, Dora Jane Brown, Ethel Violet Cave, Rose Ada Cooke, Mabel Ursula Garwood, Margaret Alice Harding, Gertrude Mary Harkin, Edith Margaret Heap, Daisy Jackson, Robert Brown Lloyd, Elizabeth Miller, James Munro, Winifred Mary Palfreman, Annie Maude Porter, Annie Gwendoline Smith, Henrietta Smith, Harriet Tattersall, Mabel Underwood, Muriel Volckman, Eleanor Whiting.

As Teachers.—Jeanie Findlay Adamson, Catharine Ainsworth, Felicie Henriette Allard, Beatrice Thorn Allen, Theresa Anderson, Elsie Mary Arnold, Florence Helen Ashton, Edith Blanche Barber, Henry Maitland Barnes, Ruth Barrett, Agnes Gertrude Baseley, Mabel Emily Bawtree, Hilda Margaret Baxendell, Edith Mary Beaumont, May Bell, Catherine Mary Johnstone Bevan, Ernest Clement Bishop, Agnes Bond, Hilda Marion Bond, Margaret Elliot Bonnar, Lilian Booth, Mary Elizabeth Bridge, Lilian Kate Brigg, Mabel K. Brigstocke, Edith Langford Brown, Margaret Fairley Brown, Edith Sarah Budgett, Laura Clarissa Burkitt, Frederick George Burrington, Gwendolen Widdows Carling, Mabel Ann Carpenter, Ethel Margaret Chisholm, Amy Kathleen Clare, Mabel Constance Clark, Evelyn Rose Coles, Emily Mary Copeland, Ellen Barrett Cranston, Mary Kate Crosland, Margaret Menzies Culbert, Jonathan Teal Daniels, Rosa Dash, Mabel Mary Dawes, Ethel Alice Dear, Agnes Minnie Desborough, May Dutson, Bessie Constance Edwards, Ethel Mary Elwin, Catherine Esther Eliza Emery, Theodora Mary Fagan, Winifred May Twells Farrar, Grace Fortye, Lillie Fox, Florence Jane Gallichan, Charles Genna, Helen Taylor Gentle, Annie Gertrude Graves, Ada Gray, Hilda Beatrix Gregory, Stafford George Montague Haines, Louisa Jane Hall, Louise Happerfield, Helen Isabel Harper, Mary Haynes, Edith Alice Heel, Brenda Hannah Hewitt, Mildred Highatt, Laura Hinchliffe, Marian Gwendoline Hirings, Margaret Mary Holloway, Amy Constance Holmes, Millicent Mary Alton Holton, Marion Humphries, Agnes Jane Jackson, Kate Elizabeth Jeffery, Maidie Jones, L. Winifred Jones, Mary Grace Jones, Constance Mary Kay, Mary Frances Kempthorne, Peter Kennedy, May Janet Kennett, Anna E. King, Ella Clarissa King, Annie Elizabeth Knowles, Beatrice Langdale, Ellen Last, Ethel Maud Lea, Cecilia Margaret Lever, Jessy Florence Liddon, Dorothy Little, Amy Elizabeth Lloyd, Maria Lloyd, Mary Isabella Lockey, Edith Emma Lovel, Jane Benvie Low, Helen Melrose MacEwen, Mary Anna Macphail, Agnes M. Mair, E. Gertrude Marshall, Elsie Fanny Burley Martin, Berkeley Mason, Elsie Mary Maull, Elizabeth Meacham, Ellen Merchant, Constance Jane Miles, Ellen Mary Milne, Arthur William Morrison, Margaret Ann Morrison, Ernest Arthur Moss, Mary Eliza Moss, Mary Cecilia Naughton, Edith Mabel Novis, Arthur Nuttall, Albert Orton, Edith Mary Osman, Geo. Cook Palmer, Ada Parkes, Janet Pettitt, Isabel Phillips, Mabel Mary Plater, Frances Martha Potter, Grace Eveline Pratt, Nettie Prior, Rosa May Pritchard, Eleanor Reynell, Rachel Ricardo, Constance Roberts, Grace Elizabeth Roberts, Ethel May Robinson, Mary Louisa Robinson, Anna Elizabeth Robson, Joseph Ernest Rogers, Constance Mary Ross, Olivia Sadler, Janet Mary Salsbury, Mary Sandiland, Jessy Alice Sanger, Daisy Scheu, Ethel Susan Shaw, Lucy Catherine Amy Lilian Skelton, Emma Slinger, M. Anderson Smith-Brass, Florence Elizabeth Stockwell, Margaret Elise Stroudley, Fanny May Taylor, Katie Ward Thomas, Florence Ada Toft, Kate Eleanor Trotter-Brown, Adela Victoria Tunnicliffe, Lilian Beauchamp Turner, Florence May Underwood, Walter Sidney Vale, Frances Katherine Waddington, Edith Wagg, Florence Watson, Mary Cottrell Williams, Maud Wilson, Hilda Emily Wood, Ethel Frances Woodland, Sarah Hurst Worrall Florence Wright, John Edward Wrigley, Edith Madeleine Yates, Catherine Young.

As Performers.—Nellie Florence Bullock, Violet Katie Locke, Florence McLaren, Gertrude Mary Wilmer.

Examiners.—Messrs. Carlo Albanesi, Arthur O'Leary, Oscar Beringer (Chairman), H. R. Eyers, Ernest Kiver, A. Schloesser (Chairman). Alfred E. Izard, Tobias Matthay, Walter Macfarren (Chairman).

IN ORGAN PLAYING.

Vernon Blount, William Theodore Bradshaw, William McVicar, Francis Seymour, John Pile, Herbert Sanders, Sydney Harry Franz Wéalé.

Examiners.—Messrs. W. Stevenson Hoyte, Henry W. Richards, and Charles Steggall (Chairman).

IN ORCHESTRAL INSTRUMENTS.

Violin Playing—as Performers and Teachers.—Marian Edith Cook, Charles William Hoggard, Frederick Mountney, Emma Ruth Plaistowe, Edwin Virgo, Winifred May Williams.

As Teachers.—Ethel Margaret Greer Connell, Frank Creswell, Richard Bangay Freeman, L. Mabel Hutchinson, Anna Marion Ingram, Winifred Mitchell, Edith Phillips, Maud Rhys-Evans.

As Performers.—Ivy St. Aubyn Angove, Christina Mary Stevenson, Edith Inglis Webster, Edward Rowsby Woof, Helen Adeline Wootton.

Violoncello Playing—as Teacher.—Arthur Geverding.

As Performer.—John Wesley Woodward.

Harp Playing—as Teacher.—Edith Evelyn Dorothy Webb.

Examiners.—Messrs. G. H. Betjemann, A. Pezze, John Thomas, Hans Wessely, and F. Corder (Chairman).

IN BANDMASTERSHIP.

John Doddington Markey.

Examiners.—Messrs. J. A. Kappey, George Miller, and Ebenezer Prout (Chairman).

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
(R.A.M. Cert. and Prize-winner). Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
German Songs a specialty. Lessons given.
25, Upper Richmond Road, East Putney, S.W.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano)
And Teacher of Singing.
444, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

For recent London Press excerpts, see this column, M.T., for Oct. last.
MISS CHARLOTTE DICKENS (Soprano)
(Med.. R.A.M.; Med., Soc. Arts.) Concerts, Oratorios, G. & S. Operas.
Grove House, Prince of Wales Road, Battersea Park, S.W.

MRS. GLOVER EATON (Soprano, L.R.A.M.)
Concert.—Assembly Rooms, Malvern.—"Mrs. Glover Eaton (Soprano of the Triennial Festival) received well-merited applause. She sang charmingly, and possessing as she does a fine, bright, fresh soprano voice of high register fairly delighted the audience. Her phrasing and declamation were simply perfect."
Address, Regent House, Foregate, Worcester.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Creation.—"Miss Eaton's beautiful singing charmed all her hearers."—Ulverston Press, December, 1900,
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MISS AMY HARDING (Soprano)
(Of Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, &c., Concerts).
Recommended by Sir George Grove, W. H. Cummings, Esq., &c.
For critiques, &c., address, 14, Palace Road, Norwood, S.E.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MISS MURIEL LANGSFORD (Soprano)
Vocalist, Certificated. 195, Algernon Road, Lewisham, S.E.

MISS LILIAN TURNBULL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Address, 10, Cecile Park, Crouch End, N.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto)
Engaged February: Lewisham, Blackheath, Nottingham, City, Holborn, Mansfield, Greenwich, Hornsey, Whitechapel.
Address, 14, Gladsmuir Road, Whitehall Park, N.

MADAME FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto)
MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor)
Suffolk Villa, 142, Junction Road, N.

MISS EMMA KNOWLES (Contralto)
Oratorio, Ballads, At Homes, &c. 8, Devonshire St., Accrington, Lanc.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor).
"Mr. Beaumont is a tenor of decided promise."—Daily Telegraph.
"Mr. Beaumont is a most artistic singer."—Morning Leader.
"Mr. Beaumont is a tenor of great promise."—Musical Courier.
"Mr. Beaumont is the possessor of a fine voice."—Musical News.
"Mr. Wright Beaumont's splendid tenor voice was heard to the best possible advantage in the choicest of ballads."—The Era.
Address, 1, Dorothy Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. WALTER DRIVER
(Pupil of William Shakespeare, Esq., London).
Principal Tenor, King's College Chapel, Cambridge.
For Concerts, &c.

MR. CHARLES ELLISON (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Operatic Recitals, Concerts, Lessons. Can provide party.
42, Florence Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. H. WADSWORTH (Tenor)
(Two years at Milan. Great success.)
English, Italian, French. Equal quality of voice—not throaty.
Perfect enunciation. Satisfaction given or no fee accepted.
St. Ives, Huntingdon.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. GEORGE UTTLEY (Baritone)
(Professional Pupil of Mr. Santley for over two years.)
"Mr. Santley . . . sent an excellent substitute in his pupil, Mr. George Uttley."—Yorkshire Post, Feb. 7, 1900.
Hampden House, Phœnix Street, N.W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MISS RHODA PARSONS (Pianoforte, A.G.S.M.)
Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
Address, 126, High Street, Walthamstow.

MR. AUGUSTUS TOOP, A.R.C.O.
Director of Music, St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, W.
Accompanist (also Masonic work), Conductor, and Composer.
18, Berners Street, W. (interviews by appointment only).

MADAME CLARA NEIMAN, R.A.M.
(Former Pupil of Walter Macfarren).
Concerts, At Homes, &c. Good sight-reader. Lessons.
Highest testimonials. 3, Tolmers Square, N.W.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

BEATRICE E. KENT (Lyric Authoress)
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

NOTE CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MR. SAMUEL MASTERS (Tenor), from Surbiton, to 54, Alexandra Road, Wimbledon.

MR. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE begs to announce that he has RESIGNED his APPOINTMENT as Lay Vicar of Westminster Abbey and is now at liberty to accept Sunday Engagements. In future all communications should be addressed direct to The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

MR. WILLIAM WILD (Tenor), of the Sir Charles and Lady Hallé South African Concert tour, 1895 (pupil of Andrew Black, Esq.). Specially recommended by the late Sir Charles Hallé. Numerous re-engagements. Success everywhere. Address, Grosvenor Square, Stalybridge.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass). Oratorios, Concerts. Can provide Quartet. Lessons given. 45, Pentonville Road, London, N.

MADAME LOUISE BURNS
(SOPRANO). Silver Medalist, R.A.M.
Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Opera, Recitals, &c.
Erin, Riffel Road, Willesden Green, N.W.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MISS HONEYBONE
(SOPRANO).
"Miss Honeybone is an artist who possesses a voice of exceptional range. Her rendering of song, 'O divine Redeemer' (Gounod), was a most artistic effort."—Ashton-under-Lyne, Oct., 1899.
41, Hampden Street, Nottingham.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO)
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

MISS MAGGIE JAQUES
(SOPRANO)
Engagements, February and March, 1901:—Feb. 5, Abergavenny, "Elijah"; 7 and 8, Exeter, Ballads; 10, Kilburn, Ballads; 12, Sheffield, Ballads; 13, LEEDS CHORAL UNION, DVORÁK'S TE DEUM; 14, Darlington, "Judas"; 16, Manchester, Ballads; 27, Castleford, "Elijah"; 28, Old Hill, Ballads; March 1, Derby, "May Queen"; 5, Todmorden, Ballads; 6, Riddings, "Elijah"; 7, Tunstall, "Judas," 12, Peterboro', "Alexander's Feast"; 13, Cleckheaton, "St. Paul"; 21, BIRMINGHAM FESTIVAL CHORAL SOCIETY, SCHUMANN'S "PARADISE AND PERI"; 28, Saltcoats, "Messiah"; 29, ABERDEEN CHORAL UNION, "ST. PAUL"; 30, Halifax, "Sun Worshippers."
Terms, &c., address, 14, SPRING GARDENS,
BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO)
AND
MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE)
Beg to announce their Change of Address to—56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
140 Marylebone Road, N.W.

MISS
KATHERINE NASH, G.S.M.
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq.
Address, 9, Ruskin Road, Tottenham, N.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MISS GERTRUDE WESLEY
(MEZZO-SOPRANO AND HARPIST),
Doncaster.
Contralto parts taken in Oratorio.

MDME. EDITH EDWARDS
Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music
(DRAMATIC CONTRALTO).
For Concerts, Oratorios, Recitals, At Homes, &c.
Address, 40, Grosvenor Chambers, Manchester.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE
(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, 1898; Sheffield Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 30, Mornington Crescent, N.W.

MR. OTTO DENE
(TENOR),
Ullswater Lodge, West Norwood, S.E.

MR. W. TREVOR EVANS
(TENOR).
Baroness Patti-Cederstrom (Madame Adelina Patti) states:—"I am delighted with his voice, which I consider charming."
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, London, N.W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
"Judas Maccabæus" at Northwich (Cheshire).—"Mr. Fred. Fallas may be described as one of the finest tenors heard in Northwich for some time, and in all the parts undertaken by him he scored most successfully."—Northwich Guardian, December 22, 1900.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900).
Oratorio, Concerts, &c., 64, Clovelly Road, Ealing, W.

MR. BRIGHT JONES
(PRINCIPAL TENOR, Moody-Manners Opera Company).
Terms, apply, Glenhurst, Bath; or, C. W. Sinkins, 63, Berners St., W.

MR.
JAMES LEYLAND
(TENOR),
106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. HENRY PETTITT
(TENOR)
(Pupil of Davidson Palmer, Esq.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Glenavon, Potters Road, New Barnet.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR).
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. DAN BILLINGTON
THE CELEBRATED YORKSHIRE BARITONE (Vide Press)
(Soloist of the Leeds Festivals, Sir Chas. Hallé's and the Principal Provincial Concerts).
34, Hanover Square, Leeds.

MR. JOHN BROWNING
(BARITONE),
SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1898,
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal Bass, Leeds Parish Church, &c.
Extensive Répertoire, about 100 works.
Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(Professional Diploma, Incorporated Society of Musicians)
(BARITONE).
Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts.
For terms and Press notices, address, 24, Station Road, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. DENNIS DREW
(BARITONE).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes.
Ormefield, Church End, Finchley.

MR. WILLIAM DYOTT
(BARITONE). 1, Myrtle Crescent, Acton, W.

MR. DAVID HUGHES
(BARITONE).
"Messiah."—Cardiff Festival.—"Mr. David Hughes's delivery of 'Thus saith the Lord' was one of the finest examples of Handelian declamation within my experience. Not only every note, but, what is more important, every word told the story belonging to it. So in other parts of the work this singer had to do."—Daily Telegraph (Mr. Joseph Bennett).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES
(BARITONE),
Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, and Chester Musical Festivals,
Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts,
Crystal Palace and Principal Provincial Concerts.

Choral Society Engagements include: Highbury (London), "Faust"; Cambridge, "Judith"; Batley, "Golden Legend"; Bradford, "Seasons"; Accrington, "Hiawatha Trilogy"; Sheffield, "King Olaf"; "Acis and Galatea," "Building of the Ship," "Creation"; Ledbury; Beccles, "Messiah"; Hanley, North Staffordshire Philharmonic, "St. Paul"; Faversham Philharmonic, &c., in addition to ballad and orchestral concerts.
Terms for Oratorio and other Concerts on application to—
24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

ALEXANDER MUSGROVE
(BARITONE), 70, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. CHARLES TREE
ELIJAH.—Coventry Choral Union, Jan. 10.
"Possessed of a powerful, rich, and vibrant voice of great compass, beauty of phrasing, and wonderful dramatic power, he took his audience by storm. 'Is not His word?' was rendered with great feeling and expression, and there was bitter raillery in 'Call him louder.' The writer has never heard the great air, 'It is enough,' sung with such dramatic force; the despair and anguish of the words were brought out in every note."—Coventry Herald.
"A vocalist of high rank—a fine baritone voice and great dramatic power. His singing was undoubtedly the feature of the evening. He interpreted the varied emotions of Elijah with great fidelity and ability. He sang with rare dramatic power and expression."—Coventry Standard.
MESSIAH.—Edinburgh Choral Union, Jan. 1.
"A voice of excellent quality and a thorough artiste. His articulation is clear, not a word is missed, and he put great dramatic force and expressiveness into his numbers."—Scotsman.
"His cultured singing was the outstanding feature of the performance."—Edinburgh Evening News.
GOLDEN LEGEND.—Carlisle Choral Union, Dec. 26.
"His Lucifer stood out in bold relief as the finest dramatic effort of the evening. The various gradations of subservience and flattery, cunning and hate, fear and exultation, were admirable, his rollicking mimicry exquisite."—Carlisle Patriot.
Address, 23, Clifton Road, Maida Vale, W.

MR. & MRS.
WALLIS A. WALLIS, I.S.M.
(Baritone and Soprano, Elocutionists).
Quartet, Concerts, Resident and other Pupils. Sharon, Acton, W.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN
(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. EDWIN GELLETT
(BASS).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Address, 7, Canonbury Grove, N.

MR. ARTHUR SEDGLEY
(BASS).
For Oratorios, Opera, and Ballad Concerts.
"Mr. Arthur Sedgley sang in fine style 'Honour and Arms,' being very warmly applauded."—Dudley Herald.
For terms, &c., address, 51, Worcester Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. WILLIAM C. HARRISON
(SOLO VIOLINIST).
Concerts, &c. (Solo or Orchestral); also Lessons.
Address, 43, Fontenoy Street, Dublin.

MISS MARIAN JAY
(SOLO VIOLINIST).
Concerts, &c., address, 5, Hollywood Road, South Kensington.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN
(BASS)
(Licentiate (artist) of the Royal Academy of Music).

"ELIJAH."—"As filling the title-rôle, Elijah, Mr. Sunman had by far the heavier part to do, and he came through the ordeal with great credit. His singing was characterised by power, expression, and feeling, and all the numbers that fell to him received an adequate and fitting interpretation. He was very good in the scene with the Priests of Baal on Mount Carmel, finishing with the air, 'Lord God of Abraham,' which was greeted with marked tokens of approval. He also displayed a high degree of merit in the air 'It is enough.'"—Stourbridge Advertiser, January 5, 1901.

For terms, &c., please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

MR. HERBERT WALENN
(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)
(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

MISS ALICE MARY SMITH
(Mrs. Alfred Dymes)
Associate of the Royal College of Music,
HARPIST.
Care of Messrs. C. Holdernesse and Co., 105, New Oxford Street, W.C.

QUARTET.
MR.
MONTAGUE BORWELL'S
ORATORIO QUARTET are now booking Engagements:—
Miss WINIFRED MARWOOD, Sop. | Miss GERTRUDE MACAULAY, Con.
Mr. HENRY TURNPENNEY, Tenor. | Mr. MONTAGUE BORWELL, Bar.
For terms and vacant dates, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N. or, usual Agents.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.

PRESIDENT, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.

Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.

A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

Mr. Tann's Solo Boys have gained several Cathedral and Choral Scholarships. Recent engagements: St. Paul's Cathedral (Festival of London Church Choir Association), Ayr, N.B (Re-opening Services), Camden Town ("St. Paul," "Creation"), Carlisle (Organ Recital), Southampton (Ballad Concert), Tottenham ("God, Thou art great," "Cradle of Christ"), Watlington (Christmas Services), &c.

A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.

For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

"An excellent programme of music."—Daily Telegraph.
THE CLAYTON CONCERT PARTY.
Complete or part Vocal and Instrumental Programme.
For terms, &c., address, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton, Suffolk Villa, 142, Junction Road, N.

THE EUTERPEAN VOCAL QUARTET.
Misses ANNIE SWINFEN, ANNIE WILSON,
Messrs. ALBERT CORNISH, MUSGROVE TUFNAIL.
Musgrove Tufnail, 24, Grove Road, Brixton, S.W.

WEST HAMPSTEAD CHORAL AND ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.
(Tenth Season.)
Conductor: EDWARD G. CROAGER, A.R.A.M.

HAMPSTEAD CONSERVATOIRE,
THURSDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 14, at Eight o'clock.
LEONI'S "THE GATE OF LIFE" and Miscellaneous.

Artists: Madame ADA LOARING, Mr. FRANK TEBBUTT, Mr. J. E. TALBOT. "THE LIEDERSINGERS" (Male Voice Quartet): Mr. WALTER LE NEAVE Mr. PERCY TURNER, Mr. FRANK BUCKLAND, and Mr. ERNEST STURMAN. Recitations by Miss ADELA WEEKES. Accompanist: Mr. W. N. BARRON, Cert. R.A.M.

Tickets: Stalls, 3s. 6d.; Unreserved, 2s.; Admission, 1s. At the Hampstead Conservatoire, and of EDWARD G. CROAGER, Falaise, 3, Mill Lane, Brondesbury, N.W.

THE LONDON ORATORIO QUARTET
Madame LOUISE BURNS. | Mr. D'ARCY CLAYTON.
Miss FLORENCE CROFT. | Mr. SAMUEL HEATH.
A thoroughly reliable Quartet for Choral Societies.
Address, Arch. E. Swanson (Manager), 5, East India Avenue, E.C.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.
SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. JAMES BATES, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. STEDMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY
(Established 1877).
Artists for Opera, Theatre, Oratorio, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Choruses, Choir Boys and Girls.
Singing Lessons and Coaching.
58, Berners Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities; Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred and fifty. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. HOCH'S CONSERVATOIRE for all branches of Music, in Frankfort-on-the-Maine. The Summer Term commences March 1. Director, Professor Dr. B. SCHOLZ. Tuition is given by Messrs. Director B. Scholz, Professor J. Kwast, L. Uzielli, E. Engesser, K. Friedberg, Music-Director A. Glück, Frl. L. Mayer, and Ch. Eckel (in Pianoforte); Mr. H. Gelhaar (in Organ); Professor H. Heermann, Professor Naret-Koning and F. Bassermann, A. Hess, A. Leimer, and F. Küchler (in Violin and Viola respectively); Professor B. Cossmann and Professor Hugo Becker (in Violoncello); W. Seltrecht (in Contra-Bass); A. Konitz (in Flute); R. Müns (in Oboe); L. Mohler (in Clarinet); F. Thiele (Fagotto); C. Preusse (in Horn); J. Wohllebe (in Trumpet); Messrs. Ed. Bellwidt and S. Rigutini, Frau Buff-Hedinger and Frl. Cl. Sohn (in Singing); Director Dr. Scholz and Messrs. Professor J. Knorr, C. Breidenstein, B. Sekles, and A. Kern (in Theory and Composition); Mr. K. Hermann (in Declamation and Mimics); Frl. del Lungo (in Italian Language). Prospectus to be had, gratis and post-free, from the Secretary of the Dr. Hoch's Conservatoire, 4, Eschersheimerlandstrasse Applications for entry should be made immediately, as only a limited number of pupils will be accepted.—THE MANAGEMENT.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that EIGHTEEN of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1900. Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

DEGREES IN MUSIC

PRELIMINARY ARTS,

RESPONSIONS, MATRICULATION, &c.,

MUS. BAC., MUS. DOC.

[Oxford, Durham, Dublin, London],

A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O.,

A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., A.MUS. AND L.MUS., T.C.L.

PREPARATION BY CORRESPONDENCE AND PERSONAL TUITION

on a thoroughly individual system, ensuring to each Student the closest care and attention. Weak subjects receive special help.

TUTORS { MUSIC.—Mus. Doc. of Oxford and Durham, F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M. ARTS.—Graduates of London, Oxford, Cambridge, and Royal Universities.

SMALL CLASSES for Oxford Arts.
SMALL CLASSES for Harmony and Counterpoint, under Mus. Doc. of Oxon and Durham.

For terms, successes, &c., address—
MR. J. CHARLESTON, B.A. (Honours, Oxon. and London), The Burlington Classes, 27, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: F.R.C.O. (paper work), 1901; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1900, and previous years; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music and Pianoforte Teaching), 1897, 1898, and 1899; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.O., 1900; CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1900, FIFTY-SIX passes; L.R.A.M., 1897-1900, NINETEEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

MR. ARTHUR POLLITT, Mus.B., Durh., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares for all Exams. by Correspondence. Recent successes at Durham University, R.C.O., R.A.M., and T.C.L. 159, Upper Parliament Street, Liverpool.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. JOSEPH SPAWFORTH, A.R.A.M. (formerly pupil of Professor Ebenezer Prout, Mr. Frederick Corder, and Mr. Davenport, at the Royal Academy of Music), gives LESSONS, Privately or by Post, in Harmony, Counterpoint, Elements of Music, &c. Pupils prepared for the theoretical portions of all examinations. Apply, by letter, for terms, &c., to 67, Parliament Hill, N.W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

MR. STRETTON SWANN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS or prepares for EXAMINATIONS Personally or by Post.
New Hydraulic Organ, seven minutes from London Bridge, 181, Longley Road, Tooting, S.W.

POSTAL LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. Corrections and examples given. Reference, past and present pupils. A. E. Taylor, Mus. Bac., Durham, A.R.C.O., 4, Brookfield, Lancaster.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES and PREPARES CANDIDATES for all MUSICAL EXAMS. Particulars, giving revised terms, sent post-free. Address, 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppell St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

TRAINING of TENORS.—Mr. E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N. The principles on which Mr. Davidson Palmer's Method is based are fully explained in his book, "THE RIGHTLY-PRODUCED VOICE," which contains information of the utmost importance to tenors. Price 1s. 6d.; or, bound in cloth, 2s. 6d., Post-free, from the Author.

VOICES TRAINED (ALTOS included) and Sight-Singing and the PIANOFORTE TAUGHT by Mr. W. A. FROST (Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral), at 16, Amwell Street, Myddelton Square, E.C. Many pupils of Mr. Frost have obtained Cathedral and other Choir Appointments in open competitions. Latest success at Christ Church, Lancaster Gate.

MR. J. HERBERT WILLIAMS, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Piano), Conductor of the Westbourne Park Choral Society, gives LESSONS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SINGING, and THEORY, at 60, BERNERS STREET; or, at WESTBOURNE PARK INSTITUTE. Organ Lessons at Westbourne Park Chapel (opposite Royal Oak). Vacancy for an Articled Pupil (exceptional advantages). Schools attended. Pianoforte Lessons at the Balham School of Music, &c. Full particulars on application. Interview by appointment. Address, 47, Elgin Crescent, W.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for REPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M. (Medals and Certificate, R.A.M.; Gold Medal, L.A.M., &c.), Professor of Music, Woolwich Polytechnic. LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. All Exams. 9, Portland Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

ST. DAVID'S CATHEDRAL.—Organist requires RESIDENT ORGAN PUPIL. Willis Organ. Daily services. Seaside town. Recent successes of resident pupils:—1899, A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., and Organ Scholarship at R.C.M. 1900, A.R.C.O. and F.R.C.O. 1901, A.R.C.O. and L.R.A.M. For terms, apply to Mr. Herbert C. Morris, F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., The Cathedral, St. David's, Pembrokeshire.

ST. ALBAN'S, Holborn.—The ORGANIST is prepared to receive PUPILS. Apply to Mr. Thomas Adams, F.R.C.O., the Clergy House, Brooke Street, Holborn, E.C.

YOUTH TRAINED for ORGANIST'S PROFESSION free of charge if board paid. Excellent chance. Enclose stamp, Organist, Wangford, Suffolk.

CHOIR BOYS at St. Peter's Church, Vere St., W., receive FREE EDUCATION at Polytechnic School, Regent Street, after a short term of probation. School attendance not interfered with. Requirements: Good voice and musical instinct. Previous experience not necessary. Apply at Church, any Saturday, 11 o'clock, Vestry door at back of Church; or write, Mr. Augustus Toop, 18, Berners Street, W.

ST. JAMES'S, Garlick Hill, E.C. (near Mansion House Station).—Two LEADING BOYS WANTED. Must be able to undertake solo work. Previous experience in choirwork necessary. Light duties. Salary, £8 per annum each. Address, Organist.

ALTO WANTED, at St. Peter's Ch., Vere St., W. Good quality voice and correct reading essential. Salary, £20 per annum. Write, stating age and past experience, to Mr. Augustus Toop, 18, Berners Street, W.

ALTO WANTED, St. Paul's, Avenue Road, N.W. Churchman. Good reader indispensable. Stipend, £15. Apply, by letter, Edward G. Croager, Falaise, 3, Mill Lane, Brondesbury, N.W.

BROMPTON ORATORY.—WANTED, SOLO TENOR. Good reader. Salary, £50. Apply, Musical Director.

TO CONTRALTO VOCALISTS.—A GENTLEMAN, well known in the Musical Profession, is prepared to NEGOTIATE with a YOUNG ARTIST, having a good and well-trained voice, for a series of high-class concerts in London and Provinces, and otherwise advancing her professional career during the present year. For terms and particulars, apply, in first instance, to O. P. Q., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

BASS WANTED, for St. Clement's Church, King William Street, E.C. £8. Cathedral Service. Apply to Dr. Pearce, at the Church, on Wednesday, February 6, at 7 p.m., when trial of voices will take place.

SOPRANO, with good voice, well trained in Oratorio and Ballad by Professor, R.A.M., will give her SERVICES for expenses. Press notices and testimonials. Address, Soprano, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. FRED. W. NORCUP (late of Bangor and Peterborough Cathedrals, and now of New College, Oxford) begs to announce that he has been APPOINTED to the TENOR LAY VICARSHIP at WESTMINSTER ABBEY, vacated by Mr. E. Branscombe, and is now booking engagements. Address, until February 27, New College, Oxford; after that date, Westminster Abbey, London, S.W.

A TENOR (Pupil of eminent Master) will give his SERVICES for a short time for expenses only. Oratorio or Ballad Concerts. M. J. S., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

BARITONE (experienced) would give SERVICES at Concerts, Cantatas, &c., for expenses. Address, H., 11, Colenso Road, Clapton, N.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, for Wesley Chapel, Redruth. Salary, £40 per annum. The new organ will be ready about March 1. Applications, with testimonials, to be sent to the Secretary to the Trustees, Humphry T. Williams, Claremont, Redruth.

WANTED, ORGANIST for Christ Church, Lausanne. Salary, £50. Good opening for teaching. For particulars, apply to Hon. Sec., Church Committee, English and American Club, Lausanne.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires Country APPOINTMENT, with good Anglican Service, Choir, and Organ. Apply, Orion, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Mus. Bac.), desires APPOINTMENT. Thoroughly experienced and accustomed to full choral service and large organ. Highest testimonials. M. B., Woodspeen, Cosbycote Avenue, Herne Hill, S.E.

ORGANIST requires RE-ENGAGEMENT, in S.W. district. For many years at a West-End Church. Good testimonials. Write, G. M., 24, Bellevue Road, Wandsworth Common.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires RE-ENGAGEMENT. Pending appointment, would deputise. Excellent references and testimonials. Good Churchman. H. T. Gilberthorpe, A.R.C.O., Hunstanton, Norfolk.

EXCHANGE.—CATHEDRAL ORGANIST (R.C.) wishes to EXCHANGE for CHURCH APPOINTMENT in good teaching neighbourhood. Large Choir and fine Organ offered. Address, Musicus, 2, St. John's Road, Abingdon, Berks.

FIRST VIOLIN (thorough Musician) WANTED, at once, as LEADER. Fully qualified to conduct when required. Young man preferred. Open all the year round. Liberal salary to really first-class man. Peter Davey, Royal Comedy Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames.

TUNER WANTED. Must have had out-door experience. Permanency for a good man. Apply, Dale, Forty and Co., Cheltenham.

WANTED, an experienced TUNER, accustomed to American Organs and Harmoniums. Apply to W. Saville and Co., Tottenham.

PIANO TUNER, who understands Am. Organs. Also, a Salesman for Pianos and Music Business. Apply, for each, with photo, copies of testimonials, &c., and state salary required, age, height, &c., to Wallace Ash, Southsea.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED. Aged 24 to about 30. Permanency. Used to country. Particulars, with refs. and photo, to D., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER WANTED, aged 25 to 30. Thoroughly experienced in Grands and Uprights, and able to do small Repairs. Apply, personally, G. Rogers and Son, 249, Finchley Rd., N.W.

EXPERIENCED TUNER, REGULATOR, and REPAIRER wants ENGAGEMENT. Apply, F. C. F., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Steady and practical; fair knowledge Am. Organs, Harmoniums, &c. F. L., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER REQUIRED, for high-class Pianoforte and Music Establishment. Apply, stating salary required, capabilities, and experience, to W. A., care of Mr. Archd. H. Weller, Chartered Accountant, 3, Edith Walk, Malvern.

LADY (with knowledge of Music) WANTED, to lead Trebles in City Church. £5 for expenses. Apply, Mr. Gough, 69, Allerton Road, Stoke Newington.

ASSISTANT (Gentleman) WANTED, for the Music Trade in the North of England. Must have a thorough knowledge of the Catalogues and a general knowledge of the whole Trade. Preference given to one who can play well at sight. Send photo and full particulars, stating salary required, to X. Y. Z., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY ASSISTANT WANTED, for Provincial Music Stores. Enclose photo, state age and height, and fullest particulars of experience, to Saleswoman, Novello and Co., Ltd.

ASSISTANT - SALESMAN WANTED. Good knowledge of Catalogues, &c. State nature of experience, age, and salary. Address, Ledger, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, for Music Saloon on South Coast, YOUNG LADY, with a thorough knowledge of the Music Trade. References, particulars of experience, height, and photo, to Presto, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER'S BERTH REQUIRED, by thoroughly experienced Manager. Successful Salesman. Steady; good refs. Apply, for photo, &c., E. G., Novello & Co., Ltd.

MUSICSELLING, STATIONERY, &c. Man (33), with thorough knowledge of above trades, wishes POST as MANAGER. Pushing, good salesman. Excellent 10 years' refs. Salary moderate. Musicus, Novello & Co., Ltd, 1, Berners Street, W.

TEACHING CONNECTION (VOCAL), MIDLANDS.—Professional Vocalist, not having time to attend to same, wishes to DISPOSE of above. Value, £150 per annum. What offers for introduction? Zealandia, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St.

HIGH-CLASS PIANO and MUSIC BUSINESS, including Hiring, for DISPOSAL, in a fashionable watering place in the Midlands. Satisfactory reasons for sale. Exceptionally suitable premises. Apply, W. A., care of Mr. Archd. H. Weller, Chartered Accountant, 3, Edith Walk, Malvern.

MUSIC PUBLISHER'S BUSINESS, in Paris, for SALE, with Copyrights for all Countries. Specialties for Mandolines, Guitars, and Estudiantines. Sales for last year 39,612 frs., with net profit of 19,000 frs. Paris, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

MADAME EUGENIA MORGAN can receive a few PAYING GUESTS. Highly recommended by Lady Superintendent, Guildhall School of Music. Special arrangements for students. 49, Elgin Avenue, Maida Hill, W.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827). Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

CHURCH or CHAPEL ORGANS, new and second-hand, with 3 manuals, 24 stops, pneumatic pedals; would be constructed to suit building. Three Organs, 2 manuals, 12 stops; pedals, full compass, straight and concave. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 8. Saturdays, 3.

LARGE ORGAN (by BRYCESON BROS.) for SALE. 22 ft. high, 13 wide, 9 deep. Three Consoles. Provision for 22 stops. Swell complete, most of Great also. 16 ft. pedal pipe. For particulars, apply to Mr. J., Emerson Cottage, Brampton, Huntingdon.

VALUABLE THREE-MANUAL ORGAN. Handsome mahogany case. The property of gentleman, deceased. W. E. Richardson & Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE. Two very fine TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL ORGANS, each 15 stops (making room for larger instruments). £170 and £150. Exceptional value. One-Manual and Pedal, full compass, Bourdon, general swell, decorated front, 10 stops. £65. Also One-Manual and Pedal Boudoir Organ. 20 guineas. Inspection invited. EUSTACE INGRAM, Organ Builder. 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

ORGAN.—Fine-toned modern 2-manual ORGAN. Contains 11 stops and couplers. Price £150. Also, fine 2-manual, in oak case. £180. Organist, 24, Endsleigh Gardens, Gordon Square, London, W.C.

Trinity College London (Inst. 1872.)

President:
The Right Hon. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A. Q.C.
Warden: EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.
Director of Examinations: JAMES HIGGS, Mus.B.
Registrar: J. GORDON SAUNDERS, Mus.D.

FIFTY-FIFTH HALF-YEARLY HIGHER EXAMINATIONS.

Diplomas and Certificates were presented at the public distribution by the Warden (Dr. E. H. Turpin), on Wednesday, January 16, 1901, to the following successful candidates:—

Licentiate in Music.—George Wilkes.

Associates in Music.—Edith Alice Bacon, Lucy Isabel Baker, Thomas Austin Blake, Claude Grisbrook Chitty, Laura Fanny Cooke, Redgewell George Dansie, Frank Ellerton, George Tattersall Firth, Percy Fairbrother Ramsey, Janet Rostron, Thomas Walton Hardy.

Preliminary Certificates.—For Associate in Music: Lilian Baylis, Daisy Christine Lang, Charles James August Oppermann, Edward Brown.

Matriculation.—Honours: Laura Fanny Cooke, Madge Spillman Fry, Edith Grace Godwin Hill, Jean Douglas Simpson, Alice Wills. Pass: Annie Day, Mary Evelyn Kempson.

Practical Licentiates (Organ).—Arthur Ernest Jones, Douglas Hugh Sankey Ware.

Organ Associate.—Bithiah Wales.

Certificated Organists.—Arthur Judge, John Nankivell, Edith Agnes Richards, Kathleen Blanche Turton, Louisa Wainwright.

Associate Violinists.—Daisy Lewis, Lilian Amy Marshall.

Certificated Violinists.—Lenore Wyvyan Davidson, Dorothy Tatham Hughes, Sheila Alice Mackintosh Jamieson.

Associate Flautist.—Melchior William Amberg.

Certificated Vocalists.—Evelyn Creese, Jessie Hughes, Clarie Roberts.

Associate Pianists.—Mary Winifred Bell, Jessie Boswell, Nellie Florence Bullock, Irene S. Burr, Ethel Cosier, Frederic William Dewhurst, Jessica Lilian Fairy, Sidney Herbert French, Ada Beatrice Elizabeth Isbister, Mary Large, Winifred Mary Palfreman, George Leonard Talbot, Ellen Watson, Ewart George West.

Certificated Pianists.—Mary Elizabeth Archer, Edith Mary Baldry, Margaret McKenzie Baxter, Edith Annie Clark, May Cox, Winifred Beatrice Critchley, Annie J. Draper, Inez Frances Fullbrook, Fanny Elizabeth Garfield, Pauline Marie Garner, Daisy Beckham Goff, William Brown Haslam, Juliet Mary Helson, Laura Elizabeth A. Hern, Violet Hunton, Agnes Thomassine Jackson, Gertrude Annie Jenkins, Susie Jenner, Kathleen Carrey King, Harriet Elizabeth Knight, Elsie Leach, Edith E. Lewis, Rose Lowick, Irene McCall, Lydia Aske McIlroy, Beatrice Matthewman, Gertrude Lily Maunder, Maude Neale, Ethel Nice, Ethel Gertrude Norton, Eveline Norton, Ella Grace O'Dell, Agnes Kate V. Pedley, Stella Georgina Platt, Bertha Player, Kathleen Winifred Poore, Ruth Nina Pritchard, Violet Estelle Puzey, Archibald Rowles, Edith Maria Sharp, Edith Shewen, Lily E. M. Skudder, Norah Sweet-Escott, Annie Charlotte Tilley, Lavinia Tozer, Constance Eva F. Upstone, Edith Gertrude Williams.

Counterpoint Certificate.—Kenneth Sullens.

Harmony Certificate.—George Henry Sadler.

Number of Candidates, 230. Total number of Passes, 105.

Examiners.—G. E. Bambridge; W. Lewis Barrett; Francesco Berger; Henry R. Bird; Charles Copland; W. Creser, Mus.D.; A. E. Drinkwater, M.A.; Alfred Gilbert; A. J. Greenish, Mus.D.; James Higgs, Mus.B.; Rev. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, Mus.D.; Haydn Keeton, Mus.D.; E. H. Lemare; Walmsley Little, Mus.D.; Alfred Mistowski, Mus.B.; C. W. Pearce, Mus.D.; J. Gordon Saunders, Mus.D.; E. H. Turpin, Mus.D.; Charles Vincent, Mus.D.; and A. H. Walker, B.A., Mus.D.

The following are Annual College Awards: Pianoforte Accompaniment Prize (Five Guineas), May Sullens; Maybrick Prize for Ballad Singing, Sydney Bushnell, B.A.; Silver Medal for Solo Singing, Jessie Hughes (Scholar). The Examiners for these competitions were A. Carnall, Mus.B.; Charles Copland; F. A. W. Docker; A. J. Greenish, Mus.D.; Coleridge-Taylor; and (Madame) Rita Radcliff.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

GRESHAM COLLEGE MUSIC LECTURES.

February 5.—"Old Musical Worthies," continued (William Byrd).
February 6 and 7.—"Orchestral Studies," continued (The Trumpet).
February 8.—"Handel's Concerti grossi, &c."

The first Lecture will be given in Gresham College, the others in the City of London School, commencing at 6 p.m. Admission free.

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D., Gresh. Prof. Mus.

THE BACH CHOIR

(Founded 1876).

Musical Director: Prof. C. Villiers Stanford, Mus. Doc., D.C.L.

SEASON 1900-1.

This Society is being re-organised on a larger basis, and there are VACANCIES for a number of capable SINGERS, especially Tenors and Basses. Rehearsals will be held on Tuesdays, from 6.30 p.m. to 7.45 p.m., during February and March, 1901, in the Lecture Theatre, Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington, S.W.

Ladies and gentlemen wishing to join are requested to communicate with the Secretary, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

BROADWOODS' (Estd. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (Highest possible Award)

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W.
Established 1865.
Principal: T. H. Yorke Trotter, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. Yorke Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

THE SEVCIK VIOLIN METHOD

PROVED OF ENORMOUS ADVANTAGE IN THE TRAINING OF

KUBELIK.

Op. 1. SCHOOL OF VIOLIN TECHNIC.
Part I., 5s.; II., 6s.; III., 4s.; IV., 5s.; complete, bound, 12s.

Op. 2. SCHOOL OF BOWING TECHNIC.
4,000 SYSTEMATIC PROGRESSIVE EXERCISES.
Parts I., II., V., 2s. each; III., IV., VI., 1s. 6d. each.
Op. 3. 40 VARIATIONS, 2s.; complete, bound, 8s.

Said by an eminent French Professor to be the only complete set of Graduated Bowing Exercises ever written.

Op. 7, 8, 9.
PREPARATORY SCHOOL OF TECHNIC.
Op. 7. Part I., 3s. 6d.; II., 3s. 6d. Trill Studies and the cultivation of touch. Op. 8. Position Changing and Preparatory Scale Studies, 3s. Op. 9. Preparatory Studies in Double Stopping in 3rds, 6ths, 8ths, and 10ths, 3s. Complete, bound, 8s.

Op. 6. ELEMENTARY VIOLIN SCHOOL
In VII. Parts, 2s. each (in the Press).

"My only object in writing these lines is to put before any student who may be interested, the fact that in a comparatively unknown town, exists a school of violin playing due to the wonderful brain and indomitable energy of a really remarkable man, who unfortunately for the public at large is too much interested in his life work to care for the success which would undoubtedly crown his efforts did he in any way seek self advertisement."—Strad.

BOSWORTH & CO., 5, Princes St., Oxford St., W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
FEBRUARY 1, 1901.

VICTORIA,

OUR BELOVED QUEEN.

BORN, MAY 24, 1819.
DIED, JANUARY 22, 1901.

THE common sorrow which has fallen on this Empire in the passing away of our much revered and most gracious QUEEN—the Dearly Loved MOTHER QUEEN—leaves its impress, and that not lightly, upon those who follow the art of music—an art which was always a source of great enjoyment to her, whether as a listener or as a performer, throughout her long, eventful, and beautiful life.

At the time of the Queen's Diamond Jubilee (June, 1897) an article appeared in these columns on The Queen as a Musician. We may now supplement the information then given by some lesser known incidents in the life of the Queen connected with music. There seems little reason to doubt that she inherited her musical gifts and love of the art from her mother, the Duchess of Kent. That she was, as Princess Victoria, a singer at the age of eleven is recorded by the poet Thomas Moore. He was a guest at a country house where the Duchess of Kent and her daughter, the future Queen of England, were staying. In his diary, under date of October 23, 1830, Moore records this incident:—

> Music in the evening. The Duchess sang a duet or two with the Princess Victoria, and several pretty German songs by herself . . . her manner of singing just what a lady's ought to be. No attempts at bravura or graces, but all simplicity and expression.

Mr. Richard Holmes, Librarian of Windsor Castle, in his Life of the Queen, gives a glimpse of the girlhood period of her career. He says: 'Another great enjoyment was the frequency of her visits to the opera, where she greatly enjoyed the performances of Duvernay and Taglioni, and listened with delight to Pasta, Malibran, Grisi, Tamburini, Rubini, and other celebrated singers, as well as to Paganini playing on the violin.'

It may not be generally known that the Queen was once in the organ loft of St. Paul's Cathedral. The occasion was the annual gathering of the Charity Children on June 9, 1836. The Queen—or Princess Victoria, as she was then—had just turned seventeen. She was present at the service—as, by the way, was also her future husband, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg Gotha. In order to get a better view of the children, the royal party sought the vantage ground of 'the habitation on high' of dear old Attwood. The distinguished worshippers afterwards adjourned to the Mansion House to enjoy the hospitality of the Lord Mayor. A contemporary account of this function says:—

> The Princess Victoria had all the freshness of a country girl about her, appeared in rude health, and drew many expressions of admiration from those of both sexes who had the honour of being in her company.

'The Queen,' records Mr. Holmes, in the 'Life' already referred to, 'always took a deep interest in Mendelssohn's work and career, and a marble bust of him has been placed by her command in the corridor of Windsor Castle.' An exceedingly interesting incident of the good Queen's domestic life is associated with the last visit which Mendelssohn paid to London in 1847—the year of his death—when he was commanded to call on the Queen and the Prince Consort at Buckingham Palace. As on a former occasion (in 1842), he was much pleased with the Queen's rendering of some of his own songs, which he had the honour of accompanying; he also played to the illustrious pair some pianoforte pieces. When he rose to take his departure, the Queen warmly thanked him for his music, and added: 'You have given me so much pleasure, now what can I do to give you pleasure?' As Mendelssohn seemed loth to reply, she insisted upon an answer. He then frankly admitted that he had a desire which only Her Majesty could gratify. As the head of a household himself, he felt intensely interested in the Queen's domestic arrangements, and at last he said: 'Might I be allowed to see the Royal children in their nurseries!' The Queen at once entered into the spirit of his request, and in her most winning manner conducted Mendelssohn through the Royal nurseries, comparing notes with him on those family matters in which both had a common interest.

No more fitting words can be found as an In Memoriam of the beneficent reign and beautiful life of our revered and beloved Queen than these, written by Tennyson, most musical of poets:—

> She wrought her people lasting good;
>
> Her court was pure; her life serene;
> God gave her peace; her land reposed;
> A thousand claims to reverence closed
> In her as Mother, Wife, and Queen.

THE SISTERS OF TWO GREAT COMPOSERS.

I.—Nannerl Mozart.

The article on 'The Wives of some great Composers' which appeared in our issue of September last has prompted the following chit-chat on 'The Sisters of two great Composers.' If any objection should be raised to the limitation 'two,' the answer is that the sisters of the great composers, other than Miss Nannerl Mozart and Miss Fanny Mendelssohn, possessed no claims to musical distinction.

Maria Anna Mozart was born at Salzburg, July 30, 1751, thus she was about four and a half years older than her genius brother. She and Wolfgang were the only surviving children of Leopold Mozart and Anna Maria Pertlin (or Bertlin), reputed to be the handsomest couple of their time in Salzburg. Their daughter Nannerl—to adopt her pet name in the family circle—very early showed a decided talent for music. The clavier lessons which she received from her father had no small part in developing the musical instincts of her tiny brother, then only three years old! 'He perched himself at the clavier,' says Jahn, 'and amused himself by finding out thirds, which he struck with much demonstration of delight; he also retained the more prominent passages in the pieces which he heard his sister play.'

Nannerl was ten and Wolfgang six years old when Leopold Mozart took his prodigy offspring on their first professional tour. It is quite natural that Nannerl had to play second fiddle to her brother in the attention bestowed upon the gifted pair. But in the notices of two concerts given in Paris with brilliant success we learn that 'Marianne Mozart played the most difficult compositions of the musicians then living in Paris, especially of Schobert and Eckard, with a precision and correctness that could not have been surpassed by the masters themselves.' What has become of the music of Schobert and Eckard? The former composed six 'Sinfonies' for pianoforte, violin, and two horns, six pianoforte concertos, and four books of sonatas for pianoforte solo, in addition to many sonatas for pianoforte and violin, violin and violoncello, &c., all apparently now in the limbo of oblivion.

Let us now change the scene to our own Metropolis and take a few glimpses into the musical life of the little Mozarts during their visit to London in the year 1764—Nannerl, a little maiden of twelve, and Wolfgang, a young gentleman of some eight summers. The Mozart quartet—Papa, Mamma, and their two children—obtained lodgings at a 'Mr. Couzin's, Hair-Cutter, in Cecil Court, St. Martin's Lane.' The saloon of the Hair-Cutter of 1764 has, however, been razed in the rebuilding of the old Court. New habiliments first claimed their attention. Wrote Leopold Mozart: 'How do you suppose my wife and girl look in English hats, and the great Wolfgang in English clothes?' The two children played at Court within a week of their arrival in London, when they were charmed with the friendliness of King George III. and his Consort. His Majesty gave them an honorarium of twenty-four guineas for each appearance at Court.

Here is the advertisement of their first London 'recital,' as we should call it nowadays, given in a building which in all probability forms a portion of the offices of the London County Council:—

> At the Great Room in Spring-Garden, near St. James's Park, Tuesday, June 5, will be performed a grand Concert of Vocal and Instrumental Music. For the benefit of Miss MOZART of eleven and Master MOZART of seven years of age. Prodigies of Nature; taking the opportunity of representing to the Public the greatest Prodigy that Europe or that Human Nature has to boast of. Every Body will be astonished to hear a Child of such a tender Age playing the Harpsichord in such a Perfection—It surmounts all Fantastic Imagination, and it is hard to express which is more astonishing, his Execution upon the Harpsichord, playing at Sight, or his own Composition. His father brought him to England, not doubting but that he will meet with Success in a Kingdom, where his countryman, that late famous Vertuoso, Handel, received during his Life-time such particular Protection.
>
> Tickets at Half a Guinea each; to be had of Mr. Mozart, at Mr. Couzin's, Hair-cutter, Cecil Court, St. Martin's Lane.—(The Daily Advertiser, May 31, 1764.)

The phraseology of this puff preliminary, no less than the shrewd reference to 'that late famous vertuoso, Handel,' is worthy of a twentieth century Barnum.

Thrift (now Frith) Street, Soho, afterwards became the lodging location of the Mozart family. They occupied rooms in the house of a Mr. Williamson, 'Wax and Sperma Cœti-chandler,' which stood on the site of the present No. 21 in that thoroughfare. At Mr. Williamson's the little people were 'at home' (to paying callers!), as the following advertisement sheweth:—

> Mr. Mozart, the Father of the celebrated young Musical Family, who have so justly raised the Admiration of the greatest Musicians of Europe, intending soon to leave England, proposes, before his Departure, to give to the Public in general an Opportunity of hearing these young Prodigies perform both in public and private, by giving at the end of this month, a Concert, which will chiefly be conducted by his Son, a Boy of Eight years of Age, with all the Overtures of his own Composition.
>
> Tickets may be had, at 5s. each, of Mr. Mozart, (at his lodgings) at Mr. Williamson's, Thrift Street, Soho; where such Ladies and Gentlemen, who chuse to come themselves, and take either Tickets or the Sonatas, composed by this Boy, and dedicated to her Majesty (Price 10s. 6d.) will find the Family at home every Day in the Week, from Twelve to Two o'clock, and have an Opportunity of putting his Talents to a more particular proof, by giving him anything to play at Sight, or any Music without a Bass, which he will write upon the Spot, without recurring to his Harpsichord. Notice of the Day, and Place of the Concert, will be given in due Time.—(The Daily Advertiser, April 9, 1765.)

The title of the sonatas referred to in the foregoing advertisement is as follows:—

Six sonates pour le Clavecin qui peuvent se jouer avec L'accompagnement de violon ou flaute Traversiere. Très humblement dediées à sa majesté CHARLOTTE, Reine de la Grande Bretagne, composées par J. G. Wolfgang Mozart. Agé de huit Ans. Oeuvre III.

London:

Printed for the Author and sold at his Lodgings at Mr. Williamson, in Thrift Street, Soho.

THE MOZART FAMILY.

PAINTED BY VON DE LA CROCHE ABOUT 1780.

(From a Photograph of the original Picture in the Mozart Museum at Salzburg.)

A circumstance, not without interest, connected with this 'Oeuvre III.' is that the violin part was not originally printed separately. But the copy presented to Queen Charlotte—handsomely bound in royal red, and now in the Royal music library at Buckingham Palace—includes the violin part; it is, however, in manuscript, and is probably in the handwriting of Wolfgang's father, Leopold Mozart, who, being an excellent violinist, doubtless played these sonatas with his little son in the hearing of George the Third's Consort. The final words of the long and fulsome dedicatory preface (in French) to the Queen may be quoted. It is dated 'A Londres, ce 18 Janvier, 1765.'

Je suis avec le plus profond respect, Madame, de Votre Majesté, Le très-humble et très-obéissant petit serviteur, J. G. W. Mozart.

One more reference to London experiences of the Mozarts must be made before we pass on. It may be assumed that the crown (i.e., the five-shilling) callers were less enthusiastic about the prodigies than their Sovereign admirer, and it was doubtless for this reason that some performances at the reduced payment of half-a-crown were given at the Swan and Hoop, in Cornhill. The subsequent announcements stated that 'The two Children will play also together with four Hands upon the same Harpsichord, and put upon it a Handkerchief, without seeing the Keys.' This 'handkerchief' trick was doubtless resorted to as a bait for additional half-crowns.

It is now time to leave the public side of Nannerl Mozart's life and to get some peeps into her home life. Nannerl was exceedingly proud of the fame that came to her brother. Although four years his senior, she would always say, after being complimented upon her performances, 'I am but the pupil of my brother.' Wolfgang had a high opinion of his sister's judgment, as after he had left the parental roof he used to send his pianoforte compositions to her for criticism. She made only a few attempts at composition; of these a song which reached her brother in Rome excited his astonishment by reason of its excellence. On one occasion Wolfgang sent her from Paris a Prelude—'a sort of capriccio to try the piano with'—as a birthday greeting, with which she played a little joke upon her father. She received the piece at four o'clock in the afternoon, and at once set to work to practise it till she knew it by heart. When her father came in an hour later she told him that she had an idea, and that if he liked she would write it down. She at once began to place the prelude on paper. 'I rubbed my eyes,' records old Leopold Mozart, and said, "Where the deuce did you get that idea?" Thereupon she laughed, and drew the letter and Wolfgang's manuscript from her pocket.'

After the various professional journeys of the Mozarts, Nannerl settled down at home as a teacher of the pianoforte. Unlike her brother, she possessed the qualities of self-denial and industry—in fact, her earnings were a considerable source of revenue to the needy family circle. She was intensely sympathetic and kind-hearted—indeed, a thoroughly 'good girl'—always ready to assist Wolfgang in many ways. And, moreover, she was an excellent housekeeper. We are told that her father, to whom she was greatly devoted, praised her for her attention, economy, and industry, and for her good management of the maid-servant, who was both dirty and untruthful! After her mother's death she had the entire care of the household, which was occasionally increased by boarders. Pianoforte practice, generally with her father, for some hours in the evening, and lessons to various young ladies, filled up her time. She was much liked as a teacher, and her pupils were distinguished for the precision and accuracy of their playing.

A pretty and attractive child, Nannerl (or Marianne, as she was sometimes called) became a handsome woman. No wonder, then, that she had suitors not a few. But she did not quit the state of single blessedness until she had attained the age of thirty-three. She married Johann Baptist, Baron von Berchthold, of Sonnenberg, Councillor of Salzburg and steward of St. Gilgen. He was a widower with five children, and perhaps it is no wonder that she had not always an easy time of it with her husband. In 1801, after having been married to Nannerl Mozart for twenty-three years, the Baron von Sonnenberg died, whereupon his widow removed to her native place, Salzburg, and resumed her former occupation of giving music lessons. In 1820 she became blind. That she bore this terrible affliction with resignation, and even cheerfulness, the following anecdote will prove. One day the sightless old dame received a visit from a lady whom she disliked—a well-meaning person, no doubt, who endeavoured to relieve the trials of blindness with a too obvious attempt at amusement. When the said visitor had departed Nannerl exclaimed: 'What an infliction to be obliged to talk to that person! I am glad that I cannot see her!'

Nannerl Mozart died at Salzburg, her native town, on October 29, 1829, aged seventy-eight, having outlived her distinguished brother thirty-eight years. Three months before her death she was visited by Vincent Novello, who handed her a sum of money which had been privately subscribed for—upon Novello's initiative—by English admirers of Mozart. The circumstances attendant upon this visit, almost the Nunc dimittis of her long life, may best be described in Novello's own words, as recorded in his diary in the year 1829:—

Monday, July 15th.—A still more delightful day, if possible, than yesterday. Mozart's son came to me at about 11 to conduct us to his Aunt Sonnenberg. After a little chat we accompanied him to her house, which was within a few yards of where we resided. It seems that she had passed a very restless and sleepless night for fear we should not come to see her, and had repeatedly expressed her regret that we had not been admitted when we first called. On entering the room, the sister of Mozart was reclining placidly in bed—but blind, feeble, nearly speechless. Her nephew kindly explained to her who we were, and she seemed to derive much gratification from the intelligence we conveyed to her. During the whole time I held her poor thin hand in mine. She appeared particularly pleased that the little present we had brought her should have arrived on her own Saint's day (St. Ann, the 26th of the month). Her own birthday is on the 30th, on which day she will have completed her seventy-eighth year. Her voice is nearly extinct, and she appears to be fast approaching 'that bourne from whence no traveller returns.' Her face, though much changed by illness and drawn by age, still bears a strong resemblance to the portraits that have been engraved of her; but it was difficult to believe that the helpless and languid figure which was extended before us was formerly the little girl represented as standing by the side of her brother and singing to his accompaniment.

Near the bed was the original painting of which Madame Nissen has a small copy, and which has been engraved in the Biography, representing Mozart and his sister playing a duet on the pianoforte, the likeness of Mozart's mother in a frame, and the father leaning on the pianoforte with a violin in his hand. In the adjoining apartment, over the sofa, was the print which his son told me was generally considered the best likeness after that in Madame Nissen's possession, in which opinion he himself coincided. Around the room was hung a very numerous collection of portraits of the greatest painters, amongst whom I particularly noticed those of Vandyck and Rembrandt. In another part of the room was a miniature of herself; another of her son (who had some resemblance to Leigh Hunt); and another likeness in miniature of Mozart. In the middle of the room stood the instrument on which she had often played duets with her brother. It was a kind of clavichord, with black keys for the naturals and white ones for the sharps, like our old English cathedral organs. The compass was from—and it had evidently been constructed before the additional keys were invented. The tone was soft, and some of the bass notes, especially those of the lowest octaves—were of a good quality. At the time it was made it was doubtless considered an excellent instrument. You may be sure that I touched the keys which had been pressed by Mozart's fingers with great interest. Mozart's son also played a few chords upon it with evident pleasure. The key he chose was that of C minor, and what he did, though short, was quite sufficient to show the accomplished musician. On the desk were two pieces of music, the last which Mozart's sister had ever played before she took to her bed, six months ago. They were 'O cara Armonia,' from her brother's opera of the 'Zauberflöte,' and the Minuet in his 'Don Giovanni'; this to me was a most touching proof of her continued sisterly attachment to him to the last, and of her tasteful partiality for his inimitable productions. About two days before we arrived she had desired to be carried from her bed and placed at the instrument. On trying to play she found that although she could still execute a few passages with her right hand, yet with her left hand she could no longer press down the keys, and it was but too evident that her powers on that side were entirely gone.

On leaving this estimable and interesting lady both Mary [Mrs. Vincent Novello] and myself could not refrain from kissing her weak and emaciated hand with tender respect, convinced as we were that we should never again behold her. I fear that she cannot continue much longer in her present exhausted state; but whenever that hour arrives which no one living can ultimately avoid, I can only hope that it will not be attended with the least suffering, and that she will calmly cease to breathe as if she were merely sinking into a tranquil sleep. I was particularly charmed by the respectful and kind cordiality with which Mozart's son behaved to her, calling her repeatedly, 'Meine liebe Tante,' and exerting himself to the utmost to ascertain and fulfil all her wishes.

Shortly after the death of Nannerl, and as 'a homage to her illustrious brother,' Vincent Novello organised a performance of Mozart's 'Requiem.' This memorial service took place in South Street Chapel, of which Novello was organist. It was a no less fitting and worthy tribute to the memory of Nannerl than to the genius of her brother Wolfgang, one of the great Masters of Music.

The portrait of Mozart, at the age of seven, which forms one of our Extra Supplements, is reproduced from an old French print.

Fanny Mendelssohn will form the subject of the second and concluding sketch of 'The Sisters of two great Composers.'

SPIRITUAL SONGS.

If any be merry, let him sing psalms.—St. James.

Prayer for the sad, psalms for the glad—such was the prescription of James the Epistolar, and surely no advice was ever more in harmony with the nature of things. But the Apostle did not mean that the afflicted should refrain from singing between their petitions, or the merry from praying in the intervals of cheerful strains. There are, at any rate, plenty of spiritual songs for the sorrowful—most ample provision, and as varied as ample. Our modern hymn writers suit all stages of distress, from gentle grief to wild despair, and so attractive are their effusions that persons with no reason for other than thankfulness place them as sweet morsels on their tongue and become malades imaginaires for the sake of a luxurious sentiment. A favourite form of such indulgence consists in expressing dissatisfaction with the conditions of our present life and dwelling upon the glories of that which is to come. This weakness is natural. 'Man never is but always to be blest.' But it is none the less a sign of degeneration, and has points of comparison with the habits of those who obtain beatific visions through the use of drugs. We neither smoke bhang nor drink an infusion of it. Religious poetry of a certain kind is a much safer road to the same end.

Paradisaical hymns, everybody knows, had their origin long ago, in the days when Simeon Stylites was a typical Christian and asceticism fostered dreams of indulgence. There was, however, some excuse for our primitive predecessors in the faith. They had a hard time of it, whether they would or no, and made it harder, not only to open a credit account with heaven, but also the sooner to have it paid, principal and interest. But the modern revival of such hymns as 'Jerusalem the golden,' and much more the abuse of them to the end of a kind of spiritual intoxication, cannot be palliated.

> For the fount of life eternal
> Thirstily the spirit yearns;
> Swift the soul to break her prison
> In the flesh, a prisoner, burns,
> And like exile, panting, writhing,
> Struggling, homeward ever turns.

I once heard sung a hymn of which the above stanza is part. It was heartily rendered, with much apparent unction, but nothing more hollow could be conceived. The congregation looked extremely comfortable, well dressed and contented; removed, moreover, as far as possible from any suggestion of the 'panting, writhing, struggling' about which they sang with evident enjoyment. So, to the pealing of the organ, went on the vocal strain. 'Long-drawn swell of solemn organs, charmèd ears enrapturing,' sang the comfortable worshippers, or saw in anticipation 'this universal framework roll,' or forecast the joy of having the 'soldier's belt unbuckled.' No doubt there is something of the charm which pleasant fiction possesses in such an exercise, and it may not be amiss as a relief from serious realities. But to get drunk upon it and shed maudlin tears over delights for which, as a grim matter of fact, nobody is in a hurry to exchange the troubles of earth—that, in the much-quoted words of Mr. Kipling, is 'another story.'

The Paradisaical hymns, when examined apart from the mere sentiment that undoubtedly recommends them, are seen to be, for the most part, a glorification of material symbols rather than of the things symbolised. A tendency to this is one of the dangers which beset all religious forms and exercises, and is of course to be measured by the degree in which symbols are employed. The hymns in question dwell rapturously upon the golden streets, the jasper walls, the crowns and palms, the harps, and all else that enters into popular notions of the higher life in a future state. Properly looked at, the splendour of these material things only serves to indicate, faintly and brokenly, a state the realities of which eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, nor the heart of man conceived. But we sing about them as though they were the be-all and end-all of the matter; sometimes in this manner:

Flash the streets with jasper,
Shine the gates with gold;
Flows the gladdening river
Shedding joys untold.

Or in this:

When shall these eyes thy heaven-built walls
And pearly gates behold?
Thy bulwarks with salvation strong
And streets of shining gold?

A hundred examples come to mind, and there is no need to multiply them here. The purport of them all, more or less, is to represent heaven as a sort of Aladdin's palace, full of the Oriental magnificence which the Visionary of Patmos had doubtless seen in the splendid Court of Herod the Great, and the shining temple which he built.

One result of morbidly dwelling upon the physical delights of Paradise is dissatisfaction with mundane existence, and a tendency to depreciate the state of life in which we are called upon to quit ourselves like men and be strong. How many of our hymns assist the encroachments of this form of degeneracy! Here is one:

Far from my heavenly home,
Far from my Father's breast,
Fainting, I cry, 'Blest Spirit, come,
And speed me to my rest.'

My spirit homeward turns,
And fain would thither flee;
My heart, O Zion, droops and yearns,
When I remember thee.

To thee, to thee I press,
A dark and toilsome road;
When shall I pass the wilderness,
And reach the saints' abode?

God of my life be near;
On Thee my hopes I cast;
O guide me through the desert here
And bring me home at last.

I have quoted this hymn of Lyte because it seems to me a striking example of the decadence which rejects a manly sense of duty, which cannot see that we are here to do with all our might whatever worthy work lies to our hands, and that in so doing we may find happiness. The hymn suggests to me a spoiled boy who, thrust out into the world to be made a man, becomes homesick, whines for the 'rest' of the paternal dwelling, and is of no good to himself or others. Our path 'a dark and toilsome road'! our world 'a desert'! That is as we ourselves make them, and as, no doubt, the unwholesome ascetics of early Christian days found them. Anyhow, the tendency of such spiritual songs is, to my mind, downward on a rapid slope. Their religious ethics are as debasing as their origin is neurotic, or, at the best, distortedly sentimental.

I have already referred to the misuse of symbols, and must now indicate the gross materialism of some among its resultants. This is especially seen in the adoration of the instruments connected with our Lord's sufferings. The Cross, in one instance, is actually invoked:

Cross of Jesus, Cross of Sorrow,
Where the blood of Christ was shed,
Perfect man on thee was tortured,
Perfect God on thee has bled.

In another lyric we read of 'sweetest wood and sweetest iron.' In yet others the Cross is rightly held up as a glorious symbol; but in others it is branded as 'shameful' and 'accursed.' From the instruments of suffering to the agonies of the Sufferer Himself is an easy transition, and the old monkish hymns, with their modern imitations, dwell upon these with painful emphasis, for which not the smallest excuse can be urged on the score of advantage. It might be well if hymnists would, in this connection, imitate the restraint of the Gospels, but they rather appear to gloat over the details of the great tragedy. The old Greek dramatists did their killing off the stage; our Christian lyrists, or some of them, have no such sense of decency. Look at this, for example:

Bound upon the accursed tree,
Faint and bleeding, who is He?
By the eyes so pale and dim,
Streaming blood and writhing limb,
By the flesh with scourges torn,
By the crown of twisted thorn,
By the side so deeply pierced,
By the baffled burning thirst,
By the drooping death-dewed brow,
Son of Man, 'tis Thou, 'tis Thou.

Even in the case of a mere mortal thus done to death a proper, almost instinctive, reverence for humanity would conceal the details. But when the Victim is Divine—well, we can only wonder and not admire. Surely such anatomical particularity is then very much out of place. The reader need not be told that examples could be multiplied almost indefinitely, but one suffices. The subject is revolting.

By some writers the vogue of the class of ultra-sentimental or neurotic hymns, spoken of above, is ascribed to the revival amongst us of mediæval practices in worship and the culture of religious emotionalism. It is reasonable to assume that from these causes the effect partially arises, but, in all probability, more of it is due to the general spread of nervous sensibility, which has come to play so great a part in the conduct of individuals and communities, and has furnished those who assert the degeneration of society with a principal reason for the faith that is in them. It is characteristic of such exaggerated sensibility to ally itself for support with everything sensational; to refuse wholesome sustenance and resort to condiments—the hotter in the mouth the better. In religion, the tendency of those who suffer from it is towards a dangerous morbidity, which sometimes ends in the lunatic asylum, and at best creates an excess of feeling that amounts to disease. Hence the exaltation of mere symbols, those especially of the grosser kind; those connected with suffering and death, and upon which the mind can dwell with the half-terrified pleasure that the morbid love. Hence, too, the indulgence in ravishing Paradisaical visions — visions which, in the days of asceticism, were easily traced to physical degeneration, the result of insufficient nourishment. It is the man dying of thirst to whom the desert sands appear as a river of water of life, flowing sweet and limpid between palm-shaded banks.

It is not here intended to condemn the moderate use of hymns such as those above indicated, though in no case can it be claimed for them that they are the best nutriment of the religious spirit. The danger, as with opium and morphine, lies in excess, to which there is generally a tendency more or less decided.

Happily our hymnaries contain a large proportion of healthy spiritual songs, fit for the 'merry' and the manly to sing. It may be doubted if these, some exceptions apart, are really first favourites with the 'neurotic girls and ecclesiastical old ladies,' who, a clergyman tells us, form so large a part of congregations. Still, there the wholesome hymns are for those who care to use them. How may they be recognised? By the spirit which suggests that a man's first duty in this life is not to languish for another of greater ease and general desirableness, but to make the best of his surroundings, to be his Master's 'faithful soldier and servant' — a position which has nothing to do with lazy longings, and to discern the fact that, though this world may be the scene of much troublesome probation, it is, after all, a very beautiful world for everyone who has eyes to see and sense to understand.

All the world is God's own field,
Fruit unto His praise to yield.

Let us gather that particular fruit, and leave Dead Sea apples to their own ashes.

Some of our hymns—not too many—assert the beauty and charm around us. Here is an extract from one which comes to us like a fragrant breeze charged with the sweetness of fresh-turned earth:

The golden sunshine, vernal air,
Sweet flowers and fruits, Thy love declare;
When harvests ripen, Thou art there,
Who givest all.

For peaceful homes and healthful days,
For all the blessings earth displays,
We owe Thee thankfulness and praise,
Who givest all.

Take this also:

When Spring doth wake the song of mirth,
When Summer warms the fruitful earth,
When Winter sweeps the naked plain,
Or Autumn yields its ripened grain,
Still do we sing
To Thee, our King, &c.

And this:

Summer suns are glowing
Over land and sea,
Happy light is flowing
Bountiful and free.

Everything rejoices
In the mellow rays,
All earth's thousand voices
Swell the hymn of praise.

Does not the healthy pulse bound to such music? Even the sane afflicted have equal strains after their kind:

So tired! yet I might reach
A flower, to cheer and teach
Some sadder heart:
Or for parched lips perhaps might bring
One cup of water from the spring,
Ere I depart.

How much better is this thankful recognition of beauty, how far nobler are those thoughts of dutifulness which appeal to us as beauty and something more, than the feeling that bids us sing of God's world as a wilderness, and long, in words at any rate, to get away from it.

Belonging to another class, equally wholesome, but more stimulating, are the hymns that sound a trumpet call to the strenuous duty which is often conflict. One lyric does this with a 'sweet reasonableness' that atones for lack of martial clangour:

Teach us, O Lord, to see Thy will
In everything we undertake,
And let Thy blessing guide us still
To toil and work for Thy dear sake.

To all Thou dost not give to do
Great acts of wisdom or of power,
But in our duties, old and new,
We each can serve Thee every hour.

'Those also serve who only stand and wait':

Ye servants of the Lord,
Each in his office wait,
Observant of His heavenly word,
And watchful at His gate.

But the armour must be worn :

Gird thy heavenly armour on,
Wear it ever, night and day;
Near thee lurks the evil one,
Watch and pray.

—and the fight valiantly fought :

From strength to strength go on,
Wrestle and fight and pray;
Tread all the powers of darkness down
And win the well-fought day.

These spiritual songs, and others like them, are for a manly, clear-sighted Christianity—for the use of those whose minds as well as hearts are in the right place, and to whom things appear as they really are, not as a phantasmagoria seen through a mist of puling sentiment. Hymns of simple prayer or praise, and those of religious 'experience,' stand, for the most part, out of the range of debate. As for the tunes in use, I may have something to say about them in due time.

Joseph Bennett.

MUSIC IN ENGLAND IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

A BRIEF AND UNCONVENTIONAL SURVEY.

(Continued from page 12.)

The concluding theme of last month's instalment of this 'unconventional survey' was the foundation of the Philharmonic Society. By way of a coda thereto the following observations of that gossiping oboeist, Mr. W. T. Parke, may be quoted :—

The Philharmonic concert, instituted in the year 1813, is a public subscription concert, and consists of a certain number of proprietary members, embracing nearly all the superior talent of the metropolis. At its foundation it was so arranged that all the members, however high their professional rank, should, when not appointed to play quartets, quintets, &c. (for concertos were interdicted), descend from their stilts, and play ripieno parts, thereby forming a combination of excellence such as no other concert (since the dissolution of the Professional concert) could boast. The French horns, bassoons, trumpets, and oboes were not admitted as members, but were engaged by the season; but for what reason that distinction was made I cannot divine, unless it proceeded from the idea, that in paying their foundation subscriptions, professors of those flatulent instruments might be too long-winded.

One is tempted to ask: Is playing the oboe conducive to the making of jokes? Parke could, however, be serious. Here is one of his aphorisms: 'It sometimes happens that a great composer, like a great beauty, imagines others will be pleased with him as long as he is pleased with himself.'

How was it with music in the church at the beginning of the century that has just gone? Cathedral services were conducted in a slovenly and perfunctory manner. At St. Paul's, for instance, a spirit of utilitarianism prevailed, which ranged from the 'tuppence, please,' vergerly demanded from each entrant into the Cathedral, to the anthem superscription 'Very suitable for a cold day.' This composition was not, as might be supposed, a setting of certain verses in Psalm 147, but was considered 'suitable,' on account of its brevity, as in those (winter) days St. Paul's was like a refrigerator.

In regard to parish churches, the late Bishop of Chichester (Dr. Durnford) has left on record his personal recollections in these words :—

My memory goes back to the first decade of this [the nineteenth] century. The singing was limited to the performance of the New Version of the Psalms, two portions of which were commonly sung at each service. The musicians were some four or five of the notables of the parish, the village clerk acting as precentor, and the singers (about the same number and the same class), all were ranged in front of the western gallery. The instruments chiefly in request were bassoons, hautboys, flutes, clarionets, and sometimes a violoncello or double-bass. Psalms and Canticles were read alternately by minister and people, the people bearing their part far better than is now usual. In towns, owing to the existence of schools, the singing was often done by young girls in their charity school dresses, to the accompaniment of a barrel organ.

The worship-song in the Nonconformist churches was organless and crude. The Minutes of the Wesleyan Conference of 1805 thus laid down the law in regard to instrumental aid in Divine Service :—

Let no instrument of music be introduced into the singers' seat, except a bass viol, should the principal singer require it.

Scotland—now a veritable Eldorado of the organ builder—would have naught of the kist o' whustles. Any innovation upon the droning order of psalm-singing was instantly nipped in the bud, or knocked on the head. Here is an instance: A very popular minister was preaching in church when the precentor presumed to air his new-fangled notions in the matter of 'raising the tune.' The eminent divine thereupon leaned over the pulpit, and bringing down his psalm-book on the head of the precentor below, said: 'Now come, gie us nane o' your lilts.' Thus the 'innovation,' through the medium of the innovator, was knocked on the head.

How much the true historian—not the scissors and paste penny-a-liner—is indebted to periodical publications only he himself can tell. At the beginning of the last century there were no English journals entirely devoted to music. The first, which came into existence in 1818, was entitled the Quarterly Musical Magazine and Review. Although published in London, this periodical owed its origin to one Richard Mackenzie Bacon, one of the earliest of musical critics, and a native of Norwich, who claimed the merit of originating the Musical Festival of that easternly city. Bacon was projector, editor, and chief writer of this musical Quarterly, which was in size royal octavo, and which lived for ten years.

Let us take a peep into its first volume. The 'plan of the work' occupied no less than ten pages! Here is a sentence which may serve as a specimen of Baconian style as made at Norwich in 1818, eighty-three years ago. Says the Editor :—

At the outset we do no more than erect a mere mortal fabric; but we have given it the dimensions, and we hope it may come to enjoy the privileges of a sacred edifice—to be consecrated by the gifted hand of genius, to be endowed by the benevolences of taste.

Present day controversies, shortcomings, fault findings, &c., constantly crop up in the pages of these old musical periodicals—of which, by the way, the present writer possesses an unbroken chain, extending back to 1818, many of the intervening years being more than duplicated by various journals. Even in the 'forewords' of this Quarterly, the Editor 'goes for' the critics of the day in these terms :—

The mass of the public is at all times either partially directed by the remarks of individuals (privileged, as it were, by the sanction of their known acquaintance with the principles of taste), conveyed orally from one to another, or generally by the criticisms of the daily and periodical prints. And here again we have to deplore the want of the requisite characteristics in many of those who, under the semblance of discharging a trust, indifferent to themselves, but vitally important to others, are but too often weak in judgment though fluent in objection, destitute of the real faculty of discrimination, but fully conversant with the murderous art of dealing out keen and cutting dispraise.

A foot-note to the foregoing reads thus :—

There are sometimes in The Times and Morning Chronicle, and Literary Gazette, articles which are the exceptions to the rule; but generally speaking the criticisms, even in these highly-esteemed journals, are too vague and loose.

The value of a foot-note, as a brick in the historical fabric, is further exemplified in an article entitled 'A slight sketch of the present state of music in London,' in Volume I. of the Quarterly Musical Magazine and Review. Therein is recorded a change in the fashion of 'encores' in the year 1818. 'It is not unfrequent,' says the scribe, 'to witness the repetition of instrumental pieces by an encore, as it has been long the custom to call for vocal a second time.' The information-giving foot-note is to this effect :—

We may here not unaptly remark the change which has taken place in the mode of bestowing applause in the concert-rooms and theatres of London. When a song or piece is highly approved, the applause by clapping of hands is long continued, or ceases, and is renewed, which is now esteemed to be equivalent to the former cry of encore, while in the theatre the efforts of a successful performer are crowned by long and continued shouts.

The Quarterly Magazine and Review had the rare merit of being well indexed.

The Professors of Music at the Universities a century ago were Dr. Crotch at Oxford and Dr. Hague at Cambridge. The former, as everyone knows, was a very distinguished musician. Not the least notable of his achievements was that of lecturing plenteously on musical subjects. Professor Crotch published a resumé of his discourses in a volume entitled :—

Substance of several courses of Lectures on Music, read in the University of Oxford, and in the Metropolis. By William Crotch, Mus. D. Professor of Music, Oxford; and Principal of the Royal Academy of Music, London.

London: Printed for Longman, Rees, Orme, Brown and Green, Paternoster Row. 1831.

Here again the value of a foot-note (on p. 122 of the above book) is of great importance. Dr. Crotch, solemnly and Professorially, says :

Handel quoted or copied the works of Josquin de Prez, Palestrina, Turini, Carissimi, Calvisius, Uria, Corelli, Allessandro and Dominico Scarlatti, Sebastian Bach, Purcell, Locke, Caldara, Colonna, Clari, Cesti, Kerl, Habermann, Muffat, Kuhnau, Telemann, Graun, Mondeville, Porta, Pergolesi, Vinci, Astorga, Bononcini, Hasse, &c.

Here we have the names of no less than twenty-nine composers, exclusive of a very significant '&c.,' to whom, according to Dr. Crotch, Handel was indebted! 'Startling' is a mild adjective to use in commenting upon this extraordinary foot-note. It raises these questions :

(1) Did Dr. Crotch himself discover these 'quotations, or copyings'?

(2) Did he acquire his information from some other source?

(3) Has any student ever verified the Professor's statement by furnishing chapter and verse from the works of every one of these 'twenty-nine &c.' composers?

In these days, when all sorts and conditions of professional musicians are votaries of the stick, it seems strange that England was ever musically batonless. But so it was until Spohr, in the year 1820, came and showed us how to 'wag the stick.' As the story of the introduction of the baton into this country has already been fully told in these columns (The Musical Times for June, 1896), there is no need to recapitulate it here. Suffice it to say that Spohr, when he unexpectedly drew his baton from the pocket of his coat tail and began to use it, quite upset the members of the Philharmonic band by his innovating conduct, not to say manner of conducting. In fact, the instrumentalists in question were on the verge of *mis*conducting themselves! But notwithstanding the obvious advantages of a real conductor, a dozen years elapsed before the baton became (in 1832-33) one of our institutions. We are a conservative folk.

In the next instalment of this survey we hope to say something about the earliest days of the Royal Academy of Music and some other matters.

F. G. E.

(To be continued.)

HANS VON BÜLOW IN HIS LETTERS.*

By publishing Hans von Bülow's Letters and Writings it has been his widow's aim to furnish a more or less complete account of his musical career. In calling attention in The Musical Times to four volumes already issued, we, as far as possible, followed her example. It may be well therefore to recall the dates of our previous notices—viz., March and April, 1896, February and March, 1897, and September, 1899. These included three volumes of 'Letters' and one of 'Selected Writings.' We have now to turn our attention to a fourth volume of letters, which has recently been issued, and will probably be followed by others.

This new volume of letters covers the period 1864—1872, which, curiously enough, coincides with Wagner's residence in Munich and at Triebschen on the Lake of Lucerne. It was early in 1864 (March 10) that Ludwig II., the late King of Bavaria, succeeded to the throne. One of the first acts of his reign was to call Wagner out of exile to Munich, where he installed him as his right-hand man in matters musical, if not also political. With Wagner, or soon afterwards, came Bülow as his lieutenant, and he was appointed pianist to the King, conductor of the Court concerts, and subsequently of the Court opera, as Wagner's health and his desire to devote himself to the completion of the 'Ring,' by the King's command, did not admit of his undertaking such onerous duties as conducting concerts and operas. In Munich, Bülow, always an enthusiastic and diligent worker, at first found himself in his proper element. From one of his earlier letters we learn that he regarded Munich as an unmusical city. He now set to work in earnest to reform it, by instituting performances of classical works hitherto unknown there, and making propaganda for the new school of Liszt and Wagner. This he effected in 1865 by bringing Liszt's 'St. Elizabeth' to a first hearing there; and, what is still of more importance, by being the first to conduct Wagner's 'Tristan und Isolde,' of which he had previously arranged the pianoforte score, and, wonderful to relate, was thus enabled to conduct this most complicated work from memory and without the aid of a full score before him. Notwithstanding several incomparable performances of 'Tristan,' which Wagner thoroughly approved, it cannot be said that matters went on smoothly for either Wagner or Bülow. Ministers were jealous of the attention the King bestowed upon Wagner, the press regarded the pair as interlopers, and on war, so disastrous to art, breaking out in 1866, the two left Munich for Switzerland. Bülow, after staying some time with Wagner at Triebschen, took up his abode at Basle, where he started a music school, and maintained himself by teaching and giving concerts in the neighbouring towns of Zürich, Mülhausen, Freiburg, and Baden-Baden. This did not last long, for on the war being brought to a close, he was recalled by the King to Munich in April, 1867. He was now reinstated in his old posts, with the addition of that of director of the reorganised Royal Music School, which added much to his labours. Besides conducting rehearsals and performances of concerts and operatic works, he had to devote sixteen hours a week to the music school. With the exception of occasional excursions for health's sake or for artistic purposes in the way of concert-giving, things went on in much the same way.

Towards the close of this year, at the King's command, 'Die Meistersinger' was put into rehearsal, and after enormous exertions on Bülow's part was brought to a most successful first performance in public on June 10, 1868. During the period of which we have just spoken, and which has justly been spoken of as the most heroic of his career, Wagner paid frequent visits to Munich, where he was accommodated at Bülow's house, and where he had full opportunity of increasing his familiarity with Bülow and ingratiating himself with his wife and daughters. Early in the following year (1869), just when Bülow was looking forward to conducting the first performance of 'Das Rheingold,' came the most tragic point in his life. His wife, with her daughters, had gone to France on a visit to her sister, the wife of M. Ollivier, the famous French statesman. Instead of returning to Munich, they went on a visit to Wagner at Triebschen. Thence came the news that his wife would not return to him. At one fell blow he lost his wife and his dearest and most idolised friend—Wagner. Could anything have been more tragic? Against the loneliness which he felt and the worries of his official duties in Munich he bore up manfully, but at once begged the King to grant him his dismissal. The King, no doubt hoping that he would soon get over his worries, granted him three months' leave of absence, when we find him revisiting Berlin, &c. But it was not till towards the end of September that he got quite clear of Munich, where life seemed unbearable, and the King awarded him a liberal pension.

He at once betook himself to Italy, where he made Florence his headquarters, and where he renewed acquaintance with Madame Jessie Laussot (now Madame Hillebrand), whom he regarded as a sister, and who warmly befriended him. As director of the Cherubini Society, which this lady had founded for the propagation of German classical music (Beethoven, &c.), he did his best to make Florence a musical place from his German point of view, by instituting performances of German classical works, both chamber and orchestral, and with a decided amount of success.

Though he regarded Florence as a temporary home, he was frequently on the move; for we find him successively in Milan, Berlin, Padua, Nuremburg, Gmunden, Lucca, Brenta, Rome, Vienna, Pesth, Graz, Görlitz, Warschau, Danzig, Dortmund, Zürich, and Naples. His visits to these places were mostly for health's sake or concert-giving purposes.

* Hans von Bülow, Briefe und Schreiben. Band V. Briefe von Hans von Bülow herausgegeben von Marie von Bülow. Leipzig: Breitkopf und Härtel. 1900.

On the whole he seems to have enjoyed his stay in Italy—for he speaks enthusiastically of its scenery, its climate, its people, and its works of art—and to a great extent recovered his usual spirits during his stay there. Its national music, of course, he could not appreciate, and in all directions did his best to Germanise it by bringing forward German masterpieces, especially of Beethoven, which had not been heard there before. To a great extent his efforts were crowned with remarkable success. So frequently was he on the move, that at this time he habitually signed his letters to Madame Laussot with 'Quicksilver,' or one of its many varied equivalents.

During his wanderings in Italy he was assiduous in studying the language of his adopted country, and this he did with such success that he not only learnt to speak it fluently, but also to correspond in it, as his many letters to his old friend and pupil, Giuseppi Buonamici (all written in Italian), sufficiently testify. Great were his linguistic acquirements. During his visits to England he not only learnt our language, even to the use of 'slang' terms, so as to be able to speak it fluently and correspond in it, but also studied Spanish. With French he had been familiar from his earliest youth.

The greater number of some 250 letters, contained in this volume, are addressed to his mother, Madame Laussot, Dr. Gille, Richard Pohl, Joachim Raff, Felix Draeseke, Peter Cornelius, Alexander Ritter, Albert Heintz, E. von Nicholavich, Hans von Bronsart, Lorenz von Düfflip, Eugen Spitzweg, Adolf Jensen, and others. They are interspersed with communications addressed to Bülow by the King of Bavaria, by Wagner, E. F. Weitzmann, Karl Hillebrand, and Karl Klindworth.

The last letter written from Italy is dated Naples, May 5, 1872, and the volume is supplemented by an interchange of letters between Bülow and the late Friedrich Nietzsche, which brings us to the beginning of 1875, and adds much to the interest of the correspondence.

What strikes us most in perusing these letters is the wonderful faculty which Bülow possessed of accommodating his style to the varied temperaments of the personages whom he was addressing. When addressing an Intendant on business matters, or writing to the Press, he could be frigidly polite; when writing to intimate friends—e.g., R. Pohl, he gave vent largely to his jokes; but with correspondents whom he knew to be of a more serious turn of mind, he knew how to restrain himself.

In carefully reading this new volume of Bülow's letters we have marked so many passages as worthy of translation and quotation that it is quite impossible to reproduce them within our limited space. It would be invidious to make a short selection from them, and therefore it seems best to leave it to Bülow's readers to discover them for themselves.

C. A. B.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

Sir John Stainer includes the following interesting autobiographical incident, not unconnected with the founding of the Musical Association, in some reminiscences he has kindly sent us of his friend, the late Dr. Pole. Sir John writes:—

'On one of Dr. Pole's visits to Oxford—I think at the time he came to take his Mus. Doc. (1867)—I had the pleasure of meeting him at Dr. Corfe's house. After dinner (or lunch) we were sitting in the garden talking "shop." It was on this occasion that I stated to Dr. Pole that I thought there ought to be a musical society on the same lines as our learned societies. He encouraged the idea, and I promised that if ever I lived in London I would try and carry it out.

'The kind invitation of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's to follow Goss as organist, which I received in 1872, gave me the opportunity I wanted. A meeting of influential musicians, practical and scientific, was called, at which were present: Dr. Pole, F.R.S., Mr. W. Spottiswoode, F.R.S., Professor Tyndall, F.R.S., Professor Wheatstone, F.R.S., Dr. George Grove, Dr. Stone, Dr. John Hullah, Messrs. Joseph Barnby, G. A. Osborne, A. J. Ellis, F.R.S., Charles Salaman, and others. Salaman took up the matter warmly, and by his work, and tact, and knowledge of musicians, backed by W. Spottiswoode, he really placed the Association on the sound basis on which it now stands. The idea was mine, but the construction was his; all praise to him!'

The initiatory meeting, to which Sir John refers, was held on April 16, 1874, at the residence of Mr. William Spottiswoode, 50, Grosvenor Place.

The Royal Academy of Music announces that competitions will shortly be held for two important scholarships:—(1) The Goring Thomas Scholarship, for Lyrical Composition, which entitles the holder thereof to three years' musical education at the Royal Academy of Music; and (2) the Dove Scholarship, for Violin playing, which is of the value of about £32 per annum and tenable for three years. Full particulars of these scholarships, which may be competed for by male and female candidates, can be obtained from the Secretary of the Royal Academy of Music.

The third annual choral competition of choirs composed of 'female voices only,' is announced to be held in Kensington at the end of March. Of the five classes in the scheme, one is 'limited to church choirs,' and another, we are glad to notice, is a 'two-part sight-reading test.' All particulars of the competition may be obtained upon application to the honorary secretaries, Miss C. E. Denison, 2, Strathmore Gardens, W., and Miss Rawson, 34, Pembroke Road, W. Dr. McNaught will adjudicate.

'The R.A.M. Club,' to give its official title, seems to be in a flourishing condition. Founded in 1889, this banding together originated with 'the desirability of promoting a friendly intercourse amongst past students of the Royal Academy of Music, and of preserving, unbroken, those associations which were formed within its walls'—the walls of the 'old place' at Tenterden Street. The present membership consists of nearly 200 gentlemen. The original idea of the promoters was to limit the membership of the Club to 'mere man,' but last year the rules were so modified as to permit ladies to become eligible for election as Associates, with certain privileges. As no less than 111 ladies have already been enrolled under the banner of Associateship, the wisdom of this elasticity cannot be questioned. The latest achievement of the Club is that it has burst into journalism! We have before us copies of No. 1 and No. 2 of 'The R.A.M. Club Magazine,' both double numbers. There seems to be quite an ideal atmosphere surrounding this magazine. We find among the 'notices':—

1. 'The R.A.M. Magazine' will be published three times a year, about October, January, and May, and will be sent gratis to all members and associates on the roll.

. . . . . .

4. New publications by members will be chronicled but not reviewed.

No definite 'press day.' Happy and enviable Editor! No subscribers, no advertisements, no reviews of members' publications! How very delightful! Under such Elysian conditions the magazine really ought to succeed. The two numbers already issued are in every way excellent, and should greatly aid in extending the ramifications of the R.A.M. Club. Mr. Percy Baker, its indefatigable secretary, will be glad to enrol new Members and Associates, as well as to furnish every information.

The Philharmonic Society, now in the eighty-ninth year of its existence, has issued its prospectus for 1901. Among the more prominent features of the season, the directors announce the following works under the heading of 'first performances':—

Edward Elgar: Concert-Overture, 'Cockayne.'
Landon Ronald: Song-cycle, 'Summer-time,' sung by Mr. Ben Davies.
William Wallace: 'Symphonic Poem,' No. 4.

Other quasi-novelties to be played at these concerts will include:—

Dr. Frederic Cowen's Symphony in E, No. 6 ('The Idyllic'); Sir Hubert Parry's Orchestral Song, 'The Soldier's Tent,' to be sung by Mr. Plunket Greene, for whom it was written; and Herr Emil Sauer's Pianoforte Concerto in E minor, the solo part to be played by himself.

Dr. Frederic Cowen retains his place as conductor and the high level of excellence to which he brought the performances last year may be expected during the approaching season.

News comes from Toronto of a young soprano singer who, according to the experienced judgment of Mr. F. H. Torrington, is likely to make a great name for herself and that corner of Greater Britain which is the land of her birth. The name of the young lady in question is Miss Eileen Millett, a pupil of the Toronto College of Music. She recently sang the solos, at short notice, in 'The Messiah,' with much acceptance, and during a recent visit to the Dominion, Madame Albani heard Miss Millett and predicted that she would be heard in London. 'Her voice,' writes Mr. Torrington, 'is a pure soprano of sympathetic quality, with a range from A below the stave to D flat above, and already her repertoire is very extensive. She possesses the requisite qualities of modesty and refined feeling which go to satisfy the musician as well as to please her hearers.' It is to be hoped that Miss Millett will continue to retain those qualities—all too rare in 'singing madams.' She is coming to London to complete her training and afterwards to be introduced to a London audience. Canada has already given us our leading soprano singer, and we shall look forward to the pleasure of welcoming Miss Eileen Millett as Albani the Second.

It is always interesting to hear of the sons of musicians treading in the artistic footsteps of their fathers, and rendering good service to the cause of music. Such an instance is before us in three volumes of the 'Music Lovers' Series,' issued by Messrs. L. C. Page and Company, of Boston, Mass., entitled 'Famous Pianists,' 'Famous Violinists,' and 'Famous Singers,' in each case 'of to-day and yesterday.' The author of this trio of attractive books is Mr. Henry C. Lahee, son of the venerable Mr. Henry Lahee, the well known musician on this side. Mr. Lahee, Junr., who writes in an interesting and companionable manner, has managed to convey much information in a concise and readable form, and the portrait illustrations add not a little to the merits of his chatty letterpress.

Mr. Vernon Blackburn has contributed a very appreciative article on Sir Arthur Sullivan to the Fortnightly Review for January, of which the following is the peroration:—

I take my farewell of Arthur Sullivan with a very heavy heart; I regret his going as I welcomed his coming, and, though I use the first person so persistently, it is not by way of egotism; it is merely because one human person wishes to put on record something that an engrossing and delightful man has done for him. He was one of those curious people who never seemed to make a mistake. Tact, which has been called by a fine wit 'the nimble sense of fitness,' was always like an Ariel by his side, and seemed in some curious way to direct every action of his life. To see him conduct was to see the man of tact; to hear his music was to hear the composition of the man of tact; to be welcomed by him in his own rooms was to be welcomed by the man of tact; he always knew how to order his life; and he ordered his life well. He went through it gaily, sweetly, and with vitality always dancing at his heels; he seemed to embrace vitality as it were, and the gods conferred upon him all the dues which so worshipful an adoration of vitality as his deserved. He goes from us leaving a great legacy, an artist without a stain, a beautiful character without a slur. He sleeps among the great dead of St. Paul's, and, though he prospered in life—I say that for the sake of the jeers of them that think that prosperity must always be disassociated from genius—he remains to my mind one of the planets of art, a worthy compeer of him who lies at Bayreuth, the Master of the 'Meistersinger,' and of him who lies, no man knows where, who wrote 'Don Giovanni.' For the creator of that immortal work, the master of 'Die Zauberflöte,' was Sullivan's ideal, Sullivan's god, and indeed there is no man who so resembled his idol as he who has gone. 'Nothing is here for tears. . . . Ripeness is all.'

Mr. Andrew Deakin, the veteran musical critic of Birmingham, kindly sends us the following interesting recollections of the late Henry Russell. As the first incident to which Mr. Deakin refers happened nearly sixty years ago some idea may be formed of the length of his active and useful life:—

During the last two or three years of my apprenticeship I frequently played at the Birmingham Private Subscription Concerts. These music-makings were founded in 1799 by Mr. Joseph Moore (Mendelssohn's friend), and were well supported by most of the well-to-do townspeople for nearly fifty years, the best vocalists and instrumentalists of the time repeatedly appearing.

At one of these concerts, in 1842, I heard, for the first time, the well-known composer and singer, Henry Russell. His appearance was announced as his 'first in England,' the statement being supplemented by the information that he had just come from America and was on his way from Liverpool to London. He sang 'The Maniac,' 'The old Arm Chair,' and 'A Life on the Ocean Wave.' The audiences at these concerts were, or were supposed to be, gentlemen and ladies of refined taste and properly educated lovers of high-class music. Hence it may be taken for granted that widely different opinions were formed of Mr. Russell's compositions and his style of singing. I remember that the initial word of his 'Maniac' song, 'Hush!' was given with a gigantic aspirate, an infantile vowel, and a long continued final double-consonant sound; but the succeeding words, more legitimately sung, impressed his hearers with the fact that Mr. Russell was endowed with a voice of grand quality. Some who heard him applauded, others mocked, while many said: 'We will hear thee again, O Henry!' I did hear him again many times afterwards. About fifty years ago I was present at our Town Hall when he sang 'There's a good time coming, boys,' with a strange and in one sense effective accompaniment. The favourite entertainer asked the immense audience to repeat the refrain of each verse, 'There's a good time coming, boys; wait a little longer!' in vigorous chorus. To ensure choral precision Mr. Russell said that he would stamp with his foot when his friends were to take up the strain. This he did, and all went well for a time; but when that audience-chorus took to beating time with their feet the consequences were decidedly unpleasant. Before the last verse was reached the stamping of a thousand or more feet had so provoked the silent dust that the risen cloud not only hid the soloist entirely from sight, but it caused the concluding 'Wait a little longer' to be followed by a loud and long symphony of coughing and sneezing! Some of the afflicted audience laughed, others scoffed, and may be some said: 'We will hear thee again' in 'There's a good time coming, boys,' but—'We'll wait a little longer, Henry!'

Mr. A. J. Hipkins has had the very unusual compliment, to an Englishman, of a tribute from a German writer on music. Dr. Oscar Bie, of Berlin, has recently brought out a second edition of his book, entitled 'Das Clavier und seine Meister,' of which the historical part has been purged of the errors that appeared in the first edition. On page 16 of the revised volume, Dr. Bie says to his readers: 'You are advised to read in Hipkins's "History of the Pianoforte" the latest and best description of the construction and development of the instrument. I should prefer thus to shorten my task.' We understand that Dr. Bie is an entire stranger to Mr. Hipkins, and therefore the tribute of the German expert is all the more gratifying to him. Those who are familiar with the interesting primer on the pianoforte by Mr. Hipkins will not be surprised at the good advice Dr. Bie has given to his readers.

Professor Villiers Stanford has been appointed to the conductorship of the Leeds Musical Festival in succession to the late Sir Arthur Sullivan. We gave a biographical sketch, with special portrait, of Dr. Stanford in our issue of December, 1898, and to this must now be added congratulations upon his new and important appointment. Some particulars of the approaching Festival are given by our Yorkshire correspondent in another column.

We regret to state that the veteran composer, Signor Verdi, has been stricken down with apoplexy, and at the time of our going to press it was reported that all hope was abandoned and that the worst news might be anticipated at any moment. The illustrious composer's munificent bequest for the foundation of an Institution for 'poor and sick musicians' will be still fresh in the memory of our readers.

The recent performance of 'Judas Maccabæus' at the Albert Hall reminds a correspondent that not long ago, when the oratorio was given in the country, the local paper alluded to the 'magnificent chorus "Piano Organs"' (pious orgies). A similar misfortune nearly befell the writer of these lines, for a printer made him speak of 'Lohengrin's Farewell to the Swine.' Luckily he saw a proof! On one occasion too he was actually made to allude to 'Ninepin Andrew.' No one could guess that what he really wrote was 'Non più andrai.' Not long ago, too, the readers of a Northern paper were informed that Dr. Elgar had composed some 'Tea Pictures.' Shades of 'Polly, put the kettle on'!

Attention has been called to the fact that a recently deceased organist was never once late at a service during the thirty-five years' tenure of his last appointment. While in no way wishing to detract from the merits of such praiseworthy punctuality, we venture to put the question: Is it not the duty of an organist to keep good time? But however punctual such an official may be while he is in the flesh, as soon as the breath goes out of his body he becomes of necessity the late Mr. So and So.

A VISIT TO CANTERBURY ON NEW CENTURY'S DAY.

Seated in the Choir of Canterbury Cathedral when the twentieth century is only a few hours old, and while waiting for the commencement of the special service which is to mark this important footprint on the sands of time, one's thoughts, naturally perhaps, become retrospective. The Archbishop's throne suffices to recall some of the famous occupants of the Metropolitan See. Thomas à Becket, for instance, whose tragic death took place on the steps of an altar which stood in the North Transept of the stately fane, and Stephen Langton, who, some seven centuries ago, was the first to divide the English Bible into chapters. Did not the familiar tune of Tallis, known as 'Tallis' Canon,' and associated with Bishop Ken's evening hymn, make its first appearance in Archbishop Parker's 'Whole Psalter translated into Englysh Metre,' about 1550? The visitation of Archbishop Laud—a musical Primate, be it noted—in 1634 furnishes us with a glimpse of the Cathedral staff when Charles the First was King. Here is an extract:—

In lieu of a deacon and subdeacon, whose office it was to read the Epistle and Gospel (supplied now by the Dean, prebendaries, and petticanons), are substituted two corniters and two sackbutters, whom we most willingly maintain for the decorum of our quire, though with greater charge than we might have done the other.

Was it not at Canterbury that Orlando Gibbons drew his last breath? The composer of 'The silver swan' and 'Hosanna,' in his capacity of organist to the Chapel Royal, was in attendance on King Charles I. to await, at Canterbury, the arrival of Henrietta Maria, the bride of that ill-fated monarch. A letter written from London and dated 12 June, 1625, thus refers to the melancholy event:—

Orlando Gibbons the organist of the chappell (that had the best hand in England) died last week at Cannterburie not wthout suspicion of the sicknes.

Biographers have always stated that Orlando Gibbons died of small-pox at Canterbury; but the above extract points to the plague ('the sicknes') as the cause of his death. Neither disease is, however, correct. Some fifteen years ago Mr. W. Barclay Squire, in the course of some researches among State Papers, was able to throw an interesting light upon Gibbons's fatal illness, which he recorded in the Athenæum of November 14, 1885. It appears

CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL FROM THE NORTH-WEST.
(From a Photograph by the Photochrom Company, Limited.) that Sir Albertus Morton, one of the Secretaries of State of Charles I., wrote from Canterbury to his fellow Secretary, Lord Edward Conway, as follows, the letter being endorsed: 'June 6, 1625. Mr. Secretarie Moreton Touchinge the musitian that dyed at Canterburie and suggested to haue the plague':—

My very good lord,—Vnderstanding this morning yt Mr Chancellor of the Exchequr was gone to the Court, I thought it requisit to delay my departure from hence, till I might certify yor lop what the opinion of the phisitions is after opening of the head, wch is done. And they avow to all or comforts, yt there is vpon the body no token of any infection, and in the brayne most apparent signes of a lethargie. I willed them to certify their knowledg vnder their hands, the copy of wch I send heere inclosed, and the issue being so succesfull I am not sorry for the expence of one day vpon this purpose wch I beseech yor lop to present vnto his Matie.

The remainder of the letter is without interest, but the enclosure, as Mr. Barclay Squire says, 'is extremely curious.' It is endorsed 'Doctor Poe his Certificatt':—

Wee whose names are heere vnderwrytten: having beene called to giue or counsailes to Mr Orlando Gibbons; in the tyme of his late and suddaine sicknes, wch wee found to be in the beginning, lethargicall, or a profound sleep: out of wch, wee could neuer recouer him, neyther by inward nor outward medecines, and then instantly he fell in most strong, and sharp convulsions: wch did wring his mouth vp to his eares, and his eyes were distorted, as though they would have beene thrust out of his head and then suddenly he lost both speach, sight, and hearing, and so grew apoplecticall and lost the whole motion of euery part of his body, and so died. Then how vpon (his death beeing so suddaine) rumors were cast out yt he did dye of ye plague, wherevpon wee together wth [the] Maiors appoyntment, caused his body to be searched, by certayne woemen that were sworne to deliuer the truth, who did affirme yt they never saw a fayrer course. Yet notwithstanding wee to giue full satisfaction to all, did cause the skull to be opened in or presence, and wee carefully viewed the bodye, wch wee found also to be very cleene wthout any shew or spott of any contagious matter. In the braine, wee found the whole, and sole cause of his sicknes. Namely, a great admirable blacknes and syderation in the outside of the braine, wthin ye braine (being opened) there did issue out abundance of water intermixed wth blood and this wee affirme to be the only cause of his suddaine death.

(Signed) Poe. Domingo.

MONUMENT TO ORLANDO GIBBONS IN CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL.

(Specially photographed for The Musical Times by Mr. J. G. Charlton, Mercery Lane, Canterbury.)

The remains of Orlando Gibbons are buried in the Cathedral. We give a photograph of the monument erected to his memory on the North aisle of the Nave. The following is a free translation of the Latin inscription:—

> To Orlando Gibbons, of Cambridge, born among the muses and music; Organist of the Royal Chapel; emulating by the touch of his fingers the harmony of the spheres; composer of many hymns which sound his praise no less than that of his Maker; a man of integrity whose manner of life and sweetness of temper vied with that of his art; being summoned to Dover to attend the nuptials of King Charles and Mary; he died of apoplexy, and was conveyed to the Heavenly choir on Whitsun Day, A.D. 1625. Elizabeth, his wife, who bore him seven children, little able to survive such a loss, to her most deserving Husband hath, with tears, erected this monument.

Was it not in the month of July, 1765, that Mozart, his father, mother, and sister sojourned at Canterbury on their way homewards? It may reasonably be assumed that they 'looked round' the Cathedral during their one-day's visit to the city. How interesting it would be to know what the great composer, then a little boy of nine, thought of the beautiful sanctuary and the music—if any.

The brothers Stephen and George Job Elvey were natives of Canterbury and choristers in the Cathedral; and a wayfarer passing along Best Lane early in January, 1760, might have learned from the gossips that Shrubsole, the blacksmith, had received an addition to his family—a son, who has since become widely known as William Shrubsole, the composer of the hymn tune 'Miles's Lane.' But one's pleasant retrospect of these bygone times is broken by strains of music which prelude the special service on this first New Year's Day of the new century.

The municipal and military authorities of Canterbury co-operated with the Cathedral dignitaries in making the morning service (at 11.30 a.m.) worthy of the city and the occasion. The Mayor and Corporation attended in state and there were contingents from cavalry and infantry regiments. The local clergy mustered in strong force, chief among them being the venerable Primate (who vigorously preached an extempore sermon of thirty minutes' duration) and Dean Farrar. As it was a Præcum day, the prayers were intoned by a canon—Canon Mason—instead of by a minor canon. The specially augmented choir consisted of about 140 singers, of whom forty were ladies. The band of the Royal Engineers (Chatham division) furnished the players on brass instruments—the corniters and sackbutters—which, in combination with the organ, produced an excellent effect in the accompaniments throughout the service. The Te Deum and Benedictus, a typical festal setting and quite modern in character, was from the pen of Mr. H. C. Perrin, organist of the cathedral, while the anthem—a setting of the words 'O Lord, Thy word endureth for ever in heaven'—had been specially composed for the occasion by Sir Frederick Bridge, who conducted it in person. After the Archbishop's sermon, a hymn, written for the occasion by Dean Farrar, was sung to a pleasing tune—also new—by Mr. Perrin, and the voluntaries, played by 'brass and organ,' were selected from Beethoven and Gounod. With the exception of the anthem, Mr. Perrin conducted throughout, and Mr. J. Sterndale Grundy presided at the organ, which is invisible at Canterbury. Criticism on the rendering of any service is, of course, always undesirable. But it is permissible to remind our young and enthusiastic present-day cathedral organists that the rich store of music left to us by our old English church composers should not be passed by, even on Festival occasions. We made a similar remark in recording a festival service at a northern cathedral, and its iteration, while made in all friendliness, seems to us to be justifiable. English church music is our own peculiar possession—a glorious heritage which should be reverently preserved.

The remaining features of the new century's day services included (in the afternoon) Sir George Martin's bright festal service in A and the Hallelujah chorus of Handel; and (in the evening) a performance of 'The Messiah' (Part I.), held in the Nave in the presence of a congregation of some 3,000 people. At both these last-named services the strings (led by Mr. Gann) and wood-wind of Mr. Perrin's own orchestra, aided by the Royal Engineers' band, lent their valuable assistance. The musical excellence of the three services was worthy of the remarkable occasion.

(From a Photograph by Mr. H. J. Whitlock, New Street, Birmingham.)

Mr. Harry Crane Perrin, organist of Canterbury Cathedral (whose portrait we give), was born at Wellingborough, August 19, 1865. He studied under Sir Robert Stewart and took his degree of Bachelor in Music at Dublin in 1890. His organ appointments have been St. Columba's College, Rathfarnham, 1886; St John's Church, Lowestoft (where he conducted the local choral society), 1888; and St. Michael's Church, Coventry, 1892. At the last-named place he was conductor of the Coventry musical society as well as choir inspector and conductor to the Church Choral Association for the Archdeaconry of Coventry. In 1898 he became organist and master of the choristers of Canterbury Cathedral, in succession to Dr. W. H. Longhurst, who has seen no less than seventy years' active musical service in that fine old sanctuary. Mr. Perrin, who is a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists, has composed 'church music, songs, pianoforte music, &c.' Like other young men who hold the position of 'chief musician' in so many English cathedrals at the present time, he is full of energy and is alive to the responsibilities of his important office.

PROFESSOR NIECKS ON MELODRAMA.

The Edinburgh Professor, always on the look out for something fresh and instructive in the way of 'a dainty-dish' to set before his students, chose the subject of Melodrama for the second of his Four Historical Concerts, given in the University Music Class Room, on December 19. The erudite occupant of the Reid Chair spake thus in the 'Preface' to his interesting programme:—

Melodrama meant originally Musical Drama, either in the sense of Opera or of Spoken Drama interspersed with Music. In the last quarter of the eighteenth century the word began to be used in the specialised sense of Spoken Drama accompanied by Instrumental Music, and has since been applied to recitation of any kind accompanied by instrumental music—to long and short passages in operas and cantatas, to epic and lyrical poems, to prose tales, &c. Although, no doubt, instrumental music was thus employed in the spoken drama in earlier times, even in antiquity, Jean Jacques Rousseau has been credited with the invention of Melodrama, and it must be allowed that he originated a particular kind, the lyrico-dramatic scene, and gave the impulse to the artistic cultivation of an interesting form of mixed art, which, if previously practised, had gone out of fashion, and been forgotten. Rousseau wrote the words of his Pygmalion in the sixties. It is a lyric scene in prose, intended to be recited and acted in costume on a properly equipped stage, with instrumental music accompanying, not the words, but the actor's pantomime during the pauses between the words. The first performance of this work took place at Lyons in 1770, the first Paris performance in 1775. The music used on these occasions, with the exception of two pieces by Rousseau, was by Horace Coignet, a Lyons amateur.

The new genre became at once very popular, especially in Germany. Several French and German composers followed Coignet in composing music to Pygmalion, and new libretti were written and set to music. The most prolific and successful of the many melodramatic composers who then arose was George Benda, musical conductor (Capellmeister) of the Duke of Gotha. The most famous of his melodramas, Ariadne in Naxos, will be performed (with two short cuts) to-night. Mozart was so delighted with this and another of Benda's works, Medea, that in travelling he carried the scores about with him; and conceived so high an idea of the genre that he occupied himself with the composition of a melodrama, Semiramis. What has become of it is unknown. Except in his serious operetta, Zaide, he does not in any of his operas resort to the melodramatic treatment.

The interest taken by the public in the new art form lasted about a quarter of a century. But while the cultivation of the melodrama as an independent form was of short duration, its introduction into operas and plays saved it from oblivion. To give a few instances—Beethoven in Fidelio, Weber in Der Freischütz and Preciosa, Marschner in Der Vampyr and Hans Heiling, Mendelssohn in A Midsummer Night's Dream, and Schumann in Manfred. But about the middle of the nineteenth century composers began again to cultivate the melodramatic form independently. It will suffice to mention here Schumann, Liszt, Grieg, Mackenzie, and Richard Strauss. Mackenzie cannot be named without mentioning his felicitous utilisation of the melodramatic form in his cantata, The Dream of Jubal.

The aim of the melodramatic treatment is to emphasise what the words express, and to supply what they only imply or hint at; music being superior to speech in emotional expression, and also able to add descriptive touches. As a rule, the most important part of melodramatic music is heard in the pauses of the recitation, during the speaking the music is either silent or subordinate, consisting oftenest only of a few sustained harmonies. The procedures of composers differ, however, in this respect very considerably. To show how much they sometimes differ, Massenet's opera Manon may be instanced, where the continuous music accompanying the purely conversational spoken dialogue is neutral with regard to expression, and serves only to bridge over the musical silences that otherwise would arise between the lyrical and dramatic portions of the work. This, however, is melodramatic treatment only in form, not in spirit.

These remarks would be incomplete without an indication of the principal defects of the genre—namely, that the speaking voice and the music do not blend, and that melodramatic music is a thing of formally undeveloped and unconnected patches and snatches.

In conclusion, it should yet be stated that in connection with the melodrama the terms Monodrama and Duodrama were frequently used in the olden time. In the monodrama there was only one chief actor, in the duodrama there were two. Thus Pygmalion was called a monodrama, although there was, besides Pygmalion, Galatea, who, however, had only a few words to pronounce; and Ariadne in Naxos was called a duodrama, although there were, besides Ariadne and Theseus, an Oread, who had little, and some Greeks, who had nothing to say.

Here is the programme:—

Georg Benda (1721-95):
Ariadne in Naxos, duodrama, the words by J. C. Brandes, after Gerstenberg's cantata Ariadne. (First performance in 1774.)

Robert Schumann (1810-56): Op. 115.
Manfred, a dramatic poem in three acts, by Byron, with music by R. S. (Composed in 1848 and 1849.)
(a.) Calling of the Witch of the Alps.
(b.) Invocation of Astarte.
(c.) Manfred's Address to Astarte.

Robert Schumann: Op. 122.
The Fugitives, by Shelley.

Franz Liszt (1811-86):
Leonore, ballad by G. A. Bürger, translated by F. Corder.

Edvard Hagerup Grieg (b. 1843): Op. 42.
Bergliot, a poem by Björnstjerne Björnson, translated by F. Corder.

Richard Strauss (b. 1864): Op. 38.
Enoch Arden, by Tennyson, Part II.

A. C. Mackenzie (b. 1847):
Queen Mab, by Tom Hood.
Jabberwocky, by Lewis Carroll.

The recitations were given by Mrs. Tobias Matthay (Jessie Kennedy), Mr. Cuthbert Whitemore accompanying her on the pianoforte. These were interspersed with some violoncello pieces played by Mr. David Millar Craig, accompanied by Mr. A. Scott Jupp. The music students at Edinburgh University are to be congratulated on their Professor and the excellent fare he provides for their delectation.

LA CONTREDANSE.

Despite the eminent authority of M. Littré to the contrary, there can be little doubt that the French contredanse was an adaptation of the English country dance. In England the country dance was well known at least as early as 1579, when Mr. E. K., in his notes to Spenser's 'Shepherd's Calendar,' explained 'haydeguies' as meaning 'a country daunce or rownd'; and in 1597, Thomas Morley, in his 'Introduction,' speaks familiarly of 'our countrey daunce' and 'the English country daunce.'

In France, on the other hand, there is no trace of the contredanse till quite late in the seventeenth century. The earliest example that I know is dated 1683. It occurs in one of the manuscripts of the Music School at Oxford (MS. Mus. Sch. c. 94), and is written in tablature for a guitar of five strings, tuned—or to corresponding intervals. This, at least, is the tuning given in the manuscript, but the music seems to require that the D string should be tuned an octave higher. Here is the tablature with a transcription in staff notation (transposed a fifth higher):—

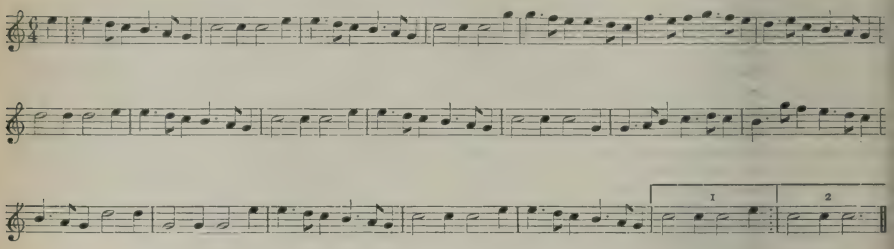
This is to all intents and purposes a saraband, and would certainly not pass as a contredanse unless it were so named in the manuscript. The next example, however, is in the genuine country dance rhythm. It is a 'gigue' entitled 'La Contredance,' which is be found in a collection of dances composed by a M. Pecour, and printed, in 1700, as an appendix to Feuillet's 'Chorégraphie.' This is the tune:—



Six years later, in 1706, Feuillet himself published a 'Recueil de Contredances.' This collection, the first of its kind published in France, though in England the Dancing-Master had been printed and re-printed for more than half-a-century, seems entirely to have escaped the notice of musical historians. It is a small duodecimo volume of 186 pages, and contains the tunes of thirty-two dances 'mises en chorégraphie'—i.e., with diagrams framed in accordance with the system elaborated by Feuillet in his previous publication, the 'Chorégraphie' of 1700. These are placed below each section of each tune to illustrate the movements of the dancers.

Of these thirty-two tunes three are composed by Feuillet himself, and five by another French dancing master named Voisin. Of the remaining twenty-four at least fifteen are English tunes with scarcely concealed English names, many of which had appeared in the Dancing-Master as early as 1670. Thus 'Green Sleeves' appears as 'Les Manches Vertes,' 'Excuse me' as 'Excuses my,' 'Northern Nancy' as 'La Bergère,' 'Jamaica' as 'La Bonne Amitié,' 'Buffcoat' as 'La Buffecotte,' 'Lilliburlero' as 'La Lirboulaire,' 'Christ Church Bells' as 'Le Carillon d'Oxfort.' In one instance Feuillet seems to be in error. He prints a tune entitled 'Jeanne qui saute,' an obvious translation of 'Bobbing Joan'; but the tune is, in fact, not 'Bobbing Joan,' but the equally well-known 'Joan's Placket.'

The appearance of so many English country dances in the first printed collection of French contredanses is certainly strong evidence of a common English origin, and Feuillet does not hesitate to state in his preface—'Les Anglois en sont les premiers inventeurs.' The preface also gives a possible clue to the date of their introduction into France. 'Les contredanses,' says Feuillet, 'sont presentement la plus grande partie des divertissements des assemblées où l'on danse, depuis que Madame la Dauphine en a amené l'usage en France.' The Dauphin at this time was Louis, the son of Louis XIV. He was only once married—viz., on December 30, 1679, to Marie Anne Christine of Bavaria, and this lady died early in 1690—i.e., some sixteen years before Feuillet's book was published. If she is really the person meant, the contredanse must have found its way into France between 1680 and 1690. It is possible, however, that the lady referred to is Adelaide of Savoy, who married the Duke of Burgundy, eldest son to the Dauphin Louis, in 1697. The Duke did not succeed to the title of Dauphin till his father's death in 1711, but he was known as 'le petit dauphin' even during his father's lifetime, and his wife (a lady by all accounts far more likely than the Bavarian princess to have been interested in dancing) may have been spoken of as 'Madame la Dauphine.' This would take the French contredanse back to about 1700.

Further evidence of the English origin of the contredanse is afforded by the directions which Feuillet gives for dancing it. Any number of couples, he tells us, may take part. The ladies and gentlemen are to be ranged in two lines facing each other, and the steps shown in the choregraphic diagrams are to be danced by each couple successively until all have in turn passed from the top to the bottom. This is nothing more or less than the English country dance 'longways for as many as will,' as still exemplified in our 'Roger de Coverley.'

The photograph here reproduced, which is just two-thirds of the actual size of the page, shows the first strain of 'Green Sleeves' and the steps to be danced to it by the first couple. The semi-circular object on the right is the lady, and that on the left the gentleman. The curved lines show their movements. The little arrow-heads are rather misleading: they do not mark the direction in which the dancers move, but the position in which they ought to find themselves at the close of each bar of the music. It will be noticed that the clef employed is the old French violin clef, G on the lowest line. This page contains only the first of eight strains into which 'Les Manches Vertes' is divided; each strain has a page to itself, and the step-diagrams vary from page to page.

Feuillet is not alone in giving to the English the credit for the invention of the contredanse. It is a point on which all writers of the early part of the eighteenth century are agreed. Essex in his 'Treatise on Chorography, or the Art of Dancing Country Dances,' printed in 1710, writes: 'This which we call country dancing is originally the product of this nation.' Two years later John Weaver, in his 'Essay towards an History of Dancing,' speaks of the country dance as 'the peculiar growth of this nation (England), though now transplanted into almost all the Courts of Europe'; and the French writer Bonnet ('Histoire de la Danse' (Paris), 1724) tells us that the contredanse was introduced into France some twelve or fifteen years ago (i.e., about 1710) by an English dancing master. From this last statement is probably derived the account of the contredanse given in 'Grove,' and followed by the editors of the new Oxford dictionary—namely, that it was a dance of English origin introduced into France during the Regency, 1715-1723.

J. F. R. Stainer.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

NEW ANECDOTES AND FRESH REMINISCENCES.

Miss Helmore, who kindly lent the youth-period photograph of Sir Arthur Sullivan which we reproduced in our last issue, writes as follows:—

How very well the photograph has come out. I ought to have told you that it was a birthday present to my mother, signed, at her special request, 'Arthur Sullivan,' not Arthur S. Sullivan, which was his usual signature at that time, and for many years later. He was rather proud of his inappropriate initials! But my mother did not like them, and always wanted him to drop the Seymour, and this after some time he did to please her. He was always devotedly attached to her, and at the time of her death—in March, 1886—he was like one of ourselves in his grief. I thought I had better explain about the signature as you might be asked about it, and its authenticity questioned.

Miss Helmore, in the course of a recent conversation, kindly supplied for The Musical Times some additional reminiscences of Arthur Sullivan's boyhood. From 1854 (ætat 12) to 1857, he was one of the Children of the Chapel Royal, all of whom lived under the roof of the late esteemed Rev. Thomas Helmore (Miss Helmore's father)—for more than forty years Master of the Children—at 6, Cheyne Walk, Chelsea. The circumstances that led to Arthur Sullivan's becoming a Chapel Royal chorister were peculiar. In the Helmore establishment in Cheyne Walk was a certain housemaid. This domestic went home for a holiday to Sandhurst, where Mr. Thomas Sullivan was Bandmaster at the Royal Military College. 'How Master Arthur would like to live in our house, where there is so much music,' said the Helmore's maid to the musical son of Thomas Sullivan. This observation fired the ambition of the youthful Arthur to become a Chapel Royal chorister, with what result we all know—but to the said housemaid is the first step due.

Arthur Sullivan, 'just turned fourteen,' won the first Mendelssohn Scholarship on July 5, 1856. On the ensuing day his father wrote the following letter to Mr. Helmore:—

[Sandhurst] 6th July, 1856.

Rev. Sir,

I received your letter conveying the gratifying intelligence of my dear Arthur's success, and it would indeed be difficult to describe what I felt at that moment.

Should the Almighty spare him, I think he will at no distant day achieve much greater things. His mother is yet in London, and I have requested her to call and arrange about his remaining with you. I can see no objection to it myself, provided his health and mind do not suffer by over fatigue.

Believe me, Sir, yours respectfully,
Thomas Sullivan.

Miss Helmore states that Arthur Sullivan was a very delicate boy from his birth. On Sundays, between the services, he always had to lie down in the afternoon in order to recover from the fatigue of the morning service and the walk to and from the Chapel Royal in his heavy gold-adorned coat.

Let us now get a glimpse of him at Leipzig. Here is an extract from a letter written by Ignaz Moscheles to Sir George Smart, the chairman of the Mendelssohn Scholarship committee, in reference to Sullivan's studies at the famous Conservatorium:—

Leipzig, 21 Sept., 1859.

. . . I am happy to find much improvement in young Sullivan. He is steadily working out his natural abilities, and gaining ground in playing as well as composition; the latter is clearly proved by the new overture he is just finishing. You may rely upon my every way fostering his musical talent, and I like him for his love of you and the gratitude with which he names you and Lady Smart. . . .

Believe me, my dear Sir George,
Ever your faithful friend,
I. Moscheles.

Arthur Sullivan was strongly attached to the Helmore family by ties of the deepest affection—ties which remained unbroken while life remained. The Master, as Mr. Helmore was called, he ever regarded with feelings of veneration and gratitude. In proof thereof the following letter, written a day or two after that memorable 'Tempest' performance at the Crystal Palace, may be quoted:—

3, Ponsonby Street, Pimlico, S.W.
April 9, 1862.

My dear Mr. Helmore,

I was exceedingly glad to see your letter in to-day's Times, for two reasons:

1stly: As I think it no small honour to have been in a school which has produced so many of our best English musicians, and to have had your instruction for more than three years, I was naturally pleased to see it thus publicly stated.

2ndly: If any little success attends me in my professional career, surely you ought not to be overlooked amongst those to whom the chief credit is due. For to you I owe more than to anyone else perhaps.

The high principles and elevated tone, applying equally to Art as to Morals, with which you strove, more by example than by precept, to imbue me (God grant that it may have been with some success), the care and attention bestowed upon every branch of my education, and the constant and kindly interest taken in my progress, have been in no small manner influential in making me what I am—viz., an earnest labourer in the cause of true Art.

Believe me, dear Mr. Helmore, with all the respect and esteem of an old pupil,

Yours most affect'ly,

Revd. T. Helmore. Arthur S. Sullivan.

The following is the letter above referred to by the young ex-Mendelssohn scholar:—

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE TIMES.'

Sir,—The young English composer, Arthur Seymour Sullivan, whose music for Shakespeare's 'Tempest' was so favourably noticed in The Times of Monday, was a chorister in the Chapel Royal, St. James's, at the time he was chosen Mendelssohn scholar; he then studied for two years at the Royal Academy of Music, and was afterwards sent to the Conservatorium, Leipsic. He entered the Chapel Royal in April, 1854, and left in June, 1857; and it seems just to the oldest school of English composers that this fact should not be wholly ignored in any notice of his educational career.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

Thomas Helmore, M.A.,
Priest in Ordinary, and Master of the Children of Her Majesty's Chapels Royal.

6, Cheyne Walk, Chelsea, April 8 [1862].

As a Christmas present (in 1889) the Master sent his old and distinguished pupil a copy of a new translation of Thomas à Kempis. The following letter of acknowledgment is one of more than passing interest. Does it not open up an exceedingly interesting subject—the limitations of music?

1, Queen's Mansions,
Victoria Street, S.W.,
December 26, 1889.

Thank you many times, my dear old Master and friend, for your thought of me. I would have come myself to acknowledge it, but every moment of the day has been taken up with rehearsing the company we are sending out to America to perform 'The Gondoliers.' I shall, however, have a chance now of coming to see you, as I am getting a little freer from work.

It seems to me, from the hasty glance I have been able only to throw at the book, that the lines require no music—the rhythm itself is music, and of a most beautiful character. It sounds paradoxical, but there are times to me when the music would be more beautiful and more complete without notes. I suppose it is that the diatonic and chromatic scales are so limited. How often have I longed to be free of fixed intervals; more especially in the prologue to the 'Golden Legend,' I felt myself hampered by having to express all I wanted to say by voice and instruments of limited means, and definite, unchangeable quality. After all it is only human to be longing and striving for something more than we have got.

My best love to the girls, with my wishes for peace and happiness now and always.

Ever yours affectionately,
Arthur Sullivan.

Miss Helmore adds that Sullivan was by no means overburdened with riches when he returned from Leipzig in 1861. For about a year he attended four afternoons a week as an assistant-master to Mr. Helmore, not to give the Chapel Royal choristers music lessons, but to teach them the 3 R's!

We give in facsimile a specimen of Arthur Sullivan's poetry—its theme being the loan of a copy of Mr. F. C. Burnand's book, 'Out of Town,' to the Helmores, before starting for a summer holiday in 1869:—

Dear little Arthur would very much rather
Have gone without dinner
(Mem wasting much thinner)
Than let his dear friends,
To whom this he sends Departure of town
Without "Out of Town".

Mrs. Walter Carr, a most valued contributor to Sir George Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians,' has very kindly sent us some exceedingly interesting recollections of Sir Arthur Sullivan's organist days. As the daughter of his first vicar, the late Rev. J. H. Hamilton, of St. Michael's, Chester Square, Mrs. Carr authoritatively speaks from the fulness of her knowledge of and friendship with Arthur Sullivan in the following letter:—

St. John's Vicarage,
Worcester,
January 14, 1901.

Dear Sir,

Sir Arthur Sullivan was appointed organist of St. Michael's, Chester Square, in the summer of 1861, very soon after his return from Leipzig, but my impression is that he did not begin work till the month of October. My reasons for thinking so are, first, that my governess, who left in July, 1861, said to me: 'I am so afraid that you will have lessons from that new organist, and it would be a great mistake'; and second, that he had been at work long enough for classes to be established for congregational practice of the church music before the production of the 'Tempest' music at the Crystal Palace, on April 5, 1862. I distinctly remember his receiving at one of those congregational practices the congratulations of the ladies on the brilliant success of his work.

Immediately after his return from Leipzig, Arthur Sullivan took some organ lessons from George Cooper—they lasted for about five months. I was present at the trial for the vacant post at St. Michael's, and was quite enthralled with the performance of the E minor Fugue of Bach, one of the pieces played by the slim, curly-headed, black-eyed youth. The eight years during which he held the post saw the rapid development of Arthur Sullivan's genius, and, no doubt, materially contributed to it. He was introduced to my father by Captain Ottley, an old friend of the Helmores. I may add that I was not only one of his earliest pupils in organ playing and harmony, but for many years I took the Wednesday morning and Sunday afternoon services for him.

The origin of the policeman choir was this: cordial relations had always existed between the police station, situated close to St. Michael's, and the Church—indeed, a special service was held for the constables every Wednesday morning. So when there was a difficulty about procuring tenors and basses, it occurred to my father that there was this raw material ready to hand. Raw material indeed it was at first, but with patience and perseverance it proved capable of results surprising to those who knew the beginning. Many doubtless have heard Sir Arthur tell in later days the story of that Easter evening when the Psalms were chanted for the first time; how after weeks of patient teaching them their parts, his tenors and basses, having got through a couple of verses, feebly and tentatively, in harmony, burst into a joyful unison—the melody of Mornington in E flat. The 'Harmonious Blue-bottles,' however, completely wiped out this disgrace afterwards, and made an efficient and steady choir, if not one distinguished for beauty of tone.

Arthur Sullivan's conducting power was shown still more in what he could make the congregation do. As a rule, the hymns were sung very heartily by everybody in the congregation, but he could subdue the whole body of voices to a whisper when he chose; as, for instance, in such passages as the last verse of 'Rock of Ages,' sung to a German tune named 'Cassell,' in Mercer's Hymnal. It may not be generally known that at this very period, when Sullivan was twenty-two or twenty-three years old, Sir Michael Costa said to him that he considered that he (Sullivan) was the only man in England capable of succeeding himself as conductor of the Handel Festival.

My most vivid recollection of Arthur Sullivan in the old organ-loft is on the day he came for sympathy after his father's death. He was dressed entirely in black, his usually brilliant eyes were dull and lifeless, and his face deadly pale, so that he looked the embodiment of grief. As was his custom when writing anything new, he played me portions of the In Memoriam overture, which I heard subsequently at the Crystal Palace. I shall never forget seeing the occupants of the side gallery start to their feet by an incontrollable impulse at the first crash of those triumphant chords in C major, just before the close. I wondered that the papers took no notice of this fact at the time.

On one occasion, to use his own words, I 'saved his life' by helping to copy out the violin parts for 'Cox and Box' on the morning of its first band rehearsal. He had written all through the night, and I still possess the note he sent round to ask me to do the copying. For many years our friendship was very close. My last visit to him was in May, when I saw death in his face; but he was not only as charming as ever, but most interesting in his remarks on music of the present day. He used to ask me to hunt up subjects for him, but I never succeeded, though he said that if he wrote another oratorio he would have taken a libretto I sent him on 'Daniel.'

There is no need to dwell on the charm he exercised over the Church officials at St. Michael's, nor on the affectionate intimacy between himself and his vicar. All this was part of his character, and many similar instances came out after his death. The man was as great as the musician, and how great that was only those know who have watched his career throughout. He said only the other day, in speaking of one of our rising composers, 'He is a musician by the grace of God.' The expression aptly fitted himself. When we were all young it was a joke among us that I was to write Sir Arthur's life, so it will be a pleasure to me to supply you with any information in my power.

Yours very truly,

To the Editor of The Musical Times. Mary C. Carr.

Next month we hope to give some boyhood recollections of Sir Arthur Sullivan by his old friend and fellow chorister at the Chapel Royal, St. James's, Mr. Christopher Vicary Bridgman.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

A CURIOUS GAUNTLETT ORGAN.

In the obituary article on Dr. Pole in another column (p. 103) reference is made to his having deputised for his brother-in-law, Dr. Gauntlett, at the Church of St. Olave, Southwark. Therefore, it may not be without interest to give some particulars about the curious organ erected in that church half-a-century ago. First, we may quote from a letter received from Sir John Stainer relating to his old friend, Dr. Pole. Sir John says: 'St. Olave's, Southwark, was close to my old home, and I was often taken by my father, when a little boy (8-10), to hear the concluding voluntaries at St. Olave's when our service was finished at St. Thomas', which, by the way, had no organ!'

The following inscription appeared on a brass plate between the manuals:—

This organ, of a 32 feet Manual Gamut, was designed by Mr. H. J. Gauntlett, commenced by Mr. Lincoln, 1844, and perfected by Mr. William Hill, 1846.

Here is a list of the stops:—

Great Organ (27 stops).

1. Sub Bourdon, Tenor C 32 feet
2. Tenoroon, Tenor C .. 16 ,,
3. Bourdon .. 16 feet tone
4. Unison, open.. .. 8 feet
5. Unison, closed 8 feet tone
6. Unison Bass, closed .. 8 ,, ,,
7. Violdi Gamba, Tenor C 8 feet
8. Salicional, Tenor C.. 8 ,,
9. Clarabella, Tenor C.. 8 ,,
10. Quint .. .. .. 6 ,,
11. Octave.. .. .. 4 ,,
12. Wald Flute, Tenor C 4 ,,
13. Decima.. .. .. 3⅓ ,,
14. Duo Decimo .. .. 3 ,,
15. Super Octave .. 2 feet
16. Piccolo, Tenor C .. 2 ,,
17. Octave Decima .. 1⅓ ,,
18. Sesquialtera, III. ranks
19. Mixture, II. ,,
20. Furniture, III. ,,
21. Doublette, II. ,,
22. Glockenspiel, II. ,,
23. Posaune .. .. 8 feet
24. Clarion .. .. 4 ,,
25. Octave Clarion .. 2 ,,
26. Kromhorn, Tenor C 8 feet tone
27. Corno Flute, Tenor C 8 feet

Swell Organ (10 stops).

28. Tenoroon .. .. 16 feet
29. Unison Open .. 8 ,,
30. Unison Closed 8 feet tone
31. Octave.. .. .. 8 feet
32. Suabe Flute .. .. 4 ,,
33. Super Octave .. 2 feet
34. Flageolet .. .. 2 ,,
35. Octave Fifteenth .. 1 ,,
36. Cornopean .. .. 8 ,,
37. Hautbois .. .. 8 ,,

Pedal Organ (3 stops).

38. Contra Bourdon 32 feet tone
39. Principal Contra Bass 16 feet
40. Bass Trombone .. 16 feet.

Couplers, &c.

1. Grand Organ combined.
2. Swell to Great.
3. Grand to Pedal.
4. Swell to Pedal.

Compass.

Great, CC to f^3 in alt.
Swell, Tenor C to f^3 in alt.
Pedal, CCC to Tenor d.

The great organ has two separate sound-boards, which accounts for the Coupler denominated 'Grand Organ combined.'

The peculiarity of this specification, as compared with those of present day organs, is obvious.

Mr. George T. Gallwey, organist of St. John's Cathedral, Antigua, has sent us an extract from the West Indian Guardian relating to the organ over which he so ably presides. It appears that the instrument, ordered from Messrs. Longman and Broderip, No. 26, Cheapside, arrived in the West Indian Island on March 25, 1789, its cost being £630, plus £136 for insurance, freight, &c. The 'description' (specification) of the organ was supplied by Mr. Thomas Pierce, the organist at that period, to whom the Vestry made 'a present of £50 to purchase a hogshead of wine, in compensation for his loss of time and great attention paid in putting up the new organ.' Mr. Gallwey sends a list of services in the Cathedral on Christmas Day, which commenced with a Choral Celebration at 6.30 a.m.

A new organisation has been formed in the breezy northern suburb noted for its heathen—as a Scotch professor chooses to designate the inhabitants thereof—with the title of 'The Hampstead Nonconformist Choir Union.' The object of the federation, which is to embrace the choirs of all the Nonconformist churches in the Borough, is 'to enable each separate choir to put in practice at their weekly rehearsals musical works of a different character from that ordinarily sung at the Sunday services.' Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' is now in rehearsal with a view to its performance by the combined choirs on March 20. The honorary secretary of the Association, Mr. Joseph Moody, 12, Canterbury Mansions, West End Lane, Hampstead, will gladly furnish further information.

Mr. E. H. Thorne, that excellent musician and Bach lover, will give the last three of his interesting Bach recitals during the month at St. Anne's Church, Soho. As a specimen programme of this educational series of performances, the scheme for Saturday, the 2nd inst., at 3.30 p.m., may be given. (The remaining recitals are announced for the 9th and 16th inst., at the same hour.)

Prelude and Fugue in B minor.
Choral Prelude, from the 'Little Choral Book': (First time at these Recitals)
a. 'God, through Thy mercy.' Canon in the octave, two manuals and pedal.
b. 'The day so rich in joy.' Two manuals and pedal.
c. 'In dulci jubilo.' Double canon in the octave. Two manuals and pedal.
Fantasia in F, on 'Come, Holy Ghost,' for full organ. Theme in pedal.
Sonata in G major. Two manuals and pedal.
Vivace. Lento. Allegro.
Choral Prelude, 'These be the holy Ten Commandments.'
Canon in the octave. Two manuals and pedal.
Prelude and Fugue in G major.

A correspondent ('Psalmodist') writes:—

I should be greatly obliged if any of your readers can tell me the whereabouts of a copy of Day's Psalter of 1562. I have hitherto failed in my attempts to trace this rare book, and I almost begin to doubt whether it is now in existence.

Organ Recitals.

Mr. H. J. Davis, Christ Church, Bath (Christmas Postlude, Garrett).—Mr. J. W. Cheadle, St. Michael's Parish Church, Dumfries.—Mr. P. Tottenham Lucas, St. Paul's, Covent Garden (Magnificat in F, Lemaigre).—Mr. Sydney L. K. Crookes, Cupar Parish Church (Fantaisie Sonata, Op. 65, Rheinberger).—Mr. J. W. G. Hathaway, Tonbridge Parish Church (Imperial March, Elgar).—Mr. A. Cecil S. Thompson, Parish Church, Strabane (Fantasia in E minor, Silas).—Mr. James A. Crapper, Parish Church, Bathgate.—Mr. Allan Paterson, St. Paul's, Greenock.—Mr. J. Matthews, St. Stephen's, Guernsey (Fantasia on the tune 'Hanover,' Lemare).—Mr. Alfred H. Allen, St. Clement's, Ilford (Sonata in A minor, Op. 98, Rheinberger).—Mr. R. E. Parker, Parish Church, Wilmslow (March des Rois Mages, Dubois).—Mr. W. W. Starmer, St. Matthew's, Northampton (Prelude in C minor, on a Plainsong, Dom S. Ould, and Toccata and Fugue in D minor, Seegr).—Mr. W. Louch, St. John's, Longsight, Manchester.—Mr. H. W. Chester, Wincanton Parish Church (Guilmant's Sonata in D minor).—Mr. Thomas J. Crawford, St. Paul's, Covent Garden (Smart's Con moto moderato in D).—Mr. Walter Hoyle, St. Michael's, Coventry (Austrian Hymn, varied, Chipp).—Mr. Arthur S. James, St. Peter's, Rickmansworth.—Mr. A. J. Lancashire, St. Andrew's, Grimsby (Fantasia in C minor, Hoyte).—Mr. R. W. Strickland, College Street Chapel, Northampton (Fantasie Overture, Garrett).

Mr. Roger Ascham gave his 100th organ recital in the Feather Market Hall, Port Elizabeth, on December 23, when every number in the programme was specially composed for the occasion.

Organist and Choir Appointments.

Dr. A. W. Wilson, Ely Cathedral.

Mr. Adam Henderson, Bellshill Parish Church, Bothwell, N.B.

Mr. J. Turton Smith, St. Mary's Parish Church, Pembroke.

Mr. Harold Deacon, Priory Church, Dunstable.

Mr. E. Beck Slinn, St. Andrew's Church, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

Mr. Alfred J. Silver, Handsworth Parish Church, Birmingham.

Mr. B. J. Dale (organist), Wesley's Chapel, City Road.

Mr. A. J. Hopper (choirmaster) and Mr. Guy C. Ambrose (organist), Berkeley Chapel, Mayfair.

Mr. G. A. Davey (alto), Christ Church, Lancaster Gate.

Mr. E. C. Ashford (bass), Brompton Parish Church.

DR. WILLIAM POLE, F.R.S.

AN eminent man of science and a highly cultured amateur musician, in the person of WILLIAM POLE, died, we much regret to record, at his residence, 9, Stanhope Place, Hyde Park, on December 30 last, aged 86. Dr. Pole had more than one claim to a niche in the temple of fame. He was a great engineer, and one of the oldest members of the Institution of Civil Engineers; one of the fathers of modern whist and a profound student and learned expositor of that game; and, moreover, he was a prolific writer upon a variety of scientific subjects. But it is with his musical attainments—and these were of no mean order—that we have to do.

Yours very truly
Wm Pole.

Dr. Pole, who was born at Birmingham, April 22, 1814, taught himself to play the pianoforte and organ. At the age of seventeen he was 'fortunate enough,' as he himself said, 'to obtain an appointment as paid organist of a Wesleyan Chapel in Birmingham, changing it a year or two later for a better one at the large Congregational Chapel of the Rev. John Angell James, in Carr's Lane (one of the best known in England), with a salary of £25 a year.' Young Pole then became an organ and harmony pupil of Thomas Munden, who taught him the true legato style of organ playing, and with whom he also studied counterpoint and reading from score. In 1836 he came to London and, in November of that year, he was elected organist of St. Mark's Church, North Audley Street. Among his testimonials were those from Samuel Wesley the elder, Thomas Attwood, Vincent Novello, H. J. Gauntlett, and Dr. Busby. He was also evening organist of St. Olave's, Southwark, of which the organist was then Henry John Gauntlett, whose youngest sister Dr. Pole married in 1846. (We make a reference to the St. Olave's organ in our Church and Organ Music article.)

An engineering appointment in India compelled Pole to give up his organ work in London in 1844, but ill health soon compelled him to return to England. On their leisurely journey home through the continent of Europe Mr. and Mrs. Pole passed through Leipzig, where they intended to call on Mendelssohn. This was in 1847. 'On Sunday, the 7th of November,' records Dr. Pole, 'walking through the town, about 5 p.m., we saw a crowd round the door of the University Church, and on asking what was going on, we were told it was "Mendelssohn's Todtenfeier"—he had died on the 4th!'

Two years after his return to London Mr. Pole, upon the death of his successor, was re-appointed organist of St. Mark's; this post he retained till 1866—thirty years after his first appointment thereto. William Pole, like Samuel Wesley, was a Bach pioneer in England. His own words may be quoted in this connection:—

About this time [1851] I resolved to try to get some little performances of music at my own house. I had happened to get hold of a full score of a Magnificat by Sebastian Bach. I was amazingly struck by it, but I could not learn that it had ever been performed, or indeed that anything was generally known of it in this country. I thought it well worth trying; I arranged the instrumental accompaniments for four hands on the piano; I had the voice parts copied, and I hunted up some singers to make the attempt. We had a preliminary rehearsal on the 14th of February, 1852, and on that occasion the alto part was kindly sung by Master John Stainer, a chorister at St. Paul's, with whose skill and talent we were all delighted. The performance took place on the 6th of March, with about twenty-five singers. The accompaniments were kindly played by Dr. Steggall and Mr. Banister, and I conducted. We also performed some other little-known classical pieces, and the whole went very well. This was, so far as I know, the first performance of the Magnificat, entire, in England, and it was certainly a novelty to the many good musicians who attended.

The early Italian composers also claimed his attention, and his enthusiasm in seeking out untrodden bye-ways of music extended to the making of manuscript parts with his own hand. Thus the efforts of Dr. Pole, half-a-century ago, to introduce good music practically unknown, and to teach people what they ought to like, deserve the gratitude of all earnest lovers of the art.

Bach was not, however, his only love. To celebrate the centenary of Mozart's birthday (January 27, 1856) he arranged and conducted a private concert, the music selected being entirely composed by Mozart and consisting mostly of works very little known. The accompaniments of the vocal pieces he adapted for four hands on the pianoforte with harmonium. So successful was this performance that similar Mozart birthday celebrations followed, at one of which the almost unknown Double Concerto for violin and viola was played.

In the year 1860 Dr. Pole took the degree of Bachelor in Music at the University of Oxford. His Exercise on that occasion consisted of a contrapuntal setting of the 100th Psalm. Eighteen years later (in 1878) he adapted a portion of this Exercise to form an independent eight-part motet, which was published by Messrs. Novello. In 1857 he proceeded to his degree of Doctor of Music, the examiners on that occasion being Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Dr. Corfe, and Dr. Stainer—the last-named then a young man of twenty-seven. When, in 1876, the University of London decided to confer Degrees in Music, Dr. Pole, at the request of the authorities, drew up the Regulations and became one of the first examiners.—(Vide The Musical Times, August, 1886, p. 461.)

It is now time to turn to the literary side of Dr. Pole's musical career. As far back as 1855 he wrote analytical programmes for the concerts of the New Philharmonic Society, among the works analysed being the last seven symphonies of Beethoven and a new symphony by Gounod, then a 'new man' in this country. In 1857 he wrote, for the Crystal Palace Company, an analysis of 'Judas Maccabæus' and in 1879 he published his 'The Philosophy of Music.' He wrote eleven articles for Sir George Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians.' In addition to the article entitled 'Musical Degrees in the University of London' (already referred to), Dr. Pole contributed to The Musical Times a paper on 'Professional Musicians and Musical Amateurs' (August, 1883). He wrote a very valuable and interesting monograph on Mozart's 'Requiem,' which originally appeared in the columns of this journal during the year 1869.

Dr. Pole was a most industrious worker—a living example of 'Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might.' His versatility was no less remarkable than his industry. The long list of his writings shows the wide range of his interests, and his masterly treatment of every subject he took up is a strong proof of his great mental equipment. He was a very kind-hearted man and, as the present writer can bear testimony, he was always ready and willing to give information from the rich store of his knowledge, recollections, and experience.

The Royal College of Organists.—The following were the successful candidates at the recent examinations:—

FELLOWS.

Baxter, J. H., Glasgow.
Blount, V., Brackley.
Brown, Miss A. W., Houghton-le-Spring.
Bulmer, C., Huddersfield.
Every, W., London.
Groocock, E. W., Croydon.
Hart, L., London.
Keene, F. A., London.
Morgan, I. A., Newnham-on-Severn.
Malkin H., Minehead.
Nickson, A. E. H., Farnham.
Sykes, J. F., Huddersfield.
Taylor, R. A., Kidderminster.
Taylor, W. A., Sevenoaks.
Taylor, W. E., Radcliffe.
Tebbutt, A. E., Bluntisham.
Tomlinson, A. S., Burton-on-Trent.
Turner, J. D., Kirkstall.
Whittaker, W. G., Newcastle.

ASSOCIATES.

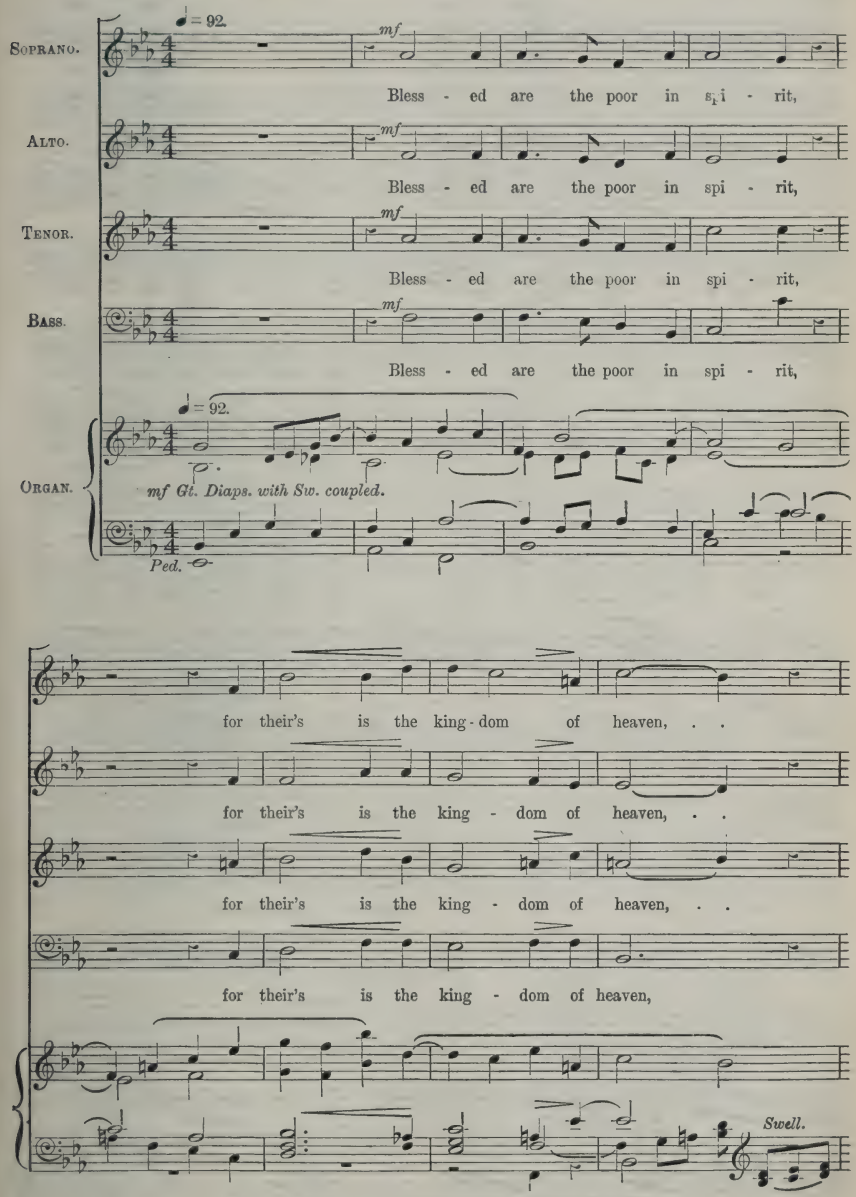
Arnistead, J., Brierfield.
Aston, P. W., West Smethwick.
Blades, H., Sutton.
Broadley, R., Manningham.
Bullock, A. F., Wigan.
Dadge, R., Balmoral.
Evans, G. S., Tonbridge.
Finlay, Miss E. C., Hampstead.
Fisher, A. W., Hove.
Galloway, J. G., Bedford.
Hawke. E. F., Truro.
Hoggett, G., London.
Jones, J. Herbert. Brymbo.
Littlewood, A., York.
Lucas, Miss E. M., Norwood.
Major, G. H., Acton.
McLean, J. C., Portmadoc.
McVicar, W., Glasgow.
Mear, Miss M. B., London.
Palmer, F. G., St. David's.
Potter, E. D., London.
Priest, A., London.
Price, O. M., Louth.
Richards, H., Thorneywood.
Rose, R. S., Scarborough.
Rose, W., Leyland.
Sadler, G. H., Chesterfield.
Sharp, L. T., Bradford.
Shepherd, A. G., East Grinstead.
Tate, A. F., Pickering.
Thompson, W. H., Patricroft.
Toms, S. W., London.
Vinning, H. S., London.
Ward, R., Taunton.
Watkins, E. J., Bournemouth.
Watson, R. B., Cowling.
Wells, G. W., Snodland.
Winkwork, Miss A. H. P., Haughton.
Wilson, P., Grimsby.
Wood, Miss E. E., Ilkley.

Blessed are the poor in spirit.

A SHORT FULL ANTHEM.

St. Matthew v. 3, 5. Composed by HENRY HILES.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



♩ = 92.
SOPRANO.
mf
Bless - ed are the poor in spi - rit,
ALTO.
mf
Bless - ed are the poor in spi - rit,
TENOR.
mf
Bless - ed are the poor in spi - rit,
BASS.
mf
Bless - ed are the poor in spi - rit,
♩ = 92.
ORGAN.
mf Gt. Diaps. with Sw. coupled.
Ped.
for their's is the king - dom of heaven, . .
for their's is the king - dom of heaven, . .
for their's is the king - dom of heaven, . .
for their's is the king - dom of heaven,
Swell.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

p
bless - ed, bless - ed
bless - ed, bless - ed
bless - ed, bless - ed
bless - ed, bless - ed
Ch.
p are the poor in spi - rit, for their's is the king - dom of
are the poor in spi - rit, for their's is the king - dom of
are the poor in spi - rit, for their's is the king - dom of are the poor in spi - rit, for their's is the king - dom of Sw.
p heaven. Bless-ed, bless - ed are the meek, heaven. Bless-ed, bless - ed are the meek,
heaven. Bless-ed, bless - ed are the meek,
heaven. Bless-ed, bless - ed are the meek,
Sw.
Gt.
Sw.
Gt.
Ped.

bless - ed, bless - ed are the meek, for they shall in-her-it the bless - ed, bless - ed are the meek, for they shall in-her- it the bless - ed, bless - ed are the meek, for they shall in-her- it the bless - ed, bless - ed are the meek, for they shall in-her- it the Sw.
Gt.
Gt.
Sw.
earth. O bless - ed, O bless - ed,
earth. O bless - ed, O bless - ed,
earth. O bless - ed, O bless - ed,
earth. O bless - ed, O bless - ed,
f
Gt.
mf
bless - ed, bless - ed,
bless - ed, bless - ed,
bless - ed, bless - ed,
bless - ed, bless - ed,
Sw.
Ch.

rit.
a tempo.
mf
bless - ed, bless - ed are the poor in spi - rit, for their's is the king - dom of heaven, Gt.
p
the king-dom of heaven, their's is the king - dom of heaven. Bless - ed,

is the king - dom of heaven. Bless - ed,
is the king - dom of heaven, Bless - ed,
is the king - dom of heaven. Bless - ed,
Sw.
bless - - ed, O bless - - ed.
bless - - ed, O bless - - ed.
bless - - ed, O bless - - ed.
bless - - ed, O bless - - ed.
Sw.
Gt.
Gt.
rit.
Sw.

PRODUCED AT THE BIRMINGHAM MUSICAL FESTIVAL, OCTOBER 3, 1900.

THE DREAM OF GERONTIUS

BY

CARDINAL NEWMAN

SET TO MUSIC FOR

MEZZO-SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BASS SOLI, CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA

BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

Paper boards, 4s.; cloth, gilt, 5s. Vocal Parts, 1s. 6d. each. String Parts (in the Press).
Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

THE TIMES.

In a work so elaborately disposed for voices and orchestra it is impossible to do more than point out certain parts that call for special commendation. The choir is divided into semi-chorus and full chorus, and some of the concerted numbers in which these are used antiphonally or together are in the highest degree successful. A kind of litany sung by the "assistants" at the death-bed, with the lovely recurrence of "Amen," is beautiful and impressive, and the commentatory utterance of the priest, "Proficiscere, anima Christiana," is worked up into a really splendid climax.

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

"The Dream of Gerontius" advances its composer's claim to rank amongst the musicians of whom the country should be proudest.

STANDARD.

The design and scoring of this Prelude are singularly clear and rational, and its effect is most impressive. . . . The second portion opens with a short but beautiful movement intended to suggest the peace of the Soul as it is borne through space. The next few pages of the score are occupied by music of fascinating grace and tranquility, in which the Soul and its Guardian Angel converse on their way to the Judgment. . . . The conclusion of the work soon follows, and consists of a beautiful and finely-written chorus, with super-imposed solo part for the Angel, expressive of the serenity of the Blessed.

MORNING POST.

"The Dream of Gerontius" is a composition in which are revealed very great qualities, imagination and poetical feeling, besides a remarkable capacity in dealing with the resources of the orchestra.

DAILY NEWS.

That "Gerontius" shows Mr. Elgar in a stronger light as a musician and a thinker than anything he has before done will be generally admitted. Sometimes, indeed, the work reveals real genius. . . . From first to last it is stamped with sincerity, with true religious fervour.

DAILY CHRONICLE.

"The Dream of Gerontius" presents Mr. Elgar as a musician whose power of expression is equal to his faculty of imagination. There are passages in the work, particularly at the beginning of the second part, that whether as regards endeavour to suggest the mysteries of a future state or mastery of the technical attributes of the highest form of music would reflect credit upon the greatest composers of the past. . . . The end is worthy the beginning. Higher commendation could not be bestowed upon this musical embellishment of one of the most thoughtful poems published during the century.

DAILY GRAPHIC.

Mr. Elgar has dealt with his lofty theme in a thoroughly legitimate and artistic manner. For the most part he has avoided anything like an attempt to depict the actual scenes through which the soul of Gerontius passes. He suggests rather than illustrates. He appeals to the imagination rather than to the senses of his hearers. Herein he shows a true appreciation of the limitations of art, and his discretion has carried him securely through difficulties which at first sight might seem insurmountable. . . . The "Dream of Gerontius" has a right to be called a masterpiece. Such passages as the solo of The Angel of the Agony and the whole of the closing scene—to mention only two of the many noble passages in the work—bear the indisputable stamp of genius. Here we find a lofty inspiration allied with technical ability to a degree such as is within the powers of very few living composers.

WESTMINSTER GAZETTE.

The finest example of the modern British school. . . . His choruses are effective and some of them quite genius-like in their sincerity. His orchestra discourses eloquently, and his themes are striking. To the full he has carried out the realism of Newman's poem; to the full he has conveyed the tenderness underlying it. . . . In its way, it is certainly a masterpiece.

ATHENÆUM.

The great chorus and semi-chorus of female voices, "Praise to the Holiest in the height," in which there are some magnificent moments, such as the section "Glory to Him," and after the più mosso, which is worked up with great intensity, the massive burst of sound when all voices and instruments unite in a pæan of praise to the Holiest. . . . The concluding Andante tranquillo, for solo (the Angel), chorus and semi-chorus of Angelicals, and chorus of Souls, is a marvel of beauty, tenderness, and serenity. . . . A work into which a composer has put his whole strength of heart and head; it is one, indeed, that deserves and demands many hearings.

MORNING LEADER.

We heard enough of his work to appreciate it as the finest achievement of British music.

GLOBE.

There can be no question that the work is one of great power, full of beauty. . . . Especially beautiful is the final scene of the entrance of the soul of Gerontius into Purgatory. The solo of the Angel, "Softly and gently, dearly-ransomed soul," with its accompaniment of whispered chorus of souls in Purgatory, and its echoes of the Angelical Hymn, is admirably conceived and carried out with consummate art. If it was only for these pages the "Dream of Gerontius" would entitle its composer to a very high place among contemporary musicians. Their exquisite pathos is alone sufficient to make the present Festival memorable.

PALL MALL GAZETTE.

am about to speak words which may seem exuberant and enthusiastic; but I have thought over them carefully before setting them down for the public eye, and I will venture to say that, since the death of Wagner, no finer composition (I am quite remembering Tschaikowsky and his great Symphonies) has been given to the world. I am proud that Mr. Elgar is an Englishman, for he has justified Purcell's early career; in a word, he has produced a genuine masterpiece.

GUARDIAN.

The many points of interest and beauty with which the work abounds will secure for it a place among the most remarkable productions of English music. The chorus "Be merciful, be gracious," is the first which displays the composer's fine sense of choral effect and his notable skill in part-writing; but more remarkable still is the elaborate passage which occurs just before the death of Gerontius. . . . Then follows the noble commendation of the departing soul by the priest, which is taken up fortissimo by the whole chorus at the words, "Go, in the name of Angels," with thrilling effect, and gradually worked up to a solemn and impressive climax. . . . At the words of the Angel, "Softly and gently, dearly ransomed soul," a melody of haunting loveliness is introduced, enriched with fine harmonies and delicate orchestration. Soon the chorus enter with a softly breathed chant in unison, which, gradually gathering in volume and intensity, ascends to a climax of the noblest beauty.

YORKSHIRE POST.

There can be no doubt that it is the most powerful and profound utterance of one of the most individual composers. . . . It is a noble work, and in nearly every respect indicates an advance on all Mr. Elgar has done before. . . . The simple touching beauty of the actual departure of Gerontius is quite incapable of description; as of the highest efforts of art, it can only be said that it is just right; how or why one neither knows nor cares. . . . The last passage to which attention must be called is among the most beautiful in the whole work. It is that in which the Angel plunges the soul of Gerontius into the waters of Purgatory, and is instinct with a tender and serene beauty that is incapable of analysis, but carries immediate conviction.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

WITH SPECIAL SUPPLEMENTARY PORTRAITS

OF THE FOLLOWING

DISTINGUISHED MUSICIANS

HAVE APPEARED IN

THE MUSICAL TIMES

BETWEEN

JULY, 1897, AND DECEMBER, 1900.

Madame Albani	March, 1899.	Mr. Edward Lloyd	January, 1899.
Professor Armes	February, 1900.	*Mr. Walter Macfarren	January, 1898.
*Thomas Attwood	December, 1900.	Sir Alexander Mackenzie	June, 1898.
Sir Frederick Bridge	August, 1897.	Mr. August Manns	March, 1898.
Dr. F. H. Cowen	November, 1898.	*Sir George C. Martin	July, 1897.
Dr. William Croft	September, 1900.	Professor Niecks	September, 1899.
Dr. W. H. Cummings	February, 1898.	Sir Hubert Parry	July, 1898.
Mr. Edward Dannreuther	October, 1898.	Professor Prout	April, 1899.
Mr. Ben Davies	August, 1899.	Mr. Alberto Randegger	October, 1899.
Dr. Edward Elgar	October, 1900.	Dr. Hans Richter	July, 1899.
Mr. Alfred Gibson	April, 1900.	Mr. George Riseley	February, 1899.
Sir George Grove, C.B.	October, 1897.	M. Emile Sauret	January, 1900.
Mr. George Henschel	March, 1900.	Professor Stanford	December, 1898.
Dr. Henry Hiles	July, 1900.	*Sir Arthur Sullivan	December, 1900.
Mr. A. J. Hipkins	September, 1898.	Mr. Franklin Taylor	December, 1899.
Dr. E. J. Hopkins	September, 1897.	Mr. John Thomas	November, 1899.
Dr. Joachim	April, 1898.	Rev. Precentor Troutbeck	May, 1899.
Professor Karl Klindworth	August, 1898.	Dr. Samuel Sebastian Wesley	May & June, 1900.
Dr. C. H. Lloyd	June, 1899.	Mr. Henry Willis	May, 1898.

THE FOLLOWING SPECIAL PORTRAITS HAVE ALSO APPEARED:—

Mr. Berthold Tours	April, 1897.	Mr. W. T. Best	June, 1897.
Dr. G. M. Garrett	May, 1897.	Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart.	November, 1900.

A limited number of copies of each of the above-mentioned back numbers of the Paper, with the exception of those marked with an asterisk, can still be supplied, price 4d.; postage, 1½d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

JUST PUBLISHED.

A COURSE OF HARMONY

BY

FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D., Oxon.

(Gresham Professor of Music)

AND

FRANK J. SAWYER, Mus.D., Oxon.

(Professor of Sight Singing, Royal College of Music).

This book is the outcome of a request made to Sir Frederick Bridge by the Council of the Royal College of Music—he being the Professor responsible for the teaching of Harmony and Counterpoint in that Institution—that he should prepare a manual of harmony for use in the College. Sir Frederick subsequently enlisted the aid of his pupil and former assistant at Westminster Abbey, Dr. F. J. Sawyer, in the preparation of the work, and the result is a somewhat unusual occurrence in a treatise on harmony, a joint-authorship production.

The authors have so planned their manual as to furnish students with a course of practical instruction. Moreover, and happily for the pupil, their theoretic deductions are free from all philosophical or acoustical arguments.

The book has the further advantage of advancing no new theory, as it is based on existing systems. What could be better than building on the corner-stones of Goss and Macfarren?

Sir Frederick Bridge and his coadjutor, Dr. Sawyer, hold the commendably wise belief that "the teaching of harmony should not be a purely mechanical and mathematical process." Alas! that it should so often degenerate into a matter of mere "dry bones." Therefore, they have aimed at obtaining higher and more artistic results—viz., the "creation" of harmony by the student—in fact, thorough art, not merely thorough-bass.

One special feature towards the attainment of this end is that from the very outset of his study-course the pupil has to consider the formation of his bass. Who will deny the importance of this feature in the thorough equipment of the student of harmony?

Another advantage of this "Course of Harmony" is that it may be divided into five grades in accordance with the classes at the Royal College of Music—that is to say, the first grade (Chapters 1 to 8) extends to the dominant seventh chord; the second covers the study of the inversions of the dominant seventh, the dominant ninth, suspensions, harmonising unfigured basses, and so on.

Later on will be found some useful hints on "harmonising for string quartet"; chapters on three-part and five-part writing; and, as an appendix, "Hints on the training of the ear and the eye in Harmony"—a matter of supreme importance.

So much for the comprehensiveness (which admits of no disputation) of this handy little volume of some 200 pages. In conclusion, it is hardly necessary to say that the reputation of the joint-authors stands so high as to command respect and confidence in a branch of teaching the art of music which they have made specially their own, and of which its full fruition is to be found in this thoughtful "Course of Harmony."

PRICE THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

REVIEWS.

MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY.

Life of Richard Wagner. An authorised English version, by Wm. Ashton Ellis, of C. F. Glasenapp's Das Leben Richard Wagners. Vol. I.
[Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co.]

THE story of the life of Wagner is in many ways a remarkable one. His uncle Adolf was a man of great culture, and one who, like his famous nephew, 'ever battled valiantly against the vulgar, bad, and superficial.' His father loved poetry and the drama, and, occasionally, took part himself in private theatricals, while Geyer, the father-in-law, was both painter and actor. So that from his earliest days the boy lived under conditions which seemed most favourable for the development of his latent genius. Wagner was not quite five years old when his sister Rosalie made her début on the stage, and she too, by the career which she had embraced, and by her sisterly affection, helped in the same direction. Young Richard went to school at Dresden and was accounted good in literis; we find him also especially attracted by Greek mythology and history; it was there, too, that he heard 'Der Freischütz,' and there that he saw the composer conducting his opera, and from that time forth music exerted powerful influence over him.

Then he studied Shakespeare, made acquaintance with the glorious music of Beethoven, wrote an overture which was performed under Dorn at the Leipzig Court Theatre, other overtures which were produced at the Gewandhaus, Leipzig; and, after some further attempts at instrumental music, we find him at work—and before he was out of his teens—on a first opera, 'Die Hochzeit.' Sister Rosalie, however, disapproved of the poem, and it was destroyed. Then came 'Die Feen'—never performed during Wagner's lifetime, with the exception of the overture, which was played at the Gewandhaus—and 'Das Liebesverbot,' only once performed, and miserably, at Magdeburg. In May, 1836, the composer is at Berlin, 'without the smallest certain prospect.' He was expecting to be deputy-conductor at the Königstädter Theatre, when, as he wrote to Schumann, 'I shall produce my opera.' But he was not appointed, and in despair he went as capellmeister to Königsberg, and next to Riga in a similar capacity. It was in the latter town that he wrote down the text of 'Rienzi.'

In 1839 he is in Paris with two acts of 'Rienzi' in his portfolio, and with a number of letters of introduction given to him by Meyerbeer. It now really seemed as if fortune was about to smile on him. Yet it was only the beginning of a long period of miserable waiting and of many disappointments, of drudgery work to maintain himself, his wife, and his dog, Robber. He, however, completes his 'Rienzi' and composes 'Der Fliegende Holländer.' On November 24, 1841, he 'kept the fifth anniversary of his wedding day, in care and want.' His biographer justly remarks: 'What an unbroken chain of troubles, trials, barren hopes, and plans frustrated hung between.' At last (1842) 'Rienzi' is accepted at Dresden, and Wagner becomes capellmeister there. It was in that very city, six years previously, that he read Bärmann's translation of Bulwer's 'Rienzi.' The opera was produced on January 2, 1843. Other great composers have had to bear with many trials and disappointments ere success came to them; Wagner, however, beats the record. An ordinary man would have sunk beneath such a load, but Wagner felt within himself a power to battle against difficulties of all kinds: opposition and misfortune strengthened his character.

The story of the master's lift up to the production of 'Rienzi' is related by Herr Glasenapp in full and interesting detail, and the English translation of the biography by Mr. Ellis is, on the whole, most praiseworthy. We learn from his Preface that certain alterations, though not of a material nature, have been made by him, but with the full sanction of Herr Glasenapp. The second volume he hopes to complete this year, the third in 1902, and the fourth and last, if the German text be ready in time, by 1903. We hope to notice each instalment of this interesting and valuable biography as it appears in its English version.

Ludwig van Beethovens Leben. Von Alexander Wheelock Thayer. Zweite Auflage. Neu bearbeitet und ergänzt von Hermann Deiters. Erster Band.
[Berlin: W. Weber.]

IT is now thirty-five years since the first volume appeared of Thayer's 'Life of Beethoven'; after six years followed the second, and then after seven years the third, carrying the biography only down to the year 1816. The author lived until 1897, but business matters—he was United States Consul at Trieste—the difficulties and delays in collecting material, and, finally, the infirmity of age prevented Thayer from completing the opus magnum of his own life. Dr. Deiters, fortunately, undertook to write the fourth and last volume, making use, naturally, of all the documents, papers, and notes left by Thayer. He also undertook to revise the three volumes already issued, and the first fruits of his labour of love are now before us. Thayer himself had perceived the necessity of such revision, and had already set to work on the first volume; besides corrections and additions, he had actually re-written the first chapter. It is always a task more or less difficult for one man to complete what another has begun, but Dr. Deiters enjoys special advantages. He was not only the translator into German of the original English manuscript, but from the beginning, in 1866, he was in constant intercourse with Thayer. How much the latter valued his counsel and trusted him may be seen from Thayer's letter addressed to him in the first edition of the first volume. And we may add that before his death the author expressed the wish that his work should be revised and completed by Dr. Deiters. In the preface to the volume under notice the latter fully explains the kind of changes which have been made; readers, however, will find most of the important ones in signed foot-notes.

The original text has been materially altered in one respect. Theodor Fischer and Beethoven's father were comrades in their youth, and, in after years, when both were married, the Beethoven family lived in Fischer's house after the birth of the composer. Cäcilia (1762-1845) and Gottfried (1780-1845)—son and daughter of Theodor Fischer—remembered much, talked much, and wrote much about that family, when the Beethoven and the Fischer children used to be constantly together. Before they died the two Fischers wrote down their reminiscences of those olden days. Thayer, who published them in an Appendix to his first volume, evidently thought them a mixture of reality and romance. Dr. Deiters, however, having come to the conclusion that the writers were thoroughly honest, and that although a certain allowance must be made for the tricks time plays with the most honest memory, their story was in the main true; he has, in fact, verified from altogether independent sources various statements made by them. Hence, in addition to giving the whole Fischer text in an Appendix, as in the first edition, though marked with initials "H. D." in brackets after the heading, he has incorporated portions of it into the text. There is, for instance, the charming description of the home festivities on the anniversary of the birthday of Beethoven's mother. And then, again, how interesting is the simple statement of Gottfried, that 'in the house Rheinstrasse, 934, Mozart was often the subject of conversation.' The editor of this new edition has also departed from the plan adopted by Thayer—that is, to describe the life of the master, and to leave to others the appreciation of his music. Dr. Deiters has, therefore, decided to give the chief characteristics of various works, especially of those which are unfamiliar. That he may be spared to complete the biography of the greatest of composers will be the hearty wish of all who have read the three Thayer volumes.

ORGAN MUSIC

The Recital Series of Transcriptions for the Organ (Eleven numbers.) By Edwin H. Lemare.
[Novello and Company, Limited.]

OVERTURES figure largely in this the latest instalment of these popular organ arrangements. The 'Coriolan' and 'Prometheus' of Beethoven, the 'Don Giovanni' of Mozart, the 'Stradella' of Flotow, and last, but not least the 'In Memoriam' of Sullivan are all transcribed with

The Musical Times. EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. February 1, 1901.

No. 678. NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS. Price 2*d.*

THOU ART GONE TO THE GRAVE

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY BISHOP HEBER (1783—1826)

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

* The Accompaniment is intended for practice only. When sung without Accompaniment the key should be G flat.

An arrangement for T.T.B.B. is published in THE ORPHEUS, No. 342, price 2*d.*

Copyright, 1900, by Novello and Company, Limited.

pass'd thro' its por - tal be - fore thee, And the lamp of His love is thy pass'd thro' its por - tal be - fore thee, And the lamp of His love is thy pass'd thro' its por - tal be - fore thee, And the lamp of His love is thy pass'd thro' its por - tal be - fore thee, And the lamp of His love is thy guide thro' the gloom. Thou art gone to the grave! no long - er we be - guide thro' the gloom. Thou art gone to the grave! no long - er we be - guide thro' the gloom. Thou art gone to the grave! no long - er we be - guide thro' the gloom. Thou art gone to the grave! no long - er we be -
- hold thee, Nor tread the rough path of the world by thy side; . . But the
- hold thee, Nor tread the rough path of the world by thy side; . . But the
- hold thee, Nor tread the rough path of the world by thy side; . . But the
- hold thee, Nor tread the rough path of the world by thy side; . . But the wide arms of Mer - cy are spread to en - fold thee, And sin - ners may wide arms of Mer - cy are spread to en - fold thee, And sin - ners may wide arms of Mer - cy are spread to en - fold thee, And sin - ners may wide arms of Mer - cy are spread to en - fold thee, And sin - ners may die, for the Sin - less has died. Thou art gone to the grave! but die, . . for the Sin - less has died. Thou art gone to the grave! but die, . . for the Sin - less has died. Thou art gone to the grave! but die, for the Sin - less has died. Thou art gone to the grave! but we will not de - plore thee, Whose God was thy Ran - som, thy Guard - ian and we will not de - plore thee, Whose God was thy Ran - som, thy Guard - ian and we will not de - plore thee, Whose God was thy Ran - som, thy Guard - ian and we will not de - plore thee, Whose God was thy Ran - som, thy Guard - ian and

p
Guide: . . He gave thee, He took thee, and He . . will re -
Guide: . . He gave thee, He took thee, and He . will re -
Guide: . . He gave thee, He took thee, and He . . will re - Guide: . . He gave thee, He took thee, and He will re - dim.
pp
- store thee, And Death has no sting, for the Sa - viour has died.
- store thee, And Death has no sting, for the Sa - viour has died.
- store thee, And Death has no sting, for the Sa - viour has died.
- store thee, And Death has no sting, for the Sa - viour has died.

that clearness of outline and due regard to the resourcefulness of the organ for which Mr. Lemare is so well known. To the foregoing, and coming within the same commendation, must be added Tschaikowsky's popular 'Chanson triste' and five excerpts from Heinrich Hofmann's set of pianoforte pieces entitled 'The Trumpeter of Säkkingen'—viz., The Trumpeter's Greeting, Duet, Farewell, In Rome, and Wedding March. All these Transcriptions have merits which claim the favourable consideration of recitalists in particular and organists in general.

Intermezzo in B flat; Andante Cantabile in F; and Meditation in D flat. By Edwin H. Lemare.

Romance. By A. Wheeldon. Concert Rondo in B flat. By Alfred Hollins. Fantasia in F. By John E. West. (The Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ. Edited by Edwin H. Lemare.)

Offertoire in F. By Hamilton Clarke. Légende; Chanson Pastorale. By H. M. Higgs. Intermezzo. By Alfred Hollins. (Original Compositions for the Organ.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

THESE ten original compositions for the organ furnish much variety to players upon the king of instruments. Of the trio of pieces by Mr. Lemare, the Intermezzo in B flat is of peculiar interest, being 'an improvisation originally recorded in the phonograph'; the Andante Cantabile, a flowing theme imitatively treated, is in its composer's characteristic style; and the Meditation, a solo for the voix celèstes and vox humana, contains an episode which furnishes a study in double pedalling—the left leg holding down the low A for seven bars, while its colleague plays the other notes, with their skips, in as legato a style as it can, single footed.

The Romance by Mr. Wheeldon is of a pastoral nature, the main theme (solo) leading to a tranquil chordal episode in the subdominant key. 'A trifle nasty to play, but seek and ye shall find,' wrote Mendelssohn to his sister Fanny in referring to one of his compositions. This may be said of Mr. Hollins's sprightly Concert Rondo, which has all the elements of vigorous animation in its semi-quaverous impetuosity. The second subject is thoroughly Hollinsish in its melodic charm, and the whole piece would make an attractive feature at a recital in any Town or other public hall. Mr. John E. West's Fantasia is laid out on a large scale. The material of the opening section mainly consists of majestic triplet chords, relieved by rapid arpeggi on the swell, and a melodious Andante con moto of a flowing triplet character. To this succeeds a bustling Allegretto scherzando, fugally, but freely treated, of which the joke may consist of the skip of the octave in its opening theme. In the course of the development the Andante and Allegretto themes are ingeniously combined. The stately chords, heard at the beginning, prepare the way for the recapitulation, which is as brilliant as it is brief and to the point. The musicianship of this Fantasia is on a level with its effectiveness, and the work will add to its composer's reputation, which is saying a great deal.

Melodiousness and executive facility go hand in hand in Mr. Hamilton Clarke's Offertoire in F, the composition of an experienced writer. Mr. H. M. Higgs always writes pleasing music, and his Légende and Chanson Pastorale maintain the standard that is expected of him. The main theme of the Intermezzo by Mr. Alfred Hollins is accompanied by semiquaver arpeggios, to which succeeds a tranquil and melodious second subject in G flat. The name of the composer is a sufficient guarantee for artistic excellence in writing for the instrument upon which he is so masterly a performer.

SONGS.

Six Songs. By Henry Bickford Pasmore.
Six Songs. By Bertram Shapleigh.
[Breitkopf and Härtel.]

MR. PASMORE is manifestly a disciple of Mendelssohn, and his six songs, all short and unpretentious, will, in consequence, prove acceptable to many singers. The vocal part is flowing and grateful to sing, and the accompaniments have manifestly been written with chief regard to affording the voice solid and effective harmonic support. The songs are severally named 'Welcome to Spring,' 'The Summer Wind,' 'The Miller's Daughter,' 'In the Wood,' 'Sing soft, my Heart,' and 'Harmony.' Of these we prefer the fourth and fifth, but they each possess artistic merit. They all require a vocalist who can sing with ease the upper F sharp or G.

Mr. Shapleigh's songs are also short, but they are more modern in conception and treatment than the set by Mr. Pasmore, particularly with regard to their harmonic theme. The poems, by Gustave Kastropp, Karl Kaspar, and F. H. Schneider—admirable English translations of which are provided by Mrs. Bertram Shapleigh—are for the most part introspective in character, and the music strives and struggles to follow their inner meaning, often with happy results. The titles of the songs, which indicate their character, are 'Absence,' 'The Dawning,' 'The Gate of Dreams,' 'Her Troth,' 'The Vigil,' and 'Ave Maria.' The first of these is the most important, and although the tonality is somewhat restless, the composition is one that will appeal to cultured vocalists. Such will also appreciate the original and suggestive ending of the 'Ave Maria.'

Britannia's call. Words by W. F. Baughan. Music by Charles E. Baughan.
Once only at the garden gate. I will make you brooches. Poems by Robert Louis Stevenson. Music by Katharine M. Ramsay.
A Song of the March Wind. Song. Words by Maud J. Vyse. Music by Hermann Löhr.
In the merry month of May. Words by Nicholas Breton. Music by Cuthbert Harris.
[Forsyth Brothers.]

THE lines of Mr. W. F. Baughan, entitled 'Britannia's call,' are stirring, and set forth the best claims for union and patriotism. Mr. Charles E. Baughan is a young musician who has in several songs, notably in those in his Greek opera 'The Maid of Artemis,' shown talent dominated by artistic intuition, and these qualities are pleasantly noticeable in the song before us. The refrain, 'Men, arm! arm! proclaim our right,' is allied with a spirited martial strain. The song is one that should meet with wide acceptance. 'Once only at the garden gate' tells of a gallant lover who leaves his lands and sweetheart to seek his 'Odyssey of battle.' The music cleverly follows the sentiments of Mr. Stevenson's lines, and, delivered with firmness and conviction, the song could be made very effective. 'I will make you brooches' might be sung by the same gallant after the accomplishment of his 'Odyssey.' The music, as in the preceding song by the same composer, shows decided talent for composition, and is thoroughly in accord with modern ideas.

Mr. Hermann Löhr's 'Song of the March Wind' is obviously intended to go 'With a rush and a whirl, and a madd'ning swirl,' but an admirable contrast is provided by the relation of the gentle influence of Spring. Baritones possessing dramatic perception will find in this song a legitimate outlet for their vociferations.

Light sopranos will find a congenial song in the pastoral ditty of Dr. Cuthbert Harris, 'In the merry month of May.' Its theme is a pretty little love story, piquantly told, and the music is melodious and light-hearted.

Third Set of Six Songs. By Frederic H. Cowen.
Six Songs. By M. G. Erb. English and German words.
Pastelli Musicali. Italian words by A. Orvieto, translated into English by L. E. Lithgow. Music by Vittorio Ricci.
[Joseph Williams.]

THE lyrics chosen by Dr. Cowen for his third set of six songs are 'Peace be around thee,' by Thomas Moore; 'O skylark! for thy wing,' by Mrs. Hemans; 'Adieu' and 'Golden glories,' respectively by Dante Gabriel and Christina Rossetti; and 'The Nautch Girl's Song' and 'Zarroubo's Song,' by Sir Edwin Arnold. Here we have not only an admirable selection, but one embracing many styles and sentiments. In common with the preceding numbers of this series, the composer has manifestly addressed himself to cultured vocalists, and such will find much that will appeal to their tastes and musical feelings. The most characteristic are the settings of Sir Edwin Arnold's poems, but in each song the hand of a master is plain, and the accompaniment will interest a deft pianist. It should be added that the settings are most suitable to a soprano voice, and that each song is furnished with a German translation of the text by Olga L. Sturm.

Mr. Erb's songs are also intended for well-trained singers; but they are simple in design, and the words for the most part breathe homely sentiment. The original German text has in two instances been supplied by Charles Schmitt, and the remainder by Fr. Lienhard, and it has been neatly translated by Mr. Adrian Ross. The music indicates taste and sensibility.

Vocalists who incline to the modern Italian style may be recommended Signor Ricci's collection, which consists of five songs, severally named 'Dolce Morte' ('Sweet Death'), 'Domande' ('Wishes'), 'O Falce di Luna Calante' ('O Loveliest Moon'), 'Primo Amore' ('First Love'), and 'Per la tacita sera' ('In the silence of night'). The poetical nature of the text is reflected with suave grace in the music, which is no less grateful to sing than interesting to play.

Daybreak. Scena for voice with pianoforte or orchestra accompaniment. Poetry by Longfellow. Music by Clarisse Mallard.

An' thou wert my ain. Words by Allan Ramsay. Music by William F. Amies.

[Charles Woolhouse.]

THE talent for composition possessed by Miss Clarisse Mallard is shown very distinctly in her setting of Longfellow's poem 'Daybreak.' The words are not only arranged with careful regard to the rhythm of the lines, but also in a manner that permits of their effective delivery by the singer; the last-named merit being worthy of special commendation in these days. The harmonic scheme is rational and in consonance with the changes of sentiment of the text, and the accompaniment cleverly suggests what may be termed the atmosphere of the poem. The lines of Mr. Allan Ramsay express in simple language a theme which is always acceptable to the fair sex, and Mr. Amies has set them with an unaffectedness and truth of expression that intensify their sincerity. The song is designed for a baritone voice.

NEW EASTER ANTHEMS.

Awake, awake, with holy rapture sing. Words by the Rev. S. Childs Clarke. Composed by John E. West.

I am the Resurrection and the Life. Composed by Roland Rogers.

O Voice of the Beloved. Words by the Rev. Jackson Mason. Music by Henry John King.

(Novello's Octavo Anthems.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

THE value of the 'Octavo Anthems' series is certainly increased by Mr. West's contribution, which is an admirable example of modern church music. A pleasing feature of the composition is the effectiveness of the organ part, which, while supporting the voices, possesses an independence that greatly adds to the appropriate jubilant character of the music. There are several passages for bass solo, answered by the choristers, who sing 'Alleluia' to a musical phrase which forms a kind of motto to the whole. The vocal writing will present no difficulties to a fairly capable choir. The setting of 'I am the Resurrection and the Life,' by Dr. Rogers, opens with an impressive passage for solo or men's voices in unison, monotoned with inflections against changing harmonies from the organ. A 'verse' passage, for soprano, alto, tenor and bass, is followed by the entrance of the full choir. Subsequently the 'verse' portion is repeated, and then, after a short organ interlude, the choir begins a spirited chorus. This, with the exception of two simple imitative passages, is in solid harmony and diatonic in character. Mr. Henry John King, who, by the way, hails from Melbourne, has taken for the text of his anthem No. 500 in Hymns Ancient and Modern and set it in a manner that will appeal to lovers of novelty. The short interlude is built up with a figure of pastoral character which is subsequently used in the accompaniment. The vocal portion begins with a soprano solo, and this is succeeded by passages respectively for basses, tenors, and altos in unison, four-part harmony being reserved until the third verse of the hymn. The following verse is set antiphonally between choir and organ, the former being unaccompanied. By these devices effective contrasts are obtained and the result is an interesting anthem.

MALE VOICE PART-MUSIC.

It was an English Ladye bright. Words by Sir Walter Scott. Music by Charles Wood.

Life. Poetry by Sir George Samuel Measom. Music by William H. Cummings.

Morgenlied. Words by Von Canitz. Music by Charles W. Pearce.

Love's Philosophy. Words by H. Godwin Chance. Music by A. Herbert Brewer.

Hail, Sweet Peace. Words by Alfred D. Parker. Music by John B. Lott.

Thou art gone to the grave. Words by Bishop Heber. Music by C. Lee Williams.

[The Orpheus. Novello and Company, Limited.]

MR. CHARLES WOOD has set Albert Graeme's song for baritone solo and chorus for first and second tenors and first and second basses; the chorus commenting on the story as it is related by the soloist. The music faithfully reflects the romantic spirit of the text and the composition is stirring and could be made most effective.

Dr. Cummings's setting of 'Life' will certainly add to his reputation. The reflective mood of the words has been admirably caught, and the graceful melodiousness of the alto part and the flowing nature of the first and second tenor and bass voice portions show the hand of the experienced craftsman.

For the benefit of those to whom the name of Von Canitz is not familiar, it may be stated that he was an accomplised scholar who lived from 1654 to 1699. His 'Morgenlied' is of a devotional cast, but it is bright and confident in sentiment, as a morning song should be. These factors have manifestly been noted carefully by Dr. Pearce, for they are cleverly reflected in his flowing and genial music. 'Love's Philosophy' has attracted many composers, and Mr. Brewer's setting, for alto, tenor, and first and second basses, is certainly not the least artistic and sympathetic. The music, which merits the attention of all Orpheus choirs, was written by request for the Gloucester Orpheus Society, and it was first performed at the last Hereford Festival. The theme of 'Hail, Sweet Peace,' is consolation after affliction, and the quotation towards the close of the first phrase of Johann Crüger's chorale 'Nun danket' gives a solidity to the composition. It should be added that Mr. Lott's music is by no means of hymn-tune character, but possesses variety and effective contrasts. The part-song 'Thou art gone to the grave,' by Mr. C. Lee Williams, is 'In memoriam of South Africa, 1900,' and is laid out for first and second tenors and first and second basses. The music is simple but solemn, and the grief beyond tears seems to pulsate in the march of the chords.

Bach's Two and Three-part Inventions for Pianoforte. Analysed and revised by Ferruccio B. Busoni. Books I. and II. [Breitkopf and Härtel.]

THIS edition of Bach's 'Inventions' may be warmly recommended to teachers and students. The value of these studies in developing independence of the hands and fingers is too well-known to justify even cursory mention of the advantages to be derived from their practice. But the chief features of Signor Busoni's revision may be pointed out. They are the careful description of the form in which each piece is cast, the comparison and connection of phrases, the latest system of fingering, and the supplementary markings in English of the Italian terms of tempo, whereby a more precise meaning is conveyed. The analysis of the forms are specially commendable, for they are calculated to impart a new interest to the music, and to make the student think and understand, always most desirable and necessary objects. Bach lovers will agree also with Signor Busoni's remark that the true Bach style is 'characterised above all others by manliness, energy, breadth, and loftiness.' The exhaustive and subtle nature of Signor Busoni's comments in this revision go far to explain the reason of his being so pre-eminently fine a pianist.

Four Characteristic Waltzes. Composed by S. Coleridge-Taylor. Arranged as a quintet for pianoforte and stringed instruments by the composer.

[Novello and Co., Limited.]

What may aptly be termed the home-series of albums for pianoforte and stringed instruments issued by Messrs. Novello has received an attractive addition in Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Four Characteristic Waltzes.' The remarkable individuality possessed by this young composer invests these waltzes with the charm of freshness, and next in effectiveness in their original orchestral form comes the present arrangement. Although demanding practised players to do these waltzes justice, no unordinary demands are made upon the executants. It need hardly be said that the graceful picturesqueness and melodic expressiveness of the music will well repay study and rehearsal.

Litauische Volks - Weisen. Gesammelt von Anton Juszkiewicz, bearbeitet, redigiert und herausgegeben von Sigmund Noskowski und Johann Baudouin de Courtenay. Erster Theil.

[Published at Cracow.]

Anton Juszkiewicz, a catholic Polish priest, was born in 1819 and died in 1880. During many years he was an enthusiastic collector of Lithuanian folk-songs, devoting what time he could spare for that purpose when visiting various districts of Lithuania in the exercise of his holy calling. In all he collected 1,852 songs. After his death they were sent to the Warsaw Academy of Sciences, when they were partly revised by Oscar Kolberg, well versed in folk-lore, in association with the celebrated anthropologist, Professor Dr. Isidor Kopernicki. These two died, however, before the task was completed. Then the folk-songs were handed over to M. J. Baudouin de Courtenay, who, in conjunction with M. Sigmund Noskowski, Director of the Musical Society at Warsaw, prepared them for the press. In a long preface (Polish and German), the state of the manuscripts when they were handed over to the editors, also the careful manner in which the latter have dealt with them, is fully explained. In a brief introduction Noskowski calls attention to the interest and value of the songs, and describes their special characteristics. It need scarcely be added that such a collection offers a mine of wealth to students of folk-lore, also of enjoyment to all who love music directly inspired by nature.

The Battle of the Orchestra; or, the resolution of some violent discords. An entirely new and original operetta, written by Bernard Page. The music composed and appropriated by Frederick Bridge, W. H. Cummings, Henry Hiles, T. Hutchison, R. Orlando Morgan, A. Page, Ebenezer Prout, J. L. Roeckel, F. J. Sawyer, Charles Vincent, and George F. Vincent.

[Charles Vincent.]

In faith and hope the world will disagree,
But all mankind's concern is charity.

The twelve gentlemen concerned in the production of the above jeu d'esprit must have been filled with the spirit of Pope's lines in their collaboration achievement. The superscription, 'In aid of the I.S.M. [Incorporated Society of Musicians] Orphanage,' of course, disarms criticism of a work prompted by the sacred cause of charity. The prefatory note of the editor (Mr. G. F. Vincent) states: 'The eleven vocal numbers contained in the libretto were allotted to eleven different composers, and it should be stated that no one composer had any specific instruction, or knew of the others' intentions.' We heartily join in the wish expressed in the prefatory note that the sales may justify the publication and that this deserving Orphanage will benefit thereby.' 'The Battle of the Orchestra' was successfully performed at the Annual Conference of the Incorporated Society of Musicians held during the past month at Llandudno.

The 'Roll of the Union of Graduates in Music, ncorporated, and Kalendar for 1901,' has made its timely ppearance, under the able editorship of Mr. T. L. outhgate. As in previous years, it meets every requirement of a useful book of reference.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS OF THE WALLOON PROVINCES OF BELGIUM.

Mr. W. W. Cobbett read an exhaustive and interesting paper on the above subject, before the Musical Association, on the 9th ult. The following is a brief digest of Mr. Cobbett's discourse:—

Two distinct races, Flemish and Walloon, form the population of Belgium, the former a Teutonic, the latter a Celtic race. Both have great artistic proclivities. Every Flemish burgher craves to possess a fine picture, and every Walloon shows more or less musical aptitude. Some of the greatest of the Netherlandish composers, amongst them Guillaume Dufay, Josquin des Près, and Orlando di Lassus, were of Walloon origin, and both Grétry and César Franck, whose names are indissolubly connected with French art, were born at Liège. This town is a centre not only of industrial, but of musical activity, and a curious specialisation of taste in the direction of violin playing is noticeable among the people. Vieuxtemps wrote 'Notre pays est voué au violoniste. Il en pousse comme des champignons.' As a result the Liège district has become a pépinière of violinists who spread themselves all over the world, making music for high and low. The Royal Conservatoire of Liège, a subsidised institution, of which the lecturer traced the origin since 1830, is largely responsible for this, and such great names as Ysaye, César Thomson, Marsick, Jean Gérardy, and Vieuxtemps are associated with it. Some remarks followed on the popular songs of the Walloons, known as Cramignons. To these tunes, many of them of French origin, the people dance at all the parish fêtes of Liège. They are of entirely popular character and often irregular in rhythm. Vocal illustrations were sung by Mr. Devillez and Mr. Hillier.

Appreciations, and in some cases short biographical sketches, of the composers and violinists of the Walloon school followed. Amongst the former may be cited the names of Hamal, Gresnick. Rüfer, Mathieu, Samuel (composer of an oratorio, 'Christus,' performed with much acceptance in Germany), Jongen, Debefre, Lekeu (a promising composer who died at the age of twenty-four), Rasse, Theophile Ysaye (brother of the violinist), and César Franck.

The concluding section of the lecture was devoted to a consideration of the life and work of Franck, who left Liège for Paris at the age of fifteen and remained there till his death in 1890. His sonata for pianoforte and violin was performed by Mr. Gustav Ernest and Mr. Louis Hillier. The lecturer claimed that the Walloon race deserves more credit than it receives from musical historians. The elder composers are merged in the Netherlandish school, Grétry and Franck in the French, whilst the rest are known solely as Belgians. The Walloon musician deserves to take a place in history by the side of the Flemish artist. A discussion followed, in which the Chairman, Dr. C. Maclean, Mr. Southgate, and others took part.

INCORPORATED SOCIETY OF MUSICIANS. ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

Llandudno witnessed the foregathering of the members of the Incorporated Society of Musicians for their sixteenth annual conclave, held from the 1st to the 4th ult.

Professor Prout occupied the chair on the opening day (Tuesday, the 1st ult.), when Mr. Edward Chadfield, the general and genial secretary, read the annual report. This satisfactory document stated that since the last Conference a Bill had been introduced into the House of Commons by Mr. J. W. Sidebotham for the registration of teachers of music, and would be again brought forward at the beginning of the next Session. During the past year the membership of the Society had increased, and a section for Hull and district and a Highland sub-section had been formed.

The Orphanage Committee, whose report was also read, was to the effect that during the past year the orphanage had been quite full. From five to six hundred pounds had been received and expended, and efforts were being made to obtain funds for a new building. The orphanage was carried on for the benefit of the profession at large, and the profession generally was urged to support so beneficent an institution.

The Chairman (Professor Prout) contributed a characteristic paper on 'The proper balance of Chorus and Orchestra'—a subject which, he declared, he had had on his mind for many years, and to which he had often thought of calling attention. Statistics which he had compiled proved that the swamping of the orchestra by the chorus was a thing of quite modern growth. Such authorities as Berlioz and Verdi prescribed an almost equal number of chorus and orchestra. The utter disproportion between band and chorus in this country was attributable, he thought, to two causes. The chief was the great amount of choral music during the past fifty years, and the second the modern craze for sensationalism. Such a ridiculous disproportion must, in many cases, result in a mere caricature of the works of the great composers. Another result of a disproportionately large choir was that they necessarily tended to encourage in composers a coarse style of orchestration. He ventured to say that there was a partial remedy for this kind of thing. He admitted that in such cases as the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, or the Handel Festival Choir, little was to be hoped, for they were past praying for. To dismiss 200 of the Albert Hall Choir and replace them by the same number of instrumentalists would be a tolerably effective remedy, but too drastic. The same might be said of the Handel Festival Choir, though the matter stood differently here: it was a purely commercial speculation, and had nothing to do with art. The public was attracted to it by its size, just as it was by Barnum's Show, or the Great Wheel at Earl's Court. Where the orchestra was of only average strength, say fifty or sixty, the chorus should never exceed 150 voices—personally he should prefer 120. The present state of things was destroying the best choral music in the country, and it rested with artists and musicians to train, to elevate public taste.

At the afternoon sitting Mr. J. M. Rogan (Bandmaster of the Coldstream Guards) read a paper on 'Military Music and Military Bands.' In the course of his remarks Mr. Rogan said that until about thirty years ago military bands were regarded as a luxury rather than as a necessity, and it was only by the establishment of examinations in connection with Kneller Hall, which all who were desirous of becoming army bandmasters were compelled to pass, that the present system really came into force. He regretted that native composers had not written specially for military bands, the consequence being that martial music was, for the greater part, the work of foreign composers, among whom Meyerbeer stood out prominently. Dealing with the debatable question of pitch, he was opposed to the suggestion which had been made by a distinguished musician that the pitch for military instruments should be lowered a full half-tone. So far as military bands were concerned, there would be no very distinct gain by lowering to that extent, inasmuch as for outdoor purposes a high pitch was more brilliant and had better carrying power than a low pitch. At the same time, he had known at least one case in which the low pitch had been used in the British Army, and had been very much admired for its mellowness.

Professor Prout said the cause of uniformity of pitch would never be won unless it had the support of the military authorities. In his opinion, a reduction of half a tone was so slight as not to seriously reduce the carrying power, while what was lost in brilliancy would be gained in fulness and richness.

Dr. Sawyer, the chairman of the second day's proceedings, discoursed on 'Art for Art's sake.' There were, he said, three great divisions in the musical profession. First, there was the true artist who honestly put art first and self second. He could be found in all ranks of the profession. They must not be astonished to find a truer artist playing in the back row of the second fiddles than was perhaps the long-trained pianoforte virtuoso who had come to smash the pianoforte and delight the gallery. At the other extreme were no priests of art, but priests of Belial. Their one idea of music was to see how much money they could make out of it. They were to be found playing the organ on Sunday, not with the idea of elevating the music of the service, but simply with the view of pocketing the salary. The same might be said of some so-called teachers of music, whose one idea was to pocket the fee. These were tradesmen-musicians, who debased their art to the level of a trade, and between these two extremes was the great middle-class of the profession, which could do much towards uplifting the tone of music in England. A sore temptation existed for many pianoforte teachers to provide their pupils with music instead of making the pupil buy it at a music shop. It was a temptation to some teachers to buy cheap rubbish from some traveller for a shoddy firm, and then, having bought a 4s. piece of music for 2d., to palm it off on a pupil for 2s. and thereby to pocket an undeserved 1s. 10d. on the transaction. Then there were the cheap music teachers, who gave 'piano lessons at 7s. 6d. a quarter'—persons who considered themselves well paid at 11½d. an hour. Either these teachers were frauds and ought not to be allowed to teach, or they were adequately trained teachers, and, if registered, should be paid a fair wage. There were, unfortunately, comparatively few singers who were also true artists, and the present condition of the song publishing trade intensified the evil. A song publisher was purely a tradesman. He accepted the copyright of a song not because it was good music, but because he thought it would hit the more or less vulgar taste of a general audience. Having published it, he hired singers, like so many sandwich-men, to go round the country crying his wares. And the singer, in addition to the fee which she got for singing, did her work as the publisher's walking advertisement. This might be trade, but it certainly was not art. Primarily the one thing they should aim at was the raising of the tone of music in their midst.

Two well-known Bristolians were the chief speakers on the third day. After Mr. John Barrett (the chairman) had given a homely talk on 'Practical Hints,' Mr. J. L. Roeckel discussed the question of the degeneration of singing. He said that to Wagner we owed the creation of the musical drama as distinguished from the opera pure and simple. But Wagner's singer had to be vocalist, actor, and interpreter in equal degree. Because the great master purged the opera of the meretricious effects and the dramatic unfitness of much that had been accepted before, was it necessary that so many followers should out-Wagner Wagner, and in their anxiety to disestablish the old form of melody wage uncompromising war upon melody itself, so that the voice became merely a vehicle for declamation, and often declamation of a very ugly kind? In his opinion the future of the art of music lay chiefly with the composers, who could foster it by providing melodic and vocal food necessary for its existence or kill it by means of the almost unsingable declamation which took the place of vocal music in so many of the compositions of the day. Melody was the singer's art, and without it the vocal art must become obsolete. He would implore the composers to moderate their symphonic zeal and not treat the human voice as an enemy which it was the duty of an inflated orchestra to crush.

At the afternoon sitting Mr. J. W. Sidebotham, of Hyde, Lancashire, read a paper on 'The registration of teachers of music and its prospective results.' Dr Cummings, Professor Prout, and Mr. Chadfield drafted a Bill for registration, which was introduced in the last session of Parliament, was moderate in its demands practical in its working, and purely intended for the public interest and the advancement of the art. The Bill would be re-introduced.

The annual business meeting of the Society, held on Friday, the 4th ult., and the fourth and last day of the Conference, was presided over by Mr. T. Westlake Morgan, organist of Bangor Cathedral.

The purely musical fare of the Conference included performances of a 'New Year's Ode,' composed by Dr John Blow, for the year 1685—a most interesting revival due to the antiquarian enthusiasm of Dr. A. H. Mann, who conducted the performance—and a 'new and original' comic operetta, entitled 'The Battle of the Orchestra; or, the resolution of some violent discords,' the joint production of Mr. Bernard Page (as librettist) and eleven composers! Various excursions and the inevitable banquet added to the enjoyment of another successful Conference. The meeting of 1902 is to be held in London.

THE LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL AND ITS CONDUCTORSHIP.

(By our Yorkshire Correspondent.)

The appointment of a successor to Sir Arthur Sullivan in the conductorship of the Leeds Musical Festival has for some time past occupied more minds than those of the committee. As everyone is by this time aware, their choice has fallen upon Dr. Stanford. It was an unsolicited honour, and we believe we are right in saying that it was conferred without any of the contention which too often accompanies these matters. Dr. Stanford is, however, no stranger to Leeds or its festivals. According to Messrs. Spark and Bennett's 'History of the Leeds Musical Festivals,' he was first represented in the programme in 1883, when the beautiful song, 'There's a bower of roses,' was sung by Miss Anna Williams. This was but a prelude to more important things. In 1886 'The Revenge' was produced at Leeds, in 1889 'The Voyage of Maeldune,' and in 1898 a Te Deum; in each case for the first time. In 1897 he formed a closer connection with the West Riding town, being invited to take up the conductorship of the Leeds Philharmonic Society, the premier choral society in the town. Under him the Society has given, in addition to the usual stock oratorios, performances of Brahms's 'German Requiem,' Bach's 'Wachet auf,' Beethoven's great Mass in D and Choral Symphony, the 'Childhood of Christ,' of Berlioz, the Prologue to Boito's 'Mefistofele,' and Dr. Stanford's own Requiem and Elegiac Ode. During these three years and more he has thoroughly gained the confidence of his chorus, and, with the help of an excellent choirmaster in Mr. Fricker, the Town Hall organist, he has materially advanced the efficiency of the Society, in addition to so influencing the programmes as to make them by far the most interesting of their kind in the West Riding. It is to be hoped he will be allowed to exercise a similarly good influence on the festival programme; but the ways of festival committees are peculiar, especially when the independence of the Yorkshire character has to be taken into account!

So far only three works have been chosen: Handel's 'Messiah,' Beethoven's Mass in D, and Bach's cantata 'Wachet auf' ('Sleepers, wake'). No new departure is involved in any of these, for at Leeds the custom seems to be established of alternating 'The Messiah' with 'Elijah' and Beethoven's Mass in D with Bach's in B minor.

As regards works specially commissioned for the Festival, the committee has been singularly unfortunate. Compositions were invited from Dvorák, Sir A. C. Mackenzie, Mr. Edward German, and Mr. Coleridge-Taylor. Dvorák, perhaps recollecting his experience of Leeds in 1886, did not even reply to the request, but the other three consented. Some time ago Sir Alexander Mackenzie found himself unable to complete the cantata he had begun, on the subject of 'Balder, the Sun-God,' and now Mr. Edward German, who had begun work on a violin concerto, asks to be excused in order that he may undertake the more pressing task of finishing Sir Arthur Sullivan's last Savoy operetta. So that only one of the quartet remains faithful, Mr. Coleridge-Taylor, who is busily engaged upon his cantata, based on Longfellow's poem, 'The Blind Girl of Castel Cuillé.' No doubt the committee will endeavour to supply the deficiency, and we imagine there are plenty of young composers, with unheard masterpieces in their portfolios, quite ready to step into the breach.

A chorus has yet to be constituted. But this ought not to present any overwhelming difficulty in the West Riding, and out of over seven hundred applications that have been sent in it will doubtless be easy to select a choir of the necessary strength. There were 356 voices in 1898, 149 hailing from Leeds, while the rest were distributed among four of the chief West Riding towns that sent contingents. The plan was an excellent one in many respects, for it made it possible to secure the cream of the district and it spread the interest in the Festival. But it had obvious disadvantages, more particularly in the necessity of holding chorus rehearsals at five different centres, under as many chorus-masters. For this reason it has this time been thought advisable to give Leeds singers the preference, and to hold rehearsals at Leeds only. Mr. Alfred Benton, who was chorus-master of the Leeds contingent in 1898, has been appointed chorus-master, presumably of the whole choral body, and to him and Mr. Fricker, who resumes his position as festival organist, the task of selection will be entrusted.

The question of date has caused some little difficulty. The first week in October is the usual period, but that, it seems, is the time for an equine festival at Newmarket, so, as Yorkshiremen are sportsmen first and musicians afterwards, it was felt that this date must be avoided. There was some objection to the choice of the second week in October, as there is then to be an important gathering at the Yorkshire College. In the end, however, the committee have thought it best to ignore the scientists and respect the sportsmen, so it has been arranged that the Festival shall begin on Wednesday, October 9.

THE WORCESTER PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY AND ENGLISH MUSIC.

Enthusiasm, enterprise, and eclecticism form a concatenation of attributes that give distinction to this excellent music-making institution in the 'faithful city.' English music was 'the predominant partner' in the programme of its sixth concert, held in the Public Hall, on the 17th ult. Professor Stanford was represented by his impressive setting of Mr. W. E. Henley's 'Last Post'; Sir Arthur Sullivan by his latest songs, 'Tears, idle tears,' and 'O swallow, swallow'; Sir Hubert Parry by a part-song setting of 'The sea hath many a thousand sands'; and Dr. Cowen by his 'Idyllic' symphony. So much for the older hands. The trio of younger men, whose compositions added not a little to the attractiveness of the programme, consisted of Mr. C. Lee Williams, who conducted in person his well-written part-song for eight voices, entitled 'Twilight' (Thomas Moore's words); Dr. Walford Davies was represented by his stirring 'Hymn before action,' for solo and chorus; and Mr. Percy Pitt—'a born orchestrator,' as the programme-book stated—by his orchestral suite 'Cinderella.'

A touch of the antique, as illustrating the eclectic nature of the Society's operations, was furnished by the performance of 'Two sonatas for organ and string orchestra,' by Mozart—small works of the great master of music which are little known in this country. The admirable 'notes' of the programme-book states that 'these little compositions were written for performance in Salzburg Cathedral; the organ there was old-fashioned, with only one octave of pedals, and the peculiarities—or, rather, shortcomings—of the instrument were taken into consideration by the composer.' Otto Jahn further tells us that 'a sonata was introduced between the Epistle and the Gospel,' and that 'seventeen compositions by Mozart to this kind are preserved.'

To the foregoing performances must be added Wagner's 'Wach' auf!'—these words, by the way, are the motto of the Society—which always opens its concerts, and Grieg's 'Landerkennung,' for men's voices. The solo vocalist was Mr. Charles Phillips, who fully maintained his reputation as a conscientious artist, and the solo part in the organ sonatas of Mozart was well played by Mr. G. Street Chignell, the organist of the Society. The orchestra and chorus were, as usual, highly efficient, and Dr. Edward Elgar conducted a performance that not only reflected credit upon his musicianship, but which bore testimony to the capabilities of the performers who follow so well his inspiriting leadership.

SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

THE YSAYE QUARTET PARTY.

Mr. Arthur Chappell's experiment of engaging 'The Ysaye Quartet Party' for his Popular concerts at St. James's Hall has met with a success which probably has exceeded his expectations. Doubtless the high esteem in which M. Ysaye is now held in England as a solo violinist of the first rank accounts in great measure for the large audiences which assembled at St. James's Hall on the 5th, 12th, and 19th ult.; but there is good reason to believe, and it is certainly agreeable to think, that the increase in the attendance is due, at least in part, to the excellence of the ensemble. Without making unflattering comparisons, it may unhesitatingly be said that there are many English string players quite as accomplished executants as M. Ysaye's associates, Messrs. Marchot, Van Haut, and J. Jacob; but the latter have the advantage of constantly playing under an artist of exceptional talent and strong individuality, one who manifestly commands and inspires, and who imbues his associates with his own views of the works performed. This is more important than many music-lovers may suppose. It is generally admitted that the essence of quartet playing is unanimity, but the extent to which this applies is not so commonly perceived. Oneness of attack, sharp cessation of sound, balance of tone, and attention to the delicacies of light and shade are recognised as absolute essentials; but the necessity of unanimity of phrasing is not so readily understood. It is a subtlety which the ordinary listener feels rather than perceives. Its importance, however, is primary, for, albeit often unconsciously, it exercises a great influence on the listener's comprehension, and consequently his enjoyment of the music. It is in this particular that the Ysaye party excel. Each player faithfully echoes the accentuation given by the leader to the important themes and passages, with the result that their interpretations possess fascinating homogeneity and lucidity.

The merits of the Ysaye Quartet Party were happily shown in their performance of Mozart's Quartet in B flat (No. 3), with which they opened the concert on the 5th ult., the occasion of their first appearance in England. The work specially demands such treatment, and it is difficult to conceive a finer rendering than it then received.

SAINT-SAËNS'S QUARTET IN E MINOR.

Special interest was imparted to the second appearance of the party by the first production of a Quartet for strings in E minor (Op. 112) by M. Saint-Saëns. This is dedicated to M. Ysaye, and, it may be added, has manifestly been written largely with regard to his exceptional abilities. The third and fourth movements belong to the class commonly known as 'solo quartets,' but it need scarcely be said that this does not diminish their attractiveness to an audience when such an artist as M. Ysaye is leader. The first violin is also favoured in the opening number, but not excessively, and, although somewhat loose in design, this portion holds the attention, chiefly by reason of its poetically suggestive character. The second movement is remarkably clever, and, be it added, interesting. It is in Scherzo form, and includes in the trio portion an effective fughetta. M. Gabriel Fauré's refined Quartet in G minor (Op. 45) was also performed on this occasion, and at the concert on the 19th ult. the ensemble works chosen were Beethoven's Quartet in G (Op. 18, No. 2) and Brahms's Pianoforte Trio in C minor (Op. 101). The solo pianist on the two last-named occasions was Herr Schönberger, and the vocalists have been Miss Louise Dale, Madame Lillian Blauvelt, and Mr. Meux.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS, &c.

Madame Liza Lehmann's latest cycle of songs, entitled 'The Daisy Chain,' calls for neither detailed analysis nor description. To submit such a work to critical examination would be like pulling a flower to pieces in order to appreciate its beauty, and, unless we are greatly mistaken, its popularity will render description superfluous. The settings of the lines, by Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson and others, suggest all that is worshipful in childhood, and although the musician will find pleasure in the finished deftness of the writing, especially in the opening and closing quartets, and in the songs 'If no one ever marries me' and 'The Moon,' the attractiveness of the music consists in its aptness of expression and naïveté. It is only necessary to add that the first public performance in England took place at one of the concerts given by the National Sunday League, on the 13th ult., at the Queen's Hall, and that the executants were Miss Alice Esty, Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. Joseph O'Mara, and Mr. Denham Price, with the composer at the pianoforte.

The Devonshire Square Church Choral Society gave its first concert at Stoke Newington, on the 10th ult., when Gaul's 'Ruth' and a miscellaneous selection were rendered. The solos were excellently sung by Miss Kate Cherry, Miss Annie Peck, Miss Grace Offor, and Mr. George Uttley. The choir numbered about sixty voices and performed its part with taste and vigour, the 'Wedding Chorus' being especially appreciated. The accompaniments were well played by Miss Edith Wells (pianoforte) and Mr. John Jefferys (organ); and the conductor was Mr. G. Ernest Arundel, the organist and choirmaster of the church.

Coleridge-Taylor's complete Trilogy, 'Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha,' was performed by the Barnet Choral Society, at its eleventh concert, in the Town Hall, on the 8th ult. The choir sang, on the whole, remarkably well, especially in the 'Wedding-Feast' section, and the small orchestra was also efficient. The solo parts were sung by Miss Alice Simons, Mr. Mandeno Jackson, and Mr. Herbert Crisp. Mr. Frank Wood, the conductor, deserves every credit for his production of this fine work.

The Lewisham Choral Society, assisted by members of the Lewisham Orchestral Society, gave Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and the 'Death of Minnehaha,' at the Court Hill Schools, on December 27, under the direction of Mr. Frank Idle. The solo vocalists were Miss Estella Linden, Mr. W. R. Maxwell, and Mr. Charles Copland.

MUSIC IN VIENNA.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

Vienna, January 16.

Amongst the musical events of the past few weeks which have attracted general attention, the foremost place must be accorded to the performance of Herr Gustav Mahler's First Symphony, by the Philharmonic Orchestra, of which he is the conductor. Already more than a twelvemonth has elapsed since the Viennese public were made acquainted, by the same excellent body of instrumentalists, aided by a mixed choir and solo vocalists (for the score requires all these), with Mahler's Second Symphony—a work characterised by somewhat unbridled fancy, a highly developed sense of the poetic and picturesque, an amazing skill and raffinement in the orchestration, but somewhat deficient withal in original musical invention. In his earlier work, recently introduced to us, the composer has contented himself with the employment of more modest means. Dispensing altogether with the choral element, the symphony exhibits, in its purely orchestral movements, a deep pathos, combined with great brilliancy of colour, while, on the other hand, its positive musical contents are even more problematical than in the case of the later work.

Another noteworthy event was the performance—for the first time in the city in which the master wrote them!—of the complete cycle of Beethoven's Symphonies, in consecutive order, by the very active new Concert-Verein. These performances, which are not yet completed, are under the conductorship of Herr Ferdinand Loewe, who is proving himself eminently worthy of so interesting and significant an occasion. The anniversary of Beethoven's death was signalised in a special manner by the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde, who on that occasion announced the result of a competition promoted by that Institution; the prize of 2,000 crowns being awarded, for a Symphony in E major, to a hitherto quite unknown composer, Herr Franz Schmidt, a member of the Opera orchestra. The new work, the merits of which had been specially commended by the jury, will doubtless ere long be produced in public.

A number of more or less interesting choral pieces, some with pianoforte accompaniment and others unaccompanied, were produced at a concert of the Singakademie. Amongst those of more remote origin, two old French 'Brunettes,' the composers of which are unknown, attracted the most favourable attention; while amongst the modern ones, the palm was given to a chorus for female voices, entitled 'Windzauber,' by Heinrich Rietsch, the newly appointed professor of musical science at Prague University, and to a piece for mixed choir, by Robert Fuchs, the highly esteemed professor of composition at our Conservatorium. Several other compositions by Fuchs—viz., three four-part and two three-part choruses for female choir—have recently been issued here.

Amongst the virtuosos who have recently favoured us with their visits, the greatest popular success has been achieved by Jan Kubelik, whose recitals have been invariably crowded by enthusiastic audiences. It is true that, from a purely musical point of view, the young artist does not reveal to us much that is new; but genuine virtuosity, such as his, will always exercise its great powers of attraction. Eugen Gura, the Munich 'Meistersänger,' gave a recital, in which he interpreted, in his superb manner, a number of Loewe's Balladen, as well as songs by Hugo Wolf.

Some special interest attached to the visit paid us by the young Belgian pianist, Emile Bosquet. As the winner of the Rubinstein prize, awarded in Vienna last summer, the young artist had been invited to appear before a larger public here, in a chamber concert, and although, in his interpretation of Beethoven's Concerto in E flat major and participation in Schumann's Quintet, he cannot be said to have exhibited exceptional merit, he nevertheless proved himself an artist of much culture and refinement, whose technique is irreproachable. Another interesting and sympathetic acquaintance we made in the person of a young composer and pianist, Mr. Donald Tovey, of London, who, in concerts given by Fräulein Fillunger, was the unassuming but truly excellent accompanist. His introduction in leading musical circles here has gained for him the reputation of a musician of more than ordinary attainments as one who is gifted and already considerably advanced as a composer and as an expert pianist. A characteristic and very interesting pianoforte quartet, by another young and promising composer, of Czech nationality—Victor Novak—attracted the attention of connoisseurs at its performance by the Tonkünstler-Verein, an association which renders good service in encouraging young and, as yet, little known composers.

Something of a sensation was produced by the début here of a girl violinist, the twelve year old Steffi Geyer, of Budapest. The picture of robust health and strong physical development, her appearance is the very opposite of that associated with the youthful prodigy. Simple and perfectly natural, too, is her playing, which is distinguished by marvellous purity of tone, singularly mature powers of expression, and an unerring and, as it were, matter-of-fact precision in surmounting the greatest technical difficulties. A rarely and magnificently gifted child, truly!

At one of the great Orchestral concerts, under Loewe's direction, we were afforded the rare opportunity of hearing the 'Harold' Symphony of Berlioz; while, under the conductorship of Mahler, the symphonic poem 'Manfred,' by Tschaïkowsky, was introduced for the first time to a Viennese audience. The applause with which the last-named work was received was, it may be confidently asserted, intended rather for the able executants than for the work itself.

At the instance of a number of artists and amateurs, a small exhibition of pictures, autographs, &c., relative to Cimarosa and his more important Italian contemporaries, has just been opened, in commemoration of the anniversary of the death of the composer of 'Il Matrimonio segreto,' whose operas at one time enjoyed so great a popularity in Vienna. A performance of 'Il Matrimonio' is, moreover, to be given on the small stage of the Conservatorium. There can be no doubt that, under these restricted local conditions, the charming work will have a better chance of proving effective in our day than if presented on our great lyrical stage, where some years ago a tentative revival of it took place, with, however, but little success.

Mandyczewski.

Mr. Allen Gill has been appointed Conductor of the Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society. It is to be hoped that, under the new directorate of the Palace, the Society will become a permanent Institution, and that the conditions will be such as to enable the conductor to produce important works without anxiety as to financial results.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Dr. Lawrence Walker's third and fourth Subscription concerts were given in the Ulster Minor Hall, on the evening of the 18th and the afternoon of the 19th ult., and afforded the greatet satisfaction to the subscribers.

The Brodsky Quartet, from Manchester (Messrs. Brodsky, Briggs, Speelman, and Fuchs), performed at each concert a number of the finest pieces of chamber music, and their fine tone and perfect ensemble playing was worthy of their great reputation. A few songs by Miss McKisack gave variety to the programmes.

At the first concert the works were:—Beethoven, String Quartet in C (Op. 59, No. 3); Bach, 'Ciaconna' (Mr. Brodsky); Schumann, Quintet (Op. 44), Dr. Walker (pianoforte). At the second concert:—Mozart, String Quartet in C; Marcello, Sonata in F (Mr. Fuchs); Schubert, Variations from String Quartet in D minor ('Der Tod und das Mädchen'); Dvorák, Quintet (Op. 81).

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The annual performance of Handel's 'Messiah' was given by the Festival Choral Society, in the Town Hall, on Boxing Night, and attracted a crowded audience. The soloists were Mesdames Emily Squire and Marie Hooton and Messrs. Charles Saunders and Trevon Daniel. There was a commendable adherence to Handel's text throughout, and the only vulgar display was at the close of 'Thou shalt break them.' The choruses were well sung. Mr. Perkins gave judicious aid at the organ, and the trumpet playing of Mr. J. Freeman was the best heard here for years. Dr. Sinclair conducted.

Mr. J. W. Turner began a six weeks' season of opera at the Grand Theatre, on Christmas Eve. The stock pieces of Balfe, Wallace, and Verdi formed the bulk of his repertory; but, on the 10th ult., Wagner's 'The Flying Dutchman' was revived with fair success. Miss Chrystal Duncan remains the principal soprano, but Madame Caro Roma has been retained for works of the Italian school. Operatic performances are a great feature of the annual conversazione of the Birmingham and Midland Institute, and this year 'The Grand Duke'—not a very happy selection—was given on five nights, from the 14th ult., by an amateur society. The staging was good, and the principal parts well filled. The playing of the band, under Mr. E. W. Priestley, was the best part of the performance.

A ballad concert was held in the Town Hall, on the 7th ult., when two pretty songs by Mr. Felix Corbett, formerly connected with music in Birmingham, were introduced. Mr. Halford's orchestral concert, announced for the 22nd ult., was postponed on account of the death of the Queen, and other events will probably be postponed from the same cause.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The St. Bartholomew's Choral Society gave a concerts on the 7th ult., which was well attended. Dr. Cowen's 'St. John's Eve' was given in the first part, the soloists being Miss Alice Boaden, Miss Sylvia Tippett, Mr. Sydney A. Bennett, and Mr. A. Jupp. The work was well rendered and afforded much gratification to the auditiors. Mr. A. B. Gridley conducted.

The Ladies' Night of the Bristol Madrigal Society, on the 10th ult., drew together a large assemblage at the Victoria Rooms. The choir was heard in some of the old compositions, but there seems an increasing desire to include in the programme productions by modern musicians. Upon the present occasion the novelties were 'Vineta' by Brahms and Sir Hubert Parry's 'Come, pretty wag,' a setting of words by Martin Pierson, who lived in the seventeenth century. There was an innovation at this concert, Miss Clara Butt and Mr. Kennerley Rumford contributing songs by Sir Arthur Sullivan, who, at the time of his death, was president of the Madrigal Society (London). Mr. D. W. Rootham, who has been musical director of the Society since 1865, again conducted.

Mr. Riseley's newly formed Male-Voice Choir will repeat, at its next concert, the performance of Mendelssohn's 'Antigone' music (with Miss Olive Kennett and Mr. Charles Fry as reciters), in consequence of its success in December.

On the 14th ult. a concert was given in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association in aid of the fund for restoring the Baptist chapel at Downend, Gloucestershire, identified with the name of John Foster. Mr. C. Howes conducted. A selection from the 'Creation' was performed, the principal vocalists being Mrs. H. Golding-Woodward and Mr. E. T. Morgan and Mr. W. Thomas, both of Bristol Cathedral. There was a band, with Mr. F. Watts as leader; choir and orchestra numbering 125.

A concert was given, on the 21st ult., in the Hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, in aid of the fund for the restoration of St. Paul's Church. There was an effective choir with orchestra, and Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' was creditably given, under the direction of Mr. J. Bending, organist of the church. The principal vocalists were Miss Edith Evans, Miss Ada Bennett, and Mr. G. W. Brierley.

MUSIC AT CAMBRIDGE,

(From our own Correspondent.)

The University Musical Society gave, on December 3, a very interesting choral concert in Trinity Chapel. The programme included the first two parts of Bach's "Christmas" oratorio, Mendelssohn's 14th Psalm, and a motet by Palestrina. The usual amateur orchestra was, on this occasion, advantageously dispensed with, and the accompaniment was contributed by the organ, supplemented by a solo violin in the Bach arias and by drums. The effect of the splendid Trinity organ, as played by Dr. E. W. Naylor with conspicuous ability, was extraordinarily satisfactory. The chorus sang very well, and the soloists, Mrs. Creser, Mr. J. Reed, and Mr. Wm. Higley, were very good, one and all of them being thoroughly at home in Bach. Mrs. Creser, in particular, had the heaviest work, and discharged her duties admirably. Mr. H. Inwards was the violinist and Dr. Gray conducted. It is pleasing to record the fact that a programme consisting largely of Bach's works drew a satisfactory audience, and it seems as if the preaching of Bach, which has been a conspicuous feature of Cambridge music during the last few years, was beginning to have some effect.

It is fitting in this place to put on record the loss to Ely and Cambridge, and the gain to Oxford, involved in the appointment of Dr. H. P. Allen to the organistship of New College. During his short stay at Ely, Dr. Allen has brought about two performances of the "St. Matthew" Passion, and this he supplemented, on December 7, with Brahms's "Requiem." The chorus on the latter occasion was composed of the Cathedral choir, supplemented by members of the Cambridge University Musical Society. The effect of the whole was singularly impressive in the magnificent Cathedral. Dr. Gray was at the organ, and Dr. Naylor and Mr. Minns assisted with two pianofortes. Mr. Gordon Cleather played the drums. Dr. Allen may be congratulated on the success of his final piece of work at Ely.

The principal event of the Michaelmas Term—the Greek Play—was noticed in The Musical Times of December last.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The new Chamber Music Union made a very successful début on the 4th ult. This Society has been started to give concerts of ensemble chamber music for any combination of instruments, wind, strings, and pianoforte. Saint-Saëns's delightful Pianoforte Trio in F was performed by Signor Esposito, Mr. Wilhelmj, and Mr. Bast. The last-named artist and Signor Esposito subsequently played three pieces for violoncello and pianoforte by Schumann, and the concert concluded with what must be considered as the best performance of Beethoven's Septet given for many years in Dublin. The performers, in addition to those already named, were Monsieur Grisard (viola), Mr. Conroy (clarinet), Mr. Taylor (bassoon), Mr. Morrissy (horn), and Mr. May (bass). A very large and appreciative audience attended and the success of the first meeting of the Union augurs well for its future.

At the second concert, on the 18th ult., Brahms's beautiful Pianoforte Quartet was played by Messrs. Wilhelmj, Grisard, Bast, and Esposito. It was a very fine performance. Beethoven's Sonata for pianoforte and violin and Haydn's String Quartet in G minor were also played.

The syllabus of the Feis Ceoil includes some new features of interest: a prize for the best performance of any combination of wind instruments, two competitions for trios (pianoforte and strings), a viola competition, and a special prize for the best singing of an Irish character song—additions to the usual competitions. The tests for school choirs have been made simpler and the sight tests in the vocal trios and quartets have been eliminated. The adjudicators are as follows:—Professor Ebenezer Prout, Mr. Ivor Atkins, Mr. Denis O'Sullivan, Mr. Carl Fuchs, Mr. Oscar Beringer, Mr. J. Ord Hume, Mr. Brendan Rogers, Mr. R. Young, and Mr. P. J. M'Call.

The prize for the best work for soli, chorus, and orchestra offered by the Feis Ceoil Association has just been won by Carl Gilbert Hardebech, of Belfast, who has frequently won smaller prizes at former Festivals. The work is very fully scored, with solos for mezzo-soprano, tenor, and bass. The title is 'The Red Hand of Ulster,' and treats of a favourite Irish legend. The work is to be performed at the Festival next May.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Considerable musical activity marked the close of 1900. Clydebank Choral Union, under Mr. W. J. Clapperton, performed 'Elijah,' while 'The Messiah' was given by Uddingston Choral Society and Cambuslang Choral Union, conducted respectively by Mr. W. Padget Gale and Mr. H. Walton. At a concert by the students of the Athenæum School of Music the Ladies' Choir sang Dr. Vincent's cantata 'A Night in Fairyland,' and the opera class performed Offenbach's 'Breaking the spell.'

The custom in our churches of celebrating Christmas by holding special musical services is becoming more and more common. These services are generally held on the Sunday preceding Christmas Day, and their scope ranges from special hymns, carols, and anthems to more or less complete performances of 'The Messiah.' At the Orchestral concert on Christmas Day a much appreciated performance of Haydn's little-known Symphony in D was given. Saint-Saëns's ballad 'La fiancée du timbalier' was delightfully sung by Madame Marie Brema. The new century fitly opened with the time-honoured performance of 'The Messiah' by the Choral Union. On the 2nd ult. the same work was given by Paisley Choral Union, under the experienced baton of Mr. James Barr. The accompaniments were very creditably played by the Paisley Philharmonic Society, assisted at the organ by Mr. Hopkin Ould. Miss Fanny Davies was the soloist at the Orchestral concert on the 8th ult., taking the solo part in Chopin's Pianoforte Concerto in F minor. At this concert Brahms's Serenade for full orchestra (Op. 2) was performed for the first time in Glasgow. The last three movements were exceedingly well played. On the 10th ult. Mr. Berry gave an inaugural recital on the organ recently erected in Chalmers United Free Church by Messrs. Foster and Andrews, of Hull.

A first performance here of Tschaïkowsky's Suite (No. 3) in G and the appearance of Madame Lillian Blauvelt were the chief features of the ninth Subscription concert, on the 15th ult. The suite was excellently played, the Tema con Variazioni being especially well received. Madame Blauvelt's perfect vocalisation was admirably exhibited in the recitative and air 'Sweet Bird,' from Handel's 'L'Allegro ed Il Pensieroso.' Mention should be made of the flute obbligato played by Mr. Halstead.

On the 16th ult. the Choral Union gave a 'popular' performance of 'The Messiah,' with Mr. Andrew Black as chief soloist. The drawing power of the oratorio was evidenced by the fact that the number of people unable to gain admission was almost as great as that accommodated in the hall. Messrs. Cole, Melville, Joachim, and Augless, representing the string quartet of the Athenæum School of Music, gave an enjoyable Chamber concert on the 17th ult. The programme included Haydn's Quartet (No. 1, Op. 74) and Beethoven's Trio in E flat. Mr. J. W. Sharpe contributed vocal solos. A performance of Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony attracted an enormous audience to the Popular Orchestral concert on the 19th ult. Miss Helen Jaxon was vocalist, and Mr. Maurice Sons acted as deputy-conductor.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Dr. Richter has recently presented us with yet more enlightened and finished interpretations of such classical works as we may never too fully understand, alternately with selections from both older and more modern schools hitherto withheld from us. Among the former especial note must be made of the rendering of Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, on the 17th ult., so admirably contrasted with the decidedly noisy Sinding Symphony in D minor of the previous meeting and with the staid, sober orchestral suite of Bach for strings, oboes, drums, and with three trumpet parts. It is always gratifying to have an opportunity of listening to the charming violoncello playing of Mr. Carl Fuchs, although one ever regrets the dearth of really great works for his instrument. The Concerto in D minor, of Lalo, has many interesting passages; although somewhat incoherent and unsatisfactory as a whole. The vocalists at the Hallé concerts during January have been Madame Lillian Blauvelt, Miss Brema, and Mr. Santley.

As usual, Mr. Lane's patrons flocked to his excellent and most liberal entertainment on the 19th ult., and Dr. Pyne's recitals continue to attract the lovers of organ music to the Town Hall on Saturday evenings. Perhaps, on the 12th ult., it was merely as a relief, after the dryness of Rheinberger's Pastoral Sonata, that Dr. Pyne introduced Dubois' March, in which the holding down of a shrill high note by a leaden weight reminded one of the celebrated trick of olden time whereby Herschell defeated his opponent at a competition for an organ appointment.

MUSIC IN WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

A large number of Eisteddfodau were held as usual during Christmastide and on New Year's Day, in various parts of the Principality and some border towns. The most important were those of Morriston (Swansea), Blaenau Festiniog, Chester, Liverpool, and Dolgelley; at which, in the order mentioned, Mr. John Thomas (with Mr. Maldwyn Humphreys), Dr. Joseph Parry, Mr. Emlyn Evans, Mr. Maldwyn Price, and Mr. Joseph Bennett (with Mr. W. L. Barrett and Mr. Wilfrid Jones) adjudicated.

At Morriston Mr. John Thomas's cantata 'The Bride of Neath Valley' was performed, the composer conducting; and at Dolgelley Mendelssohn's 'Athalie' (soloists, Miss Percival Allen, Miss Greta Williams, and Miss Maud Jones; reciter, Mr. Charles Fry); and Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' (the solo by Mr. H. Franckiss). Amongst the artists engaged at Chester was Mr. Ben Davies, who was in most excellent voice, and whose fine singing was greatly appreciated by a crowded audience.

On Christmas Day the 'Hymn of Praise' was performed at Pontypridd; and in Mid-Rhondda Sullivan's 'Prodigal Son'; 'Samson' being rendered at Cwmaman (Aberdare Valley), and repeated on the following day, Mr. W. J. Evans conducting.

On Boxing Day the Zion Choral Society, Merthyr Tydvil, gave a performance of 'Judas Maccabæus,' under the conductorship of Mr. Dan Davies, the orchestra being led by Mr. E. G. Woodward. The same night the Brynmawr Harmonic Society performed the 'Hymn of Praise,' under the baton of Mr. W. Evans; and the Cardiff Blue Ribbon Choir 'The Messiah,' Mr. J. F. Proud occupying his usual post as conductor, and Mr. Arthur Angle leading the band.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

'Messiah' performances.

Yorkshire music has, during the month of which I write, been so largely concerned with 'The Messiah' performances customary at Christmas time that it may be well to group together a few typical examples. On December 17 the Bradford Old Choral Society gave the oratorio, following the performance by the Festival Choral Society at one of the Subscription concerts, referred to in my last letter. On this occasion the soloists were Miss Ethel Wood, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. John Coates, and Mr. Watkin Mills; and Mr. Hartwell Robertshaw, the conductor, had a fresh and powerful chorus of about 250 voices at his disposal. Two days later the Leeds Philharmonic Society gave a thoroughly good all-round performance of the work. Dr. Stanford's reading of the music is artistic, and as free from fads as it is from Philistinism. While his tempi are not of the cast-iron description affected by most of our West Riding conductors, his modifications are not solely in the direction of slackening the time to at least half-speed at the end of each movement, which seems to be the average conductor's solitary idea of 'expression.' The principals were Madame Albani, Miss Sarah Berry, Mr. Joseph O'Mara, and Mr. Watkin Mills. Mozart's beautiful 'Masonic Funeral Music' was played before the oratorio, in memory of Sullivan, a tribute at once graceful and appropriate, and, so far as this part of the world is concerned, unique. So far as grandeur of choral effects is concerned, the Huddersfield Society is always an easy first, and its performance on the 21st was no exception to this rule. The singing of this choir represents the concentrated essence of the West Riding virtues of robustness and force, and not one of even the greatest festivals can produce anything finer of its kind. The only pity is that the Society can, apparently, do nothing else equally well. Mr. John Bowling conducted, and the principal vocalists were Miss Helen Jaxon, Miss Muriel Foster, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. David Hughes. On the 22nd this Handelian week was brought to a close by the Leeds School Board Society's performance, under Mr. Godson, which showed at least distinct promise. Madame Goodall, Miss Alice Smith, Mr. Tom Child, and Mr. W. Thornton were the soloists. The Leeds Choral Union chose Boxing Day for its 'Messiah' concert, at which Mr. Benton's powerful choir sang brightly and with power. Madame Fanny Moody, Miss Muriel Foster, Mr. Joseph O'Mara, and Mr. Charles Manners were the principal singers, the contralto achieving especial distinction by the beauty of her voice and her artistic expression. When to the above excellent performances there are added innumerable others, of varying merit, all over the West Riding, it will be seen that justice is done to Handel's great work.

Other concerts.

At Leeds there is practically nothing of importance to record since the close of 'The Messiah' season. Mr. Santley, in good voice, and accompanied by some very artistic young singers in Miss Louise Dale, Miss Gertrude Elliott, and Mr. Harold Bealey, visited Leeds on the 14th ult., and Halifax the following night. On the 15th Miss Giulia Ravogli appeared at one of the Messrs. Haddock's Leeds Musical Evenings, the programme of which, by the way, had more than ordinary artistic value. At Bradford the annual visit of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera took place in Christmas week, when occasion was taken to introduce to Yorkshire Goldmark's 'Cricket on the Hearth.' It was very ably performed, but the music lacks the lightness of touch necessary for adequate treatment of a slight domestic drama with a dash of the fairy element. On the 11th ult. Dr. Richter appeared with the Hallé orchestra at one of the Bradford Subscription concerts. Madame Brema's superb reading of the final scene of the 'Götterdämmerung' and a highly finished performance of Dvorák's 'New World' Symphony were the principal features of one of the best concerts of this series. On the 16th Miss Edith Wehner, a vocalist who always interests, both by her careful selection of songs and her highly artistic readings of them, gave a very enjoyable concert at Bradford, and on the 19th the Bradford Permanent Orchestra gave its fourth concert for the present season. A brilliant and sympathetic performance of Dr. Cowen's clever Concertstücke, with Mr. Frederick Dawson as the pianist, was the distinguishing feature of the programme.

At Huddersfield, on the 12th ult., the Glee and Madrigal Society gave a 'Popular' concert that did not belie its name, for the hall was crammed, and a pleasant programme of familiar part-songs and the like was gone through under Mr. Ibeson's direction. On the 15th the audience of the Subscription concerts at Huddersfield were invigorated by a 'military' programme.

The Halifax Subscription concerts were resumed on the 9th ult., when Brahms's fine Violoncello Sonata (Op. 99) was well played by Mr. Fuchs and Mr. H. F. Webster, an exceedingly able local pianist. Miss Helen Jaxon sang and Mr. Risegari was the violinist.

The Cleckheaton Orchestral Society, conducted by Mr. Stott, gave a concert on the 14th, when Mr. John Dunn made his last appearance, before departing for an American tour, and played the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Aix-la-Chapelle. — An enthusiastic reception was accorded, on its first performance, last month, by the Philharmonic Society, to a new cantata for tenor solo, chorus, and orchestra, entitled 'Frühlings Feier,' from the pen of Herr Anton Urspruch.

Altenburg.—A highly successful first performance took place recently, at the Court Theatre, of Franz von Holstein's opera 'Die Hochländer' ('The Highlanders.').

Bayreuth.—A new choral work with orchestra, entitled 'Roland's Tod,' by Walter Choinanus, was introduced by the Bayreuth Choral Society, in its first concert of the season, last month, and proved a highly effective composition.

Bremen.— M. Camille Saint-Saëns's lyrical drama, 'Samson et Dalila,' was produced for the first time, with a German version of the libretto, at the Stadt-Theater, last month. Capellmeister Jaeger conducted the very brilliant performance, and the work was received with marked favour on the part of a numerous audience.

Brussels.—The prize of 1,000 francs, offered by the Academy of Fine Arts, for a pianoforte concerto with orchestra, has been awarded to M. Louis Delune, a pupil of Edgar Tinel, the composer of 'St. Franciscus.'

Bucharest.—With the successful first performance, last month, exclusively by Roumanian artists, of an opera, 'Petru Raresch,' by a native composer, Eduard Candella (director of the Jassy Conservatoire), Roumania has entered into the proud possession of a 'national opera' of its own.

Budapest. — The twenty-fifth anniversary of the presidentship of Count Geza Zichy was celebrated at the Conservatorium, last month, by a concert, in which the Count introduced, for the first time, a new pianoforte concerto of his composition, written for the left hand only (he being, as is well known, deprived of his right arm), in the presence of a most enthusiastic audience.

Carlsruhe.—At the instance and with the co-operation of Herr Felix Mottl, a hitherto almost unknown concerto for three pianofortes, by Mozart, was performed at a concert recently given here, before an invited audience, and greatly appreciated. According to Köchel, the concerto in question, a work of bright and graceful character, in F major, was written at Salzburg in 1776, and was performed several times in the two following years, under the composer's direction.

Cassel.—The well-known Steindel Quartet, consisting of Herr Steindel and his two little sons, Bruno and Max, has been transformed into a quartet by the addition to the gifted family party of the six-year-old Albin Steindel, a violinist en miniature. Like his two elder brothers, he owes the development of his precocious talent to his father.

Cologne.—Wolfrum's remarkable 'Weihnachs Mysterium' created a most marked impression on its first performance, at the fifth Gürzenich concert of the season, under Dr. Wüllner's direction.

Dresden.—André Messager's comic opera 'Brigitte' was recently produced at the Royal Theatre and very favourably received.——Professor Edmund Kretschmer, for forty-seven years the highly esteemed Court organist and capellmeister, has just retired from his post.——A new Christmas Oratorio, distinguished by some fine and massive choral writing, from the pen of Herr O. Wermann, was produced at the Kreuz Kirche last Christmas Eve.

Frankfort-on-Main.—A new oratorio, in three parts, 'The Legend of St. Boniface,' by H. Diebold, was produced for the first time at a recent concert of the Society for Church Music, under Musikdirector Krug's direction, and received with marked favour. It is the, as yet, most important work of a young composer already favourably known by a number of sacred compositions.

Hamburg.—Herr August Bungert has completed his great tetralogy 'The Odyssey' (with a 'Vorspiel' to each of the four parts), portions of which have already been produced repeatedly, both here and in Dresden. It only remains for the industrious and ambitious poet-composer to complete an additional trifle—viz., the trilogy, 'The Iliad,' and his entire work, entitled 'Homeric World,' will have eclipsed—at all events, in regard to its 'gigantic proportions'—the famous 'Nibelungen Ring.' With such a vast scheme in progress of realisation, musico-dramatic art in the twentieth century need not despair of her votaries!

Heidelberg.—At a recent concert of the Bach-Verein an excellent performance was given of Liszt's Coronation Mass and 'Hunnen Schlacht,' under the zealous direction of Professor Wolfrum. The performance in question completed the series of concerts specially devoted to the more important compositions of the great pianist-composer, given by the Bach-Verein during the last ten years, which have contributed not a little towards a better appreciation of their merits on the part of an audience by no means confined to the music-lovers of this city.

Innsbruck.—Considerable success attended the first performance, last month, of a new secular oratorio entitled 'Ekkehard,' the libretto, founded upon Scheffel's well known poem, by Schultes von Brühl, the music by Hugo Roehr, the Munich conductor. The score is constructed mainly upon modern lines, and the impression produced by the new work has been sufficiently pronounced for it to be accepted, for immediate performance, at Munich, Stuttgart, and Würzburg.

Königsberg.—At a recent concert of the choral society 'Liederfreude,' the audience were greatly delighted by the performance of a new choral ballad, 'Der Schneider in der Hölle,' by Arnold Mendelssohn, a composer already well known in German musical circles. The composition, though somewhat bizarre, is exceedingly clever. Its essentially humorous character, free from even a suspicion of vulgarity, produced a most exhilarating effect upon the audience, who insisted upon its repetition.

Leipzig.—The eleventh Gewandhaus concert of the season, under Herr Nikisch's direction, which took place on the 1st ult., included, amongst other interesting and appropriate pieces, a chorale for the New Year by Bach, Mendelssohn's 'Neujahrs Lied,' and a Christmas hymn, 'In dulci jubilo,' emanating from the fourteenth century. Professor Joachim took part in the performances.

Mannheim. — The steadily increasing appreciation on the part of German audiences of the works of the late Anton Bruckner was once more exemplified by the enthusiastic reception accorded the Austrian composer's Eighth Symphony (at one time considered 'impossible') on the occasion of its first performance, on the 8th ult., by the Court Orchestra, under the able direction of Herr Kähler.

Munich.—A new music-drama, 'Eros and Psyche,' by Max Zenger, was brought out, with considerable success, on the 11th ult., at the Hof-Theater.

Paris.—Several performances of Schumann's 'Faust' music, hitherto unknown to Parisian audiences, have taken place recently at the Châtelet concerts, under the direction of M. Colonne, with much success. Madame Adiny and M. Paul Daraux were the principal solo interpreters.——At the Lamoureux concert, on the 6th ult., two very effective orchestral Nocturnes, by Mr. Debussey, and a violoncello concerto, by M. Hollmann (played by the composer), were much applauded novelties. Madame Blanche Marchesi was the vocalist.——The library of the Conservatoire has been enriched by the autographs of a number of pianoforte pieces by Chopin, formerly in the possession of Mdlle. Gavard, a pupil of the Polish composer.

Prague.—An excellent and highly successful first performance took place, last month, at the German Theatre, of August Enna's fairy opera 'The little Match-Seller,' founded upon Andersen's well-known story.

Rome.—A new society, bearing the name of 'Boccherini,' has been formed for the cultivation and popularisation of chamber music. M. Pélissier has been appointed its director.——A prize competition has been opened, by the 'Societá degli autori ed artisti drammatici e lirici,' for an opera buffa; sums of 1,000 lire and 500 lire being offered for the best score and libretto respectively.

St. Petersburg.—Wagner's 'Die Walküre' was performed for the first time, last month, at the Imperial Opera, in the Russian language, with enormous success.

Sondershausen.—At a concert given by the Conservatorium, under the direction of Professor Schroeder, a new composition for chorus and orchestra, 'The Lady of Castle Windeck' (founded upon Chamisso's ballad), by Rudolph Werner, was received with much favour. The same concert included the performance of a 'Hymn to Life,' for chorus and orchestra, by the late Friedrich Nietzsche, a somewhat ambitious, but distinctly amateurish production, scarcely calculated to place the vaunted musicianship of the famous poet-philosopher in a very favourable light.

Teplitz.—Commemorative tablets have been affixed to the houses at Schönau, known by the signs of 'Zur Harfe' and 'Zur Eiche,' in which Beethoven resided during the summer months of 1811 and 1812.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Cumberland Musical Festival, which, as the 'Invander' Eisteddfod, has been established for nearly thirty years, was held at Workington on the 1st and 2nd ult. Dr. Joseph Parry, of Cardiff, adjudicated at the musical competitions and conducted the concerts. In the chief junior choir section, the test piece for which was 'The undertone of the bells' (Dr. Roland Rogers), only two choirs entered, the Workington Higher Grade School (under Mr. J. H. Jenkinson) and the Penrith Brunswick Road Board School (under Miss Elliott). Workington gained the prize for the singing of the piece, but Penrith was successful in a three-part sight test. Dr. Parry said that the sight-singing was remarkably good and that he never heard anything to touch it. The Seaton Wesleyans gained the prize in the part-song class, the test piece for which was Pinsuti's 'Parting Kiss.' The perseverance of Mr. Griffiths, the original promoter of the scheme, backed up by a local committee, deserves the generous acknowledgment of all who believe in the advantage of the popularisation of music.

A large and appreciative audience assembled on the 17th ult. at the rooms of 'The Society for the Encouragement of Fine Arts,' in Conduit Street, on the occasion of the inaugural lecture of its forty-third session, when, under the attractive title, 'Methods of the Masters of Musical Design,' Mr. Alfred Gilbert, honorary musical director of the Society, gave a most interesting analysis of musical forms, which he illustrated at the pianoforte by playing excerpts from the works of Handel, Bach, Beethoven, and Mendelssohn. The vocal illustrations were given in a refined manner by Miss Beatrice May and a quartet of male voices—Messrs. Oakeley, Turner, Bennetts, and Stanley Smith. Before the performances Mr. Gilbert gave, in concise and lucid language, a description of each class of composition, which ranged from canon and fugue to the sonata and song without words, and which included the madrigal, the part-song, the glee, the early Italian song, the ballad, and the modern song.

An exceedingly pleasant evening was spent on the 17th ult., at the residence of Dr. W. G. McNaught, when a private representation was given of an original operetta, in two acts, entitled 'Lucette,' composed by Mr. William McNaught. The libretto, by Mr. W. G. Rothery, was smartly written and very much up-to-date, and the music revealed in the youthful composer (who, we understand, is quite untrained in composition) a considerable gift of melody and distinct capacity in writing which should surely induce him to further cultivate these gifts. It would be invidious to specially mention any of the performers; sufficeth it to say that all worked together with earnestness and spirit and that the result was highly satisfactory.

A biographical account of the brothers Edward and Walter Bache has been written by their sister, Miss Constance Bache. To facilitate the publication of the book, the cost of which will probably not exceed six shillings net, some of their friends have agreed to take copies. Mr. A. J. Hipkins, 33, Great Pulteney Street, W. (Messrs. John Broadwood and Sons), will be glad to receive the names of intending subscribers.

A musical festival and competition is announced to take place at Blackpool on May 16, 17, and 18. The scheme includes a performance of Brahms's Requiem and other important works, to be performed with full orchestra, conducted by Dr. Richter. The adjudicators for the choral competitions will be Dr. McNaught and Dr. Varley Roberts. The secretary of the festival is Mr. Lionel H. Franceys, Williams Deacon Bank, Blackpool.

University of London.—The following have been the successful candidates in the recent examinations in music:—Doctor of Music: Thomas Henry Davis. Bachelors of Music: Frederic Arthur Ely and Herbert Westerby. The examiners were Dr. C. H. Lloyd and Dr. Charles Wood.

Mr. Frederick Bevan has been appointed, by the Council of the University of Adelaide, Director of the Elder Conservatorium of Music (Adelaide) for the year 1901.

Mr. W. R. B. Tann, honorary secretary, London Church Choir Association, has been appointed secretary of The Bach Choir.

Mr. L. G. Sharpe has commenced business as a concert agent and manager at 61, Regent Street, W.

OBITUARY.

The death took place on December 26, at his residence at Colwyn Bay, of Jules Prudence Rivière, aged eighty-one, the well-known conductor. Born in Paris, in 1819, he began his musical career as a choir boy. After serving as a conscript in the French army Rivière gave a great concert in Paris, in 1857, which was attended by the Emperor and Empress. In commemoration of that event their Majesties presented him with a signet ring, which he wore to the day of his death. Shortly afterwards (November, 1857) Rivière came to London as the protégé of Jullien. He became musical director at Cremorne, the Adelphi, and the Alhambra. In the autumn of 1871 he started, at Covent Garden, Rivière's Promenade concerts, which met with great success; the classical and sacred nights were conducted by Arthur Sullivan. He subsequently left the Metropolis and conducted concerts in Manchester, Blackpool, and other centres. In 1887 he became conductor of the Llandudno Pier concerts, where he gained great popularity, and last year he accepted a similar post at Colwyn Bay. As a composer M. Rivière was best known by his 'Babil and Bijou' song 'Spring, spring, gentle spring,' which became a much street-whistled and torturously organ-grindered tune in the early seventies of the last century.

M. Jules Cohen, director of the chorus at the Paris Opéra, died in Paris, on the 14th ult., aged seventy. A protégé of Halévy, he took first prizes at the Conservatoire for pianoforte, organ, and harmony, and became a professor at that Institution. During the Empire he was maître de chapelle of Napoleon III. Among his compositions are 'Maître Claude,' 'José Maria,' 'Déa,' 'Les Bleuets,' and the choruses of 'Esther' and 'Athalie.' The last effort of the composer was his own Funeral March. M. Cohen succumbed to a long and terrible malady, which deprived him of the use of his eyes and hands.

M. Jules Barbier, the distinguished opera librettist, died on the 16th ult., at the age of seventy-eight. 'Faust' alone will carry his name down to posterity, but he also wrote the libretti of 'Roméo et Juliette,' 'Noces de Jeannette,' 'Paul et Virginie,' and many other opera books.

The death occurred, on December 26, at St. Louis (U.S.), of Professor August Waldauer, founder and, for many years, director of the Beethoven Conservatory in that city, aged seventy-five.

The death of Dr. W. Pole is referred to on another page.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE, TENBURY.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Your charming views and chatty description, in a recent number of The Musical Times, of St. Michael's College have, I feel confident, afforded the very greatest possible pleasure to hundreds of St. Michael's boys scattered all over the globe. I note that Commander Arthur Havergal, R.N. (an old Ouseley boy), draws public attention to the fact that boys of this College are, indeed, educated for any of the professions and not for music alone.

Any lad privileged to spend his boyhood days amidst the refining atmosphere ever to be found hovering over the beauties of St. Michael's College, will never forget throughout his lifetime the benefits received there, and, may I add, as one of the old boys, neither will he, in passing out of the College, ever be lost sight of by the Warden, for it has been my pleasure to enjoy an uninterrupted correspondence with the Warden from the day of my leaving until the present day, covering a period of over twenty-three years. I mention this inasmuch as no greater proof than this, if any were needed, could possibly be forthcoming as evidencing the strong attachments formed by the masters for their boys and the love of boys for their masters come of residence in this 'miniature University of Oxford,' so generously founded by Sir Frederick Ouseley, Bart., and known to us all as St. Michael's College, Tenbury.

Very truly yours,
Charles A. R. Harriss.

'Earnscliffe,' Ottawa, Canada,
The last day of the 19th Century.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Adelaide.—Since the appointment of Mr. Bryceson Treharne as Professor of the Pianoforte to the Elder Conservatorium, in March last year, he has zealously endeavoured to further the cause of good music in this city. Programmes of a series of pianoforte recitals, given in the Autumn, have reached us, all giving evidence of a catholicity of taste in the selection of good music. The attempt to introduce chamber music has also met with encouragement, among the works performed for the first time in Adelaide having been Sir Hubert Parry's Trio in E minor and Coleridge-Taylor's 'In Memoriam' Song Cycle. The admission to the concerts is free. Mr. Treharne has our best wishes for the success of his efforts.

Andover.—Mr. Arthur C. Bennett gave his tenth annual concert in the Town Hall, on the 15th ult., when his orchestra played the Adagio and Vivace from Haydn's Symphony in C; Minuet, Trio, and Finale from Haydn's Symphony in D; Handel's Largo; Gavotte and Musette in G minor, Bach (arranged for strings and orchestra), and Andante and Gigue from a Concerto in C by Thomas Tremain, a former organist of Andover. The vocalists were Mr. Anderson Nichol and Madame Edythe Pearson.

Blairgowrie.—Haydn's 'Creation' was performed by the Choral Society, in the Public Hall, on December 27. The choir, numbering 100 voices, sang with precision and gave evidence of the careful training received from its conductor, Mr. E. F. Parker. The solo vocalists were Miss Marguerite Simpson, Mr. Macfarlane Brockett, and Mr. A. McLean Borthwick, and the accompaniments were efficiently played by Miss Butchart (pianoforte) and Mr. A. Mackay (organ).

Campbeltown.—The Campbeltown Musical Association gave a fine rendering of Handel's 'Messiah' on December 18. The solos were sung by members of the Association and the chorus and band numbered 120 performers. The rendering of the oratorio reflected great credit upon the conductor, Mr. J. M. Brown.

Coventry.—Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was given by the Coventry Free Church Choral Union, on the 10th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Charles Matthews. Mr. Charles Tree sang the music of the Prophet splendidly, and Miss Maggie Jaques was excellent in the soprano solos. The contralto and tenor solos were admirably sung by Miss Jennie Atkinson and Mr. Samuel Masters. The band and chorus numbered 160. On the following Sunday the performance was repeated for the benefit of the sufferers by the recent floods, the principals and band generously giving their services. Mr. Masters was unable to attend, but his place was efficiently filled by Mr. J. Mason.

Dunedin (N.Z.).—The Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' in the Agricultural Hall, on November 7. The choir sang throughout with admirable expression and excellent attack, especially in the 'Baal' choruses, and the orchestra was fully efficient. The chief solo vocalists were Miss Amy Murphy, Mrs. Howie, Mr. B. S. Collier, and Mr. Prouse, the first three of these artists being supplemented in the double quartet by Miss Blaney, Miss Campbell, Mr. Slater, Mr. Holgate, and Mr. W. Thompson. Mr. James Coombs, who conducted, deserves every credit for the success of the performance.

Grimsby.—On December 23 the choir of George Street Wesleyan Chapel performed Dr. C. Bowdler's cantata 'The Shepherds and the Magi.' The work was highly appreciated, both for its own worth and for the excellence of the rendering. Mr. James Bennett presided at the organ and Mr. C. H. Dawson conducted.

Hanley.—The fourth Meakin concert of the season was given in the Town Hall, on the 14th ult., the artists being Madame Alice Esty, Madame Kirkby Lunn, Mr. Gregory Hast, Mr. Charles Ganz, vocalists; Mr. George Müller, violin; Mr. Jacques Renard, violoncello, with Mr. Wilhelm Ganz as conductor. Mendelssohn's Trio in D minor (Op. 49) was beautifully rendered by the instrumentalists. The hall was crowded and the concert a great success.

Kendal.—The London Trio (Miss Amina Goodwin, Messrs. Simonetti and Whitehouse) have just completed a short tour in Westmoreland and North Lancashire, during which they carried the sacred lamp of chamber music into several towns which are usually visited only by ballad concert parties. They were particularly successful with the Trios of Mendelssohn in C minor and Rubinstein in B flat, both of which were played with great vigour and breadth of style combined with artistic insight. The Hon. Margaret Henniker sang successfully during the tour.

Leigh (Kent).—The Choral Society gave a performance of Stainer's cantata 'The Daughter of Jairus,' on the 11th ult., in the Parish Church. The solo vocalists were Miss Gertrude Davies, Mr. Ernest Webster, and Mr. W. J. Heney. Mr. Percy Prior presided at the organ and Mr. George S. Evans conducted.

Liskeard.—A conversazione was held in the Public Hall, on the 18th ult., by the Choral Society, when the members sang some part-songs, one of them, 'Youthful sports,' by Barnby, being encored. The programme included Gounod's 'Mirella' Overture and vocal and instrumental solos. Mr. A. G. Faull conducted.

Melbourne (Australia).—The special Musical Service for Advent was held in St. Paul's Cathedral on December 13, when Spohr's 'Last Judgment' was sung by the Cathedral choir, augmented to about eighty voices. Evidence of careful and painstaking rehearsal was given by the intelligent way in which the various choruses were sung. The following members of the Cathedral choir sang the solo parts, and in each case maintained the high standard of excellence observable at these services: Master McCausland (soprano), Mr. W. Cheslin (alto), Mr. J. Kendal (tenor), Mr. J. Frankland (bass). The service was under the direction of Mr. Ernest Wood, the Cathedral organist, who accompanied throughout with refined taste and sound judgment. The service was attended by a large congregation.

Ponkey (N. Wales).—On December 19, at the Congregational Church, a presentation was made on behalf of the congregation to Mr. Caradog Roberts, of a Bible, a gold watch, and an illuminated address, as a mark of their appreciation and esteem. Mr. Roberts has held the appointment of organist for the last seven years.

Sedgley.—The Choral Society gave its first concert on the 15th ult., in the Public Hall, when Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen' and a miscellaneous selection were performed. The choir sang, on the whole, with credit to its trainer and was supported by a small orchestra. The solo vocalists were Miss Thompson, Mr. T. Jones, and Mr. Roden. Mr. Arthur Sedgley conducted.

Singapore.—The Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Gaul's 'Holy City,' in the Town Hall, on December 8. The choir had evidently been well trained and sang with vigour and precision, although more male voices are required to make it fully efficient. There was a small orchestra, the strings composed of members of the Philharmonic orchestra and the wind being supplied from the band of the 16th Madras Infantry. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Wynter, Mrs. Lane, Messrs. Graham Kirk, Dunman, Tonkin, and A. P. Ager. Mr. F. Whitefield accompanied on the pianoforte and Mr. W. G. St. Clair conducted.

Stalybridge.—Mr. Sidney Hall gave an organ and vocal recital in Holy Trinity Church, on the 17th ult., when the programme included Bach's Prelude and Fugue in D major and two pieces by the recitalist. Miss Maggie Jaques and Mr. William Wild were the vocalists.

Tewkesbury.—A special Carol Service was held in the Abbey on the 2nd ult. Among the carols sung by the Abbey Choir were 'Sweeter than songs of summer' and 'In sorrow and in want' (Bridge). 'Sleep! Holy Babe' and 'A cradle song of the Blessed Virgin' (arranged for men's voices) were sung by the Abbey Choir Glee Club. Mr. Alfred W. V. Vine (the organist and choirmaster) accompanied and also played the 'Pastoral' Symphony from 'The Messiah' and an 'Offertoire sur deux Noëls' (Guilmant). Miss Jessie King was the vocalist.

Treorky.—A three-manual organ, one of the largest in Wales, built by Messrs. P. Conacher and Co., Huddersfield, was opened at Koddfa Baptist Church, Treorky, Glamorganshire, on the 17th ult., by Dr. Roland Rogers, Bangor, to whose specification the instrument was constructed. A large and appreciative audience assembled, the programme, in addition to Dr. Rogers's well-selected organ pieces, consisting of effective vocal contributions by Miss Maggie Davies, Mr. Emlyn Davies, and the Noddfa Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. W. Thomas.

Wincanton.—The Christmastide cantata, by Dr. Pearce, was performed in the Parish Church, on the 15th ult., when Mr. Chuter (organist of Sherborne Abbey) accompanied, and Mr. E. Harold Melling, organist of the church, conducted.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

G. L.—(1) The passage in Beethoven's Rondo for pianoforte in C, Op. 51, No. 1, bar 24, groups 3 and 4, may be played:—

(2) We learn, on the best authority, that it is now impossible to obtain the 'Orchestrina di Camera' referred to in Grove's 'Dictionary of Music and Musicians,' Vol. IV., p. 735.

Student.—The question you raise is certainly not without practical interest. That the timbre of an instrument is not alike in every country is proved in the case of the ophicleide. 'Very powerful, but somewhat savage and obtrusive,' says a great authority in describing this instrument. But Berlioz, upon his visit to Leipzig in 1843, says:—'The ophicleide, or rather the thin copper instrument shown to me under that name, was quite unlike the French one, and had scarcely any tone. It was, therefore, rejected, and replaced, after a fashion, by a fourth trombone.' Whether Spontini, Mendelssohn, and Schumann had the French or German ophicleide in their minds in writing for that instrument in their scores it is impossible to say.

Enquirer.—Professor Armes has kindly supplied the following list of names of those who have graduated in music at Durham University during 1900:—

Mus. Doc. (in September).
Bairstow, E. C.	Horner, Egbert F.
Mus. Bac.
(In March.)	Brearley, Hermann.
Forster, Cuthbert.	Brookes, Harry.
Leake, George.	Haskins, Charles W.
Mixer, Annie Louise.	Master, Blanche E.
Ritson, Thomas W.	Pritchard, George.
(In September.)	Rowbottom, William E.
Archer, Louisa.	Sanderson, Wilfred E.

L. R. A. M. (Ireland).—The following are the dates and opus numbers of the compositions by Mendelssohn to which you refer:—'Farewell to the Forest' (also known as 'Departure' and 'O hills! O vales'), Op. 59, No. 3, Leipzig, March 4, 1843; 'Cradle Song' (Op. 47, No. 6), composed for Mendelssohn's godson, Mr. Felix Moscheles, in 1833; 'The Traveller's Song' (by which we assume that you refer to the 'Reiselied,' words by Ebert), Op. 19, No. 6, Venice, October 16, 1830 (Book 1 of the 'Songs without Words' was also published as Op. 19); 'On Song's light pinions' (also known as 'On wings of song'), Op. 34, No. 2, 1834.

X. Y. Z.—(1) We are glad to hear that you appreciate the biographical sketches and special portraits. Your suggestion as to the inclusion of some more of the old composers has already been considered, and we hope soon to give a biography of Sir John Goss, to be followed by other native worthies. (2) The entire score of Handel's 'Joseph and his Brethren' is not published in octavo form. But Messrs. Novello issue, in that size, two choruses from the work—'Blest be the man' and 'O God, Who in Thy heavenly hand.' Four solos and one duet from the oratorio are also published.

Firm Tonic.—You are quite right in your protest against the persistent introduction of the seventh in the tonic chord at the close of a hymn preparatory to the subdominant Amen chord, especially when, as you say, 'the final (tonic) chord is little more than touched before the discord is heard.' In many strong-ending hymns and tunes the dominant seventh chord is quite unwarranted; but are not organists creatures of habit?

Paper Organ Pipes.—Several correspondents, to each of whom we are greatly obliged, have sent us the following information: that full directions for making paper organ pipes are given in 'Organ Building for Amateurs' by Mark Wicks (Ward, Lock and Co.). One correspondent says: 'I may say that I have made a few pipes on Mr. Wicks's system and I can assure "J. M." that they answer.' Another correspondent writes that paper organ pipes may be obtained from Mr. Burton, organ builder, Winchester, who makes their manufacture a specialty.

Hanover.—Previous to October, 1897, the following Extra Supplement portraits appeared in The Musical Times*:—Mr. Berthold Tours (April), Dr. G. M. Garrett (May), Mr. W. T. Best (June), Sir George Martin (July), Sir Frederick Bridge (August), and Dr. E. J. Hopkins (September)—all in 1897.*

Cellist.—You probably refer to the 'Crystalphonicon,' a species of musical glasses upon which a Mr. Arthur Lincoln, from New Orleans, performed, some thirty years ago, in London. He played on the glasses with his right hand and accompanied himself on the pianoforte with his left.

L. N.—We have not made any reference in these columns to 'changes in the colours of some University hoods for musical and other degrees.' Authoritative information on this habiliment matter will be found in 'The Roll of the Union of Graduates in Music' under 'The University Hoods of Graduates in Music' (p. 115).

Keraulophon.—The most usual form of pointing the last line of the Gloria is:—

World without | end. | A- | -men.

and not:—

World without end. | A- | — | -men.

H. E. T.—We regret that we cannot trace the tune named 'Patricia.' If you could discover the composer's name it might facilitate the research. Perhaps some of our readers can furnish the desired information.

E. E. R.—As to the genuineness of your Strad, you had better submit the instrument to a reliable expert, such, for instance, as Messrs. W. E. Hill and Son, New Bond Street, London.

Organist.—The final syllable of 'redeemed,' in the initial verse in the Benedictus, should be sounded—'redeeméd.'

Harp.—So far as we can discover there does not seem to be a treatise upon the construction of the harp.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

Barnby, J.—"For others' sake." Hymn. For Temperance Meetings. (No. 537. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d. Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

Bendall, Wilfred—"Pas Seul," from "Song Dances." Arranged for Pianoforte Duet. 1s. 6d.

Darby, Ernest—(in B flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 3d.

Davies, H. Walford—"Three Jovial Huntsmen." Violin Part, 6d.

Elgar, Edward—"Intermezzo." From the "Variations on an Original Theme." (Op. 36.) Full Score, 3s.; 1st Violin, 6d.; 2nd Violin, 1s.; Viola, 3d.; Violoncello, 3d.; Basso, 3d.; Wind Parts, 1s. 6d —— Ditto. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo. 2s.

—— "Chanson de Nuit." (Op. 15.) For Viola and Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

Goodier, F. J.—Devotions to the Sacred Heart of Jesus. 3d.

Gould, Monk—"Hail! Music." Song. No. 1, in C. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

Ham, Albert—"I heard the voice of Jesus say." Bass Solo and Chorus (T.T.B.B.). 4d.

Hiles, Henry—"Blessed are the poor in spirit." Short Full Anthem. (No. 696. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

Hollingworth, W.—"Ready both to do and dare." National Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

Innes, C. Borrodaile—"Only a year together." Song. For Mezzo-Soprano. 2s.

Irons, H. S.—"Great God, Who madest all for man." Hymn for Temperance Meetings. (No. 539. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d. Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

Jones, C.—"Lord of all." Hymn for Thanksgiving. Words only, 8d. per 100.

Joseph, Cecil S.—(in F). Kyrie eleison. 2d.

Lemare, Edwin H.—"Chant sans paroles." (No. 22. The Recital Series of Original Compositions for the Organ. Edited by Edwin H. Lemare.) 2s.

Lennard, Lady Barrett—"Serenade." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

—— "Through devious paths." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

—— "A Toast." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

March, S. Herbert—"Rest, O Beloved." Hymn. 1d.

—— "Fight for your Queen and Country." Hymn. 1d.

Old Hundredth, The ("All people that on earth do dwell"). Two versions. (No. 538. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.

Parker, Horatio—"Far from the world, O Lord." Anthem. For Soprano or Tenor Solo and Chorus. (No. 672. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

—— "Thou shalt remember." Anthem. For Baritone Solo and Chorus. 6d.

Parry, Dr. Joseph—A Fantasia of Welsh Airs. For T.T.B.B. English and Welsh words. Staff Notation and Sol-fa combined. 6d.

School Marches—Book 2. 1s. For contents, see Advertisement, page 142.

School Music Review. No. 104. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "For the New Year." Arranged for S.S.A. Composed by Mendelssohn. "The Brook." Unison Song. By J. W. Chadwick. 1½d.

School Songs.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation

		A.	B.
No. 636.	"Excelsior." Unison Song Miss M. Lindsay	2d.	—
„ 640.	"Soft Star of the West." Unison Song Ciro Pinsuti	2d.	—

Selby, B. Luard—(in F). Kyrie eleison. (No. 535. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1½d.

—— "God rest our Queen." Funeral Hymn. The words written by the Very Rev. S. Reynolds Hole. (No. 543. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d. Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

Stearns, Robert—(in F). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 6d.

Sullivan, Arthur—Vesper Hymn (with Sevenfold Amen). Adapted from a subject in the "In Memoriam" Overture. (No. 541. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.

Surette, Thomas Whitney—"O how amiable." Anthem. For Soprano or Tenor Solo and Chorus. 3d.

Tinney, Charles E.—"The Wolf." A Glee. For Men's Voices. (A.T.T.B.) 4d.

Tonic Sol-fa Series. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—

No. 1166.	O happy eyes	Edward Elgar	1d.
„ 1170.	All people that on earth do dwell	John E. West	1½d.
„ 1171.	Coronach	Franz Schubert	1½d.
„ 1173.	O King and Desire of all nations ..	J. Stainer	1d.
„ 1174.	The day Thou gavest, Lord, is ended	Rev. H. H. Woodward	1d.
„ 1175.	God, that madest earth and heaven	Arthur C. Fisher	1d.
„ 1176.	Far from their home ..	Rev. H. H. Woodward	1d.
„ 1177.	Lead me, Lord	S. S. Wesley	1d.
„ 1178.	The great day of the Lord is near	George C. Martin	1d.
„ 1179.	O Saving Victim	J. Stainer	1d.
„ 1180.	Arise, O Jerusalem	Oliver King	1d.

Parry, Dr. Joseph—"There is sprung up a light" ("Fe gyfyd goleuni"). Chorus. For S.S.A.T.B. From "Emmanuel." English and Welsh words. 3d.

Vernham, J. E.—"First Steps in the Harmonization of Melodies." (No. 58. Novello's Music Primers and Educational Series.) 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.

Wilhelmj, August, and James Brown—A Modern School for the Violin. No. 16. (Sonatina in D. By Franz Schubert.) 2s.

Zimmermann, Agnes—"Lordly Gallants." Four-part Song. (No. 855. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 2d.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Victoria, our beloved Queen	81
The Sisters of Two Great Composers.—I. Nannerl Mozart (with Illustrations)	82
Spiritual Songs	85
Music in England in the Nineteenth Century	88
Hans von Bülow in his Letters	90
Occasional Notes	91
A Visit to Canterbury on New Century's Day (with Illustrations)	93
Professor Niecks on Melodrama	96
La Contredanse (with Illustrations)	97
Arthur Sullivan. New Anecdotes (with Facsimile)	99
Church and Organ Music	101
Dr. William Pole, F.R.S. (with Portrait)	103
Reviews	112
Music and Musicians of the Walloon Provinces of Belgium	115
Incorporated Society of Musicians' Conference, 1901	115
Leeds Musical Festival and its Conductorship	117
Worcester Philharmonic Society and English Music	117
Saturday Popular Concerts	117
London and Suburban Concerts	118
Music in Vienna	118
„ Belfast	119
„ Birmingham	119
„ Bristol	119
„ Cambridge	120
„ Dublin	120
„ Glasgow	120
„ Manchester	121
„ Wales	121
„ Yorkshire	121
Foreign Notes	122
Miscellaneous	123
Obituary	123
Correspondence	124
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	124
Answers to Correspondents	125
Music published during the last Month	126
Anthem.—"Blessed are the poor in spirit."—Henry Hiles	105
Anthem.—"Thou art gone to the grave."—C. Lee Williams. (Extra Supplement.)
Vesper Hymn.—Arthur Sullivan. (Extra Supplement.)
Hymn.—"God rest our Queen."—B. Luard Selby.—(Extra Supplement.)

FOUR Extra Supplements are given in the present number: (1) A Portrait of Mozart, at the age of seven; (2) an Anthem, 'Thou art gone to the grave,' by C. Lee Williams; (3) two Settings of a Vesper Hymn, one with seven-fold Amen (adapted from a subject in the In Memoriam Overture), by the late Sir Arthur Sullivan; and (4) a Hymn, 'God rest our Queen,' words by Dean Hole, music by B. Luard Selby.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

ST. ANNE'S, Soho.—WANTED, immediately, ALTO SOLOIST, able to sing Bach's "Passion" (St. John). Salary, £30. Precentor, 28, Soho Square, W.

TENOR WANTED, for St. Jude's, S. Kensington. £15. Apply (letter) to H. W. Hunt, 146, Finboro' Road, S.W.

STUDENT requires PARTIAL BOARD with gentlepeople. Unfurnished bedroom, and N.W. preferred. Moderate, permanent. Edith, Keith's Library, Fairfax Rd., S. Hampstead.

TWO CHORALES

(FROM "ST. PAUL")

AS SUNG AT THE FUNERAL OF HIS LATE ROYAL HIGHNESS

THE PRINCE CONSORT

IN

ST. GEORGE'S CHAPEL, WINDSOR

EDITED BY

GEORGE J. ELVEY.

Price Sixpence.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

FAR FROM MY HEAVENLY HOME

SACRED SONG

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

HENRY FRANCIS LYTE

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ALICIA A. NEEDHAM.

IN D MINOR AND C MINOR.
Price Two Shillings each.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

PUBLISHED ON THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH. Price 1½d. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW FOR FEBRUARY CONTAINS:—

OUR BELOVED QUEEN VICTORIA.
CLASS SINGING.
GOD REST OUR QUEEN. By DEAN HOLE.
VESPER HYMN. By ARTHUR SULLIVAN.
THEORY QUESTIONS.
QUEEN VICTORIA AND MENDELSSOHN.
INCORPORATED SOCIETY OF MUSICIANS.
THE CHORAL PIECES FOR COMING CHORAL COMPETITIONS.
SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING READER—BOTH NOTATIONS.
ANSWERS TO THEORY QUESTIONS.
QUESTIONABLE ANSWERS.
"PEPIN THE PIPPIN" AT DUBLIN AND DONCASTER.
THE CUMBERLAND MUSICAL FESTIVAL, WORKINGTON.
CORRESPONDENCE.
MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

THE FEBRUARY NUMBER CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC:—

"THE TREE'S DREAM" (Winter's Song). Unaccompanied Trio (S.S.A.). By FRANZ ABT.
"SLEEP ON, BELOVED." Hymn In Memoriam. By J. STAINER.
THE JUNIOR SCHOOL MUSIC COURSE.
Also, EXTRA SUPPLEMENT, containing "EVENING." Two-part Song. By HENRY SMART. (No. 32. Novello's School Songs. Price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

TO ORGANISTS.—South London (Tulse Hill or Dulwich preferred). Wanted, LESSONS on ORGAN. Good musical service, where could act as Deputy. Terms to C. D., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W. Could also assist in choir at times. Powerful Tenor; reads at sight.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS.—Lessons and Practice on three-manual Organ in return for Services in Choir. Bass voice. All Saints', S. Lambeth. W. A., 15, Thurlby Rd., W. Norwood.

TO PIANISTS and ORGANISTS.—Wrist Stiffening in Finger Passages cured by short course of special exercises. Lessons personally or by Correspondence. Address, Mr. William E. Woller (Pianist), Saltergill Lodge, Yarm, Yorkshire.

WANTED, TUNER, for Outside work. Must be able to regulate and tune Grands well. Factory or good warehouse experience. Young man preferred. Facilities for organ practice. A. D., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER WANTED. Permanent and comfortable berth for a capable man. Work chiefly outdoor. Give full qualifications, age, references, and photo. Walter Jones, Swadlincote, Burton-on-Trent.

CANTIONES SACRÆ

MUSICAL SETTINGS

OF

THE ROMAN LITURGY

EDITED BY

DOM SAMUEL GREGORY OULD,

MONK OF THE ORDER OF ST. BENEDICT.

4.	ADORAMUS TE, CHRISTE .. Mozart	2d.
22.	ADOREMUS (FOR BENEDICTION) F. E. Gladstone	2d.
2.	ADOREMUS (MOTET) .. C. W. Pearce	6d.
10.	ALMA REDEMPTORIS MATER W. Sewell	2d.
27.	AVE MARIS STELLA S. P. Waddington	6d.
11.	AVE REGINA CŒLORUM ..W. Sewell	2d.
26.	BENEDICTA ET VENERABILIS F. E. Gladstone	6d.
6.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (UNISON) S. Ould	3d.
9.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (UNISON) J. E. West	3d.
3.	DEUS MISEREATUR .. F. E. Gladstone	6d.
12.	DOMINE, SALVAM FAC .. A. E. Tozer	2d.
25.	MISERERE (GREGORIAN CHANT) Harmonised by V. Novello	3d.
17.	HÆC DIES .. .. .. F. E. Gladstone	3d.
7.	HODIE SANCTUS BENEDICTUS Peter Philips	4d.
20.	LITANY OF LORETTO .. F. E. Gladstone	6d.
23.	MAGNIFICAT IN A .. .. F. E. Gladstone	8d.
1.	MAGNIFICAT IN B FLAT .. .. E. Silas	6d.
28.	MAGNIFICAT in D .. .. .. E. Silas	1s.
15.	MISERERE IN F .. .. F. E. Gladstone	3d.
16.	MISERERE IN F SHARP MINOR F. E. Gladstone	6d.
19.	O SALUTARIS HOSTIA .. F. E. Gladstone	2d.
8.	REGINA CŒLI .. .. ..W. Sewell	2d.
14.	RESPONSES AT MASS AND OFFICE Harmonised by S. Ould	3d.
13.	SALVE, REGINA .. .. .. Schubert	2d.
5.	SALVE, REGINA .. .. ..W. Sewell	2d.
18.	SALVE, REGINA .. S. P. Waddington	4d.
24.	SALVE, REGINA .. ..R. L. de Pearsall	3d.
21.	TANTUM ERGO .. .. F. E. Gladstone	2d.
29.	THE COMPLINE HYMN.. .. S. Ould	3d.

(To be continued.)

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

FUNERAL AND OTHER SACRED MARCHES

FOR

ORCHESTRA AND PIANO.

	Full Orchestra.	Octuor.	Piano Solo.	Extra parts each.
	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
HANDEL—"Dead March in Saul"	2 0 ..	1 4 ..	0 6 ..	0 3
CHOPIN, F.—"Funeral March"	2 0 ..	1 4 ..	1 0 ..	0 3
RIVIÈRE, J.—"The Queen's Grand Solemn March" ..	.. 1 4 ..	1 0 ..	0 4 ..	0 2

London: HAWKES AND SON.

J. F. BARNETT'S CANTATAS.

	Vocal Score
THE ANCIENT MARINER	3s. 6d.
THE WISHING BELL (for Female Voices)	2s. 6d.
PARADISE AND THE PERI	4s. 0d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S

ALBUMS FOR PIANOFORTE AND STRINGED INSTRUMENTS

(Two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello).

The Pieces in most of these Albums are so arranged that if any Part, or Combination of Parts, in addition to the First Violin and Pianoforte is used they will sound complete.

No. 1.

SUITE OF FOUR PIECES

BY ARNOLD DOLMETSCH.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 2.

SUITE OF FIVE PIECES

BY HENRY PURCELL.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 3.

THREE DANCES

From the Music to "Henry VIII."

BY EDWARD GERMAN.

Price 5s. Separate String Parts, 1s. each.

No. 4.

GAVOTTE IN D

BY RAMEAU.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 5.

SIX PIECES FROM THE WATER MUSIC

BY G. F. HANDEL.

Price 3s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 6.

TWO BOURRÉES

BY G. F. HANDEL.

Price 2s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 7.

BENEDICTUS

BY A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price 3s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 8.

JUDEX FROM "MORS ET VITA"

BY CHARLES GOUNOD.

Price 3s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 9.

WEDDING MARCH

BY MENDELSSOHN.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 10.

WAR MARCH ("ATHALIE")

BY MENDELSSOHN.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 11.

CORNELIUS MARCH

BY MENDELSSOHN.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 12.

FUNERAL MARCH

BY MENDELSSOHN.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 13.

GAVOTTE ANCIENNE

BY GEORGE ELVEY.

Price 2s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

Nos. 14—17.

FOUR ENGLISH DANCES

BY F. H. COWEN.

Price 2s. 6d. each. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

Nos. 18—21.

FOUR CHARACTERISTIC WALTZES

BY S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

Price 2s. each. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 22.

ANDANTINO

From the Symphony "The Consecration of Sound."

BY L. SPOHR.

Price 3s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 697.—Vol. 42. MARCH 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 14, AT 8,

HANDEL'S "ISRAEL IN EGYPT."

Artists:

Madame SOBRINO.
Miss MAGGIE PURVIS.
Miss ADA CROSSLEY.
Mr. WILLIAM GREEN.
Mr. ANDREW BLACK.
Mr. WATKIN MILLS.

Organist: Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; (Unreserved), 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., F.R.A.M.

Lectures by Walter Macfarren, Esq., F.R.A.M., on "Beethoven's Thirty-two Solo Sonatas," every Wednesday until end of March.

A performance of Mr. Edward German's Operetta "The Rival Poets" will be given at St. George's Hall, on March 7, at 8 p.m., under the direction of Mr. Randegger.

A performance of Mr. W. S. Gilbert's comedy "Engaged" will be given by the Dramatic Class at St. George's Hall, on March 26, at 8, under the direction of Mr. William Farren.

Fortnightly Concerts, Saturdays, March 9 and 23, at 8.

Orchestral Concert, at Queen's Hall, Thursday, March 28, at 3.

Goring Thomas Scholarship for Lyrical Composition and Dove Scholarship for Violin Playing, last day for entry, April 15.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Midsummer F.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 15, 1901. The solo-playing tests are: Prelude and Fugue in C, Bach (No. 1, Vol. 4, Peters' Edition) (Novello and Co., Book 7, No. 4, Augener and Co., Book 3, No. 13); Sonata (No. 6) in E flat minor, Op. 119, Rheinberger (F. Kistner, Leipzig) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.); Orgel-Sonate in D minor, J. G. Töpfer (Peters) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.).

The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 22.

The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.

Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

ST. ANNE'S, Soho.—BACH'S "PASSION" (St. John), FRIDAYS in LENT, 8 p.m. (Good Friday, 4 p.m.). Full Orchestra and Organ. Admission, body of Church, ticket gratis. Send stamped envelope to Rector, 28, Soho Square, W. The N. and S. galleries without ticket. Surplus, after expenses, to Parish Charities.

BLACKPOOL MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

May 15, 16, 17, 18, 1901.

Syllabus of Competitions now ready.

May be had from the Hon. Sec., Williams Deacon Bank, Ltd., Blackpool. Post-free, 4d.

MR. WILLIAM NICHOLL'S ANNUAL SMOKING CONCERT, ST. JAMES'S HALL, FRIDAY EVENING, March 22, at 8 p.m. Tickets, 7s. 6d., 3s., 1s., usual Agents; W. Nicholl, 46, Canfield Gardens, N.W.; and W. Adlington, 224, Regent Street.

THE Members of the Abbey Glee Club offer a PRIZE of TEN GUINEAS for an original Part-Song, Glee, or Madrigal, for four voices. Compositions must be sent under seal, with the name and address of the Composer, to the Secretary, Mr. Fred. W. Farmer, 323, Southampton Street, Camberwell, S.E., by the 30th June next, after which date no composition will be received.

MR. ROBERT

NEWMAN'S CONCERTS,

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA

OF 110 PERFORMERS.

PRINCIPAL VIOLIN .. .. .. MR. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
ORGANIST AND ACCOMPANIST .. MR. PERCY PITT.

CONDUCTOR:

MR. HENRY J. WOOD.

SEVENTH CONCERT.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2, AT 3.

Prelude, Act III., "Lohengrin"	Wagner.
New Overture—"The Butterfly's Ball"	F. H. Cowen.
(First performance.)
Symphony in C (The "Jupiter")	Mozart.
Concertstück for Pianoforte and Orchestra	Weber.
Verwandlungs Musik ("Parsifal")	Wagner.

VOCALIST: Madame AMY SHERWIN.
SOLO PIANOFORTE: Signor BUSONI.

EIGHTH CONCERT.

SATURDAY, MARCH 16, AT 3.

Overture—"Iphigenia in Aulis"	Gluck.
Symphony, No. 9, in D minor (The "Choral")	Beethoven.
Violin Concerto in G minor (No. 1)	Max Bruch.
Serenade in E flat (Op. 11) for Wind Instruments ..	Richard Strauss.
March and Chorus—"Hail, bright abode" ("Tannhäuser")	Wagner.

VOCALISTS: Madame LILLIAN BLAUVELT. Madame KIRKBY LUNN. Mr. LLOYD CHANDOS. Mr. DANIEL PRICE.

SOLO VIOLIN: Madame VON STOSCH.

LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

1901.

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF MR. ROBERT NEWMAN.

April 29, May 1 and 3, at 8.30.
April 30, May 2 and 4, at 3.

Full particulars will be duly announced.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—Estab. by the Corporation of London, 1880.—Principal: William H. Cummings, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A. Lessons daily, 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Every branch of Vocal and Instrumental Music. Students trained for Opera and Drama in the new Theatre. Prospectus on application. By order of the Committee, T. LEWIS SAYER, Acting Secretary. Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.

For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. .. Granville Bantock.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 17—December 22); Winter Term (January 21—March 30); Summer Term (April 1—June 22).

Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from
ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD

OF THE

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC AND ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS.

For particulars see SYLLABUS A.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1901.

Entries for the June and July examinations must be received at the Central Office on or before May 10, 1901, or, with extra fee, on or before May 25, 1901.

For particulars see SYLLABUS B.

Copies of Syllabus A and B will be sent Post-free on application to the Secretary.

Theory papers set in Local Centre and School Examinations in 1896, 1897, 1898, and 1899 can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year, Post-free.

The Board gives annually Six Exhibitions tenable for two years.
JAMES MUIR, Secretary.

32, Maddox Street, London, W.
Telegraphic address: "Associa, London."

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.

Metropolitan Examination in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., and F.V.C.M., commencing April, 1901.

Local Theoretical Examinations, April, 1901.

Practical Examinations are now being held at the various centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.
GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,

Limited.

Principal: Edwin M. Lott, Mus. Doc.
Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.
Central Office: 113, Great Portland Street, W.

Local Theoretical Examination, May 21, 1901.

Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.

Winner of the Ashdown Prize, 1900: Albina S. Genders, of Launceston, Tasmania.

W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary.

MR. WILLIAM NICHOLL, F.R.A.M., will give THREE LECTURES (vocally illustrated) on the SINGING and SPEAKING VOICE, at the Salle Erard, on Mondays, February 25 and March 4 and 11, at 3 p.m. Tickets for the three Lectures, 7s. 6d.; single tickets, 3s. each. Usual Agents; Adlington, 224, Regent Street, and W. Nicholl, 46, Canfield Gardens, N.W.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.
President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in June and July, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.

Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.

The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.

Free register for Organists requiring appointments.

For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

INCORPORATED,
GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

Patron: His Grace the Duke of Leeds.

Dr. F. J. Karn, Mus. Bac., Cantab., Principal.
G. Augustus Holmes, Esq., Director of Examinations.

LOCAL AND HIGHER EXAMINATIONS, 1901.

EXAMINATIONS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SINGING, THEORY, and all branches of Music, will be held in London and at 350 Provincial Centres in April, when Certificates will be granted to all successful candidates without restriction to age. Latest date for receiving Entries, March 15.

Syllabus for the current year, giving full particulars of both Local and Higher Examinations, Staff of Examiners, and regulations regarding Local and County medals and prizes, and Gold and Silver medals in Diploma sections, may be had on application.

Application for the Formation of New Centres should be made to the Secretary, who will furnish all necessary information.

The Higher Examinations for Diplomas of Associate (A.L.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus. L.C.M.), Licentiate (L.L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L.Mus. L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.) take place in July and December.

In the Educational Department, students are received and thoroughly trained under the best Professors at Moderate Fees.
T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

VACATION COURSE FOR TEACHERS.

This COURSE has been designed for the purpose of providing on a specially organised basis a system of Teaching dealing with the higher development and culture of Music in certain branches of Theoretical knowledge or Composition, or playing on certain Instruments.

The EASTER COURSE will commence on April 8, and the names of those desirous of taking the same should be entered as early as possible.

Prospectus, containing full particulars and table of arrangements, is now ready, and may be had on application to the Secretary.

THE NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

Patron: Her Grace the Duchess of Marlborough. [Ltd.
Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L.

EXAMS. (local, all grades) and for Diplomas (A.N.C.M., L.N.C.M., F.N.C.M.)

MEDALS and Certificates awarded to Choirmasters and Choirs, also for Composers' Works. Superior Tuition.

W. J. MOSS, 192, Sutherland Avenue, W.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC, Ltd.

Established 1895. Incorporated 1900.
Central Office, 22, Berners Street, London, W.

Warden: Professor ALEXANDER PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.

Thorough Musical Education, all subjects. 30 Professors.

Examiners: Signor Tito Mattei, Herr Jacques Haakman, Herr Steudner-Welsing, and Professor Alexander Phipps, Mus. Bac.

Next Local Examinations (all Towns) in April. Medals and Prizes. Diplomas of Associate-Licentiate and Fellow granted.

Apply, Secretary.

Just Published.

COMMUNION SERVICE

("ASSUMPTA EST MARIA")

COMPOSED BY

G. PIERLUIGI DA PALESTRINA.

EDITED AND ADAPTED TO ENGLISH WORDS BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
R.A.M. Cert. and Prize-winner). Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
German Songs a specialty. Lessons given.
25, Upper Richmond Road, East Putney, S.W.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano)
And Teacher of Singing.
444, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne; or, care of Miss A. Joseph, 7A, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MISS AMY HARDING (Soprano)
(Of Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, &c., Concerts).
Recommended by Sir George Grove, W. H. Cummings, Esq., &c.
For critiques, photo, &c., address, 14, Palace Road, Norwood, S.E.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MISS EMMA KNOWLES (Contralto)
Oratorio, Ballads, At Homes, &c. 8, Devonshire St., Accrington, Lanc.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor).
"Mr. Beaumont is a tenor of decided promise."—Daily Telegraph.
"Mr. Beaumont is a most artistic singer."—Morning Leader.
"Mr. Beaumont is a tenor of great promise."—Musical Courier.
"Mr. Beaumont is the possessor of a fine voice."—Musical News.
"Mr. Wright Beaumont's splendid tenor voice was heard to the best possible advantage in the choicest of ballads."—The Era.
Address, 1, Dorothy Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. J. G. BLANCHARD (Tenor)
(Principal Tenor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 41, Savernake Road, N.W.

MR. WALTER DRIVER
(Pupil of William Shakespeare, Esq., London).
Principal Tenor, King's College Chapel, Cambridge.
For Concerts, &c.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. H. WADSWORTH (Tenor)
(Two years at Milan. Great success.)
English, Italian, French. Equal quality of voice—not throaty.
Perfect enunciation. Satisfaction given or no fee accepted.
St. Ives, Huntingdon.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. ENRICO NOVO (Bass-Baritone)
"Daisy Bank," Penhale Road, Portsmouth.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

BEATRICE E. KENT (Lyric Authoress)
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto). Engagements at Finsbury, Whitechapel, Highbury, New Cross, Highgate, City, Stockwell, Nottingham, Dudley, Brighton, Mile End, Lewisham, Blackheath. Address, 14, Gladsmuir Rd., Whitehall Pk., N.

MR. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE begs to announce that he has RESIGNED his APPOINTMENT as Lay Vicar of Westminster Abbey and is now at liberty to accept Sunday Engagements. In future all communications should be addressed direct to The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

MR. WILLIAM WILD (Tenor), of the Sir Charles and Lady Hallé South African Concert tour, 1895 (pupil of Andrew Black, Esq.). Specially recommended by the late Sir Charles Hallé. Numerous re-engagements. Success everywhere. Address, Grosvenor Square, Stalybridge.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass). Oratorios, Concerts. Can provide Quartet. Lessons given. 45, Pentonville Road, London, N.

MR. P. J. COOKE (Lyric Author), Author of "Love, can you forget me?" and "The White Rose," sung by Madame Belle Cole at Queen's Hall, March 4, 1901. 506, Birkbeck Bank Chambers, W.C.

MISS NINA CARLTON
(SOPRANO).
Concerts, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
Address, 10, Chalk Farm Road, N.W.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MISS MAGGIE JAQUES
(SOPRANO).
March Engagements:—March 1, Alvaston, "May Queen"; 5, Todmorden, Ballads; 6, Riddings, "Elijah"; 7, Tunstall, "Judas," 12, Peterboro', "Alexander's Feast"; 13, Cleckheaton, "St. Paul"; 14, Derby, Ballads; 18, Exeter, Ballads; 19, Abergavenny, "Elijah"; 21, BIRMINGHAM FESTIVAL CHORAL SOCIETY, Schumann's "Paradise and Peri"; 22, Moseley, "Creation"; 26, Stapleford, "Creation"; 28, Saltcoats, "Messiah"; 29, ABERDEEN CHORAL UNION, "St. Paul"; 30, Halifax, "Sun Worshippers."
Terms, &c., address, 14, SPRING GARDENS, BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO).
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO)
AND
MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE)
Beg to announce their Change of Address to—56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MISS KATHERINE NASH, G.S.M.
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq.
Address, 9, Ruskin Road, Tottenham, N.

MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
140 Marylebone Road, N.W.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MR. OTTO DENE
(TENOR),
Ullswater Lodge, West Norwood, S.E.

MR. W. TREVOR EVANS
(TENOR).
Baroness Patti-Cederstrom (Madame Adelina Patti) states:—"I am delighted with his voice, which I consider charming."
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, London, N.W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900).
Oratorio, Concerts, &c., 64, Clovelly Road, Ealing, W.

MR. BRIGHT JONES
(PRINCIPAL TENOR, Moody-Manners Opera Company).
Terms, apply, Glenhurst, Bath; or, C. W. Sinkins, 63, Berners St., W.

MR.
JAMES LEYLAND
(TENOR).
Engaged this month:—5, "Golden Legend"; 7, "Spectre's Bride"; 13, "Judas"; 19, "Redemption"; 20, Graun's "Passion"; 24, Graun's "Passion"; 26, "Hiawatha" and "On Shore and Sea"; 27, "Bride of Dunkerron"; 29, Bach's "Passion" (St. Matthew).
Mr. Leyland can receive a few more pupils for Voice-Culture.
Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. HENRY PETTITT
(TENOR)
(Pupil of Davidson Palmer, Esq.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Glenavon, Potters Road, New Barnet.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. DAN BILLINGTON
THE CELEBRATED YORKSHIRE BARITONE (Vide Press)
(Soloist of the Leeds Festivals, Sir Chas. Hallé's and the Principal Provincial Concerts).
34, Hanover Square, Leeds.

MR. JOHN BROWNING
(BARITONE),
SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1898,
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal Bass, Leeds Parish Church, &c.
Extensive Répertoire, about 100 works.
Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(Professional Diploma, Incorporated Society of Musicians)
(BARITONE).
Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts.
For terms and Press notices, address, 24, Station Road, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. DENNIS DREW
(BARITONE).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes.
Ormefield, Church End, Finchley.

MR. WILLIAM DYOTT
(BARITONE). 1, Myrtle Crescent, Acton, W.

MR. DAVID HUGHES
(BARITONE).
"Messiah."—Cardiff Festival.—"Mr. David Hughes's delivery of 'Thus saith the Lord' was one of the finest examples of Handelian declamation within my experience. Not only every note, but, what is more important, every word told the story belonging to it. So in other parts of the work this singer had to do."—Daily Telegraph (Mr. Joseph Bennett).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES
(BARITONE),
Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, and Chester Musical Festivals,
Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts,
Crystal Palace and Principal Provincial Concerts.

Terms for Oratorio and other Concerts on application to—
24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

ALEXANDER MUSGROVE
(BARITONE), 70, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. CHARLES TREE
ELIJAH.—Coventry Choral Union, Jan. 10, 1901.
"Possessed of a powerful, rich, and vibrant voice of great compass, beauty of phrasing, and wonderful dramatic power, he took his audience by storm. The writer has never heard the great air, 'It is enough,' sung with such dramatic force; the despair and anguish of the words were brought out in every note."—Coventry Herald.
"A vocalist of high rank—a fine baritone voice and great dramatic power. His singing was undoubtedly the feature of the evening. Sang with rare dramatic power and expression."—Coventry Standard.
MESSIAH.—Edinburgh Choral Union, Jan. 1, 1901.
"A voice of excellent quality and a thorough artiste. His articulation is clear, not a word is missed, and he put great dramatic force and expressiveness into his numbers."—Scotsman.
SLEEPING BEAUTY.—W. Bromwich Choral Society, Feb. 6, 1901.
"An exceptionally fine baritone. Has in a remarkable degree the power of infusing intense dramatic feeling. His numbers were magnificently interpreted."—Free Press.
Address, 23, Clifton Road, Maida Vale, London, W.

MR. & MRS.
WALLIS A. WALLIS, I.S.M.
(Baritone and Soprano, Elocutionists).
Quartet, Concerts, Resident and other Pupils. Sharon, Acton, W.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN
(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. HERBERT WALENN
(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)
(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.

President, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
Principal, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.
Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.
A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.
MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.
MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Mr. Tann's Solo Boys have gained several Cathedral and Choral Scholarships. Recent engagements: St. Paul's Cathedral (Festival of London Church Choir Association), Ayr, N.B. (Re-opening Services), Camden Town ("St. Paul," "Creation"), Carlisle (Organ Recital), Southampton (Ballad Concert), Tottenham ("God, Thou art great," "Cradle of Christ"), Watlington (Christmas Services), &c.
A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

QUARTET.
MR.
MONTAGUE BORWELL'S
ORATORIO QUARTET are now booking Engagements:—
Miss Winifred Marwood, Sop. | Miss Gertrude Macaulay, Con.
Mr. Henry Turnpenney, Tenor. | Mr. Montague Borwell, Bar.
For terms and vacant dates, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N., or, usual Agents.

"THE LIEDERSINGERS" MALE VOICE QUARTET.
Mr. Walter Le Neave, Alto. | Mr. Frank Buckland, Baritone.
Mr. Percy Turner, Tenor. | Mr. Ernest Sturman, Bass.
For particulars, apply to 4, Alexandra Road, South Hampstead.

THE EUTERPEAN VOCAL QUARTET.
Misses ANNIE SWINFEN, ANNIE WILSON,
Messrs. ALBERT CORNISH, MUSGROVE TUFNAIL.
Musgrove Tufnail, 24, Grove Road, Brixton, S.W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.
SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. James Bates, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities; Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DEGREES IN MUSIC

PRELIMINARY ARTS,

RESPONSIONS, MATRICULATION, &c.,

MUS. BAC., MUS. DOC.

[Oxford, Durham, Dublin, London],

A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O.,

A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., A.Mus. and L.Mus., T.C.L.

PREPARATION BY CORRESPONDENCE

on a thoroughly individual system, ensuring to each Student the closest care and attention. Weak subjects receive special help.

Tutors { MUSIC.—Mus. Doc. of Oxford and Durham, F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M. ARTS.—Graduates of London, Oxford, Cambridge, and Royal Universities.

SMALL CLASSES for Oxford Arts.
SMALL CLASSES for Harmony and Counterpoint, under Mus. Doc. of Oxon and Durham.

For terms, successes, &c., address—
MR. J. CHARLESTON, B.A. (Honours, Oxon. and London), The Burlington Classes, 27, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: F.R.C.O. (paper work), 1901; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1900, and previous years; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music and Pianoforte Teaching), 1897, 1898, and 1899; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.O., 1900; CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that EIGHTEEN of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1900. Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1900, FIFTY-SIX passes; L.R.A.M., 1897-1900, NINETEEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

MR. ARTHUR POLLITT, Mus.B., Durh., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares for all Exams. by Correspondence. Recent successes at Durham University, R.C.O., R.A.M., and T.C.L. 159, Upper Parliament Street, Liverpool.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c.—MR. JOSEPH SPAWFORTH, A.R.A.M. (formerly pupil of Professor Ebenezer Prout, Mr. Frederick Corder, and Mr. Davenport, at the Royal Academy of Music), gives LESSONS, Privately or by Post. Pupils prepared for the theoretical portions of all examinations. Apply, by letter, for terms, &c., to 67, Parliament Hill, N.W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES and PREPARES CANDIDATES for all MUSICAL EXAMS. Particulars, giving revised terms, sent post-free. Address, 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppell St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

TRAINING of TENORS.—Mr. E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N. The principles on which Mr. Davidson Palmer's Method is based are fully explained in his book, "THE RIGHTLY-PRODUCED VOICE," which contains information of the utmost importance to tenors. Price, bound in cloth, 2s. 6d., Post-free, from the Author.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for RÉPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

CHOIR BOYS at the American Church of the Holy Trinity, Paris, receive FREE EDUCATION and BOARD, with the advantage of acquiring a practical knowledge of the French language. Requirements: Good voice (essential) and experience in Choir singing. For particulars and appointment write, Mr. Augustus Toop, 18, Berners Street, W.

CHOIR BOYS at St. Peter's Church, Vere St., W., receive FREE EDUCATION at Polytechnic School, Regent Street, after short term of probation. School work not interfered with. Good voice and musical instinct essential. Apply at Church (Vestry door), any Saturday, at 11 a.m. Augustus Toop, Director of the Music.

OXFORD. — NEW COLLEGE CHORISTERSHIPS.—The TRIAL of VOICES to fill Vacancies in the Choir School will be held on TUESDAY, MARCH 19. Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between nine and twelve years of age. For particulars apply to the Precentor. Names must be sent in by MARCH 14.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—CHORISTERSHIPS.—The TRIAL of VOICES to fill Vacancies in the Choir School will be held on FRIDAY, MARCH 8.
Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between nine and twelve years of age.
For particulars, apply to the Dean.
Names to be sent in by MARCH 5.

CONTRALTO for Choir WANTED (S.E. District). Weekly practice. Apply, by letter, stating terms, to H. Q., Novello & Co., Ltd., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

ALTO SOLOIST REQUIRED, at West-End Church. Write, stating experience and salary required, E. C. Ashford, 13, Copthall Avenue, E.C.

ALTO and TENOR WANTED, for St. Peter's Church, Vere St., W. Two Services Sundays and Friday rehearsal. Salary, £20. Good voice and experience essential. Write, stating age and past experience, to Mr. Augustus Toop, 18, Berners St.

WANTED, SOLO TENOR, for the Church of the Ascension, Balham Hill, S.W. (£10.) Apply, by letter, to Adolphus Antoine, 43, Alderbrook Road. Balham, S.W.

WANTED, a TENOR, for St. Michael's, Chester Square, S.W. Stipend, £20. Two Sunday services and full rehearsal weekly. Apply to E. G. Mercer, 23, Hugh Street, Eccleston Square, S.W.

TENOR WANTED, St. Alban's, Teddington. Must be good reader and able to take solos. Salary, £25. Apply, W. Ratcliffe, Northwick Terrace, Hampton Wick.

A TENOR (Pupil of eminent Master) will give his SERVICES for a short time for expenses only. Oratorio or Ballad Concerts. M. J. S., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

THE POST of ORGANIST at CLARE COLLEGE, Cambridge, will be VACANT in October, 1901. Stipend, £65 per annum. The successful candidate must become a member of the College and read for a degree. His services will be required during Term time only. The appointment is for three years, provided the duties are satisfactorily discharged. Applications, with testimonials, to be sent to the Dean (from whom further particulars can be obtained), not later than April 20.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, May, St. Clement's, Ilford. 3-manual Hope-Jones Organ. £50. Apply, Rev. C. H. Scott, 112, Thorold Road, Ilford, E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, at Easter, for Country Church. Good organ. Salary, £40 to £50 to competent musician. Apply, by letter, to J. R., 52, Ashley Gardens, London, S.W.

ASSISTANT-ORGANIST (young) REQUIRED, in return for practice on pneumatic three-manual organ. Must help in choir. Exceptional opportunities for studying practical choir-training. Cathedral services. Address, West-End, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, ASSISTANT-ORGANIST for St. Mary's, Beddington. Full choral service. Three-manual organ by Lewis. Stipend, £25 per annum. Apply, stating age and experience, to G. F. Bruce, 14, Lennard Road, Croydon.

ORGANIST, experienced and efficient, desires POST, in or within 25 miles of London. Surrey or Kent preferred. Salary, £35 to £50. Highest references as to character and ability. Gill, 20, Cavendish Road, Harringay, N.

A LADY (trained Royal College of Music) desires PIANO PUPILS. Harmony by correspondence, or classes. K., Ashfield, 23, Mortlake Road, Kew.

MADAME EUGENIA MORGAN can receive a few PAYING GUESTS. Highly recommended by Lady Superintendent, Guildhall School of Music. Special arrangements for students. 69, Elgin Avenue, Maida Hill, W.

WANTED, experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER. West of England (Seaside). Age, experience, salary, refs., photo to B. A. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

PIANO TUNER, of ability and good character, WANTED. Please send full particulars to James Smith and Son, 76, Lord Street, Liverpool.

MANAGER'S Berth REQUIRED by thoroughly experienced manager. Smart salesman, excellent musician, thoroughly steady and reliable, highest references. Apply, R. S., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, for Music Saloon on South Coast, YOUNG LADY, with a thorough knowledge of the Music Trade. References, particulars of experience, height, and photo, to Presto, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY, thoroughly capable, desires RE-ENGAGEMENT in Music Business. Good sight-reader. Well up in Catalogues and small goods. Excellent references. A. B., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANISTS, CHOIRMASTERS, and every MUSICIAN should send for SPECIMENS (free) of DINHAM, BLYTH and CO.'S MUSIC AUTO-LITHO PRINTING. Anthems, Kyries, Services, Songs, &c., printed (black ink) from twenty-four and upwards, at trifling cost. 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827). Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

CHURCH or CHAPEL ORGANS, new and second-hand, with 3 manuals, 24 stops, pneumatic pedals; would be constructed to suit building. Three Organs, 2 manuals, 12 stops; pedals, full compass, straight and concave. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

VALUABLE THREE-MANUAL ORGAN. Handsome mahogany case. The property of gentleman, deceased. W. E. Richardson & Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE. Two very fine TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL ORGANS, each 15 stops (making room for larger instruments). £170 and £150. Exceptional value. One-Manual and Pedal, full compass, Bourdon, general swell, decorated front, 10 stops. £65. Also One-Manual and Pedal Boudoir Organ. 20 guineas. Inspection invited. Eustace Ingram, Organ Builder, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

CHURCH ORGANS FOR SALE.

1.—The ORGAN now standing in Old Swinford Parish Church, Stourbridge Junction. 2 Manuals, 21 stops, by Nicholson.

2.—"WALKER" ORGAN, now standing in Hartlip Church, Kent. 1 Manual, 7 stops.

(Both these Organs are being replaced by larger Instruments now in course of construction.)

Full particulars of these and some larger Second-hand Organs, on application to

NORMAN AND BEARD, Ltd.,
Norwich; and 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

HOPE-JONES ORGANS

NORMAN & BEARD, Ltd.,

Beg to announce that Mr. Robt. Hope-Jones left their employ on November 30 last, since which date he has been in treaty with some capitalists with a view to their acquiring the business of the Electric Organ Co., which Norman & Beard purchased in July, 1899, when the Electric Organ Co., Ltd., went into liquidation.

The capitalists referred to having now intimated their decision to proceed no further with the negotiations, Norman & Beard, Ltd. (as owners of the Goodwill, Stock, Plant, &c., and of the Hope-Jones Patents, which they purchased with the business of the Electric Organ Co., Ltd., as carried on by Mr. Hope-Jones in 1899), have continued the engagement of the leading Electricians and other members of the staff of that Company, who have been in their employ since 1899, and Norman & Beard are prepared to accept orders for Electric Organs as hitherto.

The system Norman and Beard propose to adopt will be a simplified form of Mr. Hope-Jones' inventions, which they consider to be more in accordance with public requirements, and which can be produced at a modified cost, and they are prepared to submit specifications and estimates for Organs of this type, and this without in any way interfering with the manufacture of their own

TUBULAR-PNEUMATIC & TRACKER ORGANS.

The Tuning and general upkeep of Electric Organs will be carried on by Norman & Beard as hitherto, for which purpose they have re-engaged the various district Tuners.

All communications should be addressed to—

NORMAN & BEARD, Ltd.,
NORWICH.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

EXCEPTIONAL OFFER.—TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL CHAMBER ORGAN (spotted metal pipes). 7 stops. £25. J., 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

ORGANISTS, &c.

RUMMENS'

Organ Pedal Attachment to Pianofortes

FOR HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.

STRAIGHT AND CONCAVE, RADIATING AND CONCAVE
Or any other form of Pedal Board.

UNRIVALLED FOR TOUCH, APPEARANCE, DURABILITY, AND PRICE.

Sir John Stainer: "I can confidently recommend it . . . nothing more valuable."
Sir Fred. Bridge: "I have tested it . . . successful . . . will give satisfaction."
Sir Geo. Martin: "I think very highly of it . . . clever."
Dr. Harding: "I am delighted with it . . . in every way a success . . . the best."
Similar Testimonials from the most distinguished Organists and Musicians.

Particulars free. Write or call.
1, WYNNE ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS. — Chappell Iron Frame Trichord Pianoforte, fitted with Rummels' Organ Pedal Attachment, to be sold cheap. W. K., 86, Harvist Rd., West Kilburn.

VIOLONCELLO, Thompson, 1772. Wooden case. Excellent condition throughout; splendid tone. Offers. Ashby, Shalford, Guildford.

PIANOFORTE BUSINESS for SALE. 25 miles from London. Fine shop, low rent. Splendid opening for energetic young man, good tuner and teacher. £150 required. Stock optional, or valuation. Orpheus, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

REMOVAL.—MUSICAL OPINION and MUSIC TRADE REVIEW Office is now REMOVED (from Holborn Bars) to 35, Shoe Lane, Holborn, E.C.

TO COMPOSERS.

MARRIOTT AND WILLIAMS,
MUSIC PUBLISHERS,
92, Great Portland Street, London, W.,
Undertake the Revising, Engraving, and Publishing of Authors' Musical Works, in the very Best Style and at the lowest charges. The Finest Paper used and the Best Workmanship in the trade. Estimates free on receipt of MSS. Composers' works included in list without extra charge.
Private Rooms for Practice and Teaching.
Lessons by competent Professors given in every branch of Music, Vocal and Instrumental.

TO CHORAL and ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.—Several CHORAL WORKS, PART-SONGS, and ORCHESTRAL WORKS for SALE. Applications for lists to Dr. Bunnett, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

Now ready. Price 1s. Post-free.
THE BOY'S VOICE AT THE BREAKING PERIOD. By E. Davidson Palmer, Mus. Bac., Oxon. May be obtained from the Author, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N.; or, from Joseph Williams, 32, Great Portland Street, W.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.
THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.
TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By Alfred J. Dye. Price 4d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Second Thousand.
BENEDICITE in A. By Frank Gatward. Sung and appreciated by choirs and congregations in Churches in England, the Colonies, and U.S.A. Price 2d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited; and Novello, Ewer and Co., New York.

Fourth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By Arthur Carnall, Mus.B., Cantab. 4d. Sample copies, Penge, S.E.

Easy and effective.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat. Just published. Novello and Co., Ltd. Price 3d. Specimen free to Organists, &c. Ernest Darby, Wolverhampton.

Sixth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By William S. Vinning, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

KYRIE ELEISON in D flat. By Rev. T. Normandale, B.A. Price 1d. Third Edition.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES. — "Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

THE LORD BLESS THEE. Anthem for S.A.T.B. Composed by C. B. Ingham. Price 2d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

EIGHT NEW TUNES
FOR
SUNDAY SCHOOL FESTIVALS
INCLUDING ONE FOR THE NEW CENTURY.
Music, 7s. per 100; Words, 2s. per 100.
Special Title-page for Quantities.
Write immediately for sample to Sunday School Union, 1, Piccadilly, Manchester.

NEW EASTER ANTHEM.
O LORD OF LIFE!
BY
H. ERNEST NICHOL, Mus. Bac., Oxon.
Fresh words. Easy and effective.
Price, O.N., 4d.; Sol-fa, 2d.
Specimen copy sent gratis and Post-free to any Choirmaster, on application to the Composer,
H. E. Nichol, 4A, Baker Street, Hull.

As used at York Minster and other Churches.
For Lent and the Three Hours' Service on Good Friday.
THE SEVEN LAST WORDS
A MEDITATION
WITH CHORALES SUITABLE FOR CONGREGATIONAL USE OR FOR CHOIR ALONE.
Composed by ARTHUR SOMERVELL.
The Times says:—"A beautiful composition, assured of a wide and lasting acceptance in churches where simple, reverent music is appreciated. . . . The words of the reflective choruses, in chorale-like style, are admirably appropriate and poetical. Though deeply expressive, the music holds almost a subordinate position to the words, and the effect of the whole will not be the less on that account."
Price One Shilling. Words only, 5s. per 100.
London Novello and Company, Limited.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

(Instituted 1872.

President:
The Right Hon. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.

Director of Examinations:
JAMES HIGGS, Mus.D.

March 19 (Tuesday), Students' Orchestral Concert at Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W., at eight.

May 22 (Wednesday) is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the next MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE (THEORETICAL) EXAMINATION, held on June 22.

June 1 (Saturday) is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the QUEEN VICTORIA COMPOSITION SCHOLARSHIP; as well as for Scholarships for the Pianoforte, Violin, and Orchestral Instruments. Also for several Exhibitions.

June 22 (Saturday) is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for the Licentiate and Associate Diplomas, and the Higher Certificates of the College in Practical and Theoretical Musical subjects, which commence on July 22.

Particulars of the Teaching Department, Scholarships, and Examinations to be had on application.

By order,

SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.
Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Director: Sir C. Hubert H. Parry, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: Charles Morley, Esq., M.P.

Telegraphic address—"Initiative, London."

The next Term will commence on May 6. Entrance Examination, May 3.

The Examination for ASSOCIATESHIP (A.R.C.M.) will take place in April next. Last day for receiving forms of application, March 9.

A JUNIOR DEPARTMENT is now open for Pupils up to 16 years of age at Reduced Fees.

Syllabus and official entry forms may be obtained from—
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

Just Published.

SONATA IN D MINOR

FOR THE

ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

J. G. TÖPFER

EDITED BY

JOHN E. WEST.

(No. 293. Novello's Original Compositions for the Organ.)

Price Two Shillings.

Note.—This Sonata has been chosen as a Test Piece for the R.C.O. Examination taking place in July next.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

BROADWOODS' (Estd. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (Highest possible Award)

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W.
Established 1865.
Principal: T. H. Yorke Trotter, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. Yorke Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

THE SEVCIK VIOLIN METHOD

PROVED OF ENORMOUS ADVANTAGE IN THE TRAINING OF

KUBELIK.

Op. 1. SCHOOL OF VIOLIN TECHNIC.
Part I., 5s.; II., 6s.; III., 4s.; IV., 5s.; complete, bound, 12s.

Op. 2. SCHOOL OF BOWING TECHNIC.
4,000 SYSTEMATIC PROGRESSIVE EXERCISES.
Parts I., II., V., 2s. each; III., IV., VI., 1s. 6d. each.
Op. 3. 40 VARIATIONS, 2s.; complete, bound, 8s.
Said by an eminent French Professor to be the only complete set of Graduated Bowing Exercises ever written.

Op. 7, 8, 9.
PREPARATORY SCHOOL OF TECHNIC.
Op. 7. Part I., 3s. 6d.; II., 3s. 6d. Trill Studies and the cultivation of touch. Op. 8. Position Changing and Preparatory Scale Studies, 3s. Op. 9. Preparatory Studies in Double Stopping in 3rds, 6ths, 8ths, and 10ths, 3s. Complete, bound, 8s.

Op. 6. ELEMENTARY VIOLIN SCHOOL
In VII. Parts, 2s. each (in the Press).

My only object in writing these lines is to put before any student who may be interested, the fact that in a comparatively unknown town, exists a school of violin playing due to the wonderful brain and indomitable energy of a really remarkable man, who unfortunately for the public at large is too much interested in his life work to care for the success which would undoubtedly crown his efforts did he in any way seek self advertisement."—Strad.

BOSWORTH & CO., 5, Princes St., Oxford St., W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
MARCH 1, 1901.

GIUSEPPE VERDI.

Born, October 10, 1813;
Died, January 27, 1901.

In the Roman Forum, near the Arch of Severus, stands a solitary column. Other such pillars, and remains of yet others, are found in groups; this one has no rivals and no companions. That it was erected in honour of Phocas, a very bad specimen of even Roman emperors, and that the debased Romans of Pope Gregory's day, not having it in them to make a column, stole one from some ancient temple, is nothing to my present purpose. I use the lonely memorial as a symbol of what Verdi was when all his great contemporaries had gone, leaving him solitary in a much impoverished world. The symbol yet stands; the towering man of genius is no more; that pillar has fallen and left a blank in the scene of which it was so conspicuous a feature.

Italy needed a new composer when, in 1839, Giuseppe Verdi appeared on the lyric stage with his first essay in opera—'Oberto, Conte di S. Bonifacio.' Donizetti and Bellini had flooded the world with their melodies, and although the elder of these minstrels had in him the power to write such music as the Contract Scene in 'Lucia' and the last act of 'La Favorita,' the public began to feel a need of something stronger—something of greater dramatic force and illustrative truth; some composer who, less careful about the symmetry and charm of his tunes, could get a musical grasp of dramatic situations, and, so to speak, tear the heart out of them. The hour and the man, as usual, came together, and when Verdi's 'Nabucco-donosor' appeared in 1842, 'I Lombardi' a year later, and 'Ernani' in 1844, the world of music began to feel that a new and dominating spirit had arrived. The mass of the Italian public yielded itself frankly to the stimulus of the fresh, young, virile voice. It is nearly always the 'common people' who are first to do this. They have no scruples to remove, no theories to safeguard, no prejudices to overcome. With musicians and men of culture the case was different, and even those who kept an open mind held aloof through the timidity which that which is new and strange often inspires. Horses can reconcile themselves to the rush and roar of a passing train, but when they see the thing a first time there is a natural disposition to bolt.

In England, the strenuous, fiery composer, whose music flamed along in such an unmeasured manner, met with strong opposition; in some cases with downright abuse. Here is an example of overdoing, provoked by a performance of 'Nabucco,' under the new title of 'Nino,' at Her Majesty's Theatre, on March 3, 1846: 'Ernani led us to suspect, and Nabucco has certified our suspicion, that of all the modern Italian composers, Verdi is the most thoroughly insignificant. We listen, vainly, as the work proceeds, for the semblance of a melody. There is positively nothing, not even a feeling of rhythm—but rather, indeed, a very unpleasant disregard for that important element of musical art. The choruses are nothing but the commonest tunes, arranged almost invariably in unison—perhaps because the composer knows not how to write in parts. The concerted music is patchy, rambling, and unconnected. The cantabiles are always unrhythmical—and the absence of design is everywhere observable. The harmonies are either the tritest commonplaces, or something peculiarly odd and unpleasant. Nothing can possibly be more feeble than the orchestration. The employment of the wind instruments is remarkably infelicitous, and all the experiments are failures. The overture is the poorest stuff imaginable, and yet the only glimpses of tune in the opera are comprised within its limits—and these are subsequently employed throughout the work ad nauseam. Serious criticism would be thrown away upon such a work. Either "young Verdi" must be a very clever man of business, or he must have come into the world with a silver spoon in his mouth. His popularity in Italy signifies nothing—but the reputation he elsewhere maintains is an enigma. We might overlook his ignorance of all the rules of art, were there in him any indication of natural feeling, or the shadow of inventive power, but—alas, no—all is a dead flat—a dreary waste of barren emptiness!'

Clearly this critical horse was in a state of panic terror at the apparition of the Italian locomotive. After a time he became less susceptible, and ambled along almost comfortably when the train passed his paddock. Apropos to a revival of 'Ernani' in 1849, the same journalist wrote: 'We are not of those who scoff and sneer at the scores of Verdi because they contain neither the depth of Mozart and Beethoven nor the inventiveness of Rossini and Auber. He may not be as clever as Donizetti, nor as melodious as Bellini, nor as dramatic as Meyerbeer, nor as overpowering as Halévy (!); must it therefore follow that he has no merit whatever? Far be it from us to affirm any such thing, although, as our readers must by this time be well aware, we are no great lovers of his music. Still, he has strong dramatic feeling, and is by no means devoid of energy and passion. If these sometimes degenerate into rant, it proceeds from exuberance rather than poverty of conception.' See, now, the eye-opening effect of use and wont. Our friend of 1849 recognised qualities which were just as evident three years earlier. They were only less familiar; that was all.

A French journalist, who obtained an interview with Verdi at Milan, in 1845, has given us a glimpse of the composer as he was in those comparatively young days. From him we learn that even then Verdi was reputed to keep people off by a distant manner: 'I found him to be anything but the cold and reserved person he had been represented to me, absorbed in his art, and taking no interest in anything else. He received me with the utmost cordiality, and with an ease and grace truly French.' Then we have a thumb-nail sketch of the rising master: 'In person, Verdi is extremely handsome, with chestnut hair, and blue eyes that have an expression at once soft and vivacious. When he speaks his face lights up, and an incessant mobility of expression reflects the varied feelings that are passing within him. . . . His tastes are the most simple in the world. The room in which he works contains no furniture but four or five chairs, his piano, a statuette of himself, and over the piano, a frame to which are suspended three coronals, and within the frame the words, "Le chemin de la postérité."' The writer adds: 'The works of this young composer are so sought after in Italy that they command their weight in gold, and he has already realised a handsome fortune.' It is not difficult to trace a connection between the wealth of Verdi—which eventually became very great, measured by the standard of Italy—and the simple, restrained life of the composer, whose devotion to his art took the power away from dangerous temptations. It may here be stated, in passing, that the French journalist's article appeared in English under the heading 'A Day with Verdi,' and was answered by parody in 'A Day with Blewett.' Blewett, it should be said, was a very hum-drum musical personage of the period. Such were the amenities of the forties.

Strong dramatic feeling, energy, passion, exuberant conception—these were the qualities recognised, somewhat tardily and no doubt reluctantly, by the critic I have quoted. Let that critic in turn have his due. With entire accuracy he pointed out the specially strong features in the Italian composer's musical character. Verdi, from his earliest stage work down to the time when years dimmed his native fires and energy relaxed, was one who loved strength—strength of feeling, of expression, and of dramatic situations which favoured its display. He had no affinity with the kid glove and rosewater school. Let it be granted that, in his earlier works, he was often crude and violent—a fact very much insisted upon by his critics. For his crudities it can at least be said that they never stood in the way of appropriate effects; for his violence it may be urged that it only matched the violence of the subjects he selected or accepted. Verdi, as we all have had reason to know, loved a full-flavoured story. Had he been an ordinary reader of novels, he would have invested heavily in 'shilling shockers.' 'Il Trovatore' was quite in his line; so were 'Attila' and 'Macbeth,' 'Rigoletto' and 'La Forza del Destino,' 'Les Vêpres Siciliennes,' and 'Don Carlos.' Verdi has been charged with favouring the 'raw head and bloody bones' type of libretti. He simply took his good wherever he found it—the good being whatever called forth the powers within him which he felt to be strongest; which, in point of fact, would not respond to any milder invocation. Hence the typical Verdian opera has in it a virile element of fierceness. Its neck, like that of the Biblical war-horse, is 'clothed with thunder,' and it is by no means averse from shouting 'Ha, ha!' when blows resound and blood flows. Intense and powerfully concentrated feeling naturally led to the employment of every means. It was charged against him by early opponents that his orchestration was wasteful and ridiculous excess, that he evoked loud noises for their own sake, and paid no heed to the wreckage of voices in trying to make themselves heard through the din of brass and drums. There is no doubt that, in the matter of noise, Verdi anticipated Wagner and the modern Russians, though by no means to the full extent. Perhaps he could do no other. In whatever he was deficient, he lacked nothing of honesty, of faithfulness to his own nature, and fidelity to his own ideal. The strenuousness of his orchestration was in him; it was part of himself, and it found outward expression as a matter of course, concerning which his mind perceived no possible shadow of doubt. Memorials of Verdi will presently abound. Should one of these assert his absolute sincerity—the quality which, both in art and life, distinguished his long career—it will testify straight to the point.

Nothing in the first of the criticisms quoted above is so surprising as the declaration that Verdi was no melodist. The writer, it is true, knew only two of his operas, 'Ernani' and 'Nabucco,' which are not among the best, and, therefore, some excuse may be allowed. It would be waste of time, however, to treat the charge with any seriousness. Not only was Verdi a melodist, but one of singular power in the invention of phrases which seemed to grow naturally out of the text, and to fit the situation as a well-made glove fits the hand. No reader of this magazine can be at a loss for examples, and I will mention only two. First, the cantabile phrase repeatedly sung by Violetta in the gambling scene of 'La Traviata.' The beauty and pathos of this little melody, heightened by contrast with the frivolity proper to the heartless crowd around, place it among the highest illustrations of adaptiveness in art. My second example is found in the well known air, 'Di quella pira,' sung by Manrico in 'Il Trovatore'—an air otherwise notable for one of those original rhythms that give such strikingly fresh effect to the composer's themes. The group of semiquavers which constitutes a distinguishing feature suggests to me a shudder at the sight of agony and death. Other examples, a crowd of them, clamour for equal notice, but enough if I merely indicate the broken and passionate utterances of Leonora in the 'Miserere' of 'Il Trovatore' as contrasted with the unsympathetic formality of the regulation Prayer. I have mentioned these matters more for my own gratification than because readers need to be convinced on the points they concern. The musical quality of Verdi, seen in the light of his later works, is not for doubt, and absolutely refuses liberty of denial.

With the continued ripening of his powers, the manifestations of Verdi's genius obeyed the law of change. So did the genius of Beethoven; so does that of all really gifted men who have no need to stereotype themselves lest their last state should be worse than the first. But change operates differently in different cases. With Beethoven it was purely personal, unaffected by anything extraneous to the composer himself. In the instance of Verdi, it marched pari passu with the advance of music generally, and the improvement of public taste in regard thereto. That march was never suspended; hardly ever interrupted by weakening and wavering. It continued to the end; reaching the final goal in the bright and happy music of 'Falstaff.'

But the whole tenor of the master's life and character protects him from any charge of mere opportunism. His earlier works were as sincere as those of later years, for it was not in him to write down to the capacity and taste of the public. His pride and high sense of honour and duty would have revolted against the mere suggestion of such a course. Indeed, every consideration bearing upon the case goes to show that he put himself as much into his first opera as into his last, widely as they differ in manner. Between these extremes lies a long stretch of time, and as, like all real live men, Verdi possessed the faculty of growth, his musical expression underwent inevitable modifications. But it is not wise to assume that therefore the earlier operas are works worthy only of neglect. In some respects, as a matter of fact, they are more interesting than their younger companions, because of the youthful frankness with which they reveal the composer. Listen to the words of Henry Chorley—no mean critic—written as far back as 1846, when only the early works were in existence. Chorley was by no means an out-and-out admirer of Verdi, yet, recognising the master's earnestness in attempting dramatic expression, he said: 'He is not tame or timid in his movements on his stilts. Some of his concerted pieces combine a group of contrasted emotions, within the conditions of regular musical form, which shows an advance upon his predecessors. Signor Verdi is not to be disdained, as a shallow or perversely insincere man should be. It is evident—howsoever incomplete may have been his training, however mistaken his aspirations must be proved, and thought to have been and to be—that he has aspired, and in this aspiration he is separated far from the dolce far niente folk who, once having got art and its resources into their hands, have made of the same toys, or means of money getting. What there is good in his music, betokens certain elevation of instinct and ambition.' This witness to the Italian master's honesty and sincerity, as well as to his high aim, is the more important because given in view of only a very partial revelation of the man and his mission.

Writing as above, I have taken no note of the fact that, in England especially, and more or less everywhere, Verdi's operas have gone out of fashion. That does not touch the question of their work; fashions come and go, and neither their coming is evidence for the temporarily favoured nor their going testimony against the cast off. The higher tribunal—the final court of appeal, where sit as judges the wise and prudent of every nation—that alone decides upon value. To those judges, who are unaffected by mere vogue, the position of Verdi among dramatic composers must be committed. They will say of him, or I am miserably mistaken, that not only was he a sincere and devoted musician, but also that he achieved great things, that every note of passion, every shade of sentiment finds in his works true and natural expression. To say this truthfully of any composer is to crown him with unfading laurels.

Dignified and honourable in all his relations with art, Verdi was, as a man and a citizen, worthy of profound respect. His worst enemy, if he had an enemy at all, could not charge him with the meanness of a time-server, the degradation of a self-advertiser, or the vanity that seeks to make a figure before the world. As a Senator of Italy, a member of many Orders, and a friend of kings and princes, Verdi might have lived much in the eyes of men. He preferred to do otherwise. He desired no titles, or he would not have refused them; he never sought 'the applause of listening Senates to command,' and the atmosphere of high social places was not that which he freely breathed. 'I have lived a musician,' he once said, 'and a musician I desire to die.' His art, and his avocations at Santa Agata, made up his life. He wished for nothing better; he could have obtained nothing better. So, respecting himself, and respected by others, the hours of his long life-day were passed. How nobly passed, as the old composer's native energy spent itself in providing a Home of Rest for musicians less fortunate than himself, and as he resolved that his remains should repose among them after a funeral rite as unpretending as that of the poorest! The simple little procession passing through the streets of Milan, thousands of people looking silently on—in this there was the spirit of true greatness by which epithet the world gave its final salute to Giuseppe Verdi.

Joseph Bennett.

[The special portrait of Verdi, which forms one of our extra supplements, has a peculiar and pathetic interest. It is the last photograph taken of him: he sat for it during a recent visit to the Baths at Montecatini, in Tuscany. Moreover, the Maëstro signed this photograph on the day before he was seized with his fatal illness; therefore the signature is one of the latest he ever penned. We are glad for our readers to share, through the medium of an exact facsimile, in the possession of this unique representation of the departed composer. The photograph is by Pietro Tempestini, Spezia.—Ed., M.T.]

THE SISTERS OF TWO GREAT COMPOSERS.

(Concluded from page 85.)

II.—Fanny Mendelssohn.

Four children—two girls and two boys—were born to Abraham and Leah Mendelssohn, of whom Felix was the second in regard to seniority. The first-born of the quartet made her entry into the world at Hamburg, on November 14, 1805, and was named Fanny Cäcilie. In a letter to his mother-in-law announcing the child's birth, Mendelssohn père wrote: 'Leah says that the child has Bach-fugue fingers'—a prophecy which proved to be true.

Fanny received her first pianoforte lessons from her mother, a remarkably clever woman, and, moreover, one endowed with a good stock of commonsense. The mother-teacher wisely began with lessons that did not exceed five minutes in duration; she then gradually increased the length of the lessons until Felix and Fanny went through a regular course of study. Benedict records that Fanny was not only highly gifted, but that in her earliest years she kept pace with her brother in executive skill. Felix went so far as to admit that she played even better than himself at that period, and Devrient bears similar testimony to her remarkable technical achievements.

In the year 1816 Abraham Mendelssohn took his two gifted children—Fanny, aged eleven, and Felix, aged seven—to Paris, where they both became pianoforte pupils of Madame Bigot. During this visit to the French capital her miniature was painted, of which we give a reproduction.

When Fanny was only thirteen she gave a striking proof of her remarkable musical memory by playing twenty-four Bach Preludes by heart as a surprise to her father. She retained her excellent memory for music in after years, and her repertory of Bach, Beethoven, and other classical composers was very extensive. The intimate affection, unalloyed by any feelings of envy or jealousy, which existed between Felix and Fanny in their childhood days continued through life. As a girl of seventeen, Fanny wrote: 'Up to the present moment I possess his unbounded confidence. I have watched the progress of his talent step by step, and may say I have contributed to his development. I have always been his only musical adviser, and he never writes down a thought before submitting it to my judgment. For instance, I have known his operas by heart before a note was written.' Felix called her 'my darling sister and fellow-musician.' For one of her birthdays he wrote his 'Tu es Petrus'; for another similar occasion (in 1828) a 'song without words,' this being the first appearance of the now familiar designation.

Fanny Mendelssohn.
At the age of 11.

An interesting glimpse into the life of the Mendelssohn family is furnished by the pianist Moscheles, who visited them in Berlin, whence they had removed from Hamburg. 'A family such as I have never known before,' writes Moscheles. 'Felix, a boy of fifteen—a phenomenon. . . . . His elder sister, Fanny, is also extraordinarily gifted. She played by heart, and with admirable precision, Bach's Fugues and Passacailles. I think one may well call her a thorough "Mus. Doc." (guter Musiker).' Moscheles was present at the Sunday fortnightly music-makings given by the Mendelssohns in Berlin. Here is one of the programmes as quoted by Moscheles in his diary in 1824:—

Nov. 28th, Sunday.—Music in the morning at the Mendelssohns'. C minor quartet, by Felix. D major symphony. Concerto by Bach (Fanny). Duet in D minor for two pianos, by Arnold.

In his sister Fanny, Felix found a valued coadjutor and practical helper during the preparations for that interesting revival of Bach's 'St. Matthew' Passion in the year 1829. His nickname for her—the 'Cantor'—doubtless arose from this epoch-making event in the history of Bach's music, with which the name of Mendelssohn will ever be worthily associated. In spite of much opposition by the conservative musicians, two performances of this glorious masterpiece were given under the direction of Felix, then just twenty years of age, on March 11 and 21 (Bach's birthday), 1829. In a long and interesting letter written to Carl Klingemann, in London, Fanny gave a full account of those memorable performances. Here are some extracts:—

Berlin, March 22, 1829.—We are soon going to send you Felix. He has left himself a beautiful memorial here by two crowded representations of the 'Passion' for the benefit of the poor. What used to appear to us as a dream, to be realised in far-off future times, has now become real: The 'Passion' has been given to the public, and is everybody's property. . . .

Felix went over the whole score, made a few judicious cuts, and only instrumented the recitative, 'And the veil of the temple was rent in twain.' Everything else was left untouched. The people were astonished; they stared and admired; and when, after a few weeks, the rehearsals in the Academy itself commenced, their faces became very long with surprise at the existence of such a work, about which they, the members of the Berlin Academy, knew nothing. After having got over their astonishment, they began to study with true, warm-hearted interest. The thing itself, the novelty and originality of its form took hold of them. The subject was universally comprehensible and engaging, and Devrient sang the recitatives most beautifully. The genial spirit and enthusiasm evinced by all the singers during the very first rehearsals, and which each new rehearsal kindled to ever-increasing love and ardour; the delight and surprise created by each new element—the solos, the orchestra, Felix's splendid interpretation and his accompanying the first rehearsals at the piano from beginning to end by heart, all these were moments never to be forgotten. . . .

FANNY MENDELSSOHN (Frau Hensel).

From a Painting by Wilhelm Hensel.

(Reproduced from the 'Mendelssohn Family,' by kind permission of Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston and Co., Ltd.)

Such a general and vivid interest was created in all classes, that on the very day after the first advertisement of the concert all the tickets were taken, and during the latter days upwards of a thousand people applied in vain. On Wednesday, March 10, the first representation took place, and excepting a few slight mistakes of the solo-singers it may be called a perfect success. We were the first in the orchestra. As soon as the doors were opened, the people who already had been long waiting outside, rushed into the hall, which was quite full in a quarter of an hour. I sat at the corner, where I could see Felix very well, and had gathered the strongest alto voices around me. The choruses were sung with a fire, a striking power, and also with a touching delicacy and softness the like of which I have never heard, except at the second concert, when they surpassed themselves. . . .

The room was crowded, and had all the air of a church: the deepest quiet and most solemn devotion pervaded the whole, only now and then involuntary utterances of intense emotion were heard. What is so often erroneously maintained of such like undertakings truly and fully applies to this one, that a peculiar spirit and general higher interest pervaded the concert, that everybody did his duty to the best of his powers, and many did more.

While the rehearsals for the 'Passion' were in active progress, Fanny became engaged to Wilhelm Hensel, the painter, of Berlin. She was too sensible a girl to lose her head under these circumstances, but regarded this important event in her life with a commendable equanimity. Not that she was of a blue stocking type. Like others of her sex in all ages she had a love for a little finery. Shortly before the nuptial ceremony her father, who had been travelling in Holland, sent her some beautiful wedding presents. These she acknowledged in a loving letter to her father, an extract from which will doubtless interest our lady readers:—

Your famous box has arrived, and its contents surpass anything that I could have imagined. Again you have brilliantly displayed your taste and your munificence. Everything is the most beautiful of its kind that I have ever seen—the embroideries, materials and patterns, all perfect. I am sure that Nathan the Wise could not have brought home anything more exquisite from his travels!

The beautiful veil has created quite a sensation in the female minds, and causes much agitation, veils not being the fashion here for brides. But I like a veil. I think it is so beautiful and fit for such an occasion, and it would be specially suitable for me on account of my red neck. Therefore I have the greatest mind to wear it, and to be the first—sure enough, not to be the last. . . . Ribbons, shawls, and, in fact, all the things are most beautiful, and once more I thank you with all my heart.

For the wedding—which took place on October 3, 1829—Felix wrote an organ piece in A, during his sojourn in Wales. But this does not seem to have been used at the ceremony, as a similar composition by Fanny herself was played on that auspicious occasion. Fifteen years afterwards, when Mendelssohn was working at his Organ Sonatas in fulfilment of the commission he received from an English music publisher, he wrote to his sister for the loan of the manuscript. It is therefore possible that the wedding piece composed in Wales found its way into the Third Organ Sonata, but an enquiry addressed by the present writer some years ago to Sebastian Hensel (Fanny's only child) failed to gather definite information.

The only cloud upon the nuptial rejoicings was the enforced absence of Felix, who was laid up in London, the result of a cab accident. He employed the period of convalescence—partly spent at Thomas Attwood's villa at Norwood—in composing the Liederspiel for the celebration of his parents' silver wedding. This work, known in England as "Son and Stranger," was duly performed by the family and a few intimate friends with great success, and to the intense gratification of the parents in whose honour it had been written and prepared. Whatever may have been the artistic attributes of Hensel as a painter, he was absolutely unmusical. In order, however, that his brother-in-law should have a singing part in the operetta, Mendelssohn wrote a trio, in which Hensel, as The Mayor, had to sing throughout on one note—F. Much care was taken at the various rehearsals in order that Hensel should be proficient in his one-note part, and all promised well for the performance. But when the all-important moment arrived Hensel ignominiously failed even to get his note! The said F was repeatedly given to him, sotto voce, on all sides, but all to no purpose. This notable noteless incident was the greatest bit of fun of the evening for Felix; he had to bend down over the score in order to conceal his bursts of laughter.

There is no need to follow the career of Fanny Hensel during the eighteen years of her married life. An only child was born to her—a boy named Sebastian, after the great Cantor, as was also the son of Bach's great propagandist in England, Samuel Sebastian Wesley. The Hensels resided in the large house of the Mendelssohns in Berlin—Hensel working at his pictures and Fanny interesting herself in the training of her choir for the fortnightly music-makings which she zealously kept up after Felix had left the paternal roof. In this connection she was the means of first making known much good music in Berlin. On one occasion—at a fête in honour of Bunsen, in 1834—she gave in the Gartensaal of the mansion Gluck's 'Iphigenia in Tauris' with great éclat before an audience of a hundred people, including several English visitors. 'Everything was most successful,' she wrote, 'even more beautiful than "Orpheus" last year. On the Sunday following I had a full orchestra from the Königstadt Theater and had my overture performed, which sounded very well.'

Like her brother Felix, Fanny Hensel was an excellent letter writer. Many opportunities were afforded her of exercising her gifts of descriptive writing during the journeys of the Hensels in Italy and France, and on musical matters to Mendelssohn and Klingemann. She had a very good contralto voice, which was of great service in choral music, she being an excellent reader and a true musician. An amusing instance of her vocal capabilities occurred during the first performance of her brother's oratorio 'St. Paul.' In the duet of the False Witnesses one of the vocalists went astray and the consequences were becoming serious. But Fanny, who was in the front row of the chorus contraltos, came to the rescue by singing the part very softly, and in so doing gently guided the erring one into the path of accuracy. After the performance Fanny, trembling to think of what her brother would say about this unfortunate slip, expressed her regret at the occurrence. 'Never mind, Fanny,' said he, in his most winning manner, 'I am so glad it was one of the false witnesses!'

The published compositions of Fanny Hensel extend to Opus 11. They include several books of songs and Lieder for the pianoforte, a pianoforte trio in D, and a set of six part-songs (Gartenlieder), which have been issued with English words by Messrs. Novello. Some of her early songs were published with those of her brother's two sets comprised in his Op. 8 and 9, and under his name, it being probably thought that ladies should not appear in print as composers, but—nous avons changé tout cela! These songs and one duet are as follows:—

The Homespell (Das Heimweh).
Italy (Italien).
Sleepless (Sehnsucht).
Forsaken (Verlust).
The Dying Nun (Die Nonne).
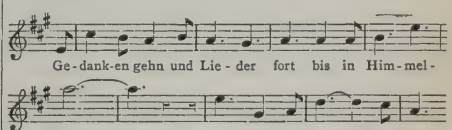
Zuleika and Hassan (duet).

The suppression of her name as the composer of the above songs furnished an amusing incident when Mendelssohn visited our late revered Queen Victoria at Buckingham Palace in 1842. Mendelssohn, at the suggestion of the Prince Consort, asked the Queen to sing to him. She complied by selecting one of his own songs—as she thought—entitled 'Italy.' Let Mendelssohn describe in his own words the manner in which the Queen sang:—

'She sang the song ("Italy") most beautifully in tune, strictly in time, and phrased it charmingly. But where it goes down to D natural, followed by D sharp, she sang both notes D sharp; and, as I gave her the D natural in the first two verses, she also sang D natural in the last, when it ought to have been D sharp! But, with this exception, it was really delightful, and I have not heard the last long G sung by any amateur with such ease and in such perfect tune. When it was finished I had to confess that the song was composed by Fanny! (I must say it was rather hard to have to say it, but "pride comes before a fall.") I then asked the Queen to sing a song which was really my own composition. She said that if I would give her plenty of help she would willingly do so. She sang "The Pilgrim's Song" really quite faultlessly and with beautiful feeling and expression. I thought it would not do to appear too complimentary at such a time, and therefore I merely thanked her over and over again; but when she said: "Oh, if I had not been so frightened I could have done better, I generally have very long breath," I praised her very heartily and with the best conscience in the world; for that phrase near the end having the long-sustained C, she sang so well, joining the C to the three following notes, all in one breath, as one rarely hears it done, that it highly amused me that she herself should have spoken about it.'

The death of Fanny Hensel was as sudden as it was tragic. One Friday afternoon—in May, 1847—she was conducting a rehearsal by her little choir of the music for the following Sunday's music-making, but while sitting at the pianoforte playing the accompaniments she was seized with sudden illness. Her hands fell powerless by her side, she became speechless and helpless, and shortly afterwards lost consciousness. Medical aid was obtained, but all in vain. At eleven o'clock that evening Fanny Hensel, at the age of forty-one, entered upon her long last sleep. Her sad death undoubtedly hastened her brother's end: in less than six months after, he too had been summoned by the inexorable Messenger. The remains of Fanny were laid to rest in the Mendelssohn portion of the Friedhof at the Hallethor, Berlin. The conclusion of her song, 'Bergeslust' (Op. 10, No. 5), is engraved on her tombstone:—



In conclusion, so much has been written upon the subject of Wagner's setting of 'Der Ring des Nibelungen' that it may not be without interest to quote from a letter written by Mendelssohn to his sister Fanny, dated 'Leipzig, November 14, 1840.' He says:—

'My best thanks also for your last letter. Do you know, I think your suggestion as to the "Nibelungen" most luminous! It has been constantly in my head ever since, and I mean to employ my first leisure day in reading over the poem, for I have forgotten the details, and can only recall the general colouring and outlines, which seem to me gloriously dramatic. Will you kindly communicate to me your more specific ideas on this subject? The poem is evidently more present to your memory than to mine. I scarcely remember what your allusion means, as to the sinking into the Rhine. Can you point out to me the various passages which struck you as particularly dramatic when the idea first occurred to you? And above all, say something more definite on the subject, as the whole tone and colouring and characteristics take my fancy strongly; therefore I beg of you to do so, and soon too; it will be an essential service to me. Refer solely to the poem itself, for before your letter can arrive I shall certainly have read it, though I shall not the less eagerly expect your opinion. Accept my thanks for this happy thought, as for all else.'

So far as we are aware there is no further reference to the 'Nibelungen' in the Mendelssohn literature. Did Felix have inclinations towards this subject as the likely theme of an opera libretto? But this is a question which may never be answered.

MUSIC IN ENGLAND IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

A BRIEF AND UNCONVENTIONAL SURVEY.

(Continued from page 89.)

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Seventy-eight years ago, this very month, the Royal Academy of Music opened its doors. It is the oldest music school in the country. The first lesson ever given within those venerable walls was that received by Master Kellow J. Pye, aged eleven, from Cipriani Potter. The teacher joined the majority thirty years ago, but the pupil—now in his ninetieth year—is still living.

The Academy was hatched at the Thatched House Tavern, on July 5, 1822. It primarily owed its origin to Lord Burghersh (afterwards Earl of Westmoreland), who for some years 'bossed the show,' to use a 'classic' term from across the water. But the idea of such a teaching institution had taken possession of more than one professional musician. A detailed scheme was laid before the Philharmonic Society, who took the matter up; but on the very day that a general meeting of the Society had been called to carry the proposal into active operation, the noblemen amateurs, under Lord Burghersh, made public their prospectus for the establishment of A Royal Academy of Music, under the patronage of the King.

The objects of the Institution were thus set forth in the prospectus:—

1st. To promote the cultivation of the science of music, and afford facilities for attaining perfection in it, by assisting with general instruction the natives of this country, and thus enabling those who pursue this delightful branch of the fine arts to enter into competition with, and rival the natives of other countries, and to provide for themselves the means of an honourable and comfortable livelihood.

2nd. With this view it is proposed to found an Academy, to be called the 'Royal Academy of Music,' for the maintenance and general instruction in music of a certain number of pupils, not exceeding at present forty males and forty females.

In regard to the course of study to be pursued, we find that

The first object in the education of the students will consist in a strict attention to their religious and moral instruction.

Next, the study of their own and the Italian language, writing and arithmetic, and their general instruction in the various branches of music, particularly in the art of singing, and in the study of the pianoforte and organ, of harmony, and of composition.

No student shall be admitted at an earlier age than ten years, nor later than fifteen years old.

The elementary education and the apparel of the dear boys and girls, no less than their 'religious and moral instruction,' claimed the solicitous regard of the promoters of this Institution for the teaching of music.

They shall have received such previous instruction as to be able to read and write with tolerable proficiency.

Each student must at the time of admission come decently clothed, and continue to be so, as the establishment will not charge itself with any expense on that head.

The girls and boys, as they were called, could only enter on the recommendation of subscribers. Dr. Crotch was appointed the first Principal. A long list of Professors appeared, but some of the names were ornamental—like that of a prominent musician, now deceased, who, upon being asked for permission to have his name put as a professor of the pianoforte on a private school prospectus, replied: 'Oh! yes, you may put my name, so long as you do not ask me to come and teach'! The best known (to posterity) among the active teachers at the inauguration of the Academy were Crotch, Cipriani Potter, and J. B. Cramer.

Tenterden Street has always been the home of the Academy—the same '*ram*shackle old place,' as an old student has designated the buildings. The first batch of students consisted of ten girls and ten boys, chief among the latter being William Henry Holmes, admitted without ballot on the recommendation of His Most Gracious Majesty King George IV. All the children lived and boarded in the two houses—Nos. 3 and 4, Tenterden Street, which had a playground. We learn from an interesting and decidedly unconventional History of the Royal Academy of Music, contributed to the Overture by Mr. Frederick Corder, the present Curator, that the house and grounds were divided into two non-communicating portions; but great alarm was at first felt lest the boys and girls should have to use the same entrance door, 'from which a too great intercourse may be supposed.'

The actual opening of the Institution is thus described in a letter written by Sir

John Murray to Lord Burghersh, then British Ambassador at Florence:—

March 24, 1823.

My dear Lord Burghersh,

I congratulate you. I, this morning, at nine o'clock, was present at the first opening of the Academy, by Madame Rignaudin and François Cramer. The children have been collected since Tuesday last under Mrs. Wade and Mr. Miles. This morning their studies began. We have employed, for the girls, Madame Rignaudin, Crotch, Hulmandel, J. B. Cramer, and Boscha; for the boys, Crotch, F. Cramer, Potter; and an Italian master for both. These are all in present employment; but we are enlarging the number as we get into order. . . .

By another disposition we shall be enabled, in a fortnight, to take in eight more girls and as many boys. These will all be boarders, which leaves the selection to the Committee and is better for the funds. As soon as this is arranged we shall take in day scholars probably; but this requires great consideration, because character becomes of great importance and it is not easy to fix any rule to ascertain it. The applications for all classes of students are very numerous. I wish I could say as much for the subscribers; we get on in that point but slowly. Although, certainly, the Institution becomes more popular, the effect of the popularity is but slightly felt in the most important way. . . . I really think it impossible to add anything to the sum which the boarders pay; it is already thirty-eight guineas, and we find that there are a great many schools where children do not pay so much. An addition might be made to regular students, but even that requires consideration, and must be trifling. We have got seats for the girls in Margaret Chapel, but the boys are not yet provided for. The visiting clergyman is not yet quite fixed upon.

Thus the Royal Academy of Music started—with its modest number of ten boys and ten girls, all under fifteen years of age—in the year 1823. Now it can boast of no less than 530 students—of various ages. M. Fétis, when visiting the Institution during his stay in England in 1829, thus commented upon the junior professor of harmony. 'The third teacher of thorough bass in the Royal Academy of Music, is an obscure musician, of the name of Goss.'

A DICTIONARY OF MUSICIANS.

In the year 1824 an interesting, if somewhat inaccurate biographical work appeared in London. It was entitled 'A Dictionary of Musicians.' Although more or less a scissors and paste compilation, it contained 'upwards of a hundred original memoirs of the most eminent living musicians.'

The Harmonicon, the leading musical journal of the day, reviewed the work in these terms of righteous indignation:—

It was our intention to review this work in our present Number, but upon taking a cursory view of its contents, previously to a deliberate perusal of the whole, we found that its editor had in so barefaced a manner copied our pages verbatim et literatim, and appropriated, without the slightest acknowledgment, our labours to his own use, that it would be necessary to intreat the Lord Chancellor to throw his broad shield over our property; a measure which we have directed our solicitor to proceed in immediately. Our criticism of this Dictionary is, therefore, for the present, necessarily suspended.

The Editor of the 'Dictionary of Musicians,' whoever he was, made a terrible blunder in the notice of Samuel Wesley. The book, issued in 1824, stated that he (Wesley) 'died about 1815,' whereas he did not depart this life until twenty-two years later! This gave the irascible Sam a fine opportunity for the exercise of his inimitable satire. Like an aggrieved and prematurely obituaryated Englishman he wrote to The Times—his letter appearing in the issue of October 12, 1824—as follows:—

MUSICAL BIOGRAPHY.

[The following Letter of a very eminent Musician is too amusing not to be inserted, though he has adroitly contrived to make it answer all the purposes of an advertisement]:—

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—That truth and accuracy ought to characterise valuable biography has (I believe) never been much disputed. As a demonstrative evidence that both these precious ingredients are happily combined in a work just edited, and entitled, A Biographical and Historical Dictionary of Musicians, published by Messrs. Sainsbury and Co., Bell Court, Fleet Street, pray please to take the following specimen.

Under the article Samuel Wesley, I read this assertion: 'He died about the year 1815.'

An entirely new musical church service, lately composed by this departed musician, is now in the Press, and about to be ushered speedily into public notice. To immortalize the reputation of Messrs. Sainsbury and Co., and Biographers, equally correct and conscientious, the person who has now the honour of communicating to yourself, and your numerous readers, this intelligence, happens to be that selfsame individual, who, though predicated to be defunct eight years ago, is nevertheless now in the act of writing Samuel Wesley.

P.S.—Messrs. Sainsbury and Co. would still further oblige and illuminate the world by a minute detail of my funeral, with the names of the eye-witnesses, and a geometrical description of my present place of sepulture. My living address is now at No. 16, Euston Street, Euston Square, New Road, St. Pancras, if they can trust 'the Ghost's word.'

11th of October, in the year One thousand eight hundred and twenty-four.

Other letters followed, but Wesley came off with flying colours: there was very little of the ghost about Old Sam.

THE CHORAL SYMPHONY.

The first performance in England of Beethoven's Choral Symphony is too important an event not to be noticed, even in an 'unconventional survey.' The work was introduced to an English audience by the Philharmonic Society at its concert of Monday, March 21, 1824. The immortal 'No. 9' appeared in the programme with the following title:—

ACT II.

New Grand Characteristic Sinfonia, MS., with Vocal Finale, the principal parts of which to be sung by Madame Caradori, Miss Goodall, Mr. Vaughan, and Mr. Phillips (composed expressly for this Society) . . . Beethoven.

Leader, Mr. F. Cramer. Conductor, Sir G. Smart.

The choral portions of the Symphony at this initial performance were sung to Italian words!

The Harmonicon delivered itself thus in its critical estimate of the great master's mighty creation :—

. . . Unfortunately, the author has spun it out to so unusual a length, that he has 'drawn out the thread of his verbosity finer than the staple of his argument,' and what would have been delightful had it been contained within moderate limits, he has rendered wearying by expansion, and diluted his subjects till they become weak and vapid.

We now find this [the length] to be precisely one hour and five minutes; a fearful period indeed, which puts the muscles and lungs of the band, and the patience of the audience to a severe trial.

The last movement, a chorus, is heterogeneous, and though there is much vocal beauty in parts of it, yet it does not, and no habit ever will make it, mix up (sic) with the first movements.

The most original feature in this symphony is the minuet, and the most singular part, the succeeding trio—striking, because in duple time, for which we are not acquainted with anything in the shape of a precedent. We were also much pleased by a very noble march, which is introduced.

In quitting the present subject, we must express our hope that this new work of the great Beethoven may be put into a produceable form; that the repetitions may be omitted and the chorus removed altogether; the symphony will then be heard with unmixed pleasure, and the reputation of its author will, if possible, be further augmented.

In the year 1826 Weber visited, for the first and only time, this country. He never returned to his native land, but died at the house of his host, the late Sir George Smart, 96 (now 103), Great Portland Street, where a tablet records the sad event. Weber came hither for the production of his opera 'Oberon,' which took place at Covent Garden Theatre, under his personal direction, on April 12, 1826. He wrote the fine overture to the work in Smart's house. Upon his arrival in London the seeds of consumption were rapidly fructifying, and the great and too much neglected composer—to whom a still greater composer was not a little indebted—drew his last breath, during his sleep, in the night of June 4, 1826, on alien soil. A fortnight before he passed into the shadows he gave a benefit concert at the Argyll Rooms, which was poorly attended. It rained in torrents on the day of the concert, and the net proceeds amounted to £96 11s. His Jubilee Cantata was sung and Weber touched the pianoforte for the last time.

We give a reproduction of one of the concert tickets on that pathetic occasion. According to the custom of the time, Weber signed every ticket with his own hand. As that reproduced above is numbered 589, by Weber himself, the fast dying man must have written his name at least 600 times.

ARGYLL ROOMS,

REGENT STREET.

CARL MARIA VON WEBER'S

CONCERT,

FRIDAY, MAY 26, 1826.

TO COMMENCE AT HALF-PAST EIGHT O'CLOCK.

TICKETS, HALF-A-GUINEA EACH.

No. 589.

In addition to the ticket, we have in our possession a lock of Weber's hair, cut off after his death, the gift of the late Miss Smart, Sir George Smart's only daughter. We should have been delighted to furnish our readers with a facsimile reproduction of this interesting hirsute personal relic of Weber did any form of 'process' render it at all possible.

F. G. E.

(To be continued.)

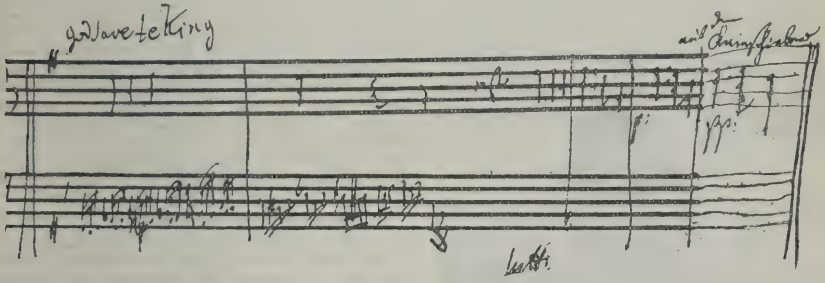
OCCASIONAL NOTES.

The accession to the throne of King Edward VII. naturally brings our National Anthem for the moment into special prominence. The question of the origin of both words and music has been frequently discussed; therefore we do not now propose to re-open the question. But it may be interesting to recall the fact that Beethoven, while at work on his 'Wellingtons Sieg oder die Schlacht bei Vittoria'—composed in 1813 and dedicated to the Prince Regent, afterwards George IV.—wrote in his diary as follows:—

Ich muss den Engländern ein wenig zeigen, was in dem 'God save the King' für ein Segen ist.

(I must just show the English what a blessing they have in their 'God save the King.')

The accompanying facsimile is taken from one of Beethoven's sketch-books, and may possibly have been noted down by him when he was composing his 'God save the King' variations for the pianoforte. The sketch, however, is in a different key. The first part seems a design for a variation which was not carried out; the latter part for a coda. The words mit dem Beinschieber refer apparently to the lever pressed by the knee in Stein's and other German pianofortes. The original, from which our facsimile (reproduced full size) is taken, is preserved in the British Museum.—Add. MS. 29,801, f. 82a. We may specially refer any interested reader to a series of articles by Dr. W. H. Cummings on the familiar tune which appeared in this journal during the year 1878, and which exhaustively treats the subject.



The King has conferred upon Sir Walter Parratt, organist of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and Master of the Musick to Queen Victoria, the Cross of the Royal Victorian Order. Sir Walter received this distinction at the hands of the King, at Windsor Castle, on the 18th ult.

His Imperial Highness The Grand Duke Michael of Russia, who represented the Czar at the funeral of our late Queen, is an enthusiastic flute player. We understand that during his sojourn in London he purchased two Boehm flutes from the firm of Messrs. Rudall, Carte and Co.

A subscriber of nearly forty years' standing sends us, under date of the 2nd ult., the following interesting communication from Berne:—

In memory of our beloved and lamented Queen, the Swiss authorities offered us—the British colony here—the use of their magnificent Cathedral. The British Minister, Mr. Frederick R. St. John, invited all the Legations in Berne, who attended in court dress, as well as the Federal, Cantonal, and Municipal authorities of Switzerland, and others. The Cathedral was well filled, some two or three thousand persons being present. The ceremony was unique in that it was probably the only Continental city in which the Memorial Service for our revered Queen Victoria was held in a national cathedral. The Chaplain and his family, assisted by friends, organised a very impressive service. The East end was draped in purple and black, with a large British flag over an enormous catafalque, surmounted by a crown. The large altar, with white silk frontal and cross in the centre, was adorned with numerous silver candelabra lent by the authorities, flowers and plants, and a number of lighted candles.

At two o'clock the Chaplain, Rev. J. R. Dutton-Tompson, stood before the altar, while there pealed forth from the organ the Dead March in 'Saul.' The Burial Service immediately followed, in the course of which 'I know that my Redeemer liveth' was beautifully sung by Miss Dutton-Tompson. The hymns, 'When our heads are bowed with woe' and 'Now the labourer's task is o'er,' were sung with the help of some Swiss ladies and gentlemen, and an anthem, 'O Death,' by Brahms, was sung in German by Herr Althaus. The service concluded with Chopin's 'Funeral March,' played by the renowned organist, Carl Hess, who presided at the organ throughout. The British Minister, standing under the British flag at the door, bade farewell to the invited guests.

Mr. J. S. Shedlock read an interesting paper before the Incorporated Society of Musicians, on the 9th ult., entitled 'A precious relic of Handel's.' The relic in question was a volume of music entitled Johann Krieger's 'Anmuthige Clavier Uebung,' published at Nuremberg in 1699, the second specimen of round-note printing, in place of the former lozenge-shaped notes. There were two brothers, Johann Philipp and Johann Krieger. Handel made personal acquaintance with the elder at Halle, and possibly with the younger. Anyhow, the very book described by Mr. Shedlock, and exhibited at the meeting, Handel brought with him from Germany when he came to London; and towards the close of his life he presented it to his friend Bernard Granville, brother of the celebrated Mrs. Delany. Mr. Shedlock played several of the pieces from this interesting Handel relic, concluding with the fine Toccata, the pedal part of which was played by Mr. E. F. Jacques.

On the 11th February, at Argyle Villa, Bartholomew Road, N.W., Henry Willis, Organ builder (Father Willis), in his 80th year, deeply mourned by all who knew him.

Such were the terms in which the death of the master craftsman was announced to the world. With the knowledge of his wonderful mental vigour and untiring physical energy, one had the idea that Father Willis would live to be a nonogenarian, or even a centenarian, but this was not to be. It is very characteristic of him that he died in harness—only a week intervening between active work and the final rest from labour. In our issue of May, 1898, we gave a full biographical sketch of the great organ builder, and therefore there is no need to repeat the information then supplied by his own lips. His FATHER WILLIS AS THE SKIPPER OF HIS YACHT OPAL.

(From a Photograph by Dr. G. R. Sinclair, Organist of Hereford Cathedral.)

greatest achievement since that time is the organ in St. Paul's Cathedral, which, considering the mechanical difficulties that had to be overcome, might be regarded as his magnum opus. 'There is nothing like it in the world,' he remarked with pardonable pride, one Saturday afternoon when Sir George Martin was playing that kingly King of Instruments. The eminent constructor of organs was also an excellent performer on the instrument, and a great lover of Bach. Half-a-century ago he was organist of Hampstead Parish Church, and subsequently, for a period of nearly thirty years, he held a similar appointment at Islington Chapel-of-Ease. And now the skilled artist, the clever engineer, and the greatest organ builder of the Victorian era has passed into the shadows, leaving behind him many noble specimens of his remarkable achievements. It is interesting to notice that the announcement of his death, which we have printed at the head of these remarks, contains the designation which we were the first to bestow upon him in the biographical sketch already referred to, a title which he fully deserved—Father Willis. His remains were interred in Highgate Cemetery.

The peaceful God's Acre known as Hampstead Cemetery is becoming a veritable Campo Santo of musicians. Therein rest the remains of Henry Thomas Smart (better known as Henry Smart), who was interred in 1879: Joseph Maas, the gifted singer, in 1886; Sir George Alexander Macfarren in 1887; Walter Bache, the great disciple of Liszt in this country, in 1888; and in 1894, Haydn Parry, a gifted young composer cut off in his early manhood, just when he had tasted the sweets of his first success. And now Dr. Edward John Hopkins has joined the little company of music-makers who sleep their last long sleep in the parcel of ground associated with London's breezy Northern Height.

One of the great hindrances to efficient choral technique is the depreciation of vocal tone among the members of choral societies and choirs. In order to overcome this difficulty a periodical process of weeding out is a necessary, if unpleasant operation. The recently reorganised Bach Society has had the courage to enforce a triennial overhauling of the performing members, and we hear of a similar proceeding on the part of the Worcestershire Philharmonic Society. At the annual general meeting of this flourishing Society, held on the 5th ult., the following new rule, drafted by Mr. A. C. Cherry, J.P., Treasurer, on the initiative of Dr. Elgar, the honorary conductor of the Society, was made:—

> Performing Members shall be elected for three years only, at the expiration of which period they shall become non-performing Members; but on passing a test of efficiency they shall be entitled to re-admission as performing Members for a further period of three years.

The passing and enforcing of such a rule—of which the wording could easily be modified to suit the constitution of any particular society—would boldly grapple with the perennial and colossal difficulty which besets our choral bodies. 'Something must be done' is often the bitter cry of a conductor who laments the decay of the choral side of his Society. The Bach Society and the Worcester folk have shown that they are ripe (Cherry ripe) for the principles of betterment, and it is to be hoped that conductors and the powers that be of many other choral societies up and down the country will follow the example of the Bachists of London and the Philharmonicists of the Faithful City.

Dr. Edward Elgar's Variations for orchestra (Op. 36) were produced for the first time in Germany at the sixth concert of the Städtischer Musik-Verein, in Düsseldorf, on the 7th ult., under the direction of Professor Julius Buths. The concert took place in the Kaisersaal of the municipal Tonhalle, in which the Lower Rhenish Musical Festivals, famous in the history of our art, are triennially held. From local papers to hand, we learn that the crowded audience voted the work a welcome and valuable addition to the répertoire of these concerts, and enthusiastically recalled the gifted conductor, a rare distinction after an orchestral novelty. The performance by the large band appears to have been excellent, and we hear that a repetition of the work, at a Symphony concert of the municipal orchestra, will take place immediately. We doubt whether such a compliment has ever before been paid in Germany to any English band work. Congratulations to Professor Buths on being the first to introduce Dr. Elgar to a German audience.

'Who's Who?' What does he do? The first of these rhyming interrogations is the title of the well-known and invaluable book of reference annually issued by Messrs. A. and C. Black. The second is dually answered by the book in question—that is to say, it supplies information not only as to the occupation, but (in most cases) furnishes the recreations of those whose names appear in 'Who's Who?' In glancing through the musicians therein biographised, we find some interesting information under the heading Recreation. Here are some samples:—

NAME.	RECREATIONS, OR HOBBIES.
Mr. J. F. Barnett,	Sketching from nature.
Mr. Oscar Beringer,	No time to indulge in hobbies.
Mr. G. H. Betjemann,	Painting, making working models of engines, &c., cycling.
Mr. Blumenthal,	Travelling, mountaineering.
Sir Frederick Bridge,	Fishing, shooting.
Miss Clara Butt,	Driving, fishing.
Dr. F. H. Cowen,	Cycling, rowing, mountaineering, book collecting.
Dr. W. H. Cummings,	Boating, fishing.
Mr. Dannreuther,	Literature, gardening, sea trips.
Miss Fanny Davies,	Sketching, great lover of nature, travelling, art, literature.
Dr. Elgar,	Golf, scientific kite flying.
Mr. Henry Gadsby,	Sketching, water-colour painting.
Mr. W. H. Hadow,	Fives, whist, travelling.
Mr. Fritz Hartvigson,	Pistol shooting, dancing, and mountaineering.
Dr. McNaught,	General reading, especially books on philosophy; very little chance of physical recreation.
Professor Niecks,	Fine arts, literature, pedestrian exercise.
Sir Walter Parratt, Professor Prout,	Chess.
Dr. A. L. Peace,	Golf, chess, billiards.
Dr. J. K. Pyne,	Archæology, antiquities.
M. Jean de Reszke,	Riding, shooting, tennis, breeding two-year-olds for races at Warsaw.
Mr. Charles Salaman,	Indulging in octogenarian reminiscences.
Sir John Stainer,	His musical library.
Mr. Theodore Thomas,	Landscape gardening, billiards.
M. Johannes Wolff,	Cycling, fishing.
M. Ysaye,	Cycling.

No one can deny that this list furnishes some odd hobbies—e.g., scientific kite flying, pistol shooting, breeding two-year-olds, and indulging in octogenarian reminiscences. The last-named is a recreation that cannot be enjoyed by everyone; in this respect the veteran Charles Salaman decidedly scores—four full scores!

An influential committee has been formed in Milan to promote the erection of an international monument to Verdi. Among those who have already joined the committee are the Duke Guido Visconti di Modrone, Arrigo Boïto, Count Leopoldo Pullé (representing La Scala), Giulio Ricordi, Edoardo Sonzogno, Giuseppe Gallignani, Director of the Conservatorio Verdi, and Claudio Treves, representing the Association of Journalists in Lombardy. It is proposed to form a strong committee in London to obtain subscriptions, not necessarily of large amounts, in Great Britain in order that the international character of the scheme may be thoroughly maintained. In the meantime, Mr. Luigi Ricordi, 265, Regent Street, will answer all enquiries respecting the proposed monument to the great Italian Maëstro familiarly known as Verdi.

Professor Niecks presented the following interesting programme at his third Historical Concert in the University Music Class Room, Edinburgh University, on the 14th ult. The selection was in further illustration of 'Early Symphonies by predecessors and contemporaries of Haydn.'

The symphonies were performed by a small orchestra, led by Mr. H. Dambmann, consisting of stringed instruments, two oboes, and two horns. Professor Niecks conducted.

Symphony in E flat major, by Johann Carl Stamitz (a Bohemian, 1717-1761; lived at Mannheim from 1745. Twelve symphonies printed).

Symphony in E flat, by Anton Filtz, or Filz, or Fils (a German, lived from about 1733 to 1760, from 1754 at Mannheim. Six symphonies printed).

Symphony in G major, by Frederic Schwindl, or Schwindel (from about 1740 to 1786; Hague, Geneva, Mühlhausen, Lausanne, and Carlsruhe. Eighteen symphonies printed).

Symphony in E flat major, by Johann Christian Bach (1735-82; lived in London from 1762 to 1782. A considerable number of his many symphonies printed).

Symphony in D major, by Charles Frederic Abel (a German, 1725-87; lived in London from 1759. Many symphonies printed).

Symphony in E flat, by François Joseph Gossec (a Belgian, 1734-1829; lived in Paris from 1751. Twenty-six symphonies, of which three are for wind instruments).

Mr. James Higgs has been created a Doctor of Music by the Archbishop of Canterbury—a well deserved honour for patient continuance in well doing for the art of music. Dr. Higgs, in addition to being a professor of harmony and counterpoint at the Royal College of Music, has held the post of organist and choirmaster of St. Andrew's Church, Holborn, since 1867; but he is more widely known as the author of a Primer on Fugue, an admirable and lucid treatise on a somewhat abstruse subject. Many past and present pupils and other friends will heartily join in a chorus of congratulation to Dr. James Higgs.

Mr. Edward Peacock, a tenor of thirty-two years' standing (or singing) in the choir of St. Peter's, Eaton Square, and who rightly claims to be 'the Pater of the choir,' sends us the following interesting reminiscence of the pupilage period of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan:—

The first time I made the acquaintance of Arthur Sullivan and his brother Fred. was in the autumn of the year 1857, when the Pimlico Dramatic Society was established. The performances of the Society were given in a very large room in Ebury Street, a few doors from Belgrave Street. The entrance to the house has two large Corinthian pillars, and above is a long quotation in Greek. I believe the place was originally intended for an Institute. Sullivan, then aged seventeen, and a student of the Royal Academy of Music, was conductor of the band—and such a band. The players numbered twenty-six, the majority, like himself, being dressed in the Academy uniform—a blue cloth jacket, with gilt buttons. He supplied the music, and I do not suppose there was ever an amateur Dramatic Society that had such a band. All the performers, as well as their youthful conductor, rendered voluntary service. His brother Fred. was, of course, one of the actors, and a very clever actor he proved himself to be—in fact, the Society included many members who afterwards distinguished themselves as musicians or actors.

There can be no doubt that a brilliant future would have awaited the Society but for the action of the Marquis of Westminster, great grandfather of the present Duke. When the news of its existence reached his noble ears the Marquis issued a decree that he would have no stage performances on his estate, and then the whole thing collapsed. I was a regular attendant at the performances, having several friends in the band and in the stage department. I am sorry to say that I have no House Bills, as the programmes were called, or I would send for your inspection a souvenir of those pleasant evenings of nearly fifty years ago.

On more than one occasion we have had pleasure in referring to the good work done in various fields of usefulness by the sons of honoured musicians. The latest instance is a volume of 'Speeches of Oliver Cromwell, 1644-1658' (Henry Frowde), which have been collected and edited by Mr. Charles L. Stainer. The Preface, no less than the 500 pages which form this valuable contribution to the literature of the Great Protector, furnishes abundant evidence that Mr. Stainer worthily maintains the traditions of his family for patient investigation and that painstaking thoroughness which result in conscientious work.

MARRIAGE.

Newman—Read.—On the 14th ult., at St. Margaret's Church, Lowestoft, by the Ven. C. D. Lawrence, Archdeacon of Suffolk, Robert Newman, of the Queen's Hall, London, to Florence Maud, youngest daughter of Edward Read, of Lowestoft.

Congratulations to the popular Queen's Hall manager.

The Daily Graphic relates the following incident in its interesting and well-informed Musical Jottings column :—

QUEEN VICTORIA AND BEETHOVEN.

In 1845, when Queen Victoria and Prince Albert were travelling in Germany, they were invited by Frederick William IV., King of Prussia, to be present at the unveiling of a statue of Beethoven, at Bonn. The Royalties were seated in the balcony of a palace overlooking the square in which the statue stood. When the cord was pulled and the veil fell, Beethoven was revealed in all his glory, but with his back turned full to the Royal balcony. Everyone but the King burst out laughing, Queen Victoria being as much amused as anyone; but Frederick William was very angry at the stupidity of the officials, and only relented when Humboldt, who was as witty as he was learned, said, 'Your Majesty forgets that Beethoven was a rough diamond during his lifetime; therefore you can hardly expect that death will have improved his manners.'

The late Mr. J. W. Davison was the special correspondent of the Musical World on that occasion. In his communication recording the unveiling ceremony, 'J. W. D.' thus anathematised the students of Bonn, who, as usual, were up to their pranks. 'A more swaggering band of peacock-feathered strutters never vexed a densely-packed and perspiring crowd with needless importunity. However, in spite of the brouhaha of these half-educated, smoke-dried students (of drinking, fighting, waltzing, and gambling), the arrival of the royal party created the usual manifestation of hand-enthusiasm.' As to the hotel fare, he recorded that 'the cigars are indifferent enough here — the coffee, indifferenter — the champagne, indifferentest.' In regard to the statue, Mr. Davison waxed exceedingly eloquent. Said he:

And there he stood, the great artist—there he stood, the simple, the undaunted Beethoven—there he stood—unmoved in effigy, as when the blood flowed to and fro his large and noble heart and the pulse beat impetuously to the measure of his never-ending melody—unmoved by the hollow vociferations of the mob! Oh, vain mob!—ye did approve the pageant, not the man. With the show of the tinsel ye were well acquaint, but with the spirit of the mighty dead ye held no commune. Silly mob—quackish mob — empty mob—impudent mob! Is Beethoven more now than he was when he lived and walked among ye? But then ye did leave him to the charity of foreigners—now ye exult and brag because he was born among ye!

A firm of cigar manufacturers at Trenton, New Jersey, which employs two hundred young women in the manufacture of the fragrant weed, has adopted the novel experiment of providing music for their employées during a portion of the working day. In the factory is placed a grand pianoforte upon which a competent pianist is engaged to perform for two hours daily, and a music teacher is hired by the firm to give gratuitous lessons to the cigar makers during the noontide hour. The effect of the pianistical interludes upon the output is not stated; but it is much to be hoped that the results of this benevolent scheme of musical education will not share the fate of the manufactured article, which ends in smoke.

Opera librettists, like novelists, occasionally hit upon curious titles for their excogitations. We learn that a new opera, by Richard Strauss, is named 'Feuersnoth' ('Conflagration'), a title which rather invites a cold water reception. Last month the principal tenor of the Stadt-Theater, Halle—Herr Bruno Heydrich—produced an opera, composed by him, bearing the novel title of 'Amen'! And, equally curious, we have before us the printed libretto of 'an opera in three acts,' by Mr. J. L. Haigh (Liverpool Booksellers' Company, Limited), entitled 'Not set to music yet.'

A correspondent, who sapiently signs himself 'Y. Z.,' writes as follows :—

In the long list of recent Diplomaists of the Royal College of Organists which you give in your February issue (p. 104), I observe that the successful ones include a Priest, a Shepherd, a Fisher, a Major, a Potter, a Sadler, a Turner, and three Taylors; a Bullock and a Hawke; a Sharp and a Blount; two Roses, a Wood, and a Littlewood. But most extraordinary of all, unprecedented I trow in the Fellowship examination, Every candidate passed! In my utter astonishment I can only find breath to utter—Prodigious!

The Orchestral Times and Military Bandmaster Record, with which is incorporated The Orchestral Association Gazette, is the title of a well-edited journal devoted to orchestral music, which deserves a welcome by reason of its brightly written pages and the general interest of its contents.

Sir John Goss will form the subject of a biographical sketch in our April issue. A special portrait of the distinguished church composer will be given and fresh information supplied from family records. Sir John Stainer has kindly consented to contribute some reminiscences of his immediate predecessor in the organistship of St. Paul's Cathedral.

THE CHAPEL ROYAL DAYS OF ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

(By an old Fellow-Chorister.)

Mr. Christopher Vickry Bridgman, of Anderton, Plymouth, sends us the following interesting recollections of his friend and schoolfellow, Arthur Sullivan, as one of the Children of the Chapel Royal, St. James's:—

'It was in April, 1854, that Sullivan became a junior chorister, otherwise one of the fags, in the choir of the Chapel Royal, St. James's. We numbered ten and were boarded and educated at the residence of the Master, the late Rev. Thomas Helmore, at 6, Cheyne Walk, Chelsea. Clad in our heavy scarlet and gold lace-adorned uniforms we used to walk twice each Sunday and Saint's Day to St. James's Palace, the total distance covered being ten miles. From the first, at the age of eleven, Sullivan furnished proof of much ability in all educational subjects, and he had not been a chorister many months before he showed extraordinary talent, both in singing and composing. He was speedily promoted to the ranks of the four senior boys, and, subsequently, became principal soloist.

'His voice was a very pure high soprano—his top A or B flat used to ring out with brilliant effect and apparently without effort. The enunciation of his words was very distinct, and, moreover, he sang from his heart. This was early recognised by no less an authority than the late Sir Michael Costa. The occasion was the christening of the late Duke of Albany (Prince Leopold), for which Costa had composed, as an anthem, a setting of the words "Suffer little children to come unto Me." At the rehearsal, after having heard Sullivan sing the solo, Costa created much amusement among band and choir by saying to him: "Vell done Soolivan, very vell done. But you must put your accent as clear as your vords. Now, listen to me," and then Sir Michael sang: "Sóofer léetle cheeldren to cúme after mé, and forbéed them not, and forbéed them not, for of sóoch is the kengdom of Háven." So well did Sullivan sing on that Royal occasion that it pleased the Queen—whom we all so greatly mourn—to send him, through the Prince Consort, a special message of congratulation.

'Among his schoolfellows were the brothers Cellier, Alfred (the gifted composer of "Dorothy") and François, and Malsch (afterwards the distinguished oboe player), by all of whom he was much admired; but he was especially the chum and friend of myself, and we were close companions. My home was then at Tavistock, in Devonshire, and Sullivan's at Sandhurst, where his father was Bandmaster at the Royal Military College. During the 'parson's fortnight' of the Christmas holidays I went to Sandhurst with Sullivan and he used to pass the summer vacation with me at Tavistock. He became much attached to my mother, herself a sweet singer and gifted musician. He used to pass many hours of his holiday time at the pianoforte, singing to her and playing her accompaniments. Thus it was that, at the age of thirteen, his first published song ('O Israel') was composed while he was visiting my home. It was dedicated to my mother and published by Novello. It was always very difficult to get Sullivan away from his composition absorption, even to join a pic-nic party—not that he failed to take delight in nature and the beauties of the country, but he was so enthusiastically devoted to his dear music—in fact, he was ever engrossed in it.

'As a boy he possessed much droll fun and humour. We used to chaff him on his initials, "A. S. S.," and call him "donkey"; but he was anything but an ass. On a wet half-holiday nothing would delight him more than to get us boys to stand round the pianoforte, each with a comb covered with paper. He would compose impromptu pieces—waltzes, songs without words, &c.—and taking his baton, generally a ruler, he used to conduct his "band," as he called us. The combs were of various sizes and each boy had his allotted part. Even with these primitive "instruments" some excellent, although quaint, music was produced under Sullivan's clever manipulation. It was a great delight to him to take some popular comic song, or common tune of the day, and turn it into a Psalm or hymn tune. Some of his best hymn tunes, if played in appropriate time and method, will be found to have originated in this way. He was very clever at fugue. He would frequently say to one of us: "Now, like a good chap, hum or whistle me something," and his request being complied with he would rush off to the pianoforte and make a good fugue from the subject given him. He used to say that one of his greatest enemies was a consecutive fifth. We were often amused when, we at our respective studies and Sullivan at his composition, he would break the silence with "Oh, drat it!—consecutive fifths again!"

'In 1855 he composed his first anthem—really his first composition—"Sing unto the Lord." This was sung under the direction of Sir George Smart, organist of the Chapel Royal, to the satisfaction of the Prince Consort. The original manuscript of this anthem is now in my possession. When "The Gondoliers" was being rehearsed at the Savoy Theatre I took this manuscript to Sir Arthur, who was conducting the opera on the stage. Upon producing the anthem I asked him if he recognised it. This he did immediately, and in the presence of W. S. Gilbert, François Cellier, D'Oyly Carte, and Jessie Bond, he acknowledged it as his first effort. Cellier took the manuscript to the pianoforte, and, running over the first few bars, he turned to Sullivan and said: "Why, Sir Arthur, here is the refrain of 'H.M.S. Pinafore!'" Sullivan folded up the manuscript, and was putting it into his pocket, when I said "That is my property." He laughingly returned it, saying: "Well, my dear fellow, keep it; it may become valuable by-and-bye."

'Great was the sorrow and regret when the day came for Sullivan to take leave of us "Children" and to say good-bye to our dear old master, Mr. Helmore; but under the terms of the Mendelssohn Scholarship he had to proceed to Leipzig. Each boy on leaving the choir received a gift from the Queen of £60 and a Bible and Prayer Book from the Dean of the Chapel (the Bishop of London), but, according to rule, no boy could be a recipient of these gifts until the term of his choristership had expired by the breaking of his voice. An exception was, however, made in favour of Sullivan—he was allowed to leave the choir before his voice broke, and he received the gifts I have mentioned. It was with great pride that all his old schoolfellows heard with what strides he was making his way in the musical world after he left for Germany, and which culminated in his masterly work of "The Tempest," performed in 1862 after his return to England, since when he rose to be such a true Master of the Divine Art.'

January, 1901. Chris. V. Bridgman.

In addition to Professor H. E. Wooldridge's 'The Polyphonic Period of Music,' a second volume of the Oxford musical text-books, entitled 'The Seventeenth Century,' by Sir Hubert Parry, is announced for publication by the Clarendon Press.

THE WAX EFFIGY OF QUEEN ANNE IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

THREE ROYAL FUNERAL ANTHEMS.

The deaths of three Queens of England—two regnant and one Queen Consort—were productive of the same number of funeral anthems.

TITLE.	COMPOSER.	QUEEN.
Thou knowest, Lord ..	Henry Purcell	Mary II.
The souls of the righteous are in the hands of God	Dr. Croft ..	Anne.
The ways of Zion do mourn	Handel ..	Caroline, Consort of George II.

Although Queen Mary II. died December 28, 1694, she was not buried till more than two months afterwards—viz., March 5, 169⅝. Purcell composed two anthems for her funeral, of which 'Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts,' is the better known. The interment took place amidst a scene of solemnity that was most impressive, and the funeral was long remembered as the saddest and most august that Westminster Abbey had ever seen. The two Houses of Parliament, with their maces, followed the hearse—the Lords robed in scarlet and ermine, the Commons in long black mantles. Till then no Sovereign had ever been attended to the grave by a Parliament, as Parliament had always expired with the reigning monarch. Within the Abbey, the Nave, Choir, and transepts were ablaze with innumerable wax lights. The wax effigy of the Queen, dressed in robes of State and coloured to resemble life, was placed over a gorgeous coffin of purple and gold. A robin red-breast, which had taken refuge in the Abbey, was seen constantly on her hearse, and was looked upon with tender affection for its seeming love to the lamented Queen.

'But was the hearse taken into the Abbey?' some reader may be disposed to ask. No; the hearse (or herse) of that time was not a car which conveyed the coffin as in the present day, but a platform, highly decorated with black hangings, upon which stood the wax effigy (life size) of the deceased person. It usually remained for a month in the Abbey, near the grave, but in the case of Sovereigns for a much longer period. It was the chief object of attraction, even in the funeral sermon. The hearse for Mary II., designed by Wren, was the last used for a Sovereign.*

In regard to the music, Dr. Tudway, who was one of the choir on that mournful occasion, records that Purcell's anthem 'Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts,' 'was accompanied by flat mournful trumpets.' As Dr. Cummings has justly remarked, 'this majestic movement is a splendid monument to the memory of Purcell.' He adds: 'It has been used at every choral funeral in Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's Cathedral since its first production.' The anthems which Purcell had composed for Queen Mary's interment, and which were performed under his direction as organist of the Abbey, were, within a year, sung at his own funeral in the venerable fane.

Queen Anne died August 1, 1714, and was buried in Henry VII.'s chapel twenty-three days later. She too had the luxury of a wax effigy. 'It represents her,' to quote the words of Miss Strickland, 'as a very tall, as well as a very large woman.' We give a photograph of the wax effigy of the Queen, which, like that of Mary II. and others, is still preserved in Westminster Abbey. She was buried at night, with all the attendant weirdness of tapers and torches. For her funeral Dr. William Croft, by virtue of his office as Composer in ordinary to Her Majesty, composed his setting of 'The souls of the righteous are in the hands of God,' an anthem which, like several others by this typical English Church composer, has never been printed.

Last, but not least, Handel composed his stately funeral anthem 'The ways of Zion do mourn' for the obsequies of Queen Caroline, the Consort of George II. She died November 20, 1737, and was buried in Westminster Abbey on the 17th of the following month. The Abbey records state that there was much confusion at the funeral, which took place at six o'clock in the evening. The Psalms were not sung and the Lesson was omitted! The choir attended 'in their proper Habits, with Wax Tapers in their Hands.' The Daily Gazeteer of December 19, 1737, thus records the rendering of the music: 'After the Burial Service was over, the fine Anthem, set to Musick by Mr. Handel, was performed by upwards of 140 Hands, from the Choirs of St. James's, Westminster, St. Paul's, and Windsor.' The 'Hands' who interpreted this Handel anthem included, of course, band and chorus.

Dean Stanley refers to Queen Caroline as 'the most discriminating patroness of learning and philosophy that down to that time had ever graced the throne of England.' Her death deprived Handel of one of his best and kindest friends. He was devotedly attached to her, and, as Mr. Rockstro says, every note of 'The ways of Zion do mourn' bears witness to the fact. The score of this sublimely beautiful work—now in the Royal Music Library at Buckingham Palace—is headed, in Handel's writing—

The Anthem for the Queens Carolines Funeral and is inscribed—

S. D. G.
G. F. Handel, London,
Decembr 12, 1737.

The words were probably selected by the composer himself. The first chorus is based upon the German Chorale 'Herr Jesu Christ, du höchstes Gut,' better known in Handel's native Saxony in the form of the Funeral Hymn 'Wenn mein Stündlein vorhanden ist.' It is an interesting fact that Mozart has used this fine Canto fermo as the subject of the opening movement of his 'Requiem.' The fourteen bars which form the instrumental introduction were added by Handel two years after the death of the Queen, when he made use of the funeral anthem as a prelude to his 'Israel in Egypt,' sung in the form of the 'Lamentations of the Israelites for the death of Joseph.' The music of 'The ways of Zion' is worthy of Handel's genius.

* Dr. J. A. H. Murray, in the New English Dictionary, thus defines the old-time hearse: 'An elaborate framework originally intended to carry a large number of lighted tapers and other decorations over the bier, or coffin, while placed in the church at the funerals of distinguished persons.'

EDWARD JOHN HOPKINS.

Death has been very busy of late in the exercise of his imperative summons to join the great majority. The great Reaper visits the palace and the cottage, and, among the high and low in the land, the Father of English organists has had to obey the call to pass through the valley of the shadow. With much regret, it need hardly be said, we have to place on record the passing away, in his eighty-third year, of Dr. E. J. Hopkins, who died at his residence, 23, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Road, on the 4th ult.

In our issue of September, 1897, we gave a biographical sketch of Dr. Hopkins, in the preparation of which he took a great interest, verbally supplying the material at his 'pill-box,' as he called his villa at Herne Bay, and reading the article in proof. Moreover, he subsequently wrote: 'The notice is certainly by many degrees the best that has ever been written about me.' A supplementary article, entitled 'Dr. E. J. Hopkins's Nunc Dimittis,' followed in the issue of June, 1898. This coda chronicled the completion of his long and honourable service—fifty-five years—as organist of the Temple Church. There is no need to repeat the biographical particulars that have already appeared in these columns, suffice it to say that Dr. Hopkins employed the period of his retirement from active work in writing his Historical Handbook of the Organ, a subject upon which he was as enthusiastic as he was well qualified to write. His advanced age doubtless militated against any undue haste in preparing his work for the press. It became almost a joke among his friends when, on asking him how the book was getting on, he would cheerily reply, with that characteristic beam on his ruddy countenance, 'I'm getting on capitally. I've got to the end of the fourteenth century'!

The death of Dr. Hopkins removes one of the last—certainly the greatest representative—of the old school of English church musicians. He lived in five reigns, and he had come of age before the C compass of the organ had been adopted in this country. Church music was at a very low ebb when he began his career, seventy years ago. It is difficult to realise, for instance, that, except in cathedrals, the Chapel Royal and Collegiate Chapels, there were no surpliced choirs till the Temple Church initiated the custom when Hopkins, aged twenty-five, became its organist in the year 1843. Although a thorough believer and upholder of the best traditions of the English school of Church music, our venerable friend was by no means a conservative fossil. His modulations, for instance, would have startled some of the old mediocrities—many of whose compositions might have been settings of the multiplication table for all the expression or colouring they gave to the sacred words they were supposed to enrich. Not that Hopkins was an innovator for the mere sake of innovation. In his restrained and devotional accompaniments and in his unrivalled extemporaneous performances he was always the true artist.

Unlike some modern composers, he did not offer a mere paraphernalia of cleverness for inspiration. His music is characterised by chaste melody, by a subtle unobtrusiveness in its rich harmonies, by the purity of its vocal part-writing—how wonderfully melodious and grateful to sing are his inner parts—and, above all, his music is hallowed with a devotional fervour which lifts it into a region not far removed from the perfection of sanctified art. Moreover, these attributes are not limited to his larger works sung in cathedrals and elsewhere, but are no less distinct features of his wonderfully beautiful hymn tunes and chants—simple strains which have found a place in every little Bethel in the land and have winged many a psalm and hymn and spiritual song in its upward flight.

In regard to the personality of the departed musician, it may not be without interest to refer to his genial nature. With what delight he would tell a story! And how thoroughly he relished a joke! He once expressed the hope that Dr. Turpin would not meet the fate of his distinguished namesake, Dick, and be suspended by a common chord! In turning over a number of letters received from him during recent years, many curious expressions occur. Here are some extracts:—

There are lots of musical people here [Herne Bay] including other 'rogues and vagabonds' (vide old Act of Parliament), 'of whom I am the least of them all,' as St. Paul once wrote, though not with the same meaning, which was not my fault.

I am very glad to hear that Hipkins is to have a place in the M. T. series. . . . He has no letters after his name to indicate any locus standi among musicians, although he has rendered more valuable service to the cause and science of music than nine-tenths of those who have a sufficient number of capitals after their names to spell 'Whitechapel' twice over.

The first sentence in the following is a reference to the fact that he used to start working at 'the book,' in bed, at sunrise:—

Herne Bay,
September 15, 1897.

Observe the date. I wish the evenings were as long as the Psalms; and as to the mornings, I have now to wait until the sun is up—confound him.

I am delighted to hear you are going to give a notice of dear old Grove. He has been a faithful worker in the cause of music for a very lengthened period, and richly deserves not only 'honourable mention,' but also a row of gold medals reaching from Berners Street to Sydenham!

The endings to his letters were often very amusing—

Thine, from here to yonder,
Yours sincerely, from everlasting to everlasting,
With my best gold specs, yours ever,
Yours, overflowing with milk and honey,

The last specimen we must give in facsimile, slightly reduced from the original. In this, instead of his usual signature, the fun-loving veteran makes 'his mark'—the said hieroglyphic representing the first syllable of his patronymic—Hop!

Just one line, for which I ask for in the form of the News-for agony column,
"A few words to your distracted friend, or he dies!
Thine,
To the venerable
F. G. Edwards.

The funeral of the Honorary Organist of the Temple Church—the title borne by Dr. Hopkins since his retirement, in 1898, from the active duties of the post—took place on Saturday, the 9th ult. The first part of the Burial Service was held in St. Thomas's Church, Camden Town, in the presence of several distinguished organists, including Sir Frederick Bridge, Sir George Martin, and Dr. A. H. Mann, of Cambridge, Dr. W. H. Cummings (Dr. Hopkins's oldest pupil), Dr. Vincent, and others. All the music sung on that mournful occasion—excepting the time-honoured sentences by Croft—was composed by Dr. Hopkins, and included the anthem written for his Jubilee service at the Temple Church—a setting for tenor solo and chorus of 'The Lord is full of compassion and mercy'—Psalm xc. to the double chant in F, the hymns 'Leave all to God' and 'Nearer, my God, to Thee,' and the Nunc Dimittis to the single chant in E flat. Nothing could be more appropriate than that the music should be rendered by the Temple Church choir, under the direction of Dr. Hopkins's successor, Dr. H. Walford Davies, who presided at the organ.

The closing scene at Hampstead Cemetery, where the interment took place, was rendered exceedingly touching by the presence of the choir from the Royal Normal College of the Blind at Norwood, where for so many years Dr. Hopkins was professor of the organ, and where he had as his most distinguished pupil, the gifted Alfred Hollins. Standing near the grave the choir sang, to their late professor's music, the hymn beginning

God is love, His mercy brightens
All the path in which we rove;
Bliss He wakes, and woe He lightens;
God is wisdom, God is love.

As the simple, tender strains from the lips of those sightless singers were wafted over the snow-covered God's Acre on that wintry day, we who formed the sorrowing company at the open grave of our departed friend felt strangely moved by their pathos. It was a fitting Nunc Dimittis to the revered Father of English organists.

F. G. E.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

ANONYMOUS HYMN TUNES.

Some familiar hymn tunes seem to be quite Topsyan in their origin—'spects they growed.' In spite of the research of patient investigators, neither their birth nor parentage can be ascertained. Perhaps there is no 7's tune that has more congregational 'go' in it than that named 'Innocents.' But the earliest known appearance of the tune in its present form and name seems to be in the Parish Choir, or Church Music Book, published by the Society for promoting Church Music, November 1, 1850. This monthly periodical publication had music supplements, including a section entitled 'Metrical Psalmody, for unison, or harmonised singing.' The seventy-four tunes therein printed are anonymous. 'Innocents' is associated with the hymn beginning 'Little flowers of martyrdom,' which is headed 'The Innocents' Day,' hence the name of the tune. There is internal evidence that the late Dr. W. H. Monk had much to do with the Parish Choir, and in this connection it is interesting to find that in 'Hymns Ancient and Modern' the composer of 'Innocents' is given as '?'.

'Belmont,' a still popular C.M. tune in triple rhythm, is also a member of the anonymous family. It has been assigned to the two Webbes (father and son), to Mozart, and is said to have been adapted from Haydn's canzonet 'My mother bids me bind my hair'! Mr. James Lowe, author of 'Scottish Church Music,' traces it to a melody assumed to be composed by William Gardiner. It is a far cry from Mozart to the Leicester stocking-maker.

'Adeste Fideles' is another tune of doubtful authenticity, although it is generally attributed to John Reading. The origin of 'Hursley' is also not definitely known. The tune has long been associated with the familiar hymn beginning 'Sun of my soul, Thou Saviour dear,' and is named after the Hampshire parish where Keble ministered for thirty years. It has been ascribed by Rimbault to 'Paul Ritter, 1792.' The first association of the tune with English words appears to be in Vol. II. of David Weyman's 'Melodia Sacra,' published in Dublin after 1814. It is there set to the hymn 'Jesus, and shall it ever be?' and named 'Stillorgan,' after a place very suggestive of unaccompanied singing. The subject might be further pursued; but a still more interesting theme is that suggested by the question: 'What constitutes a good hymn tune?'

A SCOTCH MINISTER'S TRIBUTE TO DR. HOPKINS.

At the evening service in St. George's United Free Church, Edinburgh, on Sunday, the 10th ult., the Rev. Hugh Black said:

> All the music sung and played at this service is by Dr. Hopkins, who for nearly fifty-five years was organist of the Temple Church, in London. The whole Church owes him a debt of gratitude. He has shown two or three generations, both by his published works and by the dignity and reverence of his service, how Church Praise can be cultured, and yet true to its spirit. Nothing unites all sections of Christians like praise, and so though he was of a different branch of the Church from ours, there were points of contact. Our own organist, Mr. Hollins, was a pupil of his, and will have through life, I believe, a deep affection and regard for his memory. Then again, in our Church Hymnary there are fifteen tunes by Dr. Hopkins, many of them being among our best known and best loved.

Such a testimony from such a source is in the highest degree gratifying, the more so because the tribute was quite spontaneous. It should stimulate and encourage all those who are working in and for the cause of Church music in whatever section of the Church their lot may be cast.

A CURIOUS GAUNTLETT ORGAN.

Mr. H. V. Minniken, organist and choirmaster of St. Olave's Parish Church, Southwark, writes as follows:—

> In reference to the organ in the Church of St. Olave, Southwark, the account of which I read with great interest in the February issue of The Musical Times, allow me to say that three of the registers—viz., the Octave Decima, Furniture, III., and Glockenspiel, II.—have been removed, though all the stop-knobs are fixed in the jambs! With regard to the couplers, there are at present only two—a swell to grand and a grand to pedals; two holes in the jambs, which have been plugged, indicate the position of the remaining two couplers that were originally in the organ. The late Dr. E. T. Chipp, who was organist of St. Olave's from 1847 to 1852, had, I believe, the 'Grand Organ combined' coupler removed when composition pedals were added at his instigation. The great and pedal organs have pneumatic, but the swell only tracker action. The twelve keys below tenor C on the swell are all fixed, and the manual sharps are inlaid with ivory and tortoiseshell.

LAY CLERK AND J.P.

It is extremely rare for a Cathedral Lay Clerk to become an important public functionary. Mr. Dan Harrison, a bass singer in Lichfield Cathedral, has surely beaten the record in this respect. Two years ago he held the office of High Sheriff of the City and County of Lichfield, and now the Lord High Chancellor has conferred upon him the great honour of placing his name on the Commission of the Peace for the city and county of Lichfield. Moreover, Mr. Harrison is a member of the City Council, a member of the Board of Guardians, a Charity Trustee, and Chairman of the School Attendance Committee. Congratulations to Mr. Councillor Dan. Harrison, J.P., and to Cathedral Lay Clerks in general that one of their number has been called to render such useful public service. His lot at Lichfield has fallen unto him in pleasant places. May he have a goodly heritage—judicially as well as musically.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Sir Frederick Bridge, opening of new organ at the Hospital for diseases of the chest, Victoria Park (Concertante, in C, Handel).—Mr. Edwin H. Lemare, St. Margaret's, Westminster (Overture, In Memoriam, Sullivan).—Mr. G. D. Cunningham, St. Luke's, West Hampstead (Andantino in D flat, Chauvet).—Mr. Charlton T. Speer (Overture, 'Ruy Blas,' Mendelssohn), and Mr. George Dyson (Scherzo in B flat, Hoyte), at St. Nicholas, Sutton.—Mr. Arthur S. James, St. Peter's, Rickmansworth.—Mr. Fred. Diggle, St. John's, Galashiels (Festal March in D, Smart).—Mr. C. J. C. Boddington, Presbyterian Church, Stoke Newington (with violin solos by Mr. T. E. Gatehouse).—Mr. H. E. Wall, St. Mary, East Farleigh (Concert Overture in C minor, Hollins).—Mr. Ernest N. Cullum, Holy Trinity, New Charlton.—Mr. F. T. Tookey, St. Cadvan's, Towyn (Variations on the Austrian Hymn, Haydn).—Mr. Fred. Diggle, Longrow United Free Church, Campbeltown (Barcarolle from the Fourth Pianoforte Concerto, Sterndale Bennett).—Mr. A. Thompson, Parish Church, Biggleswade (On a Bass, Stainer).—Mr. T. I. Watts, St. Matthew's Parish Church, Walsall.—Mr. A. F. Hood, All Saints', San Remo (Marche Religieuse, Rheinberger).—Mr. Alfred H. Allen, St. Clement's, Ilford (Andante con Variazioni, Rea).—Mr. Sidney Crookes, Erskine United Free Church, Kinross (Toccata in A, W. T. Best).—Mr. Frank E. Bastick, Winchester Cathedral.—Mr. John Lowe, St. Columba's, Pont Street (Variations on Handel's 'Harmonious Blacksmith,' Lux).—Mr. Edward G. Croager, Paddington Chapel (Scherzo, W. S. Hoyte).—Mr. George Rathbone, Cartmel Priory Church.—Mr. B. Lee, Yeadon Parish Church (Sonata in D minor, Guilmant).—Mr. A. J. Lancashire, St. Andrew's, Grimsby (Fantasia in E flat, Saint-Saëns).—Mr. Henry W. Weston, St. Anne's, Wandsworth (Concert Fantasia in D minor, Stewart).—Mr. S. P. Thornley, Longrow United, Free Church, Campbeltown ('At evening,' Dudley Buck).

ORGAN AND CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Warren T. Clemens, Queen's Cross Free Church Aberdeen.

Mr. R. H. Corfield, St. Margaret's, Streatham.

Mr. Arthur C. Edwards, St. Mary's Parish Church, Ealing.

Mr. R. J. Forbes, St. Paul's Parish Church, Withington, Manchester.

Mr. John Holgate, Coldhurst Parish Church, Oldham.

Mr. George A. Jones, St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Birkenhead.

Mr. Thomas Lane, Littleborough Parish Church.

Mr. C. Plumb, St. Peter's, Minshull Vernon, Crewe.

Mr. Cyril B. Rootham, St. Asaph Cathedral.

Mr. Alfred Silver, Handsworth Parish Church, Birmingham.

Mr. Sydney Rawnsley (solo bass), St. Saviour's, Walton Place.

EAR TRAINING.*

That students of any branch of the art of music should have their powers of listening to music systematically developed might seem to be such an indispensable primal necessity as not to need special advocacy. Yet it is a fact that at least one extensive branch of music teaching—namely, pianoforte playing—has hitherto been so little governed by educational first principles that to-day we find the idea of ear training in such a connection proclaimed as a novelty.

It is worth noting, and not a little remarkable, that whereas in instructing the masses in sight-singing on popular methods—a task mainly undertaken by amateurs—ear training has been nearly universally regarded as a matter of course, the subject has been generally neglected in the professional tuition of pupils able to devote many hours a week to musical study. But all this is to be altered now. Rip van Winkle is just rousing himself.

Some account of the work in popular ear training attempted during the latter part of the nineteenth century may be interesting. Since 1883 the children in the elementary schools of Great Britain have been more or less plied with ear exercises, in order to meet the requirements of the Code laid down by the Education Department (now the Board of Education), and during the same period all students quitting training colleges have been individually tested as to their 'ear telling' capacity. In this way, millions of children and probably 50,000 school teachers have been through some sort of ear training mill. Then, since its establishment, the Tonic Sol-fa College has granted over 620,000 graded certificates, the requirements for every one of which included ear tests mostly of an elementary nature, but in the higher grades tests in naming chords. It would be easy to carp at this great work and to expose its inefficiencies and failures; but a more rational course would be to endeavour to cull lessons in procedure from a patient examination of the means by which successful results have been attained. We are now in a position to ascertain what can be achieved under fairly favourable conditions by experienced teachers, and from this knowledge we may venture to make useful deductions as to methods and the receptivity of average pupils. With respect to methods, some observations will be made later on, and as to results, we have but to recall the frequent occasions when small and large groups of children have publicly written down and afterwards sung simple music performed to them.† At the end of this month 700 children from Bradford schools will, in their own Town Hall, demonstrate in

---

* (1) How to observe Harmony so as to sing more correctly, confidently, and pleasantly. By John Curwen. 1st edition, 16 pp., 1857; later edition, 124 pp. Curwen and Sons.

(2) Instructions to H.M. Inspectors as to the Examination in Singing for Grants from the Education Department. Eyre and Spottiswoode. 1883.

(3) Musical Dictation. A Practical Guide for Musical Students. By Frederic Louis Ritter, Mus. Doc. In Two Parts, forming Nos. 29 (88 pp.) and 30 (124 pp.) of Novello's Music Primers. 1887. Novello and Co., Limited.

(4) Lessons in Audition. For Private or Class Instruction. By Helene M. Sparmann. 104 pp. The John Church Company, New York. 1893.

(5) Elementary Ear Training. Book I.—Melodic. By Frederick G. Shinn, Mus. Doc. 69 pp. Charles Vincent. 1899.

(6) A Practical Course in Ear Training, or a Guide for Acquiring Relative and Absolute Pitch. By Dr. S. Jadassohn, Leipzig. Translated from the German by Le Roy B. Campbell. 78 pp. Breitkopf and Härtel, Leipzig and London, &c. 1899.

(7) Ear Training, a Short Primer for Teacher and Pupil. By Frank J. Sawyer, Mus. Doc. 84 pp. Weekes and Co. 1900.

† In July, 1891, at the Crystal Palace, an adult choir, numbering some thousands of voices, wrote down, as each part was played upon the great organ, a new hymn tune by Sir John Stainer. At the conclusion the singers sang the four parts in harmony from their own written copies.

this way the success of their ear training. In view of all these efforts and their results, it is strange to read in Dr. Sawyer's preface to the book noticed below, that—

> The most neglected side of musical study at the present time is the training of the ear in the recognition of sounds. While teachers are at great pains to teach adequately the theoretical side of the rudiments of music, the practical side—i.e., the sounds represented by the symbols theoretically learnt—is almost entirely neglected. . . . It is in the hope of helping to remove this anomalous state of things that the author has written this short primer on 'Ear Training.'

We are forced to assume that Dr. Sawyer had pianoforte pupils in his mind when he wrote his preface. Otherwise his statements are unjust to the numerous teachers who have spent a fair proportion of their lives in the not very exhilarating task of giving ear exercises to school and other classes.

The supreme question in ear training is the order of the teaching. Here are a great number of facts to be observed, differentiated, related, and tabulated by the mind's ear. How shall they be sorted out?

It would seem obvious that the principle of the order of teaching should be governed entirely by the ascertained way in which the mind works in acquiring the power to observe and memorise. We must start with something which we know from experience the average mind can be brought to realise, and then we must cluster around this nucleus everything that will adhere. This principle is the psychological one. It takes into account only the real factors of the problem.

An alternative plan is to arrange all the matter to be studied in an apparently logical order, dictated by the peculiarities of the form of musical notation to be employed. In this case the notation, which should be the servant, becomes the master. The sequence of the arrangement of matter appears wonderfully simple and attractive, but, unfortunately, in most cases the method results in failure and discouragement. Then the incapacity of the pupil is declared to be the fault.

Experience proves that while only a small proportion of pupils can be trained to permanently memorise absolute pitch, a rather larger proportion can be trained to differentiate the effects of intervals (using the term to define distance), and that by far the largest proportion can be got to realise which degree of the scale is performed irrespective of pitch or the interval from the previous note. It is possible to contrive logical methods of ear training based upon any one of these ideas; but the first is naturally fitted only for the gifted, the second only for the moderately gifted, while the third draws out most of what is possible to the average pupil. The best method in our opinion is that which, while being mainly based upon the observation of scale degrees, developes interval observation and pitch memory as far as the natural abilities of the pupil will permit.

Methods more or less governed in their order of presentation of matter by the form of notation, give all the early exercises in the key of C, gradually introduce other keys in the order of signature development; they assume that intervals with the same name have the same effect in every part of the scale, and introduce chromatics and the minor key without any regard for difficulty.

With these preliminary remarks we pass on to briefly examine the methods unfolded in the batch of books before us.

Insistence on ear training at every stage of teaching has always been one of the strongest points of the best tonic sol-fa teaching. In educational tonic sol-fa literature abundant directions are given as to the systematic treatment of the subject in classes of all kinds and in individual tuition. The aim of all this teaching is to develop power to recognise scale degrees by their character or mental effect irrespective of absolute pitch or interval. If the interval is ascertained, it is spelt from the known position of the scale degrees rather than felt; it is, as it were, a bye-product of the observation of mental effect. It is quite possible for pupils to acquire nearly all that is taught without knowing even the term of absolute pitch or interval. The most highly developed application of this plan of teaching is to be found in 'How to observe Harmony' (1), a work in which the penetrative and methodical genius of the late John Curwen is exemplified at its best. The ear is educated to observe at every step, and the principle of making sure of common things before uncommon things are studied is luminously obeyed. The various approaches to cadences are chosen as illustrating the common 'habits' of chords. No student of ordinary ability could fail to derive valuable ear culture from a patient study of at least the earlier part of this course. The later stages are not so aptly treated and the nomenclature becomes somewhat unwieldy. The 'Instructions to H.M. Inspectors' (2) as to the examination of children in elementary schools are not a course or a method. But they deserve notice in this general review because they bear witness to the conviction of educational authorities as to the desirability of ear training and to a faith in the capability of the masses in our schools to respond to ear training, even in the strictly limited time that can be apportioned to such a study. That this faith has not been wholly in vain is proved by the demonstrations mentioned above. The requirements are, of course, not severe—the highest standard is asked to tell diatonic phrases of four or five notes. But this is a minimum, and school teachers all over the country carry their pupils beyond this point.

'Musical Dictation' (3), by Dr. Ritter, of Vassar College, U.S.A., is an elaborate work. The first exercises are on monotone rhythm. This is in order to accustom students to attack the tonal exercises, all of which are rhythmic. The key of C is used for the first 700 exercises, but the use of other keys is incidentally recommended. The plan is to teach the effect of intervals. Judging from the order in which intervals are introduced it appears to be considered that difficulty varies with width. So the octave comes in quite late in the course. The various intervals, apart from one or two welcome exceptions that appear to have crept in, are introduced only as they happen to spring from the major key-note. It would appear from this that Dr. Ritter after all desired to draw attention to scale degree effect. It is certainly questionable whether such a series of exercises would impart a clear conception of abstract intervals. The next stage introduces passages with chromatic notes, and then the minor key is illustrated in some difficult exercises written without signature, but really far away from key C, it being apparently left to the student to discover by key sense in what key to write. Larger rhythmic periods are now given, and the first book ends with 125 short themes from the works of classical composers. In all there are more than 1,000 exercises in the book. The second book deals with harmony. First come exercises in two parts in octaves, then two parts with every variety of interval, many of the harmonic effects used being very uncommon. The next stages introduce three-part chords, four-part chords, including the dominant seventh, suspensions, and other discords, passing notes follow next, and then modulation is rather fully illustrated. The whole work closes with some exercises in two-part imitative writing. A great feature of the exercises throughout this book is that they are musically interesting. On the whole, the course, viewed broadly, presents the matter in educational order, but the classification of the inner details of each section does not appear to be governed by an intelligible plan. Nowhere is the mental effect of scale degrees or of chords alluded to, and nothing is said as to memorising absolute pitch. The student is expected to assimilate by sheer practice. Dr. Ritter states that the whole work is intended to occupy two school years. As to this we can only envy him the school pupils who could take in all this material in that brief period.

Another book we get from the United States is that entitled 'Lessons in Audition' (4), by Helene M. Sparmann, of Cincinatti. We have been much impressed with the teaching ability displayed in the treatment and arrangement of matter in this admirable book, which is, we believe, one of the most sensible and practical yet written on elementary ear training. Although from an ideal standpoint the order of teaching is too much dictated by the postulates of the staff notation and the form of the pianoforte keyboard, it is fair to recognise that as the expressed intention of the course is to vitalise current 'musical theory,' in connection with pianoforte playing, the authoress was not free to deal with the subject-matter entirely on psychological lines. But, notwithstanding these impedimenta, the exercises are graded with commendable ingenuity and in a manner well calculated to stimulate the attention of average pupils. In an interesting preface the authoress says:—

> My experience in teaching music has taught me that the study of a musical instrument does not necessarily mean the study of music. In fact, the study of an instrument is, if not combined with other exercises, rather a hindrance than a help to a musical education. The difficulty in studying an instrument is that it calls too many faculties into operation at once, so that the faculty of learning musically is lost entirely under the necessity of exercising the sense of sight and the muscular sense in performing upon the instrument. In the effort to train fingers and eyes for a complicated performance, the much more simple training of the ear is entirely neglected. In the born musician the ear trains itself. Not so in the case of the average child; and yet it is the average child that ought to have its ear trained, for art is benefited by the multitude of intelligent listeners, and the artist is stimulated by appreciation to his highest efforts.

The preliminary exercises are intended to awaken interest. As to tune, there is at first nothing said about the effects of scale degrees, and the key of C is exclusively employed. Then accent and measure are very practically taught, and exercises on intervals at all parts of the scale are introduced. "Mental effect" is now discussed and utilised to aid observation, and bit by bit all the elementary facts of music are associated with their notation. Two-part writing and the effects of the tonic, dominant, dominant seventh, and subdominant chords are taught by numerous examples. The minor key is dismissed with 'impossible' brevity, and chromatic accidentals and modulation are not introduced at all, these topics being reserved, we assume, for a second book promised in the preface. The book ends with 160 little vocal melodies, or two-part pieces, consisting chiefly of folk-songs. The next book on our list is that on 'Elementary Ear Training' (5), by Dr. Frederick G. Shinn. This is one of the most recent contributions to educational literature of an able and thoughtful writer, whose career has already been useful and, unless we are greatly mistaken, will be still more useful. Dr. Shinn exhibits a praiseworthy desire to get at the root of things. He is a deep philosopher, and he gives us the benefit of his profound and interesting soliloquies. If at times the literary expression of his expositions is a trifle ponderous, we soon forgive him because of the eloquence of the language he employs. But, if we may say so, Dr. Shinn pays the ordinary reader too high a compliment when he constructs sentences of 117 and 160 words such as are found in the book before us. The plan of the practical sections is to arrange the matter under various topics and to deal with each topic exhaustively. Thus the first chapter treats of the major scale (our venerable and ubiquitous friend key C being much in evidence), then we have the minor scale, next the chromatic scale, then accent and relations of length. A note in the preface directs teachers to introduce all these topics in the early lessons. The second part of the book provides a number of short original melodies, in which all the elements taught separately are now combined, and an interesting chapter on ear training as a form of mental discipline completes the work. The method favoured in impressing tonal effects on the memory is based upon a blend of the observation of the characters of scale degrees and interval distance. Thus the degrees forming the chord of the tonic are to be recognised first, and the other degrees by their suggestive tendencies towards some member of the tonic chord. In fact, nearly all the teaching is directed to enforce attention to the relations of scale degrees to a given tonic. Absolute pitch is not once alluded to between the covers of the book. So we are led to infer that the author does not attach much importance to the cultivation of this sense. Of course the exercises are noted at a definite pitch, but apparently because a pitch notation is used and not simply with a view to impress pitch. In view of its difficulty the minor scale is not treated with sufficient fulness. That difficulty arises from the dual relation every minor key holds to its relative and its tonic major. By choosing C minor for his exercises Dr. Shinn appears to emphasise the tonic major relation. But all the same, those who share tonic sol-fa views as to the nomenclature of the minor scale will bear in mind his remark that > Although there are only three sounds in which the minor scale differs from the major, yet when the other notes such as the second, the fourth, the major sixth, and the major seventh, which remain the same in both scales, are heard in connection with these altered ones, the general effect of melodic progressions in the minor is so different and distinct from corresponding progressions in the major key, that a complete study of all the tonal relations of the several notes of the minor scale and a full appreciation of the characteristic tone colour, is absolutely necessary (p. 19).

The treatment of the chromatic scale is too cursory to be of much use, and with this chapter the special teaching of tonal relations ceases. The remainder of the book is filled with some excellent remarks and exercises on accent and duration, and, as before stated, a number of short melodies conclude the practical part of the work. All interested in the engrossing and fascinating subject of ear training will look forward to Dr. Shinn's next volume.

'A Practical Course in Ear Training,' by Dr. S. Jadassohn, of Leipzig, now claims attention. The aim of this sanguine book is to teach absolute pitch through relative pitch. The author recognises that the observation of relative pitch is the indispensable preliminary. It is not easy to discover an intelligible plan in the order of teaching. The pitch A is first chosen as a 'fundamental.' The first exercises are on consonant intervals, the perfect fourth coming first, next the perfect fifth and the octave, then the thirds and sixths, and, finally, major and minor triads with their two inversions, always with A as the root. So far it would seem to be the intention to get the pupil to memorise the pitch and some of the details of the key of A. The use of other 'fundamentals' is now suggested. Then follow, with dazzling rapidity, brief illustrations rather than exercises on the whole galaxy of dissonant intervals, including the augmented third and the diminished sixth (!). Nothing whatever is said about interval effect or the character of scale degrees. At the conclusion of this chapter the author naïvely observes: 'The pupil has now had a careful drill in all the intervals.' The next steps, or we might say strides, are to two-part, three-part, and four-part chords. Many different keys are now used, and the exercises become extremely difficult, and illustrate most abstruse progressions. We are afraid that we cannot recommend the book to beginners. Musicians may be interested to study it as a compendium of unusual chordal progressions.

'Ear Training, a short Primer for Teacher and Pupil' (7), by Dr. Sawyer, is the last book on our list. We have already made some comments on the preface to this primer, and we have now to examine the method adopted. The course is eminently practical and, in the earlier stages at least, is duly considerate to the beginner. The observation of the mental effect of scale degrees plus interval effect form in the main the basis of the teaching, and the matter is clearly and fully unfolded. The development of a sense of absolute pitch from all this is hoped for rather than promised. In teaching the major scale the tonic chord is first presented and fixed, and the other degrees of the scale are taught as clinging to this foundation. The order is: tonic chord, dominant chord, subdominant chord, which is the exact order, in fact, of the tonic sol-fa method. Next comes the minor scale, the mental effects of the degrees of which are analysed and, in the case of the first, second, fourth, fifth, and seventh, found to be, 'as in the major,' dicta from which, as will be seen from the extract quoted above, Dr. Shinn differs. As, according to the view adopted, the major scale 'contains' the minor, it is assured that there are now only three more relative pitches to introduce to complete the chromatic scale. The next exercises are therefore on the sharp fourth, the flat seventh, and the flat second. The sharp fourth and the flat seventh are taught as modulating factors, and not as true chromatic effects. This being so, it is not easy to see why the sharp tonic and supertonic of the major key, which are, respectively, the leading notes of the supertonic and mediant minor keys, are nowhere shown. They occur frequently enough in music 'as she is wrote' and, certainly, the rarer flat second and flat third never do duty for them enharmonically, because their environment and mental effect are different. A feature of the ensuing section of the course is that, while exercises are now given in many keys, the note C has always to be first performed in order that the pupil may, it is hoped, get into the way of realising the absolute pitch of keys. Many of the exercises in this section strike us as being out of the key indicated by the signature. The tendency of the ear to find a key-note in a short phrase, irrespective of what key-note was previously suggested, does not seem to have been sufficiently considered. The next step is the study of interval effect in the abstract. All the intervals are illustrated and well characterised by their peculiarities, but only when the two notes are struck together, and not as a melodic succession. This is very good so far as it goes, but it must not be supposed that this method of presentation does much to stamp on the mind the melodic effects of intervals. Hitherto, all the exercises have been timeless. The next step is to study rhythm, which is presented only in monotone exercises. Common chords and chords of the seventh and their inversions in major and minor keys now follow. Most of the exercises are commendably easy and illustrative of common progressions, but the somewhat haphazard introduction of chromatic chords, nowhere explained in the book, is likely to puzzle students. The frequent use of the tonic major signature for minor keys is also not calculated to be helpful. All the exercises are original, and of course are well written. Some extracts from classical works would have added to the musical interest. Nevertheless the work, in the hands of a good teacher, will undoubtedly be exceedingly useful, and we may echo the hope of the author, expressed in the preface, that it will help to remove an 'anomalous state of things' wherever it exists.

McN.

REVIEWS.

MUSICAL LITERATURE.

Joseph Joachim. A biography. By Andreas Moser. Translated by Lilla Durham.
[Philip Wellby.]

English admirers of Dr. Joachim—and they number not a few—will hail with delight this excellent biography, in their own vernacular, of the great violinist. Professor Moser modestly disclaims any skill in the domain of authorship. 'After all,' he says, 'I am—only a fiddler'; but there is no need for him to apologise, for he has compiled an interesting, practical, and unverbose biography of his friend and brother artist.

Without following our author through the pages of his readable volume, we may just refer to one or two features of special interest growing out of Dr. Joachim's intercourse with some great men in the realm of music. 'Joachim is one of those rare and lucky mortals whose whole artistic development has been warmed and lighted by full shine,' says his biographer; 'a kind fate never let him experience the thorns and disappointments so common on the artist's path.' As a child of twelve Joseph Joachim came under the influence and (practically) the guardianship of Mendelssohn, who nick-named him 'der Posaunenengel' (trombone cherub). 'No Conservatoire,' said Mendelssohn in effect, 'but picking up, and a thoroughly sound general education.' Another playful appellation of Mendelssohn's was Teufelsbraten (Devil's tit-bit). Joachim made his first public appearance in Leipzig at a concert given by Madame Pauline Viardot-Garcia, in the Gewandhaus, August 19, 1843, a concert made memorable by the fact that Schumann's lovely Variations for two pianofortes were first performed on that occasion, the interpreters being Madame Schumann and Mendelssohn.

The book furnishes some interesting glimpses of Schumann. Here is a charming anecdote:—

> At an evening party given by Mendelssohn, the host had played the Kreutzer Sonata with Joachim. After the music, there was an informal supper party. Joachim sat at a table with Schumann; it was summer time, and the starlit sky was visible through the open-wide window. Schumann, who had long remained silent, presently laid his hand gently on the knee of his little neighbour, and pointing heavenwards, gently said: 'I wonder whether beings exist up there who know how beautifully a little boy here below has just played the Kreutzer Sonata with Mendelssohn?'

No less interesting is the recorded intercourse with Liszt during Joachim's three years' residence at Weimar (1850-1853)—in fact, there is not a page in the volume that does not repay perusal. Reared in a strictly classical school, the boy became rather prejudiced against Liszt. He told Mendelssohn, who replied: 'Na, my son, wait a bit; there is so much that is unusual and beautiful in his playing that

I feel sure you will return entirely converted.' But Joachim did not take kindly to the new German school, and though he and Liszt remained the best of friends their artistic pathways lay in different directions.

Brahms—Joachim's 'comrade in arms'—was a friend of more than forty years' standing. Here is a characteristic reply from Brahms, written on a post card, to a request that he should play the pianoforte part in his F minor Quintet with Joachim and his colleagues in Vienna:—

> . . . On no account! Not even if you were four as 'beloved, lovely, loved-ones,' as you are sober, respected men! But I am only here for twenty-four hours, and go on to Carlsbad to-day, so forgive me if I thank you heartily. I look forward to December, and beg for a Haydn on the programme.
>
> As heartily as heartily, your
>
> J. B.

Bravo! Brahms. 'A Haydn on the programme' is good.

The temptation to quote from these pages—and there are many plums to be picked—must be resisted. The translator, Miss Durham, has done her work well, and the fourteen portraits and facsimiles (including the cadenza to Beethoven's concerto made by Joachim in London as a boy, lent by Mr. Arthur F. Hill) add not a little to the interest of the book. More might have been recorded of the English side of the great fiddler's artistic life, and mention should, we think, have been made of the lessons he received in orchestration from Sir G. A. Macfarren, as related by Dr. Joachim in the biographical sketch given of him in our issue of April, 1898; but these shortcomings do not detract from the general excellence of this 'Life' of one of the greatest of violinists. It is a book that deserves and that assuredly will have many readers.

Chopin the Man and his Music. By James Huneker.

[William Reeves.]

Although Mr. Huneker calls Professor Niecks 'the iconoclast' (p. 40 of his book), he, in common with all writers on Chopin, freely takes his biographical information from the Life of the great composer of the pianoforte, a biography written, once for all, by the Edinburgh professor. The first section of the book—that entitled 'The Man'—need not, therefore, detain us. It is the 'His music' portion of this volume of some 400 pages which possesses the most interest, by reason of the great editing question. Mr. Huneker says, 'Only in Karl Klindworth has Chopin found a worthy, though not a faultless editor. His edition is a work of genius, and was called by Von Bülow the only model edition. As a whole, his (Klindworth's) editing is amazing for its exactitude, scholarship, fertility in novel fingerings, and sympathetic insight in phrasing.' A composer may well say, 'Save me from my editors,' when we consider the differences in the text of those Chopin editors who have taken the original manuscripts as their authority! In regard to the question of fingering, our author says: 'Mikuli, Von Bülow, Kullak, Riemann, and Klindworth all differ, and from them must most pianists differ'! And as to the rubato, he wisely observes: 'You can no more teach a real Chopin rubato—not the mawkish imitation—than you can make a donkey comprehend Kant'—'you Kant do it,' as not a few of Mr. Huneker's countrymen (U.S.A.) would say. Metronomic indications furnish a thorny subject for discussion. Take, for instance, the F major study. The composer's autograph gives minim = 96; whereas Klindworth and Kullak suggest 80; Tellefsen, Mikuli, and Riemann, 88; and Von Bülow, 89.

While it is impossible to accept all Mr. Huneker's views on Chopin and his wonderful creations, he says some wise things. For instance: 'To translate into prose, into any language no matter how poetical, the images aroused by his music, is impossible.' Again, in referring to the Studies (Op. 25) and to No. 1 (in A flat), in particular: 'All that modern editing can do since Mikuli is to hunt out fresh accentuation. Von Bülow is the worst sinner in this respect, for he discovers quaint nooks and dells for his dynamics undreamed of by the composer. His edition should be respectfully studied and, when mastered, discarded for a more poetic interpretation. Above all, poetry, poetry and pedals. Without pedalling of the most varied sort this study will remain as dry as a dog-gnawed bone.'

In the useful Chopin Bibliography which Mr. Huneker has furnished we miss the interesting and amusing paper 'Reminiscences of Frederick Chopin,' read by his (Chopin's) friend, the late G. A. Osborne, before the Musical Association, on April 5, 1880. We have before called attention to the inaccuracy of musical examples to be found in books set up in America; and, assuming that the book under notice has been printed from plates imported from the 'other side,' we still find room for improvement in this respect—for instance, one example has the wrong clef for the left hand passage!

Finally, in regard to the question of derangement and tinkering—'bedevilment,' as Mr. Huneker may well call it—we learn that the pianist Godowsky has concocted a caprice called 'Badinage,' which is a bedevilment of two studies by Chopin—'in the right hand is the G flat study (Op. 25, No. 9) and in the left hand the black key study (Op. 10, No. 5)'! But still worse: 'The F minor study (Op. 25, No. 2), as considered by the ambidextrous Godowsky, is put in the bass, where it whirrs along to the melodic encouragement of a theme of the paraphraser's own (!) in the right.' What next?

SONGS.

Parted. Words by Fred. E. Weatherly. Music by F. Paolo Tosti.

Violets. Words by Julian Fane. Music by Ellen Wright.

The Indian Serenade. Words by Percy Bysshe Shelley. Music by Norman O'Neill.

[G. Ricordi and Co.]

It need scarcely be said that Signor Tosti's song concerns a pair of lovers. They are manifestly very young. To youthful minded singers who take delight in 'sweet melancholy' and skin-deep sorrow, the song will doubtless appeal, especially as the music is written with Signor Tosti's usual deftness for securing the maximum effect by the simplest means. The text of Miss Wright's song is a translation of Heine's 'Morgens send' ich Dir die Veilchen,' and the original German is printed under Mr. Fane's neat translation. Miss Wright has manifestly written for soprano vocalists, and such will find a simple and melodious setting in sympathy with the spirit of the words. The title, 'The Indian Serenade,' to Shelley's exquisite little poem, 'I arise from dreams of thee,' seems scarcely justified. The original heading was simply 'Lines to an Indian air,' but there is nothing to suggest a dusky lover; on the contrary, the line 'On my lips and eyelids pale' manifestly refers to a fair-skinned Western suppliant. The poem, however, by any other name would be as sweet, and Mr. O'Neill's music does not affect Eastern musical idiom. He has written very earnestly, and his conscientious endeavours to be at one with his text are at times more manifest than they should be; but he has caught the restless, agonising spirit of the poem, and the song is worthy of the attention of cultured tenor vocalists.

Six Lyrics. For Voice and Pianoforte. Composed by Walter Hately. [Charles Vincent.]

We are inclined to think these six lyrics the most successful compositions from Mr. Hately's pen. They are severally named 'The violet's grave,' 'The false, cruel sea,' 'The hours,' 'Over a shining land,' 'Autumn clouds are flying, flying,' and 'Happiest days.' The text of the first song is by J. Logie Robertson, the second and third by Dr. Walter C. Smith, the fourth and fifth by George Macdonald, and the sixth by an anonymous writer; and each lyric contains a 'sweet reasonableness' that will appeal to cultured singers. The songs are all dedicated to Madame Clara Butt, and there is internal evidence that Mr. Hately had this artist's voice and style in mind as he penned his music. They will, however, be found suitable for average mezzo-sopranos, to whose attention we recommend them as artistic examples of the modern song.

If ye then be risen.

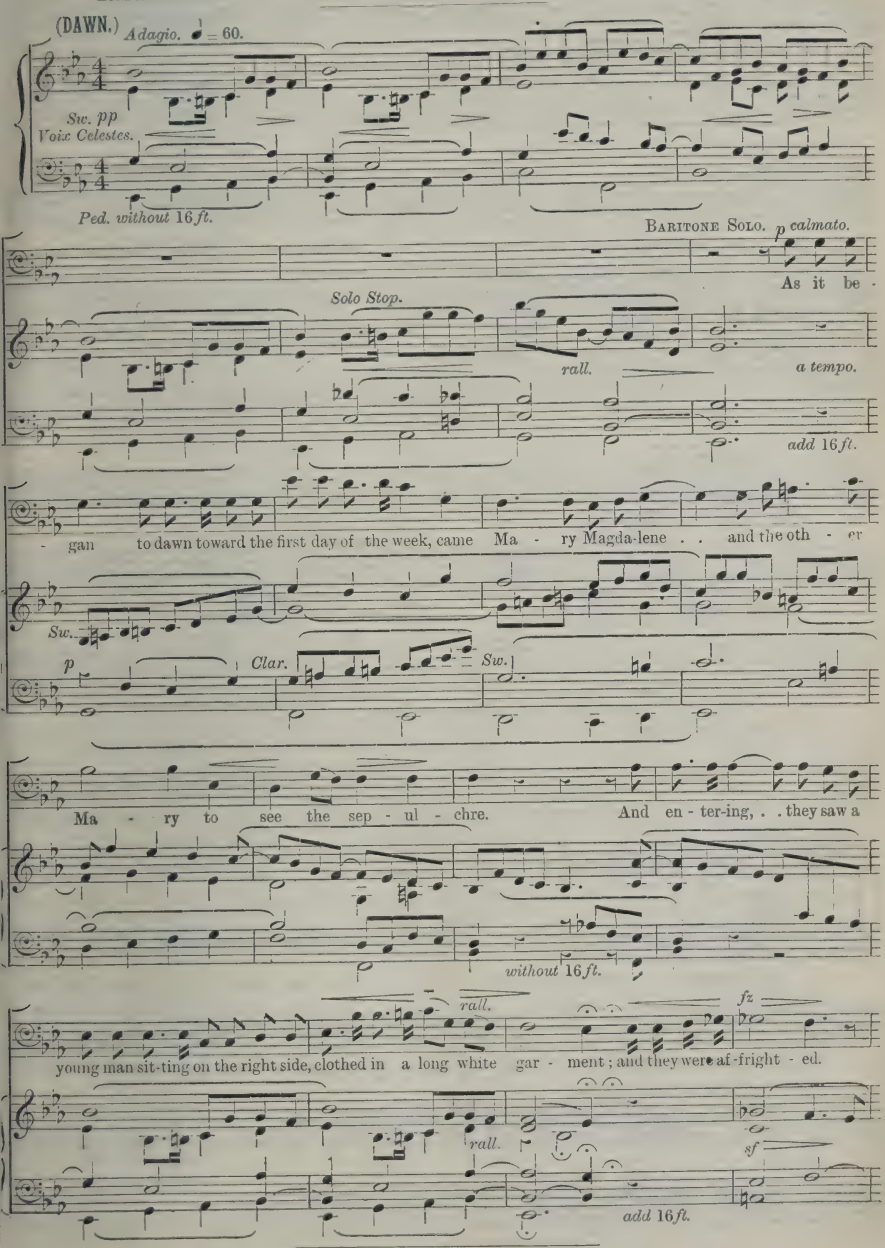
(AS IT BEGAN TO DAWN.)

ANTHEM FOR EASTER.

Words from St. Matthew and St. Mark; Colossians iii. 1—4; Collect for Easter Day; Psalm xxxii. 12.

Composed by H. M. Higgs.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited; and NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., New York.



(DAWN.)
Adagio. ♩ = 60.
Sw. pp
Voix Celestes.
Ped. without 16ft.
Baritone Solo. p calmato.
As it be -
Solo Stop.
rall.
a tempo.
add 16ft.
- gan to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Ma - ry Magda-lene . . and the oth - er
Sw.
p
Clar.
Sw.
Ma - ry to see the sep - ul - chre. And en - ter-ing, . . they saw a without 16ft.
rall.
fz
young man sit-ting on the right side, clothed in a long white gar - ment; and they were af-fright - ed.
rall.
sf
add 16ft.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

p Soprano Solo.
f
And He saith unto them, . . Be not af fright-ed: Ye seek Je - sus of Naz-ar-eth, which was add Full Sw.
ff reduce.
sf accel. e cres.
a tempo.
rall.
cru - ci-fied, which was cru - ci - fied: He is ris - en; . . He is not here: be-hold the place where they accel. e cres.
Gt. both hands.
a tempo.
p
Sw. colla voce.
pp laid . . Him.
Tempo 1mo.
pp
rall.
without 16 ft.
Lento, ma non troppo.
Soprano.
rall.
ten.
Al - might - y God, Who through Thine on - ly-be - got - ten Son Je - sus Christ hast
Alto.
Al - might - y God, Who through Thine on - ly-be - got - ten Son Je - sus Christ hast
Tenor.
Al - might - y God, Who through Thine on - ly-be - got - ten Son, Je - sus Christ hast
Bass.
Al - might - y God, Who through Thine on - ly-be - got - ten Son, Je - sus Christ hast Lento, ma non troppo. ♩ = 66.
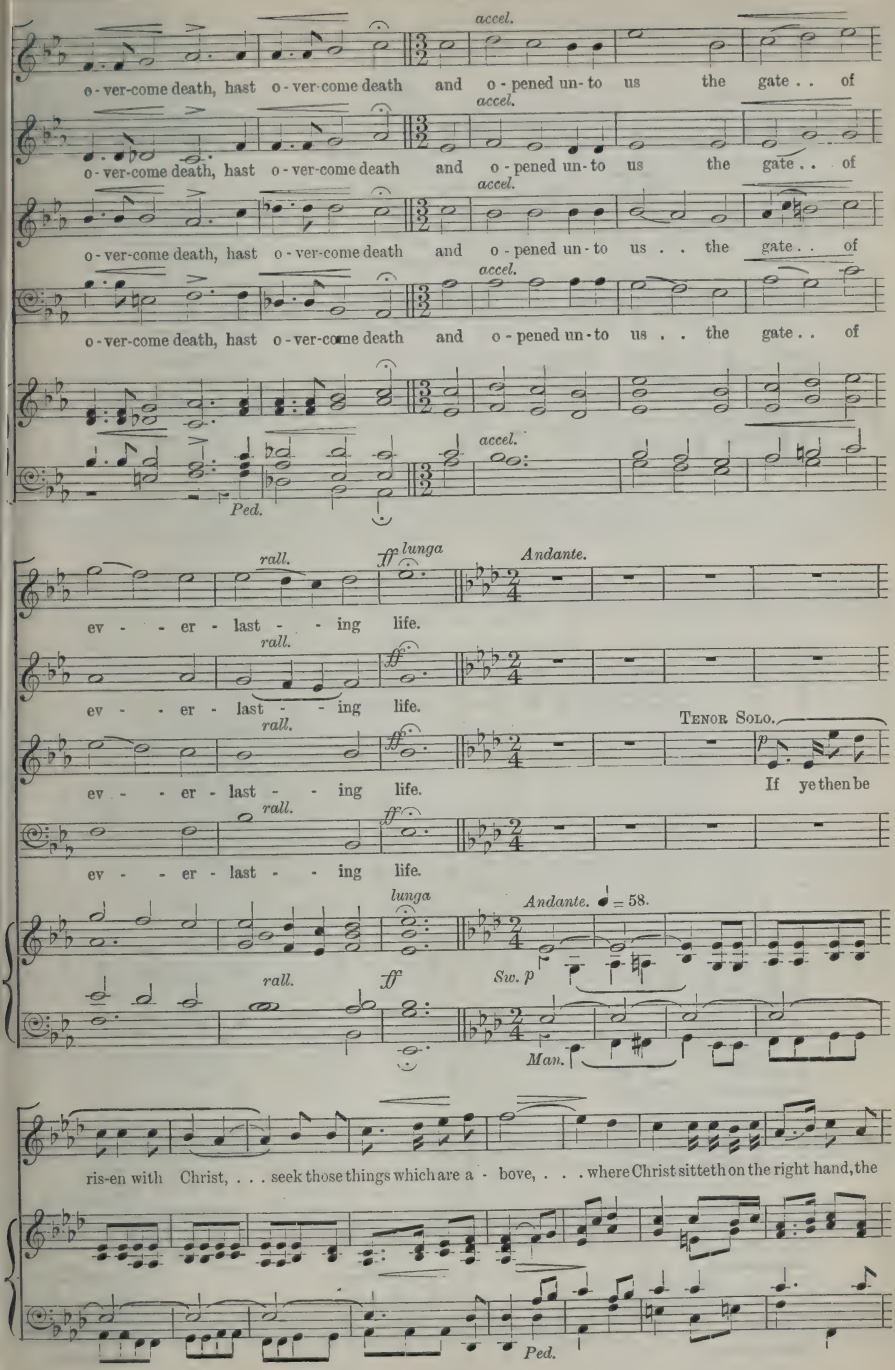
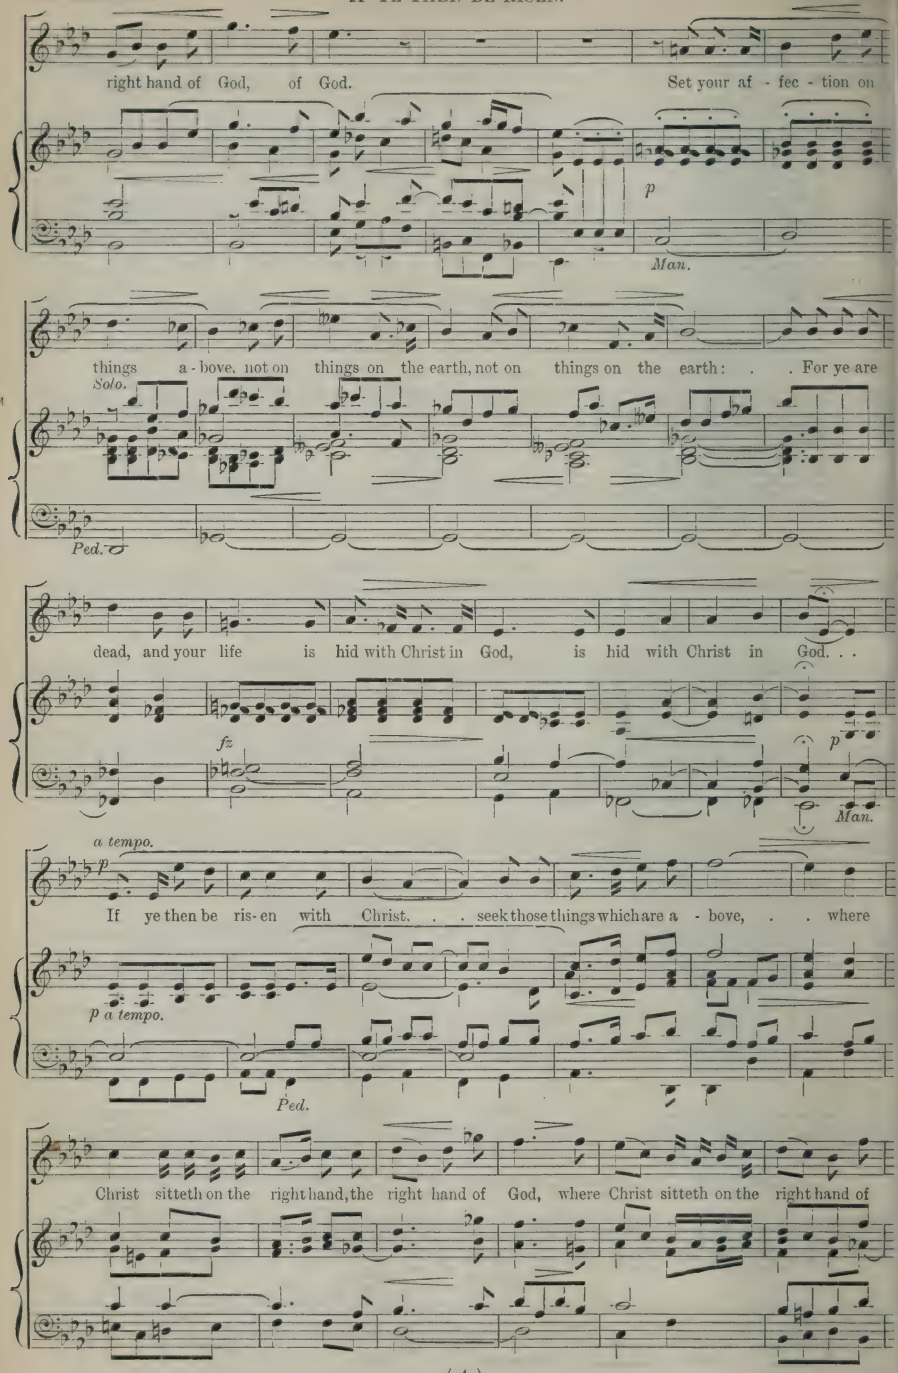
Gt. f



accel.
o - ver-come death, hast o - ver-come death and o - pened un - to us the gate . . of
accel.
o - ver-come death, hast o - ver-come death and o - pened un - to us the gate . . of
accel.
o - ver-come death, hast o - ver-come death and o - pened un - to us . . the gate . . of
accel.
o - ver-come death, hast o - ver-come death and o - pened un - to us . . the gate . . of
Ped.
accel.
rall.
ff lunga
Andante.
ev - - er - last - - ing life.
rall.
ev - - er - last - - ing life.
rall.
ev - - er - last - - ing life.
Tenor Solo.
p
If ye then be
rall.
ev - - er - last - - ing life.
lunga
Andante. ♩ = 58.
rall.
ff
Sw. p
Man.
ris-en with Christ, . . . seek those things which are a - bove, . . . where Christ sitteth on the right hand, the
Ped.



right hand of God, of God.
Set your af - fec - tion on
p
Man.
things a - bove, not on things on the earth, not on things on the earth: . . For ye are Solo.
Ped.
dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God, is hid with Christ in God. . .
fz
p
Man.
a tempo.
p
If ye then be ris-en with Christ. . . seek those things which are a - bove, . . where p a tempo.
Ped.
Christ sitteth on the right hand, the right hand of God, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God, . . . of God. . .

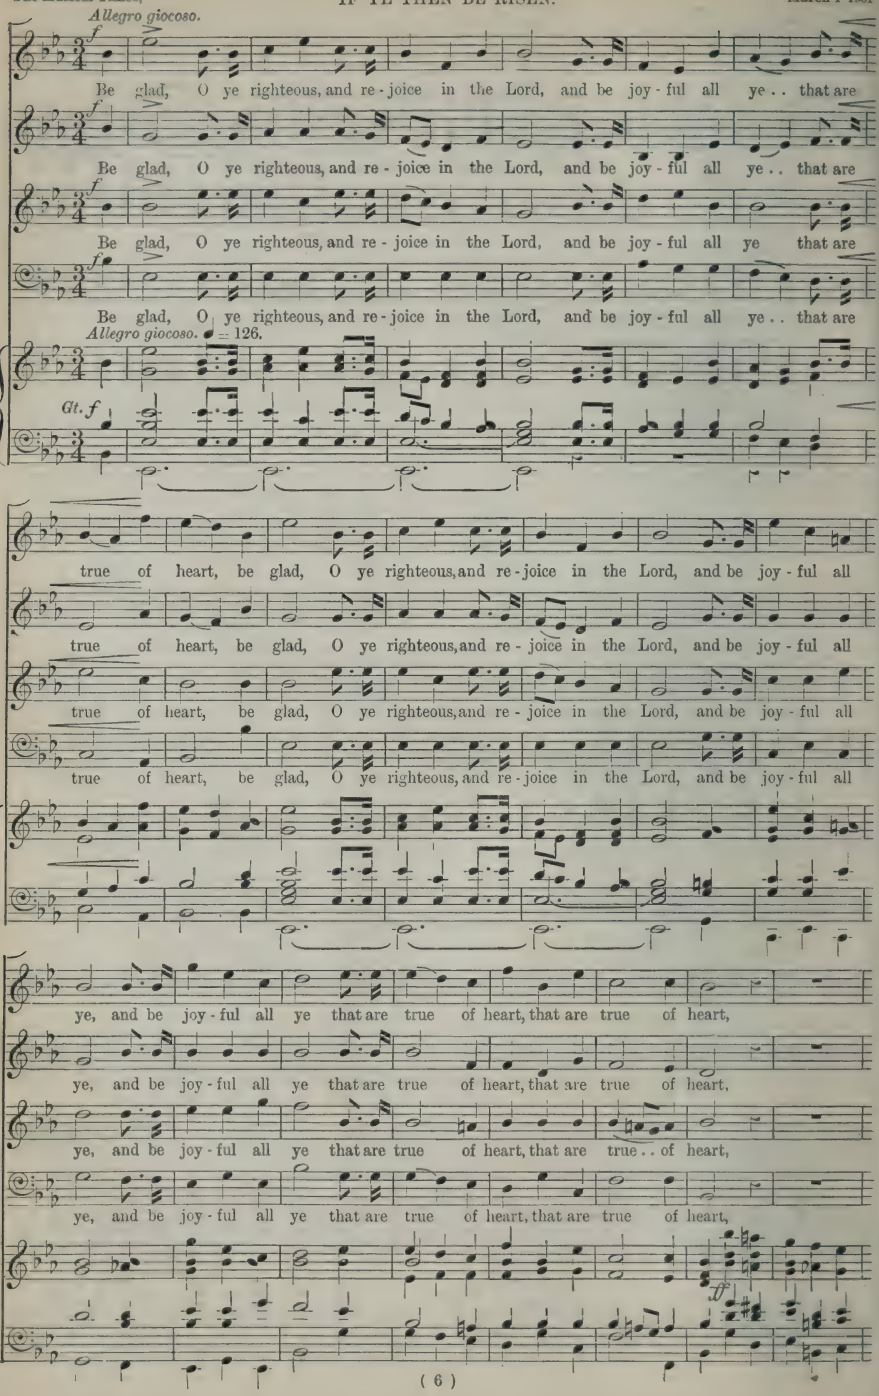
Solo.
p
rall.
Maestoso. ♩ = 96.
Gt. f coupled to Full Sw.
Full. Boldly.
f
When Christ, . . . Who is our life, shall ap -
cres.
rall.
- pear, then shall ye al - so ap - pear with Him, ap - pear with Him in glo - ry.



Allegro giocoso.
f
Be glad, O ye righteous, and re - joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye .. that are
Be glad, O ye righteous, and re - joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye .. that are
Be glad, O ye righteous, and re - joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye that are
Be glad, O ye righteous, and re - joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye .. that are Allegro giocoso. ♩ = 126.
Gt. f true of heart, be glad, O ye righteous, and re - joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all true of heart, be glad, O ye righteous, and re - joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all true of heart, be glad, O ye righteous, and re - joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all true of heart, be glad, O ye righteous, and re - joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye, and be joy - ful all ye that are true of heart, that are true of heart, ye, and be joy - ful all ye that are true of heart, that are true of heart,
ye, and be joy - ful all ye that are true of heart, that are true .. of heart, ye, and be joy - ful all ye that are true of heart, that are true of heart,
ff

be glad and re-joice in the Lord, be be glad and re-joice in the Lord,
be glad . . . and re-joice in the Lord,
be glad and re-joice in the Lord, glad . . . and re-joice, re-joice in the Lord, be glad and re-joice in the be glad and re-joice, re-joice in the Lord, be glad and re-joice in the be glad and re-joice, re-joice in the Lord, be glad and re-joice in the be glad and re-joice, re-joice in the Lord, be glad and re-joice in the
cres.
Lord, . . . be glad, O ye righteous, and re-joice in the Lord, re-joice, re-
Lord, . . be glad, O ye righteous, and re-joice in the Lord, re-joice, re-
Lord, . . . be glad, O ye righteous, and re-joice in the Lord, re-joice, re-
Lord, . . . be glad, O ye righteous, and re-joice in the Lord, re-joice, re-

- joice, re - joice in the Lord, . . . be glad and re - joice, . . . re -
- joice, re - joice in the Lord, . . . be glad and re - joice, . . . re -
- joice, re - joice in the Lord, . . . be glad and re - joice, . . . re -
- joice, re - joice in the Lord, . . . be glad and re - joice, . . . re -
- joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye that are true of heart.
- joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye that are true of heart.
- joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye that are true of heart.
- joice in the Lord, and be joy - ful all ye that are true of heart.
ff
32 ft.
Hal - le - lu - jah, Hal - le - lu - jah. . A - men.
Hal - le - lu - jah, Hal - le - lu - jah. A - men.
Hal - le - lu - jah, Hal - le - lu - jah. A - men.
Hal - le - lu - jah. Hal - le - lu - jah. A - men.
ff Full Org.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1184, price 1½d.

NOW LATE ON THE SABBATH DAY

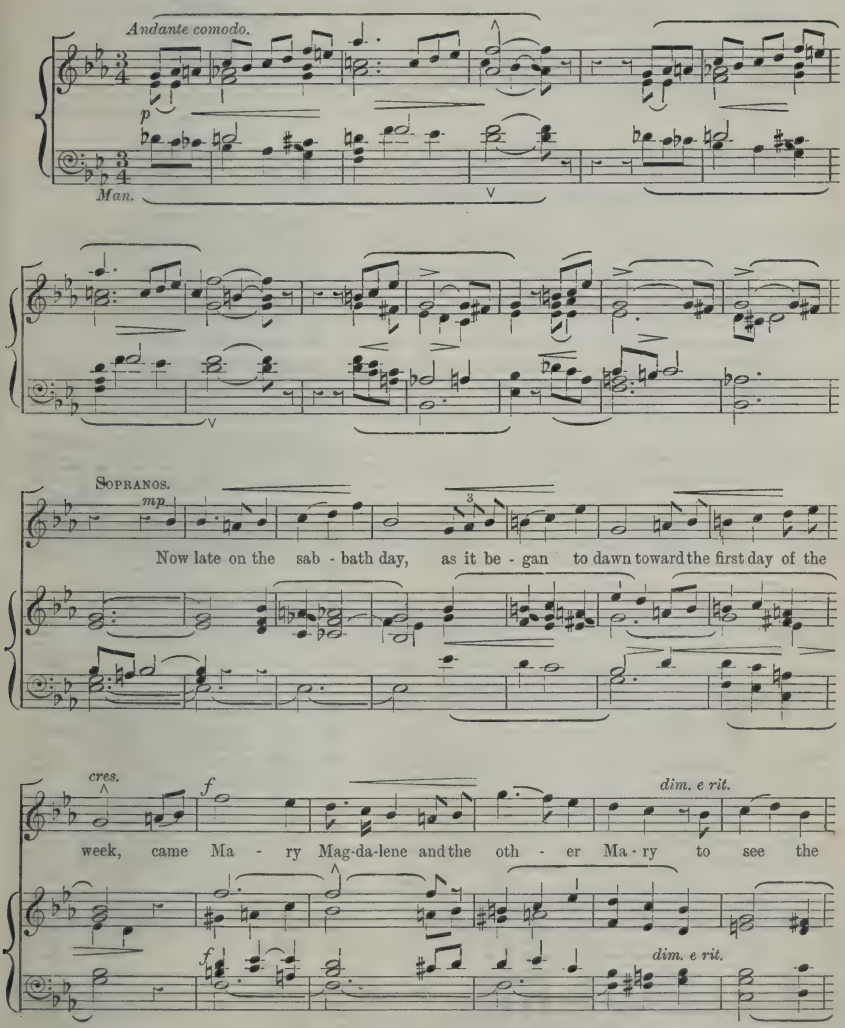
ANTHEM FOR EASTERTIDE

St. Matt. xxviii. 1—9, 19, 20.
(Revised version.)

COMPOSED BY

S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Andante comodo.
p
Man.
SOPRANOS.
mp
Now late on the sab - bath day, as it be - gan to dawn toward the first day of the cres.
f
dim. e rit.
week, came Ma - ry Mag-da-lene and the oth - er Ma - ry to see the
f
dim. e rit.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

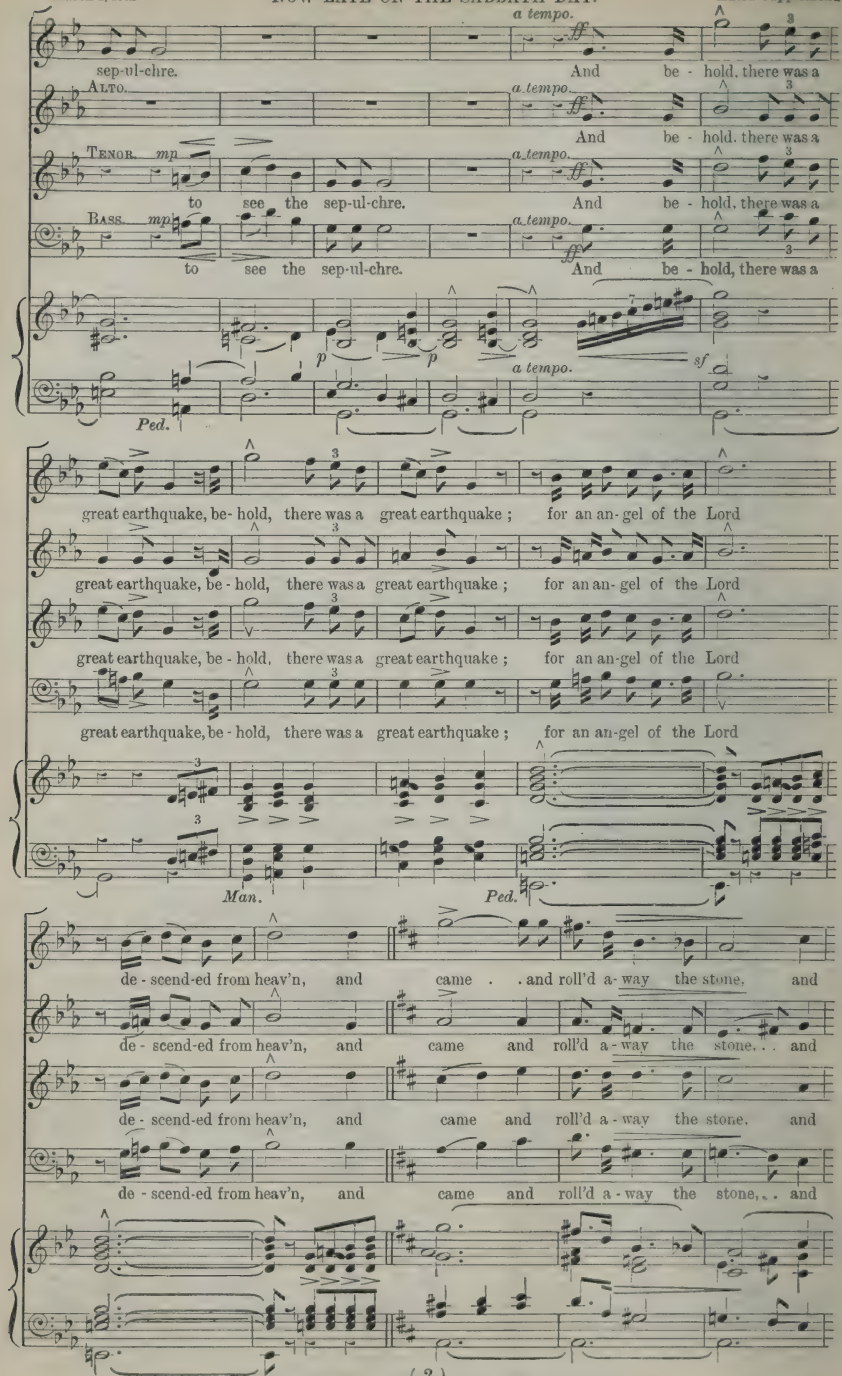
NOW LATE ON THE SABBATH DAY.



a tempo.
sep-ul-chre.
And be - hold, there was a
Alto.
And be - hold, there was a
Tenor. mp
to see the sep-ul-chre.
And be - hold, there was a Bass. mp
to see the sep-ul-chre.
And be - hold, there was a
p
Ped.
sf great earthquake, be - hold, there was a great earthquake; for an an-gel of the Lord Man.
Ped.
de - scend-ed from heav'n, and came . . and roll'd a - way the stone, and de - scend-ed from heav'n, and came and roll'd a - way the stone. . and de - scend-ed from heav'n, and came and roll'd a - way the stone, and de - scend-ed from heav'n, and came and roll'd a - way the stone, . . and

NOW LATE ON THE SABBATH DAY.

sat up-on it, came . . and roll'd away the stone, and sat upon it.

sat up-on it, came and roll'd away the stone, and sat upon it.

sat up-on it, came and roll'd away the stone, and sat upon it.

sat up-on it, came and roll'd away the stone, and sat upon it.

f

His ap-pear-ance was as light-ning, and his rai-ment white as snow:

His ap-pear-ance was as light-ning, and his rai-ment white as snow:

His ap-pear-ance was as light-ning, and his rai-ment white as snow: and for

His ap-pear-ance was as light-ning, and his rai-ment white as snow: and for

mf

Svv.

Ped.

Poco più mosso.

mf

and for fear . . . of him the

and for fear . . . of him the fear . . . of him the watch-ers did quake, the fear . . . of him the watch-ers did quake, the

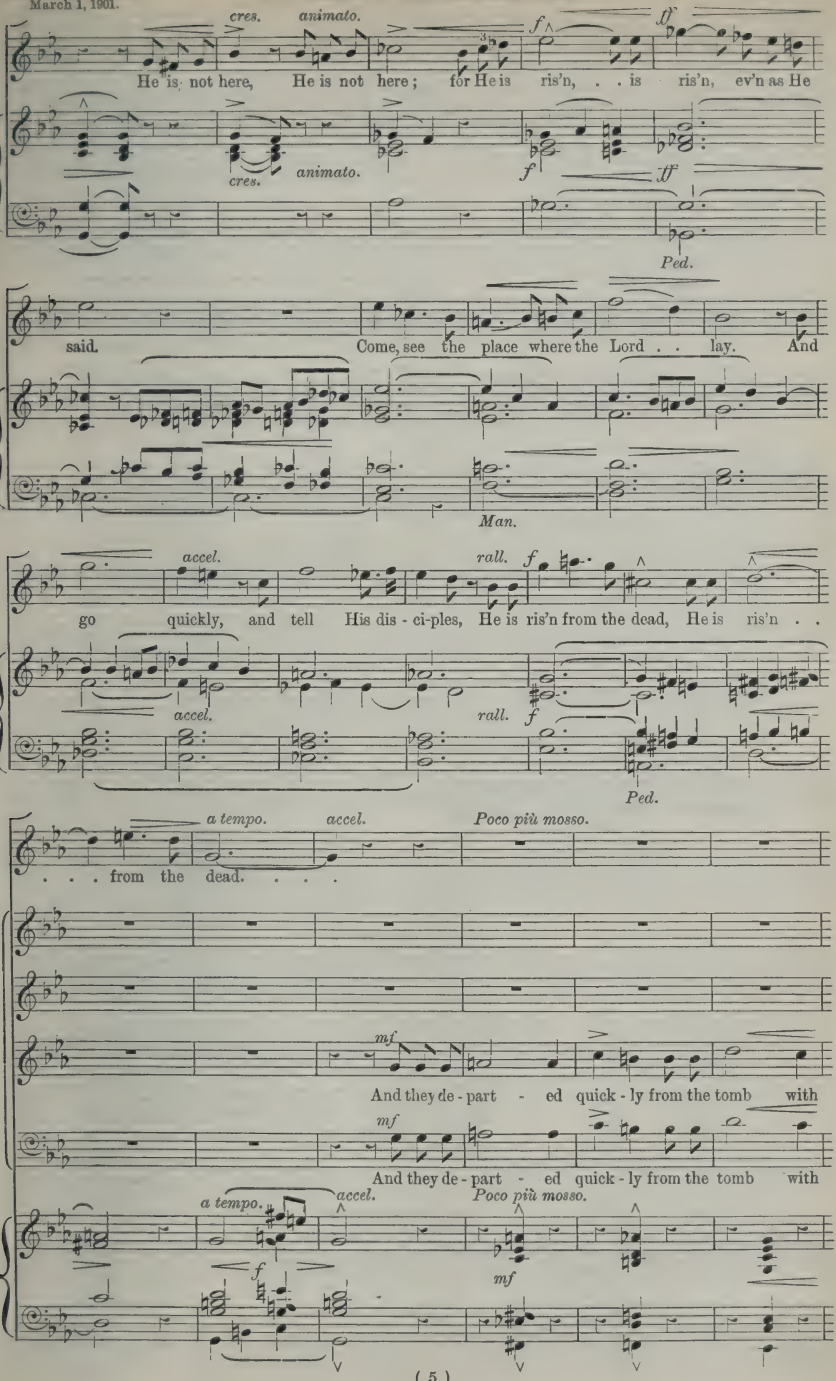
Poco più mosso.

watch - ers did quake, and be - came as dead men.
watch - ers did quake, and be - came as dead men.
watch - ers did quake, and be - came as dead men.
watch - ers did quake, and be - came as dead men.
mf
Tempo 1mo.
f
p
f
Man.
Soprano Solo.
mf
And the an - gel
cres.
rall.
f a tempo (poco allargando).
an- swer'd and said un-to the wo - men, Fear not ye; . . for I know that ye
rall.
f a tempo (poco allargando).
Ped.
Man.
rit.
mp
seek . . Je - sus, which hath been cru - ci - fied.
p rit.



cres. animato.
f
ff
He is not here, He is not here; for He is ris'n, . . is ris'n, ev'n as He cres. animato.
f ff
Ped. said. Come, see the place where the Lord . . lay. And Man.
accel.
rall.
f
go quickly, and tell His dis - ci-ples, He is ris'n from the dead, He is ris'n . .
accel.
rall.
f
Ped.
a tempo.
accel.
Poco più mosso.
. . . from the dead. . . .
mf
And they de - part - ed quick - ly from the tomb with
mf
And they de - part - ed quick - ly from the tomb with
a tempo.
accel.
Poco più mosso.
f mf

mf and ran to bring His dis - ci - ples word. . . . And be -
f fear and great joy, And be - Allegro.
accel.
cres.
ff
- hold, . . Je - sus met them, say - ing, All hail,
Andante largamente.
All hail. Go ye therefore, and make dis - ci - ples of all the molto rall.

na- tions, bap - ti - zing them in-to the Name . . of the Fath - er and of the Son na- tions, bap - ti - zing them in-to the Name of the Fath - er and of the Son na- tions, bap - ti - zing them in-to the Name of the Fath - er and of the Son na- tions, bap - ti - zing them in-to the Name of the Fath - er and of the Son and of the Ho - ly Ghost: . . . teaching them . . to ob -
and of the Ho - ly Ghost: . . . teaching them . . to ob -
and of the Ho - ly Ghost: . . . teaching them . . to ob - and of the Ho - ly Ghost: . . . teaching them . . to ob -
mf
Ped.
- serve all things what - so - ev- er I com - mand-ed you: and
- serve all things what - so - ev- er I com - mand - ed you: and
- serve all things what - so - ev- er I com - mand - ed you: and
- serve all things what - so - ev - er I com- mand - ed you: and rall. poco a poco.

lo, I am with you al - way, un - to the end . .
lo, I am with . . you al - way, . . . un - to the end . .
lo, I am with you al - way, . . . un - to the end . .
lo, I am with . . you al - way, un - to the end . .
of the world. . . . . A - - men. . .
of the world. . . . . A - - men. . .
of the world. . . . . A - - men. . .
of the world. . . . . A - - men. . .

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 1183, price 1½*d.*

REVIEWS—continued.

SONGS.

If love's a sweet passion. When I have often heard.
Hark! Hark! the ecch'ing air.

Three Songs from 'The Fairy Queen.' Composed by Henry Purcell. Edited by J. S. Shedlock.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Those who were fortunate enough to be present at the private revival of Purcell's 'Fairy Queen'—held on July 6, 1900, and which we recorded in our August issue—were much struck with the charm of some of the songs in that opera. The enthusiastic antiquary, Mr. J. S. Shedlock, who was responsible for that interesting resuscitation, has therefore done well to issue a practical edition of three of those quaint old-time ditties. The first is a plaintive theme in G minor, the second, in A, is remarkable for the prevalence of skips in the melody, and the third, in B flat, with its delightful divisions, is by no means the least attractive of this set. We feel sure that soprano singers in search of something really good will find this trio of thoroughly English songs to their taste. The author of the words is unknown. Here is a specimen of his poetry:—

> If Love's a sweet passion, why does it torment,
> If a bitter, oh! tell me whence comes my content?
> Since I suffer with pleasure, why should I complain,
> Or grieve at my Fate when I know 'tis in vain?
> Yet so pleasing the pain is, so soft is the dart,
> That at once it both wounds me and tickles my heart.

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

School Marches. Book II. Arranged for Pianoforte solo.

Intermezzo, from the Variations on an Original Theme for Orchestra. (Op. 36.) By Edward Elgar.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

The fifteen marches contained in this volume form a fitting sequel to those that appeared in Book I. Here we find a variety of subjects—e.g., Turkish, Gipsy, Birthday, and Wedding—marchily illustrated by composers of divers gifts, from Beethoven to Rouget de Lisle. Many girls, and, for that matter, boys will doubtless feel their marching powers stimulated by the rhythmic strains which these thirty pages furnish at a trifling cost.

The Intermezzo is one of the most pleasing variations of Dr. Elgar's popular work. The music must perforce lose in effect by being played on the pianoforte, but it may be taken for granted that, as the composer himself has prepared the present arrangement, he has made the most of his opportunity. The piece furnishes full scope for a delicate touch and poetical intuitiveness, especially if the idea of the muted whisperings of the orchestral strings enters into the soul of the performer on the household instrument.

Prelude, Capriccio, and Gavotte. By Mary Crawford.
Legende in E minor. By Paul Colberg.

[Forsyth Brothers.]

Miss Crawford's pieces may be recommended to amateurs in search of artistic music of moderate difficulty. The first, in A minor, forms an expressive introduction, the music exciting our expectancy, which is fantastically answered in the Capriccio; and the Gavotte is an admirable example of the stately old dance measure.

An element of mysticism is expected in 'Legendes,' and it will be duly found in Mr. Colberg's music. The piece also possesses pleasing sentiment, to which a pianist of average ability will find it easy to give effective expression.

VIOLIN AND VIOLA MUSIC.

Chanson de Nuit for Viola and Pianoforte. Edward Elgar. [Novello and Company, Limited.]

Mr. Elgar has arranged this beautiful piece for viola, for which it is well suited. Expressive players will find a delightful solo and a welcome addition to the limited répertoire of the viola.

Elegie and Scherzo for Violin and Pianoforte. H. Waldo Warner. [Novello and Company, Limited.]

Two charming solo pieces, well-written for the instrument, and of decided musical value. The beautiful, broad theme of the Elegie will here again prove very attractive to expressive players, and a good study in expression for those not specially gifted.

The Scherzo is a very bright and effective piece, the thrown staccato stroke being most brilliantly used. Mr. Warner is to be congratulated on his two solos, they are very much above the average, and in capable hands will be most effective concert pieces.

RECORDERS.

Dr. J. C. Bridge, Organist of Chester Cathedral, discoursed upon Recorders at the meeting of the Musical Association, on the 12th ult., when his brother, Sir Frederick Bridge, occupied the chair.

In the course of his interesting observations Dr. Bridge said that Mr. Welch, at a meeting of the Association in 1898, had given such an exhaustive lecture on 'Recorders' that little more was to be said historically; but he (the lecturer) had an advantage in having brought with him a set of Recorders, or Flutes-a-Bec, belonging to the Chester Archæological Society. They were found in an old box on the removal of the Society into fresh quarters in 1886. There is only one other set known to be in existence, and that is at Nuremberg, which consists of seven (originally eight) flutes. The Chester set consists of soprano in key of F (first space), alto in D, tenor in C, and bass in F, one octave below treble. The maker's name is Bressan, and the instruments were probably made at the end of the seventeenth or in the early part of the eighteenth century.

The word 'recorder' seems at one time to have been synonymous with 'flute,' and the instruction books of the seventeenth century made use of both names. By degrees, however, the word flute alone was retained, and finally recorders were called 'common flutes,' and died a natural death when the flauto traverso came into use about the middle of the eighteenth century. There can be no doubt that recorders were originally expensive instruments. Moreover, they were popular with royalty, for Henry VII. purchased them and rewarded players thereupon, and Henry VIII. died possessed of no less than seventy-six of these instruments! Pepys records with what delight he purchased a recorder, 'the sound of it being most pleasing' to him; and Evelyn says (1679), 'they are now much in request for accompanying the voice.'

The music for the recorder was undoubtedly of a simple nature, as semitones could only be obtained by cross fingering. The feature of the instrument is the thumb-hole at the back. It is frequently stated that the recorder derives its name from an aperture which existed between the embouchure and the first finger-hole. It was covered with bladder or skin, and gave a peculiar 'warbling' tone. The lecturer said there was no justification for this statement, no instruction book mentioned it, and no picture gave any clue to its construction, and the only specimen known, and said to belong to the sixteenth century, had been examined by Mr. Welch and proved to have been made about 1810—probably as an experiment.

The music performed comprised a 'Vaudeville' for recorders, played upon the pianoforte, a Gavotte by Henri le Jeune (1636), played upon three recorders, and a Quartet for the four recorders composed by the lecturer, who was assisted in the illustrations by the Rev. J. L. Bedford, of Chester, and Messrs. Ratcliffe and Finn. Dr. Bridge also referred to the 'Pibcorn,' an old wind instrument used by the Welsh. He played 'The Red House of Cardiff' with the Rev. J. L. Bedford, who performed on an instrument made in exact imitation of one described in the last century by the Hon. Daines Barrington. The tone certainly bore out Mr. Barrington's description as being 'like an indifferent hautboy.'

Miss Muriel Foster, who has recently achieved great success in Gluck's 'Orpheus' at Frankfort, has gone to Canada for two months, where she will sing with Madame Albani's concert party.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

The inclusion of the 'Hora Novissima' of Professor Horatio W. Parker in the programme of the concert on the 20th ult., by this Society, at the Albert Hall was very welcome, for the strength of the work lies in its choruses. Therefore it need hardly be said that the cleverly and deftly written numbers, with their ingeniously worked up climaxes, afforded many opportunities for the legitimate display of the magnificent body of trained voices which form the Royal Choral Society. It may be remarked that the work was introduced to England at the Worcester Festival of 1899, and it was so fully described in the October number of The Musical Times for that year that it is unnecessary to say more than that re-hearing confirms the opinions then expressed. The most effective numbers at the Albert Hall proved to be the fine opening and closing choruses, the chorus a capella, and the tenor solo 'Urbs Syon aurea,' the last-named in great measure owing to its admirable delivery by Mr. William Green. The other soloists were Madame Sobrino, Signorina Giulia Ravogli, and Mr. Andrew Black, all of whom did full justice to their respective parts, particularly in the quartets, in which the balance of tone was excellently preserved. The same artists subsequently sang in Beethoven's 'Choral Symphony,' which concluded the evening. At the close of 'Hora Novissima,' Chopin's Funeral March was played by the orchestra In memoriam of the late Queen. Mr. H. L. Balfour presided with notable judiciousness at the organ, and Sir Frederick Bridge conducted as usual.

MR. ROBERT NEWMAN'S CONCERTS.

At the concert on the 9th ult. 'God save the King' was sung for the first time in the Queen's Hall. Miss Florence Schmidt sang the air first as a solo, and the audience subsequently joined in the familiar tune with heartiness, which, however, was tempered by a decorum that indicated revered memory of the late sovereign. The programme was again happily chosen. Wagner's gorgeous Huldigungs Marsch came most appropriately after the anthem, and Tschaïkowsky's fine Fifth Symphony, with its beautiful slow movement, seemed also in keeping with the spirit of the day. Lady Hallé played with exquisite finish the solo part of Brahms's Violin Concerto, and the concert concluded with Mr. Percy Pitt's clever Overture 'The Taming of the Shrew,' a work which improves upon acquaintance.

To musicians the most interesting feature ot the concert on Ash Wednesday afternoon (the 20th ult.) was the first performance in London of the Prelude and 'Angel's Farewell' from Mr. Edward Elgar's sacred cantata 'The Dream of Gerontius,' the opening and close of the work being thus linked together, be it added, with the composer's sanction, after the manner pursued in Wagner's 'Tristan.' The arrangement certainly makes an effective excerpt for the concert-room, although the song decidedly loses in effect by being unsupported by the chorus. The song was expressively sung by Madame Kirkby Lunn, and the excerpt manifestly made a deep impression on the audience. The usual intense interpretation of Tschaïkowsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony, when under Mr. Wood's direction, was given, and M. Ysaye played very finely in Bach's Concerto in G (No. 4) for violin, two flutes, and strings, and in Max Bruch's Scotch Fantasia for violin and orchestra. The flute parts in the former work were rendered in a most finished manner by Messrs. Fransella and Borlee.

CRYSTAL PALACE CONCERTS.

It is satisfactory to be able to record, sinister rumours to the contrary, that the Saturday afternoon Orchestral concerts at the Crystal Palace were resumed on the 10th ult., and, as of old, under the direction of Mr. August Manns, for their cessation from want of enterprise and public support would have been a satire on our boasted musical progress. The programmes selected for the six concerts only include two novelties, and English names have to be sought for amongst the composers; but the works chosen are for the most part long established favourites with music-lovers, and a capable orchestra has been engaged for their interpretation. The last-named fact was shown, on the 10th ult., by the highly effective and finished performance of Beethoven's Fourth Symphony and by the sympathetic manner in which Lady Hallé was accompanied in her beautiful reading of the solo part of the same composer's Violin Concerto. The vocalist, Madame Ella Russell, gave a magnificent rendering of Weber's 'Softly sighs.'

SATURDAY AND MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

The attendances on Saturday afternoons at St. James's Hall have continued to justify Mr. Chappell's engagement of the Ysaye Quartet party, and the high finish of the ensemble playing has been maintained. As only familiar concerted music has been performed detailed criticism would be superfluous, but it may be recorded that the pianists, on January 26 and the 9th and 16th ult., were respectively the Misses Adela Verne, Evelyn Suart, and Katharine Goodson; and that the vocalists were Mr. Joseph O'Mara, Mesdames Matja von Niessen-Stone and Lillian Blauvelt.

The Monday evening concerts were resumed on the 18th ult., when the instrumental works were all by Beethoven, the Quartet being that in C sharp minor (Op. 131). Signor Busoni gave a superb reading of the Pianoforte Sonata in C minor (Op. 111), and, associated with M. Ysaye, subsequently assisted at an interpretation of the 'Kreutzer,' which would seem to be unsurpassable in brilliancy and expressive force. The vocalist was Miss Beatrice Spencer.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The most noteworthy features of the concert given by the students on the 21st ult., at St. James's Hall, were new compositions by Edwin Yorke Bowen and A. von Ahn Carse. The first of these novelties was a Pianoforte Sonata in B minor, which was excellently played by the composer. The work comprises the usual four movements, of which by far the most important is the first. This is so vigorous, and contains so much strength, that it raised expectations of the subsequent movements being more important than they proved to be. The Andante, however, is based on an air which possesses character, and it is ingeniously treated. The Minuet and Trio is very short, and the Finale is also brief, and, though brilliant, possesses little importance. The other novelty was also in sonata form, but written for violins and pianoforte by A. von Ahn Carse. The key chosen is A minor, and only three movements have been written. These show laudable endeavour to obtain artistic expression, and considerable success has been achieved, particularly in the last movement, which is decidedly the best and possesses character and brilliancy. The work was admirably interpreted by E. Spencer Dyke and Claude Gascoigne. Three songs composed by Florence Reeves also deserve mention for their cleverness and grace. They are severally named 'Autumn,' 'Young seraph, take thy harp,' and 'For you and me,' the words of each being by Tom Hood. Rose E. Wheeler, who sang them, is to be commended for her clearness of articulation. Other vocalists who deserve encouragement are Amy A. Joyner and Margaret Thomas.

Mr. Franklin Peterson, who this month enters upon his duties as Ormond Professor of Music in Melbourne University, had a very hearty send-off from Edinburgh, where he has spent twenty years of professional life. Besides testimonials from colleagues and pupils in the various Institutions with which he was connected, he was presented by Palmerston Place Church congregation with a mounted baton and a purse of fifty sovereigns in recognition of sixteen years' service as organist and choirmaster. He was also entertained at a farewell dinner, organised by six of the musical societies in Edinburgh, at which he was presented with a cheque for £66 and bidden a hearty God-speed on his new career in Greater Britain.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS, &c.

The spring concert of the London Sunday School Choir took place at the Albert Hall, on the 16th ult., with the accustomed success. Some very effective pieces for the choral force—one thousand voices—were contained in the first part. Among these were 'Unfold, ye portals' ('Redemption'), the anthems, 'Ye shall dwell in the land' (Stainer), 'The Radiant Morn' (Woodward), and 'The King of Love' (Gounod), and the hymn 'O God, our help in ages past' (to the time-honoured tune 'St. Ann'). The choir sang steadily and with commendable regard for light and shade. The London Sunday School Orchestra played several pieces, besides accompanying the choruses, and songs were contributed by Miss Ada Crossley, Miss Edith Kingsford, and Mr. Ben Davies. Mr. W. Whiteman conducted the choir, Mr. David M. Davis presided over the orchestra, and Mr. Horace G. Holmes rendered excellent service at the organ.

The West Hampstead Choral and Orchestral Society, which, under the able direction of Mr. Edward G. Croager, has obtained a good position among metropolitan musical associations, gave, on the 14th ult., at the Hampstead Conservatoire, Leoni's 'The Gate of Life.' The dramatic character of the music was adequately recognised by the choralists, who sang with judgment as well as vigour. Madame Ada Loaring, Messrs. Frank Tebbutt and J. E. Talbot proved themselves fairly competent in the solo parts. Handel's 'Her body is buried in peace' (sung by Madame Loaring, Messrs. Le Neave, Percy Turner, and Sturman), with its pendant chorus, 'But her name liveth evermore,' opened the concert, and there were numerous miscellaneous pieces, including recitations successfully given by Miss Adela Weekes.

It is pleasant to be able to record that the orchestra founded by Miss Audrey Chapman in 1898 for the purpose of giving free concerts to the poor has, under the direction of Mr. Charles Williams, proved a success. The excellence of the training it has received from Mr. Williams was shown on the 15th ult., when a concert was given at St. James's Hall, and meritorious performances secured of Brahms's Second Symphony in D and the Dances from Gluck's opera 'Iphigenia,' no less than the adequate support given to Mr. Leonard Borwick in Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor. The selection included Bach's Concerto for two violins in D minor, in which Mrs. Liddle and Mr. J. Sutcliffe were heard to advantage, and songs which were tastefully sung by Mr. Denham Price.

Mr. H. Waldo Warner, the gifted young student at the Guildhall School of Music, gave his concert (postponed from January 24) on the 14th ult., at the Salle Erard. Assisted by Miss Muriel Elliot and Mr. B. Patterson, he opened the evening with the first performance of a pianoforte trio of his own in D. The thematic materials of this work, which is in three movements, are neither very striking nor original; but they are developed with a skill and a command of artistic device which in themselves are decidedly promising. As a solo violinist Mr. Warner also showed great ability and taste in familiar pieces. Songs were contributed by Miss Lorna Stamm and Miss Grainger Kerr.

Mr. Archie Rosenthal undoubtedly suffers artistically from the inevitable association of his abilities as a pianist with those of Herr Moritz Rosenthal. There is really no comparison possible between these two artists, but the identity of the names insensibly carries the mind to the readings of the latter to the disadvantage of the former. Mr. Archie Rosenthal is, however, a very able player, one who, moreover, excites esteem by his unobtrusive style, manifest earnestness, and avoidance of all exaggeration and sensationalism. These merits were the chief features of his recital, on the 12th ult., at St. James's Hall, and they were pleasing withal.

The Dulwich Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Sullivan's 'Golden Legend,' preceded by the same composer's In Memoriam Overture, in the concert-room of the Crystal Palace, on Saturday evening, the 16th ult. The solo vocalists were Madame Medora Henson, Miss Ethel Bevans, Mr. Whitworth Mitton, Mr. Frederick Ranalow, and Mr. Douglas Powell, who replaced Mr. David Hughes, absent through illness. Each part was worthily sustained; the choruses were sung with excellent effect, and the orchestra was, on the whole, satisfactory. Mr. Walter Hedgcock was at the organ and Mr. Arthur Fagge conducted with his customary earnestness.

Mr. Thuel Burnham, a young American pianist, who gave a pianoforte recital on the 11th ult., at St. James's Hall, has acquired a brilliant and powerful technique, but he seemed to possess little artistic intuition. His readings of Tausig's arrangement of Bach's magnificent Toccata and Fugue in D minor for the organ, Beethoven's Sonata in E minor (Op. 90), and a selection by Chopin were shallow and immature. As, however, Mr. Burnham is only nineteen years of age, there is hope that he will gain greater perception of music's meanings and make better use of his unquestionable executive abilities.

The Finsbury Choral Association performed Parry's 'Ode on St. Cecilia's Day' and Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' on the 14th ult. The choir and orchestra acquitted themselves with much credit, and the solo vocalists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Bessie Jones, Mr. W. R. Maxwell, and Mr. Ivor Foster. Sullivan's In Memoriam Overture was played at the opening of the concert as a mark of respect to Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. Mr. Cunningham Woods was, as usual, a fully capable conductor.

The Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of the 'Creation,' on the 6th ult., in St. John's Church, Charlotte Street, Fitzroy Square, when the soloists were the Hon. Margaret Henniker, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. Robert Grier. Another performance of the same work was given on the 13th ult., in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, Poplar. The soloists were Madame Edwards, Mr. Frederick Williams, and Mr. Arthur Walenn. Dr. Turpin accompanied on the organ.

At St. Agnes', Kennington Park, Gounod's 'Messe de Pâques' was sung on the Festival of the Dedication of the Church, the Rev. J. Baden-Powell's 'Salve! Festa Dies' being the Processional. There was an orchestra of strings, flute, bassoon, horns, trumpets, and tympani; and the choir sang excellently throughout the service. Mr. Cyril Church, organist and choirmaster, conducted, and Mr. H. G. McMurdie was at the organ.

The programme of the concert arranged at the Imperial Institute for the 13th ult., under the able direction of Mr. Alberto Randegger, consisted of a platform recitation of Gounod's dainty little opera 'Philémon et Baucis,' the characters being assigned to Miss Ethel Wood and Messrs. Hirwen Jones, Frederick Ranalow, and Putnam Griswold. Criticism is unnecessary.

Mr. Charles Palmer is to be commended for the comprehensive and unhackneyed character of the programme at his vocal recital, on the 13th ult., at Steinway Hall. He uses a light baritone voice with much skill, and is manifestly endowed with an artistic temperament. Pleasing variety was afforded by the violin playing of Miss Ethel Barns.

Other performances worthy of mention are: Miss Evelyn Suart's pianoforte recital, on the 5th ult., at St. James's Hall; Mr. Edward Brightwell and Mr. Louis Frölich's recital, on the 8th ult., at Steinway Hall; Mr. Reginald Davidson's concert, on the 14th ult., at the Salle Erard; Mr. Hammett Drake's vocal recital, on the same afternoon, at Steinway Hall; Miss Winifred Procter's concert, at the same hall, on the 16th ult.

Dr. Joachim and his colleagues of the Joachim Quartet are announced to give a series of six concerts at St. James's Hall, in April and May, under the auspices of a strong and representative committee. These will be the only appearances of the quartet party in London during the season, of which the arrangements have been made by the London Concert Direction (Miss Ethel L. Robinson), Beaufort Street, Chelsea.

MUSIC IN BERLIN.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Berlin, February 18.

At the beginning of the season it had the appearance as if we were destined to be dominated almost entirely by vocalists, for among the twenty and more concerts taking place every week, scarcely two or three were given by instrumentalists. In these circumstances one might justifiably have expected to meet with some exceptional fresh talent amongst this multitude of applicants for public favour; an expectation which, however, can scarcely be said to have been realised. As a matter of fact, the few really important vocal concerts which have so far taken place were given by artists of an already established reputation, such as, for instance, Therese Behr, who may be said to take first rank amongst German concert singers, alike in regard to vocal charm, poetic feeling, and general artistic qualities. In this connection may also be mentioned Lula Gmeiner, Anna Stephan, Frau Strauss-de Ahna, and Ida Ekman, the latter a highly gifted soprano, a native of Helsingfors, who has attained great popularity in Germany. Add to these names those of Raimund von Zur Mühlen, the English baritone David Ffrangcon Davies, who has taken up his residence in Berlin, and Dr. Ludwig Wüllner, and the list of prominent Berlin vocal artists may be said to be almost exhausted.

A more satisfactory state of things prevails, on the whole, in the matter of choral singing. The Singakademie, the oldest choral society in Germany, has at length succeeded in obtaining, in the person of Herr Georg Schumann, a conductor who is in touch with modern musical life and aspirations, and thus he is well fitted to rouse the Society from the state of stagnation into which it had been allowed to drift under former chiefs. With his recent performances of Bach's 'Christmas Oratorio' and Handel's 'Messiah,' the new conductor has proved his ability to infuse a new spirit into the forces under his command—over three hundred more or less well-trained voices—and has inspired Berlin music-lovers with the hope that the best traditions of the venerable Society are about to be revived under his baton.

In regard to the other great choral society of Berlin—the Philharmonic Choir, conducted by Professor Siegfried Ochs—a truly magnificent performance was given, at its second concert of the season, of Liszt's oratorio 'Christus.' This choir numbers some four hundred voices, and in regard to beauty of tone, absolute purity of intonation, and powers of expression will hold its own by the side of the best to be found in Germany. In comparison with the two societies just named, the remaining Berlin choirs may be said to occupy a very subordinate position. The fact has been emphasized in the Singakademie and Philharmonic Choir only having been requisitioned, on the part of the new Bach Society, for the interpretation of the choral works to be produced at the first German Bach festival, to be held from March 21 to 23 at Berlin. The first concert in connection with that event is announced to take place in the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church, the programme consisting of five of the great Cantor's most beautiful Church cantatas. The executants will be the members of the Philharmonic Choir. The second concert will be given by the Hochschule, when the excellent a capella choir of that Institution will sing one of Bach's motets, the programme also including two of the Brandenburg concertos, a violin sonata, and an aria. Professor Joachim will be the conductor and solo violinist. The performances at the third concert have been entrusted to the Singakademie, and will comprise a Mass in A major, a secular cantata, and the Gloria from a Mass in F. There will be an exhibition at the Rathaus of Bach autographs, busts, portraits, instruments of the Bach period, and other objects of interest in connection with the event.

Amongst the instrumental performers who have visited us during the last few weeks, the first place must be accorded to the pianists. The German-French Edouard Risler gave, in the course of five recitals, an illustration of the development of pianoforte music from the old French and Italian masters, through Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Weber, Mendelssohn, Chopin, and Schumann, and winding up with a recital entirely devoted to Liszt. In Risler's performance, modern art of pianoforte-playing achieves its greatest triumphs. The artist combines in himself all the highest qualities of his art; faultless technique, unexampled variety in touch and tone, artistic intelligence, taste, feeling, and temperament—all these qualities are in him harmoniously blended. Concerts were also given by d'Albert, Reisenauer, Busoni, Ansorge—all of them true virtuosos of the instrument. An American 'specialist,' Mr. L. Godowsky, of New York, has caused some little sensation here by his playing the great Chopin 'Etudes' with the left hand, while with his right he plays a counter-part of his own composition! Inartistic and in bad taste as such trickery undoubtedly is, it is calculated to impose upon and astonish the less musically cultivated portion of the public. The French pianist, M. Raoul Pugno, has attracted attention in several concerts given by him, on account of the virtuosity and manly energy of his playing; while another French artist, M. Alphonse Mustel, of Paris, has delighted us with the introduction here of his wonderful harmonium, the sonority, power, and elasticity of tone and great variety of colour effect of which are scarcely to be equalled. Two violinists also have come to us from Paris, MM. Henri Marteau and Jaques Thibaud. The former, an artist of the very first order, has been known and appreciated in Germany for some considerable time, while the latter proved himself a scarcely less distinguished and gifted performer on his instrument.

As regards the doings at our Opera, nothing of particular interest is to be reported. It occupies itself almost exclusively with the performance of works already on the repertory, and while new works are being promised in the near future, they certainly are a long time in coming.

Otto Lessmann.

MUSIC IN VIENNA.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Vienna, February 15.

In the absence of any very important new work to be brought out, the management of our Opera endeavours, by the periodical remounting, in a careful and thoroughly adequate manner, of older works of approved value and attractiveness, to retain and increase the interest of the public. Thus there has been a very acceptable and indeed magnificent revival lately of Wagner's 'Rienzi,' worthy of a great State-subventioned institution, both from a scenic and interpretative point of view. Although the remounting, with all its brilliancy, could not of course enhance the relatively mediocre artistic value of the early Wagnerian work, the public were grateful for it, and the performances have been well attended.

Among interesting performances which have taken place recently, one given by Richard Strauss occupied a prominent position, on account of the considerable reputation enjoyed by the composer-conductor-concert-giver. The event had been heralded in a somewhat unusual and portentous manner, as though to prepare the public for the reception of some rare and powerful experiences. Notwithstanding this, however, there was but a meagre audience, more than half the seats in the great hall being unoccupied. Herr Richard Strauss conducted several of his own works, amongst them the symphonic poem 'Heldenleben,' while his wife interpreted a number of his Lieder. Most of his orchestral works had already been introduced to Viennese audiences by the Philharmonic concerts, without, at the time, creating any very deeply marked impression. The 'Heldenleben' was, however, new to us, and the opinions with regard to its merits were greatly divided, its reception, on the whole, being rather a lukewarm one. Frau Strauss-de Ahna's tasteful and artistic interpretation of her gifted husband's songs, on the other hand, met with very general approbation.

A somewhat dubious reception was also accorded to the orchestral novelties from the pen of two of the younger generation of Viennese composers, recently introduced at a concert of the Concert-Verein. There was genuine and hearty applause, mingled with unmistakable expressions of disapproval, to be heard in connection with the performance of a symphonic poem, 'The Fourth Commandment,' by Carl Prochaska, and of another work, entitled 'Sakuntala,' the composer of which is Herr J. von Wöss. Both works appertain to the class of descriptive music, and there can be but one opinion as to the exceeding cleverness and brilliancy of their instrumentation. Herr Prochaska conducted his own work with considerable ability.

The performances commemorative of the death of Verdi included one of the deceased master's Requiem, on the part of the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde, and another, of a truly popular order, consisting entirely of selections from Verdi's music, given by the Concert-Verein. The latter took place on a Sunday afternoon, and so great was the demand for admission that the performance had to be repeated on the following Sunday. The stirring effect of this music moved all sections of the audience, and the pleasurable emotions excited by it appeared to obliterate, for the time being, all outward signs of mourning for the, nevertheless deeply-lamented, death of its creator.

In an extra concert given by the Philharmonic Society, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony was produced, under Herr Mahler's direction, and, as a matter of course, with the latter's alterations in the instrumentation of the great work. A controversy as animated, though not carried on with the same amount of bitterness, as that occasioned by a similar performance of the work last year, was again called forth on the present occasion amongst critics and amateurs generally, in regard to the admissibility of such interference with the score. After all has been said on the subject, one cannot but regret that so earnest and gifted an artist as Gustav Mahler should exhibit such small regard for the sterling principle laid down in Schumann's musical 'Haus und Lebens Regeln,' and one has to call to mind the many excellent qualities of the conductor in order to be reconciled, in a measure, to his otherwise not ineffective interpretation of Beethoven's immortal work. Mahler's alterations consist chiefly in the superabundant richness of colour imparted by him to specially impassioned passages. We have another illustration here of the exaggerated regard for effect in details—to the detriment, too frequently, of the composition as a whole—which characterises so many of our modern conductors in their readings of classical masterpieces.

The performance, at the Conservatorium, of Cimarosa's 'Il matrimonio segreto' ('Die heimliche Ehe' in the German version), in commemoration of the death-centenary of its composer, proved to be a most attractive one, quite apart from the historical interest attaching to the work. The interpreters—all of them pupils of the operatic school connected with the Institution—were excellent in their several parts, and imparted to the distinctly 'old-fashioned' little work a degree of freshness, animation, and 'go,' which rendered it truly delightful to listen to. The very large audience were greatly interested, following both the action and the music with the closest attention. Yet it is but too likely that the present performance of 'Il matrimonio,' one hundred years after the death of its composer, will prove to be the last one here. Time moves inexorably onward, and 'auch das Schöne muss sterben.'

An indescribable enthusiasm was created by the recent re-appearance in the concert-room of that charming vocalist, Alice Barbi, now the Baroness Wolff-Stomersee. The lady, who, since her retirement into private life, has lost none of her rare artistic qualities or freshness of voice, gave a series of song recitals for charitable purposes—needless to add, before overflowing audiences. She possesses in a rare degree the faculty of imparting to each of her songs an individual character of its own, with the result that one never wearies in listening to her, however lengthy the programme.

Amongst other distinguished artists who have given concerts here recently may be instanced Fräulein Ilona Eibenschütz. Her playing—in which gracefulness is combined with energy, lucidity of exposition with melodious phrasing and true intensity of feeling—is, however, equally well known and appreciated in England as it is by her numerous admirers here.

Mandyczewski.

The Moody-Manners Opera Company have engaged Madame Ella Russell to sing twice a week in various operas throughout the whole of next season.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Dr. Lawrence Walker's fifth Chamber concert was given on the 12th ult., the artists being Miss Winifred Burnett (Belfast), violin, Herr Bast (Dublin), and violoncello, Dr. Walker. The only novelty was a Trio in D minor by Arensky, capitally led by Miss Burnett, who is a fine performer and a pupil of Herr Willy Hess.

The Philharmonic Society's third Subscription (postponed) concert took place on the 12th ult. The programme comprised Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' and a miscellaneous selection. In place of an orchestra the accompaniment of the 'Stabat Mater' was supplied by the Mulholland organ, with Dr. Peace, of Liverpool, as organist. Although this fine instrument is in a state that reflects great discredit on the city, it was able, under the hands (and feet) of such a splendid performer to provide a wonderfully good substitute for the composer's orchestration, although, of course, no organ and no performer can be more than a makeshift. The artists in the solo parts were Madame Sobrino, Miss Fanny Emerson, and Messrs. Walter Hyde and Charles Copland. The same singers, with Dr. Peace improvising on the organ, Miss W. Burnett on the violin, and Mr. Herbert Harty on the pianoforte, made the second part of the concert interesting and generally satisfactory. On the 15th ult. a Popular concert was given, the artists being Miss Alice Esty, Madame Marian McKenzie, Messrs. Gregory Hast and Whitney Tew; M. Louis Pecskai (violin) and Miss Dora Robinson (pianoforte).

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The postponed events caused quite a rush of concerts during the first half of last month. On the 4th ult. Messrs. Harrison's concerts were resumed in the Town Hall, the vast audience, dressed in mourning, presenting an impressive spectacle. The vocal principals, Miss Evangeline Florence, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Andrew Black, sang 'God save the King,' as homage to the new occupant of the throne. The programme was miscellaneous, the instrumental portion resting with Miss Ethel Barns (violin) and Miss Katie Goodson (pianoforte).

On the 5th ult. Mr. Halford's Orchestral concert was devoted entirely to Wagner, the programme including the 'Tannhäuser' Overture, the 'Siegfried Idyll,' and the usual selections. At the beginning the Dead March from Handel's 'Saul' was played as a tribute to the memory of the late Queen, and, with Miss Marie Duma as soloist, the National Anthem was sung, with impressive effect, by the audience at the close. On the 19th ult. the seventh concert was held, the works given being Beethoven's Symphony (No. 7, in A), Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto (Mr. F. Dawson, soloist), the Serenade for strings (Op. 48), and the 'Marche Slave' of Tschaikowsky. The attendance at these concerts shows marked improvement.

On the 8th ult. a recital was given by Mr. Alexander Humphreys, a young violinist of Birmingham, in the Masonic Hall. In pieces of all styles he gave evidence of considerable talent and executive skill. He was assisted by Miss Vera Margolies (pianist) and Miss Marguerite Gell (vocalist). The next evening, at the Midland Institute, for the benefit of the students of the School of Music, the first of a series of recitals of Beethoven's violoncello sonatas was given. The two sonatas (Op. 5) were played by Miss H. M. Johnson and Mr. John C. Hock. Miss Rosina Buckmann (student) sang the six 'Gellert' Songs (Op. 48). There was a crowded attendance.

The Willy Hess String Quartet gave a Chamber concert, in the Masonic Hall, on the 11th ult. The programme was of too familiar a type for quotation, the only novelty being Schubert's Allegro vivace in C minor. Everything was beautifully done, and Mr. Hess pleased greatly in his solos. Our clever local pianist, Mr. G. H. Manton, took part in Brahms's Quintet (Op. 34). In the same hall, on the 12th ult., Miss Rosa Blackmore, a pianist fresh from her studies at Leipzig, gave her first concert. In Schumann's 'Papillons' and other pieces she showed brilliant execution. Miss Gertrude Henry-Potts, violinist, gave some solos in good style, and Miss Marguerite Saunders was an acceptable vocalist.

The Festival Choral Society's third concert was held in the Town Hall, on the 14th ult. Coleridge-Taylor's trilogy 'The Song of Hiawatha' formed the programme. The work had been admirably prepared by Dr. Sinclair, and the performance was a triumph for the chorus throughout. The tempi were quicker than at the Festival performance, and the music gained thereby. The extraordinary pathetic power of 'The Death of Minnehaha' greatly moved the audience, and visible tokens of emotion were frequent. The soloists were Madame Ruth Lamb, Mr. William Green, and Mr. Andrew Black. While all did well, the last-named was the most successful. The picturesque score was finely brought out by the band, and Mr. Perkins at the organ gave just the effect desired. Dr. Sinclair conducted with great ability. A fine performance of the National Anthem (Costa's version) preceded the cantatas. The attendance was the largest at any concert of the Society for some time, and it is evident that the young Anglo-African composer's work has 'caught on' here. Many were unable to gain admission and a repetition of the work may be expected.

M. Eugène Ysaye and Herr Benno Schönberger were the artists engaged for Mr. Max Mossel's third drawing-room concert, held at the Grosvenor Rooms, on the 15th ult. The principal works were the Violin Sonata in D minor (Op. 75), by Saint-Saëns, Schubert's Rondo in B minor (Op. 70), the Prelude and Fugue in G minor, by Bach, for violin alone, and Schumann's 'Carnaval.' Most refined, polished, and delightful performances of all were given.

On the 16th ult. the Choral Union, conductor, Mr. Thomas Facer, gave a performance of 'The Messiah,' in the Town Hall, with Miss Beatrice Vernon, Miss Nellie Pritchard, Mr. H. Whitehouse, and Mr. W. Bennett as principals. There was a full band and chorus, with Mr. Perkins at the organ. The hall was well filled.

Dr. Philip Armes lectured before the members of the Midland Institute on the 18th ult. The subject was the 'Rise and growth of the string quartet.' Illustrations were given by the Max Mossel quartet party.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

A concert In memoriam Queen Victoria was given on the 9th ult., by the Choral Society, at Colston Hall. There was a competent orchestra, with Mr. H. Lewis as leader, and Mr. G. H. Riseley was at the organ. The works rendered were the 'Requiem,' by Brahms, in which the principal vocalists were Miss Stanley Lucas and Mr. Douglas Powell, and Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' with Miss Stanley Lucas, Miss Amy Perry, and Mr. Charles Saunders as principal vocalists. Mr. George Riseley conducted a performance which afforded the utmost gratification to a large audience.

At the fourth concert of the Clifton Orchestral Society, given on the 8th ult., in the Victoria Rooms, Sir Hubert Parry conducted his Symphony in C and his 'Overture to an Unwritten Tragedy,' both of which were enthusiastically received. Dr. Percy Buck, organist of Bristol Cathedral, and one of the conductors of these concerts, directed a performance of an Elegy suggested by lines of Walt Whitman, composed by himself. The vocalist was Mr. Watkin Mills.

The second of Miss Mary Lock's Chamber concerts for the season was given on the 11th ult., at the Victoria Rooms, the executants being Mr. Duys (first violin), Mr. Schöttler (second violin), Mr. Wetten (viola), Mr. Percy Lewis (violoncello), and Miss Mary Lock (pianoforte), with Miss Ada Phillips as the vocalist.

The annual concert in aid of the Great Western Railway Company's Employés' Widows and Orphans' Fund was given on the 16th ult., at Colston Hall. The vocalists were Madame Alice Gomez, Mr. Herbert Grover, and Mr. Alexander Tucker, Mr. Dinelli Skelding being the accompanist. Compositions, which gave much satisfaction, were played by the Bristol Society of Instrumentalists, under the direction of Mr. Riseley, and he also contributed organ soli.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The third Orchestral concert took place on the 13th ult., when Schubert's B minor ('Unfinished') Symphony and Beethoven's 'Egmont' Overture were most admirably performed. The solo pianoforte in Mendelssohn's G minor Concerto was played with great brilliancy by Signor Esposito, and this artist's clever and impassioned 'Poëme' was subsequently played by the band. The concert was one of the best given by the Society since its inauguration.

The Chamber Music Union gave two concerts on the 5th and the 15th ult. At the first, Mendelssohn's beautiful Octet was well played, strangely enough for the first time in Dublin; and at the second concert, Bach's Concerto for three pianofortes, in D minor, with string accompaniment. The pianists were the Misses Hutton, Bruce, and Greene, all first-rate performers in the amateur ranks, and their rendering of the fine work was most excellent in every respect. Mr. Gordon Cleather sang some classical songs with his usual taste and ability, and Beethoven's Clarinet Trio completed an altogether delightful programme.

The Dublin Glee Singers, conducted by Mr. Joseph Seymour, gave an extremely good concert on the 14th ult., at which the choir sang part-songs and glees by Sullivan, Stanford, Pearsall, Horsley, Caldicott, and Sir Robert Stewart. Orlando Lassus's six-part motet, 'Timor et Tremor,' was perhaps the best sung of all, but the choir is excellent and sang with quite uncommon refinement and taste. Miss Barnby's performances on the harp were a very attractive feature of the concert, as was also Dr. Jozé's arrangements of Irish airs, played by Miss Delaney, which excited great interest on account of his clever combination of two melodies on the violin and pianoforte simultaneously.

The complete list of prize-winners in the composers' competitions of the Feis Ceoil is as follows:—Cantata, Carl G. Hardebeck; overture, F. R. McClintock; string quartet, F. R. McClintock; trio, pianoforte and strings, Herbert Harty; violin solo, Patrick Delany; part-song, Charles Craddock; song, L. L. Dix; song (Irish words), R. S. Macalister. No award was made in the anthem and arrangement of Irish airs classes. The adjudicator was Professor Prout.

Mrs. Scott Ffennell's annual concert this year took the form of an afternoon vocal and violoncello recital, on the 19th ult. Mr. Gordon Cleather sang Arthur Somervell's cycle of songs from Tennyson's 'Maud,' and, later, a miscellaneous selection. He gave a very dramatic rendering of Cowen's 'Border Ballad' and two songs of Maud Valérie White. Mr. W. H. Squire played with Mr. Herbert Harty, Grieg's Sonata in A minor, and subsequently a selection of violoncello pieces by Popper, Bizet, Dunkler, and a serenade of his own. His playing was greatly admired. Mr. Harty was the accompanist.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

In 1840 the Norwich Philharmonic Society gave its first public concert, and, with the exception of an interregnum of a few years, has since continued to give a concert biennially. Considerable interest therefore attached to that which took place on the 14th ult., for the Society was able to announce for that date its centenary concert, an achievement somewhat rare in the history of musical societies. Under its new conductor, Dr. Frank Bates, the membership has increased, the band has never been so complete, and, more important still, has never shown so much refinement in its work as on this occasion. Beethoven's First and Schubert's B minor ('Unfinished') were the two symphonies selected, in addition to Sullivan's In Memoriam Overture (strangely appropriate, although selected several months since) and Auber's Overture 'Le Cheval de Bronze.' Dr. Bates has evidently infused some of his earnestness and thoroughness into the members serving under his baton, and many improvements have already resulted thereby. Mr. Frank Noverre led, as usual, and the Hon. Margaret Henniker was the vocalist.

The ninth annual concert of the Great Yarmouth Orchestral Society was held on the 12th ult., conducted, as usual, by Mr. C. W. Moss. The work of the band, which was much to be commended, included Schubert's B minor ('Unfinished') Symphony, the Overtures to 'Zauberflöte' and 'Le Nuits d'Amour,' and German's Dances from 'Henry VIII.' Mr. Aptommas delighted the large audience with his harp solos, while Miss Ruth Vincent and Mr. Edwin Webster contributed several songs.

Sullivan's oratorio 'The Prodigal Son' was given at the Octagon Chapel, Norwich, on the 18th ult., by the choir, augmented by a few outside friends. The solos were taken by Miss Luckett, Miss Kent, Mr. S. Hemmings, and Mr. W. N. Ladell. On the whole, a very creditable rendering was accorded the work, much enhanced by the able and finished style in which the accompaniments were played on the organ by Mr. J. T. Gowen, who was also responsible for training the choir.

The Norwich Orchestral Union gave a concert in Noverre's Room, on the 19th ult., conducted by Mr. Ernest Harcourt, the chief feature being a cantata, entitled 'An Autumn Legend,' written and composed by the conductor, which was originally brought out a few years since at a soirée given by the composer. It is laid out for soprano, tenor, and bass solo, with chorus and full orchestral accompaniments. Although showing no particular signs of originality, the score bears the impress of careful study. The soloists were Miss Louise Burns, Mr. H. White, and Mr. W. A. Smith. Later, the band was heard in Mozart's Overture 'Il Seraglio' and Squire's 'Slumber Song.'

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The opinion is generally held that the series of Orchestral concerts projected by Messrs. Paterson and Son have this season reached their highest level. The band which Dr. Cowen has brought together is undoubtedly one of the best which has ever performed in this city. On January 21 Mr. Moonie's Choir made its first appearance at these concerts and scored an extraordinary success, as will be seen in the appended separate notice. At the concert of January 29 the bright particular star was M. Ysaye, who gave an ideal performance of the Beethoven Violin Concerto, and Dr. Cowen's 'Idyllic' Symphony found a place in the programme.

An admirable performance of 'Israel in Egypt' was given by Mr. Kirkhope's Choir on the 4th ult. In the unfortunate absence, through illness, of Mr. Kirkhope, the duty of conducting the work devolved upon Mr. T. H. Collinson, who was satisfactory in every respect. The massive choruses were rendered by this fine choral body with wealth of tone and great precision of attack. The soloists were Madame Emily Squire, Miss Marguerite Simpson, Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, and Mr. William Green. All did well, and Mr. Green, in particular, received an ovation for his rendering of 'The enemy said.' The series was brought to a close, on the 13th ult., by a performance which was absolutely brilliant, and which included Tschaïkowsky's Suite and the 'Tannhäuser' Overture. The vocalist, Miss Lucile Hill, was much applauded for her fine singing.

The Amateur Orchestral Society continues to expand and improve under Mr. Collinson. At the concert on the 11th ult. all the pieces were most satisfactorily rendered. The soloist was Mr. Peebles Conn, a young violinist, who played Max Bruch's Concerto in very promising style.

The feature of the Philosophical Society's concert, on the 12th ult., was the performance of Liza Lehmann's charming song cycle, 'In a Persian Garden,' when the performers, Madame Alice Esty, Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. Gregory Hast, and Mr. Whitney Tew, with Miss Dora Robinson as accompanist, gave an excellent account of this attractive work.

Much good music is placed before the members of the Edinburgh Society of Musicians and their amateur Associates. Under the able pilotage of the new secretary, Mr. H. A. Inglis, an admirable programme was excellently rendered on the 15th ult., which included Mendelssohn's Violoncello and Pianoforte Sonata (Op. 58), Beethoven's String Trio in G (Op. 9, No. 1), and Schumann's Pianoforte Quartet in E flat (Op. 47). Mr. Inglis was assisted by Messrs. Townsend, Colin Mackenzie, and D. Millar Craig, whose performances were much applauded.

On the same evening Mr. Kirkhope's Choir repeated its performance of 'Israel in Egypt' for the People's Entertainment Society, with local soloists and orchestra. The vocalists were Misses Mary Latta, Maie Thom, and M. Richardson, and Mr. Maxwell. All acquitted themselves well. The McEwan Hall was crowded to excess.

MR. MOONIE'S CHOIR CONCERT.

(From an Occasional Correspondent.)

A very interesting concert was given on January 21 by Mr. Moonie's Choir in conjunction with the Scottish Orchestra. The works chosen for performance were 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and 'The Death of Minnehaha,' from Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's setting of Longfellow's 'Song of Hiawatha'—the latter for the first time in Edinburgh. Mr. Moonie's Choir is now in the fifth year of its existence and numbers about 200 carefully selected voices Much was expected of them at this concert, but their performance reached a standard of excellence which far exceeded the highest expectations. In every number the choir sang with an earnestness of feeling which held the audience spell-bound. The singers got behind the mere crotchets and quavers of the music, and in so doing infused into the strains they poured forth a degree of realism which, while being of exquisite beauty, was almost overwhelming in its intensity.

The soloists, Miss Helen Jaxon, Mr. T. H. Brearley, and Mr. Charles Tree, did well, but the interest undoubtedly centred in the choir. The sweetness, beauty, and volume of tone, the certainty of attack and intonation, the clearness of enunciation, and, above all, the earnestness with which the individual members of the choir endeavoured to express the sentiment of the words and music gave evidence of their own artistic perception and also showed how much they were imbued with the spirit of their able and esteemed conductor. The greatest praise is due to the orchestra, the accompaniments being rendered with a delicacy and finish which left nothing to be desired.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

At the Popular concert, on January 26, Félicien David's ode 'The Desert' was performed by the Scottish Orchestra and the gentlemen of the Choral Union. The balance of tone between band and chorus was such as would have satisfied even Professor Prout. Mention must be made of Mr. Henry Brearley's artistic singing of the solo part.

The appearance of M. Eugène Ysaye at the eleventh Classical concert, on January 29, attracted a very large audience. His performance of the solo part in Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto was masterly. He also took part in Percy Pitt's Ballade for violin and orchestra and played a Caprice from his own pen, the latter serving to display his extraordinary powers of technique. A first performance here of Dr. Cowen's Symphony (No. 6) in E, 'The Idyllic,' lent additional interest to the programme.

'Judas Maccabæus' was given at the twelfth Classical concert, on the 5th ult. The performance, by the Choral Union, fell somewhat short of the high standard attained at previous concerts this season. Among the soloists, Madame Emily Squire and Mr. William Green bore the honours. Mr. Leonard Borwick appeared at the Classical concert on the 12th ult., taking the solo part in Schumann's Concertstück in G. The programme likewise included a selection from Bach's Suite for flute and strings (Mr. Alfred Halstead as soloist) and Brahms's Symphony in C minor. The concert of January 22, postponed on account of the death of Queen Victoria, was given on the 14th ult., when Mr. Philip E. Halstead, a local pianist of note, was soloist. Mr. Halstead, a former pupil of Herr Stavenhagen, took the solo part in the latter's Concerto in B minor, playing it with great brilliance and power. The chief orchestral pieces of the programme were Schumann's Symphony in B flat and Brahms's 'Tragic' concert-overture. Mr. Maurice Sons conducted.

The annual plébiscite concert took place on the 16th ult., when, it is curious to note, the programme, with a single exception, was identical with that chosen on a similar occasion last year. The symphony was Tschaïkowsky's 'Pathétique,' the overtures, 'Tannhäuser' and 'Leonora' (No. 3), while the miscellaneous excerpts were the Introduction to the third act of 'Lohengrin' and Tschaïkowsky's waltz from the 'Serenade for Strings.' This concert ends the Choral and Orchestral Union's season, which, in its artistic aspect at least, has been exceptionally successful. The orchestra has amply justified the estimate formed of it at the beginning of the season, and Dr. Cowen has added the Glasgow season 1900-1901 to his many successful achievements as an orchestral conductor. Public support has, on the whole, been generous to the enterprise.

The opera class of the Athenæum School of Music has given five performances of Sullivan's 'Haddon Hall,' in aid of a local charity. The performances, both with respect to principals and chorus, were exceedingly good. The accompaniments were capitally played by a band, mainly composed of students of the school, and led by Mr. Cole. Mr. Macbeth, who conducted, is to be congratulated on the success of this department of his work.

The Church music of the month has included performances of Mendelssohn's 'Athalie,' by the choir of John Street United Free Church; Farmer's 'Christ and His Soldiers,' by Titwood Parish Church choir; a miscellaneous programme by the choir of Barony Parish Church; and organ recitals in Sherbrooke Church, by Mr. Walton, organist of Glasgow Cathedral, and in St. Enoch's Parish Church, by Mr. W. H. Morris.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Postponement, owing to the National bereavement, has been the order of the day in Liverpool during the month just concluded. The record is therefore a short one. At the Schiever concert of the 9th ult. the quartet consisted of Messrs. Schiever, Akeroyd, Courvoisier, and Halton. The pianist was Mr. Meir Scott, who, with the assistance of the quartet party, played a pianoforte quartet of his own. Considerable invention was discernible in the work. A brilliant concert was that of the Liverpool Orchestral Society, given on the same day, when a first hearing was afforded of a new overture, by Mr. Frederick W. Austin, well known in musical circles here. Mr. Austin styles his work 'Richard II.,' and it is illuminative of the Shakespearean theme. The work is eminently thematic, and of some quality as regards orchestration. It was well received by a discerning audience. S. Coleridge-Taylor's Scenes from the 'Song of Hiawatha' had prominent place in the Philharmonic Society's programme of the 5th ult. Miss Lucile Hill, Mr. Thomas, and Mr. Douglas Powell were the soloists, and Dr. Cowen conducted. The Società Armonica presented an interesting programme on the 12th ult. Miss Helen Jaxon sang and Mr. Akeroyd directed the ambitious orchestra. Mrs. Fletcher was the pianist.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Already there are evidences that our too brief season is drawing toward its close. The last of Mr. Brodsky's very enjoyable recitals of chamber music was given on the 13th ult., when the enthusiastic applause was so prolonged after the Beethoven Septet that Mr. Brodsky felt compelled to thank the subscribers; and availed himself of the opportunity to appeal for increased support of the fund whereby he is enabled to assist a few of the most promising students of the College. Mr. Siloti's playing of the Tschaïkowsky Sonata (Op. 37) was as masterly as his interpretation, on the following evening, at the Hallé concert, of the Concerto in B flat minor by the same composer. During the last few weeks the orchestral works which Dr. Richter has produced have included Liszt's 'Battle of the Huns,' the Love Song and Mab Scherzo from the 'Roméo et Juliette' of Berlioz, Beethoven's 'Pastoral' and Mendelssohn's 'Italian' symphonies. We have also had Beethoven's Mass in D, triumphantly mastered by the choir which Mr. R. H. Wilson directs; and the annual performance of the 'Elijah,' which, as Easter approaches, always attracts as powerfully as does 'The Messiah' at our great Christmas festival. Mr. Willy Hess left so many friends here that, whenever he visits us, he is sure of as boisterous a greeting as that which welcomed him on the 7th ult., when he came to play Joachim's 'Hungarian' Concerto.

Mr. Lane's Choir found (9th ult.) no difficulty in 'Acis and Galatea' or in Stanford's 'Phaudrig Crohoore,' then first performed in Manchester; and Dr. Watson's Vocal Society gave, at the third meeting, an interesting selection of choral music; while, for the close of the season, Somervell's 'Power of Sound' is promised. Dr. Pyne has resumed his organ recitals; and our Saturday evenings are further enlivened by the miscellaneous programmes which Mr. Cross prepares, as well as by the occasional Chamber concerts which Mr. Carl Fuchs so capitally directs and for which the pleasant hall of the Schiller Club is getting too small. Several students' open practices have, since the vacation, been given at the Royal College of Music, and have afforded evidence of the unremitting energy of Mr. Brodsky and his staff of professors.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Nottingham owes a great debt of gratitude to Miss Cantelo for the excellent Chamber concerts she provides; but in her last, on the 14th ult., she added to the obligations by introducing a work by a British composer. On this occasion the Willy Hess Quartet performed Stanford's Quartet in D minor with great taste, and evidently with much satisfaction to the numerous audience. Mr. Hess gave an inimitable performance of three movements from Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, and Miss Cantelo's playing of Beethoven's Pianoforte Sonata in C sharp minor was superb. At Derby, on the 15th ult., the same party were heard in quartets by Beethoven and Sinding.

The Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society's concert, on the 21st ult., included Brahms's 'Song of Destiny,' Max Bruch's 'Frithjof,' Bach's motet 'Jesu, Priceless Treasure,' and Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast.' Mr. Wood conducted, and, with his exceptional ability, produced the very best results. The soloists were Miss Maggie Stirling, Mr. Henry Turnpenney, Mr. Thomas Seadon, Mr. Andrew Black, Mr. Faithful Pearce, and Mr. Ford Waltham. Mr. William Wright presided at the organ.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Chapeltown and District Sacred Harmonic Society performed 'Elijah,' on the 12th ult., under the direction of Mr. Thomas Bool. A thoroughly adequate rendering of the work was enjoyed by a crowded audience. The chorus singing was generally of a very high order, the choristers excelling in attack and vigour, while in steadiness, accuracy, and volume of tone they were uniformly good. The soloists were Madame Goodall, Miss Amy Skerritt, Mr. William Burrows, and Mr. D. Billington. A capable orchestra was led by Mr. H. Parker, and Mr. Frank Senior was organist.

The Sheffield Orchestra gave a concert in the Albert Hall, Sheffield, on the 14th ult. The Symphony was Berlioz's 'Harold in Italy,' in which the members of the band were heard to advantage, the wood-wind and violins especially doing excellent work. Liszt's Rhapsodie Hongroise (No. 2) was, however, the best achievement of the orchestra, surpassing even a fine performance of Beethoven's Overture 'Leonora' (No. 3). The programme included the Overture to 'Tannhäuser' and Ponchielli's 'Dance of the Hours' Ballet music. Dr. Coward conducted. Miss Ethel Wood sang Schubert's 'Der Hirt auf dem Felsen' (with clarinet obbligato), Mackenzie's 'In our boat' (with violoncello obbligato), and two songs by Tschaïkowsky. Mr. Peasegood accompanied.

The Rotherham Choral Society gave a concert in the Drill Hall, Rotherham, on the 18th ult., when Elgar's 'King Olaf' and Bach's Mass in B minor were performed. Mr. T. Brameld conducted. At the third of Miss Foxon's series of Chamber concerts the Willy Hess Quartet played Schubert's Posthumous Quartet in D minor and Dvorák's Op. 96. Madame Marie Brema was the vocalist, and Mr. S. Liddle, accompanist.

The Sheffield Amateur Instrumental Society gave a Subscription concert, in the Montgomery Hall, on the 26th ult. The programme included Haydn's Symphony in E flat, the Funeral March from Beethoven's 'Eroica' Symphony, MacCunn's Overture 'Land of the Mountain and the Flood,' and other works by S. Coleridge-Taylor and A. E. Matt. Dr. Coward conducted.

MUSIC IN WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Cardiff Musical Society gave a very satisfactory performance of Handel's 'Messiah,' on the 4th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. T. E. Aylward; the soloists were Mesdames Sobrino and Bertha Salter, Messrs. Reginald Brophy and David Hughes, all of whom rendered efficient service. The orchestra was ably led by Mr. E. T. Roberts.

On the 13th ult. the same Society performed Gounod's 'Faust' to a crowded audience; the solo parts being entrusted to Misses Agnes Nicholls and Marie Bellas, Messrs. John Coates, Charles Tree, and Ivor Foster. The honorary conductor, Mr. T. E. Aylward, is to be complimented upon the excellence of the performance generally.

Miss Marie Novello Williams, pupil of Mrs. Novello Davies, gave a very successful pianoforte recital at Cardiff, on the 7th ult., Misses Mary Powell and Janet Garnett contributing vocal solos. Miss Williams evinced considerable talent in her interpretation of works by Chopin, Raff, Liszt, Saint-Saëns, and other composers, but her best effort was Beethoven's 'Appassionata' Sonata.

The Tabernacle Choral Society, Llanelly, conducted by Mr. C. Meudwy Davies, gave a performance of Handel's 'Saul,' on the 5th ult., assisted by an orchestra led by Mr. Hulley, and Miss May John, Miss Bessie Evans, Mr. Maldwyn Humphreys, and Mr. David Hughes as soloists.

At the Cardiff Orchestral Society's second concert of the season, held on the 14th ult., the orchestra, conducted, as usual, by Mr. J. E. Deacon, performed Macfarren's Overture 'Chevy Chase,' Weber's to 'Oberon,' and Dvorák's Symphony 'From the New World,' in a manner that left little to be desired, a similar remark being applicable also to Mr. Deacon's solo performances on the organ. Madame Albani and Miss Helene Valma were the vocalists.

On the 14th ult. the Phillips Orchestral Society, Aberdare, gave a concert at which a new work, 'Valsette de Concert,' specially composed by Mr. Barter Johns, London, was performed.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

LEEDS.

Though the national mourning has somewhat dislocated concert arrangements, musical events have been fairly numerous in Leeds during the past month. First in importance comes the concert given in the Philharmonic and Subscription series, on the 12th ult., which was chiefly orchestral, but included two choral pieces, the Grail scene from 'Parsifal' and Dr. Stanford's fine setting of W. E. Henley's poem 'The Last Post.' Both showed the advance which the Philharmonic chorus has made of late, under Mr. Fricker's teaching, in all the refinements of choral singing. The Hallé orchestra, under Dr. Richter, gave a remarkably fine interpretation of Schubert's great Symphony in C, and indeed the general level of performance was exceedingly high.——On the following evening the Leeds Choral Union gave a very long and curiously diversified programme. Brahms's seldom heard 'Rinaldo' was an important feature, and was respectably rendered, though the music requires more subtlety and variety of treatment to do justice to its beauty. Mr. William Green sang the tenor solo part very ably, though it was obvious he sang under some restraint. Two choruses from Bach's B minor Mass and Parry's 'Blest Pair of Sirens' were sung with heartiness rather than refinement or dignity, and the chorus was heard to much the greatest advantage in Dvorák's exuberant, but thoroughly interesting and highly characteristic 'Te Deum,' the solos in which were sung by Miss Maggie Jaques and Mr. William Thornton. The special feature of the concert was the appearance of M. Ysaye for, strange to say, the first time at Leeds. He played Beethoven's Violin Concerto in superb style, and made quite a sensation by this and other solos. Mr. Benton conducted.

On January 22 the Bohemian Chamber Music Society gave one of its concerts, at which string quartets by Stanford (in G) and Volkmann (in G minor), and Dvorák's delightful Terzetto were played in musicianly style by four young local musicians, Messrs. Elliott, Wright, Haigh, and Bolton. On the 11th ult. Mr. Edgar Haddock's orchestra gave evidence of welcome progress in a programme that included some well-known orchestral pieces, its chief feature being Beethoven's Violin Concerto, the soloist in which was Mr. Karl Johannessen, a thoroughly accomplished artist. On the 18th ult. Mr. Rawdon Briggs and his quartet party gave a concert, string quintets by Brahms (in F) and Schubert (in C), with Beethoven's Pianoforte Quartet in E flat (Op. 16) forming the programme. Miss G. Wortley was the pianist. On the 19th ult. the fifth of Messrs. Haddock's Musical Evenings took place, Miss Agnes Nicholls and Mdlle. Valma being the vocalists, Mr. Verbrugghen the violinist, and Mr. Sobrino the pianist.

BRADFORD.

Chamber music furnished the programme of the Bradford Subscription concert on the 8th ult. Mr. Willy Hess's accomplished quartet party played Tschaïkowsky's Quartet in F (Op. 22, No. 2), and, with Mr. Leonard Borwick, Sinding's Pianoforte Quintet in E minor (Op. 5), both highly interesting examples of the modern school, and having a real vitality that distinguishes them from merely respectable 'Kapellmeister-Musik.' Mr. Borwick played a number of solos particularly well qualified to display his crisp, clear-cut, and beautifully finished style, and Messrs. Hess and Grützmacher also appeared as soloists. Miss Louise Dale was just the right type of vocalist for such a concert. On the 2nd ult. the Bradford Musical Union gave a programme of concerted vocal pieces, admirably chosen with reference to the death of our Queen, under the conductorship of Mr. Henry Coates. Peculiar interest was given to the Bradford Permanent Orchestra's concert, on the 16th ult., by the presence of Dr. Elgar, who conducted. The prelude to 'Gerontius,' to which was appended, for the first time, an orchestral version of the 'Angel's Farewell,' the 'Froissart' Overture, first heard at Worcester a good many years back, and four of the 'Sea Pictures,' sung with the utmost charm by Miss Muriel Foster, were included in the programme. Mr. Verbrugghen's highly polished playing of Wieniawski's Second Violin Concerto was another notable feature of a highly interesting concert.

VARIOUS.

Halifax, from being the worst provided of the larger Yorkshire towns in the matter of concert accommodation, has become one of the very best—indeed, it may be doubted whether there is a more convenient hall in the West Riding than the new 'Victoria Hall,' which is central in situation and is in its interior arrangements almost a copy, on a smaller scale, of the Queen's Hall in London. It was opened by concerts on the 8th and 9th ult., in which the Hallé orchestra, under Dr. Richter, with the assistance of the chorus of the Halifax Society, provided the music. The programmes included the C minor and 'Pastoral' symphonies of Beethoven, and a number of the most popular, but not, so far as Halifax is concerned, hackneyed orchestral pieces and choruses. The Dewsbury Orchestral Society, on the 12th ult., gave an ambitious programme, so Gargantuan in its proportions that a good deal had to be omitted. Two concertos in one part reminds one of the old days of the Philharmonic concerts. Beethoven's Third Pianoforte Concerto and Dvorak's Violin Concerto were artistically played by two ladies respectively, Miss Emmeline Brook and Miss Alice Simpkin, and in the programme was a selection from Mr. E. German's 'Nell Gwyn' music, including the first performance in any concert-room of the overture. Mr. G. H. Hirst conducted.

At Huddersfield there have been two Subscription concerts. On January 29 Mr. Brodsky's Quartet, with Mrs. E. Haley as pianist, gave the Schumann Quintet, and Madame Marchesi was the vocalist; on the 12th ult. Messrs. Ross and Moore were the pianists and Miss Louise Dale, Miss Ravogli, and Mr. Plunket Greene were an unusually distinguished party of vocalists. The second Wakefield Chamber concert took place on the 15th ult., when Mrs. Hutchinson introduced four songs from Cornelius's fine 'Brautlieder' cycle, Mr. Hatton was the violoncellist, and Mr. Isidor Cohn the pianist. The Gompertz Quartet appeared at the concert given by the York Musical Union on the 12th ult., and played Tschaïkowsky's Quartet in D (Op. 11) and Beethoven's comparatively seldom heard Quartet in B flat from the early set of six.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Augsburg.—A romantic opera, 'Das Käthchen von Heilbronn,' by the late Mayence organist and conductor, Friedrich Lux, was successfully brought out, at the Stadt-Theater, on the 3rd ult.

Barmen.—The successful first performance took place, last month, by the Musik-Verein, of a new choral work by Adolph Lorenz, entitled 'The Maid of Orleans.'

Bayreuth.—Siegfried Wagner's new comic opera, 'Herzog Wildfang,' is now being mounted at the Munich Opera, and is likewise to be brought out during the present season, at Leipzig and at Hamburg.

Bremen.—Eugene d'Albert's two one-act operas, 'Kain' and 'Die Abreise,' were recently produced for the first time at the Stadt-Theater, under the composer's direction, and received with marked favour.——In connection with the recent fiftieth anniversary of the death of Albert Lortzing, an interesting early work by that amiable and popular composer—viz., the one-act opera 'Der Pole und sein Kind,' was revived with much success at the Stadt-Theater.

Budapest.—A new Symphonie Pathétique in A, by Edmund von Miholovich, the well-known Hungarian composer, was produced at the sixth Philharmonic concert of the season, under Capellmeister Kerner's direction, last month. The work is considered a highly important addition to modern symphonic literature, and the composer, who was present, was the recipient of an enthusiastic ovation on the part of the audience.

Carlsruhe.—The comic opera 'Fantasio,' by Miss Ethel Smyth, an English composer well-known in London musical circles, was produced at the Court Theatre, on the 10th ult., under Herr Mottl's direction. The rather weak libretto of the work is founded upon Alfred de Musset's story, the music being distinctly clever, broadly melodious, and exhibiting considerable technical skill. Among the most successful numbers were an orchestral interlude in the first act and the symphonic prelude to the second. The work was well received, the performance being repeated on the 17th ult. A second operatic work by Miss Smyth, entitled 'Der Wald,' is to be brought out in September next, at Dresden.

Dortmund.—Liszt's oratorio, 'Christus,' was performed for the first time, on the 3rd ult., by the Musik-Verein, under Herr Janssen's direction, before a numerous and deeply impressed audience.

Dresden.—Paderewski's already much-discussed opera, 'Maura,' is in active preparation at the Royal Theatre, where it is to be first produced in the course of May next.

Duisburg.—On the occasion of the 'opening' of the new organ at the Municipal Concert Hall, a musical festival was held, under the auspices of the Duisburg Choral Society. Amongst the works produced were Handel's 'Ode to St. Cecilia's Day,' Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, Liszt's Thirteenth Psalm, a 'Hymnus,' by Richard Strauss, and Wagner's 'Parsifal' Vorspiel and 'Kaiser-Marsch.' Musikdirector Walter Josephson was the conductor, and the solo vocalists included Frau Iduna, Walter Choinanus, and Herr Johann Meschaert.

Frankfort-on-Main.—A new symphonic poem, superscribed 'Zwei Königskinder' ('Hero and Leander'), by Fritz Volbach, a truly poetic and brilliantly instrumented work, was received with high favour on its first production, last month, at one of the Museum Society's concerts.

Hanover.—At a concert given at the Conservatorium last month, several new chamber works by Bernard Scholz, the well-known Frankfort musician, obtained a first hearing. They consisted of a sonata for pianoforte and violoncello, a pianoforte trio, and variations on a theme by Handel for pianoforte and viola, the last-named being especially received with high favour. Herren Heermann, Hegar, and Hugo Becker assisted the composer in a most excellent performance.

Innsbruck.—A new Requiem, by Joseph Pembaur, obtained its first hearing last month in the Church of the Jesuits, and produced a very marked impression.

Leipzig.—The well-known musical savant, Dr. Alfred Dörffel, custodian of the musical section of the Municipal Library, was, on January 24, able to celebrate, in the full possession of his mental and physical vigour, his eightieth birthday.——At the thirteenth Gewandhaus concert of the season, a new 'Mourning Cantata' for baritone solo, chorus, and orchestra, by Carl Gramann, and with Herr Scheidemantel as the very effective interpreter of the solo part, met with a very favourable reception.

Madrid.—Professor Max Erdmannsdörfer, of Leipzig, has recently conducted a series of orchestral concerts, with classical and modern programmes, at the Royal Opera, with immense success. The artist received a decoration at the hands of the Queen Regent, and has been invited to repeat his visit during next season.

Milan.—At a recent concert given by the Orchestral Society, under the conductorship of Signor Toscanini, the first performance in Italy took place of Richard Strauss's symphonic jeu d'esprit, 'Till Eulenspiegel.' The audience, it is said, although somewhat bewildered, nevertheless applauded the work vigorously.

Munich.—A musical setting of Goethe's Singspiel, 'Jery und Bätely,' by Frau Ingeborg von Bronsart, was produced for the first time, at the Royal Theatre, on the 4th ult., without, however, attracting much notice.——An interesting performance was given at the Kaim Saal, by the Orchester-Verein, of a comédie-ballet by Rameau, entitled 'Platée ou Junon jalouse.' The little work had been mounted as nearly as possible in the style of its original production, in 1749, in Paris, and as the music proved to be still fresh and charming, something more than merely historical interest attached to the revival.

Paris.—The programme of the Châtelet concert of the 3rd ult., under the conductorship of M. Colonne, was largely devoted to the works of Mendelssohn, a somewhat rare occurrence of late years at that Institution. The compositions chosen for performance were the 'Scotch' Symphony, the concert air 'Infelice' (Op. 94), sung by Madame Adiny, the Pianoforte Concerto in E minor, played by Mdlle. Seguel, and the music to 'A Midsummer Night's Dream.'——At the Opéra a successful first performance took place, on the 15th ult., of a new four-act opera, entitled 'Astarte,' the libretto by Louis de Gramont, the music by Xavier Leroux. The composer, who writes upon Wagnerian lines, is a very able and earnest young musician, who has already become favourably known by an opera, 'Evangeline,' produced some years ago at Brussels, and by several important symphonic compositions, performed with much success at the Lamoureux concerts.

Prague.—A most successful performance of a cycle of Gluck's operas has just been concluded at the German Theatre, under the enterprising management of Herr Angelo Neumann. The series terminated, on the 9th ult., with 'Paris and Helena,' a little-known work by the great operatic reformer, which, since its first production at Vienna in 1769, has been entirely and undeservedly neglected.

Rome.—A numerous audience, representing various nationalities, assisted at the opening concert of the season of the Bach Society, under the direction of Signor Alessandro Costa. The performances included the Chaconne and other pieces by Bach, as well as the Mass, 'Æterna Christi munera,' by Palestrina. A perfect ovation was accorded to Signora Teresina Tua, who, though practically retired from professional life, was the violinist on the occasion.——In accordance with a unanimous vote passed by the Senate, the house in which Verdi was born is to be preserved as a national memorial.

Teplitz.—A new Symphony in F minor, by Camillo Horn, was received with much favour on its first performance, last month, at one of the Subscription concerts, under Capellmeister Zeischke's direction. The composer, a native of Bohemia, is a pupil of the late Anton Bruckner.

Venice.—In commemoration of the centenary of the death of Cimarosa, an excellent performance of works by that composer was given at the Palazzo Pisani, under the direction of Signor Enrico Bossi. The programme included the Overtures to 'Orazi e Curiazi' and 'Il Matrimonio segreto,' and a humorous orchestral piece, 'Il maëstro di Capella.' An interesting discourse on Cimarosa and his contemporaries was delivered by Signor Villanis, the distinguished musical critic of Turin.

OBITUARY.

THE REV. H. R. HAWEIS.

The death of the Rev. Hugh Reginald Haweis took place at his residence, 31, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, on January 29, after a few hours' illness. Born on April 3, 1838, he was for thirty-five years perpetual curate of St. James's Church, Westmoreland Street, Marylebone, where he preached remarkable sermons and where he had a robed choir of ladies and gentlemen. His claim to recognition in a musical journal consists in his having written three books relating to the art, entitled 'Music and Morals,' 1871 (which has passed through many editions); 'My Musical Life,' 1884; and 'Old Violins,' 1898, besides magazine articles. Unconventional and unparsonic to a degree, Mr. Haweis had a remarkable if not somewhat eccentric personality. His versatility found full scope in his immensely popular lectures on various subjects—e.g., great musicians, old violins, church bells, &c.—delivered to crowded audiences, both here and in America. In regard to his musical life he furnished an interesting piece of autobiography in a letter written in July, 1899, having reference to our review of his book entitled 'Old Violins.' He said: 'The Musical Press and the professional world have shown scant courtesy to my musical writings, because (I suppose) I had the temerity, being an amateur, to be musical critic of Truth, Pall Mall Gazette, and the Echo in early days. I have ceased to criticise, tho' not to write—I now admire and learn!' Many a professional musician might do worse than follow his example.

MISS BIRCH.

At her residence, Shaftesbury Road, Hammersmith, on January 26, in her eighty-fifth year, died Miss Charlotte Ann Birch. She was a student of the Royal Academy of Music from 1831 to 1834, formerly held a prominent place as an excellent soprano singer in London and provincial concert rooms and at the Festivals. Miss Birch was the first to sing the solo soprano music of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' in its revised and present form, at the performance given in Exeter Hall, on April 16, 1847, under the composer's direction.

The death of Mr. Kingston Rudd, of Norwich, took place on January 28, at the age of fifty-one. As a solo pianist he for many years occupied the foremost position in his native city, and as a teacher of that instrument his services were in great demand. During a period of twenty-nine years he conducted the Norwich 'Gate House' Choir, and for thirty-one years he held the post of organist of St. Andrew's Church, Norwich. As an executant Mr. Rudd possessed undoubted claims to distinction. He played the solo part of Benedict's E flat Pianoforte Concerto at the Norwich Festival of 1872.

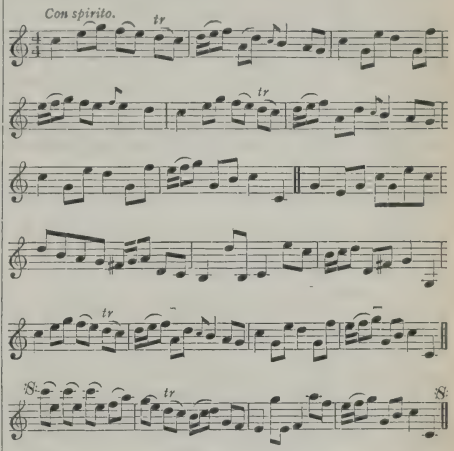
The death took place, at Port Elizabeth, on January 23, of Mr. Percival Quarterman, a much esteemed violinist and musician. A native of Worcester, and a chorister in its Cathedral, the lamented musician settled in Port Elizabeth in 1888, where he has since rendered yeoman service in the cause of music.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE HYMN TUNE 'HELMSLEY.'

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—In the January number of The Musical Times there are some remarks on the hymn tune 'Helmsley' and a reference is given to the late Major Crawford's article, 'Lo, He comes,' in Grove's Dictionary. Perhaps some of your readers may be interested to know that the tune can be traced to an earlier source than has hitherto been found for it—namely, Arne's opera 'Thomas and Sally,' which was produced in Dublin in 1743. The tune, as it appears in the opera, is called 'Country Dance,' and is as follows (I give the violin part only):—



It will be seen that the first part of this tune is evidently the origin of the first part of 'Guardian Angels,' to which Major Crawford traced the hymn tune. Of 'Guardian Angels,' he says that the music 'probably originated in Dublin, where it was sung by a Mr. Mahone, and no doubt also by Miss Catley, who resided in the Irish capital from 1763 to 1770.' It cannot be doubted, I think, that Arne's 'Country Dance' became popular in Dublin, and eventually was provided with words; the second part of the tune, which is not suited for singing, being deliberately altered, or else gradually corrupted, into the version given by Major Crawford. Here is the first part of the tune 'Guardian Angels':—

The versions—'Olivers,' printed 1765, and 'Helmsley,' printed 1769—were more probably derived from 'Guardian Angels' than directly from Arne's 'Country Dance.' In these versions another second part is provided for the tune.

The 'Country Dance,' it should be noticed, is to be found in the printed score of 'Thomas and Sally,' but not in the harpsichord arrangement published by Walsh, which omits all the dances.—Yours faithfully,

G. E. P. Arkwright.

The annual general meeting of the Choir Benevolent Fund was held in the Chapter Room, St. Paul's Cathedral, on the 12th ult., Mr. Calkin Lewis in the chair. The balance sheet was passed for printing, and in the report which was presented it is satisfactory to note that three special offertories—from Westminster, Worcester, and St. Asaph—had been contributed to the Fund, indicating an awakening interest in the Society on the part of the ecclesiastical authorities. On the other hand, it is a matter of regret that there is a serious falling off in the honorary annual subscriptions, and it is to be hoped that the local officials of the Society will urge the claims of this admirable Institution on those who attend their respective cathedrals. Everyone who is interested in the efficient rendering of the music in these noble edifices should recognise the claims of those who daily serve therein, and whose emoluments can certainly not be considered excessive.

A sum of twenty pounds is offered for the best trio composed for oboe, horn, and pianoforte. The work must be an original one, never having been performed in public, or altered from what has been performed by a different combination of instruments. The adjudicators will be—Mr. Edward German and Mr. Hamish MacCunn, with Sir Alexander Mackenzie as referee. The manuscripts are to be sent to Dr. Yorke Trotter, 22, Princes Street, Cavendish Square. Mr. Percy Godfrey, of Canterbury, was the winner of the prize offered under similar conditions last year.

Mr. Whitney Mockridge, the Canadian tenor, has been singing with great success in various cities and towns of the United States.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Andover.—Bennett's 'Woman of Samaria' was the chief feature of the concert given under the able direction of Mr. G. H. Westbury, in the Assembly Rooms, on the 13th ult. The choir sang with precision and spirit and was well supported by an efficient orchestra (led by Mr. C. Gamblin). The solo vocalists were Miss Stanley Lucas, Miss Lucie Johnstone, Mr. Edward Wilkinson, and Mr. H. Scott. The second part included the Andante from Mendelssohn's 'Italian' Symphony, Schubert's 'Ave Maria,' and Bishop's Overture to 'The Miller and his Men,' by the orchestra; and the choir was heard with effect in the part-songs 'Once I loved a maiden fair' (by the conductor), 'A Love Symphony' (Percy Pitt), 'The trysting tree' (G. J. Bennett), and 'Who is Sylvia?' (Edward German).

Bromley (Kent).—At the Parish Church, on January 25, the choirs of the Parish and St. Mark's Churches performed part of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul.' The chorus and the band, led by Mr. Norman Bath, numbered together about eighty performers. The soloists were Master Glasspool, Mr. Samuel Masters, and Mr. Bertram H. Latter. Mr. P. D. Hodsoll was at the organ. The Dead March was played before the service and Mendelssohn's Overture to 'Athalie' was played as the concluding voluntary. Mr. Frederic Fertel conducted.

Carlisle.—The Stanwix Choral Society gave a concert in the Stanwix Board School, on the 12th ult., the chief feature being Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen.' The choir, numbering over seventy voices, sang effectively, and were also heard in Faning's part-song 'The Miller's wooing' and Dudley Buck's chorus 'Hymn to music.' There was a small orchestra, led by Mr. H. Henderson. The solo vocalists were Miss A. T. Summerhill, Miss Laura Adamson, Mr. Austin Mahony, and Mr. G. Crickett. Mr. C. R. Doeg conducted.

Cheltenham.—Owing to the kindness of the Council and Lady Principal, a crowded audience filled the Princess Hall of the Ladies' College, on the 12th ult., at a Memorial concert given by the New Philharmonic Society. Apart from the fact that Mozart's immortal 'Requiem' had never before been completely performed in Cheltenham, the selection of the work was most appropriate. The opening chorus at once showed how well Mr. Phillips had his forces under control, and the entire work received an admirable rendering, both chorus and orchestra doing excellently. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Lilian Hovey, Mr. Edward Branscombe, and Mr. Atherton Smith, Mr. Lewis Hann being leader of the band. Other outstanding features of a memorable concert were praiseworthy performances of Sullivan's In Memoriam Overture, the Dead Marches of Beethoven ('Eroica' Symphony), Chopin, and Handel, and the National Anthem by way of conclusion. Mr. C. J. Phillips conducted with his customary skill.

Dover.—The Choral Union gave a selection from 'The Messiah,' in St. Bartholomew's Church, on the 13th ult. The soloists were Miss Daisy Boyton, Mr. J. Pearson, and Mr. J. R. Eaton. The Rev. A. H. Stevens presided at the organ and Mr. H. J. Taylor conducted.——The committee of the Choral Union have decided to institute a Triennial Musical Festival in Dover, the first of which it is proposed to hold on May 1 next. In the afternoon Sullivan's cantata 'The Golden Legend' will form the chief part of the programme. A new orchestral work has been promised by Mr. B. Luard Selby (the new organist of Rochester Cathedral), who will conduct his work. In the evening the programme will include Sir Frederick Bridge's 'Ballad of the Clampherdown' (conducted by the composer), Coleridge-Taylor's popular 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' and a miscellaneous selection. Mr. H. C. Perrin (Canterbury Cathedral) and Dr. E. J. Bellerby (Margate) have each promised to write a short choral work expressly for the occasion. A new orchestral suite by Mr. H. J. Taylor will also have a first public performance.

Dudley.—The Vocal Union performed Spohr's 'Last Judgment' and Mendelssohn's 'Loreley' in the Public Hall, on the 13th ult. The choir displayed throughout good tone and sang with artistic feeling, and there was a fully efficient orchestra, led by Mr. T. M. Abbott. The solo vocalists were Miss Emily Davies, Mr. F. Northall, Mr. Tom Child, and Mr. Henry Sunman, the soprano especially winning hearty commendation. Mr. W. H. Aston was an able conductor.

Enfield.—An exceptionally attractive programme was provided by Miss Cicely Hide at the Bycullah Athenæum, on the 6th ult. Miss Hide, a clever pupil of Mr. Bernhard Carrodus, played Mendelssohn's G minor Concerto, and, as an encore, a Romance in G, by her teacher. The young violinist, who displayed good tone, a firm, crisp touch, and excellent technique, was also heard with Mr. Carrodus in Godard's Duet (Op. 18), and with Mr. Stanley Hawley and A. Carrodus in Arensky's Trio (Op. 32). The concert-giver was also admirably assisted by Madame Medora Henson, who sang some charming songs by Mr. Hawley, and by Mr. Charles Fry, whose recitations, with the same composer's music, gave interesting variety to the programme.

Hobart (Tasmania).—Mr. Bradshaw Major's Musical Society gave a performance of 'The Messiah,' on December 18. The choir sang with precision and good attack, and was supported by a well balanced orchestra, led by Mr. C. Ashley. The solo vocalists were Mrs. Tranthim-Fryer, Miss Sylvia Mills, Mr. Mervyn Henry, and Mr. Spencer Bronwell, the soprano especially being highly appreciated. Mr. Major, who conducted, should be heartily commended for the excellence of the whole performance.

Leeds.—A performance of Barnby's 'Rebekah' was given on the 11th ult., at Armley Christ Church. Miss Walker, Mr. W. H. Hackford, and Mr. Gaunt were the principal vocalists and acquitted themselves admirably. The church choir was augmented for the occasion and proved quite equal to the demands made in the chorus-work. Mr. F. C. Kitson presided at the organ and Mr. Henry Matthias Turton (organist and choirmaster of the church) was the conductor.

Liverpool.—Mr. Ernest H. Smith, organist of St. Bede's Church, gave an interesting lecture on 'Hymn tunes and their Composers,' before the Literary Society of St. Bede's, on the 12th ult. The lecture was illustrated by the choir singing specimens of hymn tunes both ancient and modern, including such widely different melodies as old Latin plainsong, fugal and repeat tunes, and the most recent productions of living composers.

Madeley.—The Choral Society gave a performance, on the 18th ult., in the Anstice Memorial Institute, of Stanford's 'Revenge' and Hamish MacCunn's 'Lord Ullin's daughter.' There was an efficient orchestra and chorus numbering over seventy performers, and the miscellaneous selection included the Overtures 'Nozze di Figaro' and 'Prometheus,' German's 'Henry VIII.' Dances, Elvey's 'Gavotte ancienne,' Elgar's 'Mazurka,' and a 'Graceful Dance,' by Mr. J. B. Smart. The Society has existed for twenty-five years, during which period Mr. James Smart has been conductor.

Rochdale.—Mr. B. C. Crossley gave the second of his Subscription concerts in the Town Hall, on January 24, when Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' was performed. A most admirable interpretation of the work was given by both choir and orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Crossley, and Mr. Charles Saunders sang the solo with much success. The miscellaneous second part which was to have been given was abandoned owing to the sad news of the Queen's death, which reached the hall at the beginning of the concert.

St. John's, Antigua (West Indies).—A concert was given in the Court House, on January 21, under the direction of Mr. G. T. Gallwey, when the programme included the part-songs 'Lullaby of life' (H. Leslie), 'Silent night' (J. Barnby), 'The Chimes of Oberwesel' (H. Baumer), and chorus, 'Lord Ullin's daughter' (A. H. Jackson), sung by the St. John's Choral Society. The remainder of the programme was composed of vocal and instrumental solos and duets.

Scarborough.—Mr. R. J. Pitcher gave an interesting lecture-recital on Beethoven in the Mechanics' Institute, on the 11th ult. The illustrations included some Scotch airs, harmonized by Beethoven for three voices, with violin and violoncello obbligato; the 'Kreutzer' Sonata, played by Miss Estelle Allen; and the 'Appassionata' Sonata, played by the lecturer, who also sang 'Adelaïda.'

Timperley.—The Choir Festival at the Parish Church took place on the 17th ult., the anthem at the morning service being 'Seek ye the Lord' (Roberts), and in the evening, 'Turn Thy face from my sins' (Sullivan), with Dr. Bunnett's setting (in F) of the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. At the conclusion of the evening service an organ recital was given by Mr. H. M. Sheaves.——On the 18th ult. the Timperley Vocal Society gave a concert in the Schoolroom, when the programme included the choruses 'Happy and blest are they' ('St. Paul'), 'Gipsy Life' (Schumann), and the Bridal chorus from Cowen's 'Rose Maiden'; also part-songs, 'Blow, blow, thou winter wind' (Bishop), 'Spring Song' (Pinsuti), 'Daybreak' (Eaton Faning), 'The Voyagers' (Facer), and the madrigal from the 'Mikado,' besides vocal and instrumental solos. Mr. H. M. Sheaves conducted.

Wellington (New Zealand).—Mr. Robert Parker, organist of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, gave his twenty-second annual concert on December 6. The first part of the programme was arranged as a memorial to Sir Arthur Sullivan. It included the hymn 'O gladsome light,' from 'The Golden Legend,' 'The long day closes,' and the beautiful choral song, 'Wreaths for our graves.' These were admirably sung by the Glee and Madrigal Society and the Wellington Liedertafel respectively, and representative songs by the lamented composer were sung by Madame Eveleen Carlton and Mr. Douglas Jackson. The rest of the programme included Mendelssohn's G minor Concerto, finely played (with orchestral accompaniment) by Miss Page; Edward German's Dances from 'Henry VIII.'; Henschel's ballad 'Young Dieterich'; and the Chorale and Finale from Wagner's 'Die Meistersinger.' Mr. R. Parker conducted throughout and the concert was an unqualified success.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Sesquialtera.—(1) Mr. Hipkins, in his 'History of the Piano' primer, states that 'a trial of the weight required to produce the faintest pianissimo in one of Broadwood's concert grand pianos . . . gives approximately for touching the key farther back . . . increases the weight in proportion, as the distance from the lever is shortened.' This was written in 1896, at which time the leading concert grand pianoforte makers whose instruments are used in this country were in practical agreement with those weights. Messrs. Broadwood still adhere to them, as do probably the others. (2) All young men 'going in' for the organ should take full advantage of practising the pianoforte, playing all styles of good music. This experience is especially invaluable in the all-important matter of phrasing, in addition to the aid it renders in the matter of technical equipment to an organist.

Lowest A.	Middle C.	Highest C.
3½ oz.	2¾ oz.	2 oz.

B. S. (Port Elizabeth).—The song 'Queen of my heart' was written by Alfred Cellier long before 'Dorothy.' It was published by Messrs. Chappell under another title—viz., 'Old dreams.' Stephenson wrote new words to suit the operatic situation. Herr Meyer Lutz scored the song, Cellier at the time being away ill. 'Queen of my heart' was not introduced into 'Dorothy' until after the opera had been running some weeks—in fact, not until it was felt that Mr. Hayden Coffin needed a song. It has always been sung by Sherwood as indicated in the score.

K. A.—The University of Oxford does not grant degrees to women; only certificates, when they have satisfied the examiners in any particular examination. But as the University of Durham does confer degrees upon successful lady candidates, the northern seat of learning is better suited to your needs. You could take a degree in music at London, Edinburgh, Dublin, Victoria (Manchester), as well as at Durham.

Syd.—Professor Prout, in regard to the use of the chord of the six-four in strict counterpoint, thus speaks: 'Unless in one of the repetitions of a sequence, no discords are allowed between the bass and any of the upper parts of the harmony, excepting passing notes and suspensions. The fourth with the bass is always considered as a dissonance; the second inversion of a triad is therefore unallowable in Strict Counterpoint.'

Mature.—If you change your system of fingering to the Boehm flute you would gain several advantages—for instance, facility of fingering and equality of tone. An old system flute, however well made, is far from perfect: the F sharp is too flat and the quality of tone throughout is unequal. Many change their system of fingering when well advanced in life, and your age is comparatively young.

B. J.—The report is perhaps not quite correct. Moscheles made an arrangement for wind-band of Mendelssohn's (so-called) Funeral March (No. 27 of the Lieder ohne Worte) on the occasion of the composer's funeral. There are organ arrangements of this Lied by Mr. John E. West, and by Mr. F. Cunningham Woods in Book 18 of the Village Organist.

Uno.—Much would depend upon the general physical condition and strength of the lungs of any singer who played the trombone. It is quite possible that if you were to practise your trombone for three or four hours each day for a fortnight, you might find that your singing voice had taken its departure, or was packing up to do so.

Organist.—The details of the registration of Schumann's 'Studies for the Pedal Pianoforte' must be a matter of taste, judged by the effect of particular stops in this or that instrument. You will find the edition for which Mr. John E. West is responsible a trustworthy guide to you.

J. McA.—The Incorporated Society of Musicians is a strictly professional society. Full information as to the terms of membership will be supplied upon application to the Secretary, Mr. Edward Chadfield, 19, Berners Street, London.

F. H.—We do not know of any 'noteworthy rival systems of musical notation,' beyond the Tonic Sol-fa system, and, considering the shortness of life, we have no yearnings towards the enlargement of our knowledge in this respect. The 'Staff' is quite sufficient to lean upon.

C. B.—If a composer desires to set to music 'any poetry or verses' (many verses are not poetry) that are copyright he would certainly have to obtain permission from the poet (or author) or publisher of the poetry, or verses.

Subscriber for twenty years.—The 'Dumky' Trio of Dvořák (Op. 90), as its name implies, is intended to musically represent a species of folk-poem of a melancholic character, common to Little Russia.

H. J. W. T.—We do not know of any book dealing with the male alto voice. You should seek the advice of one of the capable church choirtrainers in your town, with a view to your taking a course of lessons.

Tommy.—The Mozart Overtures may be played: 'Nozze di Figaro,' minim = 144; 'Così fan tutte,' Andante, crotchet = 96; Presto, minim = 144.

Opera.—Apply to Mr. D'Oyly Carte, Savoy Theatre, London.

A few questions are held over.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

BENSON, WILLIAM—Ballet Suite. No. 1. Valse gracieuse; No. 2. Graceful Dance; No. 3. Tarantella. For Pianoforte Solo. 2s. 6d.

BLAIR, HUGH—(in B flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 545. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

—— (in D). Te Deum laudamus. (No. 546. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

BUNNETT, EDWARD, and JOSEPH W. HAYES—Anthem Book of Words. Together with Services suggested for General use in Churches. Cloth. 1s.

BUTTON, H. ELLIOT—"The Highland Laddie." Four-part Song. (No. 852. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 2d.

CLARKE, HAMILTON—Meditation. (No. 289. Original Compositions for the Organ.) 1s.

COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S.—"Hiawatha's Departure." Cornetti. (Transposed from the Trombe Part.) 2s. 6d.

—— "Now late on the Sabbath Day." Anthem. For Easter. (No. 695. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

COWEN, F. H.—"St. John's Eve." Cornetti. (Transposed from the Trombe Part.) 2s. 6d.

DRAPER, CHARLES F.—"The hour cometh." Anthem. For S.A.T.B. 1½d.

ELGAR, EDWARD—"The Dream of Gerontius." 1st Violin, 4s.; 2nd Violin, 4s. 6d.; Viola, 4s. 6d.; Violoncello, 4s.; Basso, 3s.

—— Prelude and Angel's Farewell. From "The Dream of Gerontius." 1st Violin, 6d.; 2nd Violin, 6d.; Viola, 1s.; Violoncello, 1s.; Basso, 6d.

ENGLISH, F. de G.—"Blessed is the people, O Lord." Anthem. For Unaccompanied Singing. 3d.

FETHERSTON, REV. SIR G. R.—"When day's shadows lengthen." Hymn. 2d.

FLETCHER, PERCY E.—"The Toy Review." A School Operetta, or Musical Sketch. For Young Children. Words by Gus. Ellerton. Old Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined. 1s. 6d.

FRIEDLANDER, A. M.—"Hatsur" ("The Rock"). Memorial Anthem for Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. Hebrew and English words. 8vo. 1s.

HAMILTON, SIR EDWARD W.—"Great God, Whose Throne Eternal stands." Hymn. With reference to the Accession of King Edward VII. 3d.

HARMON, PERCY—Three Songs. "The sea hath its pearls," "If love were what the rose is," "Lullaby." For Soprano or Tenor. 2s.

HARRIS, F. C.—"The Soldiers of the Cross." Song. For Contralto with Chorus (S.A.T.B.) 3d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

HIGGS, H. M.—"If ye then be risen." Anthem. For Easter. (No. 697. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

HORSLEY, CHARLES E.—"A Musical Joke." Four Homely Rhymes. 1. "Sing a Song of Sixpence." 2. "Hush-a-bye, baby." 3. "Little Jack Horner." 4. "Jack and Jill." For S.A.T.B. (No. 854. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d.

JUNIOR VIOLINIST, THE—Edited by C. Egerton Lowe. Book 1. Seventeen Melodies. Arranged for the Violin in the first position with Pianoforte Accompaniment. 1s. 6d.

—— Book 2. Twelve Melodies. 1s. 6d.

—— Book 3. Ten Melodies. 1s. 6d.

—— Book 4. Eleven Melodies. 1s. 6d.

For contents of above, see Advertisement, page 210.

LEMARE, E. H.—(in G). Pater Noster. For S.A.A.T.T.B.B. (No. 547. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

—— (in E flat). Pater Noster. For S.A.A.T.T.B. (No. 548. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

LONG, J. CHARLES—"Those evening bells." A Four-part Song. For Male Voices. A. (or T.) T.B.B. 3d.

MARTIN, GEORGE C.—"Out of the deep" ("De Profundis"). A Solemn Psalm. (No. 692. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 6d.

MORGAN, REV. T. T. LUCIUS—A National Anthem. Words only. 3s. per 100.

PALESTRINA, G. PIERLUIGI DA—Communion Service ("Assumpta est Maria"). Edited and adapted to English words by George C. Martin. 2s. 6d.

POWELL, REV. C. T.—"My God, my Father, while I stray." Hymn. 1d.

RADCLIFFE, REV. H. S.—"A Child's Evening Prayer." Hymn. For the use of children. 1d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 105. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Sleep on, beloved." By J. Stainer. "The tree's dream." Unaccompanied Trio (S.S.A.). By Franz Abt. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

			A.	B.
No. 551.	Pancakes. Action Song	Percy E. Fletcher	1½d.	—
,, 558.	Soldier, rest. Two-part Song	G. A. Macfarren	2d.	—
,, 613.	Lordly gallants, tell me this. Trio for S.S.B.	Dr. Callcott	1d.	—
,, 638.	Will you walk a little faster? Junior Unison Song ..	R. Houston Macdonald	2d.	—
,, 639.	Things of beauty. Unison Song	A. C. Mackenzie	1½d.	—
,, 643.	Rock-a-bye. Junior Unison Song	C. H. H. Parry	1½d.	—
,, 646.	Come, fairies, trip it on the grass. Glee. For S.A.B.	John Parry	2d.	—
,, 652.	Diamonds. Junior Unison Song	R. Houston Macdonald	1½d.	—
,, 653.	The fairy book. Junior Unison Song	R. Houston Macdonald	1d.	—
,, 658.	Abbey Chimes. Unison Song; or, for S.A.T.B.	W. G. McNaught	1d.	—

SMITH, BOYTON (in E flat)—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 532. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

STEGGALL, R.—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 544. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

SULLIVAN, ARTHUR—"Wreaths for our graves." Words only. 2s. 6d. per 100.

SUMMERTON, G. T.—Vesper Hymn. 1d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—

No. 1172.	Galatea, dry thy tears	Handel	1d.
,, 1181.	Thou art gone to the grave ..	C. Lee Williams	1d.
,, 1182.	Vesper Hymn (with Sevenfold Amen)	Arthur Sullivan	1d.

TOPFER, J. G.—Sonata, in D minor. Edited by John E. West. (No. 293. Original Compositions for the Organ.) 2s.

TSCHAÏKOWSKY, P.—"How blest are they." Funeral Anthem. (No. 691. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

VAN BREE, J. B.—"St. Cecilia's Day." Cornetti. (Transposed from the Trombe Part.) 1s.

WADDINGTON, S. P.—"O mistress mine." Four-part Song. (No. 853. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

WARDLE, THOMAS—"The Colonel's Leave." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

WEBSTER, C. A.—"Albert Lortzing." Pamphlet. 6d.

WELCH, H. T.—The Lord's Prayer. 1d.; or, 6d. per dozen.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Giuseppe Verdi (with special Portrait)	153
The Sisters of Two Great Composers.—II. Fanny Mendelssohn (with Portraits)	156
Music in England in the Nineteenth Century—(continued)	160
Occasional Notes (with Illustrations)	163
The Chapel Royal Days of Arthur Sullivan	167
Three Royal Funeral Anthems (with Illustration)	169
Edward John Hopkins (with Facsimile)	169
Church and Organ Music	171
Ear Training	172
Reviews	175
Recorders (Lecture by Dr. J. C. Bridge)	185
Royal Choral Society	186
Mr. Robert Newman's Concerts	186
Crystal Palace Concerts	186
Saturday and Monday Popular Concerts	186
Royal Academy of Music	186
London and Suburban Concerts	187
Music in Berlin	188
„ Vienna	188
„ Belfast	189
„ Birmingham	189
„ Bristol	190
„ Dublin	190
„ East Anglia	190
„ Edinburgh	191
„ Glasgow	191
„ Liverpool and District	192
„ Manchester	192
„ Nottingham and District	192
„ Sheffield and District	192
„ Wales	193
„ Yorkshire	193
Foreign Notes	194
Obituary	195
Correspondence	195
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	196
Answers to Correspondents	197
Music published during the last Month	198
Anthem for Easter.—"If ye then be risen" (As it began to dawn).—H. M. Higgs	177
Anthem for Eastertide.—"Now late on the Sabbath day."—S. Coleridge-Taylor.—(Extra Supplement.)

TWO Extra Supplements are given in this number: (1) A Portrait of Verdi, by Pietro Tempestini, Spezia; (2) an Anthem for Eastertide, 'Now late on the Sabbath day,' by S. Coleridge-Taylor.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M., &c.
Lessons in Voice Production, Artistic Singing, and Pianoforte.
9, Portland Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

Published on the 1st of every Month. Price 1½d. Annual Subscription, including Postage, 2s.
THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW for MARCH contains:—
General Notes.
Class Singing.
Sir Hubert Parry on Examinations.
Mr. Roeckel on School Singing.
Stockwell Pupil Teachers' Performance of "The First Walpurgis Night."
"Princess Zara" in Birmingham.
School Sight-Singing Reader—Both Notations.
Music in Preparatory Schools for Boys.
Choral Pieces for coming Choral Competitions.
Dates of coming Choral Competitions.
Review.
Obituary.
Miscellaneous Items.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

The MARCH number contains the following music:—
"Caller Herrin'." Unison Song. Scotch Air.
"The First Brigade." Unison Marching Song. By Percy E. Fletcher.
The Junior School Music Course.
Also, Extra Supplement, containing "In the twilight." Trio. By Franz Abt. (No. 291. Novello's School Songs. Price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

MR. WALTER LE NEAVE
Solo Alto, St. Paul's Church, Avenue Road, N.W.
For Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts; Sacred and Ballad Songs a specialty. Address, 61, Gayton Road, Hampstead, N.W.

MADAME LOUISE BURNS
(SOPRANO). Silver Medalist, R.A.M.
Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Opera, Recitals, &c.
Erin, Riffel Road, Willesden Green, N.W.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE
(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, 1898; Sheffield Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 30, Mornington Crescent, N.W.

MR. ALBERT FAIRBAIRN
(BARITONE),
Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts, &c.,
Having returned from Australia, can accept Engagements for Oratorio, Opera, Ballads, &c. 19, Cedars Road, Beckenham.

MR. EDWIN GELLETT
(BASS).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Address, 7, Canonbury Grove, N.

MR. J. E. ROBERTS
(BASS-BARITONE).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Address, Astley, Manchester.

MR. ARTHUR SEDGLEY
(BASS).
For Oratorios, Opera, and Ballad Concerts.
"Mr. Arthur Sedgley sang in fine style 'Honour and Arms,' being very warmly applauded."—Dudley Herald.
For terms, &c., address, 51, Worcester Street, Wolverhampton.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN
(BASS)
(Licentiate (artist) of the Royal Academy of Music).
Handel's "Saul."—"Mr. Henry Sunman, who appeared at Launceston for the first time, quickly captivated the audience. His powerful, rich voice was used with great judgment and artistic effect. It is difficult to imagine a more perfect impersonation of Saul than Mr. Sunman gave. The varying emotions of the King were faithfully interpreted and produced with thrilling effect. 'With rage I shall burst' and 'A serpent in my bosom warmed' were particularly fine efforts."—Western Morning News, February 9, 1901.
For terms, &c., please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

ALTO, TENOR, and BASS WANTED, for a West London Church, near Hammersmith. Address, stating experience and lowest salary accepted, to Organist, Messrs. Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TENOR and BASS WANTED. £12. All Saints', South Lambeth. Also Bass in return for Organ Lessons. W. A., 15, Thurlby Road, West Norwood, S.E.

THE LONDON ORATORIO QUARTET
Madame LOUISE BURNS. | Mr. D'ARCY CLAYTON.
Miss FLORENCE CROFT. | Mr. SAMUEL HEATH.
A thoroughly reliable Quartet for Choral Societies.
Address, Arch. E. Swanson (Manager), 5, East India Avenue, E.C.

WANTED, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Nonconformist) for the Congregational Church, Muswell Hill. Salary, £40. Apply, by letter, giving full particulars and qualifications, to M. Miller, 12, Queen's Avenue, Muswell Hill, N.

THE Organist of Salisbury Cathedral has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Exceptional advantages. Terms moderate. Address, C. F. South, The Close, Salisbury.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires APPOINTMENT, or would Deputise. South coast preferred. Accustomed to High Celebrations, &c. Anglican or Plainsong. Very successful with boys' voices. References. H. J., Novello & Co., Ltd.

ORGANIST-CHOIRMASTER, for many years at West-End Church, requires RE-ENGAGEMENT in S.W. district. Good references. N., 24, Bellevue Road, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

GENTLEMAN is willing to DEPUTISE or assist Organist in or near W. district. Expenses only. Note address, W. R., 24, Porchester Road, W.

WANTED, TUNER, for a town in Worcestershire. Must be thoroughly capable, of good address, with out-door experience. Age not under 25. State experience and salary required. G. 46, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER, reliable and steady, desires permanent BERTH. American Organs, Harmoniums, ordinary repairs, &c. F. S., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

TUNER, experienced, desires ENGAGEMENT. Apply, Tone, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY-ASSISTANT WANTED, immediately, with knowledge of catalogues and book-keeping. Apply, giving references, experience, and stating salary, to Haynes & Co., Music-sellers, Malvern.

YOUNG MAN (23) requires SITUATION in Music Business. London preferred. Six years' experience; knowledge of music. L., 1, Ferndale Villas, Alexandra Park, N.

APPRENTICE.—A well-known Musicseller would be glad to hear of a VACANCY in a first-class Music Business for his Son, aged 16. Advertiser would take the son of another musicseller on reciprocal terms. Indoors preferred. W. G., Messrs. Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN WANTED, new or second-hand. Two-manual and pedals, about 14 stops. R. P. Sanderson, 29, General Graham Street, Sunderland.

WANTED, an American Organ by CLOUGH and WARREN. Second-hand. Style, Centennial Grand, with special touch, listed at 85 guineas. Apply to H. G. W. Stewart, Esq., 22, Kenilworth Avenue, Wimbledon Park, S.W.

CHURCH ORGAN, by RENATUS HARRIS—judiciously restored. Full compass, CC to A. Great, 13 stops; Swell, 12; Choir, 11; Pedal, 6; Couplers, 7. Can be seen by appointment. Particulars of Arthur Glasspoole, Wymondham, Norfolk.

ORGAN for SALE, second-hand. 2 manuals, 12 stops, open CC pedals and Bourdon, hand and foot-blowers. Cope, 74, Asylum Road, S.E.

FOR SALE, BROADWOOD Grand (170 guineas); nearly new, in Rosewood case; perfect condition. Percussion Harmonium, two manuals (120 guineas), by ALEXANDRE, in perfect condition; have been used by professional man together. Price £90, or could be purchased separately. Apply to Organist, Christ Church, Bexley Heath.

TEACHING ROOMS.—Messrs. Bechstein have a few TEACHING ROOMS to LET, by the day, at their new premises just opened at 36-40, Wigmore Street, and will be happy to give particulars to any Professors making enquiry for the same.

EASY and BEAUTIFUL EASTER ANTHEMS. "Just what is wanted for Country Choirs." I WILL RANSOM THEM. FRANK ADLAM. 3d. CHRIST IS RISEN. Dr. JOHN ABRAM. 4d. HART and Co., Paternoster Row, London.

PART-SONGS FOR MIXED VOICES

BY

FANNY HENSEL

(née MENDELSSOHN).

Dost thou hear the trees that rustle	1½d.
In Autumn	1½d.
Morning Greeting	3d.
The unknown Land	3d.
The woodland Valley	1½d.
When woods are glowing	3d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

UTOPIA NOTARUM. 8d. A 20th Century View of Notes.
JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 32, Great Portland Street, W.

FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

BY ORDER OF THE QUEEN

SONG

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

ISABEL SULIVAN

SET TO THE TUNE OF

"THE WEARIN' OF THE GREEN"

(1757)

ARRANGED BY

ALICIA ADÉLAÏDE NEEDHAM.

IN E FLAT, F, AND G.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS EACH.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

In Memoriam, Jan. 22, 1901.

MOURN IN HOPE

LINES BY ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON
MUSIC BY
SEBASTIAN B. SCHLESINGER.

Price Two Shillings net.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.

GRAND NEW SACRED SONG.

SUN OF MY SOUL

BY

JOSEPH H. ADAMS.

No. 1, in D, for Contralto or Baritone.
No. 2, in F, for Soprano or Tenor.

Price Two Shillings each net.
Orchestral Parts on hire.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

MAY-DAY REVELS

CANTATA FOR FEMALE VOICES

TO BE PERFORMED IN CHARACTER.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

HETTIE M. HAWKINS

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

JOHN E. WEST.

PROGRAMME.

The Villagers assemble and Dance.
Villagers' "Maying" Chorus.
Children's "Ladye" Song. Flower Children's Chorus.
Decoration of Pole and May-pole Dance.
Enthronement of May Queen.
Floral Drill by Maidens of May Queen.
Advent of Robin Hood and his Band.
A Ballad of Robin Hood.
Robin Hood Games, including
Milkmaids' Procession, Song, Chorus, and Dance.
The Hobby-Horse.
Archery Contest.
Dance round May-pole.
God save the King.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, Fourpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Yours very truly
W. Mackay

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 698.—Vol. 42. APRIL 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

GOOD FRIDAY, APRIL 5, AT 7,

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH."

(WITH HANDEL'S ORIGINAL ACCOMPANIMENTS.)

Artists:
Miss ESTHER PALLISER.
Miss ADA CROSSLEY.
Mr. BEN DAVIES.
Mr. WATKIN MILLS.

Organist: Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; Unreserved), 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 25, AT 8,

MENDELSSOHN'S

"WALPURGIS NIGHT"

AND

"HYMN OF PRAISE."

Artists:
Miss AGNES NICHOLLS.
Miss MAGGIE PURVIS. | Mr. BEN DAVIES.
Miss EMMA D'EGREMONT. | Mr. DANIEL PRICE.

Prices as above.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., F.R.A.M.

Midsummer Term begins Thursday, May 2, Entrance Examination therefor, Monday, April 29, at 2.

Goring Thomas Scholarship for Lyrical Composition and Dove Scholarship for Violin Playing, last day for entry, April 15.

Metropolitan Examination (L.R.A.M.) Syllabus now ready.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Midsummer F.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 15, 1901. The solo-playing tests are: Prelude and Fugue in C, Bach (No. 1, Vol. 4, Peters' Edition) (Novello and Co., Book 7, No. 4, Augener and Co., Book 3, No. 13); Sonata (No. 6) in E flat minor, Op. 119, Rheinberger (F. Kistner, Leipzig) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.); Orgel-Sonate in D minor, J. G. Töpfer (Peters) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.).

The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 22.

The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.

Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—Estab. by the Corporation of London, 1880.—Principal: WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A. Lessons daily, 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Every branch of Vocal and Instrumental Music. Students trained for Opera and Drama in the new Theatre. Prospectus on application. By order of the Committee, T. LEWIS SAYER, Acting Secretary. Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

MR. ROBERT

NEWMAN'S CONCERTS,

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

THE

LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

1901.

(UNDER THE MANAGEMENT OF MR. ROBERT NEWMAN.)

QUEEN'S HALL.

MONDAY EVENING, APRIL 29, AT 8.
Conductor: MONS. COLONNE.
Vocalist: Madame BLANCHE MARCHESI.
Solo Pianist: Signor BUSONI.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, APRIL 30, AT 3.
Conductor: MONS. YSAYE.
Vocalist: Madame MARIE BREMA.
Solo Violin: Lady HALLÉ.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, MAY 1, AT 8.
Conductor: MONS. SAINT-SAËNS.
Solo Violin: MONS. YSAYE.
Solo Pianist: MONS. SAINT-SAËNS.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 2, AT 3.
Conductor: HERR WEINGARTNER.
Vocalist,
Solo Violoncello: Herr HUGO BECKER.

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 3, AT 8.
Conductor: MR. HENRY J. WOOD.
Vocalist: MRS. HENRY J. WOOD.
(Her first appearance at Queen's Hall.)
Solo Violins: Lady HALLÉ and MONS. YSAYE.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 4, AT 3.
Conductor: MR. HENRY J. WOOD.
Solo Violin: Dr. JOACHIM.
Solo Pianist: Mr. HAROLD BAUER.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA

OF 110 PERFORMERS.

PRINCIPAL VIOLIN .. .. .. MR. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
ORGANIST AND ACCOMPANIST .. MR. PERCY PITT.

The Full Programme will shortly be issued.

Subscription for Six Concerts: £3 3s., £2 12s. 6d., £2 2s. Subscription for Three Afternoons or Three Evenings, £1 11s 6d. £1 7s 6d., £1 1s. Single Tickets, 15s., 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d. (Reserved); 5s., 2s. 6d. (Unreserved); at

ROBERT NEWMAN'S BOX OFFICE,
QUEEN'S HALL, Langham Place, W.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.

For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. .. Granville Bantock.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 17—December 22); Winter Term (January 21—March 30); Summer Term (April 1—June 22).

Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from

ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

GUILD OF ORGANISTS, Incorporated.

Established 1887. Incorporated 1898.

Patrons: The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, &c.
Warden: Percy Rideout, Esq., Mus. Doc., London.

For Musicians of the Church of England and Churches in Communion only.

Subscription for Membership, 10s. 6d. per annum.

The next Examination for F.Gld.O., and the Certificate of Practical Musicianship will be held on Tuesday, July 9, 1901. Examiners: H. C. Perrin, Esq., Mus.B., Organist, &c., Canterbury Cathedral, and T. Tertius Noble, Esq., A.R.C.M., Organist, &c., York Cathedral.

ORGAN WORK.—Test Pieces.

Fellowship: Adagio (in free style) in E, Merkel (Novello); Sonata, No. 18, Rheinberger (Novello); Fugue in E flat major, Albrechtsberger (Vol. XII., Cecilia), (Augener).

Certificate: Andante in G, Wesley (Novello); Fantasia in E minor, Merkel (Novello); Fugue in C minor, Böely (Vol. XXXII., Cecilia) (Augener).

For all particulars of Membership, Branches, Free Register, &c., address, Fred. B. Townend, Hon. General Sec., Mansion House Chambers, 11, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.; or to Hon. Secs., H. A. Needham, Church Schools Offices, 3, Newhall Street, Birmingham; and F. R. Boraston, "Stoneleigh," Sandown Park, Wavertree, Liverpool.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.

Metropolitan Examination in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., and F.V.C.M., commencing July, 1901.

Local Theoretical Examinations, July, 1901.

Practical Examinations are now being held at the various centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.

President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in June and July, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.

Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.

The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.

Free register for Organists requiring appointments.

For further particulars, apply to

Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

THE NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

Patron: Her Grace the Duchess of Marlborough. [Ltd.
Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L.

EXAMS. (local, all grades) and for Diplomas (A.N.C.M., L.N.C.M., F.N.C.M.) Schools Examined.

MEDALS and Certificates awarded to Choirmasters and Choirs, also for Composers' Works. Superior Tuition.

W. J. MOSS, 192, Sutherland Avenue, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
R.A.M. Cert. and Prize-winner). Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
German Songs a specialty. Lessons given.
25, Upper Richmond Road, East Putney, S.W.

MISS ANNIE DAYMOND, A.R.A.M. (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Peverey, New Clive Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MISS AMY HARDING (Soprano)
(Of Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, &c., Concerts).
Recommended by Sir George Grove, W. H. Cummings, Esq., &c.
For critiques, photo, &c., address, 14, Palace Road, Norwood, S.E.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.
MADAME FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto)
MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor)
Haslemere, Woodside Park Road, North Finchley, N.

MISS EMMA KNOWLES (Contralto)
8, Devonshire Street, Accrington, Lancashire.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate R.A.M.)
Address, 1, Dorothy Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. WALTER DRIVER
(Pupil of William Shakespeare, Esq., London).
Principal Tenor, King's College Chapel, Cambridge.
For Concerts, &c.

MR. FRED. W. NORCUP (Tenor)
Oratorios, Ballads, &c.
Address, Westminster Abbey, S.W.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. H. WADSWORTH (Tenor)
(Two years at Milan. Great success.)
English, Italian, French. Equal quality of voice—not throaty.
Perfect enunciation. Satisfaction given or no fee accepted.
St. Ives, Huntingdon.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. ENRICO NOVO (Bass-Baritone)
"Daisy Bank," Penhale Road, Portsmouth.

MADAME CLARA NEIMAN, R.A.M.
(Former Pupil of Walter Macfarren).
Concerts, At Homes, &c. Good sight-reader. Lessons.
Highest testimonials. 3, Tolmers Square, N.W.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M., &c.
Lessons in Voice Production, Artistic Singing, and Pianoforte.
9, Portland Terrace, Regent's Park, N.W.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

BEATRICE E. KENT (Lyric Authoress)
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto). Engagements at Finsbury, Whitechapel, Highbury, New Cross, Highgate, City, Stockwell, Nottingham, Dudley, Brighton, Mile End, Lewisham, Blackheath. Address, 14, Gladsmuir Rd., Whitehall Pk., N.

MR. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE begs to announce that he has RESIGNED his APPOINTMENT as Lay Vicar of Westminster Abbey and is now at liberty to accept Sunday Engagements. In future all communications should be addressed direct to The Elms, Acton Hill, W.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass). Oratorios, Concerts. Can provide Quartet. Lessons given. 45, Pentonville Road, London, N.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MISS MAGGIE JAQUES
(SOPRANO).

DVORÁK'S TE DEUM.—Leed's Choral Union.—"Miss Maggie Jaques sang the soprano part with good effect."—Yorkshire Post, Feb. 14, 1901.—"Miss Maggie Jaques sang the soprano solos with fitting purity of tone."—Leeds Mercury, Feb. 14, 1901.

HANDEL'S ALEXANDER'S FEAST.—Peterborough Choral Union.—"Miss Maggie Jaques, whose second visit it is to these concerts, won the hearts of all by her beautiful method, so utterly devoid of all artificial effort, her fresh and well trained voice taking with the greatest ease the exceedingly difficult work which fell to her lot. This lady's singing was one of the great features of the concert. All along throughout the evening she rose triumphantly to all difficulties, and earned well-merited approbation.—Peterborough Advertiser, March 16, 1901.

ST. PAUL.—Cleckheaton Philharmonic Society.—"Miss Jaques, possessed of a beautifully fresh and sweet soprano voice, sang with a purity and intelligence that renders her an able exponent of music of the character of 'St Paul,' and her charming rendering of her part proved a source of much delight to the audience."—Cleckheaton Advertiser, March 14, 1901.

JUDAS.—Darlington Choral Society.—"Miss Jaques is a rich and mellow soprano, of very fine compass, and acquitted herself admirably. The best effort of the evening was 'From mighty kings,' which was sung with excellent taste, the enunciation being especially fine."—The North Star, Feb. 15, 1901.

MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS, &c.—Melton Philharmonic Society.—"Miss Jaques is certainly one of the finest soloists we have heard in Melton of late years," &c., &c.—Grantham Journal, Feb. 9, 1901.

SWAN AND SKYLARK.—Batley Choral Society.—"Miss Jaques showed herself to be a very capable vocalist, possessing brilliancy of voice and style, and a melodic freshness not found in every singer," &c., &c.—Batley Reporter, Dec. 7, 1900.

GOLDEN LEGEND.—Luton Choral Society.—Miss Maggie Jaques delighted everyone with her rendering of the exacting soprano part, her voice being of sympathetic quality with an upper register of great power and purity of tone," &c., &c.—Luton Advertiser, Nov. 23, 1900.

Terms, &c., address, 14, SPRING GARDENS,
BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO),
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

MISS KATHERINE NASH, G.S.M.
(SOPRANO),
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq.
Address, 9, Ruskin Road, Tottenham, N.

MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
140 Marylebone Road, N.W.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE
(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, 1898; Sheffield Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 30, Mornington Crescent, N.W.

MADAME ELIZA THOMAS
(CONTRALTO)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.
Ilford Vocal Union ("Erl-King's Daughter," &c.).
"A fine contralto voice. . . . in Part II. contributed 'Looking back' very beautifully, and was enthusiastically encored."—Guardian, March 2, 1901.
"Madame Thomas's cultured contralto voice delighted the audience."—Recorder, March 1, 1901.
"The dramatic spirit with which Madame Thomas sang will long be remembered . . . her beautiful and pathetic rendering of 'I watched,' &c."—Recorder, March 8, 1901.
New circular, with latest photo.
Address only to ZION HOUSE, HARLESDEN, N.W.

MR. OTTO DENE
(TENOR),
Ullswater Lodge, West Norwood, S.E.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MISS MAUD SANTLEY
(CONTRALTO)
(Of the Royal Albert Hall, the Queen's Hall, London Ballad Concerts, the Harrison (Adelina Patti and Melba) Concert Tours, the Symphony Concerts, Belgium, &c.)

"There was some inequality of talent, but with two such exceptional artists as Madame Melba and Miss Maud Santley, some slight tapering off at the other end of the list might be forgiven. Madame Melba has . . . Miss Maud Santley came next in popularity, her powerful voice with its marvellous volume and sustaining calibre delighting the auditors."—Birmingham Daily Argus.
"A contralto singer of considerable range and finished method."—Liverpool Daily Post.
"The richness and purity of her contralto voice were brilliantly exhibited."—Aberdeen Journal.
"The possessor of an organ of exquisite timbre and considerable power."—Glasgow Daily Record.
"Has a superb contralto voice and sings with fine expression."—Northern Echo.
"Miss Maud Santley was a fitting companion of Madame Melba, and sang her songs with high vocal quality."—Bradford Observer.
"'A second Miss Clara Butt' was the not infrequent verdict of those who heard Miss Maud Santley on this occasion. Of fine physique and possessing a contralto voice of unusual richness and power Miss Santley was not unworthy the appellation."—Huddersfield Daily Chronicle.
"Miss Maud Santley, the contralto, enhanced her high reputation by some admirable singing . . . All were artistically sung."—Sheffield Daily Telegraph.
"Miss Santley's voice is both rich and powerful, and her manner of using it reveals the true musicianly instinct."—Manchester Courier.
"Has the rare gift of a beautifully fresh voice, and her singing was delightful."—Newcastle Daily Chronicle.
"Her full and clear voice, her unaffected straight method of delivery, and the extreme audibility of her words won the instant approval of her hearers."—The Scotsman, Edinburgh.
For Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts.
Address, 60, Margaret Street, Cavendish Square, London, W.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900).
Oratorio, Concerts, &c., 64, Clovelly Road, Ealing, W.

MR. BRIGHT JONES
(PRINCIPAL TENOR, Moody-Manners Opera Company).
Terms, apply, Glenhurst, Bath; or, C. W. Sinkins, 63, Berners St., W.

MR. JAMES KENT
(TENOR)
(Pupil of Mr. Davidson Palmer).
"Messiah."—"The artistic manner in which Mr. Kent discharged his allotted duties left nothing to be desired."—Stoke Newington Recorder.
"Daughter of Jairus."—"Mr. James Kent has a good rich pure tenor voice."—Bury Free Press.
Oratorios, &c.
Address, 7, Victoria Terrace, Mount Pleasant Road, Tottenham, N.

MR. JAMES LEYLAND
(TENOR).
Address, 105, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. FRANK PEMBERTON
(TENOR),
211, Cornwall Road, W.

MR. HENRY PETTITT
(TENOR)
(Pupil of Davidson Palmer, Esq.)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Glenavon, Potters Road, New Barnet.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. GUSTAVE SIBETH
(TENOR).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Address, 43, Casella Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE)
Mr. Henry J. Wood (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.
"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.
"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.
"Henry J. Wood."

AND

MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO)
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. JOHN BROWNING

(BARITONE),
SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1898,
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal Bass, Leeds Parish Church, &c.
Extensive Répertoire, about 100 works.

LAST JUDGMENT and CRUSADERS.—Dumfries Choral Society, March 6, 1901.

"Mr. Browning's voice is of fine volume, and his enunciation and declamation are perfect. He was conspicuously successful in his solos."—Dumfries Standard.

JUDAS.—Annan Choral Society, March 7, 1901.

"Undoubtedly the great feature of the evening was the singing of Mr. Browning. His superb rendering of the magnificent bass solo, 'The Lord worketh wonders,' will long be remembered by all who heard it. . . . The effect on the audience was simply electrical, and the burst of applause which followed was such as is seldom heard in Annan."—Annandale Observer.

Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. HENRY DOBSON

Professional Diploma, Incorporated Society of Musicians)
(BARITONE).
Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts.
For terms and Press notices, address, 24, Station Road, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. DENNIS DREW

(BARITONE).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes.
Ormefield, Church End, Finchley.

MR. WILLIAM DYOTT

(BARITONE). 1, Myrtle Crescent, Acton, W.

MR. DAVID HUGHES

(BARITONE).

"Messiah."—Cardiff Festival.—"Mr. David Hughes's delivery of 'Thus saith the Lord' was one of the finest examples of Handelian declamation within my experience. Not only every note, but, what is more important, every word told the story belonging to it. So in other parts of the work this singer had to do."—Daily Telegraph (Mr. Joseph Bennett).

Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES

(BARITONE),
Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, and Chester Musical Festivals,
Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts,
Crystal Palace and Principal Provincial Concerts.

Engagements include: March 5, Batley, "Golden Legend"; 6, London; 7, Southsea; 12, Bradford, "Seasons"; 13, London; 16, Queen's Hall; 25, Accrington, "Hiawatha"; 26, Sheffield, "King Olaf"; 28, Hanley, "St. Paul"; 31, Queen's Hall, "Stabat Mater"; April 5, Liverpool, "Stabat Mater" and "Redemption"; 15, London; 18, Norwich, "Judith"; 23, Worcester, "Spectre's Bride"; 27, Nelson, "Creation"; 28, Nelson; 29, Walsall, "Hiawatha"; 30, Highbury, "Faust"; May 1, Dover Festival, "Golden Legend," &c.; 8, Bristol, "Hiawatha"; 14, Cheltenham, "Redemption," &c., &c.

Terms for Oratorio and other Concerts on application to—
24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, London, N.W.

MR. & MRS.

WALLIS A. WALLIS, I.S.M.

(Baritone and Soprano, Elocutionists).
Quartet, Concerts, Resident and other Pupils. Sharon, Acton, W.

MR. EDGAR ARCHER

(PRINCIPAL BASS of the City Temple, of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, Langdale, Rutland Park, Willesden Green, N.W.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN

(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. EDWIN GELLETT

(BASS).
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Address, 7, Canonbury Grove, N.

MR. HERBERT WALENN

(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MISS GERTRUDE WESLEY

(HARPIST AND MEZZO-SOPRANO),
Doncaster.

MISS FLORENCE A. BAKER

ACCOMPANIST (Piano) to Singers and Instrumentalists.
For Concerts, At Homes, Choirs, and Private Practice.
68, Hilldrop Crescent, London, N.

MISS ELLEN CHILDS

(CHROMATIC HARPIST)

Having studied in Paris under the direction of the Inventor, Miss Childs is prepared to give LESSONS on the NEW CHROMATIC HARP (without pedals). For terms, apply, 170, Belsize Road, N.W.; or, care of Messrs. Pleyell Wolff, Lyon and Co., 79-80, Baker Street, Portman Square, W.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)

(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

SOLO BOYS.

LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.

President, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
Principal, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.

Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.

A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

Mr. Tann's Solo Boys have gained several Cathedral and Choral Scholarships. Recent engagements: St. Paul's Cathedral (Festival of London Church Choir Association), Ayr, N.B (Re-opening Services), Camden Town ("St. Paul," "Creation"), Carlisle (Organ Recital), Southampton (Ballad Concert), Tottenham ("God, Thou art great," "Cradle of Christ"), Watlington (Christmas Services), &c.

A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.

For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

QUARTET.
MR.
MONTAGUE BORWELL'S

ORATORIO QUARTET are now booking Engagements:—
Miss Winifred Marwood, Sop. | Miss Gertrude Macaulay, Con.
Mr. Henry Turnpenney, Tenor. | Mr. Montague Borwell, Bar.
For terms and vacant dates, 56, Foxburg Road, Stoke Newington, N., or, usual Agents.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

THE CLAYTON CONCERT PARTY.

Mr. D'Arcy Clayton, Halsemere, Woodside Pk. Rd., North Finchley, N.

THE EUTERPEAN VOCAL QUARTET.

Misses ANNIE SWINFEN, ANNIE WILSON,
Messrs. ALBERT CORNISH, MUSGROVE TUFNAIL.
Musgrove Tufnail, 24, Grove Road, Brixton, S.W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.

SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. James Bates, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. STEDMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY

(Established 1877).
Artists for Opera, Theatre, Oratorio, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Choruses, Choir Boys and Girls.
Singing Lessons and Coaching.
58, Berners Street, W.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,
LIMITED.
Principal: EDWIN M. LOTT, Mus. Doc.
Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.
Central Office: 113 Great Portland Street, W.
Local Theoretical Examination, May 21, 1901.
Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.
W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC, LTD.
Established 1895. Incorporated 1900.
Central Office, 22, Berners Street, London, W.
Warden: Professor ALEXANDER PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.
MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS (all towns) in May. Medals and Prizes granted—Diplomas of Associate Licentiate, and Fellow.
Examiners: Signor Tito Mattei, Herr Jacques Haakman, Herr Steudner-Welsing, and Professor Alexander Phipps, Mus. Bac.
Educational Departments, 22, Berners Street, and Victoria Hall, London; The Conservatoire of Music, Hardman Street, Liverpool, and Victoria Hall, Withington, Manchester.
Staff of forty Professors. Representatives wanted. Apply, Sec.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities; Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: F.R.C.O. (paper work), 1901; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1900, and previous years; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music and Pianoforte Teaching), 1897, 1898, and 1899; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.O., 1900; CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that EIGHTEEN of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1900. Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1900, FIFTY-SIX passes; L.R.A.M., 1897-1900, NINETEEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

MR. ARTHUR POLLITT, Mus.B., Durh., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares for all Exams. by Correspondence. Recent successes at Durham University, R.C.O., R.A.M., and T.C.L. 159, Upper Parliament Street, Liverpool.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c.—MR. JOSEPH SPAWFORTH, A.R.A.M. (formerly pupil of Professor Ebenezer Prout, Mr. Frederick Corder, and Mr. Davenport, at the Royal Academy of Music), gives LESSONS, Privately or by Post. Pupils prepared for the theoretical portions of all examinations. Apply, by letter, for terms, &c., to 67, Parliament Hill, N.W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

POSTAL LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. Corrections and examples given. Reference, past and present pupils. A. E. Taylor, Mus. Bac., Durham, A.R.C.O., 4, Brookfield, Lancaster.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES and PREPARES CANDIDATES for all MUSICAL EXAMS. Particulars, giving revised terms, sent post-free. Address, 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppell St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

VOICES TRAINED (Altos included) and Sight-Singing and the PIANOFORTE TAUGHT by Mr. W. A. FROST (Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral), at 16, Amwell Street, Myddelton Square, E.C. Many pupils of Mr. Frost have obtained Cathedral and other Choir Appointments in open competitions. Latest success at St. Bride's, Fleet Street.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

TRAINING of TENORS.—Mr. E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N. The principles on which Mr. Davidson Palmer's Method is based are fully explained in his book, "THE RIGHTLY-PRODUCED VOICE," which contains information of the utmost importance to tenors. Price, bound in cloth, 2s. 6d., Post-free, from the Author.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for RÉPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

SYDNEY SHAW (Leipzig Conservatoire) gives LESSONS, PIANO, SINGING, ORCHESTRATION. Theory in all branches. Pupils visited. Terms, &c., apply, care of Messrs. Ascherberg, 46, Berners Street, W.

MR. J. HERBERT WILLIAMS, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Piano), Director of the Music, Westbourne Park Institute, Conductor of the Choral Society, &c., gives LESSONS on the PIANO, SINGING, and THEORY at 60, Berners Street, and at Bayswater. Organ Lessons and Recitals. Schools attended. Address, 47, Elgin Crescent, W.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

CHORISTERS.—Two VACANCIES, St. Barnabas', Pimlico, S.W. Sound commercial education at Westminster City School. Apply, Richard Lemaire, Organist and Director of the Choir.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—CHORISTERSHIPS.—The TRIAL of VOICES to fill vacancies in the Choir School will be held on Tuesday, May 21.
Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between nine and twelve years of age.
For particulars, apply to the Dean.
Names to be sent in by May 14.

WIMBORNE MINSTER.—There will shortly be a VACANCY for a CHORAL SCHOLAR at the Minster. Exceptional advantages to a boy with good strong voice and some knowledge of Church music. For further particulars, apply, the Organist, Wimborne Minster.

ALTO WANTED, St. Luke's, West Holloway, N. Cathedral Service. Salary, £10 per annum. Apply, by letter, to Arthur Thompson, F.R.A.M., Hon. Choirmaster, 16, Hilldrop Rd., N.

MALE ALTO WANTED.—£10 per annum. All Saints' Church, North Peckham. Apply, by letter, to Self Fowles, 8, Sumner Road, S.E.

TENOR and ALTO (Voluntary) WANTED, to complete Quartet. Must be good readers. Organist, The Vestry, St. Thomas's Church, Portman Square, W.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir for a TENOR, either a Lay Clerk or Choral Scholar.—Stipend offered, £80 a year (with certain allowances in case of Choral Scholar).
Date of competition, May 17, 1901.
For further information, apply to the Dean, King's College, Cambridge.
Applications to be sent in by May 10.

WINCHESTER CATHEDRAL.—There is a VACANCY for a TENOR in the Cathedral Choir. Present stipend, £73 per annum. Apply (with not more than four testimonials), to the Rev. the Precentor, 47, Southgate Street, Winchester.

TENOR WANTED. £10. Church of England. Apply, Tuesdays, 8.30. F. Heavens, Grosvenor Chapel, South Audley Street, W.

BASS or BARITONE LAY-CLERK REQUIRED, for St. Saviour's Collegiate Church. Two services on Sundays Daily evensong at 5.0. Rehearsals, Monday and Friday evenings. £50. Apply, Dr. A. Madeley Richardson.

BASS WANTED, for St. Stephen's, South Kensington. Experienced. Good sight reader. Sunday, twice, Friday evening, usual festivals, &c. £20. Dr. Hamilton Robinson, 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Wesleyan Church, Surbiton. Apply, stating qualification, and salary required, to W. Summers, Acrise, Ditton Road, Surbiton.

WANTED, ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. West London. Four-manual organ. Gregorian. High Celebrations. Communicant. Experienced choir trainer. Disciplinarian. Apply, stating full particulars, Z., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, for the Parish Church, Hessle. Must be F.R.C.O. and thoroughly experienced in Voice Production. Salary, £85. Applications, with three testimonials (not originals), with full particulars and three references, to be sent to the Vicar, Hessle, East Yorks.

ORGANIST-CHOIRMASTER desires ENGAGEMENT. Present post nine and a half years. Excellent testimonials and references. Denny, Mundford, Norfolk.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (Mus. Bac.) desires APPOINTMENT. Very successful with boys' voices. Accustomed to choral services and large organ. Private means. Highest testimonials. Beta, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires RE-APPOINTMENT. London training and experience. Thoroughly competent trainer of voices, conductor, and accompanist. Would treat for Colonial sphere. Very highly recommended. Apply, C. W. A., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST, experienced and efficient, desires POST in or within 25 miles of London. Surrey or Kent preferred. Salary, £25 to £30. Highest references as to character and ability. Gill, 20, Cavendish Road, Harringay, London, N.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of experience wishes for an engagement as soon as possible. Refs. and testimonials superior. G. P., Glenthorpe, 55, Ladbroke Road, Red Hill.

CATHEDRAL ORGANIST (Ireland) desires to EXCHANGE for CHURCH APPOINTMENT in England. Fine organ, large Mass choir, and good income to a competent man. Musicus, 2, St. John's Road, Abingdon, Berks.

ST. DAVID'S CATHEDRAL.—ORGANIST requires RESIDENT ORGAN PUPIL. Willis organ. Daily services. Seaside town. Recent successes of resident pupils: 1899, A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., and Organ Scholarship at R.C.M.; 1900, A.R.C.O. and F.R.C.O.; 1901, A.R.C.O. and L.R.A.M. For terms, apply to Mr. Herbert C. Morris, F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., the Cathedral, St. David's, Pembrokeshire.

GENTLEMANLY YOUTH to train for Musical Profession required by ORGANIST (Mus. Bac.) of important Church in fashionable West England seaside resort. Splendid climate. Sound musical instruction. Folio, 52, Trinity Road, Wood Green.

ORGANISTS, CHOIRMASTERS, and every MUSICIAN should send for SPECIMENS (free) of DINHAM, BLYTH and CO.'S MUSIC AUTO-LITHO PRINTING. Anthems, Kyries, Services, Songs, &c., printed (black ink) from twenty-four and upwards, at trifling cost. 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

LADY, experienced in Orchestral Music, and accompanist, desires ENGAGEMENT for coming Season. Address, Pianist, care of Gough and Davy, Hull.

MADAME EUGENIA MORGAN can receive a few PAYING GUESTS. Highly recommended by Lady Superintendent, Guildhall School of Music. Special arrangements for students. 69, Elgin Avenue, Maida Hill, W.

TUNER-TRAVELLER—A large firm in the West of England require a first-class PIANO TUNER, who is also a good canvasser, for new business, tunings, and sales. Liberal salary and commission to a pushing man. Character must bear strict investigation. Reply, T. T., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER.—Duck, Son and Pinker, Bath, require a First-class PIANO TUNER, principally for country work. A comfortable and permanent berth for a steady man. Reply, giving full particulars as to age, salary required, references, if married, and enclosing photograph.

WANTED, TUNER and REPAIRER. Permanency. Send photo, with references, qualifications, salary required, age, &c., to W. Brunt and Sons, Piano and Music Depôt, Bristol.

PIANOFORTE TUNER REQUIRED for the Provinces. Must be a really fine Tuner, with exceptional capabilities and experience, and of good presence. Apply, by letter, stating age, past experience, and wages required; also enclose photo, if possible, to W. P., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANO TUNER WANTED. State experience and salary to Clabbon, 116, Northumberland Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

TUNER WANTED, for out-door. Send photo and testimonials. Permanency. J. Nield and Son, Music Warehouse, Stockport.

TUNER desires BERTH, steady and reliable man. General knowledge of the trade. Refs. good. P. C. H., Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

FIRST-CLASS SALESMAN WANTED, in one of the largest Pianoforte houses in London. Address, giving particulars as to previous appointments, and state salary required, Salesman, care of Anderson's Advertising Agency, 14, Cockspur Street, S.W.

YOUNG MAN (24) wants SITUATION as ASSISTANT in Music Warehouse. Practical knowledge of the trade. Apply, Triad, Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

RESIDENCE, with use of ORGAN, to be LET at Richmond. 3 reception, 5 bed, bathroom, kitchen, &c., and garden. £50 per annum. Tyser, Greenwood and Crier, 360, High Road, Chiswick.

A LADY in the West-End (5 minutes from Marble Arch) having a larger house than she requires, would let a well FURNISHED ROOM 2 or 3 times a week for private lessons. References exchanged. Address letters, Alpha, Novello and Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827). Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

CHURCH or CHAPEL ORGANS, new and second-hand, with 3 manuals, 24 stops, pneumatic pedals; would be constructed to suit building. Three Organs, 2 manuals, 12 stops; pedals, full compass, straight and concave. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

ORGAN for SALE, second-hand. 2 manuals, 12 stops, open CC pedals and Bourdon, hand and foot-blowers. Cope, 74, Asylum Road, S.E.

TWO-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE. Two stops on swell, three on great. Two couplers. Open diapason through (56 notes). Bourdon, 30 notes. Can be seen and tried at any time. Price £80. Handley, 16, Burton Road, Kilburn, N.W.

ORGAN (by KIRKLAND) for SALE. Two manuals and pedals. 19 stops, spotted metal pipes, from Ten. C; now standing in Lightcliffe Church. Apply, Churchwardens, Lightcliffe, Halifax; or, Wm. Andrews, City Organ Works, Bradford.

ORGANS.—Fine TWO-MANUAL ORGAN, with 11 stops. College of Organists pedals. Price £150. Also Two-Manual, in oak case. £200. Warranted sound and good. Organist, 24, Endsleigh Gardens, Gordon Square, W.C.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

ORGAN on SALE, 3 manuals and pedals, full compass, CC to G, 13 stops, 4 couplers. Suitable for small Church. In perfect order. Cost, when new, £350. Price reasonable. H. Bell, Heathfield, Stockport.

TWO-MANUAL AMERICAN ORGAN, with sliding pedals, 19 stops and accessories, hand and foot blowing. Beautifully carved walnut case, with ornamental pipes. Price £70. May be seen by arrangement. Enquire, Newth, 44, Percival Street, Clerkenwell, E.C.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

FOR SALE.—Upright IRON GRAND, by Hemingway & Thomas, with College of Organists' Pedals (Rummens). Has had a few years' use, but is in sound condition. £18. Apply to Mrs. Johnson, Grove Farm House, Highgate Road, London, N.W.

65-GUINEA Upright PIANOFORTE, by Blüthner. Black case; only slightly used. 45 Guineas cash; bargain. Also 49-Guinea 17-stop Estey Organ. Splendid tone and condition, 24 Guineas. On view at Beringer and Strohmenger, 86, Westow Hill, Crystal Palace Station.

VIRGIL PRACTICE CLAVIER (second-hand) for SALE. In excellent condition. For terms, address, S. Engall, 76, Goldsmith Avenue, Acton, W.

ORGANISTS, &c.

RUMMENS'

Organ Pedal Attachment to Pianofortes

FOR HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.

STRAIGHT AND CONCAVE, RADIATING AND CONCAVE
Or any other form of Pedal Board.

UNRIVALLED FOR TOUCH, APPEARANCE, DURABILITY AND PRICE.

Sir John Stainer: "I can confidently recommend it . . . nothing more valuable."
Sir Fred. Bridge: "I have tested it . . . successful . . . will give satisfaction."
Sir Geo. Martin: "I think very highly of it . . . clever."
Dr. Harding: "I am delighted with it . . . in every way a success . . . the best."

Similar Testimonials from the most distinguished Organists and Musicians.

Particulars free. Write or call.
1, WYNNE ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.

(ESTABLISHED 1841.)

Specifications and Estimates sent free.

REMOVAL.—MUSICAL OPINION and MUSIC TRADE REVIEW Office is now REMOVED (from Holborn Bars) to 35, Shoe Lane, Holborn, E.C.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

TO COMPOSERS.

MARRIOTT AND WILLIAMS,

MUSIC PUBLISHERS,

92, GREAT PORTLAND STREET, LONDON, W.,

Undertake the Revising, Engraving, and Publishing of Authors' Musical Works, in the very Best Style and at the lowest charges. The Finest Paper used and the Best Workmanship in the trade. Estimates free on receipt of MSS. Composers' works included in list without extra charge.

Private Rooms for Practice and Teaching.
Lessons by competent Professors given in every branch of Music, Vocal and Instrumental.

TO CHORAL and ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.—Several CHORAL WORKS, PART-SONGS, and ORCHESTRAL WORKS for SALE. Applications for lists to Dr. Bunnett, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

THE Members of the Abbey Glee Club offer a PRIZE of TEN GUINEAS for an original Part-Song, Glee, or Madrigal, for four voices. Compositions must be sent under seal, with the name and address of the Composer, to the Secretary, Mr. Fred. W. Farmer, 323, Southampton Street, Camberwell, S.E., by the 30th June next, after which date no composition will be received.

DR. E. J. HOPKINS' PUBLICATIONS.—The Executors announce that all the works of the above-named Composer, which were his property at the time of his decease, have now been placed in the hands of Messrs. WEEKES & CO., 14, Hanover Street, W.

TO SELL, HANDEL'S WORKS. Full Score, Published by Messrs. Cramer for Handel Society. Folio, bound, full morocco, gilt edges; in excellent state of preservation. Apply, to B.D., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

Now ready. Price 1s. Post-free.

THE BOY'S VOICE AT THE BREAKING PERIOD. By E. Davidson Palmer, Mus. Bac., Oxon. May be obtained from the Author, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N.; or, from Joseph Williams, 32, Great Portland Street, W.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By Alfred J. Dye. Price 4d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By Arthur Carnall, Mus.B., Cantab. 4d. Sample copies, Penge, S.E.

Sixth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By William S. Vinning, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

KYRIE ELEISON in D flat. By Rev. T. Normandale, B.A. Price 1d. Third Edition.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—"Messiah." "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

EIGHT NEW TUNES

FOR

SUNDAY SCHOOL FESTIVALS

INCLUDING ONE FOR THE NEW CENTURY.

Music, 7s. per 100; Words, 2s. per 100.

Special Title-page for Quantities.

Write immediately for sample to Sunday School Union, 1, Piccadilly, Manchester.

HYMN for ASCENSIONTIDE.—O CHRIST, OUR JOY GONE UP ON HIGH (A. & M., 145). Set to music by Herbert A. Bennett. Price 2d.
London: Novello and Company, Limited.

SAUL. A Song. Words by Byron. Music by W. G. Thompson. Compass, B to F. 2s. net.
London: Weekes and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

(Instituted 1872.)

President:
The Right Hon. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.

Director of Examinations:
JAMES HIGGS, Mus.D.

JUNE 1 is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the following OPEN SCHOLARSHIPS, tenable for three years, and EXHIBITIONS tenable for one year:—

Queen Victoria Composition Scholarship.
One Pianoforte Scholarship.
One Violin Scholarship.
One Orchestral Instrument Scholarship (other than Violin).
Benedict Pianoforte Exhibition.
Sims Reeves Vocal Exhibition.
College Violin Exhibition.
College Viola Exhibition.
College Violoncello Exhibition.
College Double-Bass Exhibition.
College Organ Exhibition.

JUNE 22 is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the 56th Half-yearly HIGHER EXAMINATIONS, commencing at the College on July 22.

MAY 22 is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE (Theory) EXAMINATION, which takes place on June 22.

The forthcoming Local Examinations in INSTRUMENTAL and VOCAL MUSIC take place up to and including July, at the various centres (a list of which may be had on application) throughout the United Kingdom, and include Pianoforte and Organ Playing, Solo Singing, and Violin Playing.

The New Preparatory Examination in Pianoforte and Violin Playing will be included.

Particulars and Entry Forms on application.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.

Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: His Majesty The King.
Director: Sir C. Hubert H. Parry, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: Charles Morley, Esq., M.P.

Telegraphic address—"Initiative, London."

The next Term will commence on May 6. Entrance Examination, May 3.

A JUNIOR DEPARTMENT is now open for Pupils up to 16 years of age at Reduced Fees.

Syllabus and official entry forms may be obtained from—
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

Just Published.

Performed at the Coronet Theatre by the Purcell Operatic Society.

THE MASQUE
IN DIOCLESIAN OR THE PROPHETESS

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY THOMAS BETTERTON

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY HENRY PURCELL.

Edited by Sir Frederick J. Bridge and John Pointer.

Price Two Shillings.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

BROADWOODS' (Estd. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (Highest possible Award)
PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

LECTURE-SESSIONS
FOR
ORGANISTS AND CHOIRMASTERS
WILL BE HELD DURING EASTER WEEK
AT
THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL,
22, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W.

The Lectures will include the following:—
Choir-Training—Dr. G. F. Huntley.
Organ Accompaniment—Mr. H. W. Richards, Mus.B.
Organ Construction—Mr. Thomas Casson.
Voice Production—Mr. William Shakespeare, Mr. Henry Beauchamp, and Mr. T. J. Hoare.
Art of Teaching the Organ—Dr. Yorke Trotter.
Harmony—Dr. Charles Vincent.
Counterpoint—Dr. C. W. Pearce.
Musical Form—Dr Percy Rideout.
Composition—Dr. Cuthbert Harris.
Sight-Singing—Mr. Harding Bonner.
The Orchestra in combination with the Organ—Dr. Yorke Trotter.
Plainsong (Solesmes Method)—Mr. H. B. Briggs.
Plainsong Accompaniment—Mr. Harold Gibbs.
Musical rendering of the Liturgy—Rev. James Baden-Powell.
Musical Training of Congregations—Mr. David Evans, Mus.B.

Lecture-Classes for Clergy desiring instruction in Voice Production and in the Art of Public Speaking and Reading will be held by Mr. Henry Beauchamp and Mr. Charles Fry.

Full particulars and application forms can be obtained from the Hon. Sec., 22, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W.

Just Published.

CONCERT OVERTURE
FROISSART
FOR FULL ORCHESTRA
COMPOSED BY EDWARD ELGAR.
(Op. 19.)

FULL SCORE. Price 7s. 6d.
String Parts, 4s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 9s.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

FOR ST. GEORGE'S DAY, April 23.

THE BANNER OF ST. GEORGE A BALLAD
FOR SOPRANO SOLO (ad lib.), CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA
THE WORDS WRITTEN BY
SHAPCOTT WENSLEY
THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
EDWARD ELGAR.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.
String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

NOTE.—The instrumentation of this work has been so arranged by the composer that a small orchestra (String Quintet, 1 Flute, 1 Oboe, 1 Clarinet, 1 Bassoon, 2 Horns, 2 Cornets, 1 Trombone, and Drums) will be effective. These instruments may be supplemented by any of the other instruments indicated in the Full Score.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
APRIL 1, 1901.

SIR JOHN GOSS.

1800—1880.

Four days before the nineteenth century dawned there was born into the world a baby boy who was destined to become a master of English Church music. He first saw the light on December 27, 1800, and bore the honoured name of John Goss—an octave of letters. His father, Joseph Goss, was organist of the Parish Church of Fareham, a Hampshire town on the extreme north-west of Portsmouth harbour. The boy came of a musical stock, the Goss family for several generations being noted for their voices. Master Johnnie doubtless received his first lessons in music from his father at the Fareham keyboard. At the age of eight he was sent to a school at Ringwood. Three years later he came to London to live with his uncle, John Jeremiah Goss, an excellent alto singer and a member of the choirs of the Chapel Royal, St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey, and, moreover, one who had the honour, in the year 1817, of being interred in St. Paul's Cathedral.

A CHAPEL ROYAL BOY AND HIS MASTER.

Upon his arrival in London, young John Goss became one of the Children of the Chapel Royal, St. James's—that remarkable nursery of English Church musicians not a few. The master at that time was John Stafford Smith. The boys lived at Adelphi Terrace and were kept in subjection by a liberal use of the cane, such traditions being carefully preserved by Smith's successor, William Hawes. Here is a picture of the educational advantages—or disadvantages—enjoyed by Goss at that time, told in his own words at the age of sixty-two, in a letter to Miss Maria Hackett, dated December 24, 1862:—

> Once I was a chorister in the Chapel Royal, St. James's. We were boarded with the Master, John Stafford Smith, whose wife was a daughter of Dr. Boyce. He was underpaid, I believe, and certainly the boys in my time were undertaught. We had a 'Writing Master' from half-past twelve to two on Wednesdays and Saturdays, if my memory do not deceive me, and no other instruction in reading, writing, arithmetic, and a little English grammar than we ten could get out of that time.
>
> As to playing on an instrument and learning thorough bass, what we did we did by and for ourselves! I well recollect a frequent observation of Mr. S.: 'You came here to learn to sing and not to learn to play.' Yet before I left the choir I had deputized for my old 'Master' (Smith) at the Chapel Royal.

A heartless, if not brutal, episode in his chorister career was in after years related by the gentle-minded Goss to a friend. On one occasion the boy bought out of his saved-up pocket money a copy of Handel's organ concertos. Whilst walking along the schoolroom one day with his treasured possession under his arm, little Johnnie Goss met his master. 'What have you under your arm?' quoth the man in authority. 'Please, sir, it's only Handel's concertos,' the boy tremblingly replied, 'and I thought I should like to learn to play them.' 'Oh! only Handel's concertos,' said the master, 'and pray, sir, did you come here to learn to play or to sing?' 'To sing, sir,' said Goss, utterly discomfited. The master then seized the book and crowned his argument by hitting the dear little fellow on the head with it. Goss never saw his beloved Handel book again!

Upon leaving the Chapel Royal, John Goss became a pupil of Thomas Attwood, the pupil of Mozart. The 'dear old Mr. Attwood' of Mendelssohn had a very different disposition from that of the tyrannical Smith, and we are not surprised to find a dedication by Goss couched in such words as 'his gratefully attached pupil.'

FIRST ORGAN APPOINTMENT.

At the age of seventeen he made his appearance on the stage in the capacity of a humble chorus singer. It was in the first performance in England of Mozart's 'Don Giovanni,' much tinkered under Bishop's direction at the King's Theatre, on April 12, 1817. In his teens the youth seems to have had a decided leaning towards the stage. A 'Negro Song' for three voices, scored for a small orchestra (strings, flutes, oboes, clarinets, and two horns), is dated 1819. An early song of romantic interest must be mentioned—a setting of Annot Lyle's song in Scott's 'The Legend of Montrose,' 'Wert thou like me,' which he dedicated to Miss Lucy Emma New, his fiancée. He married this lady when he was only twenty-one. The prospect of those increased responsibilities which matrimony brings with it doubtless influenced Goss in seeking an organ appointment. In 1821 he became organist of Stockwell Chapel (now St. Andrew's Church), erected in 1767 by Archbishop Secker as a Chapel of Ease in the now well-stocked parish of Lambeth. This post he held for four years. He was appointed (after a competition on December 14, 1824) the first organist of St. Luke's, Chelsea, then called Chelsea New Church, where he remained for thirteen years.*

'THERE IS BEAUTY ON THE MOUNTAIN.'

To return to the early composition period. A Sanctus dates from 1813 (ætat 13); a song,

* The father of Charles Kingsley was for two years rector of St. Luke's, Chelsea, during Goss's organistship.

'In a deep sequestered grove' (entitled 'Sonnett,' and dated July 18, 1816, Poole, Dorset); two canons, one 4 in 2, the other 6 in 3 (1823); four glees and an anthem, 'Forsake me not.' In 1824, the year of his appointment to Chelsea, he wrote a canon, 4 in 2, to the words 'Cantate Domino.' These compositions were full of promise. It was in the year 1825, however, that Goss first made his mark as a composer in his charmingly melodious glee, 'There is beauty on the mountain'—a gem of the first water. The Harmonicon was not far wrong when it said:—

> Mr. John Goss has produced a lovely piece of vocal harmony, under the name of a glee, to which we beg to call the attention of the many societies spread over this island; for they will now very rarely meet with a composition of the kind that has half its beauty.

An Interesting Sketch-Book.

Goss gave much attention to orchestral composition in his early manhood. Through the kindness of Mr. T. L. Southgate we have been permitted to examine Goss's sketch book, an oblong volume dating from 1821. In it we find that the young composer was in the habit of scoring Mozart's symphonies from a pianoforte duet arrangement and then afterwards adding Mozart's own instrumentation in red ink. Such a self-teaching process was invaluable to him, and it furnishes another instance of the enormous advantages to be gained by acquiring knowledge from observation, analysis, and the habit of picking up. This interesting sketch-book—which is quite Beethovenish in character—is prefaced by a 'memorandum of words for glees,' &c., which contains the titles of twenty-three poems with their characteristics

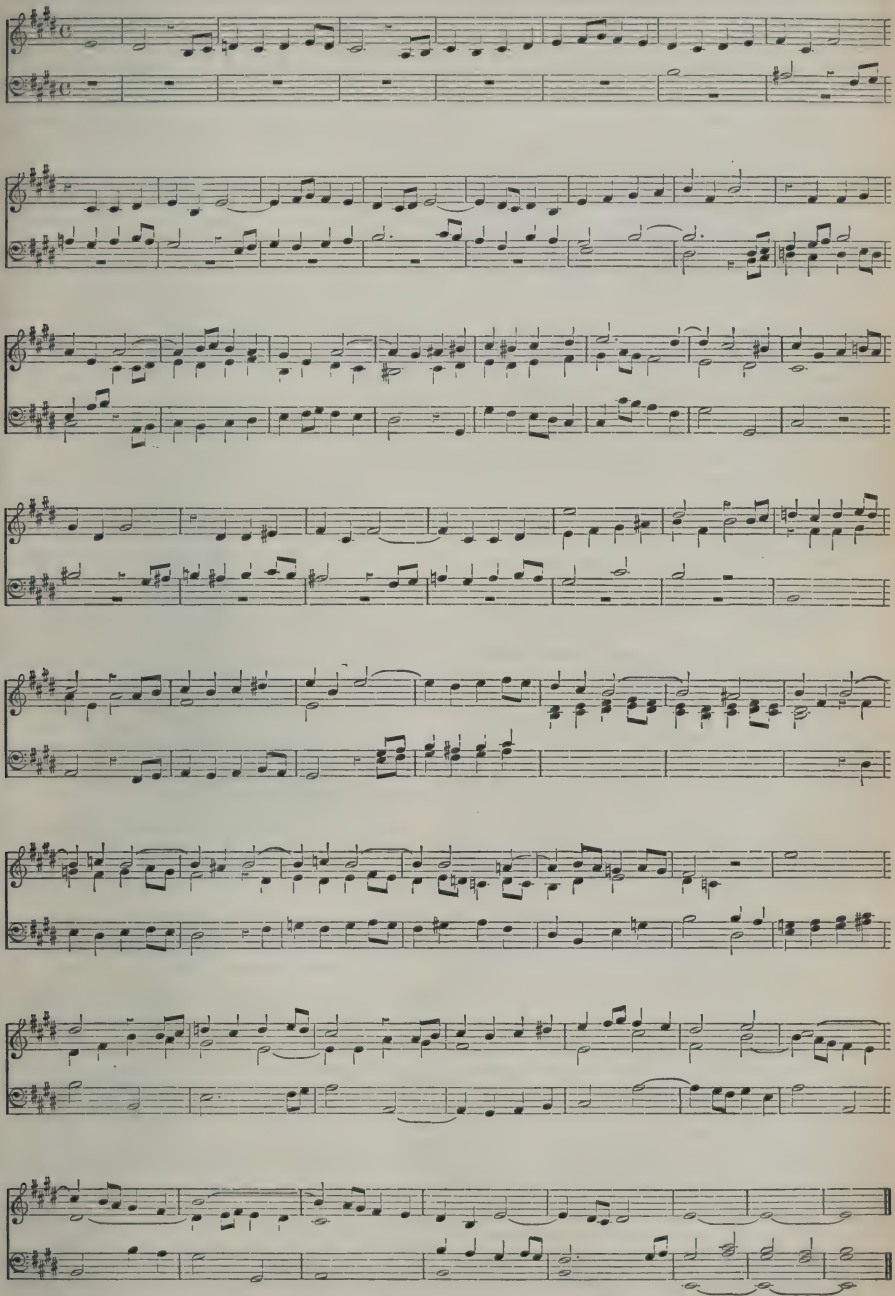
PHOTOGRAPH OF JOHN GOSS, WITH AN AUTOGRAPH INSCRIPTION ON THE REVERSE.

Dr. Cummings furnished proof of his good taste when he selected this fine specimen of English part-music for performance during his tour in America. Those captivating strains were sung in fifty-six towns in the United States. Is it any wonder that an encore inevitably resulted? There is a pretty story concerning this glee which Mrs. Sampson, Sir John Goss's daughter, sends us. It was sung at the Catch Club when the old Duke of Cambridge, a great lover of music, happened to be present. Said the Duke, after the performance: 'Goss, you must have been in love when you wrote that.' 'I was, your Royal Highness, with my wife,' replied the composer.

—cheerful, serious, serious (rather)—and their authors' names. Here too we find the first draft of the 'Wilderness,' which was begun October 22, 1861. Many of the compositions are prefixed with the letters I. N. D. A., the initial letters of In Nomine Domini. Amen. Every page bears testimony to the remarkable thoroughness of Goss's methods in composition. Genius, of course, he had, but this sketch-book is another proof that genius is not unconnected with the all-important concomitant of taking pains. Here is an instance. Underneath a fugal subject that is barren in results, the young composer has written

> 'After trying as above for 2 hours without success—here goes for a 10 minutes fugue.'

Then follows this jolly little ten-minutes three-part fugue—sixty bars long :—



ORCHESTRAL COMPOSITIONS.

In his young-man period Goss turned his attention to the composition of orchestral works. In 1825 he wrote an Overture in F minor, which was performed two years later—April 23, 1827—at the fifth Philharmonic concert of the season. The Harmonicon, in a notice of the concert, said:—

The MS. overture, by Mr. Goss, was composed for this Society some three or four years ago; tried at a rehearsal and unanimously approved; yet, from one of those causes which are not always apparent, has been kept back till the present season. This composition, which does honour to the English school of music, is in F minor; and though written quite in the modern fashion, therefore abundantly loud, is full of the most undeniable proofs of the author's skill, and shows that his genius wants nothing but encouragement.

A foot-note states:—

Mr. Goss was a pupil of Mr. Attwood, and the latter a disciple of Mozart; so that, perhaps, it may be denied that the first-named is legitimately of the British school. We, however, think ourselves entitled to claim him.

This F minor Overture, by the way, was revived by Dr. Joseph C. Bridge at the Chester Festival of 1882 when its performance created much interest.

Another overture—in E flat, and a favourite of the composer's—was written in 1827 and performed at the fifth Royal Academic concert on May 28, 1827. The Harmonicon must again be requisitioned for an account of the performance:—

The new overture by Mr. Goss, in E flat, is the second proof that he has publicly given of his scientific attainments, and of his genius for the composition of instrumental music. A short introduction of beautiful harmony leads into the quick movement, in which the subjects are not only very pleasing, considered separately, but combine with the happiest effect when woven together, according to the rules of florid counter-point, with the taste, as well as knowledge, possessed by Mr. Goss. The performance of this very clever production would have been more creditable to the managers had it been fixed in a less unfavourable part of the concert. Placing it at the end, when half the company had quitted the room, and a moiety of the remainder were on the move, was little better than mockery of the composer.

That these overtures must have made an impression upon the big-wigs of the Philharmonic Society may be inferred by the following letter written to Goss by the Secretary, and dated January 9, 1833.

Sir,—Agreeably to a Resolution passed at a general meeting of the Philharmonic Society, I am instructed to offer you a third portion of one hundred guineas, namely, the sum of thirty-five pounds, for an instrumental composition which shall be the property of the Society for two years from the time of its delivery, after which the copyright shall revert to you, the Society reserving to themselves the privilege of performing it at all times, and with the understanding that you shall be allowed to publish any arrangement of it as soon as you may think proper after its first performance at their Concert.—I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,

W. Watts, Secretary.

He did not, however, accept this gratifying offer; he probably felt that his strength lay in the direction of composing vocal music.

GOSS'S 'PAROCHIAL PSALMODY.'

Goss never distinguished himself as a composer for the pianoforte, but in 1827 we find a notice of 'A Russian Air, with variations for the piano-forte, and an accompaniment for the flute (ad lib.)' composed by him. This was doubtless in the nature of a pot-boiler to meet the requirements of the tootling amateurs of those days. Of a truer metal is a motet, entitled

Requiem Æternam, composed by John Goss, organist of Chelsea New Church, and inscribed to the memory of His Royal Highness the Duke of York. Presented to the Harmonicon by the composer. [1827.]

This practically unknown composition shows that fine results may be obtained by simple means at the hand of a master. This leads us to consider an important church music publication, entitled 'Goss's Parochial Psalmody,' in four volumes, which began to be issued in 1826. A preface to the fourth edition of Vol. I. states that—

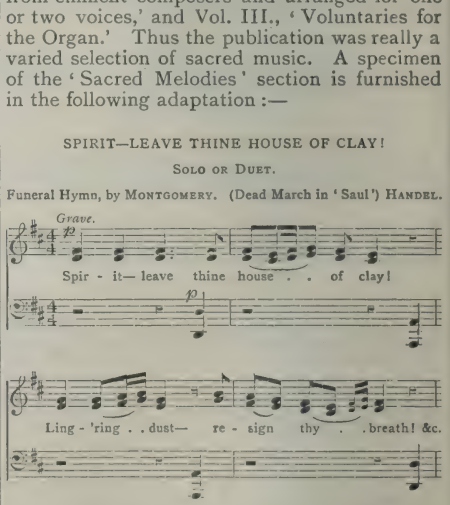
This work was originally published at the instance of several of the congregation of Chelsea Church, who were desirous to have the music of the Psalms and Hymns there in use, together with the verses to which they are sung, arranged in a pocket form, for the convenience of taking to and from church.

Volume IV. of this Psalmody publication contains the first appearance of Goss's well known double chant adaptation of the Allegretto movement of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, transposed from A minor to C minor. Vol. II. is entitled 'Sacred Melodies, chiefly selected from eminent composers and arranged for one or two voices,' and Vol. III., 'Voluntaries for the Organ.' Thus the publication was really a varied selection of sacred music. A specimen of the 'Sacred Melodies' section is furnished in the following adaptation:—

SPIRIT—LEAVE THINE HOUSE OF CLAY!

Solo or Duet.

Funeral Hymn, by Montgomery. (Dead March in 'Saul') Handel.



Mention should be made of the charming vignettes, of which we give a specimen on the opposite page, that adorn the title-pages of this interesting publication associated with the name of John Goss.

THE '47.'

Before proceeding farther it may be desirable to refer to one or two minor matters necessary to completeness, even if not strictly chronological. In 1822 Goss was elected an Associate of the Philharmonic Society (Member, 1835); in 1824 he became a Member of the Royal Society of Musicians, and in 1834 a member of the Society of British Musicians. He compiled a Pianoforte Student's Catechism (1830) and composed the glees 'Hark, heard ye not,' 'Her eyes the glowworm,' and 'O my sweet Mary.' The '48' are well-known to every music-lover, but how many have heard of the '47'? The '47' consisted of four dozen less one 'Preludes in the principal major and minor keys' contributed by twenty-two composers, including John Goss, who was responsible for that in E major. The '47' were published; but all will admit that the '48' have gone one better than the '47'!

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH, CHELSEA.

(From the frontispiece of Goss's 'Parochial Psalmody,' Vol. I.)

'THE SERJEANT'S WIFE.'

The only instance in which Goss allied his art with a stage performance is that of the music he wrote for 'The Serjeant's Wife,' a drama written by John Banim. This somewhat gruesome production was first performed at the English Opera House, Strand (now the Lyceum Theatre), on July 24, 1827, 'with entirely new Musick composed by Mr. Goss. In Act I. will be introduced a new Quadrille.' Amongst those who took part in the representation was Miss Goward, afterwards Mrs. Keeley, to whom Goss dedicated the song 'Forbear! fond youth,' which she sang with rapturous applause in the drama. The piece ran for thirty-five nights—in fact, to the end of the season, and it was subsequently performed at Covent Garden. 'The Serjeant's Wife' is often referred to as an opera by Goss, but he only seems to have supplied an overture, a song and chorus, the song for 'little Goward' above referred to, and the music for the Quadrilles. He probably did not furnish strains for the 'exit down trap,' the 'subdued hurry,' and the 'hurry,' as indicated to be musically embellished in the printed edition of the drama. A leading daily journal thus remarked upon the music of 'The Serjeant's Wife':—

There is some music in the piece supplied by Mr. Goss, a young Composer of considerable acquirements and much promise. The present occasion was not one upon which he could advance his pretensions in a favourable light. With the exception of one song by Pearmon, and another by Miss Goward, the music was written for actors not singers, and therefore afforded no fair criterion of the composer's talents.

The piece was received with constant applause, and its representation every night announced with warm and universal applause. It cannot fail to be of lasting attraction.—(Morning Post, July 25, 1827.)

Four numbers of the music in 'The Serjeant's Wife' (including the Quadrilles) were published. But this was the first and last time that Goss wrote for the stage. He thenceforth severed all connection with the theatre, owing, it is said, to religious scruples.

PROFESSOR AT THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Goss became a Professor of Harmony at the Royal Academy of Music in 1827, and held his Professorship till 1874—the long period of forty-seven years. M. Fétis, in his survey of music in London during his visit here in 1829, remarked that 'The third teacher of thorough bass in the Royal Academy of Music is an obscure musician of the name of Goss. I am not acquainted with any theoretical work, or any composition from his pen.' Four years later M. Fétis had the opportunity of making the acquaintance of 'An introduction to harmony and thorough bass, with numerous examples and exercises, by John Goss, Professor of harmony at the Royal Academy of Music.' This excellent theoretical treatise, which he wrote for his Academy pupils, was dedicated to Lord Burghersh (afterwards Lord Westmoreland), the founder and factotum of the Institution in Tenterden Street. From the copy of the original edition now before us we find that the dedication is dated '3, Cheyne Walk, Chelsea, October 1, 1833.' The first edition was not sold out for fourteen years! To this time belong the glees 'Fanny of the Dale,' 'Ossian's Hymn to the Sun' (a prize glee and a remarkably fine composition), and 'The Holiday Gown.' Also an octavo publication (begun in 1833) entitled 'The Monthly Sacred Minstrel,' edited by John Goss. A review of Nos. 1 and 2 in the Harmonicon of June, 1833, was couched in these words:—

No. 4 ['The Monthly Sacred Minstrel'] is a nicely got up little work in octavo, published in numbers, each containing eight pages. In the present two numbers are five pieces,—an air by Neukomm, from his oratorio; one by Mr. Goss; the Vesper Hymn by Attwood, originally published in the Harmonicon, which ought to have been acknowledged; an Elegy for three voices, by Eisenhofer; and a movement from Beethoven's Septet, with words very well set to it. This is a publication entitled to much commendation; but what will the brethren of the music trade say to so cheap a work? Surely Messrs. Cramer and Co. will be anathematised by the fraternity.

'THE RIGHT PIG BY THE EAR.'

In the year 1833 Goss sent in his anthem, 'Have mercy upon me, O God,' for the Gresham Prize competition, with the result that he obtained the award over S. S. Wesley, who had submitted his famous setting of 'The Wilderness,' or, to be quite correct, 'The Wilderness' had been held over from the previous year's contest. This prize anthem, dedicated by Goss to his dear friend and master, Thomas Attwood, was performed at the Mansion House, June 7, 1834. In connection with this interesting competition we are enabled, through the kindness of Mr. John S. Bumpus, to quote from a letter written by William Horsley (who, with Dr. Crotch and Mr. R. J. S. Stevens, Gresham Professor of Music, was one of the adjudicators) to Miss Maria Hackett, the donor of the prize. Horsley's letter, which is dated 'Gravel Pits [Kensington], 7.12.33,' is, as the Scotch folks would say, 'a wee bittie pawky':—

My dear Madam,

Dr. Crotch and Mr. Stevens have been with me this day in conclave, and you will be informed, by Mr. S., that our unanimous choice is fallen on No. 19. . . . Give me a line to say who is 'Mr. No. 19'—all at present is guess work with me; but I feel assured that we have taken the 'right pig by the ear.' He is a fellow who promises hereafter 'to grunt to some tune.'

Faithfully yours,

Wm. Horsley.

ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

The death of Thomas Attwood, Mozart's pupil, on March 24, 1838, caused a vacancy in the organistship of St. Paul's Cathedral. The late Dr. E. J. Hopkins has related the following amusing incidents in connection with the filling up of this important post, which carried with it the office of a vicar-choral, by way of an augmentation of the stipend. Here are the genial old man's words:—

In the year 1838, Thomas Attwood, organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, died, and Sir John (then Mr.) Goss, thought of applying for the appointment. He thereupon sought an interview with the Rev. Sydney Smith, Canon of St. Paul's, for the purpose of talking the matter over with him. Sydney Smith commenced by indulging in some tantalising observations. 'I suppose, Mr. Goss,' said he, 'you are aware what the statutable salary is?' 'Not exactly,' was the reply. 'Well, it is about £34 per annum.' 'Oh! indeed, is that all? Well, as I am receiving about £100 at Chelsea, I think I will, if you will allow me, consider the matter before I proceed further in my candidature.' He was about to take his departure when Sydney Smith remarked: 'Perhaps, Mr. Goss, before you go you would like to know whether any other appointment, or any perquisites appertain to the office of organist of St. Paul's?' He then entered into certain financial particulars, which gave so different a complexion to the matter that Goss at once entered his name for the vacant post. Time went on, and the anxious candidate began to wonder whether anything had been decided at the Cathedral. One evening he happened to meet the witty Canon at a dinner-party. He, however, hesitated to make any enquiry on that edible occasion, but at the dinner-table Goss happened to sit opposite Sydney Smith, to whom fell the duty of carving a fine piece of salmon. 'Mr. Goss,' asked the jocose carver, 'what part may I send you?' 'I have no choice, thank you,' said Goss. Thereupon the Canon cut a slice right across the fish. 'Accept that,' he said, 'and I trust Sydney Smith will always be found ready to assist Mr. Goss through thick and thin.' Upon his return home that evening, Goss found a letter informing him that he had been appointed organist of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Goss had not long been installed before he discovered that the organ stood in need of the addition of a few new and useful stops, so he took the opportunity after one of the week-day services of asking the Canon whether these desirable alterations might be made. 'Mr. Goss,' solemnly replied Sydney Smith, 'what a strange set of creatures you organists are. First you want the bull stop, then you want the tom-tit stop; in fact, you are like a jaded old cab-horse, always longing for another stop!'

'In the Psalms,' continued Dr. Hopkins, 'whenever there occurred any reference to storms and tempest, the organ used to give forth a deep roll, to the great delight of good Miss Hackett, who would look up at the instrument with a smile of intense satisfaction. On one occasion when the Psalms had been unusually full of references to atmospheric disturbances, and the organ had been demonstrative to an unusual degree, this good lady's face had been beaming almost incessantly. After the service, Sydney Smith accosted the organist with this profound remark, 'Mr. Goss, I don't know whether you have ever observed this remarkable phenomenon: whenever your organ thunders, Miss Hackett's face lightens!'

Before parting company with Sydney Smith we may refer to the fact that the witty divine had a great dislike to music in the minor key. It depressed him. One day he went to the organist and said: 'Mr. Goss, no more minor music if you please, while I am in residence.' Another canonic story, though not exactly bearing upon music, may be told—or re-told. At a meeting of the Dean and Chapter to settle the kind of wood paving to be placed in the north roadway of the Cathedral, discussion became so prolonged that Sydney Smith got up and said: 'Well, if my reverend brethren would only put their heads together, the thing would be done at once!'

THE GOSS ORGAN AT ST. PAUL'S.

What would our young cathedral organists of the present day say to the instrument that Goss had to play during his organistship at the great Metropolitan Cathedral? For twenty-five years he had only one stop on the pedals—never more than two! Here is the specification of Father Smith's organ (with the subsequently made additions) as it stood on the screen in Goss's day:—

Great Organ (13 stops).

(Compass, C C C to F in alt.)

Open diapason.	Tierce.
Open diapason.	Sesquialtera (2 ranks).
Stopped diapason treble).	Clarabella Mixture (2 ranks).
Principal.	Trumpet.
Twelfth.	Trumpet to middle C (in place of the Cornet).
Fifteenth.	Clarion.
Block Flute.

Swell Organ (7 stops).

(Compass, Gamut G to F in alt.)

Open diapason.	French horn.
Stopped diapason.	Hautboy.
Principal.	Trumpet.
Sesquialtera (3 ranks).

Choir Organ (8 stops).

(Compass, F F F to F in alt.)

Open diapason.	Principal.
Stopped diapason.	Twelfth.
Dulciana.	Fifteenth.
Viola de gamba.	Cremona to tenor G.

Pedal Organ (1 stop!).

(Compass, C C C to C, two octaves.)

Open wood.

Accessory Stops, &c.

Great to Pedal.	Swell to Great.
Choir to Pedal.	Swell to Choir.

Four composition pedals acting on the Great Organ.

The CCC compass of the Great organ manual should be noticed. In 1860 the screen was removed, and the organ was placed in the north-east arch of the chancel. But the keyboards were put in such a sunken position as to be most inconvenient to the organist. Three years later (in 1863) Father Willis was called in; he enlarged and revised the instrument, and placed the manuals in the gallery. In 1872, when Sir John Stainer succeeded Sir John Goss, the organ was divided and assumed the appearance with which we are now so familiar, the work being also carried out by Father Willis.

UNPREMEDITATED THUNDER.

Sir John Stainer, who was a chorister of St. Paul's from 1847 to 1857, kindly sends the following amusing reminiscence of his distinguished predecessor in the organistship of the Metropolitan Cathedral:—

'In 1855 or 1856, when the organ at St. Paul's still stood in its original position on the screen, and the organist played with his back against the choir-organ, there was a space on each side of the organ loft which had a seat where three or four visitors could sit during service. These spaces were hidden by dark red curtains, but on Sunday afternoons when Mr. Goss permitted a few friends to join him, the curtains were thrown open so that his visitors could have a view of the choir and congregation, and a very pretty sight it was. During the short interval which elapsed between my choristership and my call to St. Michael's College, Tenbury, I was on several occasions one of the favoured few who were invited by Mr. Goss to sit in the organ-loft.

'One Sunday afternoon he asked me to cross to the further side, because he expected some one else. I, of course, obeyed, by sitting on the organ-stool and wriggling along it, for this was the only means of moving from one side to the other, except to shut off the "pedal-pipes" and walk across the pedals. This last method of transit was that always adopted by Mr. Goss. The other visitors duly arrived before the commencement of service; they were little Arthur Sullivan and two ladies, who had kindly brought him in their carriage. During the sermon, Goss having said a few words to Sullivan, crossed over to speak to me; but alas, the dear man had forgotten to shut off the pedal-pipes, and he had taken two steps on the pedal-clavier before he realised that he was the cause of the alarming thunderings which were frightening the congregation and putting a temporary pause in the sermon. He completely lost his presence of mind, and was unable to decide whether to go backwards or forwards. Brought to his senses by the sustained roar, he continued his walk, or rather trot, towards me; when he sat down in a nervous perspiration and mopped his face while the dome was still echoing with the deep rolling sounds of his unpremeditated pedal fantasia. This story will be quite devoid of interest except to organists, and the occurrence has probably been entirely forgotten by all those who were present; but I reminded Sullivan of it many years afterwards, and we both recalled our boyish comment on it—"what a joke, wasn't it"!'

[F. G. E.]

(To be continued.)

HYMN-TUNES.

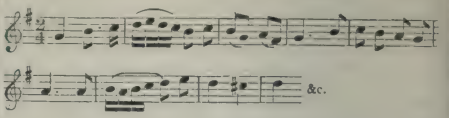
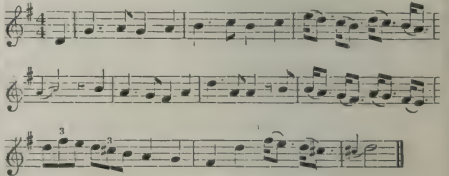
A writer in the Encyclopædia Britannica states that 'notwithstanding the example of Germany, no native congregational hymnody worthy of the name arose (in England) till after the commencement of the eighteenth century.' He adds, 'of the 1,410 authors of original British hymns enumerated in Mr. Sedgwick's catalogue published in 1863, 1,213 are of later date than 1707, and if any correct enumeration could be made of the total number of hymns of all kinds published in Great Britain before and after that date, the proportion to 1707 would be very much larger.' Hymnody, therefore, is a comparatively late development from the religious life of our people, who, in that respect, lagged far behind the Germans and also the French, as represented by the Huguenots. It would be interesting to seek out the cause of this belatedness, but the matter is one for separate treatment. At present let it be observed that, to a large extent, the making of hymn-tunes was necessarily affected by the slow growth of hymns. It is true, of course, that there were hymns and tunes before the dawn of the eighteenth century, but, taking a general view of the subject, we must assign the virtual origin of English hymnody to Dr. Isaac Watts, whose works, says the writer already quoted, must command admiration 'as long as pure nervous English, unaffected fervour, strong simplicity, and liquid yet manly sweetness are admitted to be characteristics of a good hymn.' Watts was an Independent and belonged, therefore, to the straitest sect of the Puritans. It is one of the ironies of history that from the sturdy Independent stock, which bred the destroyers of organs and those who urged war against choir services, came the man destined to fill churches and chapels—the latter more especially—with hymnodic literature, and give to sacred song the distinction it has never since lost. This honour was his, not because he was a more excellent poet than some of his predecessors and contemporaries, but because he brought common sense to bear upon the question what a congregational lyric should be. He did not write odes like Milton; he was not tricky and artificial; neither had he any love for the quaint conceits which, even in his day, could not entirely be kept out of religious poetry. Watts, it is true, was often didactic, according to the taste of his time, but the hymns are very numerous in which his muse, aflame with ardent devotion, became a great light. To this let 'Our God, our help in ages past,' and 'When I survey the wondrous cross,' bear witness.

Unhappily, there was no musician to match with Watts, and the 'setting' of tunes to the new hymns went on entirely at haphazard. Through generations the task was mainly left to anybody who could invent, or adapt, or steal a melody. For ordinary metres, the older tunes, borrowed from German or French sources, served well; at any rate while in some sort protected by recollections of a great and stirring past. Later, they gradually gave way to a class of tune more nearly in accord with a public taste, or want of taste, which, when it had any active preference at all, inclined to the trivial and vulgar, not to speak of contrapuntal quips and cranks at sight of which our respect for the taste and judgment of the past encounters a severe shock. I remember, as a boy, making practical acquaintance with a host of 'curly tunes,' abounding in trills and turns, and in repetitions which played havoc with the sense of the words, as when they made the judicious grieve with 'My inward pi—— My inward piety.' Some of the precious compositions in question haunt my memory still, notably this:—



It may be said that tunes of this sort were local, and chiefly rustic, in origin and use. That statement rests upon no good foundation. I have before me a little volume, entitled 'The Psalm Singer's Help, being a collection of tunes in three Parts, that are now used in the Churches and Dissenting Congregations in London, with a Thorough Bass for the Harpsichord or Organ, and an Introduction for the use of Learners, by Thomas Knibb.' There is no date on the title page, but from orthographic and other evidence this collection appears to have been issued about the middle of the eighteenth century. My copy is marked 'A New Edition,' so that it must have enjoyed some popularity—a fact indicated by the annotations of a former possessor. A curious feature of the book is due to its editor's attempts at securing variety of effect. For example, he directs certain lines to be sung by women alone, or men alone. Other lines are marked 'chorus,' and so on. Clearly, therefore, the tune had then begun to exist, so to speak, for its own sake rather than as an auxiliary to the hymn. Later developments were in the same direction. Contrapuntal devices established themselves, and repetitions of phrases set the sense of the poetry absolutely at defiance. With these changes congregational singing went on the down grade, and it is not difficult to see that the music of worship fell more and more into the hands of a select few, who probably revelled much in the Scotch snap, as used, for example, in the tune subjoined:—



Still more objectionable, in one sense, was the debasing process through which even the good tunes were made to pass. It is bad enough to turn out an inferior article, it is worse to degrade that which is excellent. Even the fine old tunes of earlier days, or, at any rate, many of them, were so transfigured that their own composers could hardly have recognised them. Take, for example, that ascribed to Tallis, and usually connected with Ken's Evening Hymn. I have heard this tune sung hundreds of times in the manner following:—

Others, though less violently treated, were laden with 'graces'; following at a distance, yet far too near, the model set up by the public singers of the day, who turned out melodies in a deplorably over-dressed condition and decked with fripperies. If we consider all these things it must be clear that the English hymn-tune was unfortunate in its origin and, for a long period, in its history also. It improved as time went on and taste became more refined, but the change was slow. People, especially choir people, made a stout fight for the 'curly' ones; for the imitations; the little bits of duet, and the antiphonal effects of men versus women. Rippon's Collection was cherished in many quarters long after the tide of reform had begun to flow. When a youth I was, for some months, organist of a chapel in a sea-side town, where was a choir—of a sort, and ofttimes, for the sake of peace, did I yield to requests for an extract from Rippon, or from some time-stained MS. such as used to be found in most organ galleries, full of fearful and wonderful creations, fathered by vulgarity, and mothered by incompetence. But a happy change went on, despite the 'rearguard actions' fought by the beaten side, and people could no longer plead bad tunes as an excuse for staying away from church. Only sermons were left to answer that purpose.

The question now arises—and it is the main question—whether the present-day hymn-tune can in any manner be improved; whether there does not hang about it some trace of the unworthy past. We have got rid of much offensiveness; does its spirit exist in other and perhaps newer forms? In considering this point we must needs discriminate with some care, seeing that the vast majority of current tunes, whether ancient or modern, are excellent in respect of form, well-made, and, in a high sense, musical. Discrimination, however, leaves us in no doubt on one point—that with the increase and vogue of flaccid, namby-pamby, ultra-sentimental hymns an analogous change has come over tunes. Given the former, a composer's sense of fitness would incline him to the latter, and, so far, he cannot well be blamed. But the result is disastrous to the serious and manly dignity, as well as to the general propriety and efficiency, of music intended for use in Divine service, and regarded as applicable not to one hymn alone, but to many. Wishing to keep personalities out of these remarks, I abstain from quoting 'terrible examples,' for which act there is the less need because every reader knows where to find them for himself, especially in collections of recent date. The pretty, sentimental tune is the complement of the pretty, sentimental hymn, and the two will stand or fall together. For my own part I could very well spare them both, as adjuncts to public worship, in which we need virility, not effeminacy; the breadth and grandeur appropriate to a collective act, not the finicking expression of an individual mood. Tunes such as those indicated should be kept in personal museums, though even there their influence cannot be the best conceivable. For the future everything depends upon the struggle between a sturdier, more masculine religious sentiment, and the feeble, puling emotionalism that not only tolerates but invites the lackadaisical twaddle regarded by so many persons as equivalent to the 'psalms and hymns and spiritual songs' with which St. Paul recommends us to admonish one another. There is in it nothing so manly as admonition. Tradition credits the Rev. Rowland Hill with saying that the devil should not have all the pretty tunes. It seems to my mind that the shrewd 'enemy' would bear his loss lightly. They are very poor Christian ammunition.

The worst feature in the case here discussed is the training of children to the use of twaddle, both poetic and musical. I have at hand a collection of hymns and tunes for juveniles which appears to be largely used, and is proportionately mischievous. One cannot look through its pages without concern that the springs of good taste and feeling are corrupted at their very source. I must not, however, be understood as saying that the entire contents of the book are objectionable. On the contrary, many of the lyrics, as also their attendant music, are beyond reproach. But the proportion of rubbish is so large that there is difficulty in making a selection of the worst, and I take the following jingle almost at haphazard:

> O won't you be a Christian
> While you're young?
> Don't think it will be better
> To delay it until later,
> But remember your Creator
> While you're young.

For the culture of priggishness and the encouragement of self-righteousness what can be more efficacious than this?

> Do you know what makes us happy,
> When so many hearts are sad?
> We are little friends of Jesus,
> That is why we are so glad.

Then the children are expected to sing in chorus:

> We are little friends, we are loving friends,
> We are happy, happy little friends of Jesus.

The volume contains a considerable number of hymns setting forth the material glories of heaven—the jasper gates, the golden streets, the shining crowns, and all the rest of it; the general teaching being that those who have only just opened their eyes upon the beauty and wonder of God's world should look beyond, longing for another place:

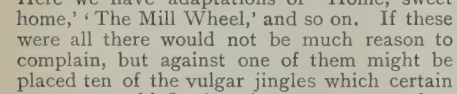
I'm but a stranger here,
Heaven is my home;
Earth is a desert drear,
Heaven is my home.

The following stanza forms part of a hymn set to Weber's melody more generally associated with 'Behold, how brightly breaks the morning':

There is a better world we know,
Oh, so bright!
Where never enter sin or woe,
Oh, so bright!
And music fills the balmy air,
And angels bright and pure are there,
And harps of gold and mansions fair,
Oh, so bright!

This would be mischievous (it is certainly ungrammatical) if children were as lacking in healthy instinct as the poets of the Sunday school seem to imagine. The little ones who have so lately come, 'trailing clouds of glory,' exercise a much better perception of things than some of their teachers. They know full well that earth is not a 'desert drear,' but a place of beauty, with its flowers and fruits, its rippling streams and majestic seas, its ever changing clouds and stars, and its happy human feelings of love and companionship. Tell a sane child that this world of wonder and charm is a desert drear, and he, quite properly, does not believe you. He may sing an affirmative as a matter of duty. Liberate him from school, and he will wander through the pleasant meadows of your desert, picking flowers and shouting his innocent delight. The fact is that these hymns are terribly unreal, and the children know it through the feelings which instinctively rise up to oppose them.

Many of the tunes which go with the misleading lyrics are worthy companions. Here we have adaptations of 'Home, sweet home,' 'The Mill Wheel,' and so on. If these were all there would not be much reason to complain, but against one of them might be placed ten of the vulgar jingles which certain composers, chiefly American, are prepared to turn out by the gross. Nothing musically more debasing can be imagined than these effusions, of which only one need be put in evidence:—



The question whether I have touched upon some points calling for reform may safely be left to the reader's judgment.

Joseph Bennett.

MANCHESTER MUSIC MAKINGS.

Dwellers in the Metropolis are too prone to speaking slightingly of musical doings beyond London, even in large centres of population. They are by no means sparing in their use of the word 'provincial,' which they utter (or mutter) in a little 'p' tone, as if capitals must be reserved for the Capital. In order to show that we do not slightingly regard our country cousins in their music makings, we propose to offer a few gossipy observations upon two old Manchester musical societies—one still in existence, the other defunct.

THE GENTLEMEN'S CONCERTS.

This venerable institution seems originally to have been a society of amateurs, all of whom played the German flute! This winded constitution doubtless prompted the following poetical effusion:—

Some years gone before, a musical taste
Had provided the town a slight musical feast,—
(Without souls for harmony men are but brutes,)—
'Twas a concert composed entirely of flutes!
Ere the year I have quoted [1777] better taste had prevail'd,
And the flutes' monotonous tones had assail'd.
An orchestra varied with instruments due,
Gave a concord of sounds to pure harmony true;
A room worthy the object that year was erected—
A room by the musical world much respected;
Since increased in its size, as the town has increased:
The science assembled has polished our taste.

The initial concert was probably so far back as November, 1744, when Handel was yet alive. During the first quarter of the Society's existence there were no less than 165 subscribers, who paid five shillings each for a series of six concerts. Considering the population of Manchester at that time this seems a very remarkable achievement for a start off. The first ten or twelve names on the list of subscribers formed 'the elite of the aristocracy of wealth, fashion, and standing in Manchester,' thus the title of Gentlemen's Concerts is not far to seek. The names included a 'Mr. Anonymous,' who, it is thought, was none other than Charles Edward, the young Pretender, or Bonnie Prince Charlie, of the Jacobite songs, who passed several weeks during the summer of 1745 in strict privacy at Ancoats Hall, Manchester. A distinguished member was John Byrom, author of the celebrated squib on Handel and Bononcini—a squib which has often been wrongly attributed to Swift. Here it is—

Some say that Signor Bononcini
Compared to Handel, is a ninny;
Whilst others say, that to him, Handel
Is hardly fit to hold a candle.
Strange that such difference should be 'Twixt Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

The early accounts of the Society show that twenty-one shillings was paid for the hire of the room for four nights. Among the disbursements is an entry of 'wine for y^e performers 1s. 8d.' The programme of the first concert consisted of the following :—

Overture to Otho; song; German flute concerto; song; First of Tessarini; third sonata, first set of Corelli. 2nd Act: Second Concerto of Corelli; lesson upon the Harpsichord; song; second sonata, second set, Corelli; solo German flute; third of Tessarini!

The following curious entry in the minute book was probably prompted by the librarian: there is a touch of irony in the vagueness of the 'stolen or strayed' :—

Belonging to y^e Concert. The stage, musick desks, and benches, with y^e sconce for candles. Handel's overtures, compleat, Corelli's Concertos, Geminiani's Concertos; Fellow's Concertos, stolen or strayed.

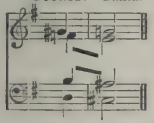
A concert-room was built in Fountain Street in 1777. At an early period of this building the rehearsals were held in a dancing-master's room in King Street, when a 'half-guinea bowl of punch was allowed for the orchestra!' The new hall, holding 1,300 persons, was opened in 1830, and from that time the Gentlemen's Concerts continued to prosper. The Society has now attained the green old age of 157 years, and thus it may be regarded as one of the oldest musical institutions of the country. Long may it continue to flourish in so invigorating a musical atmosphere as Manchester. Reference to the now defunct Hargreaves Choral Society, founded in Manchester in 1841, may be reserved for a future number.

PERMISSIBLE FIFTHS.

The question of the good or bad effect of consecutive fifths has been often discussed; but writers upon the subject have hitherto dealt chiefly with those fifths which are perfect. The object of the present article is to call special attention to cases in which one fifth is perfect and the other diminished.

The progression from one diminished fifth to another need not come under consideration, because the effect is perfectly smooth, e.g. :—

Gounod. 'Gallia.'



This much will be generally conceded. But successions of fifths, when only one is diminished, may occur in a variety of ways, of which all are not equally good.

Here are examples in the key of A minor :—

No. 1.

No. 2.

The perfect fifth upon the Tonic is in one case followed and in the other preceded by the diminished fifth upon the Leading Note.

No. 3.

No. 4.

The perfect fifth upon the Dominant is in one case followed and in the other preceded by the diminished fifth upon the Leading Note.

No. 5.

No. 6.

The perfect fifth upon the Dominant is in one case followed and in the other preceded by the diminished fifth upon the chromatically-raised Subdominant.

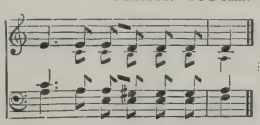
No. 7.

No. 8.

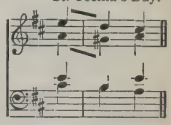
The perfect fifth upon the Tonic is in one case followed and in the other preceded by the diminished fifth upon the Supertonic.

The first of the above eight progressions is often to be found. The following extracts from the works of six different composers will furnish sufficient proof of this statement :—

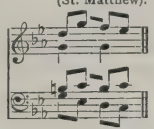
Purcell. 'Te Deum.'



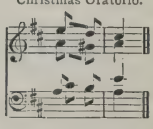
Handel. 'St. Cecilia's Day.'



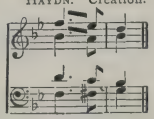
Bach. 'Passion' (St. Matthew).



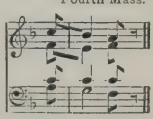
Bach. 'Christmas Oratorio.'



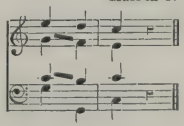
Haydn. 'Creation.'



Cherubini. 'Fourth Mass.'



Beethoven. 'Mass in C.'



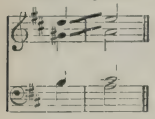
In view of these examples, it is safe to say that the perfect fifth on the Tonic may always proceed to the diminished fifth on the Leading

Note, unless the lower of the two parts concerned is the Bass, for it is to be noticed that, in every instance quoted, the fifths are formed between upper voices.

The second of the eight progressions enumerated above (i.e., that in which the perfect fifth has the second place) is also to be met with in works of good composers, but not so frequently as the first.

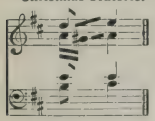
The illustrations next given are worthy of attentive consideration :—

Purcell. 'Jubilate.'



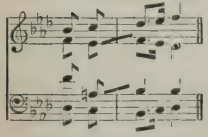
Bach. 'Passion' (St. Matthew).

Bach. 'Christmas Oratorio.'

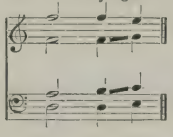


Bach. 'Christmas Oratorio.'

Haydn. 'Passion.'



Spohr. 'Last Judgment.'



There is room for difference of opinion here, but it is worthy of note that the best theorists include such things in their lists of allowable progressions.

To the third and fourth of the original eight progressions no serious objection can be urged, inasmuch as no change of harmony takes place, e.g. :—

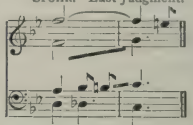
It is to be observed in regard to these last illustrations that there is oblique motion in the former and contrary motion in the latter. But under similar circumstances all the parts may move in the same direction without bad effect, e.g. :—

Spohr. 'God, Thou art Great.'

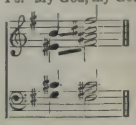
The fifth of the eight progressions under consideration is, like the first, free from reproach when the dominant triad is succeeded by a chord of the Augmented Sixth, e.g. :—

But the same progression reversed is also possible, e.g. :—

Spohr. 'Last Judgment.'



Mendelssohn. Ps. 'My God, my God.'



The last two of the eight examples first put forward seem to be the least worthy of imitation. Such progressions are to be met with occasionally, but they are too rare to justify any argument in their favour.

There is an appreciable difference in beauty between successions of fifths in which the leading note plays a part and those in which the tonic is the lowest of the four sounds concerned, e.g. :—

The foregoing observations make it possible to formulate a few rules for the treatment of consecutive fifths when one of them is diminished and the other perfect.

(1) Avoid moving from fifth to fifth between the Bass and another part.

(2) Fifths (between upper parts) where the lower part moves a semitone may generally be written.

(3) Progressions of fifths in which the lower part moves by a whole tone should be avoided.

(4) Those fifths which are merely the result of a movement of parts without a change of harmony produce no bad effect.

To some minds the questions here raised may seem to be of little importance. But experienced teachers of harmony know well that it is upon minute points like these that thoughtful students need guidance. If the ideas put forward in this article prove to be useful to anyone (whether teacher or student) I shall not grudge the time which I have spent in research.

F. E. Gladstone.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

Sir John Stainer has recently been enjoying the dolce far niente at various towns in the Riviera and in Italy. At Florence, owing to the temporary indisposition of the lady organist of the English church in the East Bay, the Chaplain prevailed upon him to take the organ—an instrument of one manual and eight stops!—at a Sunday morning service. The fact that Sir John had not played at a service for twelve or thirteen years may account for a certain nervousness that he felt in discharging this duty, but it is not surprising to learn that the distinguished deputy 'managed to get through' without bringing discredit on his cathedral ancestry.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie has lately been recuperating at Florence, with, we are glad to learn, satisfactory health-restoring results. Like Sir John Stainer, he has been keeping his hand in during his sojourn in 'furrin parts.' At the twenty-first concert of the Società Cherubini, given on February 25, Sir Alexander conducted his Scottish Pianoforte Concerto (Op. 55), the solo portion of which was played in first-rate style by Professor G. Buonamici. The work appeared to make a strong impression upon the audience, if such tributes as recalls and applause may be accepted as trustworthy signs in that direction. And this in spite of (to the Florentines) the strange rhythm and harmonies of Sir Alexander's native land—or should it be his native heath? The orchestra took to the work, and played their part in it in a highly finished manner, due not a little perhaps to the plentiful supply of rehearsals which were given to the composer-visitor. The regular conductor of the Società Cherubini is Marchese O. de Piccolellis, an amateur who spends his time and money on the Society—equivalent to our Philharmonic—and who does his work remarkably well. Were it not for his exertions it is doubtful whether Florence would have any orchestral concerts at all, therefore he deserves the thanks of all musicians for his zealous labour of love. Sir Alexander has, we understand, been at work on the incidental music for Sir Henry Irving's forthcoming production of 'Coriolanus' at the Lyceum Theatre.

Sir Frederick Bridge discoursed on the subject of 'A seventeenth century view of Musical Education' at the meeting of the Musical Association, on the 12th ult. The genial lecturer took the 'Memoirs of Musick,' by the Hon. Roger North, as the basis of his interesting remarks. After he had sketched the ancestors of Roger North, he referred to the fact that he (North) was a pupil of old John Jenkins. The opinions of the old-time writer (he died in 1773) upon the advantages of music in the home and as a factor in education were dwelt upon by Sir Frederick in his most entertaining manner, seasoned, it need hardly be said, with humour.

Mr. Charles Salaman celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday on the 3rd ult. Congratulations—no less hearty because they are a little behind the beat—to the genial veteran musician. Mr. Salaman knew Clementi and a host of other distinguished masters of the art, many of whom have entered upon their long last sleep. Sixty-five years have passed since he wrote his famous song, 'I arise from dreams of thee,' and as he was a pianoforte pupil of Charles Neate, we must not forget that he is a grandson (musically) of Beethoven. His services to the Musical Association, as one of its founders and as its first honorary secretary, will not soon be forgotten. Moreover, he has always shown an active interest in music, which has manifested itself in many directions of usefulness. Mr. Salaman witnessed the destruction by fire of the Argyll Rooms, Regent Street, the first home of the Philharmonic Society. Although this happened in the year 1830, he can well remember the extraordinary appearance of icicles formed by jets of water thrown upon the adjoining buildings, the weather being intensely cold on that bitter February night. On that occasion a steam fire-engine was used for the first time in London. Few can recall that incident in our Metropolitan progress.

Mr. Robert Newman announces that The London Musical Festival is to be held at Queen's Hall, from the 29th inst. to the 4th prox. Six concerts are to be given, conducted respectively by M. Colonne, M. Ysaye, M. Saint-Saëns, Herr Weingartner, and Mr. Henry J. Wood (two performances). The Queen's Hall Orchestra of 110 performers will play, and it is stated that negotiations are pending with the most eminent instrumentalists and vocalists. No information, however, is forthcoming in regard to the performance of choral works. To give a series of half-a-dozen orchestral concerts without including a single specimen of choral music, and to apply to the scheme the high-sounding title of Festival is nothing less than a misnomer in this country. Should not the fact of the crowded audience at the recent performance of Beethoven's 'Choral' Symphony at Queen's Hall induce Mr. Robert Newman to treat choral music with more respect?

Professor Julius Buths conducted a very interesting concert, the seventh of the season, of the Städtischer Musik-Verein, Düsseldorf, on February 28. The following was the programme:—

ERSTER THEIL.

Symphonie D-dur .. .. von Philipp Emanuel Bach (1714—1788).
Allegro di molto. Largo. Presto.

Symphonie G-moll .. .. von Johann Christian Bach (1735—1782).
Allegro. Andante più tosto Adagio. Allegro molto.

Concert für drei Claviere und Streichorchester (No. 2, C-dur) von Johann Sebastian Bach (1685—1750).
Allegro. Adagio. Allegro.
Die Herren Professoren Buths, van de Sandt und Seiss.

ZWEITER THEIL.

Concert für Orgel und Streichorchester, G-moll von Georg Friedrich Händel (1685—1759).
Bearbeitet von F. W. Franke.
Larghetto. Andante. Adagio. Allegro.
Herr Professor F. W. Franke.

Concert für drei Claviere und Orchester, F-dur von Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart (1756—1791).
Allegro. Adagio. Rondo. Tempo di Menuetto.
Die Herren Professoren Seiss, van de Sandt und Buths.

The interesting annotations to the programme, furnished by the conductor-pianist, were as follows:—

To-day's programme will make us acquainted with several works emanating from a period immediately preceding the classical epoch of instrumental music.

Between the strictly contrapuntal elaborations, or that constructed upon a basso continuo (dem Generalbass) of the earlier epoch, on the one hand; and the freer, if also more homophonous, orchestral writing of the classical period

('the universal monophony, combined with an absolute mastery of polyphony,' as Riemann aptly defines it), on the other; the direct connecting links are supplied by two sons of Johann Sebastian Bach—viz. (1) Philipp Emmanuel—usually called the Berlin Bach; who was born at Weimar in 1714, who resided at Berlin from 1738-1767 in the capacity of Kammercembalist of Frederick the Great, and who subsequently, until his death in 1788, lived at Hamburg; and (2) Johann Christian, the youngest son of Johann Sebastian, known as the London Bach, who was born at Leipzig in 1735, who lived from 1754 to 1759 in Milan, and afterwards in London, as a musician in the service of Queen Charlotte; where he died in 1782. Both these sons of Bach were, during their lifetime, regarded as highly esteemed composers—in fact, they were more popular with the musical world than their father. There can be no doubt that Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven (the latter, at least, so far as Philipp Emanuel Bach is concerned) were influenced in more than one direction by the instrumental style of the two brothers Bach. The latter, on their part, carried on and developed the instrumental rather than the vocal style of Johann Sebastian Bach and Handel, and it has, therefore, been judged appropriate to include some works by these old composers in to-day's concert.

Mozart's charming Concerto in F major for three pianofortes (composed February, 1776), which has never been performed by this Society, will—as an early blossom, heralding a glorious springtime in the development of instrumental music—not inappropriately conclude the concert.

It should be added that, as regards the order in which the different works will be performed, strict chronology has not been observed, it having been adopted rather with reference to the relative tonality and character of the works represented.

In conclusion, the heartiest thanks of the Musik-Verein are due to Dr. Erich Prieger, of Bonn, for so kindly placing at our disposal, for the purpose of performance (probably for the first time in Germany), the G minor Symphony of Johann Christian Bach, which forms part of his rich collection of musical autographs.

J. Buths.

Professor Niecks concluded the series of his invaluable Historical Concerts at the University of Edinburgh, on the 13th ult., when the programme was devoted to a recital of the pianoforte works of Brahms—the interpretation of the various solos by Miss Fanny Davies being all that could be desired. The Reid Professor contributed the following critical observations to the programme:—

Brahms, being a pianist, naturally began by composing for his instrument; but he did not continue to do so for long, and, indeed, afterwards wrote comparatively little for the pianoforte alone. With the exception of a Trio for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, Op. 8, and some songs, Op. 3, 6, and 7, the Op. 1-10 are for the pianoforte alone, and comprise, which is notable, three grand solo Sonatas, the only ones he published. Op. 9 and 10 are Variations, so are also Op. 21, 24, 25, and the four-hand Op. 23. Between Op. 35 and 116 Brahms wrote for the pianoforte alone only the two-hand Capricci and Intermezzi, Op. 76, the Rhapsodien, Op. 79, and the four-hand Waltzes, Op. 39, Op. 52-a (Liebeslieder), and Op. 65 (Neue Liebeslieder). Having late in life turned again to his first love, the pianoforte, he seems to have been fascinated by her charms; for the Fantasien, Op. 116, were followed by the Intermezzi, Ballade, Romanze, and Rhapsodien, Op. 117, 118, and 119. To these works with opus numbers have, however, to be added some without opus numbers—two books of Hungarian Dances and fifty-one Exercises, and several transcriptions of compositions by other composers.

Without in the least undervaluing the imposing Sonatas and Scherzo, and the magnificent Variations of the first period, the delightful waltzes and other pieces of the second, and the attractive tone-poems of the third, one cannot but come to the conclusion that Brahms's compositions for the pianoforte alone do not form the most important class of his works. In following the course of the master's artistic career, we are struck first of all by the large number and the excellent quality of his concerted chamber music. From Op. 18 to Op. 51 there are to be found no fewer than nine works of this kind—two sextets, one quintet, four quartets, one trio, and one sonata (pianoforte and violoncello); and these were followed as time went on by ten more.

With Op. 45, 'A German Requiem,' Brahms secured for himself an unassailable position as a composer of choral-orchestral music, and strengthened this position by Op. 54, the 'Song of Destiny,' Op. 55, the 'Song of Victory,' and other works. After preluding with two Serenades, Op. 11 and 16, and the Variations on a theme of Haydn, Op. 56-a, Brahms claimed with Op. 68, his first Symphony, a place among the symphonic composers. After this came from his pen three more Symphonies, Op. 73, 90, 98, and two Overtures, the Academic and the Tragic, Op. 80 and 81. With this class of composition we may also group the Concertos—two for pianoforte, Op. 15 and 67; one for violin, Op. 77; and one for violin and violoncello, Op. 102.

Whilst, with regard to the above-mentioned classes of composition, Brahms showed at different periods of his life a predilection for one—now for pianoforte, now for concerted chamber, now for choral-orchestral, now for the purely orchestral compositions—his devotion to song was continuous, extending from Op. 3 to Op. 121.

Now, in which of these classes of composition was Brahms pre-eminently great? Some say in concerted chamber music, others in choral-orchestral music, others still in song, and yet others, but I think fewer, in purely orchestral music. This, however, is one of the questions about which it is idle to dispute. Let us rather try to enjoy the good things which the master created in every one of the classes.

Opinions differ more about Brahms than about any other great composer of the nineteenth century. Even Wagner, once the subject of the most violent contention, may—if we ignore a few blind worshippers and equally blind disparagers—be regarded as in the main unanimously judged and appreciated. Of a unanimous judgment and appreciation of Brahms, on the other hand, there is as yet perceivable neither the slightest trace nor the faintest prospect. The extent of the diversity of opinion is even more extraordinary than the manifoldness. It ranges from the opinion that Brahms was a genius of the calibre of Bach and Beethoven to the opinion that he was an impotent and wholly uninspired combiner of notes. An excellent, and by no means narrow-minded musician endeavoured in the writer's presence, by arguments enforced by numerous quotations from the master's works, to show that Brahms's compositions are toilsome elaborations of trite or purloined material. The proposition is absurd. But have those who, like Hans von Bülow, pronounce the names of Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms in one breath hit the bull's eye of the truth? Is there not a difference between the later and the two earlier masters? Whatever may be denied, it must be admitted that Brahms was a master craftsman, a profound thinker, and a noble striver. To be a composer of the calibre of Beethoven includes all this, but includes more. It includes also some things which it is difficult, perhaps impossible, to describe. Let us call them a strikingly original personality which finds its natural expression in music, and a vigorous spontaneous creative power. These we find in Beethoven. Do we find them in the same degree in Brahms? That is the crucial point. On the degree of the original musical personality and the strong spontaneous creativeness depends the degree of a composer's genius, and the degree of the impression he will make on the general public. Classes of the public and individuals can be interested and satisfied by other qualities, not the general public. It is not the object of the present writer to pronounce a judgment, to weigh and appraise the master's qualities, but simply to suggest an explanation of the Brahms problem. The question to be considered, then, may be formulated thus: Is Brahms, in the two respects mentioned, as liberally endowed as Bach and Beethoven, as Haydn and Mozart, or even as some others of the great, but less great composers? Or is he less liberally endowed in these respects? No doubt very different answers will be forthcoming. But even those whose estimate is lowest will have to concede that Brahms was a great artist who gave to the world many works deserving unqualified admiration, and will not be able to say in fairness anything worse than that his reflectiveness often unduly outbalanced his spontaneity.

The following was the programme of pianoforte compositions by Johannes Brahms (born at Hamburg in 1833; died at Vienna in 1897) performed by Miss Fanny Davies :—

1. Sonata in F minor (Op. 5).
2. Ballade in D major (Op. 10, No. 2).
3. Capriccio in B minor (Op. 76, No. 2).
4. Variations on an Original Theme, in D major (Op. 21, No. 1).
5. Rhapsodie in G minor (Op. 79, No. 2).
6. Capriccio in G minor (Op. 116, No. 3).
7. Intermezzo (Cradle Song) in E flat major (Op. 117, No. 1).
8. Intermezzo in B flat minor (Op. 117, No. 2).
9. Intermezzo in A major (Op. 118, No. 2).
10. Ballade in G minor (Op. 118, No. 3).
11. Intermezzo in E minor (Op. 119, No. 2).
12. Capriccio in C major (Op. 119, No. 3).
13. Rhapsodie in E flat major (Op. 119, No. 4).

An interesting exhibition of pianofortes was held last month in the handsome show-rooms of Messrs. John Broadwood and Sons. Chief among, not ten thousand, but a small collection of special instruments, stood the drawing-room grand pianoforte which gained the highest prize at the Paris Exhibition last year. It was designed by Mr. E. L. Lutyens in Jacobean style. Some folk are satisfied with a showy exterior, but the rich tone, organ-like bass notes, and delightful touch of this pianoforte proved that a goodly outside was not its only title to merit. Another conspicuous object was the concert grand, designed, in Georgian style, by Mr. Arthur C. Blomfield, and intended for the Paris Exhibition. There were also attractive semi-grands in eighteenth century English and Louis XVI. styles, designed by Mr. Charles C. Altom.

The publications of the Internationalen Musikgesellschaft promise to fill a sphere of great usefulness in the literature of the art. The ground covered thereby is quite encyclopædic in matters relating to music, and the capital index to Volume I. of the transactions is invaluable for the purposes of reference. German is, perhaps naturally, the chief language used in these records, but English and French are not excluded in the publications. As the printing is done in Germany, misprints of English words should be looked upon with a lenient eye, but, at the same time, they may furnish material for amusement. For instance, what does the Union of Graduates say to one of their number being designated a 'Mus. Boc.'? And in what part of London is 'South Lambech Road' situated? 'Wolvenhampton, England' looks a little strange; but when we are told that the slow movement of Mr. H. Farjeon's pianoforte concerto 'showed specially good key-beard figuration' we are charitably bound to regard it as a close shave to accuracy. The name of one of the English members of the Society is given as 'Ewards,' which rather suggests that the fourth letter of the alphabet is not forthcoming.

The mixing of colours is generally regarded as belonging to the province of painters, and not as one of the qualifications of musical critics. But a notice in a London daily of the recent performance of 'Israel in Egypt,' at the Royal Albert Hall, leads one to infer that the art has its votaries on the press. We read that 'Mr. Andrew Black, in the very few special pieces assigned to him, sang with wonderful spirit and with extraordinary beauty of vocal effect. He and Mr. Watkin Mills were responsible for the interpretation of the famous duet, "The Lord is a man of war."' So far as we know our 'Israel in Egypt' the bass solos in that work are 'very few.' As Mr. William Green, who sang the tenor solo music is not mentioned in the notice, we are driven to the conclusion that the critic has been mixing his colours a little too freely—Black with Green, or Green with Black. We may add that the journal in question is not Black and White.

Schumann composed 'The Pilgrimage of the Rose.' A well-known musician, whose familiar form is not unknown in Training Colleges, says that when seeking his seat at a concert he treads in the footsteps of Schumann—he makes the pilgrimage of the rows.

A MUSICAL EVENING AT CAMBRIDGE.

(By one who was there.)

It was a fortunate thing for us—my colleague and me—that an official visit to Cambridge coincided with the annual visit of the Oxford University Musical Union to a similar organization at the sister University. Nothing could have been heartier than the invitation to be present and the welcome extended to us by Mr. Sedley Taylor, the Treasurer, at this 253rd concert given in the Room of the Cambridge University Musical Club.

What is the raison d'être of the Club? How is it constituted? What are its aims and aspirations? The Club was started about ten years ago for the purpose of stimulating a love of Chamber Music among the undergraduates at the University. Its career has been prosperous and its existence has been fully justified. The Club has excellent premises situated in the ancient courtyard of the now defunct Falcon Inn, off Petty Cury. The open galleries of the old hostelry can be clearly traced from the windows of the club. All the members have the use of the club-room as a place of meeting, where they may write letters, and where they can practise music, solo and concerted. Two grand pianofortes, an excellent library of chamber music, some books on musical literature, including several volumes of The Musical Times—all these are at the disposal of the members. For these valuable privileges each member pays the modest subscription of half-a-guinea per term. The membership of the Club stands at about 120. Its affairs are managed by a committee of twelve, elected from and by the members. Eight meetings are held during Term on Saturday evenings. The performers at these Saturday music-makings are selected solely from the members, and each member of the Committee in turn is responsible for making up the programme. It need scarcely be said that the performances on these occasions are of a strictly classical nature. The audience consists of earnest-minded undergraduates, having a strong affection for music of the most elevated type, and men who listen with an absorbed attentiveness that might put a London concert audience to shame. Who can estimate the value of such refining influence on these impressionable young fellows at this period of their life work? Many, probably all of them, will find spheres of usefulness in various parts of the world, where they will have opportunities of fostering a love of music in those among whom their lot may be cast.

Once a year the two sister Societies — the Musical Club of Cambridge and the Musical Union of Oxford—make an interchange of visits. Thus it came to pass that the Oxford men furnished the programme at the special function at Cambridge, on the evening of the 11th ult. We were greatly struck at seeing a bust of John Sebastian Bach standing at the head of the room. So excellent is the representation of the great Cantor that the dear old fellow seemed almost to be nodding approval at the proceedings which he certainly regarded with a smiling countenance. Mr. Sedley Taylor kindly tells us the history of this striking likeness of Bach in these words:—

> A skull having been found in a Leipzig churchyard in a position and under circumstances favourable to the supposition of its being that of the great composer, the authorities put the matter to the test with genuine German thoroughness in the following manner:—A plaster cast of the skull was first taken, and the Professor of Anatomy at the Leipzig University, after making a special series of dissections for the purpose, drew up a tabular statement concerning the thickness of the soft parts of the face, showing for each region of the cast what was the minimum and what the maximum thickness of soft part which might be superposed on it. Then a statuary was called in: the cast, two contemporary portraits of Bach and the anatomical table were placed in his hands, and he was instructed to prepare in clay superposed on the plaster skull the best resemblance he could get to the contemporary portraits consistent with strict adherence to the conditions laid down by the Professor of Anatomy. Several attempts having been made, the final result satisfied both the statuary and the anatomist. Casts were taken from it, one of which, obtained from Messrs. Breitkopf and Haertel of Leipzig, is the bust now before you.

But the tuning up has finished and the music has begun. Here is the programme.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY MUSICAL CLUB.
(253rd Concert.)
Monday Evening, March 11th, 1901.
At 8.30 p.m.

This Programme has been undertaken by Members of the Oxford University Musical Union.

1. Quintett for two Violins, Viola, 'Cello, and Contra Basso in D minor, Op. 24 ... ... Onslow
Allegro. Minuetto, Allegro impetuoso. Tema con variazioni, Andante. Finale, Allegro vivace.
B. Heape (C.C.C.), A. W. Davies (University), A. J. Webb (Magdalen), E. S. Kemp (Magdalen), N. E. Hope (Queen's).
2. Song, "Widmung" ... ... Schumann
H. P. Grantham (New College).
3. Variations Sérieuses for Pianoforte Solo in D minor, Op. 54 ... ... Mendelssohn
R. H. A. Thew (Wadham).
4. Song, "Erl König" ... ... Schubert
H. P. Grantham.
5. Pianoforte Trio in G major, Op. 1, No. 2... ... Beethoven
Adagio, Allegro vivace. Largo con espressione. Scherzo, Allegro. Finale, Presto.
J. S. Heap (Exeter), J. W. H. Godefroi (Trinity), L. T. Burra (University).

The voice of criticism must, of course, be silent on such an occasion. It was so pleasant to be able to listen to the music for the love of it without having to criticise its performance. I may, however, call attention to the interest excited by a quintet by the almost forgotten George Onslow (1784-1853), the composer of no less than thirty-four quintets and thirty-six quartets for strings, in addition to much other chamber music. It appears that his earlier quintets were written for two violoncellos; but at a certain performance in England the second violoncellist failed to arrive, and it was proposed that Dragonetti, who was present, should play the part on his double-bass. Onslow positively refused, saying the effect would be dreadful. However, after waiting some time, he was obliged to consent; when a few bars had been played he was delighted with the effect. This incident caused him thenceforth to write all his quintets for violoncello and double-bass.

To return to the concert. At the conclusion of the programme Mr. Sedley Taylor—who may be regarded as the father of the Club—spoke a few words of thanks to the Oxford men for their kindness in giving such an excellent performance. But this by no means terminated the proceedings. What happened afterwards need not be told in detail. Suffice it to say that songs, not of a rigidly classical type, were sung, and that the audience did not refrain from joining in the refrains of those ditties. Various other impromptu features, of a non-solemn nature, presented themselves, including a most comical performance of 'Home, sweet home,' on the double-bass, ranging from a groaning grunt to a side-splitting squeak on the elephant of the orchestra. And when, close upon the midnight hour, we all joined hands in singing 'Auld lang syne'—beginning at an andante rate of speed and increasing to a vigorous molto prestissimo—with 'God save the King' as the final strain, we came away with the consciousness of having spent an exceedingly enjoyable evening as the guests of the Cambridge University Musical Club.

Dotted Crotchet.

Mrs. Rosa Newmarch gave a highly interesting lecture on the 'Art Songs of Russia,' at Leighton House, on the 18th ult. With a view to showing the growth of the art, the lecturer chose for consideration the composers Glinka, Dargomijsky, Rubinstein, Balakirev, Borodin, Cesar Cui, Moussorgsky, Tschaïkowsky, and Rimsky Korsakov. The influence of their songs on the development of the art in Russia and their general characteristics were clearly and fully described. It was interesting to note that Tschaïkowsky, the best known of the above composers in this country, had written 107 songs, many of which did not rise above commonplace. The lecture was illustrated by a selection of songs by the composers named, admirably sung by Mrs. Henry J. Wood and Mr. Lane Wilson, the lady giving her songs in the original text, accompanied by Mr. Henry J. Wood.

The Committee of the Westmorland Musical Festival announce an attractive programme for the music-meeting which is to be held on the 18th, 19th, and 20th inst. The choral works chosen are 'The Death of Minnehaha' and 'Hiawatha's Departure,' which will be conducted by the composer, Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor. The orchestral works, which will be played by the Manchester Orchestra under the conductorship of Signor Risegari, will include Beethoven's 'Eroica' Symphony, Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony, and Weber's 'Der Freischütz' Overture. The vocalists engaged for the Festival are Miss Evangeline Florence, Miss Mary Wilson, Mr. Whitworth Mitton, and Mr. James McInnes. The Committee have evidently determined that the Festival this year shall be an advance on any previous Festival.

A very successful performance of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' took place in Lyndhurst Road Church, Hampstead, on the 20th ult. The choir, formed of the recently organised Hampstead Nonconformist Union, acquitted itself admirably. The soloists were Miss Blanche Lambert, Miss Laura Pearson, Mr. Henry Holyoake, and Mr. Arthur Barlow. Mr. G. Dorrington Cunningham most ably accompanied on the organ, and Mr. J. Douglas Macey skilfully conducted a performance that reflected the greatest credit on all concerned. There was a crowded audience.

THE HOUSE IN WHICH SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN WAS BORN.

Where was Sir Arthur Sullivan born? In London, so all the dictionaries, biographical notices, and other sources of information record. But considering that London is a large place the information is just a little too vague. We are glad, however, to inform our readers that we have discovered the very identical house, which is situated in the Borough of Lambeth. A little thoroughfare running east out of Lambeth

NO. 8 IS THE FIRST HOUSE ON THE LEFT.

(From a Photograph taken specially for The Musical Times by Mr. Augustus Littleton.)

Walk is named Bolwell Street, too insignificant apparently to appear in the London Directory of to-day. Over its first few houses, commencing with No. 1 and including No. 8, is a pediment containing the inscription—

Bolwell—1838—Terrace.

Sixty years ago Bolwell Terrace was the subsidiary name for a few houses in the street of that designation. In the year 1842 the rated occupier of No. 8, was Thomas Sullivan, the father of Arthur Sullivan. Here, in this house, then rated at £20 per annum, Arthur was born on May 13, 1842.

'But the numbers may have been altered,' some knowing investigator of such matters may be disposed to interject. To any such very natural observation, we may quote from a letter on this subject recently received from Mr. Henry J. Smith, Town Clerk of Lambeth, who has very kindly made the necessary research in the old rate books, &c., specially for The Musical Times. The Town Clerk writes: 'I understand that the house now known as No. 8, Bolwell Street was the house formerly known as No. 8, Bolwell Terrace.' This settles the matter in regard to the actual birth-house of Arthur Sullivan, of which we are glad to furnish an illustration. But this does not exhaust the interesting particulars in connection with the entry into the world of that distinguished musician. The babe was registered by his mother—on June 24, 1842—with the christian name of 'Arthur' only. Five weeks later he was baptized, when he received the christian names of Arthur Seymour, and the additional name of 'Seymour' was added to the original birth entry by the Registrar of the District.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

THE NUPTIALS OF DR. JOHN BLOW.

Blow John of St. Margaret Westminster gent. bachelor about 26 and Elizabeth Bradocke of same spinster about 20 with the consent of her father Edward Bradocke gent. at St. Paul's, Covent Garden. 23 Sep. 1674.

The above is a copy of the licence (from Chesters Licences) issued from the Vicar-general's office of the marriage of Dr. John Blow, which has been kindly sent to us by Sir Frederick Bridge. The father of Mrs. Blow was Edward Braddock (or Bradocke, as recorded above), Master of the choristers of Westminster Abbey (1670) and subsequently (in 1690) Music Copyist of the Abbey. Concerning the bridegroom, Hawkins says that he was 'a very handsome man in his person, and remarkable for a gravity and decency in his deportment suited to his station, tho' he seems by some of his compositions to have been not altogether invincible to the delights of the convivial hour. He was a man of blameless morals, and of a benevolent temper; but was not so insensible of his own worth as to be totally free from the imputation of pride.' Sir Frederick Bridge further informs us that Sir John Goss was also married in the same church—St. Paul's, Covent Garden. The church has a still further interest to musicians, in that it is the place of interment of Dr. Thomas Augustine Arne, John Weldon, and Michael Kelly.

THE ORGAN IN YORK MINSTER.

For some considerable time the organ in York Minster has been in a decrepit state. The mechanism had become so completely worn out that nothing short of a complete reconstruction of the instrument—originally built in 1829—could satisfy modern requirements. This we are glad to know the Dean and Chapter have decided to do, with the result that the instrument will be practically a new one, only the case work and the best of the old pipe work remaining. The renovation has been placed in the hands of Messrs. J. W. Walker and Sons, a firm of high repute who may be relied upon to bring this important matter to a successful issue, under the direction of the able organist of the Minster, Mr. Tertius Noble.

The following are some of the features of the proposed new instrument:—

Originally the organist was placed at the Choir, or east front. The new organ will be constructed with the console on the south side, so that the player will be in touch with both Choir and Nave.

The instrument will be replete with the most modern means of stop control, in which important respect the old organ was singularly deficient.

New bellows and feeders will be provided and placed in a new building specially erected. The feeders will be worked by four hydraulic engines, the necessary water pressure being obtained by pumping water up to a cistern, in the roof of the north transept. The power for this will be derived from the gas-engine that is at present used for blowing the old organ.

In outward appearance the organ will be unaltered, except that the swell box—which has been prominent above the top of the case—will be taken away, thus removing a considerable obstruction to the view of the east window from the Nave, and so effecting an important improvement as regards the Minster interior.

Here is the specification of the organ:—

Great Organ (20 stops).

Double Open Diapason	16 feet	Octave	4 feet
Bourdon	16 ,,	Harmonic Flute	4 ,,
Open Diapason	8 ,,	Twelfth	2⅔ ,,
Open Diapason	8 ,,	Fifteenth	2 ,,
Open Diapason	8 ,,	Full Mixture	4 ranks
Open Diapason	8 ,,	Sharp Mixture	3 ranks
Gamba	8 ,,	Double Trumpet	16 feet
Wald Flute	8 ,,	Posaune	8 ,,
Stopped Diapason	8 ,,	Trumpet	8 ,,
Octave	4 ,,	Clarion	4 ,,

Swell Organ (16 stops).

Bourdon	16 feet	Dulciana Mixture	3 ranks
Open Diapason	8 ,,	Full Mixture	3 ranks
Horn Diapason	8 ,,	Double Trumpet	16 feet
Stopped Diapason	8 ,,	Trumpet	8 ,,
Echo Gamba	8 ,,	Horn	8 ,,
Voix Celeste (Tenor C)	8 ,,	Oboe	8 ,,
Octave	4 ,,	Vox Humana	8 ,,
Fifteenth	2 ,,	Clarion	4 ,,

Tremulant to Swell, except heavy pressure reeds.

Choir Organ (10 stops).

Gedact	16 feet	Stopped Flute	4 feet
Open Diapason	8 ,,	Suabe Flute	4 ,,
Dulciana	8 ,,	Fifteenth	2 ,,
Stopped Diapason	8 ,,	Clarinet	8 ,,
Gemshorn	4 ,,	Spare slide, if space permits.

Solo Organ (8 stops).

Echo Dulciana	8 feet	Bassoon	16 feet
Harmonic Flute	8 ,,	Orchestral Oboe	8 ,,
Harmonic Flute	4 ,,

(The above stops will be enclosed in a swell box.)

Tuba	16 feet	Tremulant to Stops, 1 to 5.
Tuba	8 ,,

Pedal Organ (16 stops).

Open Diapason (wood)	32 feet	Quint	10⅔ feet
Open Diapason (metal)	32 ,,	Octave	8 ,,
Open Diapason (wood)	16 ,,	Flute	8 ,,
Open Diapason (metal)	16 ,,	Spare slide for reed	32 ,,
Violone (wood)	16 ,,	Trombone	16 ,,
Dulciana (metal)	16 ,,	Contra Fagotto	16 ,,
Sub-bass	16 ,,	Tromba	8 ,,
Bourdon	16 ,,	Clarion	4 ,,

Couplers (13).

Swell to Great.	Solo Sub-Octave.
Swell to Choir.	Solo Unison off.
Solo to Great.	Great to Pedal.
Swell Octave.	Swell to Pedal.
Swell Sub-Octave.	Choir to Pedal.
Swell Unison off.	Solo to Pedal.
Solo Octave.

Combination Pistons and Pedals.

8 Combination Pistons to Great Organ Stops.
6 ,, ,, ,, Swell Organ Stops.
4 ,, ,, ,, Solo Organ Stops.
3 ,, ,, ,, Choir Organ Stops.
3 ,, Pedals to Pedal Organ Stops.
6 ,, ,, Duplicating Swell Pistons.

The combination of stops upon the pistons and pedals are easily alterable by the organist, the mechanical arrangements being conveniently placed in the console.

Other Accessories.

(a) Double Acting Pedal controlling Great to Pedal coupler.
(b) Coupler 'Great Pistons to Pedal Combinations.'
(c) 'Pedal basses to Swell Organ,' whereby the Pedal Organ may be controlled in suitable combinations (not necessarily the same as those associated with the Great), by either the Swell pistons or combination pedals.

A Grand Crescendo Pedal will bring on the piston and pedal combinations from soft to full, affecting also the Solo Tubas, Great to Pedal, Swell to Great, and Solo to Great couplers, in appropriate order. By this means the player will be able to increase his organ from soft to full, or to arrest the crescendo at any point, without touching a stop or piston. Moreover, the arrangement is such as to leave all pistons, &c., free to work, under their normal conditions, directly the foot is removed.

OLD-TIME CRITICISM.

It may not be without interest to take a peep into the past as to a performance of sacred music in a London church seventy years ago, when such performances, now so frequent, were in the nature of a novelty. The following extract, unearthed from the Atlas of April 29, 1827, contains some outspoken criticism upon extemporization. The younger Wesley, referred to in the notice, was then sixteen years old.

PERFORMANCE OF ANCIENT MUSIC AT CHRIST CHURCH.

The selection of music from the works of Handel, Haydn, &c., which was performed on Tuesday morning, at Christ Church, Newgate Street, attracted a large audience. The vocal pieces were accompanied on the organ by Mr. S. Wesley and his son [S. S. Wesley], in many places with a judicious variety and contrast in the management of the stops. We did not, however, like the effect of Handel's violin parts played upon the full organ in the chorus 'We praise Thee, O God,' or in that from the Messiah, 'Glory to God'; the passages did not suit the genius of the instrument, or assist the voices. The double diapasons, which were added to the organ on this occasion, gave a surprising fulness and depth to its tone, and in the sustained choruses were of powerful assistance. The experiment was altogether successful, and we trust it may prove the commencement of a series of performances. There was no organ extempore from Wesley; but a gentleman named Topliff made a noise, which was dignified with that appellation.

MUSIC IN THE KIRK.

It seems but a little time since the singing of hymns—'human hymns'—was regarded by Presbyterians in Scotland as an unclean thing; and was not the crusade, led by the notorious Rev. Dr. Begg, against the introduction of organs in the Free Kirks an ecclesiastical turmoil of only the other day? What a change has come over church music North of the Tweed! We have before us a service paper of what is called 'The Annual Recital,' held, on the 20th ult., in St. George's United Free Church, Edinburgh, the cathedral of the Free Kirk in Dr. Begg's day. Could some of the old faithers rise in their graves they would rub their eyes on beholding this document, even if they did not anticipate that the walls of the churches would fall as the result of such dreadful goings on. The service in question included Schubert's beautiful setting of 'The Lord is my Shepherd' and Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' both works being accompanied in a masterly manner—and, of course, entirely from memory—by Mr. Alfred Hollins, the gifted organist of the church, who played his Concert-Overture in C minor. The soloists were Miss Maconochie, Miss Grant, Mrs. W. D. Smart, and Mr. G. L. Ross. A brief analysis of Mendelssohn's Symphony-Cantata was given in the service book, and the whole music-making proved to be one that calls for hearty congratulation and unstinted commendation.

At the social gathering of the Association of North London Choirs (Presbyterian), held at Highbury on the 9th ult., Dr. Henry Coward, chorus-master of the Sheffield Festival, was the guest of the evening. In the course of a practical address, well tinctured with Yorkshire enthusiasm, Dr. Coward laid great stress upon the important but much neglected matter of a clear enunciation of the words in singing. He afterwards rehearsed his audience in the chorus, 'And the glory of the Lord,' thereby furnishing an object lesson of great value to the choirmasters as well as the singers who were present. Among former guests of the evening who have honoured the Association by their presence may be mentioned Sir Joseph Barnby and Dr. E. J. Hopkins of the past masters, and Dr. W. H. Cummings, Professor Prout, and Dr. Turpin of those who are happily still in the flesh. Such meetings combine the social element and practical good in perfect harmony.

At a special oratorio service at St. Margaret's Church, Streatham, on February 28, Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's short setting of Psalm 137 for principals and chorus was sung, together with Bernard Molique's solemn Litany (Op. 48) and Hugh Collis's cantata 'Intercession.' The principal solo music was sung by Miss Mary McDiarmid, Mrs. Francis, and Messrs. Sidney Barnby, Louis Godfrey, and Frank Williams. Mr. R. H. Corfield was the organist and Mr. H. Scott conducted.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. T. H. Collinson, St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh (Marche Funèbre et Chant Séraphique, Guilmant, In memoriam, Henry Willis, organum qui fecit).—Mr. Edwin H. Lemare, St. Margaret's, Westminster (Introduction and Fugue, Reubke).—Mr. Robert Hetherington, Jun., Chalmer's Church, Bridge of Allan (Overture in C minor, Hollins).—Mr. Sydney Crookes, South Parish Church, Aberdeen (Toccata in A minor, Best).—Mr. Roger Ascham, Feather Market Hall, Port Elizabeth (Sonata, No. 6, Op. 119, Rheinberger).—Mr. Sydney Crookes, Parish Church, Cupar.—Mr. W. Wolstenholme, Royal Technica. Institute, Salford (Fantasia in E, by the recitalist).—Mr. C. H. Moody, Holy Trinity, Coventry (Toccata in A major, Purcell).—Mr. R. W. Strickland, College Street Chapel, Northampton (Variations on the Psalm tune 'Windsor,' G. A. Macfarren).—Dr. Plant, St. Mark's, Winshill, Burton-on-Trent.—Mr. R. E. Parker, Parish Church, Wilmslow (Andante in D, Silas).—Mr. Howard Moss, Parish Church, Gravesend (Fantasia in E, Merkel).—Mr. Norman Kendrick, Congregational Church, Penarth (works entirely by Italian composers).—Mr. Alfred H. Allen, St. Clement's, Ilford (Andante cantabile in G, S. S. Wesley).—Mr. Ernest H. Smith, St. Bede's, Liverpool (Choral Song and Fugue, S. S. Wesley).—Mr. W. A. Roberts, Queen's Road Presbyterian Church, Liverpool.—Mr. Thomas Curry, St. Stephen's, Walbrook (Trumpet Voluntary, Purcell).—Mr. T. Westlake-Morgan, Collegiate Church of St. Cybi, Holyhead (Elegy, Lemaigre, and new Sonata in G minor, C. J. Grey).—Mr. Thomas Crawford, St. Clement Danes, Strand.—Mr. Alfred Miller, St. George the Martyr, Queen Square.—Mr. D. W. H. Gates, St. Stephen's, Dublin.—Mr. F. Fertel, Bromley Parish Church.—Mr. Alexander Phipps, Stratford Town Hall.

ORGANIST AND CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. A. H. Allen, SS. Philip and James, Oxford.
Mr. C. J. Brennan, Elmwood Church, Belfast.
Mr. Percy Byatt, St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow.
Mr. Fred. Diggle, Longrow Church, Campbeltown.
Mr. Herbert F. Ellingford, St. Peter's Parish Church, Carmarthen.
Mr. Henry T. Gilberthorpe, Parish Church, Lynton.
Mr. Arthur Gosling, St. Andrew's, Willesden Green.
Mr. Edward W. Groocock, St. Andrew's, Croydon.
Mr. George Hoggett, Parish Church, Staindrop, Darlington.
Mr. Fredk. E. Hollingshead, St. James's Church, Standard Hill, Nottingham.
Mr. Edmund Jaques, St. Paul's Chapel, Trinity Parish, New York City.
Mr. G. T. Patman, All Saints', Scarborough.
Mr. J. C. Richards, St. Peter's, Lower Edmonton.
Mr. Arthur W. Robinson, Liscard Wesleyan Church.
Mr. A. J. Sainsbury, Christ Church, Lausanne.
Mr. W. A. Soyer, Christ Church, Beckenham.
Mr. J. S. Buxton (tenor), Chester Cathedral.
Mr. Lewis Hayward (alto), St. Bride's, Fleet Street.

REVIEWS.

SERVICES, &c.

A Short Communion Service in E flat. For Treble voices. The Office for the Holy Communion in E flat. By Bertram Luard Selby.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C minor. By Charles Wood.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E minor. By Daniel Purcell. Edited by J. Stainer.

Four-fold Amen in F. By Arthur Somervell.

(Novello's Parish Choir Book.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Mr. Selby's short Communion Service, for treble voices, is likely to be extremely useful, especially where the attendance of the adult members of the choir is not always obtainable or reliable. The voices are in unison, with the exception of division into two parts in the Creed at the words 'And was incarnate.' Variety is obtained by the harmonic scheme and by the clever flow of the organ parts. When, however, a full choir is available, the second setting—which is the same as the above, only with four vocal parts—is, of course, far more effective. In this the thrice repeated supplication in the 'Agnus Dei' is respectively made by tenor and soprano soloists succeeded by the full choir. It is not often that the minor mode is chosen by composers for their settings of the Evening Canticles. Dr. Wood, however, has justified his procedure by the cleverness of his harmonic design, with the result that the music is pleasantly fresh and unhackneyed. The threefold rise of the melody from the tonic to the dominant of the opening of the Nunc dimittis most happily reflects the spirit of the text, and the close in the key at the relative tonic major is also in sympathy with the sentiment of the words.

Peculiar interest is attached to the setting of the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E minor, by Daniel Purcell, for was he not the brother of the famous Henry of that ilk? Daniel was organist of Magdalen College, Oxford, from 1688 to 1695, and it is known that he composed a considerable number of anthems and much church music, nearly all of which, however, has been suffered to sink into oblivion. The present Service is that contained in an organ book in the library of Magdalen College. The organ part is in the autograph of the composer, but all the voice parts have been lost, as well as those of four anthems by the same writer included in the volume above referred to. In the case of the latter the indications are insufficient to permit of restoration, but in the Service the intimation of the position and movement of the voices, combined with Sir John Stainer's antiquarian knowledge and intuitiveness, have enabled the vocal parts to be written in, and the result is worthy of the attention of choirmasters. In an interesting preface Sir John justly says that he 'thinks he might well appeal to the musical patriotism of English Cathedral organists as a sufficient reason for taking this Service into regular use; there is in it a quaintness, not without tenderness and devotional feeling, which recalls the style of the composer's brother Henry, by whose brilliant career and fame he was no doubt over-shadowed.' Who will say him nay?

Mr. Arthur Somervell's Fourfold Amen will be found easy to sing.

ANTHEMS.

Now late on the Sabbath Day. (Easter.) By S. Coleridge-Taylor.

Our Blest Redeemer. (Whitsuntide.) Words by Harriet Auber. By the Rev. E. Vine Hall.

Come unto Me. If any man sin. By Henry Hiles.

O saving Victim. By John Stainer.

Prevent us, O Lord. By A. Herbert Brewer.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's music is always distinctive, and choir-trainers in search of an Easter anthem out of the ordinary run of such compositions will find much that will interest them, and, be it added, their choirs, in the work under notice. After a short introduction for the organ, which arrests the attention, the sopranos enter in unison with melodious phrases. The entrance of the full choir fortissimo at the words, 'And behold there was an earthquake,' is very dramatic, and the subsequent transition from the initial key, E flat, to that of D illustrates the words in a striking manner. At the close of this section there is a soprano solo of some length, after which the choir enters and continues until an imposing conclusion is reached.

Mr. Hall has taken for his text the familiar hymn beginning 'Our blest Redeemer, ere He breathed' (No. 207, Hymns Ancient and Modern). This he has set in a simple and devotional manner that deepens the tranquil confidence of the peaceful words. The first verse is written for soprano or tenor solo, which is repeated in four-part harmony by the choir. The second and third verses are similarly treated, but the fourth, designed for a tenor soloist, is succeeded by the final lines given out to prayerful strains by the full choir. The prolongation of the notes at the last recital of the words, 'Thy dwelling place,' is a happy thought, and the threefold 'Amen,' which immediately follows, concludes the anthem most impressively.

The first of the two anthems by Dr. Hiles imperatively demands a choir which has been trained to pay as much attention to rests as to notes, to cease singing with a precision equal to that in commencing, a matter apt to be disregarded by choristers generally. Choirs so trained, however, will find few difficulties in the music, for although some of the chromatic passages may at first sight appear a little awkward, a second glance will show that they are easy to sing in tune. The anthem opens with a short tenor solo and contains a brief but effectively written quartet. A feature of the composition is the organ accompaniment, which, while admirably supporting the voices, by its independence and expressiveness accentuates the tender yearning spirit of the text. The second anthem, 'If any man sin,' is in four parts throughout; it is shorter and more simple in design and character.

'Beautiful' is the only word which can fully describe Sir John Stainer's anthem 'O saving Victim.' It begins with a phrase which at once fascinates the ear and rivets itself in the mind—a phrase which seems the very musical incarnation of devotional supplication. A very fine climax is achieved at the words 'grant succour,' and a most effective contrast is provided to it by the entrance of the voices in imitation with the opening melodious phrase. The termination is most impressive.

Mr. Herbert Brewer's composition is intended to be sung unaccompanied. Provided strict unanimity is preserved with regard to tempo, which requires special care, this anthem will not be found difficult for a fairly trained choir, as the part-writing is smooth and flowing and grateful to sing.

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

Harvest Dance. Bourrée and Gigue. (Pianoforte Duet.) By Edward German.

Song Dances. Ballet Suite. (Pianoforte Duet.) By Wilfred Bendall.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Much pleasure and advantage are to be found in pianoforte duet playing, and both are derivable from the performance of the above pieces. The 'Harvest Dance' is the second movement from the orchestral suite, 'The Seasons,' written by Mr. Edward German for the Norwich Festival of 1899. Concerning this particular number the correspondent for the Standard said: 'In this Mr. German is in his happiest humour. The chief melody has a splendid old ballad-like fling in dance time, to which it is almost impossible to keep the feet from beating time, and when, later in the movement, it is played slowly, it acquires a humorous suggestiveness that is irresistible.' The arrangement under notice has been made by the composer and admirably preserves the most attractive features of the composition, which will be found an exceptionally bright and inspiriting piece for home use. The Bourrée and Gigue are from the composer's incidental music to Mr. George Alexander's production of 'Much Ado about Nothing,' and are also bright and vivacious. They will present no difficulties to pianists of average abilities. These pieces are also arranged for violin and pianoforte. Mr. Bendall's pleasing 'Song Dances' have already been noticed in these columns in are view of the work in its complete form. The duet is an arrangement for four hands of the pianoforte accompaniments, which possess sufficient independent musical interest to form a series of attractive and effective pieces.

Pan in Busch (Pan and his Pipes). Pianoforte Solo. By Felix Mottl.

Mazurka (Op. 6). By Natalie Janotha.
[Breitkopf and Härtel.]

Herr Mottl's music to 'Pan in Busch,' as arranged for pianoforte solo, provides a series of melodious pieces of moderate difficulty. They are severally named No. 1, 'Ländler'; No. 2, 'Schmetterlingstanz und Walzer'; No. 3, Pan's 'Flötenweise' (Langsamer Walzer); No. 4, 'Mazurka'; No. 5, 'Kranzwalzer und Schlussgalopp.' Of these No. 2 and No. 5 are particularly pleasing, but each possesses qualities that are attractive.

Mdlle. Janotha's Mazurka in E minor is an agreeable example of the favourite dance measure of her compatriots. It will present no special difficulties to fairly accomplished pianists, by whom it might be made very effective.

The attention of our readers may be drawn to the following music recently received:—

Songs. The Birth of Day. Words by Gunby Hodath. Music by Charles Deacon.—Only you. Written and composed by Cotsford Dick.—There be none of Beauty's Daughters. Words by Lord Byron. Music by C. Paston Cooper.—There sits a bird on yonder tree. Words from 'Ingoldsby Legends.' Music by Frank Lambert.—Two Questions. Words by George H. Jessop. Music by Frank Lambert.—That Halcyon Eve. Duet for soprano and tenor. Words by Alice Lee. Music by George S. Aspinall. (Ascherberg and Co.)

Vocal Part-Music. God save the King. With varied accompaniment for the pianoforte or organ. By Samuel Reay.—The Soldiers of the Cross. Contralto solo and chorus, s.a.t.b. Words by E. S. Floyer. Music by F. C. Harris. (Novello and Company, Limited.)—O Tyr'd I Fyw (Come, live with me). Part-song for male voices. By Robert Bryan. (D. Jenkins, Aberystwyth.)

Pianoforte Music. Six Easy Pieces. By Sydney Shaw. (Ascherberg and Co.)—A series of Six Easy Pieces. By H. Ernest Hunt. (Weekes and Co.).—Morceaux de Salon, six pieces, by Théodore Lack; and Cinque Pezzi di G. F. Händel, transcritti per pianoforte da Giuseppe Martucci. (Carisch and Iänichen, Leipzig and Milan.)

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The Philharmonic Society commenced its eighty-ninth season on February 27. Before the carrying out of the programme proper there were two special functions to be observed: the Chopin Funeral March, arranged for orchestra, was played In Memoriam the greatest queen that ever reigned, and then, after a brief interval, 'God save the King'; the two in juxtaposition, as in nature death alternates with life. The performance for the first time at these concerts of a Notturno-Serenade in D major, for four orchestras, by Mozart, proved one of interest, although the work, in spite of its high-sounding title, is not one of deep importance. The strings of the orchestra are divided into four sections, to each of which is added two horns, and three of these small orchestras are employed by Mozart in producing echo effects. There are in all three short movements. The music is delightfully fresh, and, although simple, the workmanship shows the hand of a master. Last season Dr. Frederic Cowen revived a pleasing symphony by Haydn, and now he has proved that the Mozart mine is not yet exhausted; further research among old masters will yet yield profitable results. A 'first performance in England' of a Concerto in D for violin and orchestra, by Hermann Grädener, introduced a work of which the faults are negative; the writing is smooth, clever, and at times extremely showy for the solo instrument; but it lacks that individuality which alone can give to music lasting value and interest. Franz Ondricek, the interpreter of the solo part, achieved by his excellent playing a legitimate success. Of the rest of the instrumental music we have to mention a brilliant rendering of Sir Arthur Sullivan's Overture to 'Macbeth,' a fitting tribute to the composer who, as conductor during three seasons, was so intimately connected with the Society; also an exceedingly fine performance of Beethoven's Symphony in C minor. Dr. Cowen is again showing himself an able and intelligent conductor. Mr. Plunket Greene sang Sir Hubert Parry's 'The soldier's tent,' composed specially for the recent Birmingham Festival. The dramatic music of the scena, strengthened by its romantic orchestral colouring, improves greatly upon acquaintance.

At the second concert, on the 13th ult., the programme included a Concerto in E minor for pianoforte and orchestra, by Herr Emil Sauer, who interpreted the solo part. He is a pianist endowed with many gifts; his command of the keyboard is great, and he plays with life and brilliancy. His concerto is full of tuneful melody, and, from a popular point of view, the music is attractive. There is, however, nothing distinctive about it, and the virtuoso element predominates throughout. It is a clever work, but the composer has followed the lines of Rubinstein and Liszt rather than the nobler ones of Schumann and Brahms. His brilliant performance excited great admiration and the last movement was repeated. The programme included Tschäikowsky's Symphony in F minor. The performance of the first and of the last movements was excellent; the Andantino and the Scherzo, however, did not produce their due effect. Madame Marie Brema was heard in Purcell's 'Mad Bess' and Moniuszko's 'Le Cosaque,' both scored by Professor Stanford. The vocalist was in good voice and sang with fervour and dramatic power. The concert concluded with 'Siegfrieds Rheinfahrt.'

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

HIAWATHA.

It was very satisfactory to see so large an audience at the Albert Hall, on February 26, when the Royal Choral Society gave its second performance of Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha.' It will be remembered that this Society was the first to perform the work in its entirety, on March 22 last year—the final section, 'Hiawatha's Departure,' having been written for that occasion. That the cantata should have become so popular as to practically fill the huge hall on its second performance was a striking testimony of the innate charm, originality, and genuine expressiveness of the music. The work was most effectively rendered, the music manifestly stirring the choir to enthusiasm. The soloists, Madame Ella Russell, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Andrew Black, likewise entered into the spirit of the fascinating strains.

ISRAEL IN EGYPT.

A performance of Handel's colossal oratorio was given on the 14th ult. As on previous occasions, the double choruses were rendered with magnificent effect. The work, however, decidedly suffered from the modern tendency to take the slow choruses too rapidly. This was specially noticeable in 'But as for His people' and 'With the blast of Thy nostrils,' the music of the former consequently losing much of its expression of graciousness, and that of the latter much of its dignity. The solos were rendered in a manner that decidedly added to the enjoyment of the evening. Madame Sobrino interpreted the soprano numbers with delightful purity of tone and style, and she received most able assistance from Miss Maggie Purvis in the duet 'The Lord is my strength.' Miss Ada Crossley maintained her reputation, and Mr. William Green may be said to have improved his artistic position. His rendering of 'The enemy said' was particularly excellent. The delivery, by Mr. Andrew Black and Mr. Watkin Mills, of the famous duet 'The Lord is a man of war,' evoked such prolonged applause that it resulted in an encore. Sir Frederick Bridge conducted both performances.

MR. NEWMAN'S SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

DR. COWEN'S 'BUTTERFLY'S BALL' OVERTURE.

Special interest was attached to Mr. Robert Newman's Symphony concert, on the 2nd ult., owing to the first production of a concert-overture, entitled the 'Butterfly's Ball,' by Dr. Frederic H. Cowen. The title in itself raised considerable expectation, for Dr. Cowen would seem to have been elected court musician by the fairies and flowers, and the new work promised to be a further contribution to a series of pieces of characteristic winsomeness and charm. The themes of this fairy-like 'Butterfly's Ball' Overture are delightfully melodious, and they fluttered about the orchestra as they emanated with dainty lightness from the different instruments. Although the work is cast in overture form, its spirit is that of a Scherzo, but technical detail and the rare cunning of the orchestration are lost sight of—as they should be—in the impression of prevailing poetic fancifulness, grace, and vivacity. The music was excellently rendered under Mr. Henry J. Wood's direction. Other notable performances on this occasion were a fine interpretation of Mozart's 'Jupiter' Symphony and the usual fine pianoforte playing of Signor Busoni in Weber's Concerstück. Madame Amy Sherwin was the vocalist.

THE WOLVERHAMPTON FESTIVAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Distinction was certainly imparted to the final performance of the present series of these concerts by the first appearance in London of the Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society. This excellent Society, one of the finest choral forces of the Midlands, was originally formed in 1868 to give concerts in aid of the Wolverhampton and Staffordshire General Hospital; but in 1873 it was deemed advisable for its management to be entrusted to a committee independent of the hospital. Its first conductor, Mr. W. C. Stockley, of Birmingham, was succeeded in 1881 by the late Dr. Swinnerton Heap, and, on his death last year, the post was accepted by Mr. Henry J. Wood. The reason of the début of the choir in London at Queen's Hall, on the 16th ult., is, therefore, not far to seek. These vocal Wolverhamptonites took part in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, and the reception music from the second act of 'Tannhäuser.' Their interpretation of the choral portion of the Symphony was not only striking testimony of the talent of Mr. Wood as a choral and orchestral conductor, but one that reflected much credit on the attainments of those robust Midland choristers. The choir sang with a fervour and impulse, combined with tremendous resonance of tone that at times were quite startling. The orchestral movements were superbly rendered. Signor Busoni was again the pianist, on this occasion being heard in Beethoven's E flat Concerto; Madame Lillian Blauvelt contributed Elizabeth's Greeting from 'Tannhäuser,' and took part with Madame Kirkby Lunn, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Daniel Price in the Choral Symphony.

CRYSTAL PALACE CONCERTS.

HERR BECKER'S VIOLONCELLO CONCERTO.

The programmes of the present series of Crystal Palace Saturday afternoon concerts do not offer many novelties, but one of an interesting nature was brought forward on the 9th ult.—Herr Hugo Becker's Violoncello Concerto in A (Op. 10). This work may be described as a concerto in miniature, but the usual four movements—all of them, by the way, short—follow on without break. Neither the themes nor their treatment can claim great originality; the writing, however, is musicianly, the solo part effectively laid out, and the orchestration picturesque. The work in its entirety is decidedly pleasing. Mr. Bertie Withers played the solo part with refinement and neatness, and the orchestral portion was excellently rendered. The solo pianist was Herr Schönberger, and the vocalist Madame Blanche Marchesi.

The orchestral works at the concert on the following Saturday were Brahms's 'Tragic' Overture and Beethoven's 'Pastoral' Symphony, both of which were accorded adequate interpretations. Some interest was attached to the first appearance before an English audience of Mdlle. Ella Spravka, a young Bohemian pianist, who, for the last two years, has studied under Mr. Edward Dannreuther. Although she only attempted Chopin's Ballade in G minor (Op. 23) and Liszt's second Rhapsody, both these tests of proficiency were rendered with musical intelligence and a refined and vivacious style. M. Johannes Wolff was heard at his best in Spohr's 'Dramatic' Concerto, and Miss Marie Brema sang very finely. Mr. Manns conducted with all his wonted vigour.

SATURDAY AND MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

The interest of these concerts has been much increased by the addition to the répertoire of several works, some of them of importance. César Franck's distinctive Quartet in F minor, written in 1880, ten years before its composer's death, was played for the first time on February 23. The work is too well known to admirers of chamber music to justify further criticism, but it may be said that its lofty and serious aims were eloquently interpreted by the Ysaye Quartet Party.

On the following Monday the first performance in London was given of M. Vincent d'Indy's Quartet for pianoforte and strings in A minor (Op. 7). It consists of three movements: [a vivacious Allegro non troppo, youthful in its exuberance and waywardness; a Ballade, somewhat lugubrious, but decidedly clever and possessing originality; and an Allegro vivo, a spirited and effectively-written number. M. Théophile Ysaye, brother of M. Ysaye, was the pianist. The evening's music concluded with Borodine's pleasing and refined String Quartet in D, another addition to the répertoire, but which has been made too familiar at other concerts to need description.

The concert on Saturday, the 9th ult., was made memorable by the introduction of Tschaïkowsky's third and last Quartet in E flat minor (Op. 30). First performed in London at a chamber concert given by Mr. Richard Gompertz on December 9, 1896, at the Queen's (Small) Hall. According to the inscription on the manuscript the work was composed in February, 1876, as a tribute to the memory of Laub, the violinist, who died in 1875. Tschaïkowsky was then suffering from nervous depression, and this accounts for the moody, melancholy, and occasional suggestion of hysteria in the opening movement. Some relief comes with the Allegretto vivo e scherzando, which also provides an effective contrast for the third number, Andante funèbre, a deeply expressive and dignified funeral march of great originality. No trace of despondency is apparent in the Finale, in Rondo form, which is bright and gay and full of verve.

Grieg's pleasing Quartet in G minor (Op. 27) was played on the 18th ult.—a welcome revival—and M. Ysaye introduced a neat and effective Prelude and Bourrée 'in the old style,' for violin with pianoforte accompaniment, by M. René Ortmans.

In addititon to M. Théophile Ysaye, Miss Fanny Davies, Miss Evelyn Suart, Signor Busoni, Miss Adela Verne, and Madame Clotilde Kleeberg have appeared as solo pianists; and the vocalists have been Miss Edith Clegg (her first appearance at these concerts), M. Meux, Madame Lillian Blauvelt, Mr. Laurence Rea, Madame Amy Sherwin, Miss Büring (a new Australian contralto possessing a pleasing voice and refined style), Miss Gwendoline Dews, and Mr. Denham Price.

AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.

The Stock Exchange Orchestral and Choral Society has never given a more satisfactory concert than that on the 6th ult., under the direction of Mr. Arthur W. Payne and Mr. Munro Davidson, the latter the conductor of the male-voice choir. The choice of the Symphony in F (Op. 9), by Goetz, is to be commended, for it is a beautiful work which has been far too much neglected of late years. The melodiously fresh strains were admirably interpreted, the delicate passages in particular being excellently rendered. Another feature of the evening was an impressive reading of Brahms's noble Rhapsody, the contralto solo of which received sympathetic treatment by that promising young English vocalist, Miss Edith Clegg, and the choral portion was sung with so much finish and expressiveness as to reflect the highest credit on the members of the choir and their trainer. Other part-music, equally well rendered by the choir, were Mendelssohn's motet, 'Beati Mortui'; the glee, 'Oh, the Summer Night,' by Dr. Cummings; and the part-songs, 'Peace,' by Mr. Lee Williams, and 'Jack Frost,' by Hatton. Miss Mabel Monteith, a pupil of the Guildhall School of Music, made a decided success in the solo part of Liszt's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of Mr. Norfolk Megone, the concert, on the 14th ult., of the Strolling Players' Amateur Orchestral Society was conducted by Mr. William Shakespeare. The chief orchestral works were the Overture to Nicolai's 'Merry Wives of Windsor' and Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony. The most successful performance of the evening, however, was that of Mr. Landon Ronald's 'Suite de Ballet,' under the direction of the composer. Mr. Julian Clifford played the solo part of Liszt's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat, and the vocalists were Miss May Hayden and Mr. Whitworth Mitton.

The Royal Amateur Orchestral Society gave the second concert of its twenty-ninth season on the 20th ult., at the Queen's Hall. No novelties were produced, but effective interpretations were secured of Beethoven's Fourth Symphony and Massenet's Suite 'Scènes Alsaciennes,' under the direction of Mr. Ernest Ford. The soloists were Madame Kirkby Lunn and M. Johannes Wolff.

MR. DENIS O'SULLIVAN'S RECITAL.

On the afternoon of February 28 Mr. Denis O'Sullivan and Miss Elizabeth Reynolds gave a song and pianoforte recital, which was highly interesting. Miss Reynolds, who is an Irish lady and has studied in Germany since her last appearance here, is a capable pianist of considerable promise. She has an adequate technique and plays with spirit and intelligence and a welcome absence of mannerism. She played music by Bach, Scarlatti, Chopin, Brahms, Somervell, and Liszt, and was satisfactory in all.

Mr. Denis O'Sullivan's advance as an interpretative artist has of late been such that those who only heard him as Shamus O'Brien will hardly recognise him as the same singer. He can now boldly take his stand in the small front rank of interpreters, and that in spite of a voice which in itself does not help him much. He gains his success by force of intelligence and temperament. He sang English, French, Italian, German, Spanish, and two songs in the dialect of the Zuñi Indians, seeming to feel completely at home in all languages — though not unnaturally it was in songs in the Irish brogue that he was happiest. Of these were six, some merry and some full of Celtic melancholy—and he was equally expressive in both. His greatest successes during the afternoon—it is impossible to go through the whole programme—were gained in Löwe's 'Glockenthürmers Töchterlein,' the Indian songs already mentioned, one of which was encored, and the Vicar's song from 'The Sorcerer.' One of the 'Songs of the Pyrenees,' 'Mi gustan todos,' had also to be repeated. Mr. O'Sullivan has now an extraordinary command over vocal colour and expression, and a dramatic instinct which usually guides him aright in the use to which he puts his powers. He also seems to have excellent taste in the arrangement of programmes and great industry in searching for what is likely to show his gifts to the greatest advantage.

MR. EMIL KREUZ'S CONCERT.

At his concert on February 28, at Steinway Hall, Mr. Emil Kreuz produced his own Quintet for two violins, violoncello, and horn in E flat, which recently gained the prize in a competition organised by Mr. Lesley Alexander. It was excellently played by the Gompertz Quartet (of which Mr. Kreuz is a member) and Mr. Borsdorf. Mr. Kreuz treats the horn very kindly, and Mr. Borsdorf made the fullest use of his opportunities. The Quintet is a solidly written, but melodious work, German in feeling, but not unoriginal. Its expressive Romance is perhaps its most satisfactory movement, while there is much freshness in the last Allegro molto moderato, which is remarkably restrained throughout, and ends in an unexpectedly subdued way. At the same concert Mr. Leonard Borwick joined the Gompertz Quartet in the first performance in England of a new Pianoforte Quintet in D, by Arensky (Op. 51), which turned out to be an exceedingly fresh and agreeable work. Its most notable feature is a second movement (a set of variations), of rare melodic and harmonic charm, and full of poetical significance. The Scherzo is bright and bustling, and the Finale, In modo Antico, is a very skilful imitation of old models. It gains in piquancy by contrast with what had preceded, and is very praiseworthy for the restraint which the composer has exercised on himself. He finishes before the hearers can grow tired of the movement. Mr. Borwick also played Chopin's A flat Fantasia, and Miss Agnes Witting sang artistically.

MR. ARTHUR SOMERVELL'S CONCERT.

Mr. Arthur Somervell gave a concert of his own compositions, at St. James's Hall, on the 7th ult., at which he played, with Mr. Leonard Borwick, a set of Variations for two pianofortes on an original theme. That they give evidence of great musicianship, and never for an instant make concessions to mere popularity, that they are melodious and graceful, and are skilfully designed for the instruments, goes without saying. Yet they lack some of the higher qualities which mark his best work. Most music-lovers are now agreed that this union of musicianship, elegance, and the higher qualities of passion is found in a greater degree in Mr. Somervell's Cycle of twelve songs from 'Maud' than in any of his other work. It was sung on the 7th by Mr. Plunket Greene, with a perfect sense of its dramatic and emotional significance, but with vocalisation not so perfect. Miss Agnes Nicholls, on the other hand, sang another Cycle, 'Love in Springtime,' with excellent vocalisation, but with no great distinction in the way of expression. The new cycle seemed inferior to the older one in respect of expressiveness, though replete with charm. It is, by the way, only a cycle in the sense that its component parts have been joined together by the composer. Perhaps, too, the second cycle suffered from coming immediately after the first, and two song cycles in one afternoon require a robust appetite. Mr. Leonard Borwick also played a Caprice and Study for pianoforte solo. Mr. Laurence Rea sang several songs, the best of which was 'Home they brought the warrior dead.' It is one of Mr. Somervell's happiest inspirations and was most artistically rendered. The concert-giver and Mr. S. Liddle shared the duties of accompanist. The afternoon's music ended with Mr. Somervell's setting of Robert Bridges' 'Elegy.' The whole concert, while serving to enhance one's estimate of Mr. Somervell's powers and his originality, left one with a doubt whether his range is wide enough to make a concert entirely devoted to his works a complete success.

MR. EDWARD GERMAN'S OPERETTA 'THE RIVAL POETS.'

On the evening of the 7th ult. the students of the Royal Academy of Music performed, at St. George's Hall, a little operetta in two acts, entitled 'The Rival Poets; or, the Love Charm.' The libretto—which may be described as an adaptation of the idea of Veit Pogner's choice of a son-in-law, combined with the world-old story of a girl of unknown parentage possessing a charm which was cut in two—is by Mr. W. Herbert Scott and the music by Mr. Edward German. The little work is a re-arranged and enlarged edition of one produced by the same hands some fourteen or fifteen years ago.

The chief interest centres in the music, which reveals almost unsuspected gifts of musical humour on the part of Mr. German, and shows how wisely those acted who chose him to complete 'The Emerald Isle.' Sir Arthur Sullivan has inspired Mr. German with many of his happiest touches, but there is no case of direct plagiarism. The music made a decidedly favourable impression, though it was severely handicapped by not being orchestrated. A quartet, 'The fairest flowers of summer day'; a trio, 'Let doleful ditty'; a contralto solo, 'A bunny sat munching his morsel one day'; and a tenor solo, 'For maiden's love you bid me sue' may be mentioned as the most attractive numbers. Mr. Randegger conducted a performance which went very briskly and smoothly.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The members of the opera class gave three performances of Messager's 'The Basoche,' the last taking place on the 18th ult. Having become familiar with their respective duties the youthful amateurs did credit to their instructors. The general representation was spirited, particularly in regard to the chorus, with which, as with the orchestra, Mr. Ernest Ford, as conductor, had no difficulty. Unquestionably the most satisfactory embodiment was that of the perplexed Duc de Longueville, by Mr. Henry J. Corner, who sang with dramatic effect, and was equal to all the scenes in which he had a share. Miss Ethel Cadman ably rendered the music of Colette, and Miss Maude Willby efficiently represented the light-hearted Princess Mary. As Clement Marot, Mr. Sidney Gotto did excellently, and in the doing thereof he displayed a pleasing voice and good style. The interest evinced in their work by all engaged was materially helpful to success.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS, &c.

A concert of an interesting character was given on the 5th ult., at St. James's Hall, by Madame Lily Henkel. It opened with the first performance in London of a Sonata for pianoforte and violoncellio (Op. 23), by Jean L. Nicodé. The work is in three movements, severally headed 'Energisch bewegt,' 'Gemächlich,' and 'Sehr Schnell.' The first of these is the most satisfactory, the second verging on the sentimental, and the last suffering from diffusiveness; but they each possess melodious themes, and the writing is fluent and musicianly. Two other novelties were a Theme and variations from a Sonata (Op. 7) by P. Juon and a Concert Polonaise in F (Op. 28) for violoncello and pianoforte by Herr Popper. The variations are based upon an expressive melody of folk song character and the number excited a desire to hear more of the work. The instrumentalists were Madame Henkel, pianoforte; Miss Monigue Poole, violin; and M. Kolni Balozky, violoncello. Madame Margaret Milward introduced two pleasing new songs, 'Boy Johnny,' by Mr. Liddle, and 'Collette,' by Mdlle. Chaminade.

Mr. Plunket Greene and Mr. Leonard Borwick's second song and pianoforte recital took place, on the 15th ult., at St. James's Hall, and was distinguished by the production of a recently composed cycle of songs entitled 'An Irish Idyll, in Six Miniatures,' by Professor Villiers Stanford. The text has been chosen from Moira O'Neill's 'Songs of the Glens of Antrim,' and comprise 'Corrymeela,' 'The Fairy Lough,' 'Cuttin' Rushes,' 'Yohneen,' 'A broken song,' and 'Back to Ireland.' The most successful settings are those of the second and third songs, the music of the former accentuating the mysticism of the words with dramatic effect; and that to the third, taken at a very rapid pace, intensifying the significance of the lines with remarkable vividness. Mr. Green also introduced three interesting old Flemish songs—'Pastorale,' 'Adieu, te dis,' and 'Frère Jean.' Mr. Borwick played a number of the smaller compositions by leading masters in his customary irreproachable style.

Herr Emil Sauer gave a pianoforte recital, on the 20th ult., at St. James's Hall, when he gave finished and fluent interpretations of Schubert's seldom heard Sonata in B flat, Chopin's Sonata in B flat minor (Op. 35), and several pieces, including two brilliant and effective studies from his own pen, severally called 'Murmure du vent' and 'Flammes de Mer.'

Mr. Herbert Fryer merits a word of encouragement. At his pianoforte recital, on the 14th ult., at St. James's Hall, he showed great advance in his art, and played with a sympathy, refinement, and intelligent perception of the requirements of the music he interpreted. The result of his performance was full of promise for his future career.

The Royal Artillery Band concert, at Queen's Hall, on the 22nd ult., had for its most substantial feature Beethoven's Symphony in C minor, of which Cavaliere L. Zavertal secured a highly praiseworthy performance, the Finale, in particular, being played with splendid vigour and impulse. New to London was an 'Ungarische Suite,' by Hofmann, a smoothly written rather than distinctive composition. The most striking movement is the first, 'Im Krönungssaal,' in which a dignified theme is effectively treated. This was excellently rendered, as also were 'Solvejg's Lied,' from the second of Grieg's 'Peer Gynt' suites, Saint-Saëns's 'Le Rouet d'Omphale,' and Cavaliere Zavertal's own telling March, 'Virtute et valore.'

The students of Trinity College, London, gave a commendable Orchestral concert, on the 19th ult., at Queen's Hall. Dr. E. H. Turpin conducted, with the exception of Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's Ballade in A minor, which was directed by the composer. Much talent and satisfactory results of good training were shown by several vocal and instrumental soloists.

Miss Ethel Barns and Mr. Charles Phillips terminated their sixth series of chamber concerts on the 6th ult., at Steinway Hall. Special interest was imparted to this concert by the inclusion in the programme of the Sonata in E flat for violin and pianoforte (Op. 18), by Herr Richard Strauss, and a Sonata for violin by Richard Jones (1680-1740). The beautiful second movement of the former increases in attractiveness with re-hearing. The latter work, which we do not remember having previously heard, is in two sections, Largo maestoso and Moderato, and the style is suggestive of Bach. Miss Barns was assisted at the pianoforte by Miss Fanny Davies, and a most artistic selection of songs was sung by Miss Lillian Behrens and Mr. Phillips. Mr. German Reed was the accompanist.

Miss Florence Ranstead gave a song recital at Steinway Hall, on February 26. The programme, including, as it did, Schumann's 'Dichterliebe,' the air 'Gens duce splendida,' from her countryman's (Professor Parker's) 'Hora Novissima,' Coleridge-Taylor's 'Blood-red ring,' and other equally high class songs, sufficiently indicated the young singer's artistic aims, her efforts giving much promise. She was assisted by Miss Ivy Angove, a clever young violinist, who displayed excellent technique in her master's (Wilhelmj) Romance and other pieces, and Mr. Edgar Hulland, an excellent pianist.

A concert was given by the Kensington Chapel Association, on the 14th ult., under the direction of Mr. H. J. Timothy. The soloists were Mr. Andrew Black, Miss Lilian Turnbull, Miss Miriam Timothy (harp), Mr. George Cathie (violin), Mr. Edward Hambleton (violoncello), and Mr. W. Y. Hurlstone presided at the pianoforte. Interesting numbers in the programme were two of Coleridge-Taylor's celebrated Characteristic Waltzes and the Minuetto and Tarantella from German's Gipsy Suite for strings and pianoforte.

At a competition between ladies' choirs held on the 21st ult., at the Kensington Town Hall, eight choirs entered for the various awards. Miss Wray's Choir and Mrs. Mary Layton's Choir won all the chief prizes in the prepared pieces Classes; while the two-part sight reading test resulted in a tie between Mrs. Layton's Choir and the Ladies of the 'Brotherhood' Choral Society—both choirs singing perfectly. In Class IV. (Church Choirs) St. Philips' Choir were successful in carrying off the award. Miss Wakefield distributed the prizes and in so doing made an interesting speech on the great value of competitions. Dr. McNaught adjudicated.

The Borough of Woolwich Choral Society performed Mendelssohn's 'Athalie' at its thirty-fifth concert, on February 28. The choir sang with excellent expression and good attack, reflecting credit on its conductor, Mr. T. Jefferson Nell. There was a small string orchestra, supplemented by pianoforte (Madame Tester Jones) and organ (Dr. W. H. Jones). The solo vocalists were Miss Marion Perrott, Mrs. Bryceson, and Mrs. Julia Franks, and the recitations were given by Mr. Charles Fry. The miscellaneous second part included Pinsuti's 'In this hour,' 'Flow, thou regal' (Harding), and Rossini's 'Carnovale,' by the choir, and solos by the artists named, reinforced by Mr. Samuel Masters.

The King shall rejoice

ANTHEM FOR TENOR (OR SOPRANO) SOLO AND CHORUS

COMPOSED BY

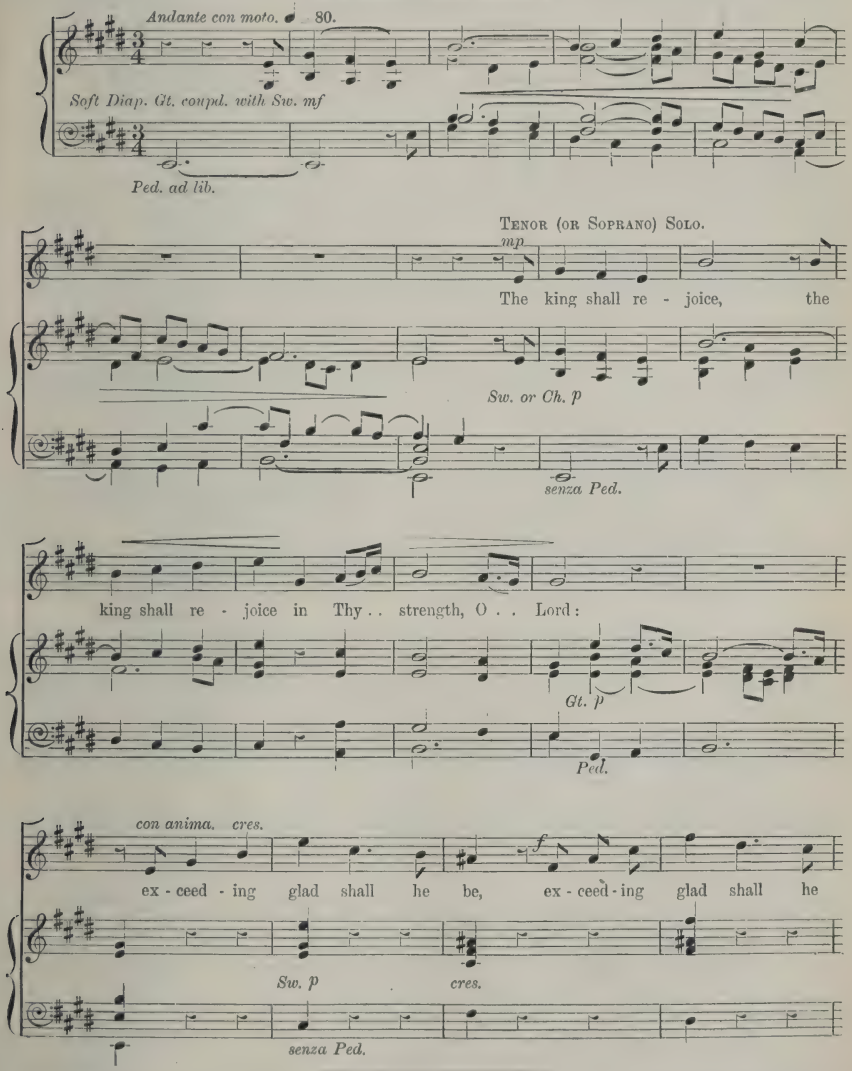
SIR JOHN GOSS

EDITED BY

J. STAINER.

Psalm xxi. 1, 2, and 13.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK



Andante con moto. ♩ 80.
Soft Diap. Gt. coupd. with Sw. mf
Ped. ad lib.
Tenor (or Soprano) Solo.
mp
The king shall re - joice, the
Sw. or Ch. p
senza Ped.
king shall re - joice in Thy . . strength, O . . Lord:
Gt. p
Ped.
con anima. cres.
ex - ceed - ing glad shall he be, ex - ceed - ing glad shall he
f
Sw. p
cres.
senza Ped.

The second movement, "Be Thou exalted, Lord," will be found suitable as an Anthem for general use.

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

dolce.
be of Thy sal - va - tion. The king shall re - joice in Thy Sw. Oboe.
p Ch.
cres.
f rall.
strength, O Lord: ex - ceed - ing glad shall he be of Thy sal - va - Ch.
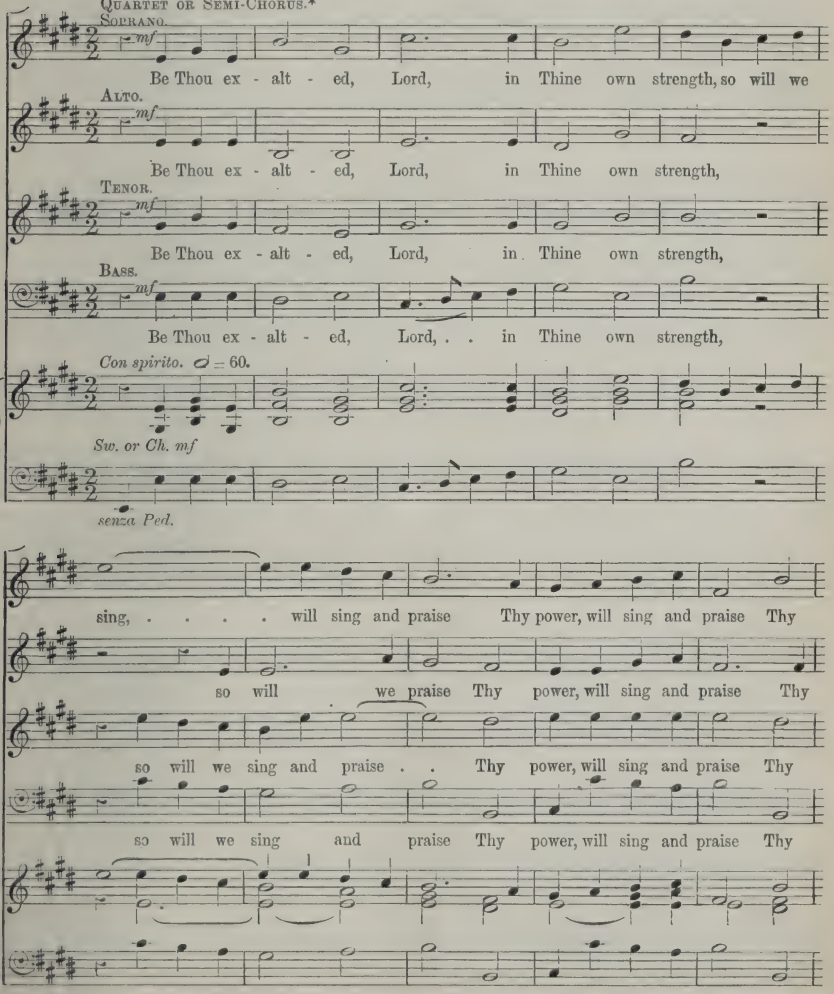
rall. colla voce.
p
- tion. Thou hast given him his heart's . . de -
a tempo.
Gt.
Sw. pp
Ped. ad lib.
senza Ped.
- sire, Thou hast given him his heart's . . de - sire, and hast not de -
cres.
Ch.
f
rall.
- nied him the re - quest . . of his lips, and hast not de-nied, hast not de - nied him the re -
Sw. cres.
Ch. p rall.

BE THOU EXALTED, LORD, IN THINE OWN STRENGTH.



Con spirito.
Quartet or Semi-Chorus.*
Soprano.
mf
Be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength, so will we Alto.
mf
Be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength,
Tenor.
mf
Be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength,
Bass.
mf
Be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, . . in Thine own strength,
Con spirito. ♩ = 60.
Sw. or Ch. mf
senza Ped.
sing, ... will sing and praise Thy power, will sing and praise Thy so will we praise Thy power, will sing and praise Thy so will we sing and praise . . Thy power, will sing and praise Thy so will we sing and praise Thy power, will sing and praise Thy

* If sung as a Semi-Chorus, the Accompaniment when marked mf may be played on the Gt. Diaps. If sung as a Quartet, only the Sw. or Ch. should be used throughout.

p power, so will we sing, so will we sing and
p power, so will we sing and praise Thy power, so will we power, so will we sing, so will we sing, will sing and power,
p
f praise Thy power, be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine
f sing and praise Thy power, be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, be
f praise Thy power, be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine
f
be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, be Thou ex -
Sw. mf own strength, ex - alt - ed in Thine own strength, be Thou ex - Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in . . . Thine own strength, be Thou ex - own strength, be Thou ex - alt - ed,
- alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength,

p
- alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength, so . . . will we sing and
p
- alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength, so . . . will we sing and praise . .
p
Lord, . . . in Thine own strength, so . . . will we sing . . and
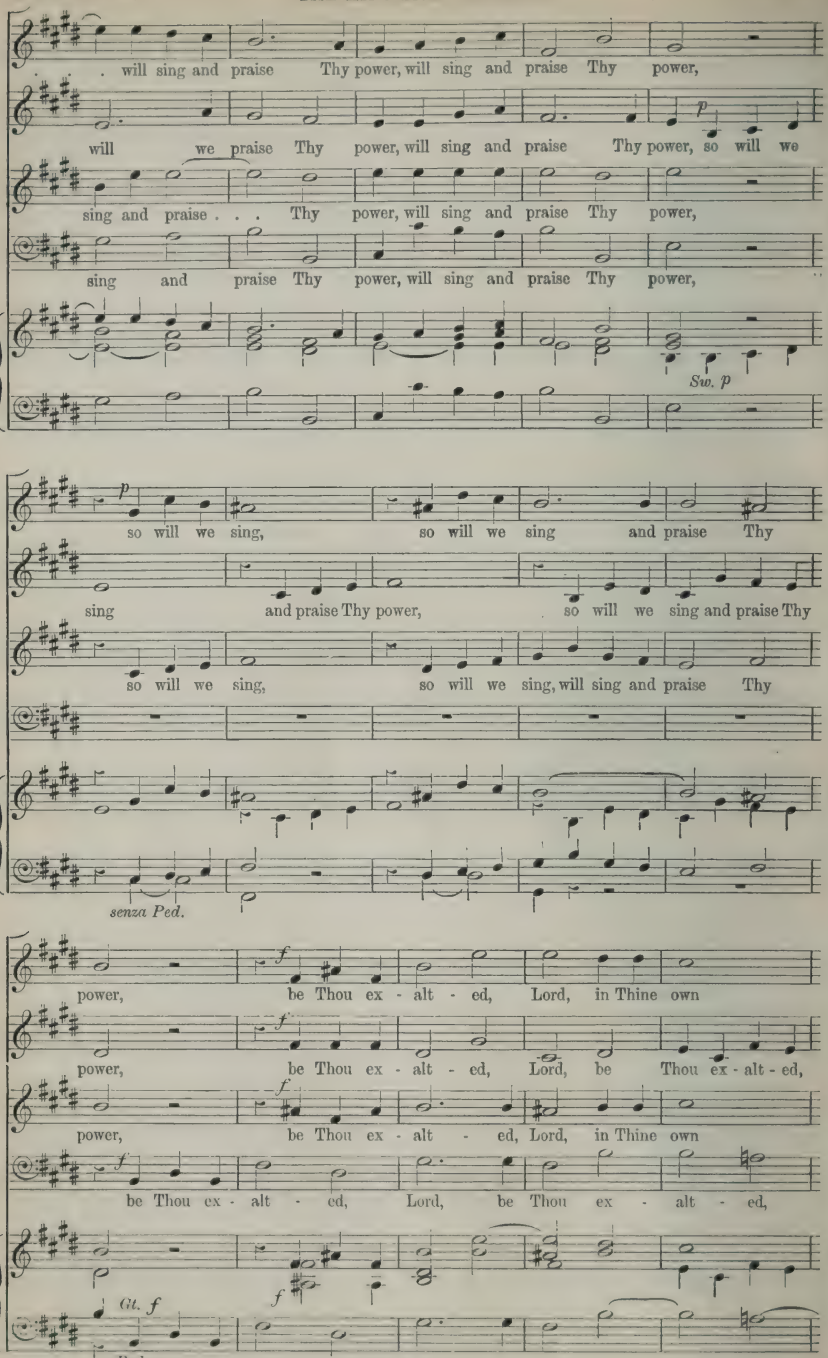
p be Thou ex - alt - ed in Thy strength, so . . . . will we sing . . and
p
ff
praise Thy power, so . . . will we sing and praise Thy power.
ff
. . . Thy power, so . . . will we sing and praise . . Thy power.
ff
praise Thy power, so . . . will we sing . . and praise . . Thy power.
ff
praise Thy power, so . . . will we sing . . and praise Thy power.
mf
Full.
f
Be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength, so will we sing, . . .
f
Be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength, so
f
Be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own strength, so will we
f
Be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, . . in Thine own strength, so will we
Gt. f
Ped. ad lib.



. will sing and praise Thy power, will sing and praise Thy power, will we praise Thy power, will sing and praise Thy power, so will we sing and praise . . . Thy power, will sing and praise Thy power, sing and praise Thy power, will sing and praise Thy power,
Sw. p
so will we sing, so will we sing and praise Thy sing and praise Thy power, so will we sing and praise Thy so will we sing, so will we sing, will sing and praise Thy
senza Ped.
power, be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own power, be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, be Thou ex - alt - ed, power, be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, in Thine own be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, be Thou ex - alt - ed,
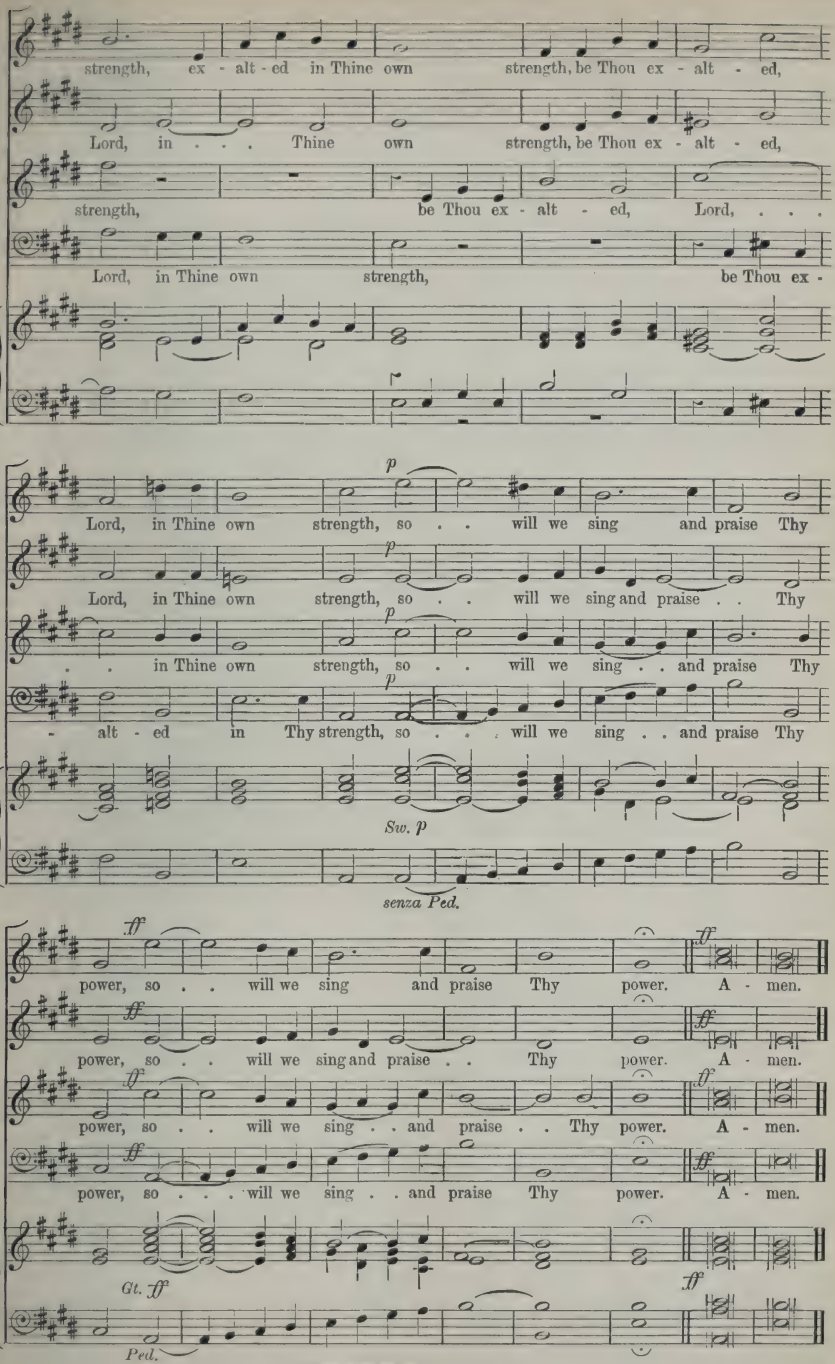
Gt. f
Ped.



strength, ex - alt - ed in Thine own strength, be Thou ex - alt - ed,
Lord, in . . . Thine own strength, be Thou ex - alt - ed, strength, be Thou ex - alt - ed, Lord, . . .
Lord, in Thine own strength, be Thou ex -
p
Lord, in Thine own strength, so . . will we sing and praise Thy Lord, in Thine own strength, so . . will we sing and praise . . Thy
. . in Thine own strength, so . . will we sing . . and praise Thy
- alt - ed in Thy strength, so . . . will we sing . . and praise Thy
Sw. p senza Ped.
ff
power, so . . will we sing and praise Thy power. A - men.
power, so . . will we sing and praise . . Thy power. A - men.
power, so . . will we sing . . and praise . . Thy power. A - men.
power, so . . . will we sing . . and praise Thy power. A - men.
Gt. ff
Ped.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS—Continued.

The Choral Association in connection with the South London Institute of Music gave its fourth concert (thirty-third season), on the 6th ult., at the Institute in Camberwell New Road. The crowded condition of the hall—many standing throughout the evening—bore testimony to the popularity of the works announced for performance. Three choral compositions by English composers were included, and also an orchestral work—viz., the set of Dances from Mr. Edward German's 'Nell Gwyn' music. The cantatas were 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and 'The Death of Minnehaha,' by Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor, and 'The Banner of St. George,' by Dr. Edward Elgar. The solos were sustained in a conscientious manner by Miss Maude Ballard, Mr. Walter Hyde, and Mr. Robert Greir, while the choir sang admirably, and the orchestra, led by Mr. T. E. Gatehouse, gave a good account of the accompaniments. Mr. Leonard C. Venables conducted with his usual skill.

The Handel Society gave a performance, on February 28, at the People's Palace, of Handel's oratorio 'Semele.' The work was well rendered under the conductorship of Mr. J. S. Liddle. The principal soloists were Miss Ethel Wood, Miss Meredyth Elliott, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. F. M. Keel. Mr. E. G. Croager presided at the organ.

The West Ham Philharmonic Society gave its second concert of the season, at the Stratford Town Hall, on the 21st ult., under the conductorship of Mr. H. A. Donald. The programme included: Symphony, No. 1, in C (Beethoven); Overture, 'Rienzi' (Wagner); Ballet Suite, 'Sylvia' (Delibes); Waltz from Ballet Suite, 'The Sleeping Beauty' (Tschaïkowsky); March in G, MS. (Stephen Champ). The vocalists were Miss Grace Day Winter and Mr. Robert Hilton. The Song Cycle, 'Sea Pictures' (Elgar), for contralto solo and orchestra, was very creditably rendered, Miss Day Winter taking the solo. Mr. H. A. Donald, the honorary conductor, was presented with an address and testimonial in recognition of his services since the inauguration of the Society.

At the New Jerusalem Church, Camden Road, a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Athalie' was given by the choir, in aid of the Church funds, on the 21st ult., under the direction of Mr. Wilfrid Davies. The soloists were Miss J. Lyne, Mrs. C. A. Faraday, and Miss Faraday, the verses being recited by Mr. Arthur Fayne. The work was preceded by a short organ recital, by Mr. Davies, of Mendelssohn's music (including a solo by Mr. H. Bamber).

Mr. F. G. H. Moore gave a pianoforte recital at the Victoria Hall, Ealing, on February 28. Mr. Moore's interpretation of the works selected was distinguished by sympathy and intelligence, while his execution left little to be desired. The programme included Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue (Bach), Sonata, Op. 53 ("Waldstein") (Beethoven), several Etudes of Chopin, and other pieces.

Mr. Otto Dene gave a concert at the Public Hall, West Norwood, on the 13th ult. The vocalists were Madame Alice Lovenez, Miss Grace Day-Winter, Mr. Otto Dene, and Mr. Alfred Moore. Herr Krause played violin solos, and Madame Upton-Dene created a deep impression by her finely rendered pianoforte solos, especially in Beethoven's C sharp minor Sonata. Miss Emil Leslie recited successfully. Mr. Otto Dene was accorded a most enthusiastic reception.

The following concerts and recitals given during the last month merit record:—Steinway Hall, Mr. Henri Seiffert's violin recital, on the 6th ult.; Mr. Arthur Walenn's concert, on the 7th ult.; Mr. Harold Samuel's pianoforte recital, on the 14th ult. Miss Muriel Elliot and Mr. Sterling Mackinlay's pianoforte and vocal recitals on the 5th and 19th ult., at the Salle Erard.

Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was sung at St. Catherine's Church, Feltham, on February 27, and, on the 13th ult., Gaul's 'Passion' Music. The tenor and bass solos were taken at each performance by Mr. Philip Barnham and Mr. Walter Hawes. Mr. George Lane, organist and choirmaster of the church, conducted; Mr. Alexander Griffin presiding at the organ on the first occasion and Mr. Leslie Griffin on the second.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(From our Special Correspondent.)*

New York, February 11th, 1901.

Information will have reached England long before this letter is printed of the melancholy failure of the last effort to habilitate grand opera, in English, in America. The enterprise attracted somewhat more attention than was deserved, chiefly because Mr. Grau loaned it the use of his name and housed it in the Metropolitan Opera House, which, till this season, had given shelter only to the German, Italian, and French exotic. Under the circumstances the fact ought to be known that the undertaking was not a new one, but only a new phase of one that was several years old and had apparently some permanent establishment.

There is nothing gratifying in the situation. Opera in the vernacular has received a set-back, a number of singers have been left stranded, and an opportunity has been given to dyspeptic and malicious critics to rail at the American public for neglecting art. Still the situation is one with which my English readers have been familiar for many years, and need not be too seriously contemplated.

The Press of Boston last week lost one of its most striking personalities in the death of Mr. Benjamin E. Woolf, musical critic on the staff of the Herald newspaper. Mr. Woolf was of English birth, but came to New York with his father in 1839, when he was three years old. His father was a violinist and one of the founders of the Philharmonic Society of New York, now in its fifty-ninth year. Mr. Woolf's career in Boston, as violinist, leader of theatrical orchestras, composer, dramatist, and critic, covered more than a generation. He was the librettist of Eichberg's opera, 'The Doctor of Alcantara,' which once had a vogue; wrote several operas himself and also a comedy, 'The Mighty Dollar,' which won much success.

At the end of the old year and beginning of the new century the organists of New York enjoyed the privilege of meeting and hearing one of the foremost of their English colleagues, Mr. Edwin H. Lemare, who spent his mid-winter holiday in a hurried visit to the American metropolis. He came on December 27 and sailed again for home on January 2. The one Sunday which he spent in the city was a busy one. He visited several churches, heard some of his own music at St. Bartholomew's and St. James's, and in the afternoon played the Postlude at St. Agnes's. Through the courtesy of the Rev. Dr. Green, rector, and Mr. Richard Henry Warren, organist, he was offered the use of St. Bartholomew's Church for New Year's night, and though there was scant time to let the fact be known, he gave an organ recital before an audience that crowded the church and contained a fine representation of our Church musicians.

H. E. Krehbiel.

MUSIC IN VIENNA.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Vienna, March 17.

Some twenty-five years ago there was good reason for finding fault with the kind of vocalism then prevailing pretty generally in German-speaking countries. Under the powerful influence of the Wagnerian cult, the declamatory element had come to be regarded as of such paramount importance as to lead to the comparative neglect of a methodical training of the voice, an even and well-balanced voice production, and of the acquisition of a truly vocal style. The short-comings of the singers, in this respect, were then laid at the door of the composer, and the opinion that Wagner's style was ruinous to the voices had its adherents in many quarters. In a relatively very short time this aspect of things has become materially changed. There are now before the public a great many singers of both sexes, who have shown themselves fully equal to the most exacting demands on the part of modern composers (all more or less influenced by Wagner), without being at all inferior, in the matter of pure vocalism, to the good singers of former times. The

* This letter of our esteemed Correspondent was delayed in transit owing to stress of weather in the Atlantic.—Ed., M.T.

No. 465. NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK. Price 2d.

Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei
(No. 2)

FROM THE SERVICE (No. 2) IN A AND D

SET TO MUSIC BY

JOHN STAINER.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

Benedictus qui venit. (No. 2.)

Andante.

1st & 2nd Tenors. (8ve lower.) — Full. p

Bless - ed is He that com - eth in the Name of the Lord,

Bass. — Full. p

Bless - ed is He that com - eth in the Name of . . the Lord,

Andante. ♩ = 60.

Organ. p

Ped.

Full. 1st & 2nd Sopranos. p

Bless - ed is He that com -

Full. Altos. p

Bless - ed is He that com -

in the Name of the Lord,

in the Name of the Lord,

senza Ped.

- eth in the Name of the Lord, in the Name of the Lord;

- eth in the Name of the Lord, in the Name of the Lord;

Copyright, 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

Allegro.
Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho -
Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho -
Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho -
Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho -
Allegro. ♩. = 100.
Ped.
san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est, in the high - san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est, in the high - san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est, in the high - san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est, in the high - est. . . Ho - san - na in the high - est, in the high - - est.
est, . . Ho - san - na in the high - est, in the high - - est.
est, . . Ho - san - na in the high - est, in the high - - est.
est, . . Ho - san - na in the high - est, in the high - - est.

Agnus Dei. (No. 2.)

Copyright, 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

dim.
pp
mp world, . . have mer - cy up - on us. O Lamb of God, that world, . . have mer - cy up - on us. O Lamb of God, . . that world, . . have mer - cy up - on us. O Lamb of God, . . that world, . . have mer - cy up - on us. O Lamb of God, . . that (ad lib.)
Sw.
senza Ped.
Ped.
cres.
dim.
tak-est a - way the sins, the sins of the world, . .
p Sw.
Adagio.
rall.
p
grant us Thy . . peace, . . grant us Thy peace.
ppp Vox Ang.

No. 464. BENEDICTUS QUI VENIT & AGNUS DEI (No. 1) Price 3d.
From the Service (No. 2) in A and D.—John Stainer.

NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK.

Te Deum Laudamus.

288. Adlam, Frank, in E flat .. .. 4d.
5. Allen, G., in D .. .. .. 3d.
220. Ambrosian Te Deum .. .. 3d.
14. Armes, Philip, in G .. .. 3d.
16. Arnold, G. B., in C .. .. 3d.
411. Attwater, J. P., in B flat .. 4d.
163. Baker, A. S., in C .. .. .. 4d.
3. *Barnby, J., in D (Unison) .. .. 3d.
4. *Barnby, J., in B flat (Do.) .. .. 3d.
Do. Voice part only, octavo post 1½d.
523. Barnby, J. (Chant form, with other Canticles) .. .. 4d.
35. Barrett, E. R., in E flat .. .. 3d.
443. Bartholomew, Mrs. Mounsey (nine Chants) .. .. .. 3d.
18. Best, W. T., in C .. .. .. 3d.
346. Brewer, A. H., in B flat .. .. 3d.
145. Brown, A. H., in A .. .. .. 3d.
9 Calkin, J. B., in D .. .. .. 3d.
38. Carnall, Arthur .. .. .. 3d.
30. Chipp, E. T., in D (Unison) .. 3d.
368. Chipp, E. T., in D .. .. .. 3d.
311. Chipp, E. T., in E flat .. .. 3d.
312. Chipp, E. T., in C .. .. .. 3d.
12. Clarke, J. Hamilton, in F .. 3d.
416. Coleridge-Taylor, S., in F .. 4d.
26. *Dykes, Rev. J. B., M.A., in F .. 3d.
31. Elliott, J. W., in F .. .. 3d.
49. Elliott, J. W., in D .. .. 3d.
158. Field, J. T., in F (Chant, E. J. Hopkins) .. .. 3d.
468. Field, J. T., in A (Chant Form, with Benedictus, in D) .. .. 4d.
40. Fisher, Arthur E., in D .. .. 3d.
63. Fisher, Arthur E., in A .. .. 4d.
472. Ford, E., in F (with Jubilate) .. 6d.
392. Foster, M. B., in C .. .. 4d.
36. Gadsby, H., in E flat .. .. 3d.
207. Gale, C. R., in F .. .. .. 4d.
6. *Garrett, G. M., in F .. .. 3d.
516. Gauntlett, H. J., in G (Chant, arranged by J. T. Field) .. 3d.
439. German, J. E., in F.. .. .. 1s.

246. Goss, Sir J., in C (Chant) .. .. 2d.
248. Goss, Sir J., in F .. .. .. 3d.
249. Goss, Sir J., in D .. .. .. 3d.
267. Goss, Sir J., in A .. .. .. 4d.
274. Goss, Sir J., in A (Four voices) .. 4d.
340. Goss, Sir J. (Thanksgiving) .. 6d.
10. Haking, K., in C (Chant form) .. 3d.
504. Hall, E. Vine, in D .. .. 3d.
147. Hamilton-Gell, Rev. A. W., in G (Chant form) .. .. .. 1½d.
22. Herbert, E., in D .. .. .. 3d.
15. *Hopkins, J. L., in G .. .. 3d.
378. Huntley, G. F., in E flat .. .. 4d.
44. Hutchinson, T., in E flat.. .. 3d.
29 Irons, H. S., in G .. .. .. 3d.
Do. Voice part only, octavo post 1½d.
380. Jordan, C. W. (Gregorian Tone).. 3d.
131. Lane, E. Burritt, in F .. .. 3d.
447. Lemare, E. H., in F .. .. 4d.
449. Lemare, E. H., in E flat .. .. 6d.
456. Littleton, A. H., in D (Chant form, with Benedictus) .. .. 3d.
27. Littleton, Alfred H., in E flat 3d.
151. Lutkin, P. C., in C .. .. .. 4d.
8. Macfarren, G. A., in G (Unison) 3d.
17. Macfarren, Walter, in C .. 3d.
228. Macpherson, Charles, in F .. 4d.
164. Macpherson, G. W. (Chant form) 1½d.
153. Macpherson, Stewart, in E flat 4d.
83. *Marchant, Arthur W., in E flat 3d.
362. Martin, G. C., in A .. .. 6d.
39. Miller, C. E., in D.. .. .. 3d.
7. *Monk, E. G., in A (Unison) .. 3d.
262. Monk, M. J., in G .. .. .. 4d.
13. Monk, W. H., in A .. .. .. 3d.
34. Morley, T., in F .. .. .. 3d.
437. Naylor, E. W., in E flat .. .. 3d.
25. Nunn, J. H., in F .. .. .. 3d.
11. Ouseley, Rev. Sir F., in F .. 3d.
119. *Ouseley, Rev. Sir F., in D (Chant Service) .. .. 3d.
231. Pettman, Edgar, No. 1 (Chant).. 1½d.
238. Pettman, Edgar, No. 2 (Chant).. 1½d.

42. Pratten, William Sidney, in E 3d.
33. Reay, S., in F.. .. .. .. 3d.
28. Redhead, R., in D .. .. .. 3d.
104. Roberts, J. V., in F (Chant form) 1½d.
106. Roberts, J. V., in C (Chant form) 1½d.
107. Roberts, J. V., in G (Chant form) 1½d.
105. Roberts, J. V., in D (Chant form) 1½d.
497. Selby, in D (Unison) .. .. 3d.
409. Shaw, J., in G .. .. .. 3d.
32. *Smart, H., in F .. .. .. 3d.
88. *Smith, Boyton, in F (Chant form) 1½d.
188. Smith, Boyton, in E flat (with Benedictus, Sanctus, and Kyrie) .. 3d.
375. Smith, Boyton, in E flat .. .. 4d.
388. Somervell, A., in F .. .. 3d.
19. *Stainer, J., in C .. .. .. 3d.
136. Stainer, J., in G (Congregational) 3d.
413. Stainer, J., in A flat (Chant form) 3d.
237. Stainer, J. (1st Series, Greg. Tones) 2d.
255. Stainer, J. (4th Series, Greg. Tones) 3d.
282. Stainer, J. (3rd Series, Greg. Tones) 3d.
300. Stainer, J. (2nd Series, Greg. Tones) 3d.
273. Steane, Bruce, in F .. .. 3d.
1. Steggall, C., in A .. .. .. 3d.
24. Stephens, C. E., in C .. .. 3d.
21. Stewart, R. P., in G .. .. 3d.
2. *Sullivan, Arthur, in D .. .. 3d.
86. Sumner, H. J. H., in E flat .. 3d.
20. Thorne, E. H., in C .. .. 3d.
474. Thorne, E. H., in G (with Jubilate) 6d.
23. Tilleard, J., in F .. .. .. 3d.
73. Tilleard, J., in G (Festival) .. 3d.
66. Toop, Aug., in D .. .. .. 4d.
144. Tozer, Ferris, in D .. .. 3d.
41. Trimnell, T. Tallis, in D .. 3d.
294. Turle, James (Chant form) .. 1½d.
51. Vincent, C., in D .. .. .. 3d.
109 Walmisley, T. F., in C .. .. 3d.
45. Westbury, G. H., in A .. .. 3d.
43. West, John E., in B flat .. .. 3d.
70. West, John E., in G .. .. 3d.
37. Woodward, Rev. H. H., in E flat 3d.

Benedicite, omnia opera.

501. Bairstow, E. C., in E flat .. 3d.
427. Bennett, George J., in D .. 3d.
61. Bennett, George J., in E flat .. 1½d.
62. Bennett, George J., in G .. 1½d.
101. *Best, W. T. .. .. 3d.
102. Blair, Hugh .. .. 1½d.
425. Champneys, De Lacy, Gibbs, and Stainer .. .. 1½d.
205. Elliott, J. W. .. .. .. 2d.
374. Elliott, J. W., in G .. .. 4d.
499. Elliott, R. B., in G .. .. 1½d.
343. Elliott, M. B., in G .. .. 1½d.
65. Eyre, A. J. (No. 2), in F .. .. 1½d.
371. Eyre, A. J., in E flat (with a Quadruple Chant in D, for Te Deum) 2d.
328. Foster, M. B., in F (Chant form) 4d.
58. Frost, Percy H., in D .. .. 2d.

93. Gadsby, Henry, in G (Chant form) 1½d.
488. Gale, Clement R., in D .. .. 1½d.
55. Gladstone, F. E. (Chant form) .. 3d.
67. Gladstone, F. E., in G (Unison) 1½d.
428. Godfrey, A. E., in C .. .. 3d.
493. Godfrey, A. E. (No. 2), in G .. 3d.
423. H. B. C. .. .. 1½d.
196. Hervey, F. A. J., in A flat .. 1½d.
103. Hughes, W. .. .. 1½d.
422. Iliffe, F., ... 1½d.
429. Lemare, E. H., in B flat .. .. 3d.
426. Lloyd, C. H., in E flat (Chant form) .. .. 2d.
96. Martin, George C., in F .. .. 4d.
98. Martin, George C., in G .. .. 4d.
100. Martin, George C., in E flat .. 4d.
210. Matthews, T. R., in E flat .. 1½d.

421. Miller, C. E. (No. 2) (Chant form) 2d.
225. Pettman, Edgar. No. 1 in C; No. 2 in E flat .. .. .. 2d.
232. Pettman, Edgar, in E flat .. 1½d.
157. Roberts, J. V., in B flat .. .. 4d.
74 Smith, Boyton, in A flat .. .. 1½d.
420. Smith, C. W., in C (arranged for 5 or 4 voices) .. .. 6d.
195. Stainer, J., in D .. .. .. 1½d.
301. Stainer & Blaxland (Chant form) 1½d.
424. Stainer, Winn, and Walker .. 1½d.
500. Stewart, C. Hylton, in C .. 3d.
94. Turle, Hayes, and Bridge, in A 1½d.
199. West, J. E., in C .. .. .. 1½d.
85. Wood, W. G., in D .. .. .. 1½d.
387. Wrigley, G. F. (Quadruple Chant) 1½d.

Benedictus.

288. Adlam, Frank, in E flat (with Te Deum) .. .. 4d.
523. Barnby, J. (Chant, with other Canticles) .. .. 4d.
146. Brown, A. H., in A .. .. 3d.
309. Chipp, E. T., in D .. .. .. 2d.
417. Coleridge-Taylor, S., in F .. 4d.
56. Elliott, J. W., in D .. .. 3d.
159. Field, J. T., in A (Chant, G. Holden) 1½d.
468. Field, J. T., in D (Chant form, with Te Deum, in A) .. .. 4d.
244. Goss, Sir J., in A .. .. .. 2d.
247. Goss, Sir J., in C (Chant) .. .. 2d.
254. Goss, Sir J., in A (Four voices) .. 3d.
317. Goss, Sir J., in D .. .. .. 3d.

442. Herbert, E., in D (Chant form).. 3d.
48. Hutchinson, Thomas, in E flat 3d.
517. Jacobs, W., in A (Chant) .. .. 1½d.
382. Jordan, J. W. (founded on the 8th Tone) .. .. 1½d.
432. Lemare, E. H., in F .. .. 4d.
456. Littleton, A. H., in D (Chant form, with Te Deum) .. .. 3d.
154. Macpherson, Stewart (with Kyrie), in E flat .. .. .. 4d.
84. Marchant, Arthur W., in E flat 3d.
373. Martin, G. C., in A .. .. 4d.
121. Read, F. J., in D .. .. .. 1½d.
122. Roberts, J. V., in F (Chant form) 1½d.
123. Roberts, J. V., in D (Chant form) 1½d.

124. Roberts, J. V., in C (Chant form) 1½d.
125. Roberts, J. V., in G (Chant form) 1½d.
188. Smith, Boyton, in E flat (with Te Deum, Sanctus, and Kyrie) .. 3d.
216. Stainer, J. (1st Series, Greg. Canticles, 3rd Tone) .. .. .. 2d.
219. Stainer, J. (and Series, Greg. Canticles, 6th Tone) .. .. .. 2d.
307. Stainer, J. (3rd Series, Greg. Canticles) .. .. 2d.
337. Stainer, J. (4th Series, Greg. Tones) 2d.
297. Steane, Bruce, in F .. .. 3d.
322. Turle, J., in D (Chant) .. .. 2d.
528. West, John E., in E .. .. 4d.
468. Westbury, G. H., in A .. .. 3d.

(For continuation see other list.)

Copyright, 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

Jubilate Deo.

441. Arnold, G. B., in C .. .. .. 1½d.
523. Barnby, J. (Chant, with other Canticles) .. .. 4d.
347. Brewer, A. H., in B flat .. .. 1½d.
310. Chipp, E. T., in E flat .. .. 2d.
313. Chipp, E. T., in C .. .. .. 2d.
418. Coleridge-Taylor, S., in F .. 3d.
50. Elliott, J. W., in D .. .. .. 3d.
472. Ford, E., in F (with Te Deum) .. 6d.
393. Foster, M. B., in C .. .. 3d.
208. Gale, C. R., in F .. .. .. 3d.
245. Goss, Sir J., in A (Unison) .. 2d.
275. Goss, Sir J., in A .. .. .. 2d.
75. Hamilton-Gell, Rev. A. W., in E flat .. .. 1½d.
148. Hamilton-Gell, Rev. A.W., in G (Chant form) .. .. .. 1½d.
509. Macfarren, W., in C (with Kyrie and Sanctus) .. .. .. 2d.
229. Macpherson, C., in F .. .. 3d.
444. Matthews, T. R., in C .. .. 3d.
410. Shaw, J., in G .. .. .. 1½d.
389. Somervell, A., in F .. .. 3d.
303. Steane, Bruce, in F .. .. 3d.
69. Sullivan, Arthur, in D (with Kyrie) .. .. 3d.
474. Thorne, E. H., in G (with Te Deum) 6d.
460. Tilleard, J., in F (with Kyrie) .. 3d.
295. Turle, James (Chant form, with Kyrie) .. .. 1½d.
120. Walmisley, T. F., in C .. .. 3d.

The Office of the Holy Communion.

479. Adams, T., in D .. .. 6d.
235. Bliss, W. H. The Communicants' Choral Card (on Card) 1½d.
234. Bryans, F. R. A Simple Choral Communion Card .. 3d.
356. Elliott, J. W., in F .. .. 6d.
263. Hayne, Leighton George, in G .. .. 6d.
352. Joule, B. St. J. B., in C .. .. 2d.
369. Merbecke (from the Cathedral Prayer Book, Stainer) .. 6d.
221. Ouseley, Rev. Sir F. .. .. 4d.
483. Selby, B. L., in E flat (for Treble voices) .. .. .. 4d.
484. Selby, B. L., in E flat (for Four voices) .. .. .. 6d.
438. Shaw, J., in G .. .. 6d.
390. Somervell, A., in F .. .. 4d.
355. Steane, Bruce, in F .. .. 6d.
266. Trimnell, T. T., in C (Festival) .. .. 4d.

Kyrie eleison.

495. Button, H. E. Four Kyries .. 1½d.
130. Calkin, G. Six Kyries .. .. 1½d.
341. Clippingdale, J. Six Kyries .. 1½d.
430. Godfrey, A. E. Three Kyries .. 1½d.
414. Iliffe, F. Six Kyries .. .. 2d.
214. King, O. Five Kyries .. .. 3d.
153. Lemare, E. H. Six Kyries .. 3d.
454. Lemare, E. H. Five Kyries .. 3d.
401. Macpherson, C., in E flat.. .. 1d.
154. Macpherson, S., in E flat (with Benedictus) .. .. 4d.
505. Macpherson, S., in B flat (with Creed) .. .. 4d.
509. Macfarren, W. (with Jubilate and Sanctus) .. .. 2d.
188. Smith, Boyton, in E flat (with Te Deum, Benedictus, and Sanctus) .. 3d.
482. Stainer, J. Four Kyries .. .. 2d.
69. Sullivan, A., in D (with Jubilate) 3d.
460. Tilleard, J., in F (with Jubilate) 3d.
137. Trimnell, T. T., in F (with Creed) 3d.
295. Turle, J. (with Jubilate) .. .. 1½d.
400. West, John E., in E flat .. .. 1d.

Apostles' Creed.

197. Bridge, J. F., on G (with Lord's Prayer) .. .. 1½d.
527. Bridge, J. F., on F (with Lord's Prayer) .. .. 1½d.
320. Cornell, J. H. .. .. .. 1½d.
348. Cruse, E. .. .. 1½d.
111. Elliott, J. W. .. .. .. 1½d.
321. Monk, E. G., in G .. .. .. 2d.
167. Roberts, J. V. (with Lord's Prayer) 1½d.
76. Staton, W., in F .. .. .. 1½d.

Nicene Creed.

95. Barnby, J. (Merbecke) .. .. 1½d.
198 Bridge, J. F. .. .. .. 1½d.
349 Crowe, R. W. .. .. 3d.
204. Elliott, J. W., in D .. .. 3d.
402. Foster, Myles B., in C .. .. 4d.
350. Gladstone, F. E. .. .. .. 3d.
291. Goss, Sir J. .. .. 3d.
505. Macpherson, S. (with Kyrie) .. 4d.
268. Merbecke, in F (Arr. by J. Stainer) 1d.
168. Roberts, J. V. .. .. .. 1½d.
251. Stainer, J., in G (Easy form) .. 2d.
268. Stainer, J. (Merbecke) .. .. 1d.
203. Tours, B. (from Service in F) .. 3d.
137. Trimnell, T. T., in F .. .. 3d.
156. Wesley, S. S., in E .. .. .. 4d.

Athanasian Creed.

174. Best, W. T., in F .. .. .. 3d.
155. Birch, E. H., in G .. .. 3d.
351. Stainer, J. (Plainsong. Unison) 3d.

Offertory Sentences.

333. Field, J. T. (Nos. 1 to 5) .. .. 3d.
334. Field, J. T. (Nos. 6 to 9) .. .. 3d.
335. Field, J. T. (Nos. 10 to 15) .. 3d.
336. Field, J. T. (Nos. 16 to 20) .. 3d.
270. Jordan, C. Warwick (with Processional Hymn) .. .. .. 3d.
149. Knight, H. .. .. 6d.
287. Martin, George C. .. .. 6d.
330. Stainer, J. .. .. 3d.
223. Tozer, Ferris .. .. 4d.

Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei.

114. Calkin, J. B., in C .. .. .. 3d.
316. Calkin, J. B., in D .. .. .. 3d.
117. Elvey, Sir G., in E .. .. .. 3d.
404. Foster, Myles B., in C .. .. 3d.
115. Garrett, G., in A .. .. .. 3d.
331. Garrett, G. (from Service in E).. 3d.
332. Garrett, G. (from Service in E flat) .. .. 3d.
452. Haynes, B., in E flat .. .. 3d.
112. Martin, G. C. (from Service in C) 3d.
314. Meacham, C. J. B., in F .. .. 1½d.
142. Page, Arthur (from Service in F) 3d.
116. Stainer, J., in F .. .. .. 3d.
462. Stainer, J., No. 1 (from Service in E flat) .. .. 3d.
463. Stainer, J., No. 2 (from Service in E flat) .. .. 2d.
464. Stainer, J., No. 1 (from Service in A) 3d.
465. Stainer, J., No. 2 (from Service in A) 2d.
118. Tours, B. (from Service in C) .. 3d.

Sanctus.

403. Foster, Myles B., in C .. .. 1d.
509. Macfarren, W. (with Jubilate and Kyrie) .. .. .. 2d.
188. Smith, Boyton (with Te Deum, &c.) .. .. 3d.

Gloria in Excelsis.

405. Foster, Myles B., in C .. .. 3d.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis.

476. Adams, T. (arr. to Greg. Tones) .. 1½d.
477. Adams, T. (arr. to Greg. Tones) .. 1½d.
478. Adams, T. (arr. to Greg. Tones) .. 1½d.
185. Adams, T., in C .. .. .. 3d.
384. Adams, T. (arr. to Greg. Tones, 3rd) 1½d.
385. Adams, T., ditto .. .. .. 1½d.
381. Adams, T., ditto .. .. .. 1½d.
289. Adlam, Frank, in G .. .. 3d.
140. Aitken, G. B. J., in E flat .. .. 4d.
64. Alsop, J. R., in E .. .. .. 4d.
166. Armstrong, W. D. (Nunc dim. only) 1½d.
272. Attwood, Thomas, in C .. .. 4d.
52. Barnby, J., in C (Unison) .. .. 3d.
139. Barnby, J., in E (Chant form) .. 3d.
533. Barnby, J. (Chant, with other Canticles) .. .. 4d.
176. Barnby, J., in E flat .. .. 8d.
293. Barnby, J., in D (Four voices) .. 4d.
89. Batson, A. Wellesley, in D .. 4d.
194. Bell, W. H., in G .. .. .. 4d.
190. Bennett, George J. (Greg. Tones) 3d.
78. Bennett, George J., in D .. 3d.
217. Bennett, George J., in G major 6d.
129. Brewer, A. Herbert, in A .. 3d.
283. Brewer, A. Herbert, in F .. 3d.
169. Brewer, A. Herbert, in B flat .. 4d.
141. Brown, A. H., in A .. .. .. 3d.
496. Brown, A. H., in E .. .. 1½d.
277. Calkin, J. Baptiste, in F .. .. 6d.
150. Clarke, Hamilton, in F .. .. 4d.
212. Clarke, Hamilton, in C .. .. 4d.
446. Clarke, Hamilton, in B flat .. 4d.
419. Coleridge-Taylor, S., in F .. 4d.
138. Cruickshank, W. A. C., in B flat (Irreg. Chants) .. .. .. 3d.
161. Cruickshank, W. A. C., in G .. 4d.
502. Davies, H. W., in C .. .. 4d.
377. Driffield, E. T., in B flat .. 4d.
132. Edwards, Chas., in G .. .. 3d.
59. Elliott, J. W., in D .. .. 4d.
258. Elvey, Sir G., in E .. .. 6d.
209. Faning, Eaton, in C .. .. 6d.
160. Field, J. T., in C and A .. .. 3d. (Chants by J. Turle and Sir G. Elvey)
253. Field, J. T., in D (Chant) .. 3d.
473. Ford, E., in F .. .. .. 6d.
206. Foster, M. B., in A .. .. 6d.
395. Foster, Myles B., in C .. .. 4d.
338. Fricker, A., in G .. .. .. 4d.
177. Gadsby, H., in D major .. .. 4d.
450. Gadsby, H., in D (Unison) .. 4d.
189. Gale, C. R., in D .. .. 6d.
353. Gale, C. R., in F .. .. .. 3d.
401. Garrett, G. M., in B flat.. .. 6d.

(For continuation see other list.)

Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei

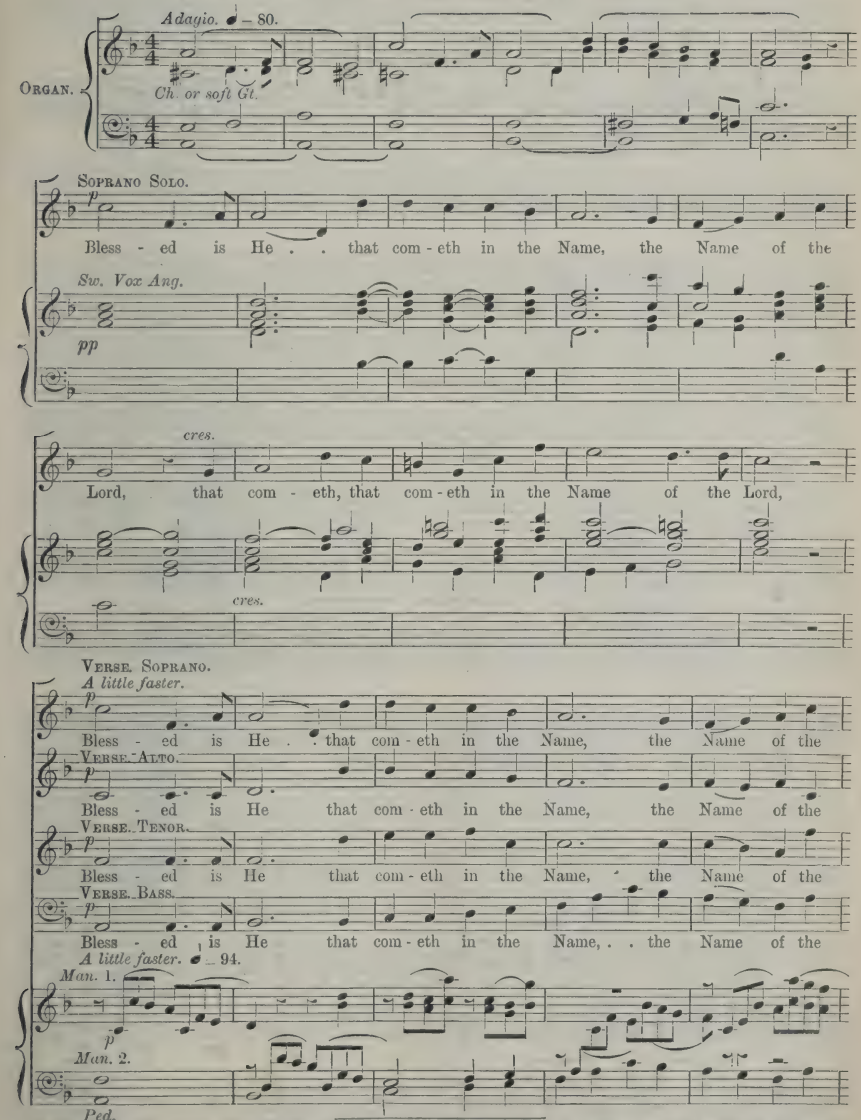
(No. 1)

FROM THE SERVICE (No. 2) IN A AND D

SET TO MUSIC BY

JOHN STAINER.

Benedictus qui venit. (No. 1.)*



Adagio. ♩ = 80.
Organ.
Ch. or soft Gt.
Soprano Solo.
p
Bless - ed is He . . that com - eth in the Name, the Name of the Sw. Vox Ang.
pp
cres.
Lord, that com - eth, that com - eth in the Name of the Lord,
cres.
Verse. Soprano.
A little faster.
p
Bless - ed is He . . that com - eth in the Name, the Name of the Verse. Alto.
p
Bless - ed is He that com - eth in the Name, the Name of the Verse. Tenor.
p
Bless - ed is He that com - eth in the Name, the Name of the Verse. Bass.
p
Bless - ed is He that com - eth in the Name, . . the Name of the
A little faster. ♩ = 94.
Man. 1.
p
Man. 2.
Ped.

* For Festival use. For a short and easy Setting see Benedictus qui venit, No. 2 (Novello's Parish Choir Book, No. 465).

Copyright, 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

cres.
Lord, that com - eth, that com - eth in the Name of the Lord,
Lord, that com - eth, that com - eth in the Name of the Lord,
Lord, that com - eth, that com - eth in the Name of the Lord,
Lord, that com - eth, that com - eth in the Name of the Lord,
cres.
Full.
mf
Bless - - ed is He . . . that com - eth in the Bless - - ed is He . . . that com - eth in the Full.
p
cres.
Ho-san - na, Ho-san - na, Ho-san - na,
Full.
p
cres.
Ho- san- na, Ho-san - na, Ho-san - na, Ho-san - na, Ho - san - na,
Gt. mf
cres.
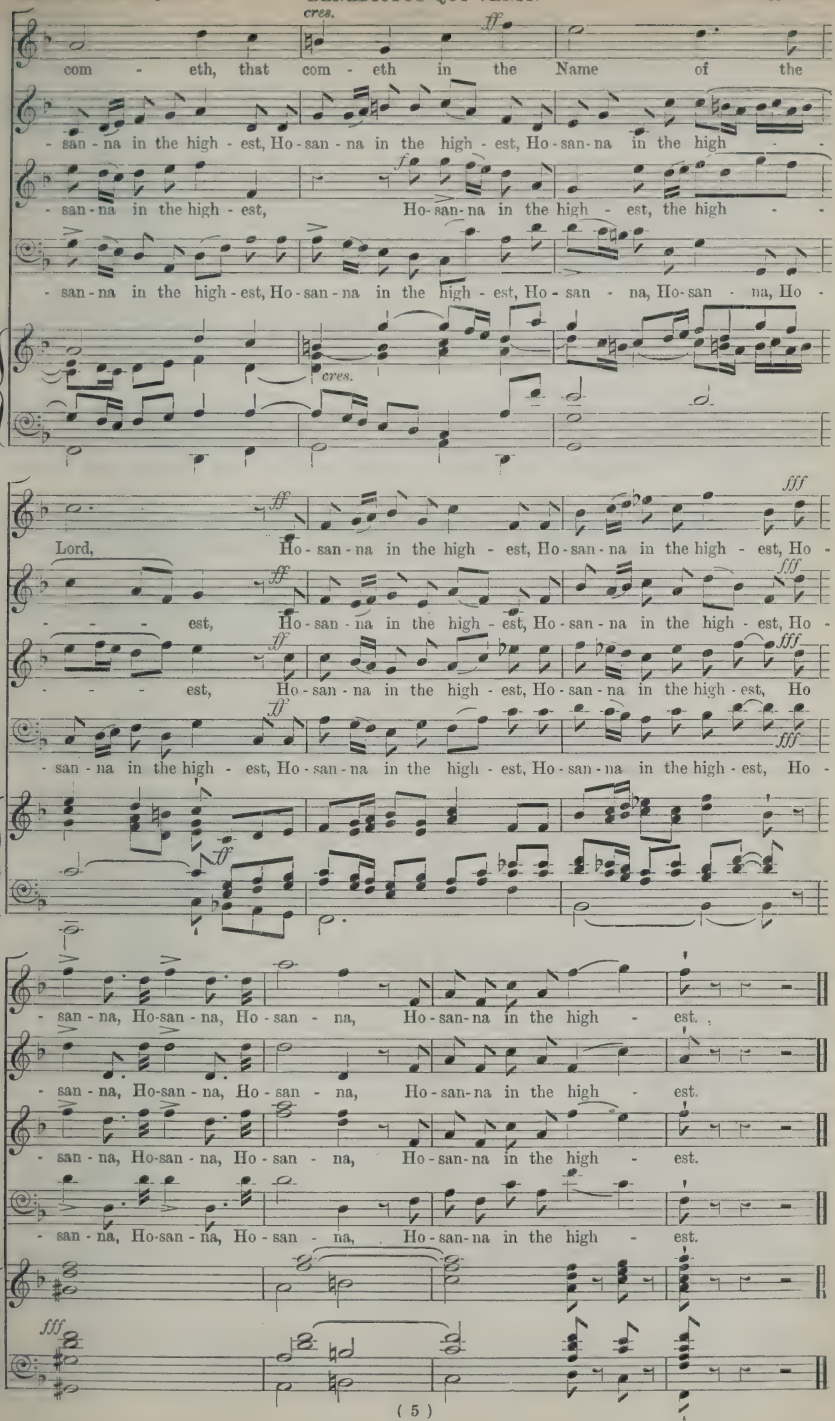
Name, the Name . . of the Lord, that Name, the Name . . of the Lord, . . . Ho
f
Ho-san - na, Ho-san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho -
f
f marcato.
Ho-san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho san - na in the high - est, Ho -
cres.
f



cres.
ff
com - eth, that com - eth in the Name of the
- san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - -
- san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, the high - -
- san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - cres.
fff
Lord, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho -
- - - - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho -
- - - - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho
- san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho - san - na in the high - est, Ho -
- san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est.
- san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est.
- san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est.
- san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na, Ho - san - na in the high - est.
fff

Agnus Dei. (No. 1.) *

J. Stainer.

Soprano.
Moderato.
cres.
O Lamb of God, that tak-est a-way the sins of the world.
Alto.
O Lamb of God, that tak-est a-way the sins of the world.
Tenor
pp
O Lamb of God, that tak-est a-way the sins of the world, have
Bass.
O Lamb of God, that tak-est a-way the sins of the world, have Organ.
Moderato. ♩ = 72.
p Sw.
senza Ped.
Ped.
mer-cy, have mer-cy up-on us.
O Lamb of God, that tak-est amer-cy, have mer-cy up-on us.
O Lamb of God, that tak-est a-

* For another Setting see Agnus Dei, No. 2 (Novello's Parish Choir Book, No. 465).

Copyright, 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

cres.
- way the sins of the world.
cres.
- way the sins of the world.
cres. pp
- way the sins of the world, have mer - cy, have mer - cy up - on us.
cres. pp
- way the sins of the world, have mer - cy, have mer - cy up - on us.
cres. pp
Ped.
p cres. mf
O Lamb of God, that tak - est a - way the sins of the p cres. mf
O Lamb of God, that tak - est a - way . . the sins of the p cres. mf
O Lamb of God, . . that tak - est a - way the sins of the p cres. mf
O Lamb of God, that tak - est a - way the sins of the p cres. mf
Ped.
rall. p pp Slow.
world, grant us Thy peace, grant us Thy peace. . . .
rall. p pp
world, grant us Thy peace, grant us Thy peace. . .
rall. p pp
world, grant us Thy peace, grant us Thy peace. . . .
rall. p pp
world, grant us Thy peace, grant us Thy peace. . . .
Slow.
rall. dim. p dim. pp

NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK—(continued).

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis—(continued).

459. Gladstone, F. E., in G .. .. 6d.
320. Godfrey, A. E., in G .. .. 4d.
92. Goodhart, A. M., in B flat .. 4d.
290. Goss, Sir J., in E .. .. .. 4d.
327. Goss, Sir J., in A. (Four voices) .. 4d.
342. Goss, Sir J., in A (Unison) .. 3d.
71. Hall, King, in E flat .. .. 3d.
178. Hall, E. V., in D .. .. .. 6d.
183. Hall, King, in E flat .. .. 6d.
265. Hall, Rev. E. V., in B flat .. 4d.
59. Hamilton-Gell, Rev. A. W., in E flat .. .. 4d.
162. Hanforth, T. W., in G .. .. 4d.
180. Haynes, Battison, in E flat .. 4d.
406. Haynes, Battison, in G .. .. 4d.
451. Haynes, Battison, (Greg. Tones) 3d.
398. Higgs, H. M., in A .. .. .. 4d.
173. Hopkins, E. J. (partly in Chant form), in F .. .. 3d.
383. Hopkins, E. J., in D .. .. 6d.
179. Hughes, Percy E., in D .. .. 4d.
91. Iliffe, F., in G .. .. 4d.
215. Jordan, Warwick (6th Greg. Tone) 3d.
72. Kimmins, George J., in E flat .. 3d.
127. King, Oliver, in C .. .. .. 4d.
453. Lemare, E. H., in F .. .. 4d.
434. Lemare, E. H., in A .. .. 6d.
490. Lemare, E. H., in F .. .. 3d.
489. Lemare, E. H., in E .. .. 6d.
525. Lemare, E. H., in B flat .. .. 6d.
518. Le Patourel, H., and J. Turle (Chants) .. .. 3d.
259. Littleton, A. H., in D .. .. 3d.
68. Lloyd, C. H., in F .. .. .. 3d.
143. Lloyd, C. H., in D .. .. .. 4d.
236. Macfarren, W., in C (Unison) .. 3d.
510. Macfarren, W., in C (Chant) .. 2d.
518. Macpherson, Charles, in D .. 4d.
81. Macpherson, Charles, in F .. 4d.
82. Macpherson, Stewart, in E flat 4d.
186. Macpherson, Stewart, in D .. 3d.
524. Mann, A. H., in A flat .. .. 6d.
54. *Marchant, Arthur W., in E flat 3d.
515. Marks, J. C., Jun., in C .. .. 4d.
128. Marks, J. C., Jun., in D .. .. 4d.
99. Martin, George C., in D .. .. 3d.
165. Martin, George C. (Chant form) 3d.
184. Martin, George C., in A .. .. 6d.
241. Martin, George C., in G (Festal) 6d.
250. Martin, G. C., in B flat (Festal) .. 6d.
190. Martin, G. F. Wesley, in E .. 4d.
445. Matthews, T. R., in D .. .. 3d.
415. Moir, F. L., in D .. .. .. 4d.
187. Moir, F. L., in G .. .. .. 4d.
47. Newton, E., in F .. .. .. 3d.
46. Nunn, E. C., in F .. .. .. 3d.
133. Parker, Horatio W., in E flat .. 4d.
224. Pettman, Edgar, in E flat .. 3d.
412. Prendergast, A. H. D., in C .. 3d.
278. Prout, Ebenezer, in D .. .. 6d.
487. Purcell, D., in E minor (Ed. by J. S.) 4d.
181. Roberts, J. V., in C .. .. 4d.
222. Robinson, J., in D .. .. .. 4d.
397. Russell, W., in A .. .. .. 4d.
470. Selby, B. L., in C .. .. .. 4d.
J. Shaw, in C .. .. .. 6d.
190. Smart, Henry, in B flat .. .. 6d.
396. Smart, H., in G .. .. .. 6d.
Smith, Chas. W., in F .. .. 1½d.
363. Smith, B., in D .. .. .. 4d.
367. Smith, B., in E flat (Chant form) .. 3d.
394. Somervell, A. (with Amen), in F .. 4d.
436. Somervell, A., in G .. .. 4d.
134. Spark, William (in Unison) .. 3d.
152. *Stainer, J., Chant form (No. 2, Sion College) .. .. .. 3d.
171. Stainer, J., in E .. .. .. 6d.
201. Stainer, J. (4th Series, Greg. Tones) 2d.
239. Stainer, J., in F (Irregular Chants) 4d.
260. Stainer, J. (Parisian Tones) .. 3d.
271. Stainer, J. (2nd Series, Greg. Tones) 2d.
279. Stainer, J. (3rd Series, Greg. Tones) 2d.
455. Stainer, J. (St. Saviour's Tone) Magnificat only .. .. .. 2d.
372. Statham, F. R., in E flat (Unison) 3d.
182. *Steane, Bruce, in F (with Vesper Hymn) .. .. 3d.
213. Stephenson, T. W., in F .. .. 4d.
175. Stevens, A. H., in G .. .. 4d.
53. Sydenham, E. A., in F .. .. 4d.
475. Thorne, E. H., in G .. .. 6d.
344. Tinney, C. E., in D .. .. .. 6d.
135. Tours, Berthold G., in D .. 4d.
276. Tours, Berthold, in B flat (4 vv.) 6d.
285. Tours, Berthold, in D (4 vv.) .. 6d.
399. Tozer, Ferris, in D .. .. 3d.
87. Trimnell, T. Tallis, in F .. 3d.
97. Trimnell, T. Tallis, in D .. 3d.
170. Trimnell, T. Tallis, in E flat .. 3d.
319. Trimnell, T. Tallis, in C .. 3d.
481. Trimnell, T. Tallis, in C .. 6d.
296. Turle, James (Chant form) .. 2d.
126. Turpin, E. H., in F .. .. .. 4d.
108. Walmisley, T. F., in C .. .. 3d.
113. West, J. E., in A .. .. .. 4d.
471. West, J. E., in F .. .. .. 3d.
480. West, J. E., in E flat .. .. 3d.
506. Westbury, G. H., in A .. .. 4d.
57. White, John, in E .. .. .. 4d.
77. Williams, C. Lee (Chant form) .. 3d.
407. Williams, C. Lee, in C .. .. 6d.
80. Wood, Charles, in E flat .. .. 4d.
391. Wood, Charles, in D .. .. 4d.
486. Wood, Charles, in C minor .. 4d.
345. Wrigley, G. F., in F .. .. 3d.

Cantate Domino and Deus Misereatur.

523. Barnby, J. (Chant, with other Canticles) .. .. 4d.
172. Bayley, Wm., in F .. .. .. 6d.
315. Elvey, Sir George, in D .. .. 6d.
304. Goss, Sir J., in C .. .. .. 6d.
359. Mammatt, E., in B flat .. .. 6d.
191. Steggall, Charles, in C .. .. 6d.
233. Tozer, F., in F .. .. .. 4d.
243. Trimnell, T. Tallis, in E .. 4d.

Hymns.

286. Ashton, A. T. Lee. Vesper Hymn .. .. 1d.
513. Barnby, J. Praise the Lord (Hymn after Victory) .. 1d.
469. Barnby, J. O Lord of Heaven, and earth, and sea .. 1d.
200. *Barnby, J. The Sower went forth sowing .. .. .. 1½d.
218. *Barnby, J. Crossing the bar .. .. 1½d.
361. Barnby, J. O Perfect Love .. .. .. 1½d.
365. Barnby, J. Let all our brethren join in one .. .. 1d.
520. Battenberg, H.R.H. Princess Henry of. Hear, Holy Father .. .. 1d.
329. Beethoven. Vesper Hymn. (Two versions) .. .. 1d.
491. Bennett, G. J. O Perfect Love .. .. .. 1½d.
448. Bennett, J. L. Lift high the Cross .. .. .. 3d.
211. Best, W. T. Jesus Christ is risen to-day .. .. 3d.
298. Best, W. T. Abide with me! fast falls the eventide .. 1½d.
299. Best, W. T. Dies iræ, dies illa! ("Day of wrath! O day of mourning") .. .. 1½d.
370. Brewer, A. H. Hymn Tune, "Esther" .. .. 1d.
440. Brewer, A. H. Hymn Tune, "Cathedral" .. .. 1d.
202. Brown, A. H. All glory, laud, and honour .. .. 1½d.
280. Brown, A. H. Ride on! Ride on in Majesty .. .. 1½d.
530. Brown, A. H. The King's Messengers (Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100) .. .. 1d.
252. Clay, F. I love to hear the story (for Children) .. .. 3d.
325. Crament, J. M. Swiftly the moments of my life are flying 2d.
281. Euan-Smith, Lady. Two Flower Service Hymns .. 2d.
498. Garrett, G. M. My God, and is Thy table spread .. 1d.
193. Goodhart, A. M. Lord of all being! throned afar .. 1½d.
379. Gounod, C. Hymn Tune ("Gounod") .. .. 1d.
507. Hiles, H. The shadows of the evening hours (St. Leonard's) 1d.
386. Hunt, H. G. Bonavia. Dies iræ (Day of mourning) .. 3d.
270. Jordan, C. Warwick. Processional Hymn (with Offertory Sentence) .. .. 3d.
467. Lloyd, C. H. Lie still, beloved, lie still .. .. 1d.
503. Lloyd, C. H. Lord, we uplift our voice .. .. .. 1d.
323. Mann, A. H. Twelve Popular Hymns with Tunes, Part 1 3d.
324. Mann, A. H. Twelve Popular Hymns with Tunes. Part 2 3d.
339. Martin, G. C. How shall we teach our children .. .. 1½d.
360. Martin, G. C. The Parish Hymn (Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100) 1½d.
526. Martin, G. C. Thanks be to God .. .. .. 1d.
529. Parratt, W. Lord of Hosts, Who hast endued us .. 1d.
226. Pettman, Edgar. Four Evening Hymn Tunes .. .. 2d.
227. Pettman, Edgar. The strain upraise of joy and praise .. 3d.
366. Purday, C. H. Lead, kindly Light .. .. 1d.
522. Roberts, J. V. We love God's acre (Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100) .. .. 1d.
519. Smith, S. Forward be our watchword .. .. .. 1d.
521. Smith, S. Summer suns are glowing .. .. .. 1d.
494. Stainer, J. The Story of the Advent of Jesus .. 2d.
512. Stainer, J. God the All-terrible .. .. .. 1d.
261. Steane, Bruce. Vesper Hymn. (To be sung after the Blessing) .. .. 1d.
368. Stocks, W. H. Paraphrase of the "Anima Christi" .. 1½d.
354. *Sullivan, Arthur. Onward, Christian soldiers .. .. 1d.
357. *Sullivan, Arthur. Ditto. (Welsh words) 1d.
358. Sullivan, Arthur. Hymn Tune, "Bishopgarth" .. .. 1d.
533. Sullivan, Arthur. We are but strangers here (Words only, 2s. 6d. per 100) .. .. 1d.
257. Tilleard, J. Through the day Thy love has spared us .. 2d.
511. Tilleard, J. Church Bells .. .. 2d.
531. Tilleard, J. Lo! He comes with clouds descending .. 2d.
192. Turle, J. Father of life .. .. 3d.
264. Vingoe, A. L. Vesper Hymn. (To be sung after the Blessing) .. .. 1d.
508. West, John E. Children's Missionary Hymn (Words only, 3s. per 100) .. .. 1d.

Lord's Prayer.

197. Bridge, J. F. (with Apostles' Creed) .. .. .. 1½d.
364. Field, J. T., in A .. .. 2d.
240. Haynes, Battison, in G (Unison) .. .. .. 2d.
435. Lemare, E. H., in G flat (No. 2) (with Final Amen) .. 3d.
167. Roberts, J. V. (with Apostles' Creed) .. .. .. 1½d.
220. Stainer, J. (from Office of the Holy Communion) .. .. 1½d.

Miscellaneous.

431. Concluding Amen. A. E. Godfrey .. .. 1d.
457. Concluding Amen. J. W. Elliott .. .. .. 1d.
485. Concluding Amen (Four-fold). A. Somervell .. .. 1d.
376. Grace. "For these and all" (from the Laudi Spirituali) .. 1d.
242. Choral Graces. Rev. J. B. Dykes .. .. .. 1½d.
502. Faith, Duty, and Prayer. Myles B. Foster .. .. 2d.
269. Four Easter Carols. J. T. Field .. .. 2d.
305. Make melody within your hearts (Harvest Carol) Rev. F. A. J. Hervey 2d.
514. Now thank we all our God (Nun danket) .. .. .. 1d.
339. How shall we teach our children ("Queen Victoria's Nurses"). G. C. Martin .. .. 1½d.
256. Music for Marriage Service. J. Baden Powell .. .. 2d.
306. Sowing and Reaping (Harvest Carol). J. M. Crament .. 2d.
292. The Church Catechism. Myles B. Foster .. .. 3d.
458. Thirty Cathedral Chants. G. J. Elvey .. .. 3d.
284. Two Concluding Amens. Ch. Gounod .. .. .. 1d.
492. Three-fold Amen. J. E. West .. .. 1d.

* *Numbers marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

revival of the study of the older music has doubtless contributed not a little to this altogether gratifying fact, by which, as a matter of course, the rendering of Wagnerian works has likewise been greatly benefited. Moreover, operatic conductors have accustomed themselves to a proper treatment of the Wagnerian orchestra, by which the voices are no longer overpowered, and the former frequently heard objection, of the Bayreuth master's works being overcharged with noisy instrumentation, can no longer be reasonably upheld by any cultured musician or amateur. Thus, Time has rendered justice once more to the creations of genius.

The foregoing reflections have naturally occurred to one's mind while recalling the considerable number of really good singers which, within a short space of time, we have recently had the opportunity of hearing in Vienna. At the Opera House, it was Herr Slezak, an excellent tenor from the Breslau Theatre, who particularly delighted us in his interpretation of the part of Walther Stolzing, in 'Die Meistersinger.' His voice is not a powerful one, but it is of exquisite timbre, while his vocalisation is extremely agreeable and his action thoughtful and properly restrained. In the concert-room, two very differently gifted artists competed for public favour at about the same time—viz., Marcella Pregi, the possessor of a small voice, which she manages with consummate vocal art, aided by great artistic intelligence and an amazing musical talent; and Camilla Landi, whose superb, powerful voice and excellent style produce a dazzling effect upon the senses, but are deficient in warmth. Hence, the two singers appeal each to a different class of audience. Many are the admirers also of Frau Lula Gmeiner, whose magnificent contralto is heard to the best advantage in Brahms's Lieder. Anton Sistermans and Raimund von Zur Mühlen, both excellent concert singers, have attracted less attention upon their recent visit than on former occasions, although they have, each in his way, advanced in their art, Sistermans' interpretations having become more individualised and mature, while Zur Mühlen's voice has gained in quality of tone. Two most charming vocalists also are Dr. Felix Kraus and his wife, Frau Adrienne Kraus-Osborne, the former excelling in warmth of feeling, the latter in her adaptability to various interpretative moods. As an exponent of the florid type—a rare and almost lost art nowadays—Fräulein Erica Wedekind, of Dresden, holds a very high position, and her interpretation recently, amongst other pieces, of a concert air by Mozart caused one to regret that she was not able to appear also at the Opera.

Two orchestral novelties were introduced to us by the Concert-Verein—a 'Pathetic' Overture, by Hans Fink, the organist of the convent of Heiligenkreuz, and another overture, entitled 'Mary Stuart,' by Joseph Forster, the composer of an opera, 'Die Rose von Pontevedra,' which obtained a prize in a competition some years since, and of a ballet, 'Der Spielmann.' Fink's composition exhibits many musicianlike qualities, particularly in detail work; but his undoubted talent does not appear to be, as yet, fully matured. Forster's overture is the work of a gifted and experienced musician, cleverly and effectively worked out, without being particularly striking in contents. Both pieces were very favourably received. Some important choral works also were given a first hearing by the same excellent Society, the composers in each case being of Czech nationality. The first, in the order of performance, was a 'De Profundis,' by Jos. Nesvera, the esteemed Capellmeister of the Cathedral of Olmütz. The work is distinguished by a highly effective treatment of the voices and orchestra, and although not particularly remarkable in its contents, it has the additional merit of being true church music of a serious and elevated order.

The other new work produced was Dvorák's 'Requiem,' a work which, at the outset, was received with a certain amount of reserve by the audience. This feeling, however, completely wore away during performance, and, as a matter of fact, something of a sensation was created by the manifold beauties of the composition. It seemed inexplicable that, in the prevailing scarcity of really great new choral compositions, such an important work should not have been, as yet, more generally produced. It was listened to with the most eager attention and ever increasing appreciation, and the desire for an early repetition of the performance was very widely expressed. In his interpretation of the text and treatment of the orchestra the composer appears to us to have exhibited here his most original powers, while the vocal writing, both for the choral and solo voices, is scarcely less remarkable. The excellent interpretation of the noble work, under the direction of Herr Loewe, it is true, contributed not a little to its complete success. Nor should the highly efficient soloists be forgotten, who formed so excellent a quartet—viz., Frau Marie Seyff, Fräulein Helene Bratanitsch, Herr Erik Schmedes, and Herr Richard Mayr. Much regret was expressed at the absence of the composer, to whom a profoundly moved audience would gladly have rendered personal homage.

To the laudable zeal of Herr Mahler we owe the very interesting recent performance of the Overture to Schiller's 'Turandot,' by C. M. von Weber, a highly original little piece, constructed on the Chinese scale, and which is to be numbered amongst the greatest rareties in the concert-room. The same programme also included another somewhat rarely heard number—i.e., Dvorák's Serenade for wind instruments, a truly naïve composition, suggestive of serene happiness, and free from all sophistry and artificiality. Most carefully rehearsed as it had been by the conductor, the unpretentious piece scored a great success.

Mandyczewski.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(From our own Correspondent.)

A concert was given on the 15th ult. by competitors and others interested in the Feis Ceoil, and the proceeds were to be applied to the reduction of the deficit on last year's Festival, which was held in Belfast. There was an excellent attendance. The programme was of a varied kind and the standard of excellence equally varied.

The most admired items were the unaccompanied singing of the Belfast Select Choir (Dr. Price, conductor), of Ambroise Thomas's descriptive part-song 'The Tyrol,' and part-songs by the Northern Male Quartet, composed of local amateurs. Their singing would really compare favourably with that of the Meister Glee Singers, and it is difficult to imagine a higher standard.

Coleridge-Taylor's complete cantata, 'Scenes from Hiawatha,' was performed by the Philharmonic Society on the 22nd ult., too late for notice in this issue.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Postponed concerts have been taken up since the resumption of the ordinary musical life of the city. One of these was that of the Chamber Concert Society, given in the Masonic Hall, on February 27. The novelty was the Clarinet Quartet of Walter Rabl, performed by Dr. Rowland Winn, Mr. Manuel Gomez, Mr. Max Mossel, and Mr. J. C. Hock. The work was well rendered and cordially received. Miss Agnes Witting was an acceptable vocalist. On the 11th ult. Mr. William Henley gave a violin recital in the Town Hall. With Mr. Arthur Cooke at the pianoforte, a very fine rendering was given of Beethoven's 'Kreutzer' Sonata, and Mr. Henley displayed extraordinary powers in Tschaïkowsky's Concerto in D (Op. 35). Mr. Cooke played Schubert's great Fantasia in C ('The Wanderer'), and Madame Leslie Arnott contributed vocal pieces. Mr. Max Mossel's last drawing-room concert took place in the Grosvenor Rooms, on the 14th ult. Madame Clotilde Kleeberg, with the concert-giver, played Edward Behm's Sonata in A (Op. 15) for pianoforte and violin, and Mr. J. C. Hock joined them in the Trio in F (Op. 18) by Saint-Saëns. Mr. Louis Frölich contributed songs.

Mr. Halford's Orchestral concerts have been full of interest. On the 5th ult. he introduced, for the first time in England, Arensky's Overture to 'Nala and Damayanti,' a fairy-tale in music, scored with enchanting fancy, employing both pianoforte and harp, besides the usual orchestra. Miss Fanny Davies gave a most beautiful rendering of the Concerto in D minor by Brahms, and Mr. Louis Frölich was the vocalist. On the 19th ult. the novelty was Christian Sinding's Violin Concerto in A (Op. 45), another first performance in England, with Mr. Max Mossel as soloist. This work is practically in one movement, is well-written for the soloist, and scored with freedom, especially in the use of the horns. The programmes were completed with familiar works.

In regard to choral concerts: On February 28 the City Choral Society brought its season to a close with a first performance here of Samuel Rosseau's 'Messe Solennelle de Pâques.' This is a work on a large scale, and it was first produced at the Church of St. Clotilde, Paris, in 1890, where the composer was then organist. Mr. F. W. Beard, conductor of the Society, deserves praise for bringing forward this composition. With Mesdames Emily Squire and Alice Lakin, Mr. Hedmondt and Mr. Wilfred Cunliffe as principals, a good performance was secured. The second part of the programme was devoted to a selection from Gounod's 'Faust.' The concert opened with the March from 'Götterdämmerung,' in memory of the late Queen, and Gounod's 'Hymne à Sainte Cécile' was given as an offertorium.

The Festival Choral Society's concluding concert took place in the Town Hall on the 21st ult. The programme began with Harford Lloyd's Organ Concerto in F minor, composed for the Gloucester Festival of 1895. Mr. C. W. Perkins was admirable in the solo part, and the work of the band was good. Madame Alva sang Bellini's 'Casta Diva' with brilliant vocalisation, but with too much vibrato. She was more successful in the soprano music of Schumann's 'Paradise and the Peri,' singing very finely. The other soloists, Miss Maggie Jaques, Madame Margaret Milward, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. Daniel Price, did well. Band and chorus were superb, and Dr. Sinclair conducted a fine concert.

The Messrs. Harrison's concerts ended on the 4th ult., when a pianoforte recital was given by M. Paderewski to a crowded audience. The programme was of the stereotyped order. The Saturday night concerts go on successfully. On February 23 the Midland Musical Society gave a performance of 'Elijah'; on the 9th ult. a popular concert was given by Mr. Graham's Temperance Philharmonic Choir; and on the 16th ult. Mr. Randall's Choir concert took place. A pleasing feature was Elgar's delightful duet, 'The snow,' with accompaniment of pianoforte and two violins.

In the afternoon of the same day, at Mr. Perkins's free organ recital, in the Town Hall, Mr. G. Gordon Cleather played the drums in Julius Tausch's extraordinary Concerto for six tympani and orchestra. He did wonders with the percussion instruments, and was applauded to the echo (Special Edition!) by the audience which crowded the Town Hall.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The fifth performance for the first season of the Clifton Orchestral concerts was held on the 2nd ult. Mr. F. W. Rootham conducted, the band being composed principally of players residing in Bristol and Bath. The works given were Mozart's Symphony in E flat, Schubert's Overture and ballet music from 'Rosamunde,' Smetana's Overture to 'Die Verkaufte Braut,' Mr. Edward German's Suite, in D minor, the Vorspiel from 'Lohengrin,' and the Ballet des Sylphes and Marche Hongroise from the 'Faust' of Berlioz. Mrs. Helen Trust was the vocalist and her songs were much appreciated.

The Kruse Quartet appeared at All Saints' Hall on the 11th ult. They played Beethoven's Quartet in F (Op. 59), and, in company with Miss Fanny Davies, Brahms's Quintet in F minor (Op. 34). The fair pianist gave a fine performance of Schumann's 'Etudes Symphoniques' and was warmly applauded by a large audience.

The Bristol Choral Society gave its Mid-Lent concert, at Colston Hall, on the 16th ult., the choir and band numbering 650. Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer' (with Madame Emily Squire as the soloist) was followed by Professor Horatio Parker's 'Legend of St. Christopher,' this being the first occasion upon which this dramatic oratorio was given in England. Mr. Riseley, the conductor, had met the composer at the Chester Festival, and was fortunate in obtaining from him his views respecting the performance of the work. The audience appeared highly gratified with the manner in which the oratorio was given, and applauded the spirited rendering of the Demons' chorus in the second act, the 'Gloria in Excelsis' in the third act, and the final 'Labour nobly, bravely on.' The soloists were Mr. Andrew Black (who sang splendidly the music of Offerus), Mr. Henry Beaumont (the King and the Hermit), Mr. William Thomas (Satan), Madame Emily Squire (the Queen), and Miss Amy Perry (the Child). The effective orchestration was well interpreted, Mr. H. Lewis holding the principal first violin. Mr. Riseley conducted with unflagging energy, and well deserved the applause which he received at the conclusion of the performance. Many persons expressed a wish that the work might be again presented.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Dublin Orchestral Society gave its last concert for the season on the 6th ult., when Beethoven's Symphony (No. 8) was most admirably performed, the perfect control over the material in Signor Esposito's hands making the performance one of the most encouraging of all the Society has given since its foundation two years ago. Mendelssohn's 'Ruy Blas' Overture and his Canzonetta, played by all the strings, were also given, and the concert terminated with a performance of the 'Tannhäuser' Overture. During an interval the secretary announced that a public meeting would shortly be held to consider the position of the Society. Should sufficient support not be forthcoming, this Society, which has done more to redeem our city, musically, than any we have ever known, must cease to exist.

The Hallé orchestra, under Dr. Richter's baton, gave two concerts in the following week. At the first, Dvorák's interesting and beautiful 'In the New World' Symphony was played and Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody (No. 1). Two Wagner excerpts—the 'Siegfried' Funeral March and the 'Huldigungs' March—began and ended the concert respectively. Mendelssohn's Overture to 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' exquisitely played, relieved a somewhat monotonous programme. At the second concert Beethoven's No. 8 was magnificently performed and Tschaïkowsky's beautiful 'Romeo and Juliet' Overture. Three Wagner pieces were also played—the 'Siegfried Idyll,' the 'Kaisermarsch,' and the 'Rienzi' Overture. A Suite in D, by Bach, for strings, oboes, trumpets, and drums was included, but failed to interest the audience.

The Chamber Music Union gave two concerts, at the first of which Beethoven's Quintet for pianoforte and wind instruments, Mozart's Trio for pianoforte, viola, and clarinet, and Esposito's Violin and Pianoforte Duet in G were played. The wind instrument players acquitted themselves admirably and showed much refinement and taste in their playing. At the second concert, Bach's Concerto for three pianofortes and strings was repeated by very general request. Mozart's Pianoforte Quartet in G minor and Beethoven's Sonata (Op. 68) for pianoforte and violoncello were also performed, the latter most ably by Herr Bast and Signor Esposito.

The conductor of the Feis Ceoil concerts will be Signor Esposito, and he already is rehearsing Dr. Stanford's 'Phaudrig Crohoore' and the prize cantata with the choir. A very large number of entries have been received for all the competitions. The festival will take place during the week commencing May 6.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mozart's First Mass in C was sung by the choir at Calvert Street Chapel, Norwich, on the 7th ult., with Miss M. Luckett, Miss M. Gazeley, Mr. H. J. Luckett, and Mr. F. T. Moffett as principals. The singing of the choruses showed that great pains had been taken in preparing the work by Mr. H. Amiss, the choirmaster. Mr. Arthur Rudd was at the organ and played the accompaniments with delicacy and artistic finish.

On the 6th ult. the Great Yarmouth Wesleyan Church Choir gave a performance, in the Town Hall, of Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' assisted by members of other choirs in the town. Miss Mildred Rix, Miss E. Larkins, and Mr. J. J. Hardy were the soloists. The choir and orchestra (led by Mr. C. W. Diver) gave a good rendering of the cantata under the conductorship of Mr. W. M. Chapman.

The Diss Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelsohn's 'Elijah,' on February 26, conducted by Mr. T. M. Pullen. The solos were sung by Miss Alice Simons, Miss Emily Foxcroft, Mr. Harry Stubbs, and Mr. George Stubbs. The band was led by Mr. T. E. Gatehouse, Mr. Hemstock being at the organ, and a highly creditable performance was enjoyed by a large audience.

Handel's 'Messiah' (parts 2 and 3) were sung at a special service held in Beccles Church, on the 5th ult., when the church choir was augmented by members of the local society. The soloists were Masters P. Phillips and G. Glasspoole, Mr. Sawford Dye, and Mr. F. Daines. Dr. Frank Bates conducted and Mr. W. Warden Harvey presided at the organ.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Music in our city still shows signs of vigorous life, and events of no mean artistic importance have taken place during the past month. Chief among these must be considered the production, for the first time in Scotland, of Wagner's 'Tristan und Isolde,' by the Moody-Manners Opera Company, which can only be characterised as most adequate and satisfying. The principal parts were in the safe keeping of Madame Fanny Moody (Isolde), Mr. Hedmondt (Tristan), Miss Marie Alexander (Brangane), and Mr. Charles Magrath (King Mark). On the following evening the 'Flying Dutchman' was performed, for the first time for many years in Edinburgh, with equal success, the principals being Madame Sapio, Mr. John Child, and Mr. William Dever. Much praise was due to the conductor, Signor Sapio, and his orchestra.

The University Musical Society gave its annual concert, on the 1st ult., in the McEwan Hall, the large building being crowded by a most enthusiastic audience. The performances of this Society are taking rank among the most important events of our University life. The concert under notice proved to be of the most enjoyable and interesting nature. The choir gave readings of Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' and Stanford's 'Battle of the Baltic,' which were more than creditable—excellent indeed. The soloists, Madame Evangeline Florence, Miss Nellie Kirkpatrick, Mr. John Child, and Mr. Dan Price, sang, each one of them, admirably. Perhaps the most successful was Miss Kirkpatrick (a local débutante), who received quite an ovation. An excellent band, with Mr. Dambmann as leader and Mr. T. H. Collinson at the organ, supplied the accompaniments. Mr. Moonie, the conductor, was presented by the Society, at the hands of Professor Niecks, with a copy of 'Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians,' as a token of their high appreciation of his services.

The local worshippers of John Sebastian Bach attended the Music Hall in great numbers on the evening of the 15th ult., to listen to a programme of the great cantor's music, which was purveyed for the Bach Society and their friends by Mr. Moonie's Choir and Mr. Maurice Sons. The work selected was the cantata 'My spirit was in heaviness,' and it was a rare treat to hear Mr. Moonie's fine body of singers in the fugues, which are the most important and, at the same time, the most interesting features of the work. The parts were conspicuously clear and differentiated in tone—in fact, the performance of the chorus was a notable and delightful one. Miss Amy Gallon, among the soloists, must be specially commended for her most artistic rendering of the solo, 'Sighing, weeping,' and high praise was due to Mr. J. S. Sinclair for his exquisite playing of the various obbligato parts for oboe. Mr. Sons's rendering of the immortal Chaconne and a Violin Concerto were of the highest order of merit.

Mr. Denhoff deserves gratitude from the lovers of chamber music in our midst for the fine series of chamber concerts he purveys for them. A high standard of excellence has been established and is undeviatingly maintained. At the final concert the Willy Hess Quartet combined with Mr. Denhoff in an admirable rendering of the Schumann Quintet. Miss Helen Jaxon was the vocalist.

The People's Entertainment Society, which does a good work in our midst, has finished its series for the season. It enables huge audiences to hear good music at a very cheap rate, and as only good music by good performers is placed before its patrons the efforts of the Society are of much value.

The first of the abundant crop of concerts given by Church Choral Societies took place in Mayfield Parish Church, on the 12th ult. The work performed was the 'Creation.'

The programme submitted to the Edinburgh Society of Musicians at its last meeting by Mr. Laurence Guthrie was a choice one, and most admirably carried out. Specially noteworthy was Mr. Guthrie's singing of ballads by Loewe and Damrosch, and the playing of two remarkably fine arrangements of overtures, by Hermann, for pianoforte duet, violin, and violoncello. The programme also included Rubinstein's Trio in B flat. Mr. Guthrie was assisted by Messrs. Dambmann, Della Torre, F. Gibson, and Harry Murray.

Among other events have been the visit of M. Paderewski and the last of Professor Niecks's excellent Historical concerts; the latter is referred to in another column.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Quite a large number of concerts fall to be recorded this month. On February 21, the Pollokshields Philharmonic Society, under the skilful direction of Mr. John Cullen, gave a highly commendable performance of the first part of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul,' and miscellaneous pieces. The accompaniments were efficiently played by a small orchestra led by Mr. Daly.

Excellent work continues to be done at Mr. R. L. Reid's music classes at the Young Men's Christian Association. In the choral class, numbering close upon 1,000 voices, Haydn's 'Creation' has this session been the subject of study, and the performance took place on February 28. The choruses were sung with that certainty of attack and 'go' which betoken perfect familiarity with the work. Capital renderings of the solo music were given by Miss Jenny Taggart and Messrs. Iver McKay and Charles Tree. An excellent orchestra, led by Mr. Daly and supplemented at the organ by Mr. Pattinson, supplied the accompaniments.

The students of the Athenæum School of Music gave their eleventh annual concert on the 1st ult. The programme, in addition to various organ and vocal solos, included Spohr's Violin Concerto in A minor and Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor, the solo parts being played by several of the more advanced students of the school, and the performance was in all respects praiseworthy. Mr. Macbeth conducted. The music classes of the Southern and Eastern sections of the Young Men's Christian Association brought their session to a close by a very satisfactory performance of 'The Messiah,' on the 5th ult. Mr. John Tannahill conducted, and Mr. W. J. Clapperton efficiently discharged the duties of organist.

The Morris Madrigal Society, a new choir conducted by Mr. W. R. Morris, made its first public appearance on the 6th ult. An interesting programme of part-songs, &c., was submitted, the best number being Pinsuti's 'In this hour of softened splendour,' which was sung with great delicacy and finish. Callcott's madrigal, 'O snatch me swift,' was the single justification of the new choir's title.

An audience which filled every available inch of space in St. Andrew's Hall assembled to hear M. Paderewski at the last concert of the Harrison series, on the 8th ult., and on the 13th ult. Mr. E. H. Lemare gave an inaugural recital on the organ newly erected in Greyfriars Church by Messrs. Ingram and Co.

The third of this season's Kosman Quartet concerts took place on the 18th ult. A notable feature of the concert was the first performance in Glasgow of Tanieff's String Quartet in C major. While the playing of all the movements was remarkably fine, the Andante and the Scherzo may be singled out as showing the artists at their best. Beethoven's Quartet in G major (Op. 18, No. 2) was no less charmingly played. Mr. Kosman contributed two violin solos—Beethoven's well-known Romance in G and a Scherzo Tarantella, by Wieniawski. Miss Marie Brema roused the audience to enthusiasm by her dramatic rendering of Schubert's 'Der Erl-König.' Mr. W. T. Hoeck was the accompanist.

'Judas Maccabæus' was given by the Uddingston Choral Union at its second concert, on the 19th ult. The orchestra of the Society, strengthened by a few professional players, gave a good account of itself in the accompaniments. Miss Jenny Taggart and Messrs. Gledhill and Fleming were the soloists, and Mr. W. Padget Gale conducted.

The Ysaye-Busoni recital, on the 20th ult., was one of the outstanding events of the present season. The audience was only limited by the size of the hall. A first performance in Glasgow of Wagner's 'Tristan and Isolde' was given, on the 22nd ult., by the Moody-Manners Opera Company.

At the monthly musical recital in John Street United Free Church, Spohr's 'Last Judgment' was sung by the choir, Mr. Taggart conducting and Mr. Miller playing the organ accompaniments. During the month organ recitals have been given in Kelvinside Church by Dr. D. F. Wilson, in Claremont Church by Mr. Hutton Malcolm, and in the Church of the New Jerusalem by Mr. Holgate.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. Theodore Lawson provided a fine programme at his concert, on February 26, and also one for his last concert, on the 12th ult. At the first, Messrs. Lawson, Inwards, Kreuz, and Renard played Schubert's Quartet in A minor (Op. 29) and that by Dvorák, in F (Op. 96)—both these characteristic works receiving warmth of treatment. Mr. Leonard Borwick proved a great attraction at the same concert. He played Brahms's Rhapsodie (No. 1, in G minor), Henselt's Toccatina in C minor, and Paderewski's popular 'Humoresque de Concert.' Mr. Plunket Greene sang songs by Lulli, Schumann, Brahms, Charles Wood, Stanford, and Arthur Somervell, with his usual resource and effect. For the last concert of the season Mr. Lawson had a very strong attraction in M. Ysaye. With Messrs. Marchot, Van Hout, and Jacob as colleagues, the distinguished violinist played Mozart's String Quartet in B flat, and for the first time in Liverpool Saint-Saëns's Quartet in E minor (Op. 112), which, in its repleteness with the spirit of modernity, proved a complete contrast to the old master's composition. M. Ysaye played as his solo Vieuxtemps's 'Suite in olden Style,' accompanied by M. Marchot at the pianoforte. Fräulein Agnes Witting (of Dresden) sang songs by Schumann, Franz, Hubert Parry, Macdowell, and Saint-Saëns with great ease and trainedness of method.

The two Richter concerts which have occurred since my last took place on February 23 and the 16th ult. At the first of these critical interest was centred in the 'Don Juan' Fantasia (Richard Strauss). It was grateful hearing to be favoured again with Tschaïkowsky's 'Symphonie Pathétique,' wonderfully rendered. Brahms's 'Academic Festival' Overture commenced the last concert of the season, and was followed by the Prelude and Liebestod ('Tristan and Isolde'). 'Scène d'Amour' and the 'Queen Mab' Scherzo from Berlioz's Symphony 'Romeo et Juliette' (Op. 17) were also in the programme, which came to a close with the 'Pastoral' Symphony. Dr. Richter obtained, in each case, his characteristically excellent interpretation. M. Paderewski appeared as Mr. Harrison's 'star' at the concert of the 7th ult. Mr. Schiever's fourth and last concert took place on the 9th ult., when he was assisted by Messrs. Steudner-Welsing and Fuchs. Brahms's Sextet in G and Schubert's Quintet in C were presented.

Concerts of the Philharmonic Society took place on the 5th and 19th ult. At the first concert, Dvorák's Fourth Symphony (Op. 88)—a truly beautiful work—was given with great feeling. Mr. Hausmann was the violoncellist and Madame Lillian Blauvelt sang the dramatic scena from Thomas's 'Hamlet.' At the penultimate concert of the season, the second and third acts of Wagner's 'Fliegende Höllander' received excellent treatment. With a whole-souled orchestra and chorus, together with the fine singing of the principals (Messrs. Andrew Black, Arthur Barlow, Ben Davies, Miss Alice Esty, and Miss Edith Leslie), a very fine and artistic result was obtained. Tschaïkowsky's 'Mozartiana' Suite was also played with great charm by the orchestra, under the distinguished conductorship of Dr. Cowen.

I cannot refrain from putting upon record Dr. Peace's graceful tribute to the memory of Father Willis. At his organ recital, on the 2nd ult., the eminent organist played Chopin's 'Marche Funèbre.' At the first chord the entire audience rose as one man and stood throughout the piece. The superb instrument in St. George's Hall was, of course, one of the greatest works of the great master of his craft.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

With the exception of the extra concert to be given for the Band Pension Fund, the forty-third season of the Hallé series of Subscription concerts has terminated. During the winter the attendances have been excellent, and, under Dr. Richter's guidance, the orchestral works have been given with a finish not to be surpassed, although the doubling of the wood-wind perhaps requires to be balanced by some increase of violin power and vigour. The later programmes included Tschaïkowsky's Symphony (No. 5), Schumann's in C, the 'Ruy Blas' Overture of Mendelssohn, and the very eccentric rhapsody by Rimsky-Korsakoff, entitled 'Scheherazade,' and founded upon four scenes from the Arabian Nights myths. We have also enjoyed the magnificent pianoforte playing of Signor Busoni in Liszt's Concerto in A and in Brahms's Variations on a theme by Paganini. The unfortunate accident to Mr. Brodsky's wrist necessitated a hasty summoning of Miss Edith Robinson to play the well-known G minor Concerto of Max Bruch and Beethoven's Romance in G major. At the twentieth meeting Dr. Richter provided the 'St. John' Passion Music of Bach, of which the choral movements were by far the most enjoyable and the best rendered. In no work has Mr. Wilson's choir appeared to greater advantage or the organ been more judiciously handled by Mr. Fogg. Notice of the repetition of the Ninth Symphony of Beethoven and of the four overtures representing the gradual maturing of Wagner's genius must be reserved until the general results of the season are recorded.

The most enjoyable chamber music recitals of Mr. Brodsky have again yielded a handsome surplus of upwards of a hundred guineas to the fund which, at the Royal College of Music, he so generously expends in the encouragement of the most promising of his pupils. For his concluding concert Mr. Max Mayer prepared a programme which drew together a large number of his patrons; and at Mr. Lane's closing meeting the audience was as crowded as usual and the choral efforts as enjoyable.

It was a most happy thought of the Messrs. Harrison to conclude their session with a recital by the only pianist who can draw an audience filling the Free Trade Hall to its doors; and Mr. Paderewski ran through his exacting programme, from Beethoven to Liszt, in unsurpassable style, displaying inimitable delicacies of execution and keenest insight into the meanings of the composers whose works he undertook to interpret.

The concluding concert of the twentieth session of Mr. Cross was given in the Free Trade Hall and very largely attended.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Alnwick Choral Union, which, under the able direction of Mr C. E. Moore, has done much to promote a love for good music among the residents of the ducal town, gave, on the 12th ult., a very successful performance of Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus.' The soloists were Miss Maud Wadham, Miss Florence Smart, Mr. D. S. Macdonald, and

Mr. Duncanson, whose efforts respectively were much appreciated. The choruses were carefully and successfully sung, and the work of the orchestra was very creditable. Mr. Moore deserves much credit for obtaining such satisfactory results from the material at his disposal.

The Sunderland Philharmonic Society gave its final concert of the season in the Victoria Hall, Sunderland, on the 13th ult. The principal work selected for performance was Handel's 'Acis and Galatea,' and, for the first time in this district, the additional accompaniments written by Mendelssohn were used in preference to those of Mozart, which are more widely known. The work was very successfully performed, with Miss Maggie Purvis, Mr. Whitworth Mitton, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint as soloists. Choir and orchestra were excellent and Mr. Kilburn conducted with his accustomed skill and discretion. Amongst other pieces in the programme were Beethoven's 'Prometheus' Overture and the choral epilogue from Sullivan's 'Golden Legend.' The interesting notes in the programme, written by Mr. Kilburn, deserve 'honourable mention.'

A very interesting concert was given on the 13th ult., under the auspices of the Newcastle Chamber Music Society, in the Assembly Rooms, Newcastle-on-Tyne, by the Ysaye Quartet. On the same evening the Gateshead Vocal Society gave a performance of Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen,' in the Town Hall, Gateshead. The soloists were Miss Janet Reed, Miss Gertrude Straiton, Mr. Fred. Taylor, and Mr. John Harrison. Mr. J. E. Hutchinson was the accompanist and Mr. Newton Laycock conducted.

A very fine performance of Berlioz's 'Faust' was given in the Olympia, Newcastle, on the 20th ult., by the Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union, in conjunction with the Hallé orchestra and under the conductorship of Dr. Hans Richter. The many original orchestral effects in which the work abounds were brought out with admirable skill. The singing of the choir—which is undoubtedly the finest combination of voices in this locality—was excellent throughout, and reflected the utmost credit upon its conductor, Mr. J. M. Preston, who prepared them for the performance. The soloists were Miss Helen Jaxon, Mr. William Green, Mr. William Thornton, and Mr. Andrew Black, who were all successful in their respective parts. The concerts recently given by the Choral Union with the aid of the Hallé orchestra have surpassed anything previously heard in Newcastle.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The last of the Nottingham Orchestral concerts, on the 7th ult., under the direction of Mr. Henry J. Wood, was devoted solely to the works of Richard Wagner. Included in the programme were most of the well-known excerpts from the Bayreuth master, such as the Prelude to 'Lohengrin,' the Ride of the Valkyries, the Overture to the 'Meistersingers,' and the Funeral March from 'Götterdämmerung.' Mr. Louis Frölich was the vocalist and rendered his songs in artistic style. The orchestra did its work with zeal, and the result was in every way satisfactory, adding another triumph to Mr. Wood's indefatigable work for music in Nottingham.

Chamber music in this city is represented by Miss Cantelo's concerts. On the 14th ult. the Kruse Quartet gave a fine rendering of Beethoven's Op. 59, in F. Miss Cantelo played as solos Handel's Chaconne, Hornpipe, and Gigue, besides accompanying Herr Kruse in Brahms's Violin Sonata (Op. 100) and assisting in the Schumann Pianoforte Quintet. The concert was an artistic success.

A new choral society, at West Bridgford, claims attention for its successful performance of Barnett's 'Ancient Mariner.' The vocalists were Madame Lizzie Moulds, Miss Nellie Oldham, Mr. Joseph Turner, and Mr. Haigh Jackson, who sang satisfactorily. A miscellaneous selection gave them an opportunity of exhibiting their abilities in music of a more varied tendency, and the chorus were heard to advantage in Faning's 'Moonlight' and Pinsuti's 'Parting Kiss.' Much of the success of this new venture is due to the untiring energy of the conductor, Mr. J. B. Lyddon.

MUSIC IN OXFORD.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Concerts here naturally began late in the Lent term, the first of importance being a chamber concert given by the Musical Club on February 19, in the new Town Hall. The chief pieces were Dvorák's String Quartet in E flat major (Op. 51) and Mozart's well-known Quartet in C major, both of which received ample justice at the hands of Mr. Richard Gompertz and his colleagues. Next came the Schiever Quartet, on the 4th ult., in the Schools; this was given under the auspices of the Musical Union, when Beethoven's Quartet in E flat major (Op. 74) and Brahms's Quartet in A minor (Op. 51, No. 2) were excellently given, the former especially affording almost unbounded pleasure.

The next day the Choral and Philharmonic Society gave the late Sir Arthur Sullivan's 'Martyr of Antioch,' in the Town Hall, to the accompaniment of strings and organ. On the 9th ult. a capital chamber concert was given in the Town Hall, when Professor Kruse and his friends gave Beethoven's Quartet in F major (Op. 59, No. 1) and Schumann's Quartet in A major (Op. 41, No. 3). Both were exceedingly well played. The Bach Choir gave Brahms's 'Requiem' in the Town Hall, on the 14th ult., under the able conductorship of Dr. Allen, organist of New College. This had unfortunately to be given without orchestra, but the choir—although limited in numbers—worked exceedingly well, and the result on the whole was fairly satisfactory. The excellent Sunday evening concerts at Balliol, of which Dr. Walker is the conductor, have given immense pleasure.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' was performed in the South Street (Moor) Chapel, on the 4th ult., under the baton of Mr. C. Skelton. Some excellent chorus-singing was heard, particularly in the final chorus, 'To Him be glory,' and the quartets and solos were admirably sung by Miss Eva Rich, Miss M. Parker, Mr. W. Burrows, and Mr. J. Lycett.

At Attercliffe, on the same date, the Zion Choral Society performed Nichol's 'The Holy Grail.' Directed by Mr. H. C. Jackson, the work was capitally sung, one of the most pleasing features of the performance being the effective chorus 'Rest awhile, weary one,' in which the sopranos and altos distinguished themselves. Mr. G. F. Cawthorne was organist.

The Riddings Choral Society gave a successful concert, on the 6th ult., when 'Elijah' was performed, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Dooley. The choir numbered about seventy voices and sang the music allotted to them with praiseworthy vigour and accuracy. The principals were Miss Maggie Jaques, Miss Amy Skerritt, Mr. Charles Blagbro, and Mr. J. Lycett.

The Sheffield Teachers' Operatic Society gave four performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera 'The Gondoliers,' in the Albert Hall, during the past month. Conspicuous success attended their efforts. Band and chorus numbered nearly ninety performers, and the singing and acting of the principals and the excellent ensemble reflected the highest credit on all concerned. Mr. J. Duffell conducted.

In connection with the Choir Festival at St. Mary's Church, Sheffield, Haydn's 'Creation' was performed in the church, on the 18th ult., under the direction of Mr. J. A. Rodgers. The choir numbered over 100 and their singing attained a high standard of excellence. The solos were taken by Master Eddie Unwin, Mr. R. Thompson, and Mr. J. Lycett.

The Barnsley St. Cecilia Society gave a concert, on the 21st ult, under Dr. Coward, performing Gluck's 'Orpheus,' with Madame Marie Brema in the title-rôle. The other soloists were Madame Norledge and Miss Joyner.

The Penistone and District Choral Society, a newly founded organisation, performed Dr. Coward's cantata 'The Story of Bethany,' on the 20th ult. Mr. J. Cooper conducted.

Elgar's 'King Olaf' and Bridge's 'Ballad of the Clampherdown' were the principal features of the Sheffield Musical Union's concert, on the 26th ult. Band and chorus numbered nearly 300 performers, and Dr. Coward conducted. Mr. J. H. Parkes led the band and Mr. W. S. Jessop was organist. The principals were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. Charles Saunders, and Mr. Charles Knowles.

Among other interesting musical events of a busy month were the concerts given by the Brincliffe Musical Society (conductor, Mr. J. H. Parkes); the Heeley Orchestral Society (conductor, Mr. W. Chapman); the last of Miss Foxon's chamber concerts; a recital by Mr. Paderewski; and the first visit to Sheffield of Messrs. Ysaye and Busoni.

A Mendelssohn Society has been formed in Sheffield with the object of studying and performing the smaller and less known works of the great masters. Mr. H. Antcliffe is the conductor. Mendelssohn's 'Christus' is announced for the first concert.

MUSIC IN STAFFORDSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On the 1st ult. the Hanley Glee and Madrigal Society was responsible for an entertainment of an altogether unusual character. In consequence of the success of Gounod's "Faust," given by the Society last year, the Society determined to produce "Tannhaüser," certainly a sufficiently bold and courageous undertaking. Fortunately the attendance, which was almost a record one for this hall, showed that the Society had the public with them entirely in their ambitious effort. The chorus was 300 strong, and the orchestra was an entirely professional one, consisting of fifty instrumentalists. The principal vocalists were Madame Fanny Moody, as Elisabeth; Miss Nedda Morrison, as Venus; Miss Annie Walker, as the Shepherd; Mr. E. C. Hedmondt, as Tannhäuser; Mr. C. Magrath, as Hermann; Mr. N. Dever, as Wolfram; Mr. S. Jones, as Walther; Mr. Lockridge, as Biterolf; Mr. Schwitz, Heinrich; and Mr. Brierley, as Reinmar—by far the largest number of principals who have ever appeared at a single concert in North Staffordshire. These artists all sang to the delight of the audience, and the members of Mr. Garner's splendid choir did themselves justice and distinctly added to their reputation. The male voices in the Pilgrims' music were delightfully tuneful and sonorous, and the tone of all parts was excellent.

MUSIC IN WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Sullivan's 'Prodigal Son' was rendered at the Minny Street Congregational Church, Cardiff, on February 27, Mr. M. Protheroe conducting.

A Welsh festival was held at Llandaff Cathedral on February 28 (St. David's Eve), the combined choirs, conducted by Mr. John Price, Rhymney, numbering 450 voices. In addition to chants, &c., a number of Welsh chorales and Handel's 'Worthy is the Lamb,' to Welsh words, were rendered. Mr. G. G. Beale presided at the organ.

On February 28 the Ebenezer Congregational Church Choir, Tonypandy, gave a performance of Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus,' under the conductorship of Mr. W. T. David, the orchestra being led by Mr. G. T. Roberts, Mr. W. J. Evans officiating at the organ. The soloists were Miss May John, Miss Maggie Morris, Miss M. Burton, Miss L. Jones, Mr. Trevor Evans, and Mr. David Hughes.

At the Llandudno Provincial Eisteddfod, held on the 1st ult., the Blackpool Choral Union (Mr. Whittaker) was awarded the prize in the chief choral competition, and the Tanygrisiau Choir, Festiniog (Mr. Cadwaladr Roberts), received first honours in the male-voice contest, Dr. Joseph Parry adjudicating.

On the 14th, 15th, and 16th ult. Mr. David Jenkins's opera, 'The Enchanted Isle' (scenes from Shakespeare's 'Tempest'), was produced at Aberafon, the Port Talbot Male-Voice Choir supplying the chorus. The composer conducted.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

BRADFORD.

This month Bradford must be awarded the pride of place, for the last four weeks have been prolific of music in that town. On the 1st ult. the Subscription concerts came to a rather premature termination with a good performance of 'Caractacus,' the Hallé orchestra, for the nonce under Dr. Cowen's beat, doing more than common justice to the wealth of orchestral colour in Dr. Elgar's remarkable work, while the chorus of the Bradford Festival Choral Society sang exceedingly well. Two of the soloists, Madame Medora Henson and Mr. Andrew Black, appeared in the parts they 'created' at Leeds; the other principals being Mr. William Green and Mr. Copland. As a pleasing foil to the more elaborate music of 'Caractacus' the concert ended with Dr. Elgar's charming choral suite 'In the Bavarian Highlands,' in which the composer shows how gracefully he can unbend. On the 9th ult. the Permanent Orchestra, which is also directed by Dr. Cowen, gave evidence of the benefit it has derived from his teaching by a most creditable performance of an unusually exacting programme. Tschaïkowsky's Fourth Symphony was played with uncommon gusto, and several Wagner pieces were well done, the 'Dutchman' overture and 'Siegfried Idyll' particularly so. Mr. Andrew Black was the vocalist. On the 12th ult. the Bradford Old Choral Society gave a respectable rendering of Haydn's 'Seasons.' Haydn's music may be 'simple,' but its very simplicity makes a greater neatness of performance necessary than it customarily receives, and there might, on this occasion, have been greater precision and finish. Otherwise Mr. Hartwell Robertshaw may be congratulated on having made the utmost of his material, and especially of his band, which includes a large proportion of youthful amateurs. Miss Ruth Lamb, Mr. Albert Collings, a tenor with an excellent voice but a somewhat jerky method, and Mr. C. Knowles were the principal vocalists. The Bradford Festival Choral Society followed soon after, on the 15th ult., when they gave the whole of Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' cantatas, preceded by the 'Song of Hiawatha' Overture, the only objection to which was that it made the programme unnecessarily long, and increased the difficulty of appreciating the 'Departure,' which suffers from its position, and should be heard alone to be enjoyed as much as it deserves, for I greatly doubt whether it is a whit inferior, musically, to the preceding sections. The performance under Dr. Cowen was excellent throughout, the choir being at its best and the Bradford Permanent Orchestra doing its work with remarkable finish. The soloists, Madame Bertha Rossow, Mr. Gregory Hast, and Mr. Ivor Foster, were all efficient. A very interesting recital of pianoforte music was given, on February 22, by Miss E. A. Atkinson, and visits from Ysaye and Busoni on February 27, and of Paderewski at the last of the Harrison concerts, on the 13th ult., have to be recorded. On the 20th ult. Madame Bertha Moore gave her interesting and enjoyable song-lecture on English songs, repeating it at Huddersfield on the following evening.

LEEDS.

The most important event that has occurred at Leeds is the Subscription concert that took place on February 27. The programme was of chamber music, Schubert's D minor Quartet and Beethoven's String Quintet in C being admirably played by Mr. Brodsky's excellent quartet party, with Mr. Catterall as second viola. Madame Marchesi made (mirabile dictu) her first appearance in Leeds, and, being in excellent voice, created a deep impression. Perhaps the feature of the concert which was of the greatest general interest was the fact that it ended with a song—the 'Erl-King'—an astute and successful method of keeping the audience in their seats to the end, for it is generally understood that it is rude to interrupt vocal music, though instrumental 'doesn't matter.' On the 20th ult. the Choral Union gave 'The Golden Legend,' and also introduced to Leeds Sir Frederick Bridge's clever setting of Mr. Kipling's poem, 'The Flag of England, which had the advantage of the composer's conductorship.

The principals were Madame Esty, Miss Isa Frood, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Watkin Mills. The large chorus was too heavy for the band, but the performance was, on the whole, a creditable one. Mr. Benton conducted Sullivan's work.

On February 22, at one of the 'Bohemian' concerts, Leeds had the uncommon satisfaction of anticipating London by three days in bringing to a hearing Borodin's Second String Quartet in D, a work of such sustained interest and vitality that it is intended to repeat it at the next of these concerts. Mr. Edward Elliott, whose quartet party supplied the programme, gave a concert, jointly with Miss Gertrude Wortley (an able pianist who has settled in Leeds), on the 18th ult., when Dvorák's E flat Quartet and Schumann's ever popular Pianoforte Quintet were the chief things in the programme. On the 14th ult. Mr. Paderewski attracted about a couple of thousand people to the Coliseum for his recital, and, on the 19th ult., Messrs. Ysaye and Busoni gave a highly enjoyable violin and pianoforte recital to an audience unworthy of their merits, and not very creditable to a town of musical repute.

VARIOUS YORKSHIRE TOWNS.

The Huddersfield Choral Society gave, on the 8th ult., a somewhat unequal performance of 'Israel in Egypt.' The band was weak, the chorus overwhelmingly strong. In such choruses as the famous 'Hailstone' or 'Sing unto God' nothing could have been more magnificent than the volume of tone and force of the singing; in some of the choruses in the second part they did not succeed in maintaining a perfectly correct intonation. The soloists were Miss Winifred Wynne, Miss Emily Berry, Miss Gertrude Lonsdale (a very promising contralto), and Mr. Joseph Hanson. The duet, 'The Lord is a Man of war,' was, in imitation of the inartistic practice once followed at the Albert Hall, sung by all the tenors and basses of the chorus. Needless to say, it made the orchestra appear quite impotent. Mr. Bowling conducted. Exceptional interest was given to the Subscription concert, on the 26th ult., by the appearance of the Hallé orchestra, which played the 'Pastoral Symphony,' actually 'for the first time at these concerts.' Mr. Verbrugghen played the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto with appropriate neatness, and Dr. Richter conducted. On the 12th ult. the Welsh Ladies' Choir was responsible for the programme. On the 19th ult. the Glee and Madrigal Society gave one of its very pleasant programmes of part-songs and the like, under Mr. Ibeson's capable conductorship.

Halifax is showing a good deal of enterprise just now. Last month I recorded the opening of a new and very necessary concert hall; now I have to record the production, on February 28, of a new cantata by a townsman, Mr. Herman van Dyk. It is on the same subject which Mr. Coleridge-Taylor is taking for his Leeds Festival work, Longfellow's 'Blind Girl of Castel Cuillé,' but was written in 1893. In spite of a somewhat old-fashioned frame, it has much more vitality in it than the majority of cantatas that appear from day to day. The composer has good melodic ideas, and plenty of them; and he uses his orchestra with knowledge and discretion. Repetition of words and a weak sense of dramatic continuity are the worst faults that can be alleged against the cantata, which was very ably conducted by its composer. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Lucy Clarke, and Mr. W. Green. The chorus of the Halifax Society was not at its best, and the orchestra left much to be desired in point of finish. On the 8th ult. the same Society gave 'Elijah,' the feature of the concert being the uncommonly fine performance of the orchestral portion of the work by the Hallé orchestra, under Dr. Richter. The principals were Miss Palliser, Miss Ada Crossley, and Messrs. Green and Black.

The town of Morley had the satisfaction of anticipating its big neighbour, Leeds, in introducing to Yorkshire Sir J. F. Bridge's 'Flag of England,' which it gave with much success, according to its means, on the 7th ult. Mr. A. Benton conducted, and the solo part was sung by Miss Taggart. On the 6th ult. the Keighley Orchestral Society gave a concert, the principal feature of which was the appearance of Mr. Fred. Dawson, who played with brilliancy Mendelssohn's G minor Pianoforte Concerto. The band, under Mr. Summerscales, played with commendable fire, the violins being especially good. The Keighley Musical Union, under the same conductor, gave, on the 19th ult., the whole of Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha,' which is making a triumphal progress through the Riding. Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. O'Mara, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint were the principals, and the performance is described as 'very creditable.' On the 5th ult. the Batley Choral Society, under Mr. Tomlinson, essayed 'The Golden Legend,' Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Sweeney, Messrs. Saunders and Knowles being the principals.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Athens.—In the competition opened by the Society of Antique Art, for a setting, in parts, of the choruses in the 'Œdipus,' of Sophocles, the first prize has been awarded to Petros Zachariadis, a young composer residing in Constantinople.

Bayreuth.—Siegfried Wagner has been requested by Herr von Possart, the Intendant of the Munich Royal Theatres, to write a Festival Overture for the opening of the new Prince Regent Theatre, and has accepted the commission.——The majority of the leading parts in this year's Festspiel performances have been definitely distributed as follows: Herr van Dyck (Parsifal), Herr Knüpfer (Gurnemanz), Herr van Rooy (Dutchman), Fräulein Destinn, of Berlin, and Frau Wittich, of Dresden (Senta), Herr E. Kraus, of Berlin (Erik), Herren Kraus and Burgstaller (Siegmund), Herren Kraus and Schmedes (Siegfried), Frau Gulbranson (Brünnhilde), Frau Wittich (Sieglinde), Herr van Rooy (Wotan), Herr Nebe, of Berlin (Alberich).

Cassel. — An interesting event, which attracted a numerous audience from different parts of Germany and Italy, was the recent first production, at the Hof-Theater, of a new four-act opera, entitled 'Das Mädchenherz' ('Il cuor delle fanciulle'), the libretto by Luigi Illica (German version by L. Hartmann), the music by Crescenzo Buongiorno. The composer, who has been for some years a resident at Dresden, has no leanings towards the modern Italian 'verismo' school, but he successfully combines excellent workmanship with a gift of melody and a keen sense for dramatic effect. The work was received with the greatest enthusiasm.

Cologne.—Two interesting novelties were included in the eighth Gürzenich concert of the season, under Professor Wüllner's direction—viz., a setting, by Wilhelm Berger, of Goethe's 'Gesang der Geister über den Wassern,' and a series of symphonic variations on the well-known chorale, 'Wer nur den lieben Gott lässt walten,' from the pen of Georg Schumann. Both new works were greatly applauded.

Dresden.—An excellent performance was given in the Dreikönigs-Kirche, recently, of August Klughardt's oratorio 'The Fall of Jerusalem.' The executants were the united choirs of the Robert Schumann Singakademie and the Neustadt Choral Society, under the conductorship of Capellmeister Hösel; the work, which was heard here for the first time, producing a very marked impression.

Frankfort-on-Main. — An excellent performance of Dvorák's new symphonic poem 'Othello' was given at the eighth Museum concert of the season, under Capellmeister Kogel's direction. The work was received with much favour. At a subsequent concert of the Society much enthusiasm was created by the excellent first performance of a cantata, 'Frühlingsfeier,' by Anton Urspruch. The work is scored for chorus, tenor solo, and orchestra, and was generally considered one of the ripest productions of its composer.——A successful first performance was given last month, at the Stadt-Theater, of Tschaïkowsky's little known opera 'Iolanthe.'

Humm (Westphalia).—Haydn's 'The Seasons' was performed last month at the first of a series of popular concerts, at nominal prices, which the excellent Musikverein under Herr Seipt's direction intends giving during the season. It is satisfactory to add that the hall was crowded by an attentive and appreciative audience, chiefly drawn from the working classes.

Innsbruck.—Herr Carl Lortzing, a grandson of the composer of 'Czar und Zimmermann,' has been appointed to the conductorship of the municipal orchestra.

Leipzig.—A special performance took place, at the nineteenth Gewandhaus concert of the season, under Herr Nikisch's direction, of Verdi's 'Requiem,' in memory of the deceased composer.——The Meiningen orchestra, under Herr Fritz Steinbach's direction, gave a concert, exclusively devoted to compositions by Brahms, on the 4th ult., with enormous success.

Milan.—Over 40,000 persons filed past the tomb of Verdi, in the crypt of the casa di riposo per musicisti, during the four days when the public were admitted.——The first performance in Italy of Goldmark's 'Die Königin von Saba' was given, last month, at the Theatre della Scala, with considerable success.

Moscow.—A new opera, entitled 'Angelo,' by the Russian composer, César Cui, was brought out, on February 28, at the Imperial Theatre, with great success. The composer, who was present, received a number of recalls.——M. Willem Kes is about to leave this city, having resigned the post of director of the Conservatoire, as well as the conductorship of the Philharmonic Society's concerts. He will be replaced, in the last-named post, by the well-known pianist, Alexander Siloti.

Munich.—At one of the recent concerts of the Kaim orchestra a most favourable reception was accorded to a new symphonic fantasia, entitled 'In our time,' by Gustav Brecher, a young Leipzig musician, who has lately been appointed to a conductorship at the Vienna Opera. M. Chevillard, the conductor of the Paris Lamoureux concerts, conducted an orchestral performance, last month, with the Kaim orchestra, the programme consisting of Wagner excerpts and works by contemporary French composers. His interpretations were received with marked favour.

Paris.—At the concert of the Conservatoire, on the 3rd ult., César Franck's remarkable Symphony in D minor, which had only been produced once before, in 1889, was played with admirable verve by the orchestra, under M. Taffanel's direction, and greatly applauded. The performances also included a motet, 'Ecce sacerdos magnus,' with string quartet and organ accompaniment, by Paul Vidal, which pleased greatly. The Châtelet concert, of the 10th ult., was devoted exclusively to compositions by Massenet, and included the Overture 'Brumaire,' excerpts from 'Phèdre,' and 'La Vièrge,' the orchestral suite from 'Esclarmonde,' and other pieces.——At the meeting of the 'Société Mozart,' last month, two unpublished compositions by Mozart were introduced to a greatly interested audience. These were a soprano air, originally intended for the first act of the opera 'Mithridate,' but eventually withdrawn, owing to the caprice of a singer, and an 'Elegy' for two sopranos, written by the composer in 1767, when he was eleven years of age. Mesdames Julie Cahun and Fourrier were the able interpreters. These interesting pieces (which are not mentioned by Köchel) were introduced by an explanatory discourse, delivered by M. Charles Malherbe, the erudite librarian of the Opéra, of whose rich collection of autographs they form part.——A new comic opera, 'La fille de Tabarin,' the libretto by MM. Sardou and Ferrier, the music by Gabriel Pierré, has been brought out with great success at the Opéra Comique.

Prague.—A new opera in two acts, 'The Polish Jew,' the libretto founded upon the familiar story by Erckmann-Chatrian, the music by Carl Weiss, was brought out with great success, on the 3rd ult., at the German Theatre. The composer, already favourably known by several dramatic works, is of Czech nationality, and the Slavonic element is well represented in his present work. The same may be said of the audience on the occasion referred to, which included, for the first time for many years, a great number of the composer's Czech compatriots, who applauded frantically. Thus, the burning racial question in this country was, for the time being, happily solved by the astute manager of the German Theatre, Herr Angelo Neumann.

St. Petersburg.—A new oratorio, 'Saint Francis,' by the Abbé Hartmann, a Franciscan friar and organist of Rome, was produced last month, under the composer's direction, with marked success. Madame Gorlenko-Dolina, the eminent Russian prima donna, was amongst the leading solo interpreters, the orchestra and choir being supplied by the personnel of the Imperial Opera.

Rome.—Don Lorenzo Perosi, having just completed his oratorio 'Moses' (which is to be produced at Milan in November), is already engaged upon the score of a new work, entitled 'The Apocalypse.'

Schwerin.—Heinrich Zoellner's music-drama, 'Die versunkene Glocke,' was produced for the first time, on February 24, at the Court Theatre, with enormous success.

Stockholm.—The centenary of the birth of the Swedish composer, Frederick Lindblad, was recently celebrated by a festival performance of his compositions. Lindblad owes his world-wide reputation as a song writer chiefly to his most gifted pupil, Jenny Lind, whose exquisite interpretation imparted to his graceful and truly national melodies an ideal charm.

Strassburg.—A new oratorio by Georg Rauchenecker, entitled 'Durch Nacht zum Licht' ('Through Night to Light'), met with a very good reception at its first performance recently, by the Academical Choral Society, under Herr Münch's direction.

Tournai.—A highly successful performance by an orchestra and choir consisting of some nine hundred executants, took place, on the 3rd ult., of Massenet's new oratorio 'La Terre Promise.'

Turin.—Leoncavallo's new opera, 'Zaza,' met with a very favourable reception on its first production, last month, at the Teatro Regio.

Warsaw.—A handsome monument, erected to the memory of the Polish national composer, Stanislaus Moniuszko, has just been unveiled in the foyer of the Imperial Opera House. The life-size statue is the work of the sculptor Marczewski.

Wiesbaden.—César Franck's symphonic poem, 'Le Chasseur Maudit,' was produced for the first time at a recent concert of the Royal orchestra, under the direction of Professor Mannstädt. The brilliantly instrumented work was received with great favour.

OBITUARY.

PETER BENOIT.

By the death, on the 8th ult., at Antwerp, of Peter Benoit, the modern Flemish school of music has lost one of its earliest and most gifted champions. More than forty years ago, while yet completing his studies in Italy and Germany as a laureate of the Brussels Conservatoire, young Benoit warmly advocated the cultivation, for artistic purposes, of the vigorous Flemish musical element, in a pamphlet entitled 'L'Ecole de musique flamande et son avenir.' After a sojourn of some years in Paris—where, for a time, he occupied the post of conductor at the Bouffes-Parisiens, then under the direction of Offenbach—he returned to his native Belgium, where his compositions, chiefly of a serious order and in which characteristic use is made of the Flemish folk-song, soon attracted general attention. In 1867 Benoit took up his residence in Antwerp, where he founded the musical institution which speedily became the centre of the movement in favour of a revival of a national Flemish school of music. In 1898 it was raised by the Belgian Government to the position of a National Conservatoire, under his directorship. Of Benoit's numerous compositions, many are known and appreciated outside his native country, notably in Germany and in Austria, as well as in the Scandinavian countries. They comprise sacred music, a number of cantatas (including the highly popular 'Kindercantat' for children's voices), several Flemish operas, and a number of characteristic songs. His oratorio 'Lucifer' was produced, under the late Sir Joseph Barnby, by the Royal Choral Society, at the Albert Hall, on April 3, 1889, when the composer was present. The deceased artist was in his sixty-seventh year, having been born, of humble parentage, at Harlebeke, in the province of Flandres, on August 17, 1834.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A BEETHOVEN CORRECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Allow me to indicate you a slight error in your article 'Occasional Notes' (March, 1901, page 163). Beethoven has written 'mit dem Knieschieber' and not 'mit dem Beinschieber,' which would have been a mistake. Your article states correctly that these words refer to the lever pressed by the knee in the old German pianofortes; the lever could not have been pressed by the leg (Bein). The handwriting of Beethoven is a very bad one, but the German word Knie (knee) is by exception very clearly written in this case, as your facsimile shows.

Yours truly,

Dr. Berggruen,
Editor of the Ménestrel.

2 bis, rue Vivienne, Paris.

[The writer of the note referred to in the above letter is glad that attention has been called to his misreading. In Beethoven's handwriting his B and his k greatly resemble each other, and that is how the unfortunate mistake arose. —Ed., M.T.]

DR. ARNE'S COUNTRY DANCE IN 'THOMAS AND SALLY.'

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Mr. Arkwright's letter (on p. 195 of your current issue) tracing the hymn tune 'Helmsley' to a date prior to the 'Guardian Angels' air as sung by Miss Catley in the 'Golden Pippin,' 1773, is an interesting communication on the subject. Will Mr. Arkwright, however, kindly give the imprint (and date, if any) of the edition of Arne's 'Thomas and Sally' in which the country dance tune (so characteristic of the composer) first appears?

I should also like to raise the question (and I appeal for a confirmation of the statement made in Grove's Dictionary) as to whether 'Thomas and Sally' first saw the light in Dublin in 1743. It has been freely copied from Grove without further inquiry. The fact is indisputable that 'Thomas and Sally' was produced at Covent Garden Theatre in November, 1760, and I have found no mention in contemporary accounts to lead one to suppose that it was merely a revival. In the Universal Magazine for 1760 and 1761 the songs from it are printed as from the 'New Musical Entertainment,' and while the 'Companion to the Playhouse,' 1764, and its later editions ('Biographia Dramatica'), of 1782 and 1812, give full mention of the piece, nothing is said of an earlier origin than 1760.

I am in possession of a copy of what I take to be the first edition of the music to the opera, 'printed for and sold by the author,' with the engraved date 1761; the country dance with others is there present, as it is in a later edition by Harrison, about 1784. Walsh's edition was probably published about 1765 and, as Mr. Arkwright says, with the omission of the dances. There are also other slight differences between that and the author's edition. The country dance became at once a favourite, and, under the title 'Thomas and Sally,' was included in Thompson's yearly set of twenty-four country dances for 1762, as well as in other of their publications. Miss Catley's song, 'Guardian Angels,' is set to what is merely a slight variation of the dance. Her piece in the 'Golden Pippin,' 1773, begins: 'Where's the mortal can resist me,' just before the Finale; but the song 'Guardian Angels now protect me,' sung by Mr. Mahon in Dublin, seems to have been afterwards substituted by Miss Catley for the original lyric of the opera.

If Dr. Arne did produce in 1743 a short piece under the title 'Thomas and Sally,' it must have undergone considerable alteration before its reproduction in London seventeen years later. I am, however, anxious to know if there really was one prior to 1760. Isaac Bickerstaffe, the author of this libretto, is not credited with any piece before 1756.

Frank Kidson.

128, Burley Road, Leeds.

AN OXFORD HISTORY OF MUSIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me to correct a slight error which appears on p. 167 of The Musical Times for March? The work which the Clarendon Press has undertaken is not a series of Text-books, but a continuous History of Music in six volumes, written in collaboration by Professor Wooldridge, Sir Hubert Parry, Mr. J. A. Fuller Maitland, Mr. E. Dannreuther, and myself. To each author has been allotted a separate period, so delimited as to make one consecutive treatise of the whole.

The disposition of the work is briefly as follows:—

Vol. 1. The earlier Ecclesiastical Period, by Professor Wooldridge.

Vol. 2. The later Ecclesiastical Period, by Professor Wooldridge.

Vol. 3. The Seventeenth Century, by Sir Hubert Parry.

Vol. 4. The Age of Bach and Handel, by Mr. J. A. Fuller Maitland.

Vol. 5. The Viennese School and its times, by the Editor.

Vol. 6. The Romantic Movement, by Mr. E. Dannreuther.

Of these volumes the first, third, and fourth will, it is hoped, be published during the coming year. The others will appear successively as soon as they are ready.

Yours faithfully,

W. H. Hadow.

Worcester College, Oxford,
March 7, 1901.

[We gave the information in the terms furnished to us by Mr. Henry Frowde, the publisher.—Ed., M.T.]

THE GAUNTLETT ORGAN AT ST. OLAVE'S.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—There was purpose in all Dr. Gauntlett's work, and I think that there is—or rather was—much to be learned from this organ to which you refer in your current issue (p. 171) and the somewhat similar one that was formerly in the Mechanics' Institution in Liverpool.

Sir John Stainer knew the St. Olave's organ in its prime, and I have asked him kindly to furnish some particulars; but as he is abroad I cannot hope for an early reply.

I take it that the idea was to impart to a two-manual organ something of the eclectic and preparative possibilities of registering possessed by a three-manual. The Great and Choir appear to have been on separate sound-boards, and there must have been the power to summon or dismiss one of these divisions, probably the 'Great,' by the coupler—or possibly ventil—'Grand Organ Combined.' The Great could thus be played or could be thrown out of action and leisurely re-registered by hand, with or without the assistance of the composition pedals, while playing on the Choir or Swell, instead of the registering being left to the composition pedals plus perhaps a grab at one or two stops. The Choir could, of course, be similarly re-registered while playing on the Great, for its gentler tones would be under cover of the more ponderous department.

The Liverpool organ was originally divided in similar fashion, but has since been 'lumped' like that at St. Olave's.

There was an organ in St. Peter's, Paddington, arranged on the same useful idea, which seems to make the ordinary builder very unhappy.

If my assumption is correct it is obvious that the plan of control (?) substituted for Dr. Gauntlett's is a deplorable retrogression.

Thomas Casson.

March 21, 1901.

The Streatham School of Music (of which Mr. Arthur O'Leary is the Director of Studies) gave a successful Students' concert, at Streatham Hall, on the 12th ult.

Miss Olive Harcourt has, we regret to learn, been obliged to give up all her engagements for a year, acting upon medical advice, and to take a complete rest.

The Incorporated Society of Musicians announces that a performance of orchestral works will be given at the Annual Conference to be held in London in January next. The following are the regulations:—

1. Any new or untried orchestral composition, Overture, Suite, Symphonic Movement, or other work for orchestra (provided it is suitable for performance on a Concert platform) will be eligible. Preference will be given to Compositions by Composers unable to secure public performances of Orchestral Works.
2. The scores of the compositions must be forwarded to the General Office of the Society, 19, Berners Street, London, W., addressed to the General Secretary, not later than June 1, 1901. Each score must be signed by the composer.
3. The Committee to select the works to be performed will consist of the following members of the Society:—Mr. Alberto Randegger, Hon. R.A.M., Mr. George Riseley, and Mr. George Halford.
4. It is intended that such works as the Committee recommend for performance shall be produced at the Annual Conference to be held in London, January, 1902.
5. Each composer whose work is selected must provide the orchestral parts required for its performance.

Full particulars may be obtained of Mr. Edward Chadfield, the General Secretary, 19, Berners Street, London, W.

The final competition for free open scholarships at the Royal College of Music took place on February 23. The following are the names of the successful candidates:—Composition: Francis C. S. Carey (Burgess Hill), Frank H. Tapp (Bath). Pianoforte: Isidore Epstein (London), Daisy A. Jones (Crickhowell), Olive Blume (London). Singing: Marion Battishill (Saltash), Betsy J. Cartwright (Hull), Benjamin Davies (Rhondda Valley). Organ: Ivor A. Morgan (Newnham), Leonard Illingworth (Acton). Violin: Frederick Grey (Clapham). Clarinet: Holman Shackleton (Dewsbury). Oboe: Gordon A. Foreman (Wandsworth). Bassoon: Harold C. Thornton (Dulwich). Horn: John B. Branston (Colwyn Bay).

The following is the result of the competitions which have taken place at the Royal Academy of Music during the past month:—The Goldberg Prize, on the 4th ult., to Kate Kelyn Williams, a native of Edinburgh. The Llewelyn Thomas, on the 11th ult., to Lilian Clarke, a native of Canada. The Evill Prize, on the 11th ult., to George R. Senior, a native of Huddersfield. The Sauret Prize, on the 21st ult., to Marjorie O. Hayward, a native of Greenwich.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Abergavenny.—The Choral Society gave a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' in the Town Hall, on the 19th ult. The choir and orchestra, led by Mr. A. Angle, numbered 120 performers, and the principal solo vocalists were Miss Maggie Jaques, Miss Morfydd Williams, Mr. G. H. Perrins, and Mr. W. Llewellyn. Mr. W. R. Carr conducted.

Bath.—A concert was given, on the 5th ult., by the Pump Room orchestra, in aid of the Benevolent Fund for the relief of members of the orchestra disabled by sickness or old age. The orchestra contributed the 'Meistersinger' and 'Lohengrin' Overtures and Massenet's 'Scènes Napolitaines.' Miss Norah Sweet-Escott played Beethoven's First Concerto (second and third movements) and 'La Campanella' (Paganini-Liszt), displaying remarkable technical ability and artistic appreciation. The Misses Florence and Bertha Salter were heard to advantage in songs by Rossini, Liza Lehmann, Cowen, and Löhr, and in a duet by Blumenthal.

Bolton.—The fact that Yorkshire and Lancashire produce choirs of remarkable quality cannot be questioned, and was again brought home to us on listening to the concert of the Bolton Choral Union, in the Albert Hall, on the 2nd ult. Bolton is exceptionally fortunate in possessing a Town Hall of remarkable architectural and decorative beauty, admirably adapted acoustically for musical performances, and provided with an excellent organ. The programme comprised Mendelssohn's 'Athalie' and a miscellaneous selection, which included the march and chorus from 'Tannhäuser,' Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer,' and Eaton Faning's 'Vikings.' The choir is about 150 strong, and consists of bright, fresh young voices of remarkable quality. The singing was characterised throughout by pure intonation, admirable expression, and vigour of attack, which showed to special advantage in the dramatic choruses in Mendelssohn's work and in the Wagner chorus. Every credit is due to Mr. J. M. Bentley for his excellent training. There was a good orchestra, led by Mr. Frank Lord, partly composed of members of the Hallé orchestra. The soloists in 'Athalie' were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Lily Dyson, and Miss Florence Ranstead, the first-named also singing admirably the solo in 'Hear my Prayer,' and Miss Ranstead, a young singer of artistic feeling, contributing two of Elgar's 'Sea Pictures' and Coleridge-Taylor's 'Corn Song.' Mr. Charles Fry recited the verses in 'Athalie,' and also gave the 'Dream of Eugene Aram' with powerful effect to the accompaniment of Mackenzie's music, excellently played by Mr. W. Mullineux, the Borough organist.

Bootle.—The fourth of the Orchestral Subscription concerts took place, on the 8th ult., in the Town Hall, and, strange to say, included no orchestral items, the chief feature of attraction being the appearance of the Royal Welsh Choir, conducted by Madame Clara Novello Davies. Among other pieces the Choir sang the 'Spanish Gipsy' (Lassen), 'Fair land, we greet thee' (Pinsuti), 'The ash grove,' and other Welsh airs, arranged by Emlyn Evans, and the Miserere from 'Il Trovatore,' the part of Manrico being taken by a contralto! In addition to songs by members of the Choir, Mr. Emlyn Davies sang, and Miss Marie Novello Williams and Miss Backsheen Wood contributed pianoforte and violin solos respectively.

Boston.—A successful performance of Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' was given on the 20th ult., by the members of Mr. G. H. Gregory's Choral Class. The soloists were Miss Gwendolen De Ath, Miss Alice Thorpe, Mr. E. Dunkerton, and Mr. Herbert Thacker; and no small degree of this successful concert was due to their efforts, as well as to the musical training which the chorus had received from Mr. Gregory. The orchestra, which was responsible for the accompaniments, was ably led by Mr. J. E. Hilton.

Brighton.—Sir Hubert Parry's oratorio 'Judith' was performed by the sacred Harmonic Society at the Dome, on the 14th ult. Much credit was due to Mr. Robert Taylor, the Society's conductor, for his excellent training of both choir and orchestra, which resulted in a highly creditable performance. The solo vocalists were Miss Bessie Wood, Miss Lalla Parry, Mr. W. Davies, and Mr. Daniel Price; Masters Ernest Watts and Frank Beavan, of St. Patrick's Choir, representing the 'Two Children,' all acquitting themselves to the satisfaction of the audience.

Calcutta.—An excellent performance of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" was recently given in St. Paul's Cathedral. There was a complete orchestra, which gave an admirable account of the Symphony, and also accompanied the singers with delicacy. The choir of the Cathedral, which has a reputation in the locality for the excellence of its singing, was augmented, and the choruses were given with power and good attack, the boys' voices especially being very bright and telling. Great credit is due to Mr. Willis, who was responsible for training the orchestra and who conducted the performance; and to Mr. Slater, who has devoted much time in training the choir and who presided at the organ.——A State funeral service was held in the Cathedral on February 2. Mr. Slater, the organist, played Beethoven's Funeral March and a march by Mendelssohn as the immense congregation were taking their seats, and Chopin's Funeral March during the official procession. The anthem was 'Blest are the departed,' by Spohr. The service, which was immensely impressive, closed with the Dead March in 'Saul.'

Canterbury.—At a special musical service held in the Cathedral, on February 28, the Requiem forming the first part of Gounod's oratorio 'Mors et Vita' was performed. The choir sang with vigour and was especially successful in the fugue 'Quam olim Abrahæ.' The orchestra, led by Mr. C. Gann, consisted of strings, brass, harp, and drums, the organ (played by Mr. Grundy) supplying the parts for the wood-wind. The soprano and contralto solos were sung by four of the Cathedral choir boys, the other parts being undertaken by Messrs. Pearson, Price, and Higgins. Mr. H. C. Perrin, the Cathedral organist, deserves every credit for his admirable training of the choir and for his ability in conducting the music. It should be added that Mr. Perrin has recently been presented by the members of the Cathedral Auxiliary Choir with a handsome silver-mounted ivory baton, accompanied by a letter containing the following gratifying appreciation: 'Since the Choir has been under your direction the improvement that has taken place in it has been most marked, and we fully realise that this is due almost entirely to the untiring care and trouble expended by you upon it. Especially do we feel that our thanks are due for the excellent way in which you planned and carried out the musical part of the services to inaugurate the New Century.'

Cheltenham. — The annual Conversazione of the Cheltenham Musical Festival Society, held in Bennington Hall, on the 5th ult., was rendered specially interesting on account of its being associated with the jubilee of its conductor, Mr. J. A. Matthews. It included in its programme several works composed by his past and present pupils, and also part of Coleridge-Taylor's 'Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha' (recently performed by the Society), illustrated with tableaux vivants. The scenes were taken from 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and 'The Death of Minnehaha,' the music being sung by the choir, with Miss Susan Harrhy, Mr. C. Eynon Morgan, and Mr. F. Willett as soloists, and the characters being represented in costume by a number of ladies, gentlemen, and children, the dances being arranged by Miss Ruddle.

Darvel, N.B.—The Darvel Choral Society performed Mr. A. R. Gaul's cantata 'The Holy City' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer,' on the 12th ult. The chorus numbered sixty voices and the solos were sung by members of the Association. The pianist was Mr. R. G. Morton and the organist, Mr. J. D. Morrison. The performance of the works reflected great credit upon the conductor, Mr. J. D. Gilchrist, Kilmarnock.

Exeter.—A pianoforte and vocal recital was given at Bamfield Hall, on the 8th ult., by Signor Clerici and Miss Clara Stone. The pianist's solos included Scharwenka's Second Rhapsodie, Schumann's 'Nachtstück,' and a Nocturne by the performer, whose efforts were distinguished by excellent taste and executive ability. Miss Stone's contributions included Schumann's 'Frauenliebe und Leben' and 'Roberto, O tu che adoro' (Meyerbeer), in which she displayed a well-trained voice of good quality. ——Master Vernon Warner and his little sister, Miss Elsie Warner, gave a pianoforte and violin recital at the Royal Public Rooms, on the 5th ult. The young pianist's share of the programme included the 'Moonlight' Sonata, Liszt's Rhapsodie Hongroise, and Chopin's Valse in A flat (Op. 42)—in the latter especially he played with remarkable expression and technique. His still more youthful sister played successfully two movements from Handel's Sonata in F, and, among other pieces, Elgar's 'Salut d'amour' and a 'Perpetuum mobile' by her father, Mr. H. E. Warner (who was the accompanist). Mr. Norman Kendall was the vocalist. The programme was repeated at Weymouth on the 7th ult.

Gloucester.—The Choral Society's second concert this season took place at the Shire Hall, on February 26, when Spohr's 'Last Judgment' and Mr. A. Herbert Brewer's Psalm 'O sing unto the Lord' constituted the programme. The Society has made a great advance under Mr. Brewer's training, and its singing displayed excellent qualities of attack, good intonation, and both sweetness and power, reflecting great credit on the conductor. The solo vocalists were Miss Norah Newport, Miss Murray Browne, Mr. George Brierley, and Mr. Foxton Ferguson. Efficient aid was lent by the orchestra, led by Mr. E. G. Woodward, and Mr. Ivor Morgan presided with skill at the organ.

Guernsey.—Spohr's 'Calvary' was given as the Lenten oratorio in St. Stephen's Church, on the 13th and 14th ult., with a selection on the Sunday following. Mr. J. Matthews accompanied on the organ, and the Precentor, the Rev. A. A. Henley, conducted the mixed choir of eighty voices.

Hamilton (Ontario). — The third of the series of Monday Chamber concerts given by Messrs. J. E. P. Aldous and A. G. Alexander took place on February 11. The programme included Mozart's Concerto in E flat for two pianofortes (with Cadenzas by Reinecke) and Beethoven's Trio (Op. 1, No. 3). The concert-givers were assisted by Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot (vocalist), Mr. A. Ostler (violin), and Mr. L. H. Parker (violoncello). On the 12th ult. the programme announced included Moscheles' Grand Duo 'Hommage à Handel,' Saint-Saëns's 'Rouet d'Omphale,' and Beethoven's 'Kreutzer' Sonata. Such excellent concerts deserve, and we trust receive, a full mead of public recognition.

Holmfirth.—Haydn's 'Seasons' was performed by the District Choral Society, in the Drill Hall, on the 14th ult. The choir was not, on the whole, as satisfactory as usual, and some evidence was given of insufficient rehearsal; the orchestra, however, was fairly efficient. The solo vocalists were Madame Minnie Grime, Mr. Tom Child, and Mr. W. Riley; and Mr. J. E. Ibeson conducted with care and skill.

Holyhead.—An organ recital was given by Mr. T. Westlake Morgan (organist of Bangor Cathedral) in the Collegiate Church of St. Cybi's, on March 12. Sir George Martin's devotional anthem, 'Holiest, breathe an evening blessing,' and the 'Hallelujah' Chorus were sung by the Choral Union, under the conductorship of Miss Walter-Thomas, organist of the church. Solos were sung by Miss Ethel Varian, who possesses an excellent contralto voice.

Ilford.—The Vocal Union and Orchestral Society gave a concert at the Reading Room on February 28. The chief feature of the programme was Gade's cantata 'The Erl-King's Daughter,' the miscellaneous second part including German's Masque music in 'As you Like It,' the Overture to 'Figaro,' and a Festal March (composed by the conductor), by the orchestra, and Sullivan's part-songs, 'Evening' and 'Hush thee, my babie,' by the choir. The solo vocalists were Miss Lilian L. Crosby, Madame Eliza Thomas, and Mr. F. Quartly. Mr. A. Storr conducted.

Leicester. — The Philharmonic Society performed Coleridge-Taylor's complete trilogy, 'Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha,' at the Temperance Hall, on the 8th ult. The choir and orchestra gave an excellent rendering of their important share of the work, and there was an admirable trio of solo vocalists in Miss Helen Jaxon, Mr. Gregory Hast, and Mr. Andrew Black. Mr. H. B. Ellis conducted.

Luton.—A very successful orchestral and choral concert was given, under the direction of Mr. Fred. Gostelow, on the 6th ult. The programme included Sir Frederick Bridge's 'Ballad of the Clampherdown' and the 'Flag of England,' both of which, under the conductorship of the composer, went splendidly. The orchestra also played the overtures to 'Egmont' and 'William Tell,' the Prelude to Act III. of 'Lohengrin,' and Mr. German's 'Nell Gwyn' Dances. Songs were contributed by Miss Alice Simons and Mr. S. Heath, and instrumental solos by Mr. Percy Waller (pianoforte), Mr. E. Jeffs (violin), and Mr. Woolhouse (violoncello). Mr. Gostelow also played two movements from Mendelssohn's G minor Pianoforte Concerto.

Madeley (Shropshire).—A tastefully printed history of the Madeley Choral Society from 1877-1900 is interesting as showing what may be done for music in a country place. This record of 'something attempted, something done,' of which any society might justly be proud, reflects honour and credit alike on all concerned and calls for hearty congratulation. The compiler of this interesting brochure is Mr. William Anstice, a well-known and enthusiastic amateur of Madeley.

Oystermouth.—Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' was performed by the Church Choral and Orchestral Union, in the Parish Church, on the 7th ult., this being the first occasion on which an oratorio has been performed in the church. The choir and orchestra numbered 120, Mr. C. J. Johnson presiding at the organ, and the solo music was sung by Miss S. G. Davies, Mrs. J. E. Fisher, Mr. Richard Thomas, and the Rev. R. Spurrell. The performance, under the direction of Mr. T. W. Ritson (organist of the Parish Church), was entirely successful.

Rochdale.—Mr. B. C. Crossley's final concert this season took place in the Town Hall, on the 19th ult., when Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was performed. The choir sang with evident enthusiasm, notably in the 'Baal' choruses, which were given with much dramatic power. The orchestra, led by Mr. F. Lord, was also fully efficient. The principal solo parts were undertaken successfully by Miss Maggie Purvis, Miss Alice Lakin, Mr. Samuel Masters, and Mr. A. H. Gee. Mr. Crossley conducted with firmness and judgment.——The Inaugural Festival of the Rochdale Wesley Circuit Choir Union was held in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, on the 16th ult., when the programme included the chorus 'Sing unto God' ('Judas Maccabæus'), Beethoven's 'Hallelujah' Chorus, and Anthems, 'O gladsome light' (Sullivan), 'Sing, O heavens' (Sullivan), and 'Hark! hark! my soul' (H. R. Shelley), these pieces being creditably rendered by the choir. Organ solos were contributed by Mr. F. Evans and vocal solos by Madame Louie Fidler, Mrs. Maud Clay, and Mr. F. Dawson. Mr. W. Townsend conducted.

Rugby.—Mr. Leonard Borwick gave a pianoforte recital at the New Big School, on the 20th ult., when he presented a programme of much interest, including the Prelude from Bach's 'Suite Anglaise,' Beethoven's 'Moonlight' Sonata, a Ballade, Valse, and Etude of Chopin, two Intermezzi by Brahms, and other pieces. Needless to say these were played with all the skill, technique, and expression usually displayed by this clever artist, and were listened to with enthusiastic interest by an audience composed of over 300 boys and their masters. Miss Cordelia Grylls was the vocalist, and she sang with much charm songs by Schumann, Lassen, F. Ries, and 'The lass with the delicate air' (Arne), which was warmly encored.

Sevenoaks.—On the 6th ult. Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' was given, at the Club Hall, by the St. John's Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. W. A. Taylor, organist and choirmaster of St. John's Church. The orchestra was ably led by Mr. W. Whitehead, and a highly creditable performance of Mendelssohn's oratorio was secured. The solo vocalists were Master George Hayward, Mr. James Horncastle, and Mr. Leo Wilson.

Wellington (New Zealand).—On Sunday, January 27, the official Memorial Service in connection with the death of Her Majesty Queen Victoria was held in St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, and was attended in state by His Excellency the Governor (the Earl of Ranfurly), members of the Government, foreign consuls, and the military and naval authorities. The musical part of the service was beautifully rendered by a full choir, and included Spohr's 'Blest are the departed'; the tenor solo, 'Then shall the righteous shine,' from Mendelssohn's 'Elijah'; a setting, by the organist of the Cathedral, of the sentences beginning 'I am the Resurrection,' which was sung with dignity and feeling by Mr. John Prouse; and Mr. Robert Parker played the Dead March in 'Saul.' At the other services of the day appropriate music was used, including Sullivan's quartet, 'Yea, though I walk,' and the same composer's beautiful choral song 'Wreaths for our graves,' the funeral marches by Chopin and Beethoven being played by Mr. R. Parker, the organist and choirmaster of the Cathedral.

West Tarring (Worthing).—At the Parish Church, on the 20th ult., the West Tarring Choral Society performed Stainer's 'Daughter of Jairus.' The solo vocalists were Mrs. Bernard Lees, Mr. Thomas Moppet, and Mr. G. W. Bernard. The accompaniments were efficiently played by Miss Ethel Bennett (pianoforte) and Mr. C. Spratley (organ). Mr. W. Binstead conducted.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A Country Teacher.—The acquirement of a true perception of six-eight time is a difficulty more apparent than real. Say nothing to your pupils about time signatures until they have grasped the thing itself—viz., that there are two (not six) divisions in each bar, or measure. The various sub-divisions of this primary essential can then, by degrees, be easily taught. You must make the children feel the rhythm by insisting upon their beating time while they sing, with one silent bar by way of prelude; and take care that every exercise is finished with the strong (down) beat.

G. C.—Dettmer was a creditable square pianoforte maker in the early years of the nineteenth century, but now forgotten. His instruments, which have been long out of use, cannot be said to have any marketable value. To repair one would probably be an analogous case to the wonderful old organ, upon which someone expended £100 upon its renovation. When the work was completed, the instrument was pronounced to be worth £50!

H. P. T.—The following part-songs for a male-voice party of eight voices (T.T.B.B.) would, we think, answer your purpose as good test pieces:—'Warrior's Song,' Hatton; 'Battle Song,' Schumann; 'The Merry Wayfarer,' Mendelssohn; 'Absence,' Hatton; 'The Homeward Watch,' Smart. The above, except the Schumann piece, are to be had in Tonic Sol-fa notation, and all have been frequently sung at competitions.

R. S.—(1) Mr. Fuller Maitland's monograph on Schumann is published in the Great Musicians series by Messrs. Sampson Low and Co., Ltd. Elson's 'The History of German Song' is published by the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston (Mass.). (2) 'Songs and Song Writers,' by Mr. Henry T. Finck (John Murray), would probably help you in your study of the songs of Schubert and Schumann.

Contra Posaune.—(1) The art of reading from figured bass is a practical, not a bookish matter. You would find Dr. Dunstan's Basses and Melodies Primer (Novello) useful in attaining facility. (2) 'Handbook of Acoustics,' by T. F. Harris (Curwen), or 'Sound and Music,' by Sedley Taylor (Macmillan).

A. H. D.—We have carefully looked in all the existing books on the violin, and in none of them is the name of Gändl mentioned. He was no doubt one of the numerous German makers working in the middle of the eighteenth century. The instrument would not be a violin of any particular value.

F. C.—The Mason and Hamlin American organ will doubtless answer your purpose. You might be able to obtain an ordinary pipe organ of two manuals second hand that would answer your purpose. Messrs. Metzler publish a tutor for the American organ, compiled by Sir John Stainer.

Learner.—(1) The nearest thing to your requirement is the Cotta edition of pianoforte classics, which has the (so-called) foreign fingering, and it is well edited. (2) We are much obliged for your kind words of appreciation, and will bear your suggestion in mind.

Edward.—We do not know of any book that covers the ground of your enquiry, but short biographies of some of the singers you mention have appeared in various newspaper and magazine articles. Thanks for your suggestion, which shall have due attention.

Ernest.—The answer to the fugue subject (which is in the key of C) is:—

R. F.—Write to the conductors of a few London theatre orchestras and ask them to hear you play and to give you an engagement, if possible.

P. R.—There is no fingered edition of Brahms's Op. 24 and 79.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., Limited.

BARTON, MARMADUKE—Mass in A major. For Solo Quartet, and Unaccompanied Chorus (S.A.T.B.). For use in Advent or Lent. 1s.

BATCHELOR, H. CROUCH—"Gethsemane." Song. For Mezzo-Soprano or Baritone. With Organ accompaniment (ad lib.). 2s.

CLARKE, C.—Venite, exultemus Domino. Three Settings to Simple Chants. With varied accompaniment for Choir and Organ. First Series. 3d.

COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S.—"Scenes from the Song of Hiawatha." Full Score. Complete. £3 3s.

—— "Hiawatha's Departure." No. 3 from the above. Full Score. 30s.

—— Ballade in D minor. (Op. 4.) For Violin Solo and Orchestra. 1st Violin, 6d.; 2nd Violin, 6d.; Viola, 6d.; Violoncello, 6d.; Basso, 6d.

COWEN, F. H.—Four English Dances in the olden style. Full Score. 10s. 6d.

DALMAS, PHILIP—"As I watch'd the ploughman ploughing," and other chants of freedom. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s. 6d.

DAVIDS, REV. HERMAN—"Eil Molei Rachamim" ("Trauergesang"). Memorial Prayer for the late Sovereign Lady Queen Victoria. For Tenor. 2s. 6d.

ELGAR, EDWARD—"Froissart." (Op. 19.) Concert-Overture. For Full Orchestra. Full Score, 7s. 6d. Wind Parts, 9s.

FLETCHER, PERCY E.—Prelude. (No. 290. Original Compositions for the Organ.) 1s.

—— Interlude. (No. 291. Original Compositions for the Organ.) 6d.

—— Postlude. (No. 292. Original Compositions for the Organ.) 1s.

"FRIEDE"—"Jesu, tender Shepherd." Hymn for Holy Baptism. 1d.

GAUNTLETT, H. J.—"Unto the Paschal Victim." Hymn for Easter. (No. 549. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1½d.

GERMAN, EDWARD—Three Dances from the Music to Shakespeare's "Henry VIII." Full Score, 7s. 6d.

GOSS, SIR JOHN—"The King shall rejoice." Anthem for Tenor (or Soprano) Solo and Chorus. Edited by J. Stainer. (No. 698. The Musical Times.) 1½d.

GOULD, W. MONK—"Hail! Music." Song No. 2, in B flat. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

GOUNOD, CH.—"Au pied de la Croix." From "The Redemption." French words. (No. 786. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 65 centimes.

—— "Felix Culpa." From "Mors et Vita." Solo and Chorus. Latin words. (No. 787. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 65 centimes.

—— "Le Christ S'est fait pour nous victime." From "The Redemption." French words. (No. 788. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 30 centimes.

GREENISH, F. R.—(in D). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 554. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

—— Six Kyries. (No. 555. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 2d.

—— "O God, my soul thirsteth." Anthem. For Harvest or General Use. (No. 698. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

—— "And God shall wipe away." Anthem. For Advent. (No. 699. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

—— "Awake, put on thy strength." For Christmas, or other Festivals. (No. 700. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

—— "He shall swallow up Death in Victory." Anthem. For Easter, or other Festivals. (No. 701. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

HUGHES, JOHN—"Milwr Gwalia." Patriotic Song. For Baritone. Welsh and English words. Old Notation and Sol-fa. 2s.

JONES, C.—"Days and moments quickly flying." Hymn. 1d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

KING, OLIVER—(in D). Te Deum and Jubilate Deo. (No. 552. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

—— (in D). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 551. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

LEMARE, EDWIN H.—Nocturne in B minor. (No. 11. Original Compositions for the Organ, by Edwin H. Lemare.) 2s.

—— "Contemplation." (No. 12. Original Compositions for the Organ, by Edwin H. Lemare.) 2s.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"Weep for the glorious dead." Funeral March and Chorus, from "The Dream of Jubal." (No. 789. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 3d.

MARCHANT, ARTHUR W.—"The Lord liveth." Anthem for Easter. (No. 696. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

MORTON, CANON W.—"We are Thy servants, gracious Lord." Hymn for a Girls' Friendly Society Service. 1d.

OWEN, HUGH—"Gloria in Excelsis." Set to music for Four Voices. 3d.

PICKFORD, T.—"The day is past and over." Vesper Hymn. 1d.

PITT, PERCY—Trois Poésies: (1) "Je ne veux pas autre chose," (2) "Partir," (3) "Sérénade." For Soprano. French and English words. 2s.

PORTER, WALTER—(in D). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 4d. (10 cents).

PURCELL, HENRY—The Masque in "Diocesian; or, The Prophetess." The words written by Thomas Betterton. Edited by Sir Frederick J. Bridge and John Pointer. 2s.

REAY, SAMUEL—"God save the King." For Voices with varied accompaniment for Pianoforte or Organ. 6d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 106. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Caller Herrin'." Unison Song. "The First Brigade." Unison Marching Song. By Percy E. Fletcher. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation

		A.	B.
No. 394.	Spring Flowerets. Unison Song with Two-part Chorus .. B. Mansell Ramsey	1½d.	—
„ 530.	Haymakers' Song. Action Song Myles B. Foster	1½d.	—
„ 559.	Flowers of the Springtime. Unison Song with ad lib. Alto .. .. H. Elliot Button	1½d.	—
Book 73.	Five Easy Two-part Songs, by Various Composers	—	3d.
„ 110.	Six Unison Songs (Grade II.), by Various Composers	6d.	—
„ 122.	Sixteen National Songs, by Various Composers	8d.	—

SELBY, B. LUARD—"Blessed are the dead." Anthem. For Soprano Solo and Chorus. (No. 693. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 2d.

STRIBLING, J.—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis. 4d.

SULLIVAN, ARTHUR—"The roseate hues of early dawn." Hymn. (No. 553. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.

THORLEY, W. HANDEL—Ballade. For Violin and Pianoforte. 2s.

TIARKS, REV. MORRIS C.—Psalm xcv. Venite, exultemus Domino. Set to music in the key of E, upon one of the Ancient Minor Modes of the Scale. For Choir and Organ. 6d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. McNaught:—

No. 1183.	Now late on the Sabbath Day S. Coleridge-Taylor	1½d.
„ 1184.	If ye then be risen .. .. H. M. Higgs	1½d.
„ 1185.	The Lord liveth .. .. Arthur W. Marchant	1½d.
„ 1187.	O God, my soul thirsteth .. F. R. Greenish	2d.
„ 1188.	Awake, put on thy strength .. F. R. Greenish	2d.

WESLEY, S. S.—"Man that is born of a woman." From the Burial Service. (No. 694. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 2d.

WILLIAMS, BERNARD—(in F). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 2d.

WILLIAMS, C. LEE—(in C). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 1.) (No. 556. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

—— (in F). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 557. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

—— (in A). Te Deum and Jubilate Deo. (No. 558. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 6d.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Sir John Goss (with special Portraits and Illustrations)	225
Hymn-Tunes	231
Manchester Music Makings	234
Permissible Fifths	235
Occasional Notes	237
A Musical Evening at Cambridge	239
The House in which Sir Arthur Sullivan was born (Illustrated)	241
Church and Organ Music	242
Reviews	244
The Philharmonic Society	245
Royal Choral Society	245
Mr. Newman's Symphony Concerts	246
Crystal Palace Concerts	246
Saturday and Monday Popular Concerts	246
Amateur Orchestral Societies	246
Mr. Denis O'Sullivan's Recital	247
Mr. Emil Kreuz's Concert	247
Mr. Arthur Somervell's Concert	247
Mr. Edward German's Operetta 'The Rival Poets'	247
Guildhall School of Music—'La Basoche'	248
London and Suburban Concerts	248
Music in America	256
„ Vienna	256
„ Belfast	257
„ Birmingham	257
„ Bristol	258
„ Dublin	258
„ East Anglia	258
„ Edinburgh	259
„ Glasgow	259
„ Liverpool and District	260
„ Manchester	260
„ Northumberland and Durham	260
„ Nottingham and District	261
„ Oxford	261
„ Sheffield and District	261
„ Staffordshire	262
„ Wales	262
„ Yorkshire	262
Foreign Notes	263
Obituary	264
Correspondence	265
Miscellaneous	266
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	266
Answers to Correspondents	268
Music published during the last Month	269
Anthem—"The King shall rejoice."—Sir John Goss	249

Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei, Nos. 1 and 2, from the Service (No. 2) in A and D.—Sir John Stainer.—(Extra Supplements.)

Hymn.—"The roseate hues of early dawn."—Arthur Sullivan.—(Extra Supplement.)

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

Published on the 1st of every Month. Price 1½d. Annual Subscription, including Postage, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW for APRIL

CONTAINS:—

General Notes.
Two-part Modulator Pointing.
Theory Questions.
School Music in Ireland.
School Sight-Singing Reader—Both Notations.
Answers to Theory Questions.
Sir John Stainer on Hymn-Tunes.
The Stratford Musical Festival.
Ladies' Choir Competition, Kensington.
Isle of Man Competitions.
Reviews.
Miscellaneous Items.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

The APRIL number contains the following music:—

"Dance of Butterflies." By Arthur Somervell.
"Twinkle, twinkle." Junior Unison Song. By R. Houston Macdonald.
"Land of Beauty." By Mendelssohn. Arranged for S.S.A.
The Junior School Music Course.
Also, Extra Supplement, containing "Pancakes." Action Song. By Percy E. Fletcher. (No. 551. Novello's School Songs. Price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

FOUR Extra Supplements are given in this number: (1) A Portrait of Sir John Goss, by Messrs. Fradelle and Marshall; (2) Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei, No. 1, from the Service (No. 2) in A and D, by Sir John Stainer; (3) Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei, No. 2, from the Service (No. 2) in A and D, by Sir John Stainer; (4) Hymn: 'The roseate hues of early dawn,' by Sir Arthur Sullivan.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£ s. d.
Two Lines	0 3 0
Three Lines	0 3 4
For every additional Line	0 0 10
Half a Column	2 0 0
A Column	4 0 0
A Page	7 10 0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

MISS MARIAN JAY

(SOLO VIOLINIST).
Concerts, &c., address, 5, Hollywood Road, South Kensington.

SOLO TENOR WANTED, for Christ Church, Victoria Road, Kensington. Stipend, £20. Apply to Choirmaster (by letter only), 22, Victoria Grove, Kensington, W.

TENOR WANTED, willing to assist at Nonconformist Church, in Richmond, Surrey, in return for expenses (£5 per annum). Two services Sundays and Wednesday rehearsal. Musical service and opportunity of solo and quartet work. Apply, by letter, to H., 7, Ulva Road, Putney, S.W.

BASS and ALTO REQUIRED, for Holy Trinity Church, Knightsbridge. Good readers essential. £12. Apply, C. S. Knight.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is REQUIRED, for the Congregational Church, Guildford. Salary, £40 per annum. Apply, with testimonials, to R. Salsbury, East Hill, Guildford. A good opening for Choral and Orchestral Societies.

A LADY will have a VACANCY next term for a RESIDENT PUPIL. Subjects: Piano, Violin, Viola, and Harmony. Orchestral and Choral Classes weekly, and pupils' concerts every term. Special fees for one who would superintend junior practising one hour daily. Apply, E. H. M., Novello & Co., Ltd.

WANTED, first-class TUNER and REGULATOR. Must have thorough knowledge and experience of American Organs, tuning, and repairs. Highest reference indispensable. Good salary to thoroughly respectable and competent man. Reply, by letter, with photo, stating age, salary required, and experience, Angelus Orchestral, Regent House, Regent Street, W.

TUNER REQUIRED. Permanency for steady reliable man. Frank Attwell's Pianoforte Warehouses, Reading.

WANTED, smart respectable YOUTH for Music Order Department, quick and accurate at figures. Good references required. Apply, by letter, stating age and experience, Angelus Orchestral, Regent House, Regent Street, W.

FOUR PRIZES, of Three Guineas each, are offered for Children's Anniversary Music. Particulars, Hymns, and a copy of the last selection (for 1901) will be sent Post-free, on receipt of two penny stamps, by James Broadbent, 13, Brunswick Place, Leeds.

SMALL BRANCH BUSINESS (Pianoforte, Music, and Small Goods). Magnificent position in High Street, close to College. Suit good Tuner, or good Banjo and Mandolin Professor. Established 1896. Price £70, for Lease (6½ years). Fixtures, and Fittings (including electric light throughout). Stock optional. Good living house. Rent, £45. Illness cause of disposal Apply, Banjo, 27, High St., Eton.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL SNELL ORGAN, 28 gns.; ditto, two manuals (no pedals), 25 gns.; a ditto, larger, with pedals, 40 gns.; a powerful toned two-manual Harmonium, 21 gns.; a three-manual and pedal "Mason-Hamlin-Liszt" organ, 32 stops, 21 setts; a 200-gn. "Bell," two-manual and pedal Organ, 75 gns.; a 95-gn. two-manual Mason & Hamlin, 28 gns. Also several large Organs and Harmoniums by Bell, Karn, Alexandre, Trayser, &c., including two powerful toned, nearly new Liszt organs. Phenomenal Bargains. Messrs. Stagg and Sons, 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

TWO-MANUAL PIPE ORGAN, £175, or payment arranged; 10 ft. high. Imposing appearance. Speaking front. Manuals, CC to A; pedals, CCC to F. 18 stops. Splendid tone; perfect order. Lead about 700 voices. S., 52, Hazlewood Crescent, Westbourne Park Station, London. Appointments preferred.

ORGAN (Two-manual), for SALE or HIRE. 16 stops. Full compass of pedals, and pedal organ. Also, One-manual, 5 stops (speaking) and pedals. Bargains. W. B., 9, Burdett Road, Bow, E.

READING OF PIANO MUSIC MADE EASY by Professor Hans Wagner's New System of Music. Good classical music published, price 8d. each. Important to teachers. Appiy to International Music Co., 7, Bury Street, Bloomsbury W.C.

FREE DEMONSTRATIONS

OF THE

TONIC SOL-FA SYSTEM OF TEACHING SIGHT-SINGING, EAR TRAINING,

AND

STAFF NOTATION TIME AND TUNE

AT THE

Cavendish Rooms, Mortimer Street, Oxford Circus,

ON

SATURDAY MORNINGS, April 20 and 27, May 4, at 11 o'clock.

The audience will witness lessons given to a class of boys. Professors and teachers of music are specially invited.

Lecturer: Mr. HARDING BONNER.

SONG DANCES

VOCAL SUITE

FOR FEMALE VOICES (S.S.C.)

With accompaniment for the Pianoforte

(Two or Four Hands)

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

JAMES HOGG, BARRY CORNWALL,

AND OTHERS

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

WILFRED BENDALL.

The instrumental part of this work is not a mere accompaniment, but is complete in itself, and can be played without the voices, either as pianoforte solo or duet, or as an orchestral suite.

For a performance by a choir, without orchestra, the use of the Pianoforte Duet part is recommended.

Vocal Score	2s.
String Parts	5s.
Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.
The Accompaniments arranged for Pianoforte Duet	3s.
Ditto ditto for Pianoforte Solo	2s.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

NOVELLO'S SCHOOL SONGS

Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined, with Pianoforte Accompaniment.

Just Published.

Book. 122.—SIXTEEN NATIONAL SONGS.

Arethusa, The	Shield
Blow, blow, thou winter wind	Arne
British Grenadiers, The	Old English
Cherry ripe	C. E. Horn
Dulce Domum	J. Reading
Empire Flag, The	A. C. Mackenzie
Hardy Norseman, The	Norse National Song
Let the hills resound	B. Richards
Loud Tattoo, The ("The Soldier's Life")	C. Dibdin
March of the Men of Harlech	Welsh Air
Meeting of the Waters, The	Irish Air
Mermaid, The	Old English
Minstrel Boy, The	Irish Air
Tight Little Island, The	Old English
We be three poor mariners	Old English
With jockey to the fair	Old English

Price Eightpence.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

Performed at Cincinnati, Boston, Springfield, and Worcester, U.S.A.; also at Bristol.

THE

Legend of St. Christopher

A DRAMATIC ORATORIO

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, ORCHESTRA, AND ORGAN

THE VERSE BY

ISABELLA PARKER

THE MUSIC BY

HORATIO PARKER.

(Op. 43.)

Price Five Shillings.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

MUSIC

SUITABLE FOR USE AT THE

SERVICE OF HOLY MATRIMONY.

ANTHEMS, HYMNS, &c.

	s.	d.
Blessed are all they that fear the Lord ..E. G. Monk	1	6
Vocal parts	1	0
Blessed are they that fear the Lord Sir George Elvey	0	1
Tonic Sol-fa	0	1½
Except the Lord build the house F. A. G. Ouseley	0	6
Vocal parts	0	6
Father of Life (Hymn) Jas. Turle	0	3
Father of Life (Hymn) W. Creser	1	6
Father of Life Samuel J. Gilbert	0	3
For the flame of love is as Fire A. C. Mackenzie	0	4
God, be merciful unto us S. S. Wesley
Octavo	0	3
Vocal parts	1	0
Folio	1	6
O God, Thou art worthy Arthur Sullivan
Vocal parts	1	0
Octavo	0	4
Tonic Sol-fa	0	1½
Folio	1	6
O Perfect Love (Anthem) J. Barnby	0	3
Tonic Sol-fa	0	1
Ditto (Arranged as a Two-part Chorus). Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined	0	1½
Ditto (Hymn) J. Barnby	0	1½
Ditto (Hymn) G. J. Bennett	0	1½
Ditto (Anthem) H. Elliot Button	0	1½
Holy Ghost, to earth descending Antonin Dvorák	0	4
The Blessing of the Lord A. C. Mackenzie	0	3
The Blessing of the Lord J. Frederick Bridge	0	2
There was a marriage in Cana of Galilee J. Stainer	0	3
Protect them, Almighty. Chorus J. Barnby	0	3
The Service for the Solemnization of Holy Matrimony, as used at Westminster Abbey, with a special Anthem composed by J. Frederick Bridge	0	6
Music for the Marriage Service. Edited by Rev. J. Baden Powell	0	2
My God, I thank Thee E. H. Lemare	0	3

ORGAN MUSIC.

Nuptial March B. Luard Selby	1 0
Wedding March (Gounod), No. 1. Arranged by G. C. Martin	2 0
Wedding March, No. 2 Charles Gounod	2 0
Wedding March (Mendelssohn) Arranged by W. T. Best	2 0
Wedding March ,, Arranged by C. E. Willing	1 0
March in "Athalie" ,, Arranged by Ch. Steggall	1 6
March in "Athalie" ,, Arranged by W. T. Best	2 0
Benedictus (A. C. Mackenzie) Arr. by C. Palmer and J. B. Lott	1 6
Largo (Handel) Arranged by G. C. Martin	1 0
March in "Tannhäuser" Arranged by F. Archer	2 0
Processional Wedding March Henry R. Bird	1 0
A Wedding Piece A. C. Mackenzie	1 0
The Bride's March ("Rebekah," J. Barnby), Arr. by James Shaw	1 0
March in B flat E. Silas	1 0
Grand March ("Lohengrin," Act III., Wagner) W. Creser	1 0
Bridal Chorus ("Lohengrin," Wagner) W. Creser	1 0
Wedding March Composed by W. Creser	1 6

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST.—Book 17.

1. Wedding March	A. Guilmant.
2. Ditto	Mendelssohn.
3. Bridal Chorus ("Lohengrin")	Wagner.
4. Be thou faithful ("St. Paul")	Mendelssohn.
5. Wedding Procession	H. Hofmann.

Price One Shilling.

London: Novello and Company, Limited.

NOVELLO'S ANTHEM BOOK

A COLLECTION OF POPULAR ANTHEMS

FOR

FESTIVAL AND GENERAL USE THROUGHOUT THE YEAR.

Each book of this series contains twelve anthems: some for Festival occasions—e.g., Christmas, Easter, Harvest—and others which may be used at any time. Great care has been taken in making the selections, in order that suitable variety may be secured and practical needs supplied.

It is therefore anticipated that in churches where an elaborate musical service is not possible, this publication will find acceptance. In such cases the advantage of having, in one book, twelve standard anthems which more than cover the requirements of the Church's year is obvious.

Book 1.

Advent	O King and Desire of all Nations	Stainer.
Christmas	Arise, shine, for thy light is come	Elvey.
Lent	Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	Farrant.
,,	Enter not into judgment	Attwood.
,,	O ye that love the Lord	Coleridge-Taylor.
Easter	O give thanks	Goss.
Whitsun	Come, Holy Ghost	Attwood.
Harvest	The Lord is loving unto every man	Garrett
General	O love the Lord	Sullivan.
,,	The day Thou gavest, Lord	Woodward.
,,	Blessed are they that dwell	Tours.
,,	Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace	Lee Williams.

Book 2.

Advent	Hosanna in the Highest	Stainer.
Christmas	Sing and rejoice	Barnby.
Lent	O Saviour of the World	Goss.
,,	Teach me, O Lord	Attwood.
,,	Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Gounod.
Easter	Christ is risen	Elvey.
Harvest	Great is the Lord	Steane.
General	What are these?	Stainer.
,,	O how amiable	West.
,,	O taste and see	Sullivan.
,,	The Lord is my Shepherd	Macfarren.
,,	God that madest earth and heaven	Fisher.

Book 3.

Advent	Far from their home	Woodward.
Christmas	Four Christmas Carols	Various.
Lent	Turn Thy Face from my sins	Sullivan.
,,	O Lord, my God	Wesley.
,,	Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Mozart.
Easter	Break forth into joy	Barnby.
Harvest	O Lord, how manifold	Barnby.
General	Seek ye the Lord	Roberts.
,,	I was glad	Elvey.
,,	The radiant morn	Woodward.
,,	O praise God in His holiness	Weldon.
,,	Doth not wisdom cry	Haking.

Book 4.

Advent	Arise, O Jerusalem	King.
Christmas	Let us now go even unto Bethlehem	Hopkins.
Lent	In Thee, O Lord	Tours.
,,	Comfort, O Lord, the soul of Thy servant	Crotch, arr. by Goss.
,,	God so loved the world	Stainer.
Easter	Christ our Passover	Goss.
Whitsun	Praised be the Lord daily	Calkin.
Harvest	Ye shall dwell in the land	Stainer.
General	O how amiable are Thy dwellings	Barnby.
,,	O taste and see how gracious the Lord is	Goss.
,,	Thine, O Lord, is the greatness	Kent.
,,	O give thanks unto the Lord	Elvey.

Book 5.

Advent	The Great Day of the Lord	Martin.
Christmas	It came upon the midnight clear	Stainer.
Lent	Incline Thine ear	Himmel.
,,	Lead me, Lord	Wesley.
,,	Rend your heart	Calkin.
Easter	Awake up, my glory	Barnby.
Whitsun	O for a closer walk with God	Foster.
Harvest	The eyes of all wait on Thee, O Lord	Elvey.
General	I am Alpha and Omega	Stainer.
,,	O how amiable are Thy dwellings	Richardson.
,,	Blessed are the merciful	Hiles.
,,	I will sing of Thy power, O God	Sullivan.

Book 6.

Advent	Hearken unto Me, My people	Sullivan.
Christmas	O Zion, that bringest good tidings	Stainer.
Lent	Turn Thy Face from my sins	Attwood.
,,	O Saving Victim, slain for us!	Stainer.
,,	There is a green hill far away	Gounod.
Easter	Now is Christ risen from the dead	West.
Whitsun	O Holy Ghost, into our minds	Macfarren.
Harvest	Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem	Maunder.
General	Sweet is Thy mercy, Lord	Barnby.
,,	I will lift up mine eyes	Clarke-Whitfeld.
,,	Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous	Elvey.
,,	I will alway give thanks unto the Lord	Calkin.

(To be continued.)

ONE SHILLING EACH BOOK.

Tonic Sol-fa, Ninepence each Book.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited

AND

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

John Stainer

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 699.—Vol. 42. MAY 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., F.R.A.M.

Midsummer Term begins Thursday, May 2, Entrance Examination therefor, Monday, April 29, at 2.
Metropolitan Examination (L.R.A.M.) Syllabus now ready.
Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

MIDSUMMER TERM will commence on MONDAY, May 6.
Entrance Examination, Friday, May 3, at 11.
The Half-Term begins on Monday, June 17.
Syllabus and official Entry Forms may be obtained at the College, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.

FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD

OF THE

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC AND ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS.
For particulars see SYLLABUS A.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1901.

Entries for the June and July Examinations must be received at the Central Office on or before May 10, 1901, or, with extra fee, on or before May 25, 1901.

For particulars see SYLLABUS B.

Copies of Syllabus A and B will be sent Post-free on application to the Secretary.
Theory papers set in Local Centre and School Examinations in 1896, 1897, 1898, and 1899 can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year, Post-free.
The Board gives annually Six Exhibitions tenable for two years.

JAMES MUIR, Secretary.

32, Maddox Street, London, W.
Telegraphic address: "Associa, London."

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Midsummer F.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 15, 1901. The solo-playing tests are: Prelude and Fugue in C, Bach (No. 1, Vol. 4, Peters' Edition) (Novello and Co., Book 7, No. 4, Augener and Co., Book 3, No. 13); Sonata (No. 6) in E flat minor, Op. 119, Rheinberger (F. Kistner, Leipzig) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.); Orgel-Sonate in D minor, J. G. Töpfer (Peters) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.).
The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 22.
The College Library is open daily from 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.
Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.
The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

GRESHAM COLLEGE MUSIC LECTURES

BY

PROFESSOR SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

MONDAY, May 13 .. Virginal Music.
TUESDAY, May 14 .. Milton's "Comus," and the music by Lawes. (The original MS. discovered.)
WEDNESDAY, May 15 Orchestral Studies, continued—"The French Horn."
FRIDAY, May 17 .. Handel's "Water Music."

The first Lecture will be given in Gresham College and the last three Lectures in the City of London School. To commence at 6 p.m. Admission free.

MR. ROBERT

NEWMAN'S CONCERTS,

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

THE

LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL,

1901.

(UNDER THE MANAGEMENT OF MR. ROBERT NEWMAN.)

QUEEN'S HALL.

MONDAY EVENING, APRIL 29, AT 8.
Conductor: MONS. COLONNE.
Vocalist: Madame BLANCHE MARCHESI.
Solo Pianist: Signor BUSONI.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON, APRIL 30, AT 3.
Conductor: MONS. YSAYE.
Vocalist: Miss MARIE BREMA.
Solo Violin: Lady HALLÉ.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, MAY 1, AT 8.
Conductor: MONS. SAINT-SAËNS.
Solo Violin: Mons. YSAYE.
Solo Pianist: Mons. SAINT-SAËNS.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 2, AT 3.
Conductor: HERR WEINGARTNER.
Vocalist: Herr VAN ROOY.
Solo Violoncello: Herr HUGO BECKER.

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 3, AT 8.
Conductor: MR. HENRY J. WOOD.
Vocalist: Mrs. HENRY J. WOOD
(Her first appearance at Queen's Hall).
Solo Violins: Lady HALLÉ and Mons. YSAYE.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 4, AT 3.
Conductor: MR. HENRY J. WOOD.
Solo Violin: Dr. JOACHIM.
Solo Pianist: Mr. HAROLD BAUER.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA

OF 110 PERFORMERS.

PRINCIPAL VIOLIN .. .. .. MR. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
ORGANIST AND ACCOMPANIST .. MR. PERCY PITT.

The Full Programme can be obtained on application to Mr. Robert Newman.

Subscription for Six Concerts: £3 3s., £2 12s. 6d., £2 2s. Subscription for Three Afternoons or Three Evenings, £1 11s. 6d., £1 7s. 6d., £1 1s. Single Tickets, 15s., 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d. (Reserved); 5s., 2s. 6d. (Unreserved); at

ROBERT NEWMAN'S BOX OFFICE,
QUEEN'S HALL, Langham Place, W.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—Estab. by the Corporation of London, 1880.—Principal: William H. Cummings, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A. Lessons daily, 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Every branch of Vocal and Instrumental Music. Students trained for Opera and Drama in the new Theatre. Prospectus on application. By order of the Committee, H. SAXE WYNDHAM, Secretary. Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.
For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. .. Granville Bantock.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 17—December 22); Winter Term (January 21—March 30); Summer Term (April 1—June 22).
Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.
Prospectus and further information may be obtained from
ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

GUILD OF ORGANISTS, Incorporated.
Established 1887. Incorporated 1898.

Patrons: The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, &c.
Warden: Percy Rideout, Esq., Mus. Doc., London.

For Musicians of the Church of England and Churches in Communion only.
Subscription for Membership, 10s. 6d. per annum.
The next Examination for F.Gld.O., and the Certificate of Practical Musicianship will be held on Tuesday, July 9, 1901. Examiners: H. C. Perrin, Esq., Mus.B., Organist, &c., Canterbury Cathedral, and T. Tertius Noble, Esq., A.R.C.M., Organist, &c., York Cathedral.

ORGAN WORK.—Test Pieces.
Fellowship: Adagio (in free style) in E, Merkel (Novello); Sonata, No. 18, Rheinberger (Novello); Fugue in E flat major, Albrechtsberger (Vol. XII., Cecilia) (Augener).
Certificate: Andante in G, Wesley (Novello); Fantasia in E minor, Merkel (Novello); Fugue in C minor, Böely (Vol. XXXII., Cecilia) (Augener).
For all particulars of Membership, Branches, Free Register, &c., address, Fred. B. Townend, Hon. General Sec., Mansion House Chambers, 11, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.; or to Hon. Secs., H. A. Needham, Church Schools Offices, 3, Newhall Street, Birmingham; and F. R. Boraston, "Stoneleigh," Sandown Park, Wavertree, Liverpool.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.
(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.
J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.
Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.
West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.
First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.
Metropolitan Examination in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., and F.V.C.M., commencing July, 1901.
Local Theoretical Examinations, July, 1901.
Practical Examinations are now being held at the various centres.
Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.
Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.
All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.
GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,
42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.
President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in June and July, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.
Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.
The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.
Free register for Organists requiring appointments.
For further particulars, apply to
Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

BEETHOVEN-HOUSE SOCIETY, BONN.

CHAMBER MUSIC FESTIVAL, 1901.
MAY 12 TO 16
IN THE
BEETHOVEN HALL, BONN, RHENISH PRUSSIA.

PROGRAMME.
1st Day: SUNDAY, May 12, at 6 p.m.
Serenade in B flat, for Wind Instruments, Köchel 361 (Mozart)
Members of the Court Orchestras of Meiningen, Berlin, and Hanover.
String Quartet, Op. 64, No. 6 (Haydn)
The Roeger-Soldat Quartet.
String Quartet, Op. 95 (Beethoven)
The Joachim Quartet.
Pianoforte Trio. Op. 97 (Beethoven)
Paderewski, Joachim, and Hausmann.
2nd Day: MONDAY, May 13, at 6 p.m.
String Quartet in D, Köchel 575 (Mozart)
The Roeger-Soldat Quartet.
Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 11 (Schumann)
Paderewski.
String Quartet, Op. 54, No. 2 (Haydn)
The Joachim Quartet.
Octet for String and Wind Instruments, Op. 166 (Schubert)
The Joachim Quartet and Members of the Meiningen Court Orchestra.
3rd Day: TUESDAY, May 14, at 6 p.m.
Octet for Wind Instruments, Op. 103 (Beethoven)
Members of the Meiningen Court Orchestra.
Variations in F minor, for Pianoforte (Haydn)
Rondo in A minor, for Pianoforte, Köchel 511 (Mozart)
Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 57, "Appassionata" (Beethoven)
Paderewski.
Clarinet Quintet, Op. 115 (Brahms)
Richard Mühlfeld and The Joachim Quartet.
4th Day: WEDNESDAY, May 15, at 6 p.m.
Beethoven Concert.
String Quartet, Op. 132
The Joachim Quartet.
Pianoforte Sonata, Op. 111
Paderewski.
String Quartet, Op. 130
The Joachim Quartet.
5th Day: THURSDAY, May 16, at 11.30 a.m.
String Quartet, Op. 18, No. 3 (Beethoven)
The Roeger-Soldat Quartet.
Sonata for Violin and Pianoforte, Op. 105 (Schumann)
Joachim and Paderewski.
Ballade, Mazurka, Nocturne, Etude, Polonaise for Pianoforte (Chopin)
Paderewski.
String Quintet in G minor, Köchel 516 (Mozart)
The Joachim Quartet and Carl Wendling.
Artists:
Ignaz Paderewski (Pianoforte).
The Joachim Quartet, from Berlin: Professor Dr. Joseph Joachim (1st Violin); Professor Carl Halir (2nd Violin); Professor Em. Wirth (Viola); Professor Robert Hausmann (Violoncello).
The Marie Roeger-Soldat Quartet, from Vienna: Frau Marie Roeger-Soldat (1st Violin); Fräulein Elsa von Plank (2nd Violin); Frau Natalie Bauer-Lechner (Viola); Miss Lucy Campbell (Violoncello).
And the following members of the Court Orchestras of Berlin, Hanover, and Meiningen: Concertmeister Carl Wendling, Meiningen (Viola); Kammermusiker Paul Rewoldt, Meiningen (Contrabass); Kammermusiker Gustav Gland, Meiningen (1st Oboe); Kammermusiker Anton Kirchhoff, Meiningen (2nd Oboe); Musikdirector Richard Mühlfeld, Meiningen (1st Clarinet); Kammermusiker Louis Preller, Meiningen (2nd Clarinet); Kammermusiker Hermann Oschmann, Meiningen (1st Bassoon); Hofmusiker Bruno Valerius, Meiningen (2nd Bassoon); Kammermusiker Eduard Gumpert, Meiningen (1st Horn); Hofmusiker Max Otto, Meiningen (2nd Horn); Hofmusiker Fritz Muth, Meiningen (3rd Horn); Kammermusiker Richard Dechandt, Meiningen (4th Horn); Kammermusiker Carl Rausch, Berlin (1st Bassethorn); Paul Sellin, Berlin (2nd Bassethorn); Kammermusiker August Fedisch, Hanover (Double Bassoon).

Serial Tickets for the Five Performances, 20 Marks.
Applications to be made to Musikalien-Handlung W. Sulzbach in Bonn.
Serial Tickets will be allotted on May 30. Latest date for application for same, May 28. Subsequent applications will be considered in the order of priority. The seats left over after the Serial Tickets have been allotted will be offered for sale at the rate of 6 Marks for each Concert. According to section 5 of the rules, the Members of the Beethoven-House Society take precedence in the allotment of the seats, at the rate of one seat for each share.

THE NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L. [Ltd.
Spring Examinations. Primary, Junior, Intermediate, Senior, and for Diplomas and Medals. Composers' MSS. examined. Medals awarded. Débutantes wanted for Concerts. Works published cheaply, practically free, through exchange system.
192, Sutherland Avenue, W. W. J. MOSS, Secretary.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,
Limited.
Principal: Edwin M. Lott, Mus. Doc.
Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.
Central Office: 113, Great Portland Street, W.
Local Theoretical Examination, May 21, 1901.
Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.
W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS ANNIE DAYMOND, A.R.A.M. (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Peverey, New Clive Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MISS AMY HARDING (Soprano)
(Of Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, &c., Concerts).
Recommended by Sir George Grove, W. H. Cummings, Esq., &c.
For critiques, photo, &c., address, 14, Palace Road, Norwood, S.E.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MADAME ANNIE GREW (Contralto, Medalist)
Waverley Road, Bradford.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.)
Address, 1, Dorothy Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. WALTER DRIVER
(Pupil of William Shakespeare, Esq., London).
Principal Tenor, King's College Chapel, Cambridge.
For Concerts, &c.

MR. CYRIL FLAMSTEED (Tenor)
(Of St. James's Hall and Crystal Palace Concerts).
Address, 29, Carleton Road, Tufnell Park, N.

MR. HENRY UNDERHILL (Tenor)
Concerts, &c.
23, Fernshaw Road, Fulham Road, S.W.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. H. WADSWORTH (Tenor)
(Two years at Milan. Great success.)
English, Italian, French. Equal quality of voice—not throaty.
Perfect enunciation. Satisfaction given or no fee accepted.
St. Ives, Huntingdon.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

BEATRICE E. KENT (Lyric Authoress)
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MR. AUGUSTUS TOOP, A.R.C.O.,
Director of the Music, St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, W., &c.
34, Winchester Avenue, Brondesbury, N.W.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto). Engagements at Finsbury, Whitechapel, Highbury, New Cross, Highgate, City, Stockwell, Nottingham, Dudley, Brighton, Mile End, Lewisham, Blackheath. Address, 14, Gladsmuir Rd., Whitehall Pk., N.

MISS NINA CARLTON
(DRAMATIC SOPRANO).
Concerts, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
Address, 10, Chalk Farm Road, N.W.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO).
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

MISS
KATHERINE NASH, G.S.M.
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
"An excellent soprano vocalist. Has always given thorough satisfaction at the many engagements I have given her as a solo singer."—William H. Cummings, Esq.
Address, 9, Ruskin Road, Tottenham, N.

MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
130, Marylebone Road, N.W.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MISS WINIFRED WYNNE
(NEW DRAMATIC SOPRANO).

LIVERPOOL MUSICAL SOCIETY.
"Redemption" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater."

Liverpool Post: "Miss Wynne made her first appearance in Liverpool, and achieved such a success that a further hearing would be most acceptable. She possesses a beautifully clear soprano not marred by vibrato."—April 6, 1901.

Musical Standard: "Miss Wynne sang with much success, the high C ringing out pure and true, and her vocalism was in keeping with her voice."—April 13, 1901.

MISS WINIFRED WYNNE
SPECIALLY ENGAGED FOR THE LIVERPOOL PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY, 1902.
HUDDERSFIELD CHORAL SOCIETY,
"ISRAEL IN EGYPT."

Huddersfield Examiner: "Miss Wynne was the soprano, and with bright and strong ringing musical voice, she sang accurately, ably, and artistically. She rang out the final air with perfect intonation and fine commanding style."

For terms and vacant dates—
Messrs. W. B. HEALEY AND SON,
17, Great Marlborough Street, W. Telegrams—"Healey's Agency, London."

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE
(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, 1898; Sheffield Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 30, Mornington Crescent, N.W.

MISS FLORENCE RANSTEAD
(NEW AMERICAN CONTRALTO).
The Times: "A real love for the best music and a cultivated taste that are in themselves most valuable."
WEST BROMWICH CHORAL SOCIETY.
West Bromwich Chronicle: "Miss Ranstead's fine contralto voice, of deep, full, and rich tone, was heard to the greatest advantage."
For terms and vacant dates—
Messrs. W. B. Healey and Son, 17, Great Marlborough Street, W.
Telegrams—"Healey's Agency, London."

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR. BEN JOHNSON
(TENOR, of Madame Patti's Tour, 1900).
Oratorio, Concerts, &c., 64, Clovelly Road, Ealing, W.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. WILLIAM A. SHEEN
(PRINCIPAL TENOR, the City Temple).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
For terms, apply, 116, High Street, Kingsland, N.E.

MR.
JAMES LEYLAND.

"HIAWATHA."

DUNDEE CHORAL UNION CONCERT.

"Mr. James Leyland sang 'Onaway! awake, Beloved!' with freedom of style and warmth of feeling; at the conclusion of which, chorus as well as audience forgot in their enthusiasm the propriety of postponing their applause until the Symphony was ended."—The Courier, March 27, 1901.

"'Onaway! awake, Beloved!' was splendidly rendered by Mr. James Leyland."—The Advertiser, March 27, 1901.

"To Mr. James Leyland must be accorded the honours of the evening. His is a tenor voice of rare quality, and his phrasing and enunciation were delightful."—Evening Post, March 27, 1901.

"Mr. Leyland's singing of 'Onaway! awake, Beloved!' was admirable."—Evening Telegraph, March 27, 1901.

Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE).

Mr. Henry J. Wood (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.

"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.

"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.

"Henry J. Wood."

AND

MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO).
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. JOHN BROWNING
(BARITONE),
SOLOIST, LEEDS MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1898,
Of the leading English and Scotch Concerts,
Principal Bass, Leeds Parish Church, &c.
Extensive Répertoire, about 100 works.

Season 1900-1901: Has sung baritone solos in "Elijah" (4), "Messiah" (12), "Creation" (11) "Judas" (10), "Faust," "Hiawatha" (2), "Caractacus" (title-rôle), "King Olaf," "Lay of the Last Minstrel," "King Arthur," "Rose Maiden" (3), "May Queen," "Bride of Dunkerron," Bach's B minor Mass, "A Stronghold sure" and "Sleepers, Wake," "Last Judgment," "Crusaders," "Lay of the Bell" (2), "The Saviour," "Crucifixion," &c., besides numerous Classical and Ballad Concerts.
Address, Marlboro' Grove, Leeds.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
Professional Diploma, Incorporated Society of Musicians)
(BARITONE).
Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts.
For terms and Press notices, address, 24, Station Road, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. DENNIS DREW
(BARITONE).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes.
Ormefield, Church End, Finchley.

MR. DAVID HUGHES
(BARITONE).

"Messiah."—Cardiff Festival.—"Mr. David Hughes's delivery of 'Thus saith the Lord' was one of the finest examples of Handelian declamation within my experience. Not only every note, but, what is more important, every word told the story belonging to it. So in other parts of the work this singer had to do."—Daily Telegraph (Mr. Joseph Bennett).

Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

MR. CHARLES KNOWLES
(BARITONE),
Of the Leeds, London, Sheffield, and Chester Musical Festivals,
Queen's Hall Promenade and Symphony Concerts,
Crystal Palace and Principal Provincial Concerts.
Is now booking for Season 1901-2. For terms, address direct, 24, Acacia Road, St. John's Wood, N.W.; or usual London Agents.

MR. & MRS.
WALLIS A. WALLIS, I.S.M.
(Baritone and Soprano, Elocutionists).
Quartet, Concerts, Resident and other Pupils. Sharon, Acton, W.

MR. EDGAR ARCHER
(PRINCIPAL BASS of the City Temple, of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, Langdale, Rutland Park, Willesden Green, N.W.

MR. FERGUS ASQUITH
(Vicar-Choral—BASS)
Of the Bristol, Colston Hall, and Plymouth Guildhall Concerts.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.

Handel's "Samson" at the Colston Hall, Bristol.—"Mr. Asquith's delivery of 'Honour and Arms' was a conscientious effort, marked by cultivated vocalisation, and in this and other difficult passages assigned to him he showed sound musical training."—Times and Mirror, Bristol.

Address, Cathedral, Wells.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN
(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. ENRICO NOVO
(BASS-BARITONE).
Concerts, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
Daisy Bank, Penhale Road, Portsmouth.

MISS MARIAN JAY
(A.R.A.M.). (SOLO VIOLINIST.)
Concerts, &c., address, 5, Hollywood Road, South Kensington.

MR. HERBERT WALENN
(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MISS ELLEN CHILDS
(CHROMATIC HARPIST)
Having studied in Paris under the direction of the Inventor, Miss Childs is prepared to give LESSONS on the NEW CHROMATIC HARP (without pedals). For terms, apply, 170, Belsize Road, N.W.; or, care of Messrs. Pleyell Wolff, Lyon and Co., 79-80, Baker Street, Portman Square, W.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)
(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT
Begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to 105, Brondesbury Villas, London, N.W.

SOLO BOYS.
LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.

President, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
Principal, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.

Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.

A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available.

For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.

SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. James Bates, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities; Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppel St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus.Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: F.R.C.O. (paper work), 1901; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1900, and previous years; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music and Pianoforte Teaching), 1897, 1898, and 1899; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.O., 1900; CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that EIGHTEEN of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1900. Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1900, FIFTY-SIX passes; L.R.A.M., 1897-1900, NINETEEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

POSTAL LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. Corrections and examples given. Reference, past and present pupils. A. E. Taylor, Mus. Bac., Durham, A.R.C.O., 4, Brookfield, Lancaster.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES and PREPARES CANDIDATES for all MUSICAL EXAMS. Particulars, giving revised terms, sent post-free. Address, 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

VOICES TRAINED (Altos included) and Sight-Singing and the PIANOFORTE TAUGHT by Mr. W. A. FROST (Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral), at 16, Amwell Street, Myddelton Square, E.C. Many pupils of Mr. Frost have obtained Cathedral and other Choir Appointments in open competitions. Latest successes: Bass, at St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate; and Alto, at St. Sepulchre's, Newgate Street.

TRAINING of TENORS.—Mr. E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N. The principles on which Mr. Davidson Palmer's Method is based are fully explained in his book, "THE RIGHTLY-PRODUCED VOICE," which contains information of the utmost importance to tenors. Price, bound in cloth, 2s. 6d., Post-free, from the Author.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for RÉPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M., &c., Teacher of Music, Woolwich Polytechnic. LESSONS at 60, Berners Street, W., in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. All exams. Letters to 87, Herbert Road, Plumstead.

MR. J. HERBERT WILLIAMS, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M. (Piano), Director of the Music, Westbourne Park Institute, Conductor of the Choral Society, &c., gives LESSONS on the PIANO, SINGING, and THEORY at 60, Berners Street, and at Bayswater. Organ Lessons and Recitals. Schools attended. Address, 47, Elgin Crescent, W.

PIANO.—HARMONY LESSONS by former Pupil first master Royal College Music. K. M. O. R., 23, Mortlake Road, Kew.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

BAKER STREET CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Ltd.,

6, UPPER BAKER STREET, N.W.
(One Minute from the Metropolitan Station).
The Rev. Canon Francis J. Holland, Chairman.

PIANO.—Mr. Oscar Beringer, Miss Ethel Boyce, A.R.A.M., Miss Bryant, certificated Frankfort Hoch Conservatoire, Miss Jessie Davies, A.R.A.M., Miss Kate Robinson, certificated Raff Conservatoire, Frankfort, Misses M. Moore and D. Lucas.
VIOLIN.—Herr Josef Ludwig, Miss L. M. Nunn, R.A.M., Miss Eveleigh, L.R.A.M., Silver Med., R.A.M.
VIOLONCELLO.—Miss A. F. Vernet, L.R.A.M.
ORGAN.—Mr. F. A. W. Docker, A.R.A.M., Organist of St. Andrew's, Wells Street, Professor of the Organ at the Guildhall School of Music, &c.
SINGING.—Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Margaret Barter.
SIGHT READING AND ENSEMBLE PLAYING.—Miss Harrison and Miss Holland: Piano and Strings.
ELOCUTION.—Miss Chute.
HARMONY CLASSES.—Orchestral Practices, during Lent and Christmas Terms.

For Prospectus, &c., apply to the Headmistress, Miss Lilla B. Strong, 6, Upper Baker Street, N.W.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—CHORISTERSHIPS.—The TRIAL of VOICES to fill vacancies in the Choir School will be held on Tuesday, May 21.

Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between nine and twelve years of age.

For particulars, apply to the Dean.

Names to be sent in by May 14.

SOPRANO LEADER REQUIRED, for Beckenham Congregational Church. Attendance at morning and evening services on Sundays and choir practice on Friday evenings. Please state remuneration required. Apply to J. W. Lewis, Westfield, Beckenham.

CHOIR BOYS at the American Church in Paris receive FREE EDUCATION and BOARD, with the advantage of acquiring a practical knowledge of the French language. Requirements: Good Voice (essential) and Choir experience. Apply, by letter, Mr. Augustus Toop, 34, Winchester Avenue, Brondesbury, N.W.

CHOIR BOYS at St. Peter's Church, Vere Street, Oxford Street, receive FREE EDUCATION at the Polytechnic Schools, Regent Street, or Salary, after a term of Probation. Travelling expenses paid during probation. Six Vacancies. Apply, by letter, Mr. Augustus Toop, as above.

CHOIR BOYS WANTED, St. Simon's, Upper Chelsea, S.W. Salary, £4 per annum. Address, Organist, 89, Sarsfeld Road, Balham, S.W.

THERE will shortly be VACANCIES in a CHOIR SCHOOL in the country. Boys must have a good voice and a good ear, and be between nine and twelve years of age. Board, lodging, and education free. Evelyn, Countess of Craven, Ashdown Park, Shrivenham.

ALTO WANTED, St. Michael's, Paddington. £15. Apply (by letter only), Edmund Rogers, 45, Alma Sq., N.W.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir for a TENOR, either a Lay Clerk or Choral Scholar.—Stipend offered, £80 a year (with certain allowances in case of Choral Scholar).
Date of competition, May 17, 1901.
For further information, apply to the Dean, King's College, Cambridge.
Applications to be sent in by May 10.

TENOR WANTED, in return for Lessons in Singing, Organ, or Piano. All Saints', Devonshire Road, South Lambeth. Address, W. A., 15, Thurlby Road, West Norwood.

HOLY TRINITY, Sloane Square. — BASS and TENOR (Chorus) WANTED. Must be good readers. Salary, £25 each. Apply (by letter only, no testimonials) to Walter Alcock, Organist and Director of the Choir, The Vestry.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, for All Saints', Derby (Corporation Church). Degree essential. Must be a good disciplinarian and thoroughly experienced in voice production. Liberal salary. Applications, with three testimonials (not originals), with full particulars and three references, to be sent to the Vicar, Rev. J. Howell, Clergy Seaside Rest, Margate (till May 10; after that date, Derby).

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for West United Free Church, Greenock, Scotland, to commence duties on 1st September next. Salary, £60 per annum. Applications, with testimonials (copies), to be lodged not later than 15th May, with D. McGillivray, 88, Finnart Street, Greenock.

ORGANIST WANTED, about Midsummer, for St. Barnabas', Sutton, Surrey. £36. Young organist well recommended might suit. Apply, by May 10, to the Vicar.

THE Organist of St. Michael's, Paddington, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Exceptional opportunities for studying choir-training. Edmund Rogers, 45, Alma Square, N.W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, A.R.C.O. (28), desires an APPOINTMENT after Midsummer. Six years' experience as Church Organist and Director of Music at a school. Good organ essential. Excellent testimonials. Communicant. Good recitalist. Apply, C. E. J., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

GENTLEMAN (31), F.R.C.O., I.S.M., Organist and Director of the Choir of well-known Church on South Coast, desires POST on the CONTINENT for next winter. Very successful Choir-trainer and Accompanist. Cathedral services, recitals, choral and orchestral work; also Latin, Greek, and English. Excellent testimonials and highest references. W., 24, Dyke Rd., Brighton.

THE Organist of Winchester College, Mr. W. HUTT, who is resigning his post in July next, having held it for 36 years, seeks an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Parish Church in neighbourhood of Kingston-on-Thames preferred. Address, Montrose, Winchester.

WANTED, by Young Man (21), RE-ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST or DEPUTY. Services voluntary in return for practice on good organ. Good testimonial. F. R., 2, Single Terrace, Forest Lane, Stratford, E.

ORGANIST desires ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST or ASSISTANT. Non-Church preferred. London or easy suburb. Small salary. Highest testimonials. Apply, Organist, 19, High Street, Windsor.

TO ORGANISTS.—Advertiser is willing to act as ASSISTANT, in return for practice and occasional lessons. London or suburbs. Beech, 13, Gowlett Road, S.E.

CONCERT ENGAGEMENTS.—SOPRANO vocalist seeks ENGAGEMENT in either Solo or Part-Singing. Big compass. Attack sure. Apply, E. J. H., Novello & Co., Ltd.

HARPIST (Medalist, Certificate and Licentiate, R.A.M.) desires Orchestral Engagement. Some experience. Good soloist and teacher. Apply, Miss Edith Webb, 21, Park Sq., N.W.

PIANIST for DANCES and AT HOMES.—There is at present an OPENING in one of the principal towns in SCOTLAND for a thoroughly good EXECUTANT, who could also organise and conduct, in a musicianly manner, various sizes of bands. There is an opening also for a competent Violinist for the same class of business. Apply, P. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY PIANIST (20), A.L.C.M., L.R.A.M., requires ENGAGEMENT as RESIDENT MISTRESS in a School. Apply, Bonsor, Shelley Library, Boscombe.

LADY desires ENGAGEMENT as PRACTISING ACCOMPANIST. Mrs. Cheesman, 22, Morshead Mansions, Maida Vale.

WANTED, a thoroughly efficient PIANO TUNER for country work. Wages, £2 10s. per week and commission. Send photo and full particulars to Qualified, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER requires ENGAGEMENT as IMPROVER. Good violinist. Aged 20. Salary moderate. Address, Violin, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER open to ENGAGEMENT. Practical, steady man; good knowledge American Organs, Harms., ordinary repairs, &c. C. H. P., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a Gentleman of experience as MANAGER of a large MUSIC WAREHOUSE in an important city. His duties would be principally over the Piano Department, but he should be capable of all work should necessity arise. He should be a smart Salesman and good Pianist, with good manners and address. High-class references would be required, and his character bear strict investigation. The desire for a first-class man is in consequence of the proprietor being anxious to take a less active part in the management and have someone who can be implicitly trusted to take his place when required. A liberal salary will be given to a thoroughly competent person. Address, O. P. Q., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, for Provincial Firm, YOUNG MAN with experience in Sales and Bookkeeping. Vacancy about June. Full particulars and good references required. State salary required, to Concert, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TRAVELLER.—Manufacturer requires TRAVELLER already on the Road, to carry sample Banjos, &c., on commission. Apply, R. J. S., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUNG MAN (26) desires SITUATION in Music Warehouse. Thorough knowledge of sheet catalogues and small goods; experienced in buying; good piano salesman. Highest references. T. R. B., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

BAYREUTH. — WAGNER FESTIVAL. — An English Lady has taken a large house, facing open country, six minutes from the Theatre. Every English comfort. Excellent cuisine. All arrangements undertaken. Apply, at once, Mrs. Field, Petrockstowe Rectory, Dolton, N. Devon.

MASON & HAMLIN AMERICAN ORGAN for SALE. 3 manuals and pedals, with pipe top. 32 stops, in perfect order. Cost 200 guineas; price 75 guineas. Photo sent if required, or may be seen by appointment. D 94, Novello & Co., Ltd., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827). Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge

£20, or OFFER.—PIPE ORGAN. 1 manual and pedals, 6 stops. Pitch pine case. Ornamental front speaking pipes. Just been renovated. Must sell; room wanted. Apply, W. D., 184, Burdett Road, Bow, E.

THREE-MANUAL and PEDAL CHAMBER ORGAN. Exceptional opportunity to acquire modern-built instrument. Twenty-five stops; two swell boxes; gas engine, &c. Apply, 361, Liverpool Road, N.

ORGANS for SALE or HIRE, or payable in five years. Six new ORGANS, at £150, £250, £255, £265, £350, and £600; four Second-hand Organs, at £80, £165, £180, £200. Price list sent with specifications for building Organs, from £100 to £2,000. Alfred Monk's Organ Works, 556, Holloway Road, London.

VARIOUS high-class ORGANS. Suit Church or Chapel. Two and three manuals. Constructed with all modern appliances. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester, and Preston.

ORGAN for SALE, second-hand. 2 manuals, 12 stops, open CC pedals and Bourdon, hand and foot-blowers. Cope, 74, Asylum Road, S.E.

FOR SALE.—TWO-MANUAL PIPE ORGAN, with Pedals. 12 stops, 2 composition pedals, swell pedal. Good powerful tone. Now in use for Sunday Services. Recently overhauled. For further particulars, apply to Mr. John Horn, 64, Mulgrave Street, Liverpool.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

BROADWOOD small BOUDOIR GRAND PIANO. Modern iron frame; 7 octaves; slightly used; lovely tone. 40 gns., cost 110 gns. Also small upright by BROADWOOD, 16 gns. View at Mr. Fieldwick's, Organist of St. John's, Cromer House, Putney.

CELLO for SALE, by GUERSAN (Paris, 1735-66). In good condition. Price £16. May be seen any evening. Thornton, 349, Lordship Lane, Dulwich, London, S.E.

VIRGIL PRACTICE CLAVIER for SALE. In excellent condition. Price £10. Address, W. Butt, 30, College Road, Cheshunt, Herts.

WANTED, PIANO and MUSIC BUSINESS, with good Teaching and Tuning connection. Address, stating full particulars, to J. L., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANISTS, &c.

RUMMENS'

Organ Pedal Attachment to Pianofortes

FOR HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.

STRAIGHT AND CONCAVE, RADIATING AND CONCAVE Or any other form of Pedal Board.

UNRIVALLED FOR TOUCH, APPEARANCE, DURABILITY AND PRICE.

Sir JOHN STAINER: "I can confidently recommend it . . . nothing more valuable."
Sir FRED. BRIDGE: "I have tested it . . . successful . . . will give satisfaction."
Sir GEO. MARTIN: "I think very highly of it . . . clever."
Dr. HARDING: "I am delighted with it . . . in every way a success . . . the best."
Similar Testimonials from the most distinguished Organists and Musicians.

Particulars free. Write or call.
1, WYNNE ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.

(ESTABLISHED 1841.)

Specifications and Estimates sent free.

TO COMPOSERS.

MARRIOTT AND WILLIAMS,

MUSIC PUBLISHERS,

92, GREAT PORTLAND STREET, LONDON, W.,

Undertake the Revising, Engraving, and Publishing of Authors' Musical Works, in the very Best Style and at the lowest charges. The Finest Paper used and the Best Workmanship in the trade. Estimates free on receipt of MSS. Composers' works included in list without extra charge.

PRIVATE ROOMS FOR PRACTICE AND TEACHING.

Lessons by competent Professors given in every branch of Music, Vocal and Instrumental.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights. Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

REMOVAL.—MUSICAL OPINION and MUSIC TRADE REVIEW Office is now REMOVED (from Holborn Bars) to 35, Shoe Lane, Holborn, E.C.

FOUR PRIZES, of Three Guineas each, are offered for Children's Anniversary Music. Particulars, Hymns, and a copy of the last selection (for 1901) will be sent Post-free, on receipt of two penny stamps, by James Broadbent, 13, Brunswick Place, Leeds.

THE Members of the Abbey Glee Club offer a PRIZE of TEN GUINEAS for an original Part-Song, Glee, or Madrigal, for four voices. Compositions must be sent under seal, with the name and address of the Composer, to the Secretary, Mr. Fred. W. Farmer, 323, Southampton Street, Camberwell, S.E., by the 30th June next, after which date no composition will be received.

TO CHORAL and ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.—Several CHORAL WORKS, PART-SONGS, and ORCHESTRAL WORKS for SALE. Applications for lists to Dr. Bunnett, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

ORGANISTS, CHOIRMASTERS, and every MUSICIAN should send for SPECIMENS (free) of DINHAM, BLYTH and CO.'S MUSIC AUTO-LITHO PRINTING. Anthems, Kyries, Services, Songs, &c., printed (black ink) from twenty-four and upwards, at trifling cost. 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

SOUVENIR of QUEEN VICTORIA.—PHOTOGRAPHIC COPY of PROGRAMME of CONCERT at BUCKINGHAM PALACE, at which the Queen sang five times. 1s. Hans Browne, 37, St. Anne's Hill, Wandsworth, S.W.

MENDELSSOHN LETTER and MS. of C minor Symphony as Piano Duet (published), date 1829, for SALE. Can be seen at Weekes and Co.'s, 14, Hanover Street, W.

Now ready. Price 1s. Post-free.

THE BOY'S VOICE AT THE BREAKING PERIOD. By E. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon. May be obtained from the AUTHOR, 28, Digby Road, Finsbury Park, N.; or, from Joseph Williams, 32, Great Portland Street, W.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By ARTHUR CARNALL, Mus.B., Cantab. 4d. Sample copies, Penge, S.E.

Sixth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By WILLIAM S. VINNING, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

KYRIE ELEISON in D flat. By Rev. T. NORMANDALE, B.A. Price 1d. Third Edition.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—"Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul." "Creation." 1s. each book.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

EIGHT NEW TUNES

FOR

SUNDAY SCHOOL FESTIVALS

INCLUDING ONE FOR THE NEW CENTURY.

Music, 7s. per 100; Words, 2s. per 100.

SPECIAL TITLE-PAGE FOR QUANTITIES.

Write immediately for sample to SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION, 1, Piccadilly, Manchester.

New Edition, revised to 1901. Price 6s.

PARR'S CHURCH PSALMODY: Contains 402 Tunes, 345 Chants, with various Responses, giving Memoirs of all the Composers and Histories of the Pieces, particulars not brought together elsewhere.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SONGS COMPOSED BY W. G. THOMPSON.

TWO SONGS.—"We sat down and wept" (Byron). Neiphile's Song ("Boccacio"), 2s. net, C to G; "Saul" (Byron), B to F, 2s. net. WEEKES AND CO., 14, Hanover St., Regent St., W.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

(INSTITUTED 1872.)

President:
The Right Hon. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.

Director of Examinations:
JAMES HIGGS, Mus.D.

MAY 22 is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE (Theory) EXAMINATION, which takes place on June 22.

JUNE 1 is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the following OPEN SCHOLARSHIPS, tenable for three years, and EXHIBITIONS tenable for one year:—

Queen Victoria Composition Scholarship.
One Pianoforte Scholarship.
One Violin Scholarship.
One Orchestral Instrument Scholarship (other than Violin).
Benedict Pianoforte Exhibition.
Sims Reeves Vocal Exhibition.
College Violin Exhibition.
College Viola Exhibition.
College Violoncello Exhibition.
College Double-Bass Exhibition.
College Organ Exhibition.

JUNE 22 is the LAST DAY OF ENTRY for the 56th Half-yearly HIGHER EXAMINATIONS, commencing at the College on July 22.

The forthcoming Local Examinations in INSTRUMENTAL and VOCAL MUSIC take place up to and including July, at the various centres (a list of which may be had on application) throughout the United Kingdom, and include Pianoforte and Organ Playing, Solo Singing, and Violin Playing.

The New Preparatory Examination in Pianoforte and Violin Playing will be included.

Particulars and Entry Forms on application.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.
Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 176.

BEETHOVEN. Complete Sonatas, 5s.
Two Books, 3s. each. Each Sonata also separately.
Edited by LISZT.
Magnificently engraved and printed. 560 pages.

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 122.

MOZART. Complete Sonatas, 3s. net; also separately.
Edited and carefully fingered by GRAHAM P. MOORE.
New Century Edition. Finely engraved. 307 pages.

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 267.

BERINGER, OSCAR. DAILY TECHNICAL STUDIES.
Complete, 6s.; without Scales, 5s.; Scales and Arpeggi alone, 2s.

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 218.

MOORE, GRAHAM P. FIRST PRINCIPLES OF TECHNIC.
3s. 6d. Two Books, 2s. each.
Also, THE CANDIDATES' SCALES, for all Divisions and Grades, 9d. to 3s.

Now Ready.

SEVCIK. VIOLIN SCHOOL FOR BEGINNERS.
Seven Books, at 1s. 6d.; or, complete, bound, 8s.
Entirely new method.
Preparatory Technic, Four Books; Violin Technic, Four Books; Bowing Method, Six Books.

Write for Lists of Publications for Orchestra, Violin, Piano, &c.

BOSWORTH & CO., 5, Princes Street, London, W.;
Leipzig, Paris, Vienna.

BROADWOODS' (ESTD. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (HIGHEST POSSIBLE AWARD)
PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

LECTURE-SESSIONS
FOR
ORGANISTS AND CHOIRMASTERS
WILL BE HELD DURING EASTER WEEK
AT
THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL,
22, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.

The Lectures will include the following:—
Choir-Training—Dr. G. F. HUNTLEY.
Organ Accompaniment—Mr. H. W. RICHARDS, Mus.B.
Organ Construction—Mr. THOMAS CASSON.
Voice Production—Mr. WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, Mr. HENRY BEAUCHAMP, and Mr. T. J. HOARE.
Art of Teaching the Organ—Dr. YORKE TROTTER.
Harmony—Dr. CHARLES VINCENT.
Counterpoint—Dr. C. W. PEARCE.
Musical Form—Dr. PERCY RIDEOUT.
Composition—Dr. CUTHBERT HARRIS.
Sight-Singing—Mr. HARDING BONNER.
The Orchestra in combination with the Organ—Dr. YORKE TROTTER.
Plainsong (Solesmes Method)—Mr. H. B. BRIGGS.
Plainsong Accompaniment—Mr. HAROLD GIBBS.
Musical rendering of the Liturgy—Rev. JAMES BADEN-POWELL.
Musical Training of Congregations—Mr. David Evans, Mus.B.

LECTURE-CLASSES for Clergy desiring instruction in Voice Production and in the Art of Public Speaking and Reading will be held by Mr. HENRY BEAUCHAMP and Mr. CHARLES FRY.

Full particulars and application forms can be obtained from the Hon. Sec., 22, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W.

228 PAGES, ROYAL QUARTO. PRICE 42s.

EARLY BODLEIAN MUSIC.

DUFAY
AND HIS CONTEMPORARIES
FIFTY COMPOSITIONS
(RANGING FROM ABOUT A.D. 1400 TO 1440)
TRANSCRIBED FROM MS. CANONICI MISC. 213
IN THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY, OXFORD
BY
J. F. R. STAINER, B.C.L., M.A.,
AND
C. STAINER.

WITH EIGHT FACSIMILES FROM THE MS.
AN INTRODUCTION
BY
E. W. B. NICHOLSON, M.A.
BODLEY'S LIBRARIAN
AND A CRITICAL ANALYSIS OF THE MUSIC
BY
SIR JOHN STAINER.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

MAY 1, 1901.

JOHN STAINER.

'I think you must tell Mr. —— that if he will be so good as to wait till I am dead, you will give him a few facts about my life from authentic sources in The Musical Times within a black border! Also if he will wait a little longer, he may perhaps hear a lot of utterly impossible and grossly untrue legends; such rubbish seems to spring up on the grassy graves of sinners as rapidly as on those of saints.'

These words formed part of a letter written by Sir John Stainer to the present writer as recently as January 28 last. He and Lady Stainer were then staying at Dover, preparatory to taking a long tour in the South of France and Italy. Free from any pressing claims upon his time and energies at home, he looked forward to the enjoyment of a leisurely holiday. He was in the best of health and spirits during his wanderings in the sunny south, journeying here and there, writing the usual cheery letters to his friends, and making plans for the future. On the last day of March (Palm Sunday) the travellers were at Verona on their way to Venice. A visit to the ancient Amphitheatre had occupied part of the morning, and after lunch at the Hotel de Londres, Sir John retired to his room for his usual afternoon nap. On the return of Lady Stainer from church she found him in a shivering condition, and suffering severe pain in his chest. Remedies were applied, but, alas! to little purpose. In a few moments the music-loving soul of John Stainer was calmed in death.

Farewell, dear brother! We shall miss thy genial presence and sunny smile; but the memory of thy sympathetic, warm-hearted nature we shall ever cherish.

John Stainer was born on June 6, 1840, at 2, Broadway, a little thoroughfare, that strangely belied its name, which ran parallel to and north of St. Thomas's Street, Southwark. It is impossible to give a photograph of the house, as the street and the habitations thereof have been absorbed in the maw of London Bridge Railway Station—the southern portion of the great terminus. His father, William Stainer, was schoolmaster of the parish school of St. Thomas's, Southwark, with which avocation he combined the duties of Registrar of Births and Deaths for the district—in fact, he had the felicity of registering his own son John, as the Registers at Somerset House duly testify. The mother of the infant John, formerly Miss Ann Collier, could claim descent from an old Huguenot family settled in Spitalfields. The family consisted of four girls and two boys. The elder son, the Rev. Dr. William Stainer, who died in 1898,* devoted his life with self-denying enthusiasm to ameliorating the condition of the deaf and dumb. Like his only brother, John, he was a man of a singularly kind and sympathetic nature. The eldest daughter, Miss Annie Stainer, held, from the year 1849, for fifty years, the post of organist of the Magdalen Hospital Chapel, Streatham, and during the whole of that half-century she never missed a single service—probably a unique record!

In the course of an interesting conversation for the purposes of this article, Miss Stainer, the organist above referred to, recalls some interesting incidents connected with the childhood of her brother, John. 'I was fourteen years his senior,' she says. 'He was the sweetest, most darling little mite in the world, and he had a singularly affectionate disposition. He was very delicate as a child, and he became my constant care and delight. We had an organ in our house which had a fine polished mahogany case and gilt pipes. Our friends thought a good deal of it, but we young people used to turn up our little noses at it. At one time we had five pianos in the house; one of them had pedals—full compass. My father was a most enthusiastic lover of music. Passionately fond of children, he was a patient and very clever teacher, who made everything attractive and interesting to his pupils and his children. He was my brother John's first teacher of music, although he could not play very much himself, his performances being of the slow and sure kind. John used to watch him as he played the organ, and at the slightest indication of any hesitation he would say, "Five shillings for a wrong note, dad!" My father always instilled into us that "duty was the first thing," and this we have tried to carry out. As for my dear brother John, I cannot say anything too good about him.'

* See The Musical Times of May, 1898, p. 341.

EARLY EFFORTS.

'There was no organ in St. Thomas's Church (of which parish school my father was the master), but there was a small chamber organ in my home on which I played as soon as I was tall enough to reach the keys when standing!' The foregoing thread of autobiography is contained in a letter Sir John wrote us on January 21. Strangely enough, during his recent and fatal tour in Italy he one day asked Lady Stainer to buy him a sketch-book. This she did, with the result that on the first page he sketched the identical organ of his childhood, with himself as the standing performer! It is with peculiar pleasure that we are enabled to furnish our readers with a reproduction of this interesting sketch, by the special and kind permission of Lady Stainer, to whom it is a very precious relic of Sir John's last days. This is the only sketch in the book; but he evidently intended it to be the first of a series, as on a later page we find the following notes: 'First steps,' 'After a successful solo,' 'Pursuit of art under difficulties,' 'The book-closet,' 'Praise ye, &c.' 'C. Lockey and the solo.' Then under the heading of Oxford: 'The gentleman's tired,' 'Corfe's Knocker,' 'After the Dead March,' 'A walk with the V.P.' But ——the remaining pages are blank.

REMINISCENCES OF HIS BOYHOOD.

At the age of seven Stainer could play Bach's Fugue in E major ('The saints in glory fugue,' as old Sam. Wesley called it) and the Overture to 'Acis and Galatea.' An interesting glimpse of the home life of the Stainers during Johnnie's boyhood period has been kindly furnished to us by his old friend the Rev. Arthur Whitley, M.A., head master of Witton Grammar School, Northwich. Mr. Whitley writes under date of the 4th ult. as follows:—

By that wondrous and subtle 'divinity which shapes our ends,' the late Sir John Stainer and myself were, at a very early age, brought into close friendship with each other. Though for half-a-century I have never failed to keep in touch with him, yet my most intimate knowledge dates from the 'little Eton jacket' days. I was a Foundation Scholar of St. Paul's School, then opposite the Cathedral, and Johnnie was a chorister at the Cathedral Choir School—so our acquaintance was 'out of school.' On being let out of afternoon school I invariably rushed across to the Cathedral to hear the 'Anthem,' which for six years I do not think I ever missed. I sometimes came in for the Psalms, but always for the Anthem. After one of the services I waited for Stainer and, waylaying him, said: 'Do you know you sang that verse most magnificently.' (It is not often boys of ten years of age compliment each other.) He replied: 'You are very kind to say so. Which way are you going?' I replied: 'Down Cheapside.' 'Then may I accompany you'? 'With pleasure.' And thus it was that our lasting acquaintance began. After that, it was a very rare thing for us to miss each other in walking home, the little beloved disciple, as I thought him, always instructing me in some musical mystery. Once when my little friend Johnnie asked my opinion as to the 'root' of the first chord of Mendelssohn's 'Wedding March,' I 'squared' my ignorance by purchasing a pennyworth of apples!

All this ended in our visiting each other's homes. Many opportunities therefore presented themselves of seeing Stainer's home-life. It was very humble, very sweet, very instructive. At a very modest house in St. Thomas's Street the boy, who was destined to become the great musician, passed his boyhood—no green grass, no budding trees, no sound of singing birds about that neighbourhood! And yet, inside that humble dwelling-place, perfect love, perfect harmony, and exuberance of mirth existed. It was a perfect holiday for me to go to tea with Stainer. His father was a schoolmaster of the old type. Wearied with his work among the unruly lads of that locality, he would come in, snatch up his violin and solace himself with playing a hymn tune! Little Johnnie frequently came in at such a time, and would sit down at the pianoforte and accompany the good old father with his evening hymn. Of course there was plenty of merriment over it; but I could see clearly enough that the old man was led by the influence of the little beloved disciple. Full of fun himself, a clever punster even at that early age, he nevertheless was the little child that seemed to lead them—his loving and devoted parents. His dear mother was devotedly fond of her boy, and it would be difficult for me to name amongst my acquaintances a more devoted, loving family than the Stainers. To know them made you better.

The one great topic of conversation, as a mere boy, was Church music. Johnnie's whole soul seemed to be entirely wrapped up in that.

I also had the pleasure of frequently meeting at the Stainers' the late Sir Arthur Sullivan, in his boyhood. Both these embryo musicians were bashful. Sullivan's bashfulness, as a boy, seemed to me to avoid the chance of being asked to play. Stainer was always ready to sit down and give you his harmony to some old hymn tune or chant; his bashfulness was what I may term simply domestic modesty. While little Johnnie was always the ladies' man at home, he never allowed himself to be spoilt. Here is an instance:—

Stainer's eldest sister was an accomplished musician and organist. It was her custom after tea and before we had the usual round game of cards, with nuts for counters, to get us boys to sit down and play something, never mind—she would insist upon it—however simple. I had played a new hymn tune, Johnnie came next with a Fugue, and when Sullivan was called upon he was nowhere to be found. Search was made for him everywhere—upstairs, downstairs, behind doors, but all in vain. We then all sat round the table and began our game. Before very long someone uttered a shriek and jumped up, and the truth was then revealed: Master Arthur had quietly crept under the table and bided his time to pinch the legs of someone who had urged him to play! Needless to say Johnnie dragged him out and made him sit down to accomplish his appointed task. I remember that his contribution on that occasion was a song he had written—the title of which he called 'The dying stag.' He was full of fun, and the title may have been a ruse.

As I look back on the early home-life of John Stainer, I can now see what an inspiration its influence gave him for such tunes as his settings of 'There's a Friend for little children,' 'The Saints of God, 'Jesu, gentlest Saviour,' and many others of deep religious feeling. His life was a pure, devoted, and consistent one, whose aim from boyhood to manhood was to elevate Music, to bring our choral services to a level in some degree worthy of the Creator of all good things. I shall not look upon his like again.

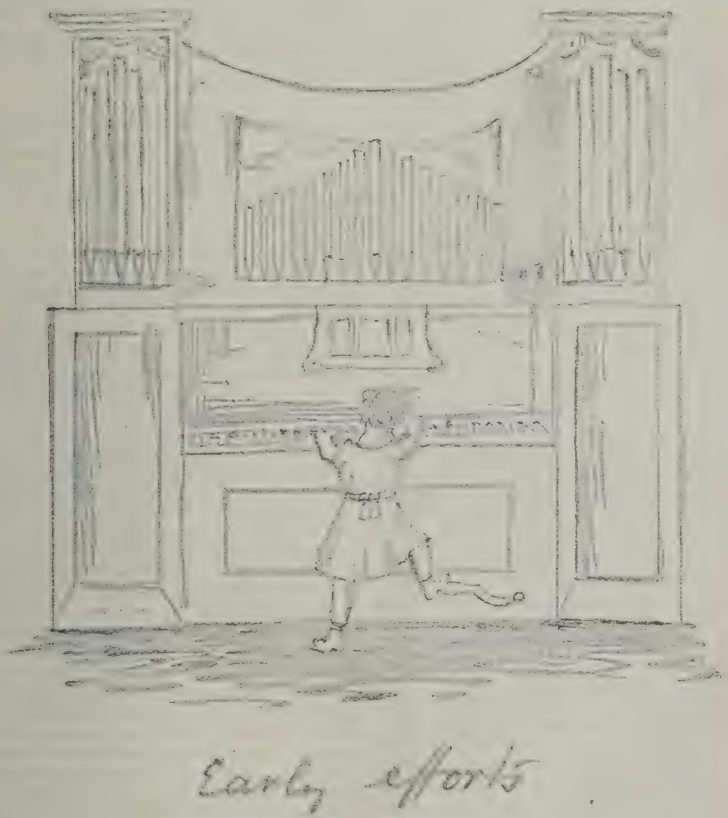
MR. HENRY GADSBY'S RECOLLECTIONS.

In April or May, 1848 (when he was 'nearly eight'), Stainer became a probationer in the choir of St. Paul's Cathedral, and a year later he was 'admitted a full chorister in the Dean's vestry—June 24, 1849.' Among his fellow-choristers was Mr. Henry Gadsby, who has very kindly sent us his recollections of his friend in the following interesting communication:—

I have much pleasure in acceding to your request. As there have appeared in several papers one or two inaccuracies, I should like to state that Sullivan and



PENCIL SKETCH OF HIMSELF MADE BY SIR JOHN STAINER SHORTLY BEFORE HIS DEATH.

(Reproduced, full size, from the original by the kind and special permission of Lady Stainer.)

Barnby were never his fellow-choristers, and that it was Stainer and I who were caught jumping over the chairs in the Cathedral, and that on another occasion we were very nearly caught in the pulpit, which at that time stood in the Choir.

One of our chief diversions on our way home from school was to dance about on the timber logs seasoning in the river by Southwark Bridge, and allow ourselves to be rocked on them by the wash occasioned by the river steamers—and it was a miracle that we did not end our career in a watery grave.

Stainer and I were the only choristers who accepted the offer of Mr. William Bayley, the music-master of the boys, to learn harmony—a thing we never regretted. So Stainer and I plodded through Hamilton (the superfluous 2nd man) and dear old Goss's Harmony.

I well remember the happy musical evenings we used to spend together as boys at his father's house in St. Thomas's Street; little Johnnie playing the Inventions and easy Fugues of John Sebastian on the pianoforte. We also used to play pianoforte duets—one of the favourites being the 'Hailstone Chorus.'

We entered the Cathedral together, but Stainer went to Tenbury before I left the choir. The last time I saw my dear old friend was at our mutual friend Sullivan's funeral, and as we walked down the Nave, I little thought that I should never see him again.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL FIFTY YEARS AGO.

Sir John himself has left on record a few incidents of his choristership at St. Paul's, which, with a few stories he related to the present writer, may here find a place. When he entered the choir he was told by the senior choristers that he was fully entitled to spur-money, if he could get it! So neglectful were the clerical authorities of the Cathedral about having 'all things done decently and in order,' that within Stainer's recollection the Hallelujah chorus was sung by 'a handful of boys and two men!' 'This,' he said, 'is strongly suggestive of the clergyman who, finding that he and his clerk constituted the whole congregation, commenced the exhortation with 'Dearly beloved Roger, the Scripture moveth you and me in sundry places, &c.' He well remembered that the rain used to percolate the dome, and he frequently saw men with pails and sawdust mopping up the pools of water. Admittance to the Cathedral in those days (except during the hours of Divine service) could only be obtained on the payment of two-pence each person. It was in the interest of the vergers to speedily clear the Cathedral after Morning or Evening prayer in order to secure all the 'tuppences' they could. The Minor Canons had a share in these admission and other fees, providing they attended the service on their appointed days. If they were in their places by the time the Venite was reached their attendance was accounted good. At that time the Choir was enclosed by the organ screen, and Stainer used to tell how he would often hear a prestissimo rush of footsteps down the Nave, soon to be followed by the scene of a Minor Canon struggling with a corpulent verger at the entrance of the Choir in order that he (the Minor Canon) might squeeze himself in before 'The Lord's Name be praised!' Happily all this is changed, and St. Paul's Cathedral is now a model of order and decorum.

As a chorister Stainer attended the choir school, of which the Rev. Minor Canon Coward was the master, at No. 1, Amen Court, the house in which he afterwards resided as organist of the Cathedral. The choirmaster at that time was William Bayley (the composer of a once popular 'Cantate Domino' and 'Deus Misereatur') and, of course, John Goss held the post of organist. Stainer sang at the funerals of Turner (1851) and the Duke of Wellington (1852), both of whom are buried in St. Paul's. In regard to the latter event, he has recorded the rehearsal at Store Street music-room of that noble anthem 'If we believe that Jesus died,' written by Goss for that impressive occasion. 'When the few bars pianissimo had died away,' he says, 'there was a profound silence for some time, so deeply had the hearts of all been touched by its truly devotional spirit. Then there gradually arose on all sides the warmest congratulation to the composer—it could hardly be termed applause, for it was something much more genuine and respectful.' These words were written nearly thirty years after the event.*

DR. STEGGALL'S REMINISCENCES.

An interesting side-light on Stainer as a boy chorister is furnished by Dr. Steggall, who has kindly sent the following interesting recollections:—

I am afraid I cannot help you very much in the way of 'Staineriana,' for circumstances have prevented a very close social intercourse during the adult period of my dear friend's life.

The occasion of my first acquaintance with him was when, in the year 1851, I went to St. Paul's to get a boy for the treble solos in my Cambridge exercise (they had not then a good solo boy at Cambridge), and one of the Minor Canons—the Rev. Mr. Coward—introduced him to me. Not only his beautiful voice, but his general personality and manner, made a great impression in the University town, and I remember Professor Walmisley being much taken with him. Looking at him admiringly during lunch after the rehearsal, he turned to me with: 'What a sweet child it is, and what a pretty little pipe it's got'!

I remember, too, that at the dinner my father gave to the London contingent of singers (several from the R.A.M.), Sterndale Bennett, W. G. Cusins, W. F. Low, and others, who had come to hear my work, how he was noticed by everyone and how readily he answered a question in Latin, jokingly made by an undergraduate, who, by-the-bye, showed his appreciation by handing half-a-crown across the table. From that time I took the greatest interest in the clever boy who, till he went to Tenbury, frequently visited me. He had—even at that early age—a remarkable facility in extempore playing in the style of Bach, and very wonderful it was. It is probable that later on the trammels of a knowledge of counterpoint and of the correct treatment of fugue may have affected this facility—but I do not know. It is with these earlier days that I am best acquainted, and—as I told him only a very short time ago—I have always loved to think of him as a boy; but no one has watched his subsequent career with more affectionate interest than I.

I may add that in the 'Fifties' (and after) I often lectured both in London and in the country, and when the subject was church, or other choral music, Stainer almost invariably assisted in the vocal illustrations. He was also at that time a constant and zealous attendant at the rehearsals and concerts of the Bach Society under Sterndale Bennett.

* From the obituary notice of Sir John Goss, in The Musical Times of June, 1880. It need no longer be a secret that this article—excellent in taste, literary merit, and warm appreciation of the life-work of his distinguished predecessor at St. Paul's—was written by Sir John Stainer.

Dr. Steggall modestly refrains from mentioning the fact that he gave Stainer some lessons in counterpoint, also that in his (Dr. Steggall's) degree exercise the St. Paul's boy with 'the pretty little pipe' sang a long sustained high B flat. The reference to Stainer's assistance at the rehearsals and performances of the old Bach Society furnishes an opportunity of reprinting the 'card of thanks,' encircled by a Gothic border, which the youthful chorister received.*

The Bach Society
Instituted 1849.
The Committee beg gratefully to acknowledge the services of Master John Stainer
on the occasion of the 1st Performance in England under the direction of W. Sterndale Bennett of the Grosse Passions Musik
by
John Sebastian Bach
Hanover Rooms, April 6th, 1854.

During his choristership Stainer received some organ lessons from George Cooper, sub-organist of St. Paul's, to whom, by the way, he dedicated his fine anthem, 'The morning stars sang together.' On one occasion when Stainer and Arthur Sullivan were with Cooper, the latter remarked: 'How I should like you two boys to race one another in life.' Stainer was entirely self-taught, however, in regard to composition. In one of his letters to us he said: 'I never had a lesson in the art of composition in my life, and have never had anyone to whom I could go for advice, so it is a marvel that I have not made even a greater fool of myself'! Apparently while still a chorister he was appointed, at the age of fifteen, organist of St. Benet's and St. Paul's, Upper Thames Street, a Wren church, of which the Rev. Minor Canon Coward was the rector. It is now the Welsh Church.

TENBURY.—THE TURNING-POINT.

The turning-point in Stainer's career came in a very remarkable way. The incident which led thereto cannot better be told than in his own words:—

It was soon after Ouseley's appointment [in 1855] as Professor [of Music at Oxford] that he came to examine the chorister boys of St. Paul's, of whom I was one. I shall never forget the nervousness with which I approached this musical and clerical dignitary when summoned to meet him in the drawing-room of our master, the Rev. J. H. Coward. But I played a Prelude and Fugue by Bach, from the 'Forty-eight,' from memory, and, at its conclusion, Sir Frederick gave me a few words of good advice and much kindly encouragement. . . .

The next interview I had with him was full of moment to me; it constituted a turning-point in my life. I was then between sixteen and seventeen years of age, and was playing the afternoon service at St. Paul's, both Goss and Cooper being absent for a few days. During the service Ouseley came quickly into the organ loft, and, after greeting me, watched me closely as I accompanied the music from the old 'scores.' On the same evening I had a letter from him to say that the object of his visit to St. Paul's had been to find an organist for St. Michael's College, and he offered me the post. I must apologise for thus introducing myself into this paper,* but it explains why and how I came to know so much about the character and abilities of my patron and friend. In 1857, after a railway journey to Worcester, and then twenty miles on the top of a coach, I found myself settled in the charming building which he had raised at his own cost for the advancement of church music. . . .

After evening service and a meal in the hall I studied or practised, or, as was frequently the case, was invited by Sir Frederick to pass the evening with him. In the splendid musical library he had collected there was a rich store of pure vocal masses of the Italian school in MS. in the old clefs, including not only the soprano and alto, but often also the now obsolete mezzo-soprano and baritone clefs. At that time he had not found opportunities of going carefully through these, and, most fortunately for me, I was asked constantly to play them through to him, he turning over, and from time to time making critical remarks. I gained much from this almost unique chance of studying the vocal writers from, say, 1550 to 1700.

Miss Stainer, in recalling the day of that eventful visit of Sir Frederick Ouseley to St. Paul's, says (although the details differ very slightly from those related by Sir John himself): 'When John came home to dinner, he said, "Sir Frederick Ouseley came to the organ loft at St. Paul's to-day. He wants an organist for his College at Tenbury." "Then he'll offer it to you, John," I at once said. "No, no," he replied. In the evening he said that Sir Frederick had again visited the organ loft at the afternoon service, at which John, as in the morning, played. "Then he has offered it to you, John," to which he could not say no.'

The present Warden, the Rev. John Hampton, of St. Michael's College, Tenbury, who was Ouseley's right-hand at the foundation of the Institution and who succeeded him, has kindly furnished the following recollections of Stainer's organistship at Tenbury—1857-59:—

Stainer worked hard at the organ and pianoforte and did a good deal of composition—to wit, his Bachelor's exercise and several anthems: 'I saw the Lord,' 'The righteous live,' and others in Ouseley's Special Anthems. He also composed some part-songs and madrigals, afterwards published, I believe, in Oxford. Besides playing at the two daily services, he gave pianoforte lessons to the boys for two hours every day. He was very fond of out-of-door sports, and joined in cricket with the boys and masters. And so his days passed each like the other.

I can well remember our astonishment when he first appeared amongst us, in the month of July, 1857. He looked too young for the post, which we considered to be so very important. However, Sir Frederick assured us that 'he would do,' and we soon found out that was true. All the while he was here I believe he was most sincerely loved by us all, and he was forward to help everyone with whom he came in contact. The curate, a first-rate mathematician, read with him and formed a very high opinion of his capabilities. We thought him bumptious, but we soon found that we were mistaken, for he was humble enough and seemed glad to be plainly spoken to by any whom he conceived had a right to speak. We were all right sorry to lose him and sincerely glad whenever he came to visit us.

* See a series of articles on 'Bach's Music in England' in The Musical Times, from September to December, 1896.

* 'The Character and Influence of the late Sir Frederick Ouseley,' by Sir John Stainer, read before the Musical Association, December 2, 1889.

Sir John was made an Hon. Fellow only last November, and we looked forward to his appearance next Michaelmas, when we were to do a new Anthem or Service with strings and organ accompaniment—'L'homme propose,' &c.

St. Michael's College, Tenbury, was (and is) an ideal spot for a young church musician. Here Stainer had not only leisure for study, but the friendship and advice of so learned a scholar and musician as the Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, the Warden of the College.

MASTER JOHN STAINER.
AGED 12.

Moreover, he had the run of the splendid musical library in addition to daily practical experience in cathedral music. During his Tenbury period he took the degree of Bachelor of Music at Oxford, on June 10, 1859. The more serious side of his work has been mentioned by the Warden in the letter already quoted. But there were humorous incidents not a few. Ouseley played the guitar, and he used to pass the evening singing Italian or Spanish national songs to his own accompaniment, always with admirable skill and good taste. He made Stainer a present of a guitar, which instrument the young organist assiduously practised. Moreover, Ouseley actually arranged Bach's first Prelude for the guitar, expressly for Stainer! The manuscript bears the following title:—

Bach's 1st Prelude. Arranged for the guitar and carefully fingered by F. A. G. O.

At the end of the autograph Ouseley has written:—

'Ad usum amici Johannis Stainer aptatum præludium hoc, quo melius quantum organis tantum etiam citharâ præter omnes emicaret D. D. D. amicus citharœda Michaelensis.'

which may be translated—

This Prelude, adapted for the use of his friend John Stainer, in order that he might excel on the guitar no less than on the organ, was presented to him by his friend the guitarist of St. Michael's.

GUTTA-PERCHA ORGAN PIPES!

One of Stainer's boy friends in London was Arthur Sullivan, two years his junior, and a chorister of the Chapel Royal. The two young gentlemen used to spend their half-holidays in trips together on the steamboats on the Thames, their enjoyment of those penny voyages being considerably enhanced by a copious consumption of nuts and oranges. Sullivan visited Stainer at Tenbury, at a time when Ouseley was erecting a large organ in the chapel, and indulging in all sorts of experiments—pipes, tubular actions, &c. Stainer and Sullivan conceived the idea that gutta-percha would make cheap and resonant organ pipes. Gutta-percha was scarce at Tenbury, and the young innovators' financial resources were limited; but, nothing daunted, they procured a few old gutta-percha soles and set to work with ardent enthusiasm to carry out their designs. The process, however, appealed so strongly, not to say disagreeably, to Sir Frederick's olfactory nerves that he at once stopped further operations, for obvious reasons. Sullivan always declared that there was a bit of jealousy on Ouseley's part in stopping the development of that important invention!

Sir Frederick Ouseley was very fond of Stainer, and treated him as a son. So highly did he estimate the capabilities of his gifted protégé that he wrote to him early in 1865 (before Stainer had attained his twenty-fifth birthday) as follows: 'I have set my heart on resigning my Professorship in your favour, as soon as you are M.A. and Mus. Doc.' With peculiar pleasure does the present writer look back upon the delightful visit he paid to Tenbury last autumn, in the genial company of Sir John Stainer and his eldest son, Mr. J. F. R. Stainer, of which excursion an illustrated account appeared in the issue of this journal of November last.

OXFORD.

The next step in the career of John Stainer was an important one. He became organist and choirmaster of Magdalen College, Oxford.

Although a mere stripling of nineteen, he at once endeared himself to his fellow-workers and made his mark in the University. The Oxford Chronicle of July 14, 1860, under the heading 'Magdalen College,' refers to him as 'the newly appointed and highly accomplished organist, Mr. Steiner' (sic). A beautiful tribute to his genial personality is furnished by an old Magdalen chorister, who, in writing a letter of condolence to Lady Stainer the other day, said:—

One of the very first to see and know 'Mr.' Stainer, at Magdalen, was myself. Directly we choristers saw him and heard him we adored him and did so ever after.

Over and above his unapproachable playing, he was one of the very few touched with the radiance of the inner life of sacred music.

In the year following his appointment to Magdalen he was elected organist to the University of Oxford, a great honour for a youth of twenty. Music did not, however, entirely absorb his intellectual faculties. He went into residence at St. Edmund Hall in order to read for his Arts degree, with the result that he obtained his B.A. in 1864. He worked steadily on, and a more important degree followed on November 9, 1865, after he had satisfied the examiners for that of Doctor of Music. His exercise on that occasion, the oratorio of 'Gideon,' was about to be performed (on November 8) in the hall of Magdalen College, but so great was the audience to hear the work that the Vice-Chancellor moved an adjournment to the Sheldonian Theatre, where the performance took place. The members of Magdalen College presented their organist with his Doctor's robes, accompanied with the following letter:—

Dear Dr. Stainer,

We beg to offer you our warmest congratulations on your recent degree, and to request your acceptance of the appropriate robes, as a mark of sincere personal regard for yourself and high appreciation of your most successful efforts to sustain the musical reputation of this College and of the University of Oxford. With our united good wishes for your future happiness, we remain,

Dear Dr. Stainer,

Yours very truly,

(Signatures follow).

The above letter was signed by forty-six members of the College, including the Rev. H. R. Bramley and the Rev. L. S. Tuckwell, both of whom were afterwards editorially associated with the recipient of this gratifying testimonial. Very soon after he had taken his Doctor's degree Sir John Stainer married Miss Eliza Cecil Randall, only daughter of Alderman Randall, of Oxford. The ceremony took place at St. Aldate's Church, Oxford, on December 27, 1865, the chief officiating clergyman being the bridegroom's attached friend, the Rev. Sir Frederick A. Gore Ouseley.

EARLY MADRIGALS AND SIR HUBERT PARRY.

A practically unknown publication belongs to the Oxford period of Stainer's career—a collection of eight madrigals, issued by subscription, and published by Messrs. Houghton and Tuke, Oxford, in 1864, and of which, by the way, there is no copy in the British Museum Library. One of these madrigals is written for two choirs of five voices, the remainder being for 5, 6, or 8 voices. In 1867 he proceeded to his M.A. degree, and in the same year was appointed a University Examiner in Music. One candidate in the first batch who came before him was Hubert Parry, then an athletic Etonian. Concerning this event Sir John wrote us (June 6, 1898): 'I was one of his three examiners (Dr. Corfe and Sir F. Ouseley being the other two) when Parry came here [to Oxford] as a lad from Eton to take his degree of Mus. Bac. Of course we all thought him bright, intelligent, and talented. While he was an undergraduate of Exeter College, I was conductor of the Exeter College Musical Society, and Parry played occasionally pianoforte solos and accompanied songs and other things admirably. It may interest you to know that I adapted Schumann's "The Luck of Edenhall" to English words for performance by that Society and that Parry accompanied (of course excellently) and I conducted the first performance of that cantata in this country.' Sir Hubert Parry dedicated to Sir John Stainer his Te Deum in D, a product of his Eton days.

SIR JOHN STAINER
AT THE AGE OF 21.

Another candidate in the same year (for the doctor's degree) was the late William Pole. It was on this occasion that Stainer first broached to Pole the subject of a learned society for musicians, which seven years afterwards came into existence as the Musical Association—the conception of the Society is undoubtedly due to Stainer. In addition to the conductorship of the Exeter College Musical Society, he held similar posts in connection with the University Amateur Musical Society and the Oxford Orpheus Society. He not only took a very active part in, but exercised a highly beneficial influence upon the musical life of the University and the city of Oxford. He founded the Oxford Philharmonic Society and conducted its first concert, June 8, 1866. His services were constantly in demand for every important function—e.g., the conduct of the music at the laying of the foundation stone of Keble College (April 25, 1868), and so on.

SOLO ORGAN PLAYING AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

It may not be generally known that as far back as 1868 Sir John Stainer began to play organ solos at the Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts—an innovation due to Sir George Grove. On the first occasion, November 7, 1868, when he was announced as 'Dr. Stainer (of Oxford),' he played Bach's G minor Prelude and Fugue and Mendelssohn's Fourth Organ Sonata. Mr. J. W. Davison noticed the performances of the Magdalen organist in the following appreciative terms:—

> The experiment of an organ performance was entirely successful, thanks to the admirable playing of Dr. Stainer. The organist of Magdalen College is a master of his instrument. Neither the Sonata of Mendelssohn nor the Fugue of Bach presented any mechanical difficulties that were not conquered with perfect ease; while in point of style and finish there was nothing of which hypercriticism could complain. We may especially instance the Allegretto in the Sonata, and the whole of the Fugue as examples of that pure legato execution which is the sine quâ non of organ playing. The works themselves are well known enough not to require description, and it therefore only remains to be said that Dr. Stainer was applauded with marked emphasis at the close of his task.—(Musical World, November 14, 1868.)

During several seasons Stainer played solos at the Saturday Concerts and assisted at oratorio performances. In this way he introduced, by playing the solo part, two organ concertos by native composers — one by Professor Prout, in E minor (October 19, 1872), and the other, in F, by his old fellow-chorister at St. Paul's, Mr. Henry Gadsby (January 24, 1874).

LONDON—ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's Cathedral never acted more wisely than when they invited Dr. Stainer to become organist of the noble sanctuary committed to their charge. Up to this time (1872) that clerical body had persistently neglected the musical service, with deplorable results. The repeated protests of Sir John Goss were fruitless. With the infusion of new blood into the powers that be a thorough reformation of the choir and the entire services became possible. Stainer was the very man for the post. He was young (only thirty-one), energetic, of acknowledged ability, a diplomatic organiser as well as a first-rate organist, and last, but by no means least, he had plenty of tact. In a very short time his influence and genius made the service at St. Paul's a model for cathedrals and churches throughout the land. His masterly accompaniments—always devotional and in perfect taste—no less than his remarkable extemporizations were listened to by organists from all parts of the world with delight and benefit to themselves, and to others through them.

In the management of such ideally beautiful services as the Passion Music of Bach, 'St. Paul,' the 'Last Judgment' (which he accompanied throughout on the organ with such wonderful skill), the Sons of the Clergy Festival, &c.—in all these the administrative faculty, no less than the musical all-roundness of Stainer, was supremely in evidence. The same high level of reverent excellence characterised the daily services, guided as they were by that master hand. During his régime the splendid Choir School was erected and equipped in 1874. (An illustrated account of the school appeared in our issue of May, 1900.) Thus were the foundations of those traditions which we associate with the music of St. Paul's Cathedral laid, and the superstructure raised and maintained by John Stainer. All honour to his memory! He had an able lieutenant in his old Oxford pupil, Sir George Martin, who, succeeding to the office of chief musician on the retirement of Stainer in 1888, worthily carries on the good work in our Metropolitan Cathedral. It may not be without interest to mention that the last composition written by Sir John Stainer was a six-part unaccompanied Communion Service in C, which he composed expressly for the choir of the Cathedral he had served so well for sixteen years.

VERSATILITY.

Although the subject of this sketch is primarily regarded as a church musician, he possessed versatile gifts. For instance, one who speaks with authority says that he was one of the finest readers of a full score in this country. He had an acute sense of absolute pitch. He could play the drums on an emergency at an oratorio performance and at children's parties at the Deanery of St. Paul's he delighted the little folks with his extemporaneous quadrilles, with their brilliant runs à la street piano-organ! His great hobby was his fine library of between 2,000 and 3,000 books, of which he was very proud. It is specially strong, both in rareness and extent, in English song books, of which Sir John was an assiduous collector. A catalogue of this section of the library was printed for private circulation in 1891, but the collection has since been doubled. The preface to the catalogue—a presentation copy of which, containing many additional entries in his own hand, is before us—concludes with the following pathetic sentence:

'I must express my gratitude to my children, J. F. R., E. C., and C. L., for having compiled this for the press, and I can only hope that the collection will be still thought worthy of their care in the not far distant time when it will have the additional value of being a memorial of bygone days.

'Oxford, May, 1891.'

Campanology was another of his interests and his library contained a varied collection of books on that subject. He had not a little to do with the erection of the fine peal of bells in St. Paul's in 1878, during the period of his organistship of the Metropolitan Cathedral.

VARIOUS APPOINTMENTS.

The career of Sir John Stainer subsequent to his appointment to St. Paul's is so well known that a brief record is all that is necessary to complete the strictly biographical portion of this article. Mention, and worthy mention, must be made of his work in London beyond the walls of the Cathedral he loved so well and which had the first claim upon his energies. From 1873 to 1888 he held the important post of organist of the Royal Choral Society—important by reason of the task of accompanying the weekly rehearsals of that huge body of singers. It was a great treat to sit in the semi-gloom of the Albert Hall on those Monday evenings and listen to those organ accompaniments of Stainer's which he played on Father Willis's gigantic instrument with such unerring facility and technical attainment. And how he seemed to enjoy it! As conductor of the London Male Voice Club he was, for thirteen years, the life and soul of those pleasant and informal music-makings held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street.

For many years he was professor of harmony and composition at the Crystal Palace School of Art. At the inauguration of the National School of Music in 1876 he became professor of the organ, and at Easter, 1881, he succeeded his old friend Arthur Sullivan as Principal. He was a juror at the Paris Exhibition of 1878, when he was created Chevalier of the Legion of Honour of France. In 1882, on the death of John Hullah, he became Inspector of Music in Training Colleges for the Board of Education, a Government appointment which he held at the time of his death. In 1889 he succeeded his early friend Sir Frederick Ouseley as Professor of Music in the University of Oxford—thus the desire of Ouseley, expressed twenty-four years earlier, was fulfilled. He resigned the professorship in 1899, when he was succeeded by Sir Hubert Parry. Upon his retirement from the organistship of St. Paul's Cathedral, when he went to reside at Oxford, he was knighted at Windsor, July 10, 1888, by Queen Victoria.

Other offices held by and distinctions conferred upon him may be summarised as follows:—

Hon. Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, and of St. Michael's College, Tenbury; Hon. Mus.D. (1885) and Hon. D.C.L., Durham (1895); sometime Member of the Board of Musical Studies, Cambridge University; and Examiner for Musical Degrees in London University; Hon. Member of the Royal Academy of Music; Member of the Council of the Royal College of Music; Member of the Philharmonic Society; Hon. Fellow of the Tonic Sol-fa College; Vice-President of the Royal College of Organists; President of the Plain Song and Mediæval Music Society; President of the London Gregorian Association; President of the Musical Association, which he practically founded; and Master of the Worshipful Company of Musicians for the present year.

Before enumerating his compositions, reference may be made to the cordial relations which existed between him and his publishers, Messrs. Novello. Beginning with the late Mr. Henry Littleton, and continuing with his sons and successors, this friendly connection remained unbroken to the time of Sir John Stainer's death and covered a period of thirty years; moreover, he was always ready to give his valuable counsel and advice whenever an opportunity for doing so arose.

The following list is a sufficient proof of Sir John Stainer's industry in regard to the creative achievements of his busy life:—

COMPOSITIONS.

Oratorios, &c.

Gideon (his exercise for the degree of Doctor in Music); The Daughter of Jairus, Worcester Festival, 1878; St. Mary Magdalen, Gloucester Festival, 1887; Crucifixion, first performed at St. Marylebone Church, February 24, 1887.

Anthems.

Antiphons, The Seven Greater.
And all the people saw the thunderings. Composed for the London Church Choir Association Festival, St. Paul's Cathedral, November 8, 1883.
And Jacob was left alone.
Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion. Dedicated to Rev. J. R. G. Taylor (Hereford).
Behold, God is my Helper.
Behold, two blind men sitting by the wayside.
Blessed is the man that endureth temptation.
Deliver me, O Lord, from mine enemies.
Drop down, ye heavens, from above.
For a small moment have I forsaken Thee. Dedicated to Dr. Corfe.
Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God.
Honour the Lord with thy substance.
Hosanna in the Highest.
I am Alpha and Omega.
I desired wisdom openly in my prayer.
I saw the Lord. Double choir.
It came upon the midnight clear.
Lead, kindly Light. Dedicated to Herbert A. B. Wilson.
Leave us not, neither forsake us.
Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. Composed for the Jubilee of Queen Victoria, 1887.
Let not thine hand be stretched out to receive. For Hospital Sunday.
Let the peace of God rule in your hearts.

ANTHEMS—continued.

Lord, Thou art God. (With orchestral accompaniment). Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, St. Paul's Cathedral, 1887. (Jubilee year.)

Lo! summer comes again. (With orchestral accompaniment.) Dedicated to the Rev. F. H. Hichens.

Mercy and truth are met together.

O bountiful Jesu, O sweet Saviour.

O clap your hands. (With orchestral accompaniment.) Composed for the Eleventh Annual Festival of the Richmond and Kingston Church Choral Association, 1873, and dedicated to Captain Malton.

O Saving Victim, slain for us. Composed for the Baptist Church Hymnal, 1900.

O Zion that bringest good tidings. Dedicated to the Rev. Dr. Sparrow Simpson.

Sing a song of praise.

The hallowed day hath shined upon us.

The Lord is in His holy temple.

The morning stars sang together. Dedicated to George Cooper.

The righteous live for evermore. Dedicated to the Rev. W. C. F. Webber, Sub-Dean of St. Paul's.

The Story of the Cross.

There was a marriage in Cana of Galilee. Composed for the Wedding, in St. Paul's Cathedral, of the late Mrs. Paget and the Dean of Christ Church, Oxford, March 28, 1883.

They have taken away my Lord. Dedicated to the Rev. Dr. Troutbeck.

They were lovely and pleasant in their lives.

Thou, Lord, in the beginning.

Thus speaketh the Lord of Hosts.

What are these that are arrayed in white robes? Composed for the Dedication Festival of All Saints' Church, Lathbury, Bucks, 1871.

Ye shall dwell in the land.

SACRED MUSIC, VARIOUS.

Services; Office of the Holy Communion (in various keys); 158 hymn tunes (collected in one volume and published in 1900); Carols (various, including the collection edited in collaboration with the Rev. H. R. Bramley, M.A.); twelve sacred songs for children (originally published as 'Holy gladness,' and illustrated); Editor of St. Paul's Cathedral Chant Book; one of the Editors (the last of the five) of the Cathedral Psalter, and of the Cathedral Prayer Book, with the Rev. W. Russell; a Choir Book of the Office of Holy Communion; the Seven-fold Amen, &c.

SECULAR VOCAL MUSIC.

Madrigals, including the Triumph of Victoria and Flora's Queen (the words by his son, Mr. J. F. R. Stainer), the latter of which he contributed to 'Choral Songs by various writers and composers in honour of Her Majesty Queen Victoria,' edited by Sir Walter Parratt; part-songs; a book of seven songs; six Italian songs; and various single songs.

ORGAN MUSIC.

Twelve pieces (in two books); Jubilant March; The Village Organist, edited in conjunction with Mr. F. Cunningham Woods; Organ arrangements (five numbers); and Organ Primer.

PROFESSORIAL LECTURES DELIVERED AT OXFORD.

Nov. 13, 1889.—Inaugural Lecture. 'The present state of Music in England.' (Published.)
Feb. 27, 1890.—The characteristics of Schumann's Songs.
May 5, 1890.—Mendelssohn's Oratorio, 'Elijah.'
Nov. 19, 1890.—Carols, English and Foreign.
Feb. 12, 1891.—Origin and Development of the Ground-Bass.
May 6, 1891.—The styles of composers as exhibited by various settings of the same lyric.
Nov. 30, 1891.—Mozart's 'Requiem.'
March 15, 1892.—Canons as a form of vocal composition.
June 8, 1892.—Music in relation to the Intellect and Emotions. (Published.)
Nov. 12, 1892.—Lute, Viol, and Voice.
Feb. 1, 1893.—Palestrina's Mass, 'Æterna Christi Munera.'
May 4, 1893.—Composer and performer.
Nov. 29, 1893.—Song and Dance.
Feb. 28, 1894.—Mendelssohn's Oratorio, 'St. Paul.'
June 6, 1894.—Composer and hearer.
Dec. 5, 1894.—The Choral Responses of the English Liturgy.
Feb. 19, 1895.—Handel's Oratorio, 'The Messiah.'
June 12, 1895.—On the influences which affect melodic form.
Nov. 19, 1895.—Purcell.
March 11, 1896.—Tye's Mass, 'Euge Bone.'
May 4, 1896.—The secular compositions of Dufay.
Nov. 21, 1896.—Italian song-writers of the classical period.
March 10, 1897.—Early harmonisation of Psalm-tunes, and their treatment in Motet form.
June 16, 1897.—Music as a branch of education.
Dec. 8, 1897.—Morley's 'Plaine and easie introduction.'
March 9, 1898.—Hans Leo Hassler.
June 8, 1898.—Our Cathedral music.
Nov. 9, 1898.—Psalm and hymn tunes (continued).
March 8, 1899.—Madrigalian composers of the Gallo-Belgian School.
May 5, 1899.—The influence of fashion on the art of music.

PAPERS READ BEFORE THE MUSICAL ASSOCIATION AND PUBLISHED IN THEIR PROCEEDINGS.

April 5, 1875.—'On the Principles of Musical Notation.'
Jan. 3, 1881.—'The Principles of Musical Criticism.'
Dec. 2, 1889.—'The Character and Influence of the late Sir Frederick Ouseley.'
July 16, 1895.—'Address of Welcome to American Musicians.'
Nov. 12, 1895.—'A Fifteenth Century MS. Book of Vocal Music in the Bodleian Library, Oxford.
Nov. 13, 1900.—'Musical Directions in early English Psalters.'

Sir John's Professorial lectures at Oxford were no mere pedantic monotonous mumblings, delivered to a handful of somnolently inclined listeners. On the contrary, they were most interesting and instructive. With their admirable musical illustrations, and delivered in his bright attractive manner, large audiences eagerly flocked to the Sheldonian Theatre—even deaf Dons were to be seen in the front row with their hands to their ears in order that not a word should be lost.

VARIOUS PAPERS AND ARTICLES.

'Church Music.' Church Congress, Leeds, 1872.
'On the Progressive Character of Church Music.' Church Congress, Brighton, 1874.
'Music considered in its effect upon, and connection with, the Worship of the Church.' Church Congress, Exeter, 1894.
'How can Cathedrals best further the Culture of Church Music?' Quarterly Church Review, January, 1879.
An Address to the Scholars of the National Training School for Music, Kensington Gore, September 27, 1881, by J. Stainer, Principal. (Printed.)
'Technique and Sentiment,' in the Monthly Journal of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, February, 1893.
'Does Music train the Mind?' A paper read at the Tenth Annual Conference of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, Dublin, January, 1895.
'On the rhythmical form of the Anglican Chant.' MUSICAL TIMES, January, 1872.
'Sir John Goss.' (Obituary Notice.) MUSICAL TIMES, June, 1880.
Julian's 'Dictionary of Hymnology.' (Review Article.) MUSICAL TIMES, April, 1892.

LITERARY MUSICAL WORKS.

Sir John Stainer rendered excellent service to the literature of the art of music. He had a pleasant style and sought to interest his readers rather than display his own erudition, which was by no means superficial. First and foremost must be mentioned the valuable publication entitled 'Dufay: and his contemporaries,' in the compilation of which he had the invaluable co-operation of his eldest son and daughter. A very interesting letter written by him on the 'fifths' in this work may be quoted from—it is dated 'Antibes, Jan. 11, 1898':—

The consecutives open up a most interesting historical fact, not hitherto suspected, namely, that Organum and Diaphony (movements in 4ths and 5ths) must have held complete control over the music of church and people for a couple of centuries at least. All historians touch lightly on Diaphony, as if it were a mere passing phase of musical evolution, whereas, our book will prove that up to the very threshold of modern music consecutive triads were loved. If you heard the Dufay examples at the Musical Association played on three violas, or on four, you must have been struck with a certain weird charm when the old man crosses the parts in order to obtain the 5ths, in which he and his hearers delighted.

Another very important and large volume of Bodleian transcripts (similar to the Dufay book), and entitled 'Early Bodleian Music,' Sir John has left quite completed. The work is in the press and will shortly be issued by Messrs. Novello.

Next in importance is the 'Dictionary of Musical Terms,' which he compiled in collaboration with his old fellow-chorister, the late W. A. Barrett. 'A Theory of Harmony' (1871), dedicated to his friend, Max Müller, aroused much hostility amongst the dry-as-dust theorists. How amused he was to learn that a copy of the treatise, purchased at a second-hand book shop, contained such annotations as 'stuff,' 'vile,' 'nonsense,' and so on. 'The Music of the Bible' showed his deep reading in that subject and is a book full of interest to the student. Smaller, but useful literary productions are 'Music in relation to the intellect and the emotions' and 'A few words to candidates for the degree of Mus. Bac., Oxon.' In collaboration with Mr. G. Phillips Bevan he wrote an interesting 'Handbook of St. Paul's Cathedral.' To the foregoing must be added his editorship of the 'Church Hymnary' (1898), for use in the Presbyterian Churches of Scotland and Ireland. He not only threw himself heartily into this task—a very congenial one to him—but wrote several tunes for this widely-circulated hymnal.

Sir John Stainer was the original editor of Novello's Music Primers and Educational Series, Sir Hubert Parry being subsequently associated with him. The quartet of primers which he contributed to the series were 'The Organ,' 'Harmony,' 'Composition,' and 'Choral Society Vocalisation.' Of these four educational works by Stainer nearly 320,000 copies have been sold—'Harmony' leading the way with 186,000! Do not these figures speak for themselves?

PERSONALITY.

It is exceedingly difficult to portray the personality of a man in cold print, especially a man of so genial, so sympathetic, so loving a nature as our departed friend. Generous to a degree, he never paraded his liberality. He was always ready to help any worker in the cause of music with his advice, his sympathy, his kindly words of appreciation, and, if necessary, his substance. He took a special interest in his Inspection work for the Board of Education because his father had been a schoolmaster, and because he regarded the influence of those young men and women on the musical education of the children to be committed to their care of supreme importance.

Three recently received tributes to his memory may be quoted. The first is from a veteran amateur, who writes:—

If, as I doubt not, there should be an obituary notice of the late Sir John Stainer in your paper, will you allow me to contribute a few supplementary words?

Years ago, when I was honorary secretary of a Church Choral Association, Stainer not only wrote for one of our Festivals his fine anthem, 'O clap your hands,' and a grand Processional hymn, but volunteered to come down from London to conduct, the result being most successful and striking. Independently of his great erudition, musical and otherwise, a more unostentatious, genial, and kind-hearted man I never expect to meet.

The next is from an organist and choirmaster of a London suburban church:—

Dear Stainer! What a lovable man—always ready to do a kindness, and a valuable service, to those (like myself) who hadn't an atom of claim upon him, in any sense of the word. What must he have been to personal friends?

The last, which furnishes an exceedingly interesting and valuable sidelight on his personality, has been kindly sent us by one of his old Oxford friends, Mr. Edward Chapman, M.P., Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, who writes as follows:—

My lifelong friendship with John Stainer began when I joined Magdalen College, Oxford, as a tutor, about 1869. He was organist and the life and soul of several musical societies among the members of the city and university. Two memories stand out pre-eminently—one, his musical exercise for his degree, 'Gideon,' arranged to be performed in the College Hall, which rapidly became so overcrowded that we had to adjourn and join in a stampede rush up the High to the Sheldonian Theatre, where it was successfully executed before an enthusiastic audience; the other was the manner in which he revived and brought to perfection the singing of madrigals at the annual Commemoration Concert, held in the College Hall by members of the choir and college, past and present, which for the selection and execution of madrigals and part-songs became unique.

As a keen lover of music, without much technical knowledge of the art, though he always called me a musician, I shall never forget my many sittings with him in the organ loft of the College Chapel during evening service. His accompaniment of the Psalms and his impromptu before the anthem were the like of which I have never heard before or since, and I do not hesitate to say that many of these impromptus exceed in beauty any of his written compositions. With bowed head and closed eyes he would on the soft stops seem gently to unfold the theme of the coming anthem, working out and expanding its ramifications with exquisite delicacy, then coming to the end, his face would light up as though emerging from a far off dreamland, and, with head erect he would conclude, and glide into the anthem. It is most difficult to describe his accompaniment of the Psalms. The chant first simply played through, say, on the choir organ, would then become a wonderfully harmonized interpretation of the words, no brilliant or dashing execution; but if I may call it an inverted and dispersed harmony on the solo or choir organ, no two verses alike, but sustaining and truly accompanying the choir, ending with a cathedral custom on which he always prided himself—viz., the introduction of the lower pedal notes in the verse before the Gloria Patri.

I must mention here how much I was impressed by his deep piety and devotion. The organ loft was no place for conversation or criticism. If at any time when two or three of us who had the privilege of sitting with him began to talk, immediately was the finger raised for silence and a look which said this is a place for silent prayer and praise only. I sat with him on the last night he played the organ on leaving for St. Paul's, in March, 1872, and turned out the light as we left the loft, he rushing through with moistening eyes a row of choristers and friends to say good-bye. I closed the door to the loft and could not bring myself to pass through it again for more than ten years.

His return to us in Oxford as Professor of Music was hailed with delight by all. His ruddy, merry face had lost none of its brightness, nor his manner its freshness, while his interest in the progress of his art was as keen as ever. What I specially noticed in him as Professor was his unique power of welding men together and the total absence of professional jealousy. The petty quarrels of rival societies he would ignore, and no differences or difficulties between individuals could long survive an interview with him, disarming as he did by his acute yet genial and sensible manner the difficulties which rival interests brought up before him. Once he said to me in his laughing way, 'If certain officials cannot be brought into line and agree, I shall run them all round the Parks together in a wheelbarrow.'

His total absence of professional jealousy was seen in the way he was ever ready to give a helping hand to young men, giving them opportunities of playing on the Albert Hall or Crystal Palace organs, to encourage and bring out latent talent, when many another less eminent man would have found an excuse to play himself.

If I may add to the above characteristics a simplicity and reverence of character, combined with a geniality and humour, ever ready to show a kindness and meet the advances of a friend, I feel I have drawn a picture of the most lovable of men. Those who had the privilege of entrée to his library will treasure the memories of the Sunday afternoon cigar, when, let a musical question be started, instantly some rare book would be taken down from the laden, yet admirably arranged shelves, to illustrate it, and then another and yet another brought to bear upon it until one could not tell what most to admire, the splendid collection of authors or the erudition and enthusiasm of their beloved owner. With this I close my tribute to an old friend whom I first saw in Magdalen more than thirty years ago, and whom I at last saw laid to his rest in the beautiful Garden Cemetery at Holywell, his grave hard by the stately elm trees which line the Grove of Magdalen.

He would go out of his way to do a kindness and he would spare no pains and grudge no time in order to give pleasure to anyone. A college friend of his son's and a great admirer of Sir John's once asked for an autograph. 'I found my father in the library,' says his son, 'constructing a musical puzzle and in a great state of delight at the difficulties it gave rise to. "This will do capitally for your friend," he said, in handing it to me as soon as it was completed. I don't know what put the idea into his head, but he used occasionally to amuse himself in that sort of way—witness the hymn "Per Recte et Retro," No. 381 (second tune) in the "Church Hymnary."' Through the kindness of Mr. Julius Bertram, of Stevenage, for whom Sir John wrote the musical puzzle above referred to, we are enabled to print the amusing topsy-turvyism.

J. Stainer. April, 1892.

If turn'd top-si-tur-vey you'll find I shall go, If you doubt it, the proof of the pud-ding the eat-ing will show.
doubt it, the proof of the pud-ding the eat-ing will show.
If turn'd top-si-tur-vey you'll find I shall go, If you

He was very fond of children, for whom he wrote some of his most attractive hymn tunes, such as, for instance, 'There's a Friend for little children,' which he wrote in five minutes in the bedroom (at the Langham Hotel) of the Rev. Sir Henry Baker, one of the compilers of 'Hymns Ancient and Modern'; and his sweetly simple setting of 'Jesus, tender Shepherd, hear me' (No. 601 in the 'Scottish Hymnary'), an ideal evening hymn for a wee bairnie on the verge of slumberland. Once, in his capacity as President of the Royal College of Organists, he addressed his brother organists in these words:—

'I was one Sunday walking at some seaside place, and on turning a corner I heard a number of Sunday School children singing a hymn I had composed. I thought to myself, "I want no higher reward than this for all my work." I can only tell you that I would not exchange it for the very finest monument in Westminster Abbey.'

The man who can give utterance to such sentiments as these is a great man: he is one who calls forth our esteem, our respect, our love.

And then he was so full of fun. How he would stop short in those country lanes about Tenbury last year in order to finish his laugh at some story that had been told him, or that he would tell himself! His letters, too. How interesting and charming they always were. Humour was by no means their least characteristic feature. Here are some extracts. The first speaks for itself:—

'If ever you see the ghost of Matthew Wilkins, butcher and hymnodist, please run a sword through him and pin him to the wall. I have just bought a "Wilkins" hoping to find "Bedford," but it is nowhere to be seen. He seems to have turned out various unpaged, unindexed books when not employed in chopping meat.'

This, contained in an invitation to lunch with him in passing through Oxford after a Croft expedition in Warwickshire:—

'We can then discuss Tate and Brady after taters and bread—eh?'

In response to a request for his photograph:—

'Be content; take two. (Not that I have the least wish to compare you to Gehazi.)

'J. S.'

Lastly, he was so essentially poetical. Would that there were more musicians similarly endowed! His own words in this important connection may be quoted. They are from a preface he wrote to 'Music in Song,' compiled by L. L. Carmela Koelle (1883):—

The true poet must ever be attracted by the charms of Music; he must sing of her; he must perforce chant her praise. For he cannot but realise how much the two arts, Poetry and Music, possess in common. Both reach their highest excellence when they are characterised by lofty thought, graceful rhythm, and melodious diction: the thought which teaches and edifies; the rhythm which appeals to our love of regularity; and the melody which gives emotional pleasure. . . .

The elements and characteristics of the two arts are so interwoven that they can with difficulty be unravelled. Has a man no Music in him? he will never become a poet; has he no Poetry in him? he will never become a musician.

And was he not a poet in the versifying sense of the term? To this we answer, 'Yes'—a poet imbued with deep religious feeling. In looking back to that Palm Sunday when our dear friend drew his last breath, and when we think of the circumstances attending his translation, it seems that no more fitting conclusion to this imperfect sketch of his valuable and useful life could be found than these lines, his own beautiful and soul-steeped words:—

Thou art the Way; how sweet the thought
That I by Thee, on Thee, through Thee,
Am safely to the Father brought!
O Way so straight, and yet so passing wide!
So spanless, though it seem to me,
By dark'ning hedge my onward path to hide.

Thou art the Truth: how high! how deep!
How strong to break sin's galling chain,
And in love's bands the soul to keep!
O Blessed truth, that we on Truth may feed,
And by our faith in Truth may gain
The inward help to hold the truth we need.

Thou art the Life: O sacred breath
Which from Thy lips did warm this clay!
I live in Thee and fear not death:
For Thou, O Life, whose death hath made me live,
When breaks the dawn of endless day
To me, with Thine elect, Thy life will give.

The funeral of Sir John Stainer took place on the 6th ult., Easter Eve—the twelfth anniversary of the death of his friend and predecessor in the Oxford Professorship, Sir Frederick Ouseley. The chief mourners were the four sons of the lamented musician, Mr. J. F. R. Stainer, Mr. Edward Stainer, Mr. Charles L. Stainer, and Mr. W. E. Stainer, and his son-in-law, Mr. F. P. M. Schiller. A very large and representative gathering of musicians and distinguished University men were present to show their respect for one who was so greatly esteemed—not only by his professional brethren, but by a wide circle of men having varied interests. The first part of the service was held in the Church of St. Cross, Holywell, Oxford, when the choir of Magdalen College, under Dr. Varley Roberts, sang Spohr's 'Blest are the departed.' The interment took place in Holywell Cemetery, while the birds sang an appropriate Requiem.

F. G. E.

The King has been graciously pleased to continue the Royal patronage of the Royal Academy of Music accorded to the Institution by the Sovereign since the granting of its charter by George IV. in 1830. The Duke of Connaught has become President of the Academy in succession to the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie is announced to deliver a course of lectures, at the Royal Institution, on Sir Arthur Sullivan. The three discourses, illustrated with vocal and instrumental selections, will be given on Thursdays, the 2nd, 9th, and 16th inst., at 3 p.m.

The conclusion of the article on Sir John Goss is unavoidably held over till our next issue owing to the pressure on our space. During the next few months we hope to give biographical sketches (with the usual special portraits) of Dr. Boyce, Mr. Alfred Hollins, Dr. Steggall, Herr Wilhelmj, and Mr. Henry J. Wood.

A CURIOUS MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.

Most people have seen the clown who performs in a wonderful manner on various weird and strange instruments, among them a violin made out of an old tin can with a stick stuck through it to form the finger-board. Or, again, the old man at the street corner who plays 'Home, sweet home,' and other familiar melodies on an assortment of drinking-glasses and finger-bowls. But few people, probably, have seen, or even heard of, such a thing as a wooden pianoforte—an instrument made of wood, and nothing but wood, yet closely resembling a pianoforte both in tone and in volume of sound.

In toy shops one finds an instrument for the amusement and edification of the young, called a Harmonica, which consists of strips of either glass or metal, of gradually increasing length, set on a frame. These strips, when struck, emit a musical note, and are so arranged and tuned as to produce, when struck in succession, a more or less correct scale of one or more octaves.

The Piano Zapotecano, or Marimba, as it is usually called, is an instrument peculiar to Guatemala and the southern states of the Republic of Mexico. It is essentially a very large 'harmonica,' the strips which emit the musical note being in this case made of wood—a very hard, straight-grained, compact wood, locally known as 'hormiguillo.'

It seems difficult to believe that such an inert substance as wood can vibrate with sufficient intensity to produce a clear musical note. The secret of this instrument, however, lies in the sound-boxes, or resonators, which are hung just below the strips of wood, and do for them what the belly of the violin does for the vibrating string, producing a clear mellow note as loud and full as that of a pianoforte.

THE ZAPOTECANO, OR MARIMBA. A MEXICAN MUSICAL INSTRUMENT.

These resonators are made of well-seasoned cedar wood, and take the form of long coffin-shaped boxes, varying in dimensions in direct proportion to the size of the strips whose vibrations they reproduce. They are open at the top only, and have in the centre of the triangular bottom piece, on the side facing the players, a small embossed hole. This hole is covered with a piece of very thin bladder, firmly attached by wax. When the strip of wood, which is placed immediately over the resonator, is struck, it vibrates, and these vibrations are carried by the air in the resonator to the little piece of bladder, which consequently vibrates in unison, and it is these vibrations which produce the loud, and in the case of the bass notes, peculiar buzzing tone of the instrument.

The best Marimbas are made with a double row of strips, the back row, which contains the flats and sharps, being set slightly higher than the front row. They are usually tuned three semitones below ordinary pitch and have a compass of five octaves. The two rows of strips furnish a complete chromatic scale and enable the instrument to be played in any key. As compared with the pianoforte the apparent compass is—but the actual compass is—

In order to play the instrument the performer holds a drumstick—having a large head made of soft, crude india-rubber—in each hand, with which he strikes the strips of wood sharply and not too heavily in the centre. There are four pairs of drumsticks varying in size and weight, those for playing the small treble notes are short and light, while those for the bass notes are much larger and heavier. The full complement of players is four.

The beating out of an accompaniment on the bass notes is a comparatively easy achievement, but to play the treble part well is difficult. It requires an extremely rapid movement of the wrist, sustained notes being produced by a very rapid double beat, like the roll of a side drum, and necessitating a very flexible wrist and requiring a great deal of practice.

A good idea of the general appearance and mode of playing this curious instrument can be gained from the photographs which illustrate this article. As a rule, the players are ignorant of music and play entirely by ear. They gradually pick out a piece and go on perfecting it until they know it by heart. Some of them, especially those who make a living by going from place to place to play for hire on feast-days and holidays, become very proficient and play extremely well. For marches, dance music, zapateados (step-dances)—any music, in fact, involving rapid execution and requiring a strongly marked rhythm—the instrument, when well played, is really most effective.

ZAPOTECANOISTS, OR MARIMBEROS, AT THEIR MUSIC-MAKINGS.

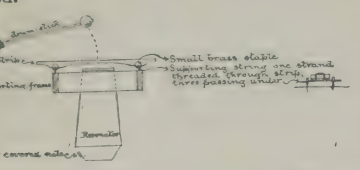
The peculiar buzzing sound produced by the resonators, especially in the bass notes, rather spoils the effect of the music at close quarters; but in the open air, and at a short distance away, the tones are almost exactly like those of a pianoforte.

Being made entirely of wood the instrument weighs very little and can be carried, Mexican fashion, on a man's back, slung from a mecapal, or leather thong round the forehead. In this way the Marimberos, as they are called, go from place to place carrying their Marimba with them.

Should a note get out of tune it can be adjusted to a nicety, by sticking a piece of wax underneath the strip at one end, to flatten; or by paring away a little of the wood underneath, at one or at both ends, to sharpen. The piece of wax being increased in size, or the wood carefully cut away, until the desired pitch is obtained.



End view of the instrument.
Showing the way in which the strips are supported and their shape; also the shape and proportionate size of the resonators.

The experiment has been tried of using metal instead of wooden strips, the resonators, &c., remaining the same, but it is found that the metal produces a harsher, and not nearly such a mellow and musical tone as the wood.

W. H. Rundall.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

The Nineteenth Century and After, of last month, contains an article by Miss Goodrich-Freer on 'Robert Browning the Musician'—the 'poet of musicians,' as the fair writer designates the subject of her essay. As a child Browning received practical and theoretical instruction in music. He tells us in his 'Parleyings with certain people' how he came to single out Charles Avison, organist of St. Nicholas Church, Newcastle—certainly not a musician of the first rank—as the theme of one of his musical poems:—

> Singly and solely for an air of thine
> Bold-stepping 'March,' foot stepped to ere my hand
> Could stretch an octave.

Browning was as familiar a figure in the stalls at the Popular Concerts as George Eliot, and he enjoyed the personal friendship of Joachim. Miss Goodrich-Freer re-tells the story of a beautiful young lady (evidently not a reader of Browning's verse) who said to the poet: 'I don't know whether you care for music, Mr. Browning, but if you do, my mother, Lady ——, is having some on Monday.' 'Why, my dear,' he replied, in his kindliest tones, 'I care for nothing else.'

The best-known musical poem of Robert Browning is that entitled 'Abt Vogler,' suggested by the great musician-extemporiser of that name. It is quite possible that some of our readers may like to read, or re-read the poem with a little assistance. If that be so, we gladly introduce them to so qualified and sympathetic a guide as the Rev. Dr. Monro Gibson, author of 'Pomegranates from an English garden,' an interesting annotated selection of Browning's poems, published in America. It is with Dr. Gibson's kind permission that we are enabled to reprint his elucidation of 'Abt Vogler,' which is as follows:—

Having given specimen poems dealing with the arts of poetry, painting, and sculpture, we add one on the subject of music, which, though difficult to understand fully, has beauties which are apparent even to those who do not enter into its deepest thought. Vogler is not known as a composer of the first rank, having left no works behind him which entitle him to a place among the great masters; but, for this very reason, he is better suited for the poet's purpose, which is to deal with music, not as represented by printed notes, but as existing for the moment in all its perfection, and at once melting away into silence and apparent nothingness. It is as extemporizer, not as author, he is chosen, and as Abbé (Ger. Abt) he appropriately thinks of those deep spiritual truths on which the loftier hopes of the latter part of the poem are founded.

The musician 'has been extemporizing'—pouring out his whole soul through the keys of his organ, and from that state of ecstasy he suddenly awakes and cries out, 'Would that the structure brave, the manifold music I build . . . might tarry!' It has been no mere 'volume,' but a 'palace' of sound. As Solomon (according to the well-known legend) summoned all spirits from above and from below, and all creatures of the earth, to build him a palace at once, so by a touch, 'calling the keys to their work,' he has summoned demons of the bass, angels of the treble, earth creatures of the middle tones, who, by eager and tumultuous and yet harmoniously united efforts, have caused 'the pinnacled glory' to 'rush into sight' (stanzas 1-3).

Into sight? There was far more in it than could be seen. As the soul of the musician ascended from earth, heaven descended on him; its stars crowned his work; its moons, its suns were close beside him—'there was no more near nor far' (stanza 4). And the boundaries of time, as well as the limits of space, were gone. The absolute, the perfect was reached; and to this palace of perfection had flocked 'presences plain in the place,' from the far Future and from the mystic Past. 'There was no more sea'—no more distance or separation—all one, together, perfect (stanza 5). Reached how? Through music—the only one of the arts that leads into the region of the absolute and perfect, its effects not springing from causes the operation of which can be traced, and the law of their production defined, but responding directly to the will, even as creation responded to the fiat of God. Out of such simple elements can that be evoked, which should lead those who 'consider' these things to 'bow the head' (stanzas 6, 7).

But was it only for a moment? Is it gone? For ever? (stanza 8).

I turn to God, and know it cannot be. Then follows that glorious passage, one of the finest in any language, every word of which should be studied, beginning, 'There shall never be one lost good!' on to the end of stanza 11, which is the true climax of the poem.

The last stanza may be compared to the closing one of 'Saul.' It is the return from the empyrean to the plain of common life. Let some musical friend show how at the cadence of a very grand piece he would feel his way down the chromatic scale and then pause on that poignant discord, known as 'the minor ninth,' affecting, as it were, a separation ('alien ground') from the heights just descended, and giving thus the opportunity of looking up once more before a resting-place is found in 'the common chord'—'the C major of this life.'

This is a poem which should be read over and over till the music of it has fairly entered the soul.

It has become common now to speak slightingly of those representations of heaven which make large use of music to give them body in our thought, as if the idea intended to be conveyed were that the joy of heaven was to consist in an endless idle singing, a concert without a finale; but this easy criticism is surely too disregardful of the distinctive feature of music so strikingly set forth in this poem—viz., that it is the only one of the arts which, while strongly appealing to sense, yet in its essence belongs to the realm of the unseen, so that it is in fact the only symbol within the range of man's experience which can even suggest the absolute, the perfect, the pure heavenly.

It is always gratifying to hear of the progress of music in unexpected quarters. Much elevating and recreative work is thus being carried on for the pure love of the art without any thought of vainglory or publicity. An instance of such unostentatious well-doing is to be found at the Doulton Institute, connected with the great pottery works in Lambeth, as the following letter bears testimony:—

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—Your discovery of the birthplace of Sir Arthur Sullivan will, I am sure, have greatly interested all Lambethians.

At Doulton's, not very far away from Bolwell Terrace, a few amateurs meet during the winter months for orchestral practice. I take the liberty of enclosing two recent programmes for your perusal, from which you will see that we happen to have been—in our small way—paying our tribute to Sullivan's memory.

I am, Sir, yours truly,

Lambeth Pottery, S.E., W. Gandy.
15 April, 1901.

From the above-mentioned documents we find that the Keramic Musical Society, conducted by Mr. Walter Gandy, gave a concert on the 2nd ult., the programme of which included two movements from Schubert's Symphony in B flat, Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' Overture, and Grieg's Elegiac Melodies (for strings). Excellent! On another recent occasion Mr. Gandy delivered a musically-illustrated lecture on Sir Arthur Sullivan, at which the orchestra of the Keramic Musical Society assisted. We gladly place on record such commendable achievements in connection with a great industrial concern, and we heartily wish the Doulton Lambethians all success in their pleasant music-makings.

The following advertisements show the state of the music-teaching and fiddle-selling market, to use a commercial definition:—

Pianoforte Lessons given, from 3d. per lesson; young beginners preferred.

Violin Lessons; beginners preferred; 6d. per lesson.

Valuable Violin for sale, fine old high model, property of late solo violinist, perfect order, magnificent rich solo tone, labelled Antonius Stradivarius, Cremona, Facibat 1690, in good lockup Case, lovely Dod model Bow, cash needed, 17s., worth £5; approval before payment; only wants seeing.

The threepenny-bit and sixpenny lessons need no comment, except that, in the same town, the fees for teaching beginners the violin are apparently double those for instruction on the household instrument, but then the cost of the professor's resin must be taken into account. Who would not have a rich solo tone Strad, a lovely Dod model Bow, not to say a good lockup Case, for 17s.? Who, indeed? The advertisement might attract the attention of a violinist divine—not necessarily a divine violinist—in other words, it is rather suggestive of Fiddle D.D.

The issue of a new Life of Handel—that by Mr. Abdy Williams, reviewed in another column—provides the opportunity of giving a few particulars practically unknown, we believe, concerning the Act of Parliament which naturalised the great Saxon composer. The House of Lords' Journals of the year 1726 contain the following entry:—

Die Martis. 14° Februarii.

Mr. Handel takes the Oaths. George Frideric Handel took the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, in order to his Naturalization.

On the same day, and following upon the appointment of a Committee to consider 'An Act for naturalizing one Lewis Sechehaye,' their Lordships Ordered: That the Petition of George Frideric Handel, praying to be added to the above-mentioned Bill, which was Yesterday ordered to lie on the Table till the Second Reading thereof, be referred to the said Committee.

The Lords Committee reported, through Lord Waldegrave, on February 17

That they had considered the said Bill, and also the Petitions to them referred; and had gone through the Bill, and made some Amendments thereunto.

'Which being read Twice by the Clerk, were agreed to by the House.' The Commons agreed to the Lords' Amendments to the Bill, and on February 20 'the King (George II.), being seated on His Royal Throne with his Crown and Regal ornaments, gave his Royal Assent to An Act for naturalizing Louis Sechehaye, George Frideric Handel and others.' Therefore, on February 20, 1726, Handel became an Englishman, or—in order not to hurt the susceptibilities of our brethren North of the Tweed—rather let us say, in more flowery language, the great composer blossomed into a Britisher.

'Coming events cast their shadows before.' So sings the poet Campbell. If a Mayoral banquet, although distinctly in the nature of a substance, can, for the nonce, be regarded as a shadow, there ought soon to be another Musical Festival at Cardiff. Did not the Mayor of that centre of light and leading—not to say commercial prosperity—recently entertain Dr. F. H. Cowen and the powers that be of the Cardiff Orchestral Society at the Mansion House? And did not his Worship, in response to the toast of his health, say he would be very glad to do all he could in the direction of resuscitating the Festival? As the answers to both these questions must be absolutely in the affirmative, we trust that so important an influence as that of the Mayor may result in the holding of a successful Musical Festival at Cardiff in the near future.

Mr. Myles Birket Foster has in the press a book, shortly to be issued, bearing the following comprehensive title:—

Anthems and Anthem Composers: an essay on the development of the anthem from the time of the Reformation to the end of the nineteenth century, with a complete list of anthems (in alphabetical order) belonging to each of the four centuries, a frontispiece, and several rare portraits, &c.

The work is an attempt, and a very serious attempt, be it noted, to enumerate all the anthems composed for the English Church service, the composers of which, as the preface states, 'range from Archbishops, Princes and Earls to the most humble of the Monarch's subjects.' A specially interesting feature of the book will be the portraits of anthem composers, in the collection of which the author has had the invaluable assistance of Mr. C. T. Johnson. The sixteen musicians thus pictorially represented are Purcell, Orlando Gibbons, Tallis, Byrd, Blow, Croft, Greene, Boyce, Battishill, Attwood, T. A. Walmisley, Wesley, Goss, Smart, Ouseley, and Barnby. The essay section of the work is an amplification of a lecture given by Mr. Foster on the subject of the anthem, in which his attractive manner and thorough musicianship are strongly in evidence. Messrs. Novello are the publishers.

Whatever may be the literary qualifications—and even these are not always conspicuous—of writers on music in the magazines, their knowledge of the subject is often exceedingly shrimpy. Not long ago one of these imperfectly-informed scribes, in preparing an article on 'Harvest hymns and anthems' for a widely-circulated monthly, actually wrote to a firm of music publishers asking them for the address of Dr. Greene, the composer of 'Thou visitest the earth!' As the old anthem composer departed this life in the year 1755, any communication addressed to him would, in all probability, find its way to the Dead Letter Office.

More than one instance of this lack of knowledge is furnished in an article contributed to the April number of a popular magazine, entitled 'What is the greatest achievement in music?' Therein the garbled title of Brahms's 'Schieksalied' is attributed to Sir Walter Parratt. 'Merely a misprint,' someone will charitably observe. In justice, however, to that long-suffering member of the community, the compositor, and to Sir Walter Parratt, it must be stated that the writer of the article himself says, later on, 'Brahms's "Schieksalied" was composed some years before his death in 1894.' Every writer on music knows, or ought to know, that Brahms died in 1897, and a little simple research would have furnished the year 1870 as an approximate date for the composition of the work, the correct title of which is 'Schicksalslied,' not 'Schieksalied.' The statement that the manuscript of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony is in the Library of the London Philharmonic Society is inaccurate. It is true there is a manuscript of that noble creation in the Society's Library, but it is only a copyist's score. The autograph of the work, in regard to its first three movements, is in the Royal Library, Berlin. These do not exhaust the errors in this single article, but they suffice. After this we shall never be surprised to learn that Palestrina composed the 'Mistersanguine,' not later than 1823, that the manuscript of that Symphonic Poem is in the dustbin of the Enharmonic Society, and that the Lost Chord has been found in the Strand.

The versatile musical critic of the Yorkshire Post demonstrates the humorous side of his mental equipment in the following pungent sentences, which are without suspicion of hard labour—at least, that is the verdict we are disposed to pass upon them.

The announcement that Mr. Bosville has been selected as High Sheriff of Yorkshire for the coming year opens up some interesting problems. It is no doubt a unique experience for a High Sheriff to be conductor of a musical festival. But it seems to us that it places any critics who may be present in an awkward, if not parlous position. The law concerning Contempt of Court is even vaguer than the licensing law, and we are not aware if critical strictures upon the 'conduct' of a High Sheriff have ever been judicially considered, save possibly as a matter for academic discussion. Certainly any critic who proposes to attend the Bridlington Festival next month would do well to tread warily. We should even advise him to take Counsel's opinion on this exceedingly nice point. We believe, however, that there is no foundation for the rumour that certain portions of the basement in the festival building are being converted into temporary cells. The report, too, that Mr. Bosville will conduct in a Court suit is of course a canard. It is unfortunate that time will not allow of some slight alterations in the programme. 'Trial by Jury' would have been highly appropriate, and the chorus from the 'Mikado' in praise of the 'Lord High Executioner' would have been a graceful tribute to the conductor. One thing, however, seems assured, that at the coming festival the standard of execution should be higher than ever, while, under the circumstances, there seems every prospect of an audience of Assize.

After this, London journalists must hide their diminished heads, as it is clear that in the manufacture of puns, Leeds leads the way.

As aforetime Mr. Bosville, conductor of the Bridlington Festival (the performances of which are noticed in another column), provides some entertaining matter in his 'descriptive notes' to the programme-book. Unconventionality characterises Mr. Bosville's analytical utterances. Thus his annotations, while exceedingly interesting and to the point, furnish pleasant reading, even to the initiated. For instance, in his comment on 'Then shall the righteous,' Mr. Bosville says:—

Notice in the accompaniment of the song the use of two trombones to play a part which one would have thought would have been allotted to the horns. The 'colour' introduced by the trombones is distinctly appropriate to give the feeling of bright sunshine to the number. The horn is romantic, poetic, affectionate, consolatory—what you will—but his smile has not the beaming brightness of his big brother the trombone.

From Mendelssohn to Wagner is a far cry, but Mr. Bosville, like all true artists, is evidently without prejudice. He is not above introducing boots into his analytical service, even though a pedal note has not to be illustrated. Concerning the opening of the 'Flying Dutchman' overture, we are told:—

The two notes of the spectral chord, simply the tonic and dominant of the key of D, are now turned into a rhythmic figure which is given to the horns and bassoons. The means employed are ridiculously simple, but so weird is the result that one need not be extravagantly imaginative to allow this figure to conjure up a vision of all kinds of unpleasant black things with tails, which do not buy their boots in pairs.

Later on (in the same overture) the frolicsomeness, the politeness, the rudeness, the interference, the timidity, and other characteristics of the instruments in the orchestra are thus described:—

The trombones in modulating harmony slowly creep downwards to reach a more abysmal A. When the bass trombone has reached the depth of his ambition he gracefully hands the A over to the drums, and quickly silences a prosaic major third which the alto trombone has ventured to sound. Then the fourth horn and the bassoon both try over the curse motive in the key of A, but the two lower trombones and the tuba interfere with chords. The tenor trombone, who has evidently been peeping at the end of the book, cannot refrain from telling that it all comes right in the last chapter, which he ventures to signify by a timid C sharp. Now the timpani's sense of dramatic fitness is utterly outraged by this unwarrantable revelation, so with a crackling roar upon the A, followed by a very decisive D, the tonality of the original key of D is restored, and the motive of the Dutchman springs forth with all the sudden impetuosity of the naughty fairy in a pantomime.

The only novelty at the Bridlington Festival is an 'Overture to the Canterbury Tales,' composed specially for the occasion by Mr. John Camidge, organist of Beverley Minster, the bearer of an honoured name in music. Mr. Camidge is of the fifth generation of organist Camidges. His great-great-grandfather, John Camidge, was organist of York Minster from 1756 to 1803, his great-grandfather, Matthew Camidge, held the same office from 1803 to 1844, and his grandfather, Dr. John Camidge, from 1844 to 1859—thus the office of chief musician in the Northern Archiepiscopal fane was held by successive generations of the Camidge family for 103 years, a circumstance quite unique in the history of English Cathedrals. This is not the first appearance of Mr. John Camidge—of the fifth generation, be it remembered—at Bridlington, he having contributed to the meeting of 1896 'A musical panorama of the mythological story of Marsyas and Apollo,' for which it was claimed by the composer that the voices accompanied the orchestra instead of the orchestra the voices. But to return to Mr. Camidge's new overture to the 'Canterbury Tales.' Concerning this novelty Mr. Bosville remarks:—

The opening Andante of the Overture is sufficiently solemn in character to remind the hearer of the pious motives which inspired the pilgrimage. The principal theme of this motive is shown in Ex. 1:—

Ex. 1.

Sadness is supposed by some to be the distinguishing mark of English pleasures, but it cannot be said that gloom lurks in the composer's picture of this very jovial dinner party—

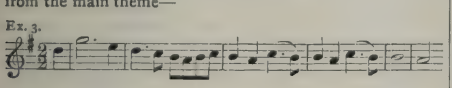
Ex. 2.

In the music the writer thinks he hears the clink of glasses and the clatter of knives and forks.

But stay!—is not this a hideous anachronism? Did not the pilgrims eat with dirks and drink out of leathern bottels? Never mind, perhaps the clink was caused by the expansion of the links of their chain-armour, which gave a little to accommodate roast swan and pickled pike!

Having suggested the gathering in the famous 'Tabard,' the composer draws no further inspiration from the poet's 'Tales,' but allows his second subject to grow spontaneously from the main theme—

Ex. 3.



There is a placid air of contentment about this melody which suggests the benevolent disposition of those who have dined well—and wisely.

In the third subject (Ex. 4) is there a faint suggestion of the Miller, whose demeanour was described by Chaucer as—well, it sounds better in 'musical' Italian—Stringendo e molto vivace?—

Ex. 4.

No! this explanation will not do. The composer admits no 'programme' in the evolution of his subsidiary subjects. It is simply the suspicious nose of the musical analyst which, prompted by the debasing character of its owner's occupation, sniffs out sinister motives in the most guileless musical passages.

Taken as a whole, the overture seems to the writer to be a distinctly sunny composition. There is no trace of midnight oil, or even of acetylene lamps. The themes seem to live a bright out-of-door life of their own, like healthy plants, which flourish in congenial soil, kissed by a kindly sun.

Who will say that Mr. Bosville is not a most entertaining musical analyst?

From the other side—that is U.S.A.—comes the following. It may be assumed that the little Miss Margery of the story is more familiar with the vernacular of a farmyard than with technical musical terms:

'Oh, mamma,' said little Margery, just home from school, 'what do you think? Our teacher stopped right in the middle of a music lesson and asked us how many turnips there were in a bushel? I just could not understand what that had to do with music.'

Mamma could not understand it either, and the more positive Margery became, the more her maternal relative felt that her little darling must have made a mistake. In order, however, to satisfy her own mind, she took an opportunity of enquiring of the teacher what she meant by asking the children during a music lesson, How many turnips there were in a bushel?

The teacher was just as puzzled as Margery and her mamma had been. But after meditating for a moment she laughingly exclaimed: 'Oh! I know; I asked the children how many beats there were in a measure!'

At a certain watering-place in Great Britain, not unknown to Continental travellers, 'Three dances from Henry VIII.—German' were played at a recent concert. A local newspaper, in recording the event, said: 'The orchestra then played three charming old English dances, which, curiously enough, were described in the programme as German.' How very curious!

The King of Italy, who is hardly less various in his tastes and interests than the German Emperor, has now taken in hand the reorganisation of the Italian military bands. After a conference with Signor Mascagni, His Majesty has decided to restore the drum to its pristine place of honour. Why should not the King himself assume the rôle of a drummer?

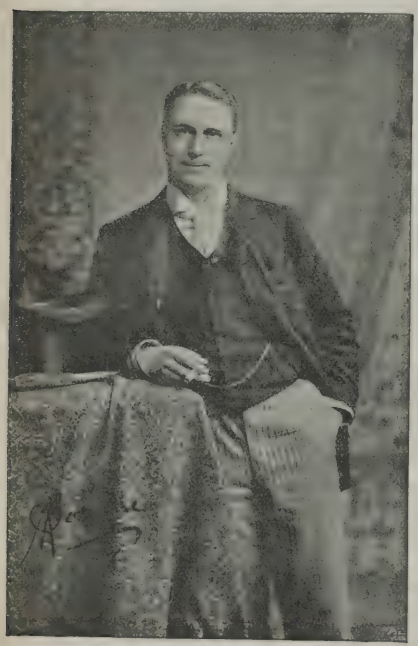
A Festival of Chamber Music in connection with the Beethoven-Haus will take place from the 12th to the 16th inst., in the Beethoven Halle, Bonn, the programmes being of great musical interest. The chief executants will include the Joachim Quartet, headed, of course, by Dr. Joachim, and M. Paderewski, and the orchestra will comprise members of the Court Orchestras of Berlin, Hanover, and Meiningen.

WHAT A HIGH SHERIFF MAY DO FOR MUSIC.

THE BRIDLINGTON MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

Mr. A. W. M. Bosville, the Squire of Thorpe, in the East Riding of Yorkshire, is a man who plays many parts. Engineering and music are among his hobbies, and, whether they take the concrete form of a motor car or a musical festival, he rides them to some practical purpose. In addition to these self-sought pursuits, he has this year had cast upon him the responsibility of assuming the expensive honour that attaches to the post of High Sheriff of Yorkshire, a fact that has given rise to a good deal of cheap witticism on the part of local humorists, who affected to imagine that he would conduct the festival on the



A. W. M. BOSVILLE, ESQ., J.P.

(From a Photograph by Byrne, Richmond.)

18th of last month arrayed in a court suit, and wielding a sword instead of a baton. It need hardly be said that this was not carried into practice, any more than the suggestion of an irresponsible penny-a-liner, that Sullivan's 'Trial by Jury' and the ballad of the 'Lord High Executioner' should be included in the programme.

On the contrary, the festival opened in thoroughly orthodox fashion with 'Elijah,' the performance of which may be dismissed with the remark that it showed a decided advance in point of finish on the part of the chorus. In the East Riding competent chorus-singers are not so numerous that there can be much picking and choosing, and in the early years of these festivals (the present occasion was the eighth annual one) it could not be denied that the choral material was, as a whole, of poor quality. In a familiar work like 'Elijah,' and one, too, that had been given before at Bridlington, it was easy to appreciate the greater finish and ease of vocalisation, the increased intelligence and precision of the chorus. The band, consisting chiefly of Yorkshire players, was, like that of every other festival, from Birmingham downwards, of the 'scratch' order, but was exceptionally efficient, in view of the small amount of rehearsal possible. The chief soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mrs. Burrell, Mr. Gregory Hast, and Mr. Francis Harford, who had in common the good quality of exceptional refinement, and were all distinguished by a refreshing absence of the inartistic mannerisms that beset so many singers. In the concerted pieces useful assistance was given by Mrs. Odille Bell, Miss F. Gibbins, Messrs. J. W. Watson and W. J. Stead.

The evening programme was varied and highly interesting. Bridlington, like every self-respecting festival, must have its novelty, and it was provided by Mr. J. Camidge, of Beverley, the last representative of a famous race of organists. On these occasions Mr. Camidge exchanges for his hereditary instrument, the "loud cymbals," on which he is a whole-souled and energetic performer; but he also appears at times in the capacity of a composer. Here he shows that his ideas of art are by no means circumscribed by the organ pew, and indeed the most striking feature of his clever overture to 'The Canterbury Tales' was the freshness and vivacity of his themes. He is so far from being a mere academic craftsman that he is not ashamed of a good tune, and he has the happy faculty of being able to create some really taking melodies, so far original that one is not haunted by the uncomfortable suspicion of having heard them before, or, like von Bülow, reduced to the rather doubtful encomium that one 'has always liked them.' The workmanship, too, is interesting, and sufficiently, but not obtrusively, scholarly, and there is, in a word, such good stuff in the music that it is to be regretted Mr. Camidge does not do more in the way of composition than providing an occasional pièce d'occasion for his neighbour and ally, Mr. Bosville.

The Overture, Spinning Chorus, and Senta's Ballad (sympathetically sung by Mrs. Bosville), from the 'Flying Dutchman,' opened the concert, and were given with enjoyable force and spirit. It ended with Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Departure,' in the performance of which there were some signs of fatigue, though, on the whole, the spirit of the music was well brought out. The soprano solos were most beautifully sung by Miss Agnes Nicholls, and Messrs. Hast and Harford did well in their respective parts. The delightful timbre of Mrs. Burrell's contralto was shown to remarkable advantage in Delilah's great scene from 'Samson and Delilah,' and the orchestra achieved its greatest success in the finest and most famous of the 'Leonora' overtures.

A particularly interesting feature of the festival was the selection of pieces to commemorate in turn our past and present sovereigns. No more suitable tribute could have been paid to the memory of Queen Victoria than the funeral march for chorus and orchestra from Sir A. C. Mackenzie's 'Dream of Jubal.' This noble and tender dirge has always seemed to me to be not only one of its author's very finest achievements, but one of the most inspired pieces produced by any of our native composers. It was performed with real sympathy, and made a deep impression on the hearers. At the evening concert an appropriate act of homage to King Edward VII. was done by the performance of Wagner's stately and heroic 'Huldigungsmarsch,' which was played with all possible pomp, though it must be added that the somewhat erratic escapades of the side-drum did not enhance the dignity of the music.

Finally, a word is due to Mr. Bosville, who is the soul of this festival. He not only taught the chorus and conducted the concerts with energy and ability, but he contributed to the edification and amusement of the audience by the lucid and original programme-analysis for which he is famous;* he had a hand in the successful organisation of the festival, and he will doubtless, as in former years, be responsible for the deficit which is the usual result of these enjoyable festivals, which are not conducted on strictly commercial principles.

Herbert Thompson.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

THE COMPOSER OF THE TUNE 'INNOCENTS.'

In reference to our remarks on Anonymous Hymn Tunes (March issue, p. 171) we have received the following letter in regard to the tune 'Innocents,' the composer of which has hitherto been unknown:—

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—It may interest some of your readers to learn that the hymn tune 'Innocents' was composed by my grandfather, Joseph Smith, of Halesowen, near Birmingham (born 1800; died 1873).

I well remember hearing my grandfather say that he wrote the tune, at the request of a lady friend, to the words, 'Twinkle, twinkle, little star,' to be sung by the children of her school.

My grandfather was a thorough musician and an excellent singer, though he never practised professionally. He knew the whole of the Psalms from memory, and it used to be one of my greatest pleasures, when, as a child, I visited my grandparents, to be allowed to sit up after the usual bedtime hour and listen to him as he sang, in his sweet tenor voice, one Psalm after another, to music which he would extemporise and play upon his cabinet organ, the room being in total darkness.

A volume containing the tune 'Innocents' is, I believe, in the possession of one or other of his sons, Felix Smith, Halesowen, or Hubert Smith, organist, &c., Rugby. They probably could give you more interesting particulars than I have done.

I look each month with the greatest eagerness for my copy of The Musical Times. I have subscribed for it for over twenty-five years.—With best wishes, yours truly,

Joseph Smith.
Organist and Choirmaster of St. Paul's Church,
San Diego, California, U.S.A.,
March 23, 1901.

Acting on our correspondent's suggestion, we wrote to Mr. Felix Smith. Here is his reply:—

Sir,—In reply to yours of the 11th instant, I beg to say that the hymn tune known as 'Innocents' was composed by my late father about sixty years ago. I have the original manuscript in my possession in a book in his own handwriting with his initials to it. This book contains several other compositions by him of a similar kind. It used to be sung to 'Twinkle, twinkle, little star,' but the words set to it in the manuscript are called 'The Sun,' the first line being 'Who am I with noble face?' My father composed it for the children of the first infant school established at Halesowen, of which school my sister was the assistant-mistress.

If you would like to see the original manuscript, I shall be pleased to show it to you.—I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

Felix Smith.

Spring Vale, Halesowen,
April 14, 1901.

Mr. Hubert Smith, of Rugby, strongly confirms the statements made by his nephew and brother. This ought to settle the point. Will anyone challenge this information?

* See p. 314 of the present issue.

AN ALDERMANIC AND J.P. ORGANIST.

The organ in the Parish Church of Deane, near Bolton, was re-opened on Sunday, the 14th ult., after having undergone renovation at the hands of Messrs. Alexander Young and Co., of Manchester. The instrument was presided over by Alderman Miles, J.P., who, on that day, completed thirty-seven years of service as organist and choirmaster of the church. Congratulations to Alderman Miles upon so honourable a record of work as the chief musician of Deane Church. It would be interesting to hear of other instances of Aldermanic organists and Justices of the Peace who devote themselves to the King of Instruments in 'quires and places where they sing.'

So many notices of Lenten performances of music have reached us that it is impossible to mention all of them separately. The annual presentation of Bach's noble Passion at St. Paul's Cathedral lost none of its deep impressiveness under Sir George Martin's reverent administration. At a number of other churches the Passion music from 'The Messiah,' and especially Stainer's 'Crucifixion,' have been sung with technical excellence combined with genuine devotion. Thus the splendid example set at St. Paul's nearly thirty years ago, and which owes its initiation to the late Sir John Stainer, bears increasing fruit year by year.

Excellent work seems to be done at Holy Trinity Church, Bournemouth, of which Mr. Walter Barnett is the organist and choirmaster. The choir is not only numerically strong—twenty boys, six altos, six tenors, and ten basses—but they seem capable of doing all that is required of them with refinement and efficiency. The 'fully admitted' boys are educated at one of the best proprietary schools of the town at the expense of the churchwardens—an excellent arrangement. The répertoire of the music sung at the ordinary services is a very comprehensive one, and such works as 'The Last Judgment,' 'The Hymn of Praise,' 'The Woman of Samaria,' and others, have been performed by the choir at special musical services. All commendation, therefore, to the organist and choir of Holy Trinity Church, Bournemouth. May the good work go on.

Shortly before his death Sir John Stainer was engaged upon a revised edition of Helmore's Psalter. We understand that the work is nearly completed and that it will be issued by Messrs. Novello.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. Edwin H. Lemare, St. Margaret's, Westminster (Berceuse, MS., by E. H. Lemare, for the first time).—Mr. Roger Ascham, Feather Market Hall, Port Elizabeth (In Memoriam Recital, Dr. E. J. Hopkins).—Mr. Walter Hoyle, St. Michael's, Coventry (Toccata, Rheinberger, Op. 165).—Mr. H. Holloway, St. Stephen's Bournemouth (Prelude, Rachmaninoff).—Mr. Thomas Curry, St. Stephen's, Walbrook.—Mr. B. G. Thorne, Sherborne School (Sonata, No. 18, Rheinberger).—Mr. J. W. Cheadle, St. Michael's, Dumfries (Andante in D, Op. 74, Silas).—Mr. C. Burrows Moss, Parish Church, Gravesend (Hommage à Mozart, J. Baptiste Calkin).—Mr. John Lomas, English Church of Montreux (Rheinberger's Pastoral Sonata). The recitals given by Mr. Lomas during the past winter have been much appreciated and largely attended.—Mr. R. D. Browne, Cudham Church (Sonata in D, Professor Prout).—Mr. W. E. Fairclough, All Saints', Toronto (Concert-Overture in C minor, Hollins, and Fantasia in F, Best).—Mr. P. Tottenham Lucas, St. Paul's, Covent Garden (Offertoire, King Hall).—Mr. Arthur S. James, St. Peter's, Rickmansworth.—Mr. P. Tottenham Lucas, St. Lawrence, Jewry.—Mr. Alfred E. Floyd, Parish Church, Llangollen (Ricercare, Rheinberger, one of his lesser-known compositions).—Mr. J. J. Finlay, Parish Church, Peebles ('Holsworthy Church Bells,' Wesley, and Concert-Overture, Wolstenholme).—Mr. H. J. Crumplin, Parish Church, North Berwick (Adagio Cantabile, E. J. Hopkins).—Mr. R. Meyrick Roberts, St. Stephen's, Walbrook (Grand Chœur in B flat, Dubois).—Mr. William H. Speer, St. Nicholas, Sutton (Andantino, César Franck).—Mr. F. Isherwood-Plummer, Wesley Church, Birkdale (Variations on an Original Theme in A, Hesse).—Mr. David Clegg, Holy Trinity, Richmond.—Mr. Archibald Horsey, St. Stephen's, Walbrook.—Mr. C. H. Moody, Holy Trinity, Coventry (Fantasia, Sir John Stainer, to whose memory the programme was dedicated).—Mr. H. J. Davis, Christ Church, Bath (In Memoriam Overture, Sullivan, as a tribute to the late Sir John Stainer).

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. F. C. Boyes, St. Clement's, Ilford.
Mr. Hugh G. Brereton, Parish Church, Conway.
Mr. H. Crackel, Eastwood Parish Church, Rotherham.
Mr. Edward W. Groocock, St. Andrew's, Croydon.
Mr. Quintus S. H. James, St. Katherine's, Uitenhage, Cape Colony.
Mr. Alfred Morland, St. Wilfrid's, Halton, Lancaster.
Mr. W. J. Piercy, St. Matthew's, Hatchford, Surrey.
Mr. W. Smith, Christ Church, Leicester.
Mr. Edwin Stephenson, St. Michael's, Brighton.
Mr. Samuel Warren, Palmerston Place United Free Church, Edinburgh.
Mr. George Brentnall (Alto), Birmingham Parish Church.
Mr. L. J. Frost (Alto), St. Sepulchre's, Newgate Street.
Mr. Harry W. Poole (Bass), St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate.
Mr. G. T. Patman, Bridlington Priory Church. (We regret that Mr. Patman's appointment was inadvertently given last month as to All Saints', Scarborough.)

REVIEWS.

ANTHEMS.

Thou, Lord, in the beginning. By John Stainer.
Jesu, Thou joy of loving hearts. By E. Harold Davies.
In heavenly love abiding. Horatio Parker.
Hosanna to the living Lord. By Warwick Jordan.
And Jesus entered into the temple. By H. Walford Davies.

(Novello's Octavo Anthems.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Sir John Stainer has so recently passed from us that a chastened interest pertains to his anthem, 'Thou, Lord, in the beginning,' particularly as the greater portion of the text selected deals with the future state of the blessed, and includes those exquisite lines, 'And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain.' These words are set with that simplicity and devotional truth of expression which distinguish the late composer's happiest efforts, and the affecting music comes now with peculiar significance. The anthem is opened by the basses in unison, who continue for fourteen bars, after which the full choir enters imitatively. The second section chiefly consists of a soprano solo, supported by the choir, which comments pianissimo and antiphonally on the words of the soloist. Subsequently the basses have another extended passage in unison, after which there comes the expressive section already referred to, and the anthem concludes with a jubilant setting of the doxology from Neale's 'Urbs Beata.' It should be added that the composition is specially suitable to Septuagesima Sunday and the Feast of St. John, but is also appropriate for general use.

Mr. E. Harold Davies has taken his text from hymn No. 190 in Hymns Ancient and Modern, and has set the lines in a devotional and effective manner for soprano solo and chorus. The solo portion is easy to sing, but the chorus parts will require some practice from average choirs to do the clever music justice. The name of the American composer, Professor Horatio Parker, is now as well known by us, and, be it added, as much esteemed as by his compatriots, and his anthem, 'In heavenly love abiding,' is an admirable example of his flowing and melodious style. The first two pages of the work are laid out for soprano solo, and will be found grateful to sing. The choir subsequently enters in solid four-part harmony, and continues until the soloist again is heard with the initial melody superimposed on the chorus parts. The Finale is approached by a fine climax. 'Hosanna to the living Lord' is a setting of hymn No. 241, Hymns Ancient and Modern, and, as will be surmised, is specially suitable for festival occasions. The music requires a well trained choir, but Dr. Warwick Jordan's wide experience of church singers has prevented him making demands which would be difficult to meet. The anthem contains a slow section for 'verse or semi-chorus,' and an effective fughetta, which, however, may be omitted if desired. Dr. Walford Davies is one of our most promising church composers, and his anthem, 'And Jesus entered into the temple,' is an excellent specimen of modern sacred music. It opens with short recitative passages for tenor and bass soloists, the former taking the part of Narrator and the latter delivering the words of Christ. The remainder of the anthem chiefly consists of exhortations made by a soprano vocalist, with interjectional comments by the chorus. Intelligently rendered, the composition would be very impressive, particularly the conclusion.

ORGAN MUSIC.

Sonata in D minor. By J. G. Töpfer.
Meditation. By Hamilton Clarke.
Nocturne in B minor. Contemplation. By Edwin H. Lemare. [Novello and Company, Limited.]

The Sonata by Töpfer (1791-1870) is what may be termed good solid stuff—a little old-fashioned, perhaps, but none the worse on that account as an effective composition. The first movement of the work was originally published as a separate piece, under the title of Concert-Fantasie, and was used by the composer for the purpose of testing the quality and capabilities of new organs. The fact that this movement has been chosen as one of the test pieces at the approaching Royal College of Organists examination for the Fellowship Diploma is a sufficient hallmark as to its excellence. In the matter of editing the work for performance on present-day English organs, Mr. John E. West has done all that is necessary, not only wisely, but well. He has also furnished a few biographical particulars concerning the composer—a good idea. Mr. Hamilton Clarke's Meditation justifies its title, and should win the suffrages of those who are that way inclined. The two pieces by Mr. Lemare are very characteristic of his music and attainments. The accompaniment section of the Nocturne is rather suggestive of disturbed slumbers, and any reveller in the pastime of playing three notes in one hand against two in the other will therein find full scope for his enjoyment. The Contemplation is easier and more tranquilly disposed.

PART-SONGS.

Before me, careless lying. Words by Austin Dobson. Music by C. H. Lloyd.
How dear to me the hour. Words by Thomas Moore. Music by Alicia Adélaïde Needham.
When Spring comes laughing. Words by Austin Dobson. Music by Eaton Faning.
Shepherds all and Maidens fair. Words by E. Nesbit. Music by Percy Pitt.

(Novello's Part-Song Book.)

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

Dr. Harford Lloyd has set Mr. Dobson's lines in the spirit which they breathe, that of old world grace and quaintness. The music is laid out for two sopranos, alto, tenor, and bass, and imperatively demands cultured singers and a well trained choir. To such the music will give no small pleasure to construe, for it will call forth and effectively display their abilities. Miss Needham's part-song, 'How dear to me the hour,' is designed for the usual four mixed voices, and makes far less demand on its executants than does Dr. Lloyd's composition. That it possesses merit above the average is attested by the fact that it gained the prize offered for the best arrangement of an ancient Irish air at the Feis Ceoil of last year. Well sung, this part-song would be very pleasing. 'When Spring comes laughing,' which, by the way, it seldom does in this 'right little, tight little island,' is a gay ditty that is calculated to lighten the hearts of its singers as well as the listeners. Seeing that it comes from so experienced a choir trainer as Dr. Eaton Faning, it is scarcely necessary to add that the music is admirably designed to secure good vocal effects. Mr. Percy Pitt's part-song is akin in spirit to Dr. Faning's, but it is much shorter and the music is more distinctive. Some of the harmonic transitions are very bold and striking; but in this case the 'end justifies the means,' and the end attained is very pleasing.

MUSICAL LITERATURE, &c.

Handel. By C. F. Abdy Williams. With illustrations and portraits. [J. M. Dent and Co.]

The pathway of Handel biography has been so well trodden that any fresh wayfarer in that direction finds little or nothing of 'pastures new.' Mr. Abdy Williams frankly admits that he has endeavoured to give 'a popular narrative of the chief events of his (Handel's) life, without entering much into technicalities which, though interesting to the musician, are not perhaps so necessary for the general reader.' In this we think he has succeeded; the chequered life-story of the great composer is pleasantly told and the illustrations add to the interest of the book. One or two points in Mr. Williams's monograph may be referred to, as touching matters of accuracy. Vauxhall Gardens are not the present Spring Gardens (Trafalgar Square), as might be inferred (p. 48, note). The notice in the Daily Courant of July 19, 1717 (quoted on p. 65), refers to the second performance of the Water Music, not to the first, as is implied. John Byron should be John Byrom (p. 88), the author of the famous Bononcini-Handel squib. Chester was not the place of embarkation for Ireland in Handel's day (p. 156), but the boats started from Parkgate, once a place of considerable importance, twelve miles north-west of Chester, on the estuary of the Dee. The Dictionary of Musicians was issued in 1824, and therefore not quite so early as 1727 (p. 248); the article on Handel in Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians is written by Mr. Julian Marshall and not by the editor of that work, and Hoptinstall should be Heptinstall (both on p. 249); and on p. 251, R. H. Streatfeild (a name often wrongly spelt) should be R. A. Streatfeild. As a small but practically new contribution to Handeliana we give in another column some particulars relating to the Act of Parliament for the naturalisation of the great composer.

First steps in the Harmonization of Melodies. By J. E. Vernham. (No. 58 of Novello's Music Primers and Educational Series.) [Novello and Company, Limited.]

The conditions under which students in music may become equipped for their work are very different from what they were even fifty years ago. If we do not turn out such men of grit as formerly, the charge cannot be laid to the aids which are now available even to the most slender purses. In regard to this, the most recent of the Primer series, the author of the book states: 'The simple rules contained in the following pages are given to assist students to harmonise simple melodies in the early stages of the study of Harmony.' Mr. Vernham has chosen the Single Chant, being the simplest form of melody, as a suitable beginning. With this as a starting-point he proceeds on his first steps and systematically leads his student companion towards that goal which should enable him (the student) to harmonise a simple melody correctly and effectively.

VARIOUS PUBLICATIONS.

Arundel Masses.—I. Mass for Three Voices (unaccompanied). By William Byrd. [R. & T. Washburne.]

William Byrd died nearly two years before Charles the First ascended the throne, and he is, therefore, in the strictest sense, one of our Old Masters. He is known generally to musicians by his pieces in the Virginal Book, from among which 'The Carman's Whistle' stands out with special prominence; also by the 'Non nobis, Domine,' canon. Both Byrd and his master, Tallis, were of the Roman communion, hence the Masses by the former, of which the one under notice possesses interest for the musician as well as the antiquary; the music is solemn and dignified, and, although full of clever contrapuntal devices, is not laboured in effect. The whole of Byrd's three Masses were printed during the composer's lifetime; the one for five voices was recently reprinted by Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel, and the one in four parts republished in 1890 by Messrs. Novello. The present work was long thought to be lost, but manuscript copies have been found, and the present edition has been prepared, and ably, by Mr. William Barclay Squire, from a set of parts acquired by the British Museum in 1888.

Georg Friedrich Handel's Klavierwerke. Book I. Edited by Conrad Kühner. [Breitkopf and Härtel.]

Lovers of Handel will find an interesting series of pieces for the pianoforte in the first book of the collection edited by Herr Conrad Kühner. They present great variety, both in character and length; one, a graceful Minuet in G minor, only occupying a single page, while a Chaconne in G has sixty-two variations. Between these extremes are many bright examples of the old master of more ordinary dimensions. As studies for independence of the hands and fingers they may be specially recommended, particularly as they are admirably fingered, and the proper renderings of the turns and ornaments are printed at length at the bottom of the pages.

THE BACH FESTIVAL IN BERLIN.

(By our Special Correspondent.)

Mayence, April 18.

Just before the close of the musical season an unwonted artistic event has taken place in Berlin, which will doubtless bear good fruit in the future—viz., the first German Bach Festival. I may, perhaps, be permitted a brief glance at the preliminary history of this significant event. Fifty years ago a Bach Society was formed in Germany, having for its object to collect the enormous number of existing, but widely scattered works of the great Cantor of St. Thomas's School, and to unite them in a truly monumental edition. After having been zealously and laboriously engaged upon their task for half-a-century, the Society brought it to a conclusion, some two years since, with the issue of the forty-sixth folio volume of the complete edition of Bach's works. The Society having thus fulfilled its mission, Professor Kretzschmar, of Leipzig, in an interesting and exhaustive monograph concerning the history and activity of the old Society, then about to be dissolved, advocated the constitution of a new Bach Society, whose purpose it would be to realise and, as far as possible, popularise the treasures contained in these forty-six volumes of the master's works. This was to be effected by the organisation of biennial Bach festivals to be held alternately in different musical centres. The idea having been taken up with alacrity, the new Society very speedily sprang into existence, and the first of the festivals has now been held in Berlin. In thus assigning the place of honour to Berlin, the committee were actuated, in the first instance, by motives of gratitude. For was it not here, in the year 1829, the first complete performance of Bach's 'St. Matthew' Passion had taken place, under the direction of the youthful Mendelssohn, whereby the attention of the musical world had at last been drawn to the greatness and the importance of the master's genius? For his works had become buried almost in oblivion, or were only known to a very narrow circle of musically cultured men and women. Like many another creative genius, the great Cantor had been far ahead of his own time and had been treated with derision or purposely ignored by musical Philistines and pedants, who shuddered at the mere allusion to his new and daring harmonies. The Bach propaganda inaugurated by Mendelssohn has borne good fruit. Slowly, but steadily, the work of resuscitation proceeded, until to-day not only are we in the precious possession of a complete edition of his works, but there exists a great and enthusiastic community who look upon Johann Sebastian Bach as representing the solid foundation upon which the temple of modern art has been erected.

The latest fruit, and certainly not the least significant, matured by the Bach propaganda, are the Bach festivals, the first of which took place, from March 21 to 23, at Berlin, with the participation of the Philharmonic Choir, under the direction of Professor Siegfried Ochs, the Royal Hochschule für Musik, under Professor Joachim, and the Singakademie, under the conductorship of Herr Georg Schumann. Each of these Institutions gave one concert. In an altogether irreproachable manner the Philharmonic Choir interpreted five of the great church cantatas in the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church. By the Hochschule two of the 'Brandenburg' concertos, a violin sonata, a motet for a cappella choir, and two organ pieces were produced. Finally, the Singakademie produced a Mass, another one of the 'Brandenburg' concertos (chamber concertos, composed by Bach for a music-loving Markgraf of Brandenburg), a very humorous secular cantata, and the Gloria from a second Mass. The performances were worthy of the master in whose honour they were undertaken, rendering the occasion a truly memorable one. The attendance of the general public, too, and the interest shown by it in the proceedings, surpassed the most sanguine expectations. In connection with the Festival, a Bach Exhibition had been opened at the Rathaus, which, however, appeared to attract but little notice on the part of general visitors. This was much to be regretted, as it contained, in addition to a number of the most important and valuable autographs of Johann Sebastian Bach and of his sons, Friedemann and Philipp Emanuel, portraits, busts, &c., a complete orchestral complement of instruments in use at the period in which the great Cantor lived. The comparatively scant attraction exercised by these interesting and instructive objects could not, however, materially detract from the otherwise complete success of the Festival. The performances, after all, were the chief attraction, and there can be no doubt of their having met with high and well-deserved appreciation.

A kind of supplementary event of the Festival was the performance, on Good Friday, of the 'St. Matthew' Passion, by the Singakademie. Musical Berlin, and more especially lovers of Bach, may congratulate themselves upon the fact that a time has at length arrived when the spiritless, mechanical treatment of Bach's masterwork, to which we have of late years become accustomed, is being replaced by one more worthy of it. Since the accession to its conductorship of that earnest and gifted young artist, Herr Georg Schumann, an entirely new spirit has been infused into that old-established Society, the Singakademie, and its recent performance of the 'St. Matthew' Passion has furnished a fresh proof of the pervading artistic influence of its new leader.

The series of Subscription concerts of the Royal Orchestra concluded with a magnificent performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, under Felix Weingartner's direction. In the course of the ten concerts given, all the Beethoven symphonies have been produced, and it may be unhesitatingly asserted that, as regards penetration into the spirit of these masterpieces, the complete exposition of their emotional contents, the transparent delineation of their structural design, the minute regard for detail without detriment to their presentation as a whole, and the absolute unaffectedness, withal, of his interpretation—Weingartner, possessing all these qualifications, has proved himself the most legitimate and masterful German Beethoven conductor of the present day.

The opinion here expressed is just now gaining fresh and emphatic confirmation at Mayence, where a Beethoven Festival is being held (from April 14-20), under Weingartner's direction. The effect produced here by the well-known works of the Bonn master, under his baton, baffles description. Yesterday we heard, in the first of the orchestral concerts, the first three symphonies, which are to be followed to-day by the fourth and fifth, together with the Pianoforte Concerto in E flat major. To-morrow, the sixth and seventh symphonies and the Violin Concerto will constitute the programme; and on the final day will be given the two remaining symphonies and the great 'Leonora' overture. Already, in the first concert, the Mayence public were in a fever of enthusiasm; what will it be when those stirring works, the fifth, seventh, and ninth symphonies have their turn! The Beethoven Festival had been organised by the Mayence Liedertafel and Damen-Gesangverein, with the co-operation of the Munich Kaim Orchestra, and this undertaking on the part of these excellent societies is no doubt, in its way, quite as meritorious an artistic achievement as that accomplished by the New Bach Society with its first Bach Festival.

Amongst the executive artists who appeared in Berlin shortly before the close of the season was a gifted countrywoman of yours, Madame Marie Fromm-Kirby, of Birmingham, whose pianoforte interpretations met with considerable appreciation, both on the part of the public and of the Press. The lady proved herself an excellent musician in Beethoven's Sonata in E flat major (Op. 27) and Brahms's Sonata for violoncello and pianoforte, and she was equally successful in brilliant pieces by Henselt, Tschaïkowsky, and Rubinstein. Madame Fromm-Kirby may always rely upon receiving a hearty welcome in Berlin at any future time.

Otto Lessmann.

PRESENTATION TO PROFESSOR NIECKS.

A most interesting event was commemorated on March 23, in the Music Class Room of Edinburgh University. The students, past and present, of the faculty of music met to congratulate their professor on the completion of his first ten years of occupancy of the Reid Chair, and to present him with a token of their respect and admiration. The gifts took the form of a gold-mounted baton and an illuminated address, on the latter of which was recorded the high appreciation his students have of the work which the professor has accomplished since his appointment to the chair of music.

Professor Niecks, in accepting the presentation, jocularly referred to a dream which he had dreamed, wherein, in that very room, he had been tried and sentenced by his students for his sins of omission and commission as a professor! He considered that in all the faculties of a University there was insufficient opportunity for intercourse between professor and student, and he suggested, as an improvement, that lectures should be followed by discussion and examination—mutual examination of student and professor alike. He deemed it a happy moment to be made the recipient of that beautiful gift and eloquent address and the kind thoughts of himself of which they were the expression, and he thanked them from his heart.

The address contained the following passages: 'We gladly take advantage of the occasion to express to you our appreciation of the far-reaching work you have accomplished in utilizing the resources of the Chair, and of the consequent privileges your students enjoy. . . . To you we owe the institution of a complete musical curriculum, such as exists in no other British University . . . you have instituted a yearly series of Historical Concerts, the educational value of which cannot be easily over-estimated. . . . We would thank you for your preparation, year by year, of ever-varying lectures, in addition to the regular courses; for the inexhaustible patience and interest with which you enter into and inspire our individual endeavours; and, finally, for leading us, amid changing manners and means of expression, to a just recognition of the worth and beauty of the music of all ages.'

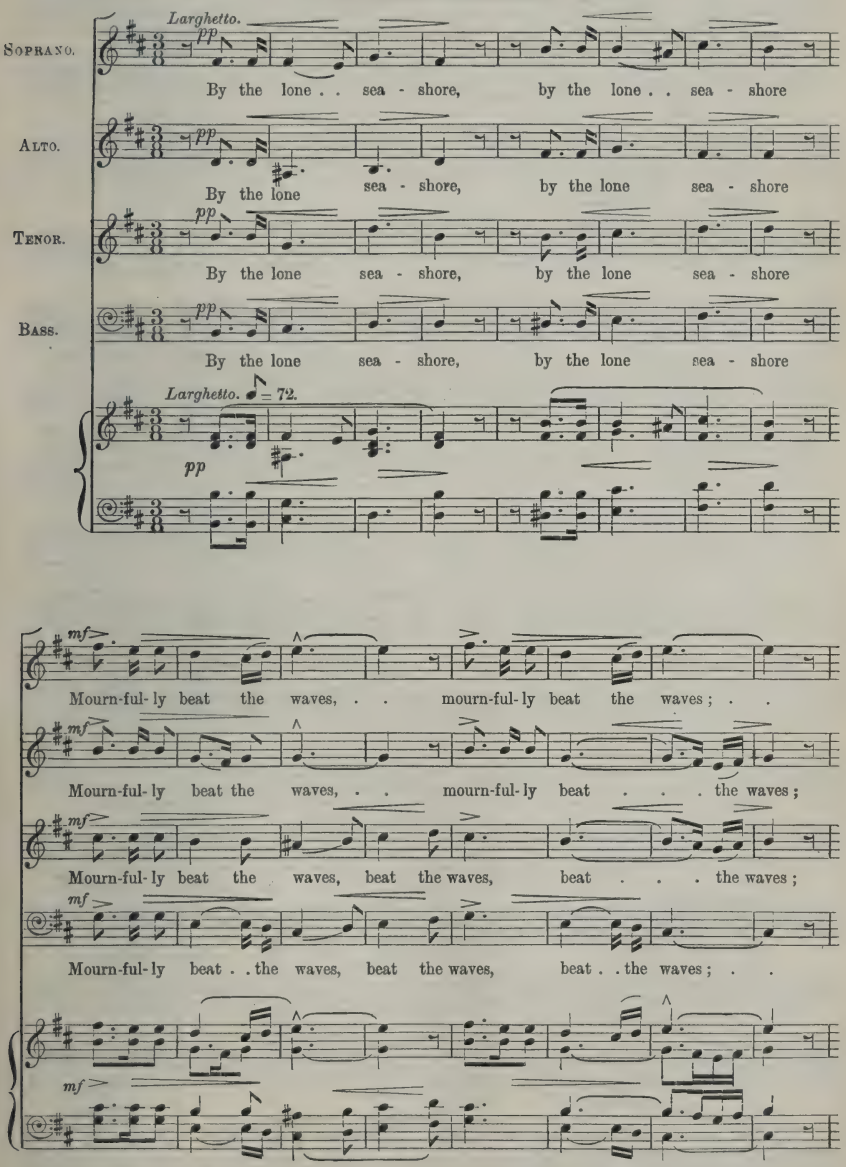
After reading such warmly expressed sentiments as these it causes no surprise to learn that the presentation function to Professor Niecks partook of the nature of a family party. The recipient of that gold-mounted baton will doubtless vigorously beat time. May Time not retaliate, but deal gently with him.

By the lone Sea Shore.

A FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by CHARLES MACKAY. Composed by S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO. NEW YORK.



Larghetto.
pp
SOPRANO.
By the lone . . sea - shore, by the lone . . sea - shore
ALTO.
By the lone sea - shore, by the lone sea - shore
TENOR.
By the lone sea - shore, by the lone sea - shore
BASS.
By the lone sea - shore, by the lone sea - shore
Larghetto. ♩ = 72.
pp
mf
Mourn-ful-ly beat the waves, . . mourn-ful-ly beat the waves; . .
Mourn-ful-ly beat the waves, . . mourn-ful-ly beat . . . the waves;
Mourn-ful-ly beat the waves, beat the waves, beat . . . the waves;
Mourn-ful-ly beat . . the waves, beat the waves, beat . . the waves; . .

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

Mourn-ful-ly ev - er - more . . The wild wind sobs . . . and raves. . .
Mourn-ful-ly ev - er - more The wild wind sobs . . and . . raves. . .
Mourn-ful-ly ev - er - more The wild wind sobs . . . and raves. . .
Mourn - ful - ly ev-er - more The wild wind sobs . . . and raves. . .
mp
By the lone . . sea - shore, by the lone . . sea - shore Mourn-ful-ly
By the lone sea - shore, by the lone sea - shore Mourn - ful -
By the lone sea - shore, by the lone sea - shore Mourn-ful-ly
By the lone sea - shore, by the lone sea - shore Mourn -
p beat the waves, . . . mourn-ful-ly beat the waves; . .
- ly, mourn-ful-ly beat the waves, . . . the waves; Mourn-ful-ly beat the waves, . . mourn-ful-ly beat the waves; Mourn-ful-ly
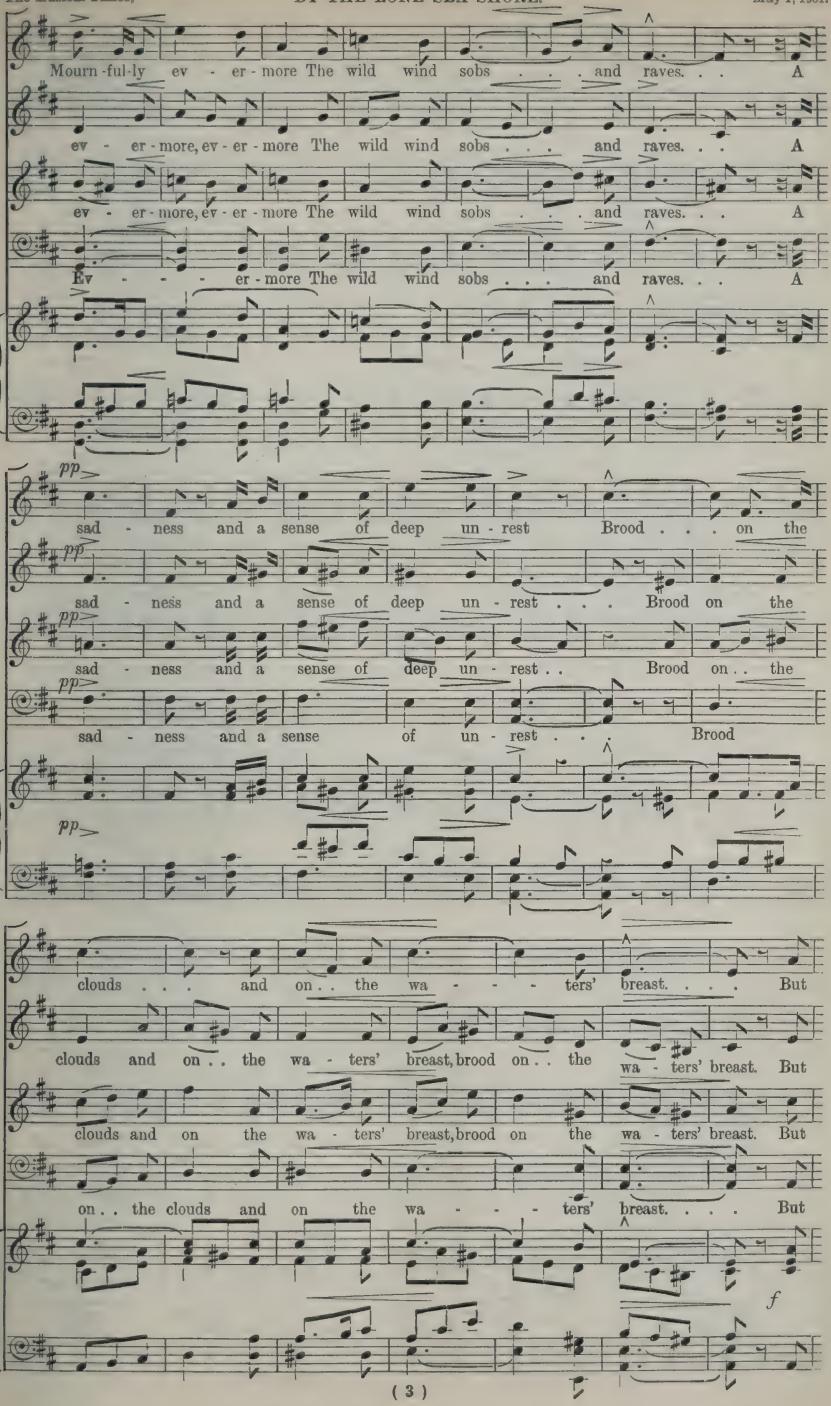
- ful-ly, mourn-ful-ly beat the waves, . . . the waves; . .



Mourn-ful-ly ev - er - more The wild wind sobs . . . and raves. . . A ev - er - more, ev - er - more The wild wind sobs . . . and raves. . . A ev - er - more, ev - er - more The wild wind sobs . . . and raves. . . A Ev - - - er - more The wild wind sobs . . . and raves. . . A
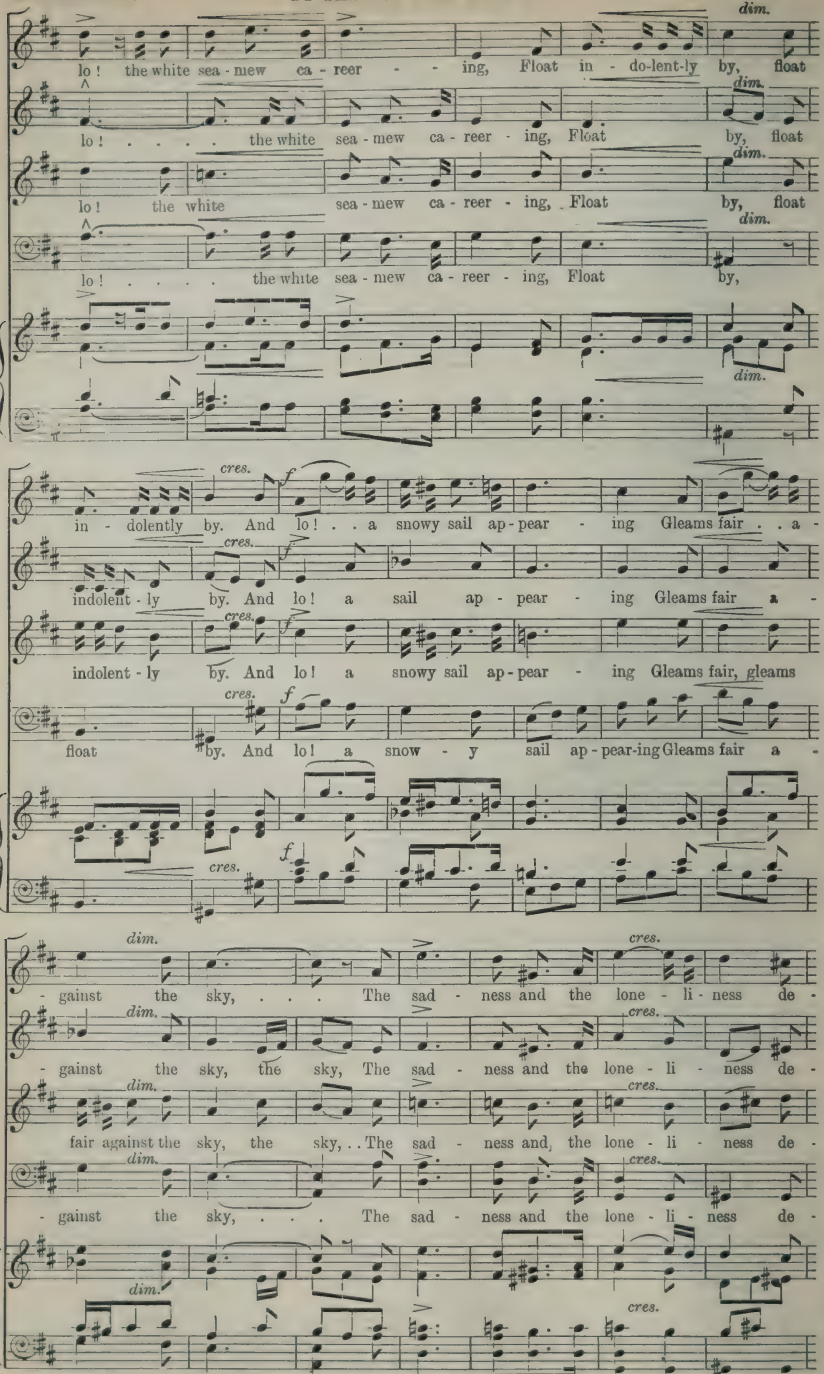
pp sad - ness and a sense of deep un - rest Brood . . . on the sad - ness and a sense of deep un - rest . . . Brood on the sad - ness and a sense of deep un - rest . . Brood on . . the sad - ness and a sense of un - rest . . Brood clouds . . . and on . . the wa - - - - ters' breast. . . . But clouds and on . . the wa - ters' breast, brood on . . the wa - ters' breast. But clouds and on the wa - ters' breast, brood on the wa - ters' breast. But on . . the clouds and on the wa - - - - ters' breast. . . . But
f



dim.
lo! the white sea-mew ca-reer-ing, Float in-do-lent-ly by, float lo! the white sea-mew ca-reer-ing, Float by, float
lo! the white sea-mew ca-reer-ing, Float by, float lo! the white sea-mew ca-reer-ing, Float by, cres. f
in-dolently by. And lo! a snowy sail ap-pear-ing Gleams fair aindolent-ly by. And lo! a sail ap-pear-ing Gleams fair aindolent-ly by. And lo! a snowy sail ap-pear-ing Gleams fair, gleams float by. And lo! a snow-y sail ap-pear-ing Gleams fair a-dim. cres.
-gainst the sky, The sad-ness and the lone-li-ness de-
-gainst the sky, the sky, The sad-ness and the lone-li-ness de-fair against the sky, the sky, The sad-ness and, the lone-li-ness de--gainst the sky, The sad-ness and the lone-li-ness de-

ff
dim.
- part, . . And na - ture smiles with sym - pa - thy of heart, . .
- part, And na - ture, na - ture smiles with sym - pa - thy of heart, . .
- part, And na - ture smiles . . with sym - pa - thy of heart, . .
- part, . . And na - ture smiles . . with sym - pa - thy of heart, . .
mf
dim.
e . rall.
pp
. . na - ture smiles . . with sym - pa - thy . . of heart. . . .
. . na - ture smiles with sym - pa - thy of heart. . . .
. . na - ture smiles with sym - - pa - thy of heart. . . .
. . sym - - pa - thy of heart. . . .

THE ÆSTHETIC TREATMENT OF BACH'S ORGAN WORKS.

An exceedingly interesting and valuable paper on this important subject was read before the Musical Association on the 16th ult., by Mr. H. H. Statham, of which the following is a summary.

Mr. Statham considered Bach's organ compositions as his central work; the organ style coloured and influenced everything else he did, an opinion in which both Dr. Spitta and Sir Hubert Parry (in his 'Art of Music') concurred. This influence of the organ no doubt operated in promoting that gravity and severity of style which permeates all Bach's compositions, but it perhaps had an unfavourable effect on his vocal writing, leading him to write for voices too much in the organ style, his vocal solos especially being deficient in what might be called melodic inspiration. The transcription of Bach's organ works for the pianoforte was strongly condemned. They were full of passages the effect of which could not possibly be represented on the pianoforte. It had been supposed that the 'little E minor' Prelude and Fugue was an exception, but the very finest feature in the Prelude—was totally futile on the pianoforte, depending for its effect on the absolute sustaining of the notes in the melodic phrase, and on the great mass of the answering chords, neither of which effects could be realised on the pianoforte. The question of scale, too, came in, and instances were cited of passages which had a grand effect on the great scale of the organ, but lost this on the smaller scale of the pianoforte. If the public wished to understand Bach's organ music, they should hear it on the instrument it was written for.

After some remarks on the difference of style in Bach's earlier and later works, and mentioning the fugue in the Doric mode as perhaps the loftiest in style and conception, the lecturer observed that these works were not to be regarded merely as examples of fugue, but as poetic conceptions thrown into fugue form, just as Beethoven threw his poetic conceptions into sonata form. The rule which he had seen formulated, that fugues should be played with a gradual strengthening of power from the commencement to the close, might be right enough for school fugues like Albrechtsberger's, for example, but was inapplicable to such idealised compositions as Bach's Organ Fugues, which required varied treatment in accordance with their feeling and style. Was it justifiable to import into them what might be described as essentially modern effect and feeling? He thought it was, as long as the result was to add to the effect and interest of the music. Best had made one or two interesting experiments in this way. One was in treating the 'little E minor' Fugue as an Adagio; but he (the lecturer) thought this was hardly in keeping with the true character of the composition. A more successful and very remarkable attempt was Best's reading of the short Fugue in C minor, in Vol. 4 (Peters' edition), where the pedal is not introduced till near the close. Best commenced it piano, and kept it so till just before the pedal entry, introducing the theme each time on a different stop; just before the pedal entry there was a crescendo on the full swell, and the pedal entered with a tremendous ff. The effect was most striking, and this he thought a legitimate means of giving new effect to what was formerly regarded as a composition of secondary interest. In this case, too, the character of the music lent itself to such a treatment. Mr. Statham described his own habitual treatment of the closing portion of the A minor Prelude, with a decrescendo after the last pedal solo, and ending pp. He would not say that it was probable that Bach treated the passage in an analogous manner, but we could not know that he did not; and certainly it added to the expressiveness of the music and to the effect of the 'attack' of the fugue immediately afterwards.

Speaking generally, Mr. Statham thought the mistake was more often made of playing Bach's organ fugues too slow than too fast. Bach was noted for the brilliancy of his execution, especially with the pedals (vide Spitta), and it was likely that those fugues which were at all of a brisk character in the theme would have been played fast by the composer. The mere fact of the simplification of the theme in the pedal part in two or three instances was an indication of this; only a pretty high speed would have rendered such simplification necessary. The A minor Fugue was distinctly an Allegro di bravura in fugue form.

Coming to the question of organ effect, as apart from style and 'reading,' he thought every advantage should be taken of the increased facilities for variety of effect and of forte and piano afforded by the improved mechanism of the modern organ, to give these great compositions with as much effect as possible. The modern solo reeds on a heavy wind afforded an opportunity from time to time for making striking points in effect; an opportunity which must be sparingly exercised, it was true, and with great reserve and judgment, but which certainly ought not to be neglected. A word might be said on the subject of phrasing. Mr. Abdy Williams some years ago had read an admirable paper to the Association on the phrasing of Bach's "Forty-eight" fugues; the phrasing of the organ fugues would bear some similar attention. To some extent he thought that phrasing was a modern refinement of expression, but it was an important one, perhaps more so on the organ even than on the pianoforte, as it was the only way in which emphasis could be given. He concurred with Spitta in thinking that Bach's larger organ compositions were the only works in instrumental music which, for grandeur of aim and perfection of workmanship, could be fairly placed alongside Beethoven's symphonies. By the professed admirers of Bach in the present day they were most unduly neglected, and more effort ought to be made to bring them before the public in a proper manner, and on the instrument for which they were written—not in pianoforte 'arrangements.'

Dr. C. W. Pearce was in the chair and a discussion followed.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The programme of the third concert opened with Mendelssohn's 'Hebrides' Overture, a 'sea piece,' the exquisite colouring of which, in spite of years, has lost neither its freshness nor charm. The performance was good, though not first-rate; the sad or yearning sentiment underlying the notes was not fully revealed. The novelty of the evening was a Symphonic Poem by Mr. William Wallace. Several works of the kind from his pen have been produced at the Crystal Palace, and their many merits duly recognised. In these earlier productions a special title gave a certain clue to the meaning of the music, but now we have nothing beyond the bare indication, 'Symphonic Poem.' It may be said that nothing more is wanted; that each hearer is thus left at liberty to surround the music with a romance of his own invention. How far music—which, as in the present instance, certainly seems to be the reflection of some poetical story or romance—requires an explanatory programme depends, we think, upon the quality of the music. If it display strong individuality in its thematic material, and if the developments are skilful, then a programme adds little to its interest; it is little more than a toy to amuse non-musical minds. And the thematic material in Mr. Wallace's work just lacks that power which would give life and interest to the developments, and vividness to the excellent orchestral colouring, so that a story would have helped it along. The work was well received, and at the close the composer was summoned to the platform. Signor Busoni was announced to play Liszt's Concerto in E flat, but, through indisposition, he was unfortunately unable to appear. M. Ysaye, at very short notice, took his place, and gave a magnificent performance of the solo parts of Beethoven's Violin Concerto in D. The programme concluded with an admirable rendering of Brahms's First (and, perhaps, greatest) Symphony in C minor. Mr. Santley was the vocalist. He was well received, but his choice of an old-fashioned aria by Hummel can scarcely be commended.

CRYSTAL PALACE CONCERTS.

The forty-fifth series of the Saturday afternoon Orchestral concerts, under the direction of Mr. August Manns, at the Crystal Palace, was concluded, on the 13th ult., with a performance that fully justified the prestige which these music-makings have acquired. The programme opened with Tschaïkowsky's 'Overture Fantaisie after Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet,"' first performed in England at these concerts on November 4, 1876, and concerning which some very interesting particulars will be found on p. 484 of The Musical Times for July, 1896. The work was played, on the 13th ult., from the revised version made by the composer in 1881, and was excellently interpreted. Mendelssohn's delightful 'Scotch' Symphony was played with exhilarating verve, and Madame Clothilde Kleeberg gave a vivacious reading of the solo part of Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto. Mr. Plunket Greene was the vocalist.

SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE'S 'CORIOLANUS' MUSIC AT THE LYCEUM.

Shakespeare's play of 'Coriolanus' lends itself well to incidental music, of an emotional, however, rather than a picturesque kind. The subject, indeed, is one which has tempted opera composers from the days of Perti, who, in 1683, produced a 'Marzio Coriolano' at Venice. In 1723 Attilio Ariosti's 'Coriolano' was given in London just before Handel's 'Flavio.' Then, again, in the nineteenth century appeared two operas of that name in Italy. Lastly, of course, mention must be made of Beethoven's noble overture written for Collin's 'Coriolan' tragedy.

Sir A. C. Mackenzie's Prelude in its principal theme typifies the stern, haughty hero, while the second soft theme, which, from a purely musical point of view, offers an effective contrast, evidently stands for the womanly element, as we hear it again before the sewing scene in which Volumnia and Virgilia first appear, and once more, as a triumphant strain, in the third act, after the famous pleading scene. A lively third theme may, perhaps, be regarded as representative of the war which forms, as it were, the background of the play.

When, after the victory over the Volscians, the soldiers carry Coriolanus on their shoulders, the music, though thoroughly appropriate, is not over-exciting; the composer probably was afraid of an anti-climax, for there was still the march to the capitol to illustrate, and this he has done in the dignified and jubilant strains of a processional march. The fine scene, in which Coriolanus appears before the senators, and for his brave deeds is named Consul, is also illustrated by stately music.

The first Entr'acte is entitled 'Voces Populi,' but it is certainly far more harmonious than the 'voices' of the citizens as heard upon the stage. Whether it be a satisfactory piece of programme music we will not say, but it is one which on its abstract merit will, if we mistake not, attract attention. The second Entr'acte (Alla Marcia), which lacks neither character nor fitting barbaric colour, is connected with Tullus Aufidius, General of the Volscians, and is furnished with the necessary musical relief by a pathetic, slow movement indicative of the visit of the grief-stricken women to the enemy's camp.

In the third act there is highly effective soft melodramatic music; the solemn march at the close, when the dead body of Coriolanus is carried off, is, however, one of the most characteristic numbers of the score: its strains are plaintive, solemn, and spontaneous. It is to be hoped that an early opportunity may be afforded of hearing Sir Alexander's excellent music in the concert room.

PURCELL PERFORMANCES AT THE CORONET THEATRE.

In these days of Wagner worship it might appear somewhat quixotic to expect the general public to take interest in the music-drama of one who lived and died in the seventeenth century. Purcell's 'Dido and Æneas' was recently played, it is true, at the Coronet Theatre, Notting Hill, to crowded houses, during a whole week (March 25-30), but probably this was not what the greater part of the audience went out to see. Purcell and his music were printed in small, Miss Ellen Terry and the comedietta, 'Nance Oldfield,' in which she appeared every evening, in large type on the play bill. And the respective interest of the public in the two pieces was, we believe, fairly represented by those respective sizes. Miss Ellen Terry deserves all praise and all thanks for having drawn so many within hearing of Purcell's fine music, and she is certainly not to blame if they appreciated the fun of 'Nance' far better than the noble strains of 'Dido and Æneas'; the one was in a language which they understood, the other not. In the stage arrangements, carried out with considerable dignity and effect, there was certainly something which would appeal to theatre goers, and for this part of the undertaking Mr. Edward Gordon Craig deserves all credit. But how cold must Purcell's music have sounded to many whose ears are accustomed to the impassioned strains of Wagner; how weak the small orchestra of the former as compared with the mass of instruments employed by the latter. It needs, indeed, a special ear education to listen to seventeenth century music, and a special knowledge of the forms and phraseology of that period to perceive what great things Purcell and others achieved with the means at their disposal. As regards Purcell's orchestra, it was, after all, only imperfectly represented: there ought to have been a harpsichord and not a pianoforte. Of the performers, Mr. Edward Iles, who impersonated Æneas, was the most satisfactory. The chorus sang well.

After 'Dido and Æneas' came 'The Masque of Love,' from Purcell's 'Dioclesian,' a work which has recently been published by the Purcell Society, under the editorship of Sir Frederick Bridge and Mr. John Pointer. Downes tells us that when that work was first produced, in 1690, 'it gratified the expectation of Court and City, and got the author great reputation.' 'Dioclesian' may still add to that reputation. It was revived, by the way, at Covent Garden, in 1784. The music is of Purcell's best, and it seems a pity that the Purcell Operatic Society did not give the whole of the work. The 'Masque,' it is true, merely forms an episode in the play. Anyhow, it would have been more effective in its proper place. Then as to its performance, the crowded stage, the strange symbolism of the various tableaux, details bordering at times on the pantomimic, prevented due attention to the beauties of the music. From the account of the original 'Masque' the stage effects were originally different and, apparently, simpler. It seems, however, ungrateful to complain. We ought rather to be thankful that a serious attempt has been made to remind English musicians of the great English master of the seventeenth century. We hope the Purcell Society will be able to carry on its scheme of reviving not only Purcell, but other old and unduly neglected operas.

SATURDAY AND MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

The forty-third season of these famed musical meetings came to an end on Monday, the 1st ult., when the chief works performed on that occasion were Madame Liza Lehmann's song cycle 'In a Persian Garden' and Beethoven's Septet. The concert on the preceding Saturday added to Mr. William Chappell's repertory César Franck's Quartet in D, a work which dates from 1890, the last year of its composer's life, and consequently representative of his powers in full maturity. Every page of the music testified to lofty, highly cultured, and adept musicianship; but the prevailing pessimistical tone certainly detracts from the enjoyment of listening to its performance. The most original movement is the second, a Scherzo, which stamps itself on the listener's memory by the force of its weirdness and suggestiveness of the wanderings of perturbed spirits. The other numbers are fully developed, and seem to have for their theme all that is terrible and sad in life. The music, owing to its restlessness and straining harmonic scheme, presents exceptional difficulties; but the work was attacked with firmness and inspiring confidence by M. Ysaye and his associates, who secured a very fine performance. It may interest some to know that this quartet was first performed in England at a chamber concert given by Mr. René Ortmans, on March 27, 1897, at the Queen's (Small) Hall.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The thoroughness of the tuition given at the Royal Academy of Music was manifested very prominently at the Queen's Hall, on March 28, when Verdi's 'Requiem' was interpreted by the students of the Institution. The occasion was well chosen, for apart from the appropriateness of the selection consequent on the recent death of the composer, the Academy has seldom been able to call upon more gifted and able soloists than Miss Ethel Wood, Mrs. Julia Franks, Mr. W. R. Maxwell, and Mr. Ernest Torrence. They sang the solos and concerted numbers with an earnestness and finish rarely surpassed in the concert-room. Similar care and intelligence were shown in the rendering of the choral and instrumental portions of the beautiful work, and Mr. Frederick Corder is to be congratulated on the excellence of the performance under his direction.

The second part of the programme opened with the first movement of a Symphony in G minor, by Mr. Felix G. Swinstead, which, however, can only be regarded as a commendable student effort. Master Oscar Franklin showed great promise as a pianist in Weber's familiar Concertstück, and a too long programme concluded with Liszt's symphonic poem 'Mazeppa.' A welcome innovation was the inclusion in the programme books of analytical notes, which, seeing the educational influence such comments exercise, should be continued.

VICTORIA MADRIGAL SOCIETY.

There are comparatively so few societies giving concerts in central London devoted to the rendering of madrigals and part-songs that the Victoria Madrigal Society merits our warm support; especially as under Dr. Stanley Murray's direction a high level of excellence has been attained by the choir. The concluding concert of the fifth season took place on March 28, in the Westminster Town Hall. The madrigals selected were: 'My love is fair' (Leslie), 'Flora gave me fairest flowers' and 'Stay, Corydon' (Wilbye), 'Down in a flow'ry vale' (Festa), 'Summer is i cumen in' (Pearsall), and 'What saith my dainty darling' (Morley). A no less admirable selection of part-songs had been made, and first performances were given of a charming setting in this form of the familiar lines 'Go, lovely rose,' and of an effective choral ode, entitled 'The voice of Spring,' both composed by Dr. Murray. The programme also contained several vocal solos which were admirably sung by Miss Dresser, Mr. Henry Turnpenney, and Mr. Montague Borwell.

AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.

Mendelssohn's 'Meerestille' Overture and Goethe's beautiful and far too much neglected Symphony in F—a beautiful work—were creditably interpreted by the Westminster Orchestral Society, on March 27, at the Westminster Town Hall. Miss Violet Seton, a most promising young violoncellist, made a very successful appearance, and Madame Zippora Monteith sang. Mr. Stewart Macpherson conducted with his usual alertness.

The Stock Exchange Orchestral and Choral Society gave its third Subscription concert, on the 16th ult., at the Queen's Hall. Tschaïkowsky's Fifth Symphony in E minor was the chief feature, and the interpretation of the exacting work formed a striking testimony to the efficiency attained by the band under Mr. Arthur Payne's conductorship. The programme also contained Dr. Cowen's pleasing 'Four Old English Dances,' which were conducted by the composer and manifestly much enjoyed by the large audience. The male-voice choir, directed by Mr. Munro Davison, was first heard in Mendelssohn's Motet 'Beati Mortui,' In memoriam Sir John Stainer and Mr. J. F. H. Read, the former having been a Vice-President and the latter the first President of the Society. The motet was beautifully sung, as also were Sir Arthur Sullivan's part-song 'The long day closes' and Mr. Clowes Bayley's 'When evening casts her shadows round.' Mesdames Beatrice Langley and Arthur Stothert played the solo parts of Bach's Concerto for two violins and orchestra, and Miss Maggie Purvis contributed three songs.

MR. EDWARD ILES'S SONG RECITAL.

NEW SONGS BY DR. CHARLES WOOD.

This recital, given on the 19th ult., at St. James's Hall, was one of considerable interest; by means of a varied programme all danger of monotony was avoided. Mr. Iles is a young baritone vocalist of considerable promise; he has a voice of sympathetic quality, and he sings with artistic taste and feeling. The programme opened with a group of songs from which we would single out Scarlatti's 'Le Violette,' fresh and graceful as the flower which forms the subject of the poem; and Salvator Rosa's well-known 'Star Vicino,' both daintily rendered. In Schumann's 'Schöne Wiege meiner Leiden' and in Schubert's 'Erlkönig' there was a lack of breadth, intensity of feeling, and dramatic power. Mr. Iles accompanies his songs himself, and, for the most part, exceedingly well; but there are certain songs, particularly the last-named, in which the singer ought not to undertake double duty. A special feature of the programme consisted of a characteristic set of songs composed, and accompanied on this occasion, by Dr. Charles Wood. Of these, three are still in manuscript —'A summer wish,' poem by Christina Rossetti, with a pleasing melody and a showy, yet refined accompaniment; 'Does the road wind uphill,' also by Rossetti, set to music of excellent character and design, though not deeply impressive; and Walt Whitman's 'By the bivouac's fitful flame,' of dramatic import and mystic colouring, the strongest, in fact, of the three songs. These, as also the others of the set, were all most expressively sung by Mr. Iles. The programme concluded with songs by Lawes, Purcell, Parry, Stanford, Sullivan, and Walter Lancaster.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN CONCERTS, &c.

There is much genuine cause for satisfaction in the increasing number and musical importance of concerts held on Good Friday. This year the afternoon at Queen's Hall was occupied by an excellent interpretation, under Mr. Henry J. Wood's direction, of a programme that included Tschaïkowsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony, the 'Vorspiel' from 'Lohengrin,' and the 'Good Friday' music from 'Parsifal'; while at the Crystal Palace was held the usual miscellaneous concert with familiar hymns, in which the audience joined. In the evening the customary performance of 'The Messiah' by the Royal Choral Society, conducted by Sir Frederick Bridge, took place at the Albert Hall. At the Queen's Hall a number of well known artists sang to a large audience, and Mr. W. S. Hoyte played several organ solos; and at St. James's Hall the South London Choir, directed by Mr. L. C. Venables, gave a performance of Rossini's 'Stabat Mater.' 'The Messiah' was also performed at the People's Palace, before an immense audience, under the able direction of Mr. Allen Gill.

Probably there are comparatively few vocalists who would care to court criticism by singing the entire series of Schubert's beautiful song cycle 'Die schöne Mullerin,' and fewer still who have the abilities to go through such an ordeal successfully. Herr van Rooy, however, on March 26, at St. James's Hall, proved himself equal to the exacting task, and although the timbre of his voice prevents him being an ideal exponent of these lyrics, his artistic intuition and dramatic perception made his recital memorable. The accompaniments were excellently played by Herr Carl Friedberg, who opened the evening with Beethoven's Sonata 'Les adieux.'

The Royal Artillery Band, under the skilful conductorship of Cavaliere L. Zavertal, gave a neat and spirited performance of Mendelssohn's 'Italian' Symphony, at Queen's Hall, on the 19th ult. Less familiar to the majority of the audience was Smetana's descriptive piece, 'Vltava,' rendered with due observance of the contrasts of expression upon which the effectiveness of the composition depends. The other leading features of the concert were Wagner's 'Huldigungsmarsch,' Bizet's 'Patrie' Overture, and the bright ballet music of Massenet's 'Le Cid,' each of which received ample justice.

No. 841. BEFORE ME, CARELESS LYING.—C. H. Lloyd. Price 4*d.*

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

A COLLECTION OF

PART-SONGS, GLEES, AND MADRIGALS.

IN VOLUMES, CLOTH, GILT, 5s. EACH; OR IN SEPARATE NUMBERS.

FIRST SERIES.

17 All among the barley (Prize) ... ... E. Stirling 2d.
20 An emigrant's song ... ... W. Macfarren 2d.
25 Awake! the starry midnight hour (Serenade) Mendelssohn 2d.
3 Boating song (The sun is high)... ... ... E. G. Monk 2d.
36 Come away, death. S.A.T.T.B. ... ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
14 Come, heavy sleep... ... ... Douland 2d.
8 Countryman's song (Oh, the sweet contentment) E. G. Rimbault 3d.
2 Cricketers' song (Bestir ye). T.T.B. ... G. A. Macfarren 2d.
29 Dirge (The glories of our birth) ... ... S. Wesley 2d.
23 Fairies' song (From grassy blades). S.S.S.S. H. R. Bishop 6d.
15 Fisherman's song. S.S.A.T.B. ... ... E. F. Rimbault 2d.
34 Football song (Brawling Boreas blows) ... E. G. Monk 3d.
32 God speed the plough. S.A.T.T. ... ... E. Richter 2d.
5 Good morrow, fair ladies. S.S.T. ... ... T. Morley 2d.
28 Green leaves (Prize). S.A.T.B. ... ... Bianchi Taylor 2d.
13 Harvest song (Prize). S.A.T.B. ... ... W. Macfarren 2d.
35 Haymakers' song (Prize)... ... ... R. P. Stewart 3d.
16 In all thy need ... ... Douland 2d.
11 Integer Vitæ. T.T.B.B. ... ...Fleming 4d.
24 June (She is coming) (Prize). S.S.A. ... ... Finlay Dun 2d.
10 Magdalen College song (Lily, sweet lily). S.S.A.B. E. G. Monk 2d.
27 O happy he who liveth. S.S.A.T.B. ... ...Gastoldi 2d.
12 Orpheus with his lute ... ... G. A. Macfarren 4d.
1 Our native land ... ... G. Reichardt 2d.
22 Pedlar's song ... ...Douland 2d.
21 Shepherds' song (Turn, Amarillis) ... ... Brewer 3d.
4 Song of the railroads ... ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
30 The angler's trysting-tree ... ... J. Corfe 3d.
31 The dream (Prize) ... ... R. P. Stewart 2d.
26 The fair flower of Northumberland ... E. F. Rimbault 2d.
6 The home fairy (Quartet). T.T.B.B. ... ... Winter 2d.
19 The jolly cricket-ball ... ... E. G. Monk 2d.
9 The students' greeting. T.T.B.B. ... ... Berner 2d.
33 There is a ladie sweete ... ... Ford 2d.
7 The wreath ... ... J. Benedict 2d.
18 When icicles hang by the wall ... G. A. Macfarren 2d.

SECOND SERIES.

VOL. I.—SIR JULIUS BENEDICT.

37 Old May-day, in A ... ... 3d.
38 Invocation to Sleep ... ... 3d.
39 A Night Song ... ... 3d.
40 Dirge for the faithful lover ... ... 1½d.
41 A Drinking Song (T.T.B.B.)... ... 3d.
42 Sylvan pleasures ... ... 4d.

HENRY SMART.

43 Consolation ... ... 1½d.
44 Good night, thou glorious Sun ... 3d.
45 Hunting Song ... ... 3d.
46 Lady, rise, sweet Morn's awaking 3d.
47 Summer Morning ... ... 3d.
48 The Sea King ... ... 3d.

SEVEN SHAKSPERE SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

49 Orpheus with his lute ... ... 3d.
50 When Icicles hang ... ... 1½d.
51 Come away, Death (S.A.T.T.B.) ... 3d.
52 When Daisies pied ... ... 3d.
53 Who is Sylvia ... ... 1½d.
54 Fear no more the heat o' the Sun 3d.
55 Blow, blow, thou Winter Wind ... 3d.

J. L. HATTON.

56 The Belfry Tower ... ... 4d.
57 England ... ... 3d.
58 Come, celebrate the May ... ... 1½d.
59 Song to Pan ... ... 3d.
60 The Indian Maid ... ... 3d.
61 The Pearl Divers ... ... 4d.

VOL. II.—G. A. MACFARREN.

62 Robin Goodfellow ... ... 3d.
63 Break, break on thy cold grey stones 3d.
64 Echoes (The Splendour falls) ... 3d.
65 Song of the Railroads ... ... 1½d.
66 Christmas ... ... 3d.
67 Adieu, Love, Adieu ... ... 3d.

C. A. MACIRONE.

68 Sir Knight, Sir Knight ... ... 3d.
69 The Wounded Cupid... ... ... 1½d.
70 Woman's smile ... ... 3d.
71 Autolycus' Song ... ... 3d.
72 Footsteps of Angels ... ... 3d.
73 The Sun shines fair on Carlisle wall 3d.

VOL. II. (continued).

HENRY LESLIE.

74 The Pilgrims ... ... 3d.
75 My soul to God, my heart to thee... 3d.
76 Awake, awake, the flow'rs unfold ... 3d.
77 How sweet the moonlight sleeps ... 1½d.
78 Land, Ho! ... ... 3d.
79 Up, up, ye Dames ... ... 3d.

SIX MADRIGALS.

Including the Bristol Prize Madrigals.

80 Thine eyes so bright (S.S.A.T.B.B.) Henry Leslie } 4d.
81 All is not gold (S.A.T.T.B.) ... W. J. Westbrook } 3d.
82 Hark how the birds (S.S.A.T.T.B.) Henry Lahee } 3d.
83 All ye woods (S.S.A.T.B.) Do. 1½d.
84 My love is fair (S.A.T.B.B.) H. Leslie 3d.
85 Charm me asleep (S.S.A.T.B.B.) Do. 3d.

VOL. III.—HENRY HILES.

86 When twilight dews ... ... 1½d.
87 A Finland love song ... ... 1½d.
88 Evening... ... ... 1½d.
89 To the Morning Wind ... ... 3d.
90 To Daffodils ... ... 3d.
91 Summer longings ... ... 3d.

FRANCESCO BERGER.

92 Night, lovely Night ... ... 1½d.
93 Essay, my Heart ... ... 3d.
94 Childhood's melody ... ... 1½d.
95 Now ... ... 3d.
96 Sunset ... ... 1½d.
97 Arise, the sunbeams hail ... ... 3d.

J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.

98 Night winds that so gently flow ... 1½d
99 Breathe soft, ye Winds ... ... 1½d.
100 My lady is so wondrous fair ... 1½d.
101 Chivalry of Labour (S.S.A.T.B.) ... 4d.
102 Come, fill, my boys (A.T.T.B.) ... 3d.
103 Echoes ... ... 1½d.

J. BARNBY.

104 Phœbus ... ... 1½d.
105 Luna ... ... 1½d.
106 A Wife's Song... ... ... 1½d
107 Home they brought ... ... 1½d.
108 Annie Lee ... ... 1½d.
109 Starry Crowns of Heaven ... ... 1½d.
110 The Wind ... ... 3d.
111 The Skylark ... ... 3d.

VOL. III. (continued).

G. A. MACFARREN.

112 The Sands of Dee ... ... 3d.
113 Alton Locke's Song ... ... 1½d.
114 The Starlings ... ... 1½d.
115 The Three Fishers ... ... 3d.
116 The World's Age ... ... 1½d.
117 Sing, heigh ho! ... ... 3d.

VOL. IV.—A. ZIMMERMANN.

118 Fairy Song ... ... 3d.
119 Good Night ... ... 1½d.
120 Gone for ever ... ... 3d.
121 Flowers ... ... 3d.
122 To Daffodils ... ... 1½d.
123 Good Morrow ... ... 3d.

EIGHT SHAKSPERE SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

124 Sigh no more, ladies ... ... 3d.
125 You spotted snakes (S.S.A.A.) ... 3d.
126 Take, oh, take those lips away ... 1½d.
127 It was a lover and his lass ... ... 4d.
128 O mistress mine ... ... 1½d.
129 Under the greenwood tree ... ... 1½d.
130 Hark, the lark ... ... 3d.
131 Tell me where is fancy bred ... 1½d.

HENRY LESLIE.

132 The Violet ... ... 3d.
133 One morning sweet in May ... ... 3d.
134 Daylight is fading ... ... 1½d.
135 Down in a pretty valley ... ... 3d.
136 The Primrose ... ... 1½d.
137 Arise, sweet love ... ... 3d.

HENRY SMART.

138 'Tis break of day ... ... 2d.
139 My true love hath my heart ... ... 2d.
140 Doth not my lady come ... ... 2d.
141 Spring Song ... ... 2d.
142 The Curfew ... ... 2d.
143 Hear, sweet spirit ... ... 2d.

SAMUEL REAY.

144 Spring Voices ... ... 3d.
145 Waken, lords and ladies gay ... 3d.
146 As it fell upon a day ... ... 3d.
147 Huntsman, rest ... ... 3d.
148 'Tis May upon the mountain ... 3d.
149 Take, oh, take those lips away ... 1½d.

Copyright, 1900, by Novello and Company, Limited.

The Musical Times. EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. May 1, 1901.
No. 841. NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK. Price 4d.
(SECOND SERIES.)

TO BRUCE L. RICHMOND.

BEFORE ME, CARELESS LYING

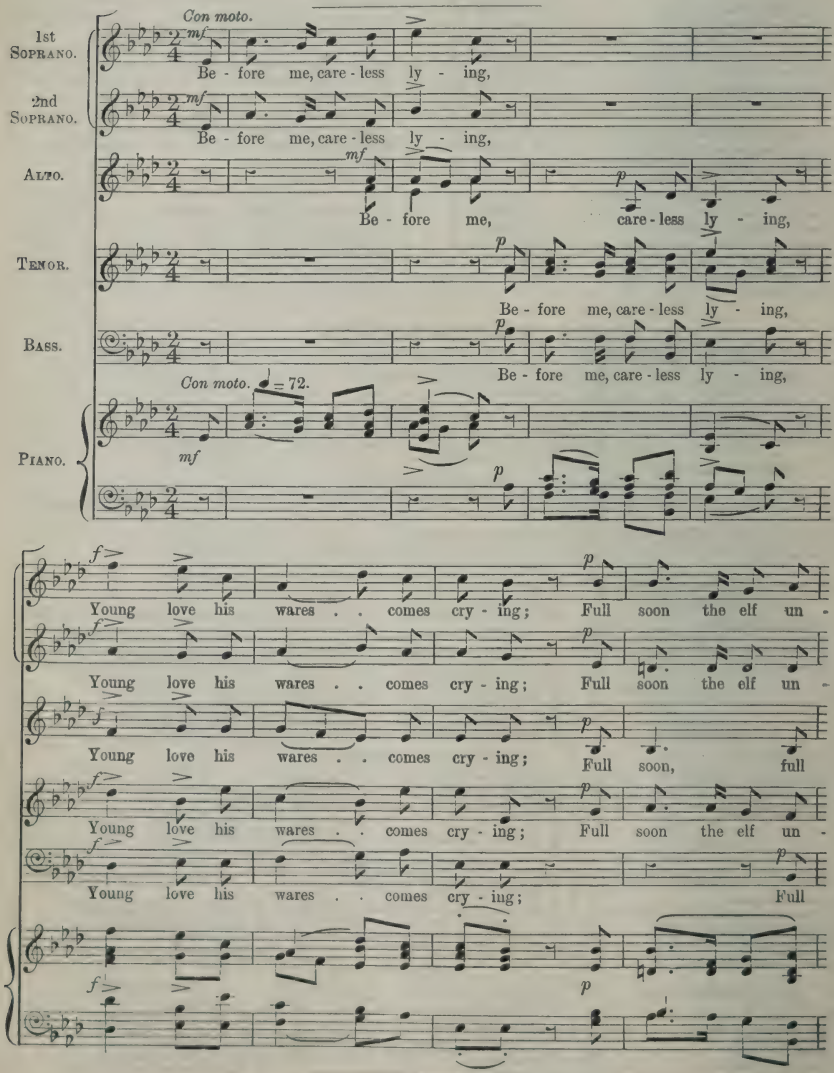
PART-SONG FOR S.S.A.T.B.

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY AUSTIN DOBSON

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

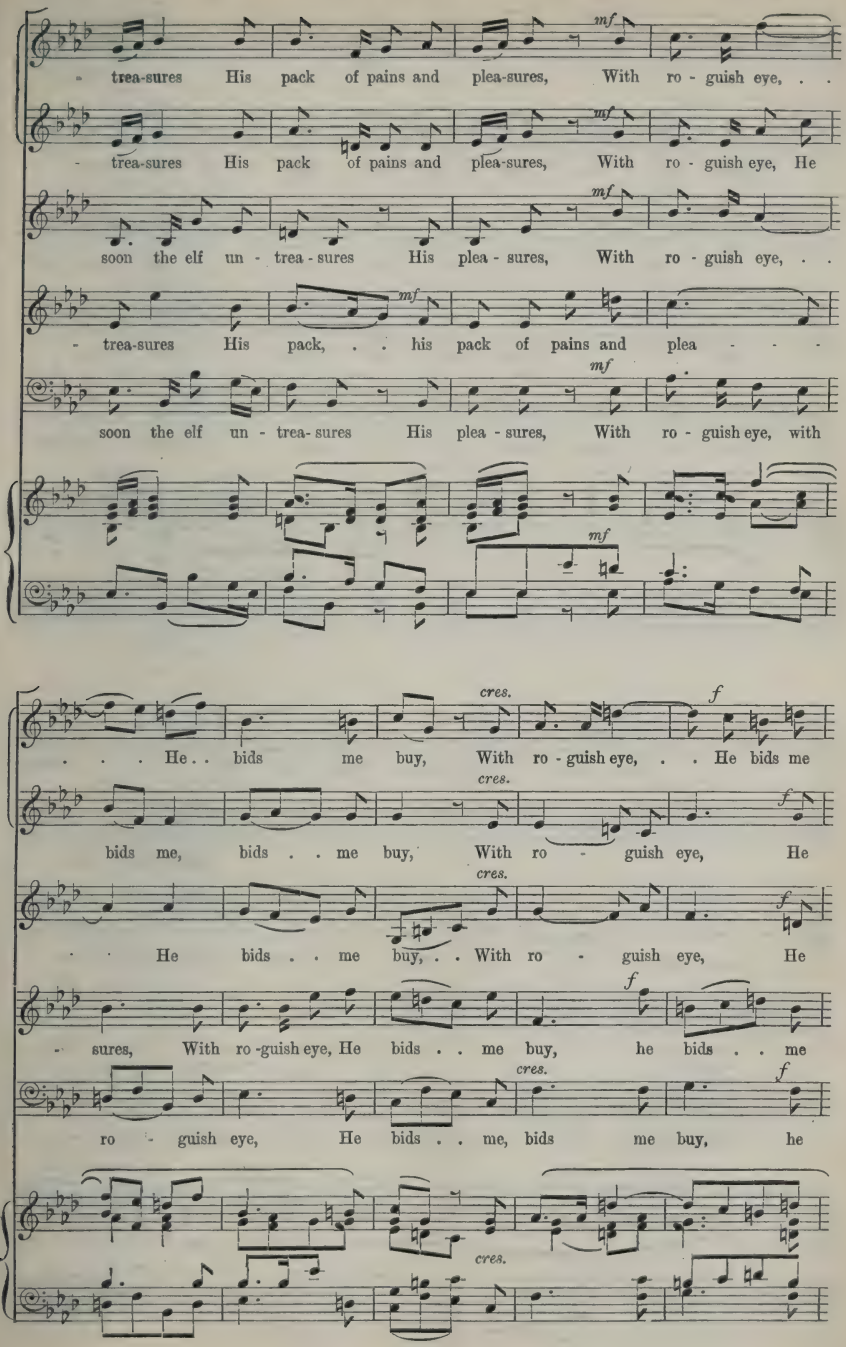
C. H. LLOYD.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Con moto.
1st Soprano.
2nd Soprano.
Alto.
Tenor.
Bass.
Piano.
mf
Be - fore me, care - less ly - ing,
p
Be - fore me, care - less ly - ing,
Con moto. ♩ = 72.
f
Young love his wares . . comes cry - ing; Full soon the elf un -
Young love his wares . . comes cry - ing; Full soon, full

Copyright, 1900, by Novello and Company, Limited.



mf
- trea-sures His pack of pains and plea-sures, With ro - guish eye, . .
- trea-sures His pack of pains and plea-sures, With ro - guish eye, He soon the elf un - trea - sures His plea - sures, With ro - guish eye, . .
- trea-sures His pack, . . his pack of pains and plea - - - - soon the elf un - trea- sures His plea - sures, With ro - guish eye, with cres.
f
. . . He . . bids me buy, With ro - guish eye, . . He bids me bids me, bids . . me buy, With ro - guish eye, He He bids . . me buy, . . With ro - guish eye, He
- sures, With ro -guish eye, He bids . . me buy, he bids . . me ro - guish eye, He bids . . me, bids me buy, he buy . . . From out his pack . . of trea - sures.

bids me buy From out his pack . . of trea - sures.
bids me . . buy From out his pack . . of trea - sures. His buy . . . From out his pack . . of trea - sures.
bids me buy From out his pack of trea - sures. His
His wal - let's stuffed . . with bliss - es, With With true - love -
wal - let, his wal - let's stuffed . . with bliss - es, With true - love -
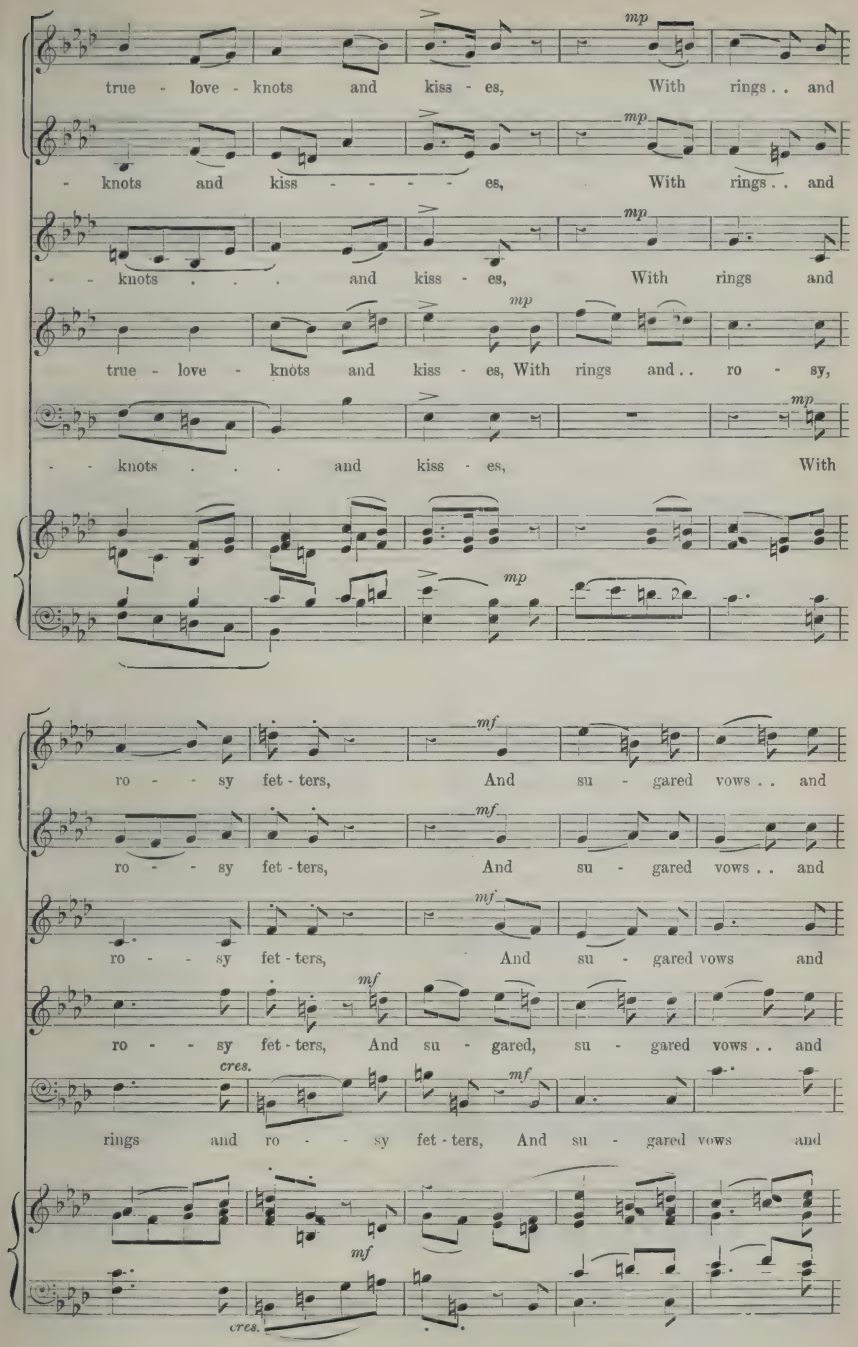
With bliss - es, With wal - let, his wal - let's stuffed with bliss - es. With true - love -



mp
true - love - knots and kiss - es, With rings . . and
- knots and kiss - - - - es, With rings . . and
- - knots . . . and kiss - es, With rings and true - love - knots and kiss - es, With rings and . . ro - sy,
- - knots . . . and kiss - es, With
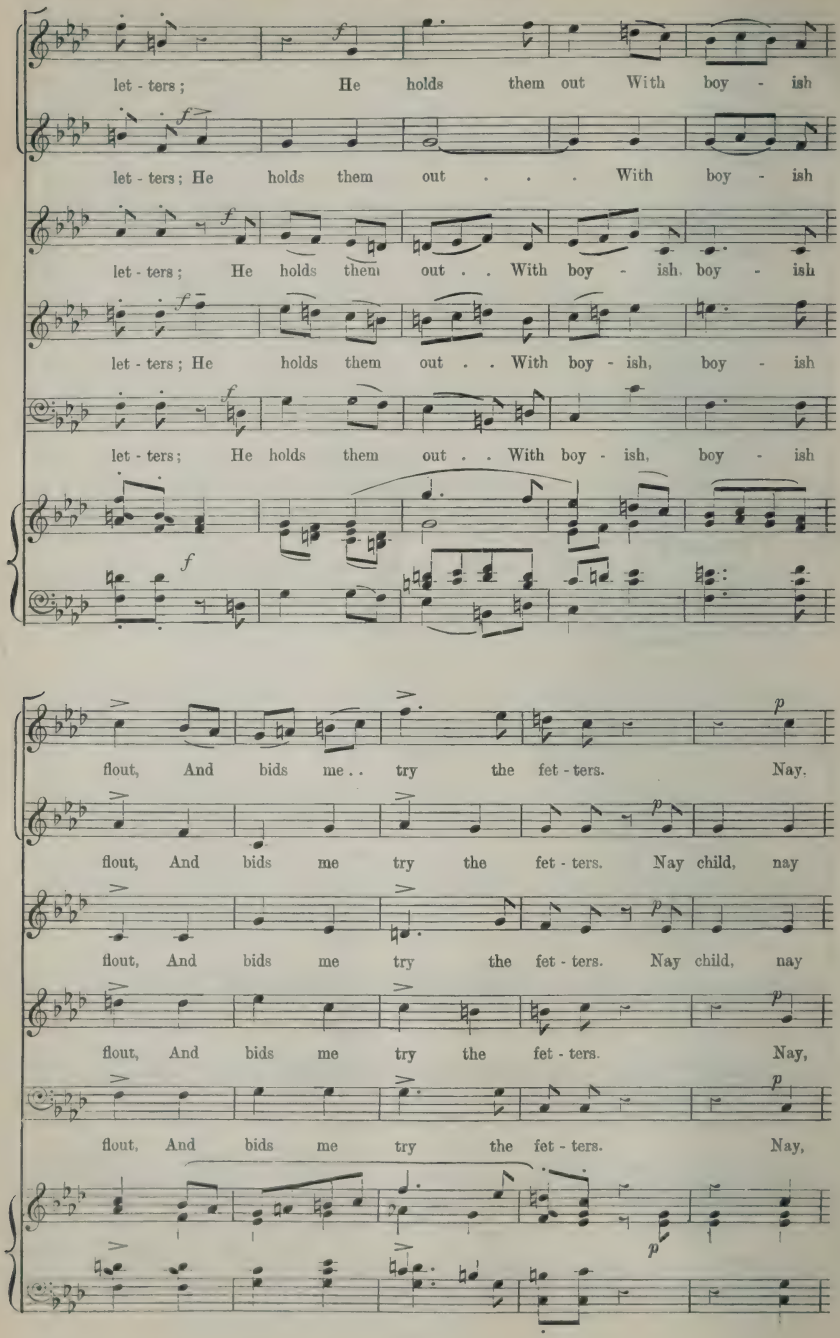
mf ro - - sy fet - ters, And su - gared vows . . and ro - - sy fet - ters, And su - gared vows . . and ro - - sy fet - ters, And su - gared vows and ro - - sy fet - ters, And su - gared, su - gared vows . . and
cres.
rings and ro - - sy fet - ters, And su - gared vows and
cres.



let - ters; He holds them out With boy - ish let - ters; He holds them out . . . With boy - ish let - ters; He holds them out . . With boy - ish, boy - ish let - ters; He holds them out . . With boy - ish, boy - ish let - ters; He holds them out . . With boy - ish, boy - ish flout, And bids me . . try the fet - ters. Nay, flout, And bids me try the fet - ters. Nay child, nay flout, And bids me try the fet - ters. Nay child, nay flout, And bids me try the fet - ters. Nay, flout, And bids me try the fet - ters. Nay,

mf
child, (I cry,) . . I know them ; There's lit - tle child, (I cry,) . . I know them ; There's lit - tle child, (I cry,) . . I know them : There's lit - tle . .
child, (I cry,) . . I know them ; There's lit - tle need . . .
child, (I cry,) I know them ; There's lit - tle
need . . to show them !
need . . to show them ! Too well . . for new . . be - need . . to show them ! Too well, too . . well . . for new . . be -
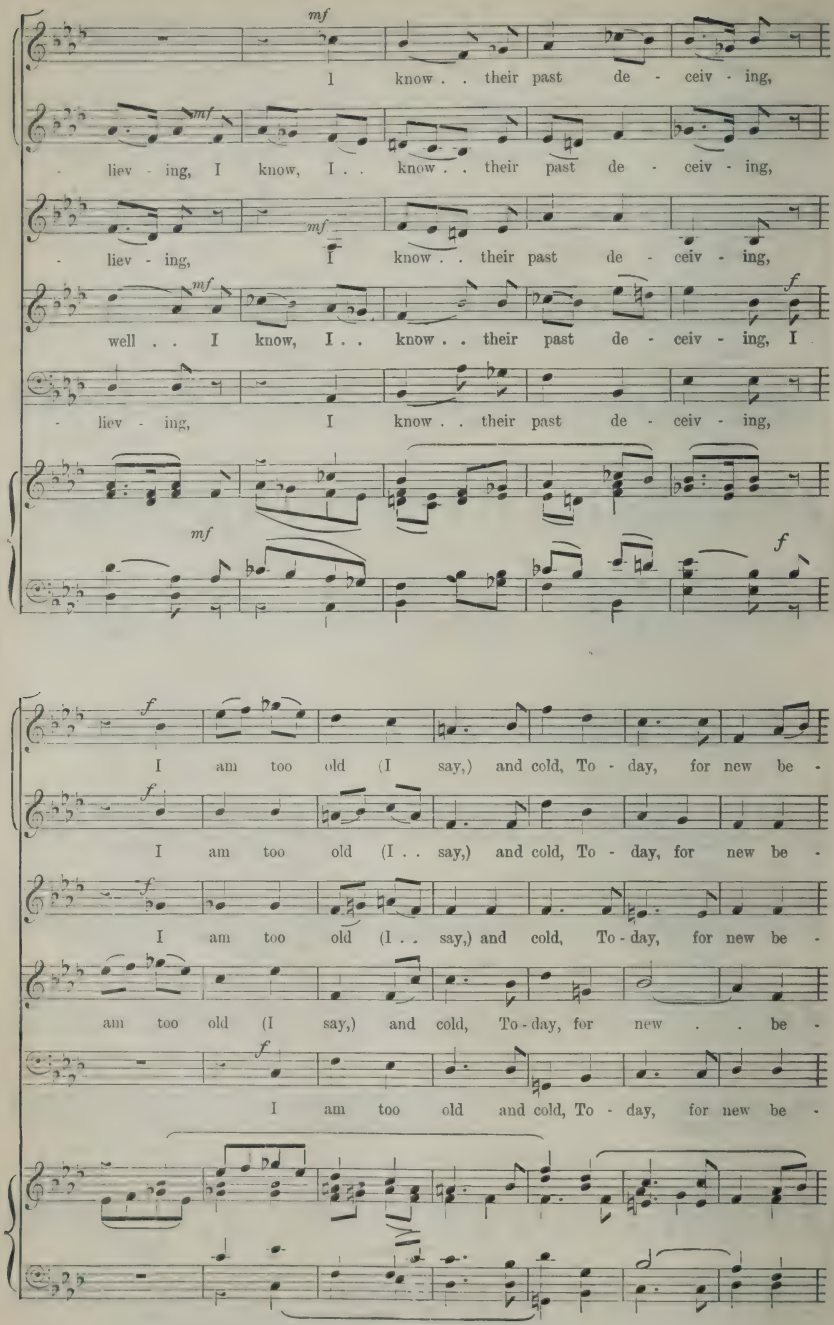
. . . to show them ! Too need . . to show them ! Too well, too well . . for new be -



mf
I know . . their past de - ceiv - ing,
- liev - ing, I know, I . . know . . their past de - ceiv - ing,
- liev - ing, I know . . their past de - ceiv - ing, well . . I know, I . . know . . their past de - ceiv - ing, I
- liev - ing, I know . . their past de - ceiv - ing,
f
I am too old (I say,) and cold, To - day, for new be -
I am too old (I . . say,) and cold, To - day, for new be -
I am too old (I . . say,) and cold, To - day, for new be - am too old (I say,) and cold, To - day, for new . . be -
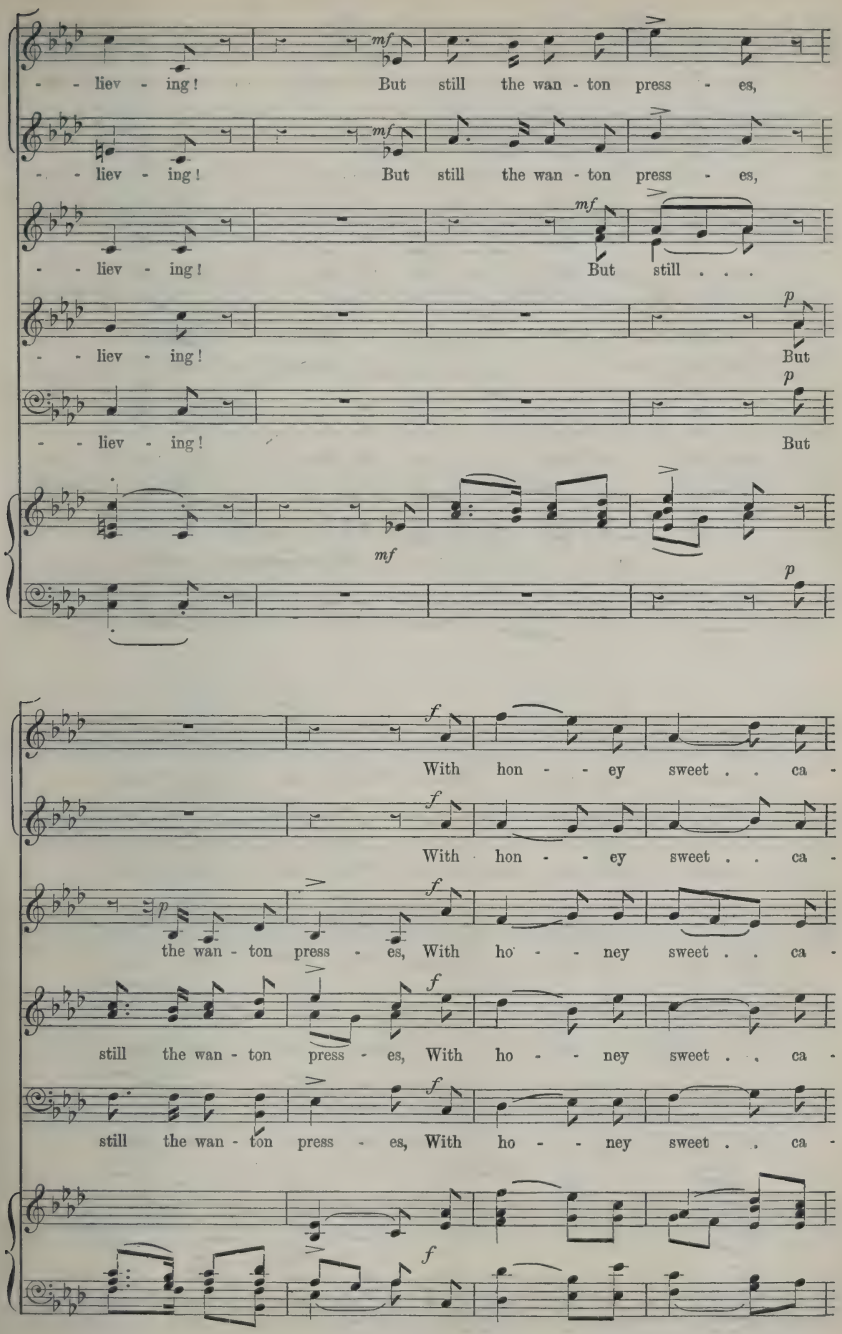
I am too old and cold, To - day, for new be -



- - liev - ing! But still the wan - ton press - es,
- - liev - ing! But still the wan - ton press - es,
- - liev - ing! But still . . .
- - liev - ing! But
- - liev - ing! But
With hon - - ey sweet . . ca -
With hon - - ey sweet . . ca -
the wan - ton press - es, With ho - - ney sweet . . ca - still the wan - ton press - es, With ho - - ney sweet . . ca - still the wan - ton press - es, With ho - - ney sweet . . ca -

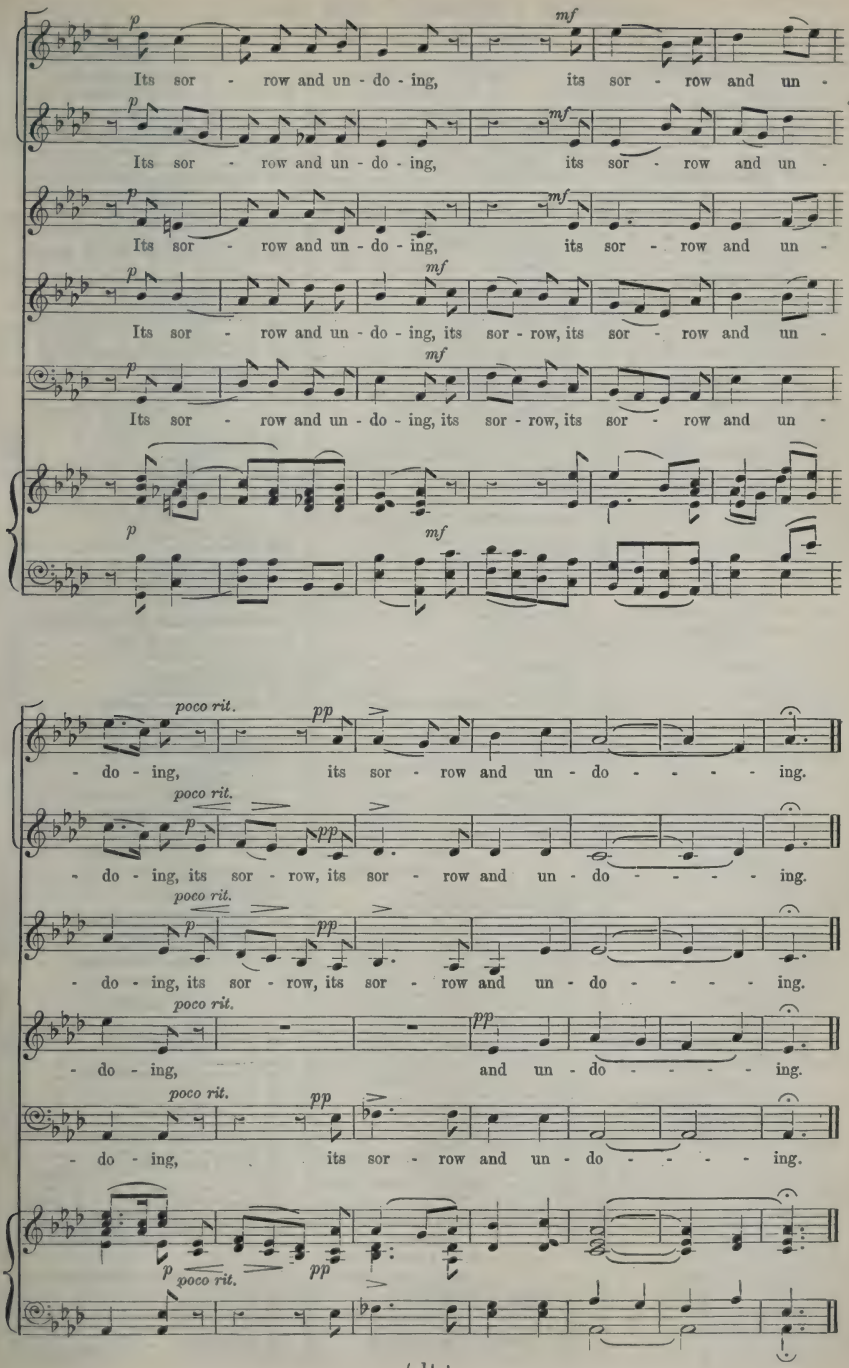
p
mf
- ress - es, And still, to my un - do - ing, He wins me with his
- ress - es, And still, to my un - do - ing, He wins me with his
- ress - es, And still, to my un - do - ing, He wins me with his
- ress - es, And still He wins me, . .
- ress - es, And still, to my un - do - ing, He wins me with his
f
woo-ing, To buy . . his ware With all its care, . .
woo-ing, To buy his ware With all its care, . .
woo - ing, To buy his ware With all . . its care, . .
. . To buy his ware . . . With all . . its care, . .
woo - ing, To buy his ware With all its care, . .



p
mf
Its sor - row and un - do - ing, its sor - row and un -
Its sor - row and un - do - ing, its sor - row and un -
Its sor - row and un - do - ing, its sor - row and un -
Its sor - row and un - do - ing, its sor - row, its sor - row and un -
Its sor - row and un - do - ing, its sor - row, its sor - row and un - poco rit.
pp
- do - ing, its sor - row and un - do - - - - ing.
- do - ing, its sor - row, its sor - row and un - do - - - - ing.
- do - ing, its sor - row, its sor - row and un - do - - - - ing.
- do - ing, and un - do - - - - ing.
- do - ing, its sor - row and un - do - - - - ing.

VOL. V.—ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

150 The Rainy Day ... ... 1½d.
151 Oh, hush thee, my babie ... ... 3d.
152 Evening... ... ... 1½d.
153 Joy to the Victors ... ... 3d.
154 Parting gleams ... ... 1½d.
155 Echoes ... ... 3d.

W. MACFARREN.

156 Spring ... ... 3d.
157 Summer ... ... 1½d.
158 Autumn ... ... 3d.
159 Winter ... ... 3d.
160 You stole my love ... ... 1½d.
161 Dainty love ... ... 1½d.

J. LEMMENS.

162 Drops of Rain ... ... 3d.
163 The Fairy Ring ... ... 3d.
164 The Light of Life ... ... 3d.
165 Oh, welcome him ... ... 3d.
166 Sunshine through the clouds ... 3d.
167 The Corn Field ... ... 3d.

HENRY SMART.

168 Wake! to the hunting ... ... 3d.
169 Dost thou idly ask ... ... 3d.
170 A Psalm of Life ... ... 1½d.
171 Only Thou ... ... 1½d.
172 I prithee send me back my heart ... 1½d.
173 The Moon ... ... 3d.

CIRO PINSUTI.

174 A Spring Song... ... ... 3d.
175 An Autumn Song ... ... 3d.
176 The Two Spirits ... ... 3d.
177 The Crusaders... ... ... 3d.
178 The Caravan ... ... 3d.
179 Stradella ... ... 3d.

VOL. VI.—J. L. HATTON.

180 When evening's twilight ... ... 2d.
181 Absence ... ... 2d.
182 April showers ... ... 3d.
183 The red, red rose ... ... 3d.
184 Beware, beware ... ... 3d.
185 The Sailor's Song ... ... 3d.
186 Good Night ... ... 2d.
187 Blythe is the bird ... ... 2d.
188 Stars of the summer night ... ... 3d.
189 The hemlock-tree ... ... 4d.
190 Jack Frost ... ... 3d.
191 I loved her ... ... 3d.
192 The Village Blacksmith ... ... 3d.
193 The Bait (Come, live with me) ... 3d.
194 Softly fall the shades of evening ... 3d.
195 Auburn (Sweet village) ... ... 3d.
196 Bird of the wilderness ... ... 3d.
197 The Summer gale ... ... 2d.
198 I met her in the quiet lane ... ... 2d.
199 If thou art sleeping ... ... 3d.
200 Spring Song ... ... 3d.
201 Good wishes ... ... 3d.
202 Parting and Meeting ... ... 2d.
203 Whether kissed by sunbeams ... 3d.
204 The roses are blushing ... ... 3d.
205 The Rivals ... ... 3d.
206 The village dance ... ... 3d.
207 Song of the Gipsy maidens ... ... 3d.
208 The Waterfall ... ... 3d.
209 Over hill, over dale ... ... 3d.
210 Love me little, love me long ... 3d.
211 Going a-maying ... ... 3d.
212 See, the rooks are homeward flying 3d.
213 Sweet Lady moon ... ... 3d.
214 Hark, the Convent bells are ringing 3d.

VOL. VII.—J. L. HATTON.
MALE VOICES.

215 When evening's twilight ... ... 2d.
216 Warrior's Song ... ... 3d.
217 Absence... ... ... 2d.
218 April showers ... ... 3d.
219 The red, red rose ... ... 3d.
220 Beware, beware ... ... 3d.
221 The happiest land ... ... 3d.
222 The Sailor's Song ... ... 3d.
223 Busy, curious, thirsty fly ... ... 2d.
224 Good night, beloved... ... ... 2d.
225 Bacchanalian Song ... ... 3d.
226 Stars of the summer night ... ... 3d.
227 King Witlaf's drinking horn ... 3d.
228 Tars' Song ... ... 4d.
229 The hemlock-tree ... ... 4d.
230 Jack Frost ... ... 3d.
231 The Lye ... ... 3d.
232 I loved her ... ... 3d.

VOL. VII. (continued).
J. L. HATTON.

233 The Village Blacksmith ... ... 3d.
234 The Letter ... ... 3d.
235 Shall I wasting in despair ... ... 3d.
236 The way to build a boat ... ... 4d.
237 I loved a lass, a fair one ... ... 4d.
238 The Lifeboat ... ... 3d.

VOL. VIII.—HENRY SMART.

239 The Shepherd's farewell ... ... 2d.
240 The wave's reproof ... ... 3d.
241 Ave Maria ... ... 2d.
242 Spring ... ... 2d.
243 Morning... ... ... 3d.
244 Hymn to Cynthia ... ... 3d.
245 Cradle Song ... ... 3d.
246 The joys of Spring ... ... 3d.
247 Dream, baby, dream ... ... 2d.
248 A song for the Seasons ... ... 3d.
249 O say not that my heart is cold ... 2d.
250 Love and mirth ... ... 3d.
251 Sweet vesper hymn ... ... 3d.
252 Crocuses and Snowdrops ... ... 3d.
253 Stars of the summer night ... ... 3d.
254 Wind thy horn ... ... 3d.
255 The land of wonders ... ... 3d.
256 Ye little birds that sit and sing ... 2d.
257 How soft the shades of evening creep 2d.
258 How sweet is summer morning ... 2d.
259 Now May is here ... ... 3d.

VOL. IX.—WALTER MACFARREN.

260 Hunting Song ... ... 3d.
261 Summer Song ... ... 3d.
262 The Curfew bell ... ... 3d.
263 The Warrior ... ... 3d.
264 Love's heigh-ho! ... ... 3d.
265 Good-night, good rest... ... ... 3d.
266 The Fairies ... ... 3d.
267 Cradle Song ... ... 3d.
268 Morning Song ... ... 3d.
269 Ye pretty birds ... ... 3d.
270 More life ... ... 3d.
271 Sweet content ... ... 3d.
272 Sea Song... ... ... (T.T.B.B.) 3d.
273 The stars are with the voyager ,, 2d.
274 Autumn ... ... ,, 3d.
275 Highland War Song ... ... ,, 3d.
276 Shortest and longest ... ... ,, 3d.
277 Windlass Song ... ... ,, 3d.
278 O Lady, leave thy silken thread ... 3d.
279 Lover's Parting... ... ... 3d.
280 Shepherds all and maidens fair ... 3d.
281 Night, sable goddess ... ... 3d.
282 Hence, all you vain delights... ... 3d.
283 Swallow, swallow, hither wing ... 3d.

VOL. X.—R. L. DE PEARSALL.

284 The Hardy Norseman... ... ... 4d.
285 Nymphs are sporting ... ... 3d.
286 O who will o'er the downs ... ... 4d.
286*O who will o'er the downs (A.T.T.B.) 4d.
287 Who shall win my lady fair ... ... 4d.
288 Why with toil ... ... 3d.
289 When Allen-a-Dale went a-hunting 4d.
290 I saw lovely Phillis. Madrigal ... 4d.
291 The River Spirit's song (A.T.T.B.) 3d.
292 It was upon a Spring-tide day. (5 v.) 4d.
293 Take heed, ye shepherd swains ... 4d.
294 Spring returns. Madrigal (S.S.A.T.B.) 2d.
295 Great god of love. 8 voices. Madgl. 3d.
296 In dulci jubilo. Christmas Carol ... 3d.
297 The song of the Frank companies ... 3d.
298 How bright in the May-time... ... 3d.
299 The Winter Song ... ... 3d.
300 The Bishop of Mentz ... ... 3d.
301 When last I strayed ... ... 2d.
302 See how smoothly ... ... 2d.
303 Let us all go maying ... ... 2d.
304 List! Lady, be not coy. (S.S.A.T.T.B.) 3d.
305 O ye roses. Madrigal ... ... 3d.
306 Sing we and chaunt it. Double Choir 2d.
307 Ditto, for 4 voices ... ... 2d.
308 The Red Wine flows ... (T.T.B.B.) 2d.
309 Shoot, false love, I care not ... ... 3d.

VOL. XI.—R. L. DE PEARSALL.

310 Laugh not, Youth, at Age. Madrigal 4d.
311 Down in my garden fair ,, 3d.
312 Adieu! my native shore ... ... 2d.
313 Purple glow the forest mountains ... 2d.
314 Caput apri defero ... ... 3d.
315 A Chieftain to the Highlands ... ... 2d.
316 A King there was in Thule ... ... 2d.

VOL. XI. (continued).
R. L. DE PEARSALL.

317 Come, let us be merry... ... ... 2d.
318 Mihi est propositum ... (A.T.B.B.) 2d.
319 Light of my soul. Madrigal (S.S.A.T.B.B.) 3d.
320 Lay a garland. Madrigal for 8 voices 3d.
321 Summer is y-coming in. (S.S.A.T.B.B.) 2d.
322 Why should the Cuckoo's tuneful note. Madrigal ... (S.S.A.T.B.) 3d.
323 Why weep, alas! my lady love. Madrigal ... ... (S.S.A.T.B.) 3d.
324 There is a paradise on earth (A.T.B.B.) 3d.
325 O! all ye ladies fair and true ,, 2d.
326 War Song of the Norman Baron Taillefer ... ... 2d.
327 Why do the roses. Madrigal ... 2d.
328 Sweet as a flower in May. Madrigal 2d.
329 The praise of good wine (T.T.B.B.) 2d.
330 { The Watchman's Song (T.T.B.B.) / do. do. (S.A.T.B.) } 2d.
331 The Waters of Elle ... (S.S.A.T.B) 2d.
332 No! no! Nigella. For Double Choir 2d.
333 Sir Patrick Spens. In 10 parts ... 4d.

VOL. XII.—ROBERT FRANZ.

334 Already snow has fallen ... ... 1½d.
335 At parting ... ... 1½d.
336 The fairest time... ... ... 1½d.
337 Spring's faith ... ... 1½d.
338 May Song ... ... 1½d.
339 A morning walk... ... ... 3d.

FRANZ ABT.

340 Home that I love ... ... 3d.
341 Eventide ... ... 1½d.
342 O thou world so fair ... ... 3d.
343 Spring's awaking ... ... 1½d.
344 Night Song ... ... 1½d.
345 Evening glow on the woods ... ... 3d.

F. HENSEL, née MENDELSSOHN.

346 Dost thou hear the trees ... ... 1½d.
347 The unknown land ... ... 3d.
348 In Autumn ... ... 1½d.
349 Morning greeting ... ... 3d.
350 The woodland valley ... ... 1½d.
351 When woods are glowing ... ... 3d.

A. C. MACKENZIE.

352 How I love the festive boy ... ... 3d.
353 Autumn ... ... 1½d.
354 When Spring ... ... 4d.
355 The day of love... ... ... 3d.
356 The stars are with the voyager ... 1½d

E. PROUT.

357 Hail to the chief ... ... 4d.

J. L. HATTON.

358 At the coming of the Spring... ... 3d.
359 Calm night ... ... 3d.
360 Come, live with me ... ... 3d.
361 Echo's last word ... ... 1½d.
362 He that hath a pleasant face... ... 3d.
363 Keep time, keep time ... ... 3d.
364 Lo, the peaceful shades ... ... 1½d.
365 Not for me the lark is singing ... 3d.

VOL. XIII.

367 Take heart ... J. L. Hatton 3d.
366 Spring, the sweet Spring ,, 3d.
368 The fishing boat ... ,, 1½d.
369 The lark ... ... ,, 3d.
370 The moon shone calmly bright ,, 3d.
371 The reproach ... ... ,, 1½d.
372 The swing ... ... ,, 3d.
373 The wrecked hope ... ,, 3d.
374 Twilight ... ... ,, 1½d.
375 Twilight now is round us ,, 3d.
376 What is got by sighing? ,, 3d.
377 Where shall the lover rest ,, 1½d.
378 Night ... ... Gounod 3d.
379 The dawn of day ... S. Reay 4d.
380 The calm of the sea ... H. Hiles 4d.
381 The wreck of the Hesperus ,, 6d.
382 Uncertain light ... ... Schumann 3d.
383 Confidence. Double Chorus ,, 3d.
384 The Dream ... ... ,, 1½d.
385 The Boat... ... ... ,, 3d.
386 Spring's approach. Seymour Egerton 3d.
387 Wild rose... ... ... ,, 3d.
388 In the woods ... ... ,, 3d.
389 The rose and the soul ,, 1½d.
390 Adieu to the woods ,, 3d.
391 King Winter ... ... ,, 3d.
392 The Miller ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.

Madame Frickenhaus is to be commended for the unhackneyed character of the pianoforte pieces she brought forward at her recital on March 26, at St. James's Hall. They included three movements from a little known Suite (Op. 33) by E. R. Kroeger, severally an effective prelude, a canon written in a graceful and flowing style, and a bright Scherzo. Madame Frickenhaus was assisted by Miss Nettie Carpenter, Miss Beatrice Spencer, and Mr. George Clinton.

Herr Emil Sauer gave a second pianoforte recital at St. James's Hall, on March 27, when his programme included Beethoven's 'Waldstein' Sonata and Schumann's 'Carnaval'; but Herr Sauer was most successful in his interpretation of pieces of brilliant character, particularly in his rendering of Liszt's 'Mephisto' Valse, which was a remarkable display of virtuosity.

Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was performed at the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End Road, on the 8th ult., under the able direction of Mr. Day Winter, the vast audience listening throughout with profound interest and attention. The principal soloists were Madame Maria Mallia, Miss Grace Day Winter, Mr. Branscombe, and Mr. Musgrove Tufnail. The band and choir which appear at these concerts have been organised and trained in East London, and their performance reflected great credit on Mr. Day Winter. All honour to Mr. F. N. Charrington, who is responsible for providing such concerts and other healthy entertainments nightly in this populous locality.

The Finsbury Choral Association gave a concert performance of Gounod's 'Faust,' at the Northern Polytechnic Institute, on the 18th ult. The solos were most ably undertaken by Madame Marie Duma, Miss Helene Valma, Mr. Henry Beaumont, Mr. A. Strugnell, and Mr. William Ludwig. Both band and chorus were admirable, and Mr. F. Cunningham Woods conducted with his accustomed ability.

The Dulwich Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Gounod's 'Redemption,' at the Crystal Palace, on March 23. The choruses were, on the whole, excellently sung (although more tenor and bass voices are needed to secure a proper balance) and the elaborate accompaniments were well played. The orchestra would, however, benefit by increased power in the strings. Gounod's beautiful and devotional music created a deep impression, which was due in no small degree to the efforts of the solo vocalists—viz., Miss Kate Cherry, Miss Rose Williams, Miss Maude Clough, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Dan Price, each of whom was completely satisfactory. The organist was Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, and the conductor, who is deserving of every encouragement for his painstaking work, was Mr. Arthur Fagge.

The first annual choir festival of the North-West London Baptist Choir Union took place in the Brondesbury Baptist Church, on the 19th ult., with gratifying success. The united choirs, nine in number, sang a selection of anthems and hymns from the new 'Baptist Church Hymnal,' under the conductorship of Mr. J. Herbert Williams, while Mr. John Spink presided at the organ. The principal anthems were 'Come, let us worship' (Mendelssohn) and 'I will magnify Thee' (Goss). Organ solos were played by Mr. Charles E. Smith, Mr. R. Burns, and Mr. Percy Wood. This newly-formed association may be encouraged to go forward in the good work whereunto they have set their hands.

The Highgate Philharmonic Society gave an excellent performance of Sullivan's 'Martyr of Antioch' and In Memoriam overture on the 18th ult., at Highgate. The tone of the choir, as well as their attack and expression, was excellent. The solos were well sung by Misses Jessie Reeve, Ira Aldridge, Messrs. John Probert, Frank Paterson and Charles Copland; and Mr. William Gardner conducted with care and skill.

The St. Joseph's Highgate Philharmonic Society performed Haydn's Passion Music with much credit on March 28, at St. Joseph's Schools. The soloists were Miss Nightingale, Miss Alison Rye, Mr. T. Bennett Griffin, and Mr. T. Seadon, and the choir sang with good expression. Mr. Volanti Armitage conducted skilfully.

The customary concert of sacred music was given on Good Friday, in West Kensington Park Wesleyan Church, of which the chief choral feature was Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer' (solo by Miss Myfanwy Jones). Vocal solos were contributed by Mrs. Barratt West, Miss Edith E. Chamberlen, Miss Kate Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Olver Rich, Mr. Harry Roberts, and Mr. Albert West. Miss Edith G. Allen and Miss Faith Firbank were at the pianoforte, Miss Edie Reynolds was the violinist, Mr. Walter J. W. Barrier presided at the organ, and Mr. J. Barratt West, choirmaster of the church, conducted.

A concert was given in the Camden Athenæum, on March 30, by Mr. and the Misses Schrader. The harp solos by Miss Nellie Schrader were particularly finished and brilliant, and Miss Eugenie Schrader gave an intelligent reading of Mendelssohn's Andante and Presto from the Violin Concerto. The singing of the 'Flower Song' ('Carmen') by Mr. Carl Schrader and 'Nobil Signor' by Miss Nellie Schrader were both good. Miss Emil Leslie's recitations displayed remarkable versatility. Mr. William A. Gardner was a sympathetic accompanist.

The Forest Gate Congregational Choral Society gave an excellent rendering of 'The Messiah' on Good Friday, at the Sebert Road Church. The band and choir numbered 100 performers, and the soloists were Madame Kate Nicholls, Miss Meredith Holt, Mr. Ager Grover, and Mr. Robert Hilton. The band was skilfully led by Miss Ethel Goldie and Mr. T. Lester Jones conducted.

Mention is also merited of the recitals of high class songs given by Mr. Richard Green, on the 15th ult., at the Steinway Hall, and by Mr. Gordon Cleather, on the 19th ult., at Steinway Hall.

MUSIC IN VIENNA.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Vienna, April 17.

After an interval of a good many years, the celebrated Hungarian pianoforte virtuoso and director of the National Conservatorium in Budapest, Count Geza Zichy, has again made his appearance at a concert, the receipts of which, in view of his high social position, were, as a matter of course, devoted to charitable purposes. A truly rare and noble artistic personality is that of Count Zichy. Deprived, unfortunately, of his right hand, his playing is limited to his left; and yet, what a marvellously complete performance it is! The opening number of the programme was a pianoforte concerto of his own composition, with orchestral accompaniment; a brilliant and effective work, coloured with national Hungarian elements in its middle movement, chivalaresque and nobly animated in the preceding and concluding sections. As a pianoforte concerto for the left hand only, it certainly occupies a unique place in musical creativeness. Equally unique was the Count's mastery of the keyboard, which indeed bordered on the miraculous. And this impression was enhanced by his interpretation of the solo pieces, particularly of a number of transcriptions of valses by Strauss. Here we had the direct manifestation of an impetuous temperament, of a healthy musical nature, combined with an exceptionally delicate sense for beauty of tone, for melodious expression and energetic rhythm. Judging by the sense of hearing only, and without seeing Count Zichy play, the picture of the one-armed and therefore imperfectly equipped performer, completely fades from the mind of the listener. And yet, this is only a minor portion of the praise to be bestowed. The Count, in fact, is an artist of the very first order, whose performance does not merely astonish, it also appeals to the heart and it elevates the mind of the listener.

Bernhard Stavenhagen, who has also visited us, attracted, as on former occasions, considerable attention as a pianist, and he likewise introduced himself as an orchestral conductor. It must be admitted, however, that he does not excel in the latter capacity. He conducted Liszt's "Dante" Symphony, which had not been heard here for many years, and obtained a full measure of well-deserved applause in the solo part of the same composer's A major Concerto. He was, moreover, most admirably supported, in his interpretation of the latter, by the young Capellmeister, Gustav Brecher, who discharged his seemingly straightforward, but really most difficult task of directing the orchestral accompaniment in a manner which called forth the admiration of all connoisseurs.

In support of the fund for the monument to be erected to Brahms in this city, a performance of chamber music was given by the Ladies' String Quartet, and with the co-operation of the famous clarinettist, Musik-direktor Richard Mühlfeld, of Meiningen. The principal works produced were the two clarinet quintets of Mozart and Brahms. As the hall was filled to overflowing, the result, as far as the monument fund is concerned, cannot have been otherwise than satisfactory. There is, indeed, every prospect of a speedy realisation of the project, by which another memorial in honour of a musician will have been added to the considerable number already in existence here. And does not the circumstance constitute one of the most characteristic features of Vienna, that it can boast of a far greater number of monuments erected to artists than to war lords and men of the sword?

While speaking of Brahms, I may notice that a final decision has at length been arrived at in the law courts with regard to the disposal of his property. In accordance with this ultimate finding of the tribunals, the sole heirs to his real estate are the composer's blood relations, residing in Mecklenburg, and of whose existence even he himself was not aware! The latter will have to fulfil a few charitable bequests, and, by virtue of an arrangement previously entered into, hand over a portion of the capital sum to the Czerny Society in aid of Musicians and to the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde. The literary and artistic remains, including the small but exceedingly valuable collection of autographs, become the property of the last-named Institution. On the anniversary of Brahms's death a performance was given by the Tonkünstler-Verein, under the direction of Herr Richard Heuberger, the most interesting feature of which was the Serenade in A major, a tenderly conceived work, scored for a small orchestra, in which the wind instruments take the leading part. The preference thus shown by the then youthful composer for wind instruments has remained a characteristic element in his scores throughout life.

With the advent of Easter our regular musical season draws to its close. The Concert-Verein concluded its double series of Subscription concerts with two performances of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, in which the Sing-Verein and members of the Maennergesang-Verein took part under the direction of Herr Loewe. The Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde selected Bach's stupendous Mass in B minor for its final concert of the season, under the same conductorship. Amongst the solo interpreters in the Beethoven work, Frau Seyff especially distinguished herself in the soprano part, while in the Mass, Fräulein Edith Walker employed her beautiful contralto voice to most artistic purpose.

The opera 'Lobetanz,' by Ludwig Thuille, brought out at the Imperial Theatre, has not been an unqualified success. The composer, who resides at Munich, had raised public expectations probably somewhat unduly by his having obtained some years ago the Viennese Beethoven Prize for a most musician-like and brilliantly-coloured Septet for pianoforte and wind instruments. But the theatre demands qualifications altogether different to those which go to the making of a successful chamber-music composer. Thuille's operatic idiom is choice and delicate, but somewhat stilted and laboured, and, above all, it lacks dramatic impulse and verve. Hence the new work failed to attract a theatre-going public, and after a few performances it has been laid aside—probably for ever! Yet its musicianly qualities command respect, while its performance was altogether an excellent one.

Mandyczewski.

Durham University.—At the recent final examination for the degree of Bachelor of Music the following gentlemen passed:—E. Darby, J. R. Griffiths, C. H. F. Merrill, and R. H. F. Mort.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

New York, March 12.

To one who surveys the field of musical activity with a serious eye, the most interesting disclosures of the last month are in the instrumental department. The activities in New York's concert-rooms have been enlivened by the doings of Hugo Becker (violoncellist) and Harold Bauer and Josef Hofmann (pianists); and saddened, more or less, by the concerts of Hans Winderstein's Leipzig Orchestra. Concerning this last visitor there is nothing cheerful to report, and it is more than likely that its projected tour of the country will have come to a disastrous end before these words appear in print. Mr. H. Winderstein's enterprise was wholly Quixotic and based on the notion, which ought to have been exploded long ago, that America is only a land of dollars and a profitable field for any European comer. What hope then could there be for Mr. Winderstein when a score of the cities in which he expected to reap a harvest were familiar with much better orchestral music than he could possibly offer?

Mr. Becker—a son of the leader of the one-time famous Florentine Quartet—has won genuine artistic triumphs, and Mr. Bauer, who challenged sincere respect everywhere, made himself the idol of Boston, where the gentle-souled convinced themselves that he is the greatest since Rubinstein. Mr. Hofmann's undertaking is still too young to justify discussion.

Owing largely to the initiative of Madame Nordica, who hails from New England, and knew church music and oratorios before she ventured upon operatic waters, Mr. Grau prepared Verdi's 'Manzoni Requiem' after the composer's death as a memorial to the master, and made a happy stroke. It has already drawn two audiences of about 4,000 persons each and will be repeated. The symphonic concerts in the cities which maintain notable orchestral institutions are so near a close that it is possible to marshal the principal novelties that have been given. I note in Chicago the 'Macbeth' Overture, by Clarence Lucas, a Canadian, now resident in London, I believe; a prologue to 'Œdipus Rex,' by Schillings; Berlioz's 'Rob Roy' Overture; Ludwig Thuille's 'Romantic' Overture; some Moorish Dances, by Professor Paine, of Harvard University; George Schumann's Symphonic Variations on an old German Chorale, 'Wer nur den lieben Gott lässt walten'; and Tschaïkowsky's ballet suite, 'La belle au bois dormant.' In New York (Philharmonic Society), Professor Parker's 'Northern Ballad,' Henry Holden Huss's Pianoforte Concerto in B major, Richard Strauss's 'Heldenleben' (which is to have a repetition), and Josef Suk's Symphony in E major; in Cincinnati, H. Rabaud's 'La Procession' Nocturne, Massenet's 'Scenes from "Cendrillon,"' Jean Sibelius's between-acts-music for 'King Christian II.,' and the Prelude to Heinrich Zoellner's 'Die versunkene Glocke'; in Pittsburg, Victor Herbert's symphonic poem 'Hero and Leander' (Mr. Herbert is an Irishman and a grandson of Samuel Lover), Arthur Whiting's Fantasia for pianoforte and orchestra, Arthur Foote's Serenade for strings in E, Borodine's Symphony in B minor, Godard's 'Scènes Poetiques,' and Dr. Villiers Stanford's 'Irish' Symphony.

April 10, 1901.

We have seen the end of the Metropolitan opera season in New York and are looking forward to the conclusion of Mr. Grau's activities, which will be reached in a few weeks. The season began on November 9 in Los Angeles, California, between which city and London, New York occupies the mid-distance. Three performances were given there, twenty-four in San Francisco, five in Denver, three in Kansas City, two in Lincoln, Nebraska, and four in Minneapolis. Then the company came to New York, and, between December 18 and March 30, inclusive, gave sixty subscription performances, fifteen performances at reduced prices on Saturday nights, seven extra performances (four of them devoted to the 'Nibelung' dramas of Wagner in the afternoons), and fourteen Sunday night concerts. Twenty representations of opera were given in Philadelphia and one in Brooklyn. The supplementary tour upon which the company entered immediately after the close of the New York season will cover Boston, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and Chicago, and, when that is finished, Mr. Grau's singers will have sung in opera and concert 192 times. Twenty-eight operas were brought forward, representing fourteen composers. As has been the case for years, Wagner led the list in New York with nine operas and thirty-five representations. Classified by the nationality of the composers, four Germans achieved forty-three performances, four Frenchmen nineteen, and six Italians twenty-five. Two novelties were incorporated in the Metropolitan repertory—Puccini's 'Tosca' and Reyer's 'Salammbô,' and with them Mr. Grau made only disheartening experiences. Both operas were sumptuously arrayed and brilliantly performed, but the public attitude toward them was one of complete apathy.

I am compelled to content myself with this statistical showing, but the London readers of THE MUSICAL TIMES will scarcely need more to form a lively opinion of what the season was like. It has had its counterparts at Covent Garden frequently. Meanwhile, another operatic enterprise was brought to an end, a month before the time contemplated, by the illness of the prima donna. Madame Sembrich carried her company triumphantly to the Pacific slopes, but after one representation in San Francisco found herself forced into inactivity by a catarrhal cold, which dislocated all her plans for a month. Thereupon she cut the Gordian knot by paying off her company, sending it home, and herself making the nearest thing possible to a beeline for Dresden, where she will probably be long before these lines are printed.

The Philharmonic Society of New York has ended its fifty-ninth season and expects to begin its sixtieth under the presidency of Mr. Andrew Carnegie, who, it is understood, agreed to accept election to that post on the eve of his departure for his summer home in Scotland. The president of the Philharmonic Society is its only non-professional member, though he has a considerable hand in the shaping of its destinies. The choice of Mr. Carnegie was made at the suggestion of the present president, Mr. E. Francis Hyde, who has held the office longer than any of his predecessors, and has seen the Society reach the high-water mark of its prosperity under his régime. He has been president for twelve years. The Symphony concerts in Cincinnati, which seemed to be threatened with ruin through want of popular support at the close of the seventh season and the expiration of the contract with Mr. Frank van der Stucken, their conductor, have been saved by the offer of Mrs. Charles P. Taft, a generous supporter, to pay the salary of the conductor (5,000 dollars a year) for six years, providing the Orchestra Association would undertake the other costs.

New York has enjoyed some notable choral performances of late, and two affairs are promised soon in other cities which deserve to be chronicled across the water. On April 2 the Brooklyn Oratorio Society, assisted by the vested choir of St. James's Church, all under the direction of Mr. Walter Henry Hall, produced Bach's Passion according to 'St. Matthew,' at Carnegie Hall, in this city, after having given it a week before in Brooklyn. Two days later the Oratorio Society, under the direction of Mr. Frank Damrosch, accomplished an excellent performance of Dvorák's Requiem, which had not been heard here since February, 1892, a few months after its first production at the Birmingham Festival of 1891. The Apollo Musical Club, with a choir of 400 men and women and 300 boys, and an orchestra of 100 instruments, will give Berlioz's Te Deum, under the direction of Mr. Harrison M. Wild. 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' will also be performed. A more extraordinary undertaking, however, is that of the Bach Choir, numbering about 150 singers, in the little Moravian town of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. Last year this choir gave the first complete performance in America of Bach's B minor Mass. This year, on May 23, 24, and 25, it will give a festival, at which the Christmas Oratorio, the 'St. Matthew' Passion, and the Mass in B minor will be performed—absolutely in their integrity.

H. E. KREHBIEL.

MR. H. DAVAN WETTON has been appointed by the Alexandra Palace trustees official organist to the Palace.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ON the 1st ult. the Belfast Ladies' Orchestra (Dr. Koeller, conductor) gave an interesting little concert. The entire absence of wind instruments greatly limits the choice of pieces, but the conductor was happy in his selection of works for strings only, including 'Symphonie Spirituelle,' by Hamerik; three pieces by Purcell; and 'Serenade Rococo,' by Helmund. A quartet by Haydn (G, Op. 54), although very well performed, could not be satisfactory to purists. The orchestra shows marked signs of improvement.

Dr. Walker's sixth and last Chamber concert was given on the 2nd ult. The programme comprised Dvorák's 'Dumky' Trio, Bach's Concerto for two violins, and Brahms's Pianoforte Quartet (Op. 26). The leading violinist was Mons. Charles Schilsky. Miss W. Burnett played second violin in the concerto and viola in the quartet; Herr Bast (Dublin), violoncello; and Dr. Walker, pianoforte. The entire performance was of great excellence, and the musical public of Belfast—a not very large but distinctly increasing number—owe a deep debt of gratitude to Dr. Walker.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE two great virtuosi, MM. Ysaye and Busoni, gave a concert in the Town Hall, on March 26. Bach's Sonata in E and Beethoven's 'Kreutzer' Sonata were the pieces in which both artists displayed their highest qualities. The next evening, the 27th, the Chamber Concert Society held its last meeting in the Masonic Hall. Beethoven's Quartet in A (Op. 18, No. 5) and Dvorák's Quartet in E flat (Op. 51) were the chief works. Mr. Johann Hock introduced Léon Boellmann's 'Variations Symphoniques' for violoncello with success. M. Adelin Fermin was the vocalist.

The season virtually came to a close, on the 2nd ult., with the last of Mr. Halford's concerts. For his final programme he had prepared Beethoven's Choral Fantasia (Op. 80) and Choral Symphony. These works, it is believed, have never been heard at one and the same concert since April 24, 1843, when the Choral Fantasia was first performed by the London Philharmonic Society, the Symphony following. Mr. Halford secured fine performances of each. Dr. Rowland Winn gave an admirable reading of the solo pianoforte part in the Fantasia, and the vocalists were the Misses Emily Davies, Alice Lakin, Aimée Wathen, and Messrs. J. T. Birch, Joseph Read, and Henry Sunman. The chorus consisted of Mr. Halford's Choir and that of the Stourbridge Concert Society. Mr. Halford has introduced the colossal Choral Symphony for three seasons in succession, and the work is no longer a 'sealed book' to local audiences.

On Good Friday evening the Midland Musical Society gave a performance of Gounod's 'Redemption,' in the Town Hall, to a large audience. The vocal principals were Miss Amy Kendal, Miss Grace Ivell, Messrs. J. Chambers, W. Bennett, and J. Snape. Mr. H. M. Stevenson conducted. Part 1 of the same work was given in the old Meeting Church; Gounod's 'Messe Solennelle,' at St. Augustine's Church; and Stainer's 'Crucifixion,' at Wretham Road Church, St. Jude's, and St. Alban's. There was a performance of this work, a week earlier, at the last-named church. Gaul's 'Passion' and A. E. Tozer's 'Seven Last Words' were also given in places of worship, whilst sacred concerts were held in most of the theatres.

The death of Sir John Stainer had a sad significance for Birmingham. For nearly twenty years he had visited the Saltley Training College in his capacity of Inspector of Music; and he had only recently accepted the office of President of the Clef Club, in succession to the late Sir Arthur Sullivan. The 'Crucifixion' was performed twice at St. Jude's Church on Good Friday, the second time being In memoriam the deceased composer.

At St. Ambrose and St. Mary's, on March 26, Gounod's 'Messe Solennelle' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer' were given with orchestra, Miss Amy Kendal, Mr. J. Billington, and Mr. H. Brindley being the soloists. In addition, the Andante from Mendelssohn's 'Italian' Symphony was performed. Mr. H. S. Williams, the organist of the church, conducted, and Mr. G. F. Chester presided at the organ.

Two of the cheap Saturday evening Town Hall concerts deserve mention; that given by the Choral and Orchestral Association, under Mr. Joseph H. Adams, when Costa's 'Eli' was successfully revived, and that on March 30, when the Choral Union, conducted by Mr. Thomas Facer, gave an excellent performance of 'Elijah.' The same evening there was a concert by the Students of the Midland Institute School of Music, the principal feature of which was the singing of the ladies' choir, conducted by Mr. A. R. Gaul. The works performed were Schumann's 'Three Romances' for female voices (Op. 69) and Tschaïkowsky's cantata 'Nature and Love.'

The Handsworth Amateur Orchestral Society gave two concerts in the Grammar School, Grove Lane, on the 13th and 15th ult., when the chief works performed were Beethoven's Symphony (No. 1), Schubert's Ballet Music from 'Rosamund,' and Weber's rarely-heard Overture to 'Peter Schmoll.' Such work in the outlying districts is deserving of every encouragement. Mr. G. H. Manton was very successful in these, his first essays as an orchestral conductor.

The Moody-Manners Opera Company commenced a week's season, at the Theatre Royal, on the 22nd ult.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The season of Mr. Riseley's Male-Voice Choir was brought to a termination with a concert, on March 26, at the Victoria Rooms. Mendelssohn's 'Antigone' was again finely performed, Mr. W. Thomas (of Bristol Cathedral) being the soloist. As upon the former occasion, the reciters were Miss Olive Kennett and Mr. Charles Fry. The band and choir numbered 200, and Mr. Riseley conducted the work with his usual skill. In a miscellaneous second part the most noticeable production was Mendelssohn's 'Thou comest here to the land,' from 'Œdipus.'

A concert was given by the Evening Students' Choral Society, on March 27, the programme being confined to extracts from the works of Haydn. The soloists were Miss Edith Evans, Mr. A. E. Edgar, and Mr. W. Price, who acquitted themselves creditably. There was an orchestra of which Mr. Harold Bernard was leader, the most ambitious composition given being Handel's 'Clock' Symphony. Mr. A. E. Hill (organist of St. John's Church) was the conductor.

The Clevedon Philharmonic Society gave its Spring concert, on the 10th ult., under the direction of Mr. Edward Cook, of Bristol. There was a small orchestra chiefly composed of Bristol players, Mr. F. S. Gardner holding the principal first violin. Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen' was agreeably given, the soloists being Miss Edith Evans, Miss Fripp, Mr. A. E. Edgar, and Mr. Arthur Mass.

The Weston-super-Mare Philharmonic Society, at its Spring concert in the Victoria Hall, on the 18th ult., under the direction of Mr. Edward Cook, rendered effectively Dr. Cowen's 'St. John's Eve' and Professor Villiers Stanford's 'Last Post.' The solo vocalists were Miss Edith Evans, Miss Clara Aldersley, and Mr. G. W. Brierley (all of Bristol), and Mr. Arthur Wills (baritone, of Weston-super-Mare).

On the 20th ult. the Bristol and Clifton Philharmonic Society gave its final concert for the season. Choir and band numbered 400, Mr. Ernest Lane holding the principal first violin. Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' was given, under the direction of Mr. Edward Pavey, the principal vocalists being Miss Louise Atkinson, Miss Emily Foxcroft, Mr. Frank Tebbutt, and Mr. Robert Maitland. In the second part of the concert the choir rendered the part-songs 'In honour of Music' (Mr. Arthur Somervell), 'O pure delight' (Stephenson), and 'When Spring comes laughing' (Dr. Eaton Faning). Mr. Edward Cook conducted these pieces, which were nicely interpreted.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Orpheus Society (conductor, Dr. J. C. Culwick) gave its second concert of the season on March 28, when Weelkes's 'As Vesta was' and Donato's 'All ye who music love' were admirably sung by the choir. Mr. E. Gordon Cleather sang Stanford's Cavalier songs with fire and élan. The other soloists were Miss Elsie Connolly, who sang Thomas's 'Knowest thou that dear land' and the Waltz Song from 'Romeo and Juliet,' and Monsieur Henri Verbrugghen, the violinist, whose performances were greatly appreciated by a very large audience.

Two concerts were given by the Chamber Music Union, on March 29 and the 12th ult. respectively. At the first Beethoven's String Quartet in F (Op. 18, No. 1) was played by Messrs. Wilhelmj, Grisard, Delany, and Bast; and later on the same gentlemen, with Signor Esposito at the pianoforte, gave a really fine rendering of Schumann's Quintet. Miss Agnes Treacey gave unmixed pleasure by her charming singing of a group of songs by Schubert and Stanford, and a very beautiful Italian song, 'Fior di Siepe,' by Esposito. At the second concert Rubinstein's Trio in B flat (Op. 52) and Mozart's Sonata for pianoforte and violin, in the same key, were played by Messrs. Wilhelmj, Esposito, and Bast; and the concert terminated with an altogether satisfactory performance of Beethoven's Septet.

The arrangements for the forthcoming Feis Ceoil are practically complete. The committee announce the receipt of a larger number of entries than they ever have had before. In addition to the competitions, the arrangements include a lecture, illustrated musically, by Mr. Alfred Percival Graves, on some recent arrangements of Irish music; a concert of Irish music for solos and chorus, which include some new arrangements as four-part songs by Dr. Jozé; a chamber music concert at which the prize string quartet, by F. R. McClintock, and pianoforte trio, by Herbert H. Harty, will be performed; a concert by the first prize winners; an orchestral concert at which the prize cantata, 'Red Hand of Ulster,' by Carl P. Hardebeck, and Stanford's 'Phaudrig Crohoore' will be presented, &c.

The committee of the Dublin Orchestral Society held an influential public meeting on the 11th ult., at which the Lord Chancellor of Ireland presided. The Society has lost £800 on the three seasons, and a new committee has been appointed to endeavour to make good this loss and to enable the Society to continue its excellent work for the remaining four years of the original scheme. Great and deserved tribute was paid to the conductor of the band, Signor Esposito, whose indefatigable exertions and exceptional ability accomplished so much artistically in the three seasons' work.

During Holy Week a series of musical services was given in St. Patrick's Cathedral, at which selections from Mendelssohn's seldom-heard 'Christus' and Spohr's 'Calvary' were performed. The solos were well sung by Messrs. Bapty, Charles Kelly, and Dalton, and the soprano music by the boys of the choir. The Martyn-Palestrina Choir gave its usual performances in St. Saviour's Church, Dominick Street, of the 'Responsoria' of Vittoria and Palestrina, at Tenebrae, and two Masses by Vittoria and Jacobus Kerle, all admirably sung by the choir under the baton of Mr. Vincent O'Brien.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The first interim concert given by the Norwich Festival Committee since the last musical festival took place on the 18th ult. The event was anticipated with more than usual interest, from the fact that this would be the first appearance of the chorus since the appointment of the new chorus-master, Dr. A. H. Mann, organist of King's College, Cambridge. Sir Hubert Parry's 'Judith' was the work selected, than which no severer test could have been chosen; and it is satisfactory to report a decided improvement in tone, attack, and intelligence. The band was composed mainly of members of the local Philharmonic Society, strengthened in part by London professionals, while the principal vocalists included Madame Emily Squire, Miss Eva Spinney, Mr. E. Branscombe, and Mr. Charles Knowles, with Masters Steward and Thurston, cathedral choristers, as the Children. Dr. Bunnett presided at the organ and Dr. Mann conducted with alertness and painstaking care.

The King's Lynn Musical Society, conducted by Mr. A. H. Cross, gave its second concert of the season on the 12th ult. The programme was chiefly made up from the works of Sir Arthur Sullivan, the principal pieces being the cantata 'On Shore and Sea' and the Festival Te Deum. The solos were taken by Miss Clara Dow and Mr. Coleton Regan. The orchestra, in addition to supplying the accompaniments, played Sullivan's 'In Memoriam' Overture. Dr. A. H. Mann presided at the organ.

The North Walsham Amateur Musical Society gave its annual concert on the 10th ult., when Sullivan's 'Martyr of Antioch' was selected for performance. Mr. A. S. Wilde conducted a very capable rendering, the soloists being Miss Mildred Rix, Miss Ethel Holt, Mr. S. Hemmings, and Mr. A. T. Springall. The accompaniments were played by a string quintet, with Mr. F. W. B. Noverre as the principal violin, reinforced by pianoforte (Dr. Bunnett) and harmonium (Mr. J. Dixon).

Following the successful performance of 'Pinafore' last season, the Wymondham Operatic Company have been studying 'The Pirates of Penzance,' and on the 10th and 11th ult. gave public performances of that amusing work to large audiences. Very few towns the size of Wymondham could produce so capable a band of actors and vocalists as that conducted by Mr. A. S. Wilde.

The Wymondham Musical Society gave its first concert of the season on the 17th ult., when Haydn's 'Spring' was performed, Miss Serruys, Mr. Hemmings, and Mr. W. B. Ladell being the principal vocalists. The orchestra was led by the Rev. Thornton Shaw, and the performance was ably conducted by Mr. A. S. Wilde. The duties of accompanist were shared by Madame Serruys and Mr. A. S. Wilde.

A concert arranged by the Mayor and Mayoress of Great Yarmouth (Mr. and Mrs. Orde), on behalf of the Hopton Church Organ Fund, took place in the Town Hall, on the 12th ult. With the assistance of the Hon. Margaret Henniker, the Hon. Rosamund Tufton, Mr. and Mrs. Lancelot Orde, Miss Delia Woods, Mr. Haydon Hare, and the Misses Myrtle and Iris Orde, the success of the concert was assured.

A sacred concert in aid of the local charities was given by the Sheringham Choral Class, in the Town Hall, on March 26. The first part was devoted to Barnby's cantata 'Rebekah,' conducted by Mr. H. H. Brett, the soloists being Mrs. Reilly Mead, Mr. F. Rice, and Mr. J. R. Burroughes—a very capable trio of vocalists.

A choral competition was held lately at Banham, a village in Norfolk. Invitations were issued to twenty-one parishes, but only a few accepted. The prizes were awarded to the choirs from the parishes of Banham and Garboldisham. The president, H.H. Prince Frederick Dhuleep Singh, officiated as judge.

The competitions recently held at Hunstanton are referred to in another column.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. Winram's violin pupils displayed the results of earnest and painstaking tuition at their concert on March 28. Aided by a complement of professional wind instrumentalists they formed an orchestra of over seventy performers, and by the really excellent and artistic performance of a well-selected programme of concerted and solo numbers gave the greatest pleasure to an audience which completely filled the Music Hall. Miss Gordon Pillans sang excellently.

Many most interesting and educative concerts have been given by our local church musical societies, whose good work in the spread of musical culture cannot be overestimated. To cite a few of these: the Choir of St. Mary's Cathedral gave the 'St Matthew' Passion of Bach, on March 29; the Musical Association of St. Paul's United Free Church, 'Elijah,' on March 27; the choir of Viewforth United Free Church, the 'Hymn of Praise,' on March 29; the Musical Association of Hope Park, the same work on the 3rd ult.; the choir of St. James's Place Church, 'Samson,' on the 3rd ult.; Broughton Place Church Choir, 'St. Paul,' and Roseburn Church Choir, 'The Daughter of Jairus,' on the 4th ult.; the United Free High Church Choir, Gounod's 'Gallia' (with Miss Ethel Grainger as the soloist), on the 5th ult.; the Choral Union Advanced Class, a selection from 'The Messiah,' on the 6th ult.; and St. Bernard's Church Choir, 'Ruth,' on the 11th ult. Although detailed criticism of these performances is not called for, they showed the results of honest work and healthy endeavour.

Max Bruch's 'Odysseus'—a work which should be better known—was well rendered by Mr. Millar Craig's Choir, on the 9th ult.; and country choirs in the district, notably the choral societies of Musselburgh ('May Queen' and 'Erl-King's Daughter'), Bonnyrigg ('Samson'), and Dalkeith have rivalled the metropolitan choral bodies in praiseworthy representation of the results of their season's labours. Altogether, those among us who correctly estimate the value to a community of widespread study of choral works have much cause for gratification.

Lastly, mention must be made of the second concert of the Edinburgh Amateur Orchestral Society, which, in an ambitious programme (including Schumann's first Symphony in B flat and the 'Tannhäuser' Overture), did itself great credit, and afforded much pleasure to its patrons.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Glasgow Amateur Orchestral Society gave its second concert on March 27. The programme included Max Bruch's Violin Concerto in G minor (Miss Bessie Spence as soloist), the prelude to 'The Meistersingers,' and the first performance in Glasgow of a suite from Tschaïkowsky's ballet 'The Sleeping Beauty.' The Wagner excerpt made considerable demands on the executive skill of the amateurs, but they succeeded in giving a highly creditable performance. Vocal solos were given by Mr. J. F. S. Adams, and Mr. Hoeck ably conducted.

The choir of Strathbungo Parish Church performed Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen' on March 21, and performances of Stainer's 'Crucifixion' have been given in Belmont Church and St. Stephen's Parish Church. On March 26 an excellent concert was given by the choir of Pollokshields West Church, under the direction of Mr. D. S. Eadie. The programme consisted of Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' and 'Hear my Prayer,' and Mr. Walton played the organ accompaniments. Maunder's cantata 'Penitence, Pardon, and Peace,' with miscellaneous anthems and organ solos, formed the programme of the concert given under Mr. E. B. Cox's direction, in Renfield Church, on March 28. A capital performance of 'Judas Maccabæus' was given on the 3rd ult. by the choir of Caledonia Road United Free Church, when Mr. Turnbull, organist of the church, conducted.

Mr. Walton gave a very successful concert in the Cathedral, on the 20th ult. The most interesting piece on the programme was Rheinberger's Suite (Op. 149) for organ, violin (Miss Bessie Spence), and violoncello (Mr. Angless). The Glasgow Glee and Catch Club, under the baton of Mr. Taggart, gave one of its delightful concerts on the 22nd ult.

St. Matthew's United Free Church Orchestral Society gave its second concert on the 23rd ult. The most ambitious numbers performed were Haydn's 'Surprise' Symphony and Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in G, Mr. Matt Lowson playing the solo part. Mr. E. R. Joachim conducted.

Organ recitals have been given during the month by Mr. Hutton Malcolm (an excellent Wagner programme), in Claremont Church; Mr. Montague Smith, jun., in Adelaide Place Baptist Church; and by Mr. Pattinson, at the inauguration of the organ in Victoria United Free Church.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Liverpool Orchestral Society offered a fine programme for its concert on March 23. Directed by its earnest conductor, Mr. A. E. Rodewald, the partly professional and partly amateur orchestra of 103 performers gave an intense and meaningful rendering of Wagner's 'Faust' Overture, and a really distinguished performance of Dr. Stanford's 'Irish' Symphony. Mr. W. H. Dayas played the solo in Herr Sauer's very difficult Pianoforte Concerto in E minor, and Miss Rose Ettinger sang several songs with much charm.

The illness of Signor Busoni robbed the Ysaye-Busoni recital, at first sight, of much of its attractiveness; but Mr. Mark Hambourg proved an excellent substitute. The two sonatas for violin and pianoforte (Bach's in E major and Beethoven's 'Kreutzer') were admirably played by M. Ysaye and Mr. Hambourg. Miss Florence Schmidt sang songs with daintiness and Mr. Percy Pitt accompanied with his usual success.

The Liverpool Musical Society gave a most successful and excellent concert, in St. George's Hall, on Good Friday, when the scheme included Parts I. and II. of Gounod's 'Redemption' and Rossini's 'Stabat Mater,' before a very large audience. The principals were Miss Winifred Wynne, Mrs. W. E. Tinling, Miss Lilian Hovey, Mr. James Leyland, and Mr. Charles Knowles. The orchestra was conducted by Mr. Frank H. Crossley, and Mr. Townshend Driffield (acting as deputy for Dr. Peace) was at the organ. Arrangements are now concluded for a continuance of the concerts given on Sunday afternoons last year at the New Brighton Tower, under Mr. Granville Bantock. These concerts, it appears, are to be on the same large scale as heretofore.

It may interest organists throughout the country to know that Dr. Peace, the city organist, has in hand the compilation of a book which is to consist of close upon 500 annotations which have from time to time appeared in the programmes of his recitals.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

In every way the season, so lately closed, has been extremely successful. The Orchestral concerts have been very largely attended, with an increased subscription list; and even at the extra performance, given for the benefit of the band fund, when all the seats were open to the public, the hall was crowded by the devotees of Wagner and the worshippers of Beethoven's Choral Symphony. At the College the festival week of public examinations testified to the value of the instruction given and the youthful talent which, in many cases, is rapidly attaining maturity. Two evenings were devoted to solo work, one to chamber music, and the last to the rendering, with complete orchestra (of which only a portion of the wind came from outside), of Beethoven's 'Fidelio.' During the winter our quartet concerts—notably those of Mr. Brodsky and Mr. Carl Fuchs—attracted larger gatherings than in previous years, and it is clear that, at last, chamber music has obtained a firm hold here. The lighter entertainments of Mr. Cross and others have been well patronised; while the more seriously inclined lovers of the organ have flocked weekly to the Town Hall to the recitals given there by Dr. Pyne which, happily, will yet be continued for some weeks. Dr. Richter has declared his complete satisfaction with his position here and his purpose to continue to spend among us the activity which shows no sign of waning.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Newcastle Postal Telegraph Choral Society gave its final concert of the present season in the Town Hall, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on March 26. The chief feature was the third part of Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's trilogy, 'Hiawatha's Departure.' The other portions of the work had been previously performed by this Society with so much acceptance to its members and patrons that great interest centred in the production of the third section. Needless to say all expectations with regard to the effectiveness of the work were fully realised. The soloists were Miss Janet Reed, Mr. Henry Brearley, and Mr. A. H. Gee; Mr. J. H. Beers was principal first violin and Mr. J. R. Andrews conducted. At the same concert a part-song, entitled 'The Defeat,' by Dr. Chambers, a local musician, was produced.

A capable performance of Handel's 'Acis and Galatea' was given on March 27, in the Town Hall, Gateshead, by the National Telephone Vocal Society, under the conductorship of Mr. George Dodds. The soloists were Miss Ella Wilson, Mr. C. E. Elder, Mr. E. G. Horn, and Mr. W. D. Spark. Although the Society has not long been in existence, it shows every indication of pursuing a useful career.

One of the most recent successful concerts was that of the South Shields Choral Society, on March 27, at which 'The Death of Minnehaha' and 'Hiawatha's Departure,' parts two and three of Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Song of Hiawatha,' were performed in the Royal Assembly Hall, South Shields. The work had the advantage of being well rendered by a capable choir and orchestra and thoroughly reliable soloists, the latter being Madame Alice Esty, Mr. Henry Brearley, and Mr. Charles Tree. The conductor, Mr. M. Fairs, is to be congratulated upon the successful result of his efforts to popularise works of distinctive merit in South Shields.

On March 28 the Newcastle Amateur Vocal Society produced Mr. J. F. Barnett's 'Building of the Ship,' in the Town Hall, Newcastle, with Madame Goodall, Miss C. Soulsby, Mr. T. Child, and Mr. William Thornton in the solo parts. Mr. J. E. Jeffries conducted.

On Good Friday, in the Cathedral, Newcastle, Gounod's 'Out of Darkness' was performed, with Mr. J. E. Jeffries at the organ; and 'The Crucifixion,' by the late Sir John Stainer, was given in several churches in this locality, notably St. Thomas's Church, Sunderland, with Mr. C. Francis Lloyd at the organ, and in St. Peter's Church, Newcastle, Mr. J. Metcalfe Simpson, organist.

Still another performance of Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' in this locality during the past month has to be recorded, this time by the Morpeth Choral Society, in the Masonic Hall, Morpeth, on the 11th ult., under the baton of Mr. T. Robinson. The performance was confined to the first portion of the work, 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast,' the charming solo, 'Onaway! awake, Beloved!' being entrusted to Mr. Tom Child. It is long since a work of the character and dimensions of this has, in so short a time, obtained so firm a hold upon the musical people of these counties.

It is pleasing to be able to report the successful production of Sterndale Bennett's 'May Queen' in St. Martin's Hall, Brampton, on the 15th ult., by the Brampton Choral Society, which has recently been reorganised. The soloists were Miss Janet Reed, Miss Laura Adamson, Mr. H. Stansfield, and Mr. J. Nutton, and the conductor, Mr. C. H. Nutton. The same work was also very creditably performed by the Forest Hall Part-Song Choir, under Mr. W. S. Foggin, at Forest Hall, on the 17th ult. The soloists on this occasion were Miss Janet Reed Mrs. Foggin, Mr. Haswell, and Mr. J. A. London.

The Durham Musical Society performed Handel's noble funeral anthem 'The ways of Zion do mourn' and Sir Frederick Bridge's 'The Flag of England,' in the Town Hall, Durham, on the 17th ult., with Miss A. St. John, Miss Dodd, Mr. Arthur Bailes, and Mr. A. Pattison as soloists, and Mr. F. Eustace Leatham as conductor. On the same evening the Tynemouth Amateur Vocal Society, under the baton of Mr. M. Fairs, performed the first two parts of Haydn's 'Creation,' and Gade's 'Spring's Message,' in the Palace, Tynemouth, with Miss Maggie Jaques, Mr. Henry Brearley, and Mr. Robert Maitland as soloists.

The Spennymoor Musical Society performed Mr. S. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer,' in the Town Hall, Spennymoor, on the 19th ult. The soloists were Mr. Tom Child and Miss Janet Reed, and the conductor, the Rev. Canon Firth. Another concert of which mention should be made is that of the Northumberland Orchestral Society, which took place in the Town Hall, Newcastle, also on the 19th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. J. H. Beers. The principal work performed was Mendelssohn's Fourth Symphony.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Whatever may be said with regard to the decline of choral performances, there is ample evidence to the contrary in this district.

On March 26 the Stapleford Choral Society gave a concert comprising Haydn's Creation and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer,' with Miss Maggie Jaques, Mr. J. Turner, and Mr. Ford Waltham as soloists.

On the 29th of the same month the Derby Choral Union terminated its season with a concert, the chief feature of which was Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast.' Madame Adelaide Mullen and Mr. Henry Beaumont undertook the solos and Mr. Charles Hancock conducted.

The season of the Nottingham Sacred Harmonic Society was concluded on March 28 with a performance of Verdi's 'Requiem.' The solos were ably rendered by Madame Louisa Sobrino, Miss Florence Oliver, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Dan Price. A miscellaneous selection followed, in which the orchestra played a considerable part, and, under Mr. Henry J. Wood's guidance, in a manner that gave the utmost satisfaction.

The East Bridgford Choral Society gave a performance of Gaul's 'Joan of Arc,' at Radcliffe-on-Trent, on the 10th ult., when the solos were undertaken by Madame Lizzie Moulds and Messrs. George aad Harry Stubbs.

Mendelssohn's 95th Psalm and Stanford's 'Revenge' were the chief choral pieces at the concert of the Loughborough Philharmonic Society, on the 11th ult., with Miss May Beeby, Miss Sharpe, and Mr. Alfred Page as soloists.

The Mansfield Choral Society terminated its season with a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' on the 16th ult., under the direction of Mr. R. W. Liddle, organist of Southwell Cathedral. The solos were rendered by Mdlle. Otto Brony, Miss Ethel Meggitt, Mr. Hirwen Thomas, and Mr. Vallance, the concert terminating with a miscellaneous selection.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Sheffield Hanover Choral Society performed Handel's 'Judas Maccabæus,' on the 1st ult. The chorus, numbering nearly 100 members, sang with exhilarating vigour and enthusiasm, the character of the music bringing out these and other admirable qualities to perfection. Mr. Thos. Morton, who conducted, is to be complimented on the excellent results his efforts have yielded. The principals were Madame Moulds, Mr. Riley, and Mr. J. Lycett. Mr. W. S. Jessop was organist.

On Good Friday a concert was given by the combined forces of the Sheffield Orchestra and the Sheffield Musical Union, in the Albert Hall. Dr. Coward directed a very fine performance of Spohr's 'Last Judgment,' in which the admirable playing of the band in the overture and symphony and the excellent chorus singing were the notable features. The soloists were Miss Christine Warner, Miss Nellie Chisholm, Mr. W. H. Brearley, and Mr. C. Thompson. Schubert's 'Unfinished' Symphony and the Good Friday Music from Wagner's 'Parsifal' were also played. Mr. W. H. Peasegood was organist and Mr. H. Dean led the orchestra.

The Hoyland Common Choral Society performed Costa's 'Eli,' on the 16th ult. Directed by Mr. G. W. M. Coates, chorus and orchestra gave an adequate and successful rendering of the oratorio. The principal vocalists were Madame Norledge, Miss A. Skerritt, Mr. F. Fallas, and Mr. J. Ditchburn.

The St. Peter's (Abbeydale) Choral Society gave a concert on the 23rd ult., under Mr. W. Gadsby. Henry Gadsby's cantata 'The Lord of the Isles' was the principal attraction in an interesting programme.

Haydn's 'The Seasons' was performed by the Sheffield Choral Union, on the 25th ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Jessie Charlesworth, Mr. William Burrows, and Mr. R. Charlesworth. Mr. Suckley conducted and Mr. H. Dean led the orchestra.

The Walkley Musical Society gave a concert on the 22nd ult., performing 'Judas Maccabæus,' under the direction of Mr. Henry Brown. The solos were undertaken by Miss Ethel Bird, Miss Mary Moore, Mr. William Burrows, and Mr. Linstead.

At the Brincliffe Musical Society's concert, on the 26th ult., Professor Prout's Suite de Ballet, the same composer's Triumphal March from 'Alfred,' and works by Sterndale Bennett, Sullivan, and Moszkowski were performed. Mr. J. H. Parkes conducted.

MUSIC IN STAFFORDSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Coleridge-Taylor's 'Song of Hiawatha' formed the basis of the Stafford Choral Union concert, in the Borough Hall, on the 16th ult. The joint choirs of Stafford and Uttoxeter Choral Unions took part, and, under Mr. H. Drury's conductorship, a good rendering of this remarkable work was achieved. The band and chorus numbered 170 performers, Messrs. W. Griffin and C. Collier, of Birmingham, being leader of the orchestra and harp soloist respectively. The loud applause which greeted the conclusion of the choral work was well merited, and the orchestra also came in for a large share of recognition. The soloists were Madame E. Morgan, Mr. Henry Brearley, and Mr. Ivor Foster, all of whom deserve praise for the artistic way in which they performed the music allotted to them.

An excellent performance of E. L. Ashford's Easter cantata, 'Cross and Crown,' was given on the 17th ult., in St. Mary's Church, by the choir, assisted by the following soloists: Miss Edith Thomas, Miss Marion Eades, Mr. Horace Reid, and Mr. Ernest Amphlett. The Rev. T. H. Spinney presided at the organ, and Dr. E. W. Taylor conducted.

On the 3rd ult., at St. Mary's Church, Stafford, the late Sir John Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was well rendered by the choir, under the conductorship of the organist, Dr. E. W. Taylor. The Rev. T. H. Spinney, of Newborough, presided at the organ, and at the close played the Dead March in 'Saul,' as a mark of respect to the memory of the composer.

MUSIC IN WALES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and Handel's 'Acis and Galatea' were performed by the Aberystwyth University College Society, on March 22, Mr. David Jenkins conducting, the soloists being Miss Janet Garnett, Mr. Maldwyn Humphreys, and Mr. Tivy Davies.

The Penarth (Cardiff) Musical Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Norman Kendrick, gave performances of 'The Woman of Samaria' (Bennett) and 'Hear my Prayer' (Mendelssohn) on March 27, Madame Emily Squire and Miss Vernon, Messrs. Harold Green and Harry Miller being the soloists.

On March 28 Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' was given by the Bethesda Choral Society, Briton Ferry, at Neath. Mr. T. J. Dennis conducted, and the soloists were Misses S. M. Lewis and M. Watkins, Messrs. Hopkin Hill and David Hughes. The orchestra was under the leadership of Mr. E. T. Roberts, Cardiff; Miss A. W. Harris presiding at the organ.

On the 1st ult. Handel's 'Samson' was performed, Pontycymmer, Glamorganshire, by the Noddfa Chora Society, assisted by Mr. E. T. Roberts's orchestra, Cardiff, Miss C. Thomas and Mr. T. Jones presiding at the pianoforte and organ respectively. The soloists were Miss Wedlake and Miss Thomas, Gwilym Tâf and Mr. Bowen.

On Good Friday the Tabernacle Choral Society, Cardiff, gave a performance of Handel's 'Jephtha,' under the conductorship of Mr. Tom Price. The soloists were Mrs. Novello Davies, Misses Kendry and Griffiths, and Messrs. W. Rees, G. T. Llewellyn, and W. Parry Jones.

On the same day the Memorial Hall Choir, Cardiff, performed Gaul's 'Ruth,' under the baton of Mr. D. C. Davies, Mr. Arthur Angle leading the orchestra, the principal soloists being Mesdames Tidball, Kate Morgan, and M. Hosgood, and Messrs. J. Williams and D. Jones. Miss Mabel Charles and Miss Mabel Evans acted as accompanists.

As is usual during Eastertide, a number of singing festivals and Eisteddfodau were held in various parts of the Principality, the more important of the latter being the annual meetings at Mountain Ash and Abergavenny on Easter Monday. At the former the chief choral prize of £100 for singing Mendelssohn's 'All men, all things,' was divided between the Newport and Mountain Ash choirs; and at the latter the Rhymney and Pontlottyn United Choir was awarded the first prize of £100 (and gold medal), the second being won by the Shrewsbury Choral Society. The test piece here was Handel's 'The many rend the skies.'

Sir Frederick Bridge delivered a lecture on 'Shakespeare and Music,' at Cardiff, on the 12th ult. Vocal illustrations were given by Miss Garnett and Mr. H. Miller, the accompaniments being played by Sir Frederick and Mr. J. E. Deacon, and assistance was rendered by a choir under the conductorship of Mr. Walter Scott.

On Good Friday Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was sung at the Parish Church, Bala, Mr. Botwood, the organist of the church, conducting, and Mr. Ebrall, Shrewsbury, accompanying.

The Cardiff Orchestral Society gave its last concert for the season on the 18th ult., the principal artists being Madame Elvey, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mons. Johannes Wolff. Mr. J. E. Deacon conducted as usual, except in certain numbers by Dr. Frederic Cowen, which were conducted by the composer.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

LEEDS.

Music-making of a serious kind comes to a close with Easter, but we had something like a spurt in the last week of the season. On March 25 there came the last of Mr. Rawdon Briggs's chamber concerts, which have formed from beginning to end a thoroughly enjoyable series. On this occasion Miss Cantelo joined Mr. Briggs and his colleagues in a really brilliant performance of Brahms's superb Pianoforte Quartet in C minor (Op. 60), besides playing the so-called 'Appassionata' Sonata with good expression and a reserved power that was very noteworthy. Schumann's String Quartet in F (Op. 41, No. 2) completed this highly interesting programme. On the following day the last of Messrs. Haddock's 'Musical Evenings' took place, Mr. Such's violin playing and the clever singing of the 'Meister' Glee Party being the features of the concert. On the 27th 'St. Paul' had very exceptional justice done to it by the Leeds Philharmonic Society, under Dr. Stanford, whose reading gave a certain restraint and dignity to the music, which it too often lacks. The choir—which has greatly improved under its new chorus-master, Mr. Fricker, in refinement of style—sang uncommonly well, and the principals, Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Enid Grimshaw, Messrs. W. Green and Plunket Greene, were efficient, and more than efficient, in their respective parts, the first and last-named deserving especial praise for the artistic reticence of their singing. The Hallé orchestra contributed materially to a performance which, as a whole, I have no hesitation in styling the finest I can call to mind. The next day it was the turn of the Leeds Symphony Society, who gave an interesting and unconventional programme of three orchestral works, interspersed with songs. Gade's Fifth Symphony, remarkable for a pianoforte obbligato part, and Dvořák's pleasant Suite in D were coupled with the beautiful Pianoforte Concerto in D minor, written by Mozart in 1785. The pianist, Mr. Noel Bell, played with brilliancy and excellent taste, and the vocalist, Miss Lily Pearce, added greatly to the enjoyment of the concert, which Mr. Grimshaw conducted. On March 29 Miss Lilian Prust, a new-comer to Leeds, and a very refined and accomplished pianist, gave a concert at which she played with brilliancy and charm the inevitable 'Appassionata' Sonata. Miss Milly Turner was the vocalist. At the last of the 'Bohemian' chamber concerts, on the 2nd ult., Borodin's Second String Quartet, which had made so good an impression at a preceding concert, was repeated, with even better effect, by Messrs. Elliott, Wright, Haigh, and Giessing.

VARIOUS YORKSHIRE TOWNS.

Mr. Rawdon Briggs's quartet party, which is contributing more every season to the music of the West Riding, appeared at the Halifax Subscription concert, on March 22. One of Haydn's quartets and Schumann's Pianoforte Quintet, in which Mr. H. F. Webster took the pianoforte part, were the chief things in a well-contrived programme, to which Miss Ada Crossley's singing gave much interest. Mr. Hatton's highly artistic performance of a violoncello sonata by Boccherini was another very enjoyable feature of the concert. At Dewsbury, on the 26th, the Choral Society, under Mr. Chadwick, gave Sullivan's 'Golden Legend,' the choir singing with good will and intelligence. The principals were Madame Bertha Rossow, Miss Bulleid, Mr. W. Green, and Mr. H. Brown. All did well, but credit must be given to the last-named singer, a young local artist, for his very creditable performance of the part of Lucifer, which he took for the first time and at very short notice. At Harrogate, the last of the Messrs. Haddock's 'Musical Evenings' took place, on March 25, and on the 28th the Harrogate Choral Society, under Mr. C. L. Naylor, gave 'Elijah.' The soloists were Miss Emily Davies, Miss B. Salter, Mr. Fallas, and Mr. Andrew Black. The choir sang with much spirit, their attack being remarkably vigorous. On the same day the Ilkley Vocal Society gave Mendelssohn's 'Walpurgis Night' and Elgar's 'Banner of St. George,' under Mr. Arthur Akeroyd's conductorship, and with Madame Edith Edwards, Mrs. Percy Metcalfe, Messrs. Kellett and Press as soloists. On March 23 the Frizinghall Choral Society, of which Mr. Fitton is conductor, gave Cowen's 'St. John's Eve,' the principals being Miss Docksey, Miss Tapp, Mr. Blagbro, and Mr. Ledger.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Antwerp.—The Royal Conservatorium has become the depository of a somewhat peculiar memorial, consisting of the brain—an unusually developed one, it is said—of its late founder and principal, Peter Benoit. The local anatomical museum would seem to have been the more appropriate custodian of this interesting relic.

Brünn.—A very successful Bach festival, organised by the Chamber Music Society, took place last month at the 'Deutsches Haus' Art Institution. The performances included the Concerto in D for pianoforte, flute, and violin; the cantata 'Bleib bei uns,' and a number of organ solos, ably interpreted by the well known Brünn organist, Herr von Proskowetz.

Brussels.—André Messager's new ballet, 'Les deux Pigeons,' the scenario constructed upon the well known fable of Lafontaine, has been brought out with great success at the Théâtre de la Monnaie.

Budapest.—A new 'pathetic' symphony, by Edmund Milhailovich, was produced with great success last month by the Philharmonic orchestra, under the direction of the composer, who received quite an ovation from the audience.

Dresden.—A most enthusiastic reception was accorded to the first performance, on March 21, at the Royal Theatre, of 'Nausikaa,' the second drama connected with August Bungert's 'Odyssey' tetralogy, the complete production of which may be looked for ere long.——A new concerto in A minor for organ, string orchestra, four horns, and kettle-drums, from the pen of Enrico Bossi, was produced at a concert recently given by the organist, Herr Pfannstiehl, and very favourably received.——A performance took place, in Easter week, of Mozart's Unfinished Mass in C minor, completed, chiefly with the aid of Mozartian motivi, by Herr Aloys Schmitt, the director of the Dresden Mozart Society. In this form the work produced a most marked impression.

Düsseldorf.—The season's performances of the Musik Verein terminated last month with an excellent interpretation of Bach's 'St. Matthew' Passion, under the direction of Professor Buths.

Esslingen.—Niels Gade's cantata 'The Crusaders,' previously unknown here, has been produced on two occasions recently, by the Oratorio-Verein, with great success.

Hamburg.—By the munificent bequest of some £60,000—made for the purpose by a patriotic citizen, Herr Laeisz—the music-loving Hansa town will be able to add to its existing institutions a great concert hall, of which it has long stood in need.

Leipzig.—The Bach Verein, at its third concert of the season, last month, gave a most successful performance of Schubert's Mass in A flat major, not previously heard here, and of Handel's Dettingen Te Deum, Capellmeister Hans Sitt being the conductor. The twenty-first Gewandhaus concert of the season illustrated in its programme the two extreme points of the development of the classical symphony by an excellent performance, under Herr Nikisch, of Philipp Emanuel Bach's Symphony in D major and of Brahms's No. 4, in E minor. At the Stadt-Theater the new comic opera by Siegfried Wagner, 'Herzog Wildfang,' was produced on March 27, and very favourably received.

Liegnitz.—A new Passion oratorio, 'Judas,' by Wilhelm Rudnick, has been repeatedly performed here recently with marked success.

Linz.—The eightieth anniversary of the foundation of the Linz Musik-Verein was celebrated last month by a three days' musical festival, when amongst the works produced were Liszt's 'Graner Festmesse,' Bruckner's 'Romantic' Symphony, Richard Strauss's symphonic poem 'Tod und Verklärung,' and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. The choir had been reinforced by the members of several other local societies, Herr August Göllerich being the conductor. The Linz Musik-Verein was amongst the very first of Austrian societies to introduce the works of Beethoven and Schubert, Bach and Handel, to music-lovers in that country.

Mexico.—In connection with some recently made excavations for building purposes, a most interesting discovery has been made, consisting of a number of musical instruments—flageolets, drums, and others—appertaining to the Aztec period.

Milan.—In connection with the Cimarosa centenary, an interesting concert was given last month at the Conservatorio, which included, in addition to a number of excerpts from his operas, a sonatina for pianoforte and an air for violin by Cimarosa. The performances were prefaced by a very able discourse relative to the life and works of the composer, delivered by Signor Alberto Giovannini.

Monte Carlo.—The experiment of a scenic representation of Berlioz's 'La Damnation de Faust' has been successfully made at the Monte Carlo Theatre recently, under M. Gunsbourg's direction. Madame Rose Caron and MM. Renaud and Alvarez, of the Paris Opéra, were the principal solo interpreters.

Montreux.—At the Church of St. John the Evangelist, on March 25, Caldicott's 'Widow of Nain' and Dr. Bunnett's Psalm 130 ('Out of the deep') were sung by the Montreux English Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. John Lomas. It may be mentioned that the same Society gave a performance some time since of Cowen's cantata 'The Rose Maiden,' at St. John's Institute, Territet.

Munich.—Not without some opposition on the part of a small but demonstrative minority of the numerous audience did the long-expected first performance of Siegfried Wagner's second operatic work take place, at the Royal Theatre, on March 23. 'Herzog Wildfang,' as the new three-act comic opera is entitled, exhibits some popular and musicianlike features in the score, while the book (likewise from the pen of Herr Wagner), though dramatically effective, suffers from a crudeness of diction and imagery surpassing even that of its predecessor, 'Der Bärenhäuter.' The performance, under Herr Fischer's direction, was of somewhat unequal merit. The composer, together with the principal interpreters (the work contains no less than thirty-four solo parts!), received repeated recalls after every act. —— On the occasion of the eightieth birthday of the Prince Regent a highly interesting performance took place, at the Royal Musical Academy, of a cantata by C. M. von Weber, which, though its existence was well known, had never before been produced in public. It was written by the composer to words by Friedrich Kind (the author of the book of 'Der Freischütz'), in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the accession of the King of Saxony, in 1818, but failed to meet with the approval of the aged monarch. Weber thereupon withdrew the work and, though profoundly hurt, derived sufficient inspiration from his loyalty to be able to create, at very short notice, his famous 'Jubel Ouverture,' which has served as a joyous prologue to many a festival occasion since. The discarded cantata, now produced for the first time, proved a most interesting and valuable composition, as well it might, seeing that it emanated from the master's most happily inspired period. The opening chorus, 'Schmücket die Pforten,' more particularly aroused a perfect storm of enthusiastic applause.

Paris.—One of the recent Châtelet concerts was devoted to music by composers of Czech nationality, the director, M. Colonne, having handed over his baton to M. Oscar Nedbal, the conductor of the Prague Philharmonic Society, for the occasion. The compositions constituting the programme were nearly all heard in Paris for the first time. Amongst those specially well received were a symphonic poem by Smetana and the Symphony in E minor by Dvorák. The Bohemian Quartet, of which M. Nedbal is a member, also appeared last month, with enormous success.——Under the title of 'Grands Concerts Symphoniques,' a new concert institution has been founded, with M. Schiller as the manager, the orchestra consisting chiefly of members of that of the Opéra Comique. The performances are to be under the direction alternately of a number of different conductors of note, the opening concert having been conducted by Herr Steinbach, the Meiningen Capellmeister, and the two succeeding ones by Dr. Muck, of Berlin.——Gluck's 'Iphigénie en Tauride,' with Madame Caron in the title part, has been revived at the Opéra Comique, with great success. Verdi's 'Falstaff,' with Mdlle. Delna and M. Victor Maurel in the leading parts, is in active preparation.

Pau.—A handsome monument, the work of the sculptor Duminy, has just been erected to the once famous tenor singer, Pierre de Jeliotte. The somewhat late tribute thus rendered to the memory of a gifted vocalist and cultured musician (who flourished during the earlier part of the eighteenth century) furnishes a notable exception in regard to the ephemeral character proverbially associated with the fame of the lyrical artist.

Prague.—A new opera by Antonin Dvorák, entitled 'Rusalka,' was brought out, on March 30, at the National Theatre, with considerable success. The score of the new work, which deals with a popular Czech legend, is both melodious and highly effective from a dramatic point of view. Supported by efficient interpreters and a picturesque mise-en-scène, the performance met with the enthusiastic approval of the audience.——A new pianoforte concerto, in F sharp minor, by Heinrich von Káan, produced a highly favourable impression on its first performance at a recent concert of the Conservatorium, where the composer holds a leading pianoforte professorship. Fräulein Irma Loewe was the very able interpreter of the solo part.

The Hague.—The Wagner Society, under the zealous direction of M. Viotta, gave a highly efficient performance last month (for the first time in Holland) of a considerable portion of Wagner's 'Parsifal,' the orchestra of the Concertgebouw co-operating. Amongst the solo interpreters were Fräulein Reinl, of Berlin, and Herren Burgstaller, Messchaert, and Dr. Krauss.

Venice.—For the first time in Italy a concert devoted exclusively to the music of Brahms was given last month, at the Palazzo Marcelli. The most highly appreciated number in the programme was the Pianoforte Trio (Op. 87), which was redemanded.

OBITUARY.

MR. J. F. H. READ.

Sincere regret will be felt by a large circle of friends at the death, on the 6th ult., in his eightieth year, of John Francis Holcombe Read. He was for many years President of the Stock Exchange Orchestral Society, the founder and conductor of the Walthamstow Choral Society, and for a considerable period an active director and member of the committee of the Royal Academy of Music. Mr. Read was a director of the Great Eastern Railway, and formerly a member of the Stock Exchange; but although these commercial pursuits occupied much of his attention, he devoted all his leisure time to the study of music, of which art he was a devoted and enthusiastic amateur. In early life he studied composition under the late Sir G. A. Macfarren, and in later years he produced many choral and orchestral works of interest in connection with the societies before named. He was a good performer on the viola, and held for many years the position of principal viola in the Stock Exchange Orchestral Society. The following are the titles of some of Mr. Read's cantatas: 'The Consecration of the Banner,' 'Psyche,' 'Outward Bound,' 'Harold,' and 'Blind Bartimeus.'

On the 14th ult., at 16, Cicada Road, Wandsworth Common, Miss Alice Barnett (Mrs. Dickins), an old Savoyard, who created the contralto parts in the following Gilbert-Sullivan operas:—Ruth in the 'Pirates of Penzance' (in New York), Lady Jane in 'Patience' (her best part), and the Fairy Queen in 'Iolanthe.' This excellent artist was a pupil of Lady Macfarren, a sister of Madame Fanny Poole, and a grandniece of Mrs. Siddons and of the Kembles.

The Royal Amateur Orchestral Society has lost one of its original and most enthusiastic members by the death of James Ramsay Dow. When the Society was established, in 1872, he became first flute in the orchestra. He soon joined the committee, and subsequently, in 1875, at the request of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, he undertook the duties of honorary secretary, which he discharged with untiring zeal and energy. Mr. Dow was born in Oporto in 1838.

On the 7th ult. (Easter Sunday), at her residence, 5, Hall Road, St. John's Wood, Mrs. Friswell, née Georgina Hale Rogers, in her eighty-eighth year. A student at the Royal Academy of Music from 1829 to 1834, Mrs. Friswell sang at the Ancient concerts, and she was a member of Henry Leslie's, the Sacred Harmonic Society, and Handel Festival Choirs.

On the 16th ult., at Royston House, Cheltenham, Jeremiah Oakely Smith, aged eighty-one, formerly a well known teacher in the town and for twenty-seven years organist of Christ Church. He played the clarinet so well at the age of six that Malibran was desirous that he should accompany her on that instrument at one of the Gloucester Festivals.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A SCOTCH SNAP HYMN TUNE.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—In the article on 'Hymn Tunes' in the April number of The Musical Times, on page 232, a hymn tune is quoted as an example of the 'Scotch Snap.'

It may be interesting to note that this tune is an opera melody pressed into the service of the church, being no other than the air 'In infancy our hopes and fears,' from Arne's 'Artaxerxes.'

It is not the only instance of borrowings from that opera for the purpose of the manufacture of hymn tunes; the air 'Water parted from the sea' and the minuet in the overture having both been adapted by compilers of eighteenth and early nineteenth century tune books.

Yours obediently,

April 15, 1901. A. J.

DR. ARNE'S 'THOMAS AND SALLY.'

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—In your issue of this month Mr. Frank Kidson expresses doubt as to the accuracy of the statement in Grove's Dictionary that Dr. Arne's 'Thomas and Sally' was produced in Dublin in 1743. In order to see if any light could be thrown on the matter by the Dublin newspapers of the day, I have looked through the Dublin Journal (better known as Faulkner's Journal) from 1742 to 1744, the years when Dr. and Mrs. Arne were living here. I find frequent announcements of the performance of various works by Dr. Arne during this period. The works performed included 'Comus,' 'Rosamund,' 'King Alfred,' 'The death of Abel' (stated in the 'Dictionary of National Biography' and Grove to have been first produced in London in 1755), 'The Comedy of the Rehearsal' (the libretto of the latter being by the Duke of Buckingham), 'The Judgment of Paris,' &c. But I can find no reference of any kind to 'Thomas and Sally.' In the absence of any positive evidence to show that this piece was given in 1743, the result of my research would certainly go far to bear out Mr. Kidson's contention—namely, that 'Thomas and Sally' first saw the light at Covent Garden in 1760.

Your readers may not be aware that in Dublin Dr. Arne, on one occasion at least, appeared before the public as an exponent of the histrionic art, as will appear by the following advertisement, which I have extracted from Faulkner's Journal of January 21, $17\frac{4}{4}$:—

For the benefit of Mrs. ARNE, at the Theatre-royal in Aungier street, on Saturday, the 28th of this Inst., will be performed, The Second part of Henry IV. With the humours of Sir John Falstaff. The part of Henry, Prince of Wales, by Mr. ARNE, being his first attempt of that kind.

Fortunately for us, his 'first attempt of that kind' would appear also to have been his last, as after this one experiment Dr. Arne seems to have quite renounced the Thespian Art, and to have devoted his energies thenceforward to music.—Yours faithfully,

Leopold Dix.

17, Gardiner's Place, Dublin.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The usual Lower Rhine Musical Festival will be held this year in Cologne, under the direction of Professor Dr. Wüllner. Commencing on Whit Sunday, the Festival will be continued during the two following days. The selection of music to be performed is an extremely interesting one. On the first day we are promised Beethoven's Overture 'Zur Weihe des Hauses,' the 'Missa Solemnis,' and the Ninth Symphony (Choral). The programme of the second day includes Schubert's great Symphony in C major, Liszt's symphonic poem 'Tasso,' Bach's cantata 'Gott, der Herr, ist Sonn und Schild,' Berlioz's Te Deum, and a selection from Gluck's 'Iphigenia in Aulis.' The third day will be devoted to Brahms's Symphony in C minor (No. 1), Richard Strauss's symphonic poem 'Don Juan,' the second part of Schumann's 'Paradise and the Peri,' Beethoven's Choral Fantasia, the closing scene of Wagner's 'Die Walküre,' and a Pianoforte Concerto by Mozart.

At the meeting of the Abbey Glee Club, held on the 9th ult., Mr. E. F. North, Vice-President (in the absence of the President, the Lord Chief Justice), referred in feeling terms to the death of Sir John Stainer, who was an honorary member of the Club. As a mark of respect to the memory of the distinguished musician, the professional members sang the late composer's glee 'Bind my brows.' A similar tribute was paid by the members of the St. George's Glee Union, of which Sir John was a Vice-President, at their monthly concert, on the 12th ult., when Callcott's 'Forgive, blest shade,' was sung as an appropriate In memoriam.

The following is the result of the competitions which have taken place at the Royal Academy of Music during the past month:—The Sterndale Bennett Prize has been awarded to Winifred Christie, a native of Stirling, N.B. The Louisa Hopkins Memorial Prize to Winifred Christie. The R.A.M. Club Prize, for Composition, to Harry Farjeon. The Charles Mortimer Prize, also for Composition, to George R. Senior.

The London Octuor, a new organisation, announce a series of three concerts at Steinway Hall, to be given on the 16th, 23rd, and 30th inst. The performers are Messrs. Wallace Sutcliffe and W. A. Boxall (violins), W. Sewell (viola), H. J. Poole (violoncello), Claude Hobday (contrabass), W. H. Hall (clarinet), E. Hall (bassoon), and A. E. Brain (horn). A special feature of the concerts will be the production of vocal selections by well-known composers, specially arranged for voices and the octet, 'an innovation which, it is hoped, will appeal to all music-lovers.'

The North-West Norfolk Village Choir Association held its annual competition at Hunstanton, on the 13th and 15th ult., when Dr. McNaught was the adjudicator. The Association has not only taken root in the district, but has been the means of raising the taste for music among children especially, which is inherent, but often neglected. The Countess of Leicester presented the prizes to the winning choirs.

Mr. Fred. H. Burstall, writing from the Cathedral, Liverpool, points out that Sinding's Violin Concerto in A was first performed in England by the Liverpool Orchestral Society, on October 27 last, under Mr. Brodsky's direction (to whom the work is dedicated), and with Mr. John Lawson in the solo part. Therefore the initial presentation of the work was not at Birmingham on March 5, as stated in our April number (p. 257).

Mr. Edward Branscombe read an interesting paper on 'English Madrigals and Glees,' with excellently rendered illustrations, at the monthly meeting of the Incorporated Society of Musicians (London section), held at 20, Hanover Square, on the 13th ult.

The Secretary of the Choir Benevolent Fund has received a letter from General Sir Dighton Probyn stating that His Majesty the King has been pleased to continue his patronage to that Society, of which, since 1877, he was, as Prince of Wales, a patron.

Mr. Henry Saxe Wyndham has been appointed secretary of the Guildhall School of Music.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Andover.—Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was sung in St. Mary's Church, on March 28, by the choir, largely augmented, who rendered the choruses in an excellent manner. The solos were taken by Mr. A. Legg and the Rev. J. P. Wray. Mr. H. W. Chuter was at the organ and Mr. J. W. Chuter conducted.

Barnet.—The Barnet Choral Society gave an excellent performance of Handel's 'Joshua,' in the Town Hall, on March 26. The soloists were Miss Bertha Oppenheim, Mr. Otto Dene, Mr. Martin Smith, Master F. Martin Smith, and Mr. Thomas Bolt, who sang the numbers allotted to them with effect. The choir and orchestra did credit to the conductor, Mr. Frank B. Wood.

Bath.—A highly successful concert was given by the Bath Orpheus Glee Society, in the Assembly Rooms, on the 15th ult. The members, to the number of forty-two, sang with fortitude and refinement, and their achievements reflected the greatest credit upon their able conductor, Mr. Henry J. Davies. The songs contributed by Miss Olive Rae and the violin solos of Mr. Schöttler afforded pleasant variety to an enjoyable programme. Mr. Percy and Mr. H. J. Davis were efficient accompanists.

Biggleswade.—The Choral Society performed with much credit Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha' trilogy (complete) at its concert on the 16th ult. The solo vocalists were Miss Edith Serpell, Mr. Jos. Reed, and Mr. Fred. A. Aireton. Mr. J. G. Cooper conducted.

Bournemouth.—A special service was held in St. Stephen's Church, on the 3rd ult., when the Passion Music from Handel's 'Messiah' was excellently rendered by the choir, string orchestra, and organ, under the conductorship of Mr. A. W. Russe. The soloists were Miss Grace Retullack (soprano) and Mr. Taylor (tenor), and Mr. H. Holloway presided at the organ.——At the Shaftesbury Hall, on the 9th ult., a concert was given under the conductorship of Miss Mostyn Pryce, who was assisted by the Ladies' Amateur Musical Society. The most noticeable features of the concert were the part-singing of the choir of ladies, who rendered two of Elgar's part-songs, 'Fly, singing bird,' and 'The Snow,' so admirably, under the baton of Miss Hawley, that they had to be repeated; and the violin playing of Miss Dorothy Willes, who played Svendsen's Romance with much charm and expression.

Brecon.—Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was sung at St. Mary's Church, on the 2nd ult. The solos were taken by Mr. Mayall and the Rev. H. J. Church-Jones. Mr. Heins presided at the organ, and Mr. J. A. Burgoyne, organist and choirmaster of the church, conducted.

Burton-on-Trent.—Gounod's 'Redemption' was performed by the Musical Society, in the Town Hall, on the 15th ult. The band (led by Herr Suck) and chorus numbered 160 performers, and the principal solo vocalists were Miss Amy Sargent, Miss Alice Lakin, Mr. Henry Brearley, and Mr. Joseph Lycett. Mr. A. H. Whitfield presided at the organ and Dr. Plant conducted.——'The Crucifixion' was sung by the choir of St. Paul's Church, on the 4th ult., under the direction of Dr. Plant.

Bury St. Edmunds.—A concert was given in the Athenæum Hall, on March 28, when the greater portion of Haydn's 'Creation' was performed, under the direction of Mr. A. Oliver Lusher, followed by a miscellaneous selection. The soloists were Miss Kate Cherry, Mr. Joseph Reed, and Mr. Robert Maitland, all of whom were much appreciated. The choir numbered 100 selected voices, and Mr. Owen A. Clark and Miss Clemmie Catling acted as accompanists.

Caterham.—The Choral Society gave a concert on the 17th ult. A feature in the programme was the Trio for pianoforte, clarinet, and bassoon, by Dr. C. Harford Lloyd, which was beautifully played by Dr. C. H. Lloyd, Mr. O. W. Street, and Mr. E. F. James. Miss Amy Sargent was the vocalist, and the choir sang the choruses from Weber's 'Preciosa,' the madrigals 'In going to my lonely bed' (Edwards) and 'Ah, me, where is my true love' (Anerio), Berthold Tours's part-song 'Stars of the Summer night,' and Mendelssohn's 'Sing on with cheerful strain,' in a highly creditable manner. Miss Vera Curtis was the accompanist and Mr. Charles Hunt conducted.

Chatham.—The first concert of the recently formed Choral Society took place in the new Town Hall, on the 10th ult., when Cowen's 'Rose Maiden' was performed. The soloists were Miss Kate Cherry, Madame Edith Hands, Mr. Harry Greene, and Mr. Bertram Mills. The orchestra consisted of members of the Royal Engineers' Band, and Mr. E. B. Norman conducted.

Chelmsford.—The Musical Society, for the closing concert of its nineteenth season, gave Sullivan's oratorio 'The Light of the World,' on the 17th ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Perceval Allen, Miss Katherine E. White, Miss Grainger Kerr, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Arthur Walenn. The band (led by Mr. G. H. Wilby) and chorus numbered over 100 performers. Mr. F. E. Swan was the accompanist and the conductor was Mr. F. R. Frye.

Cheltenham.—The first important concert held in the Winter Garden since its renovation was given on the 9th ult., when the New Philharmonic Society closed its season with a very comprehensive and popular miscellaneous programme. The performance was largely orchestral, its chief feature being Tschaïkowsky's 'Pathetic' Symphony, which received a fine interpretation, and created genuine enthusiasm. Other notable pieces in the orchestral section were Mendelssohn's 'Ruy Blas' Overture, Hellmesberger's 'Ball Scene,' the 'Sylvia' Suite by Délibes, and the 'Rakoczy' March of Berlioz. The chorus displayed qualities of excellent training in Sullivan's 'Wreaths for our graves' (beautifully rendered), Faning's 'Miller's Wooing,' and Wagner's 'Hail, bright abode.' Mr. Watkin Mills was the soloist, Mr. Lewis Hann, leader of the band, and Mr. C. J. Phillips conducted with his accustomed ability. 'Art for art's sake' seems to be the motto of the New Philharmonic Society in Cheltenham—a motto which is fully justified at each succeeding performance.

Coventry.—A performance of Gounod's 'Redemption' was given in St. Michael's Church, on the 11th ult., by the Coventry Musical Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Walter Hoyle. The band—consisting principally of members of the Birmingham Festival Choral Society's orchestra—and chorus numbered about 200. The solo vocalists were Miss Esmé Atherden, Miss Nina Poole, Miss Emily Foxcroft, Mr. F. W. Norcup, and Mr. Watkin Mills. Mr. C. W. Perkins rendered invaluable help at the organ. —— On Wednesday in Holy Week Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was sung by members of the Coventry Musical Society, at St. Michael's Church. The solos were sung by Mr. Birch and Mr. Frank Henson. The organist of the church, Mr. Walter Hoyle, presided at the organ. ——The Festival Choir gave its last performance of the season in Holy Trinity Church, on March 28, when Graun's Passion music was eagerly followed by a large congregation. Miss Nina Poole, Mr. Walter Driver, and Mr. Walter Burton were the principal vocalists. Mr. C. W. Perkins, of Birmingham Town Hall, presided at the organ, and Mr. C. H. Moody conducted. —— Mr. Sullivan Mortimer, pupil-assistant at Holy Trinity, has been presented by the Festival Choir and other friends with a purse of £10, an English lever watch and chain, two framed etchings of the church, and several useful books, on his leaving to become organist and choirmaster of Atherstone Parish Church.

Croydon.—The West Croydon Choral Society performed Handel's 'Messiah,' in the Public Hall, on March 30. The solo vocalists were Miss Isabel Tait, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. Edward Branscombe, and Mr. Wilson Brazier. The choir sang excellently throughout and the orchestra was fairly efficient. Mr. Arthur Hatchard conducted with much care.

Devizes.—At the concert of the Musical Association, given in the Corn Exchange, on the 16th ult., Coleridge-Taylor's 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast' and Stanford's 'Last Post' were performed. The choir sang with much spirit, on the whole, and were very ably supported by an orchestra of forty performers (led by Mr. J. W. Duys), with Mr. F. W. Phipp at the organ. The tenor solo was sung by Mr. Wilfred Pepper. Mr. H. H. Baker conducted with care and skill.

Dover.—Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was sung in St. Bartholomew's Church on March 27. The tenor and bass solos were impressively rendered by Mr. John Pearson and Mr. J. R. Eaton. Mr. H. Packman, organist and choirmaster of the church, presided at the organ.

Eastbourne.—Mr. Smallwood Metcalfe gave a performance of Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' in the Town Hall, on March 28, when the appearance of Mr. Santley in his familiar part of the Prophet gave distinction to the occasion, the other principal singers being Miss Mabel Manson, Miss Fanny Emerson, and Mr. William Green. The choir sang with intelligence, and the orchestra, led by Mr. Edward O'Brien and including many well known players, was excellent. Mr. Metcalfe conducted with care and skill.

Frome.—The Wesley Chapel Choral Society gave the last of a long series of sacred concerts, on Good Friday, in Wesley Chapel. The programme consisted of Gounod's 'Redemption,' preceded by the first part of Haydn's 'Creation.' The solo vocalists were Misses Martha Davies, Amy Perry, Lily White, and Messrs. Dempster, W. Dodds, and W. Irving. The choir, well trained by Mr. T. Grant, who conducted, acquitted itself admirably, and the orchestra, led by Mr. J. W. Duys, was of remarkable excellence. It is much to be regretted that so excellent a series of performances should be brought to a conclusion.

Gravesend.—An amateur orchestral society, organised by Mr. Howard Moss, gave its first concert on March 27, in the New Public Hall, with every indication of success. The programme included the overture 'Sargino' (Paer), two movements from Haydn's Symphony (No. 2, in D), Schumann's 'Traumerei,' Marche Russe (Ganne), and 'All Souls' Day' (Lassen), all of which were played with excellent expression, the last-named piece being encored. Vocal solos were contributed by Miss Rosabella Beste, Mr. F. Quartly, and Mr. Harold Colyer. Mr. F. Newcomb and Miss Maggie Hogg (violin), and Mr. J. H. Newcomb (violoncello) also assisted.—— Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was sung at the Parish Church, on the 3rd ult. The soloists were Mr. Harold Colyer, Mr. D. J. Williams, and Mr. H. Knowles. Mr. C. Burrows Moss presided at the organ, and Mr. Howard Moss, organist of the church, conducted the choir of eighty voices.

Halifax.—The Argyle Musical Society gave a concert in the Mechanics' Hall, on March 30, when the chief feature of the programme was Goring Thomas's 'Sun Worshippers,' the solo parts in which were sung by Miss Maggie Jaques and Mr. T. H. Brearley. The choir sang Mendelssohn's 'Hunting Song,' Macfarren's 'Sands of Dee,' and other part-songs. Mr. H. F. Webster conducted.

Hanham.—On Good Friday, at the Congregational Church, the English version of Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' and selections from 'The Redemption' were given by Mr. F. A. Wilshire's choir of forty voices. The principals were Miss Edith Evans, Miss Ada Bennett, Mr. E. T. Morgan, and Mr. W. Thomas. Mr. Walter Maker was at the organ and Mr. F. A. Wilshire conducted.

Kendal.—The Choral Society gave a performance of Goring Thomas's 'The Swan and the Skylark' and Stanford's 'The Revenge,' at St. George's Hall, on March 28. The choir sang with excellent attack, giving evidence of the careful training of its conductor, Mr. Smallwood Winder, and there was a fairly efficient orchestra. The solo vocalists who appeared in Thomas's cantata and the miscellaneous second part were Miss Minnie L. Grime, Miss Louie Levens, Mr. L. Townley, and Mr. A. S. Kinnell.

Kilmarnock.—Beethoven's 'Ruins of Athens' was performed, in St. Andrew's Parish Church, on March 26. The choir sang efficiently and gave indication of careful training. The solos were sung by Miss Dinsdale and Mr. P. Howie. Other artists who appeared in the second part were Miss McGlashan (contralto), Mr. James Wilson (violinist), and Mr. Dinsdale, whose ability on the organ was displayed in Lemare's Andantino in B flat and the first movement of Dr. Peace's 'Sonata da Camera.'

Lesmahagow.—The Musical Association gave its annual concert, in the Jubilee Hall, on March 29, when the chief feature of the programme was a selection from 'Judas Maccabæus.' The choir showed the results of good training, and sang both with accuracy and good expression. The solo vocalists were Miss S. Harvey Walker, Miss Annie F. Lawson, and Mr. Gilchrist. The accompaniments were played by Miss Gardiner (pianoforte) and Mr. J. Walkinshaw (organ). Mr. S. Philip Thornley conducted.

Lowestoft.—Graun's Passion Music was sung at the Parish Church, on Good Friday evening, by the choir of the church, augmented, and with the assistance of a small orchestra, led by Mr. Coote Suggit. The choir sang with precision and good expression, especially in the difficult double fugue, 'Christ unto us hath left an example.' The solos were well rendered by Miss Fanny Stapley, Mr. Sadleur Browne, and Mr. Graham Smart, the last-named artist, especially, singing with much dramatic power and displaying a fine baritone voice. Mr. E. Tuttle was organist, and Mr. H. D. Flowers conducted with ability and care.

Marlow.—A successful concert was given by the Choral Society, on the 16th ult., when Gade's cantata 'The Erl-King's Daughter' and a miscellaneous selection were performed. The principal vocalists were Miss Ruth Vincent, Miss Amy Newton, and Mr. Charles Copland, together with Mrs. Harry Patey as solo violinist. Mr. Frank Mummery, who also appeared as solo pianist, was an excellent conductor. The accompanist in the cantata was Mr. S. W. Wright.

Middlesbrough.—The Musical Union gave a very fine performance, on March 27, of Coleridge-Taylor's complete trilogy, 'Scenes from Longfellow's Hiawatha.' Ample evidence was forthcoming of the excellent training the choir and orchestra had received from their own conductor, and this, coupled with the personal influence of the young composer, under whose direction the work was performed, resulted in this flourishing society being heard at its very best. Miss Emily Davies, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Andrew Black were an admirable trio of vocalists, and the whole concert may safely be said to have been one of the finest given by a society known throughout the locality for its enterprising and ambitious efforts to popularize music of the highest order.

Newtown (North Wales).—The Harmonic and Orchestral Society gave a very satisfactory performance of Sterndale Bennett's cantata 'The Woman of Samaria,' in the Victoria Hall, on the 19th ult., followed by a miscellaneous selection of vocal music. The soloists were Miss Maggie Jaques, Madame Rina Robinson, Mr. Richard Thomas, and Mr. David Hughes. Mr. A. I. Guest led the band, and Miss Lily Trow and Mr. J. Johnson assisted at the pianoforte and harmonium respectively. Mr. J. C. Gittins and Mr. T. M. Taylor officiated as conductors.

Portsmouth.—A concert was given by the Orchestral Society, on the 15th ult., at the Thorngate Hall, Gosport, under the direction of the hon. conductor, Mr. W. E. Churcher. The programme included Saint-Saëns's Pianoforte Concerto in G minor (the solo part artistically played by Miss Mabel Rutland), Niels Gade's A minor Symphony, Grieg's concert-overture 'In Autumn,' Berlioz's 'Carnival Romaine' Overture, and Gounod's ballet music to 'La Reine de Saba,' all being admirably rendered. Mr. Stanley Blagrove gave an air by Bach and a Mazurka by Wieniawski for violin. The vocalists were Mr. F. Orchard and Miss Nellie Greenam. Mr. W. T. Russell accompanied.

Ryde.—A concert was given in the Town Hall on the 15th ult., in aid of the Parish Church Repair Fund. The chief features of the programme were Mendelssohn's 95th Psalm, 'Come, let us sing,' and Coleridge-Taylor's highly popular 'Hiawatha's Wedding-Feast.' The choir did extremely well in these two works, but the accompaniments, although well played by Mr. E. A. Moss (organ) and Miss Marguerite Watts (pianoforte), suffered much from the absence of an orchestra. The solo was admirably sung by Mr. Wright Beaumont. In a short miscellaneous selection assistance was also given by Mrs. Gartside Tipping and Madame Kate Munns, and Mr. F. M. Walker (violin).

St. Asaph.—On Good Friday Mendelssohn's unfinished oratorio, 'Christus,' was sung in the Cathedral, by the augmented choir, under the conductorship of Mr. Cyril B. Rootham, the new organist of the Cathedral. Mr. Marston, of St. Mary's, Denbigh, presided ably at the organ. An excellent rendering of the work was given, the choir singing with vigour and pathos as the occasion demanded. Mr. Rootham is to be heartily congratulated on this his first undertaking in the city.

Salford (Manchester). — A fine performance of Stainer's 'Crucifixion' was given at Stowell's Memorial Church, on Good Friday evening, under the direction of Mr. G. H. Ditchburn, who also sang the bass solos effectively. Mr. W. D. Holgate was the tenor soloist, and the quartet, 'God so loved the world,' was sung by Miss Johnson, Miss Alsop, Mr. Holgate, and Mr. Ditchburn. The chorus, which was well balanced, sang with precision and good intonation. Mr. Isaac Davidson presided at the organ with taste and skill.

Scarborough.—Mendelssohn's 'Elijah' was given at the Choral Union Concert on the 8th ult. The principal singers were Miss Maclaughlin, Miss Nellie Pritchard, Mr. W. Wilkinson, and Mr. William Evans. The large chorus of the Society was specially augmented by a picked contingent from the Leeds Philharmonic Society, and the singing throughout was very fine. The orchestra was led by Mr. W. H. Cass. Miss Winifred M. Johns rendered good service at the organ and Mr. R. J. Pitcher conducted with care and discretion.

Seaham Harbour.—The Musical Society performed 'The Messiah' at its ninth concert, on the 11th ult. The singing of the choir reflected much credit on the conductor, Mr. J. L. Smith, and the orchestra (led by Mr. W. W. Lax) was efficient. The solo vocalists were Miss Lily Pearce, Miss C. Alderson, Mr. H. Stansfield, and Mr. W. H. Dawson.

Southport.—The newly formed Festival Choir gave its first performance in Emanuel Parish Church, on the 17th ult. The programme consisted of Stainer's 'Daughter of Jairus' and selections from Bach's 'St. Matthew' Passion and Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul.' The principals were Miss Rosa Travis, Mr. John Mitchell, and Mr. Percy Sandiford. Mr. Kitson was at the pianoforte, Mr. C. H. Moody, organist of Holy Trinity, Coventry, was the organist, and Dr. Edward Harper conducted a most successful performance.

Taunton.—On the 3rd ult. Maunder's Lenten cantata 'Penitence, Pardon and Peace,' was sung by the choir of St. James's Church, under the direction of Mr. J. H. Chalmers, the organist and choirmaster. Messrs. Jarvis and Chick sang the solos.

Ventnor.—The annual concert of the Musical Society took place, on the 10th ult., in the Town Hall, the programme comprising a selection from the 'Creation' and Hiller's 'Song of Victory.' The choir sang with great spirit and intelligence. There was a small orchestra. The soloists were Miss Rose Wheeler, Mr. John Stafford, and Mr. Charles Thompson. Mr. Evan Jones, who conducted, was heartily applauded for the success of his efforts in training the choir.

Watchet (Somerset).—A successful concert was given by the Choral Society, on the 17th ult., when Gaul's 'Holy City' was rendered throughout in a very commendable manner, the principal vocalists being Miss Tyndale, Miss Ayres, Mr. Cox, and Mr. Crabb. The conductor was Mr. C. E. Juleff (Taunton). The second part was miscellaneous, commencing with a trio for male voices, 'To all you ladies' (Callcott), which Messrs. Juleff, Cox, and Crabb sang excellently. Mention should also be made of Miss Hill's artistic violoncello solos.

Wellington.—The Harmonic Society gave an excellent rendering of the late Sir John Stainer's 'Daughter of Jairus,' in the Town Hall, on the 12th ult. The choir, under the conductorship of Mr. C. E. Juleff, sang admirably, and gave evidence of the careful training they had received. The soloists were Miss Gertrude Price-Crewe, Mr. Humphrey Jones, and Mr. Norman Kendall. Miss M. S. Prideaux (pianoforte) and Mr. J. R. Toms (organ) played the accompaniments. Mr. Bernard Beilby was successful in a violoncello solo, in which he was accompanied by Mr. Arthur Clements.

Worcester.—Beauty of tone was a marked characteristic of the choral singing at the Worcester Musical Society's concert, given on the 16th ult., in the Public Hall. This important attribute manifested itself in Barnett's 'Paradise and the Peri,' and in part-songs by Sullivan, especially 'O gladsome light,' in the second part of the programme, which was devoted to the works of that composer. The soloists were Mrs. Glover Eaton, Miss Sheppard, Mr. H. Large, and Mr. Lightower, all of whom did full justice to the music committed to their charge. The band (under the first violinship of Mr. W. H. Dyson) realised their responsibilities, and Mr. W. Mann Dyson ably conducted an excellent performance, which testified to his patient care and thoroughness during the period of preparation.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

SCOPULUS.—(1) Sir George Grove would have been the last man to claim that his 'Beethoven and his Nine Symphonies' constituted a technical treatise. An amateur himself, he wrote—and wrote exceedingly well—for amateurs. As you belong to that large and important family of music-lovers, it seems to us that the book is just the very thing for you. From where you write (in Scotland) you have probably little opportunity of hearing the symphonies, a very desirable aid, we need hardly say, to the understandableness of those wonderful creations and the full enjoyment of their manifold beauties. But much may be gained by playing, with a friend, four-hand pianoforte arrangements of 'the glorious nine.' With Grove as your cicerone, we have no hesitation in saying that you will spend many a pleasant and profitable hour in sweet concourse with that mighty master of music, Beethoven. (2) Try the following part-songs: 'Love and Summer' (John E. West), 'Full fathom five' (Charles Wood), 'Boat Song' (Cowen), 'Moonlight' (Eaton Faning), 'O lovely May' and 'Who is Sylvia?' (German), 'Diaphenia' (Stanford), 'Come, live with me' (Sterndale Bennett), 'The sea hath its pearls' (Pinsuti).

REX.—(1) We do not know the song by Mr. Odoardo Barri to which you refer. (2) The exercises in Randegger's singing primer are in various keys. (3) It is impossible to lay down absolute laws as to the correct interpretation of appoggiaturas, but when, as in the example you quote, the ornamental note (B) is preceded by a flat, it should, of course, be sung B flat. Consult Mr. Dannreuther's Musical Ornamentation primer, which is a mine of wealth on this subject. (4) The gentleman—if he was a gentleman—that you once heard sing a portion of 'The trumpet shall sound' in two groups of three notes (duple rhythm) certainly reached the high-water mark of incompetency. When will people—even those who profess to be musical—understand rhythm? If someone would only invent a rhythmic jujube!

F. M. M.—You do not say if you have asssigned your song to the publisher, or whether you retain the copyright. If the song is his sole property, any money you may spend on advertising would be for his benefit. There is, we must admit, a considerable difference between the publisher's promise to 'push the sale' of the composition and his subsequent admission that not one copy had been sold in two years. You may have some satisfaction in knowing that there are other composers similarly circumstanced.

RUABON.—The label in your violin, 'Nachahmung von Antonius Stradiuarius fecit anno 1660,' does not imply that the instrument in question is a genuine Strad—on the contrary, as the word 'Nachahmung' is the German for 'imitation.' It is impossible to give an opinion upon the value of the instrument. Ask a respectable dealer.

G. L.—The speed at which a hymn tune should be sung depends upon the size of the congregation, the church, and other considerations. The words of the particular hymn to which you refer naturally suggest a subdued rendering—in fact, with measured tread and slow, as they treat of 'A day's march nearer home.'

R. M.—We are sorry that we do not know of any book which contains information concerning the personnel and performances of foreign opera houses. The subject is hardly of sufficient interest to the generality of English readers for us to treat of it in a series of articles.

F. W.—Sterndale Bennett's Rondo Piacevole may be played at dotted crotched = 104; Henselt's 'Si oiseau j'étais,' dotted crotchet = 84, and Weber's Polacca Brillante (Op. 72), crotchet = 120.

FLOTOW.—The only aid that we can suggest towards making your fingers supple for playing the flute is massage. Had you not better consult a medical man?

AN OLD READER.—(1) Dr. Joachim's cadenza to Brahms's Violin Concerto, and the 'Witches' Dance,' and 'Nel cor più' (Paganini-Burmeister) may be obtained from Messrs. Novello. (2) Berlin is a sufficient address.

H. J. P.—The 'Homeward Watch' (Smart) for male voices may be sung at crotchet = 100, and the Poco più lento at crotchet = 92.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO & CO., LIMITED.

BARRETT, REGINALD—(in E flat). The Office of the Holy Communion (including the Benedictus and Agnus Dei). 2s.

BATCHELOR, H. CROUCH—"The Beyond." Sacred Song. With Accompaniment for the Pianoforte and Organ (ad lib.). For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

BOUNDY, KATE—"The Rival Flowers." An Operetta for Schools and Classes. The words written by SHAPCOTT WENSLEY. Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined. 1s. 6d.

BURNETT, HENRY—"The Reaper and the Flowers." Song. For Contralto or Baritone. 2s.

BUTCHER, J. W.—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 3d.

COLERIDGE-TAYLOR, S.—"By the lone sea shore." Part-Song for S.A.T.B. (No. 699, The Musical Times.) 1½d.

ELGAR, EDWARD—"Chanson de Matin" (Op. 15, No. 2). Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by BOTHWELL THOMSON. 1s. 6d.

FLETCHER, PERCY E.—"The Toy Review." A School Operetta. Book of Words, 15s. per 100.

GRAY, ALAN—"Eleu Loro." Song. Baritone. 2s.

IVIMEY, J. W.—"Part-Writing for Beginners." (No. 1. Novello's Elementary Music Manuals. Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT.) 6d.

JOZÉ, T. R. (arranged by)—"Far away." (No. 857. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 2d.

—— "The Irish Reel." (No. 858. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d.

—— "Arranmore Boat Song." (No. 859. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d.

—— "Battle Song." (No. 861. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

MARSHALL, WILFRED G.—Four Easy Settings of the Responses to the Commandments. 1d.

MATTHEWS, Rev. T. R.—"How they so softly rest." (No. 1. Hymns for the Bereaved.) 1d.

—— "Sleep after sorrow." (No. 2. Hymns for the Bereaved.) 1d.

NEEDHAM, ALICIA A.—"At Last." Sacred Song. No. 1, in F. For Mezzo-Soprano. 2s.

RICHARDSON, STEPHEN—(in D). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 3d.

SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 107. Contains the following Music in both Notations: "Dance of the Butterflies," by ARTHUR SOMERVELL. "Twinkle, twinkle." Junior Unison Song. By R. HOUSTON MACDONALD. "Land of Beauty" (arranged for S.S.A.), by MENDELSSOHN. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

	A.	B.
Book 73. Five easy Two-part Songs. By various Composers	6d.	—
" 74. Easy Unison Songs. By various Composers ..	—	6d.
" 110. Six Unison Songs. By various Composers ..	—	3d.

SHAW, JAMES—"O Jesu! Most Beloved Lord." Wedding Anthem. 6d.

STAINER, J.—(in C). The Communion Service (Kyrie, Credo, Sanctus, Gloria in Excelsis). For Six Voices (S.S.A.T.B.B.). Unaccompanied. 1s.

—— "This is the Day." Processional Hymn for Easter. (No. 559. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.; words only, 2s. 6d. per 100.

TAYLOR, REV. F. H.—"The Story of the Cross." 2d.

TONIC SOL-FA SERIES. Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT:—

No. 1186. The King shall rejoice	Sir JOHN GOSS	1½d.
" 1190. Christ our Passover	Rev. E. V. HALL	1½d.
" 1191. Christ the Lord is risen to-day	" "	1d.
" 1192. As torrents in summer	EDWARD ELGAR	1d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

TURTON, ROBERT A.—"Ave Maria." For Soprano Solo and Chorus. 9d.

WILLS, REV. CUTHBERT E. T.—"On the Resurrection Morning." Hymn for Easter. 1d.; 9d. per dozen, or 2s. 6d. for 50.

WHEELDON, HERBERT A.—(in A). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 542. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

WILHELMJ, AUGUST, and JAMES BROWN—A Modern School for the Violin. No. 26 (Four Little Pieces, by IGNAZ PLEYEL). 2s.

—— Ditto. No. 27 ("Sarabande and Tambourin," by JEAN-MARIE LECLAIR). 2s.

—— Ditto. No. 28 ("Bourrée and Gigue," by J. S. BACH). 1s. 6d.

MARRIAGE.—On the 22nd of January last, at West Retford Church, Notts, Mr. WILLIAM DEANE, Organist of the Cathedral, Grahamstown, S. Africa, was married to Miss GRACE BATCHELDER, A.R.C.M., A.R.C.O., formerly Norfolk Scholar at the Royal College of Music.

THE TONIC SOL-FA COLLEGE.

A Demonstration of the value of the Tonic Sol-fa System as the best possible introduction to Sight-Singing from the Old Notation will be given by Scholars from the Haselrigge Road Higher Grade School, on the occasion of the Annual Meeting, to be held at the Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W., on MONDAY, May 20, 1901.

Chair to be taken at 7.30 p.m., by J. C. Horobin, Esq., M.A., Principal of Homerton New College, Cambridge, supported by the Rev. J. Finnemore, M.A., J. Spencer Curwen, Esq., F.R.A.M., and others. A selection of Choruses and Part-Songs will be rendered by a Choir of certificated singers conducted by Mr. W. Holmes. A hearty invitation is given to all interested in musical training on true educational principles.

Admission by free ticket, which may be had on application to the Secretary, W. Harrison, M.A., Mus.B. (Oxon.), 27, Finsbury Sq., E.C. Numbered Reserved Seats, 1s.

NATIONAL CONSERVATOIRE OF MUSIC, LTD.
Instituted 1895. Incorporated 1900.
London: Victoria Hall, Archer Street, Westbourne Grove, and at 60, Berners Street, W.
Liverpool: The Conservatoire, 5, Hardman Street.
Manchester: Victoria Hall, Withington.
Birmingham, Derby, Nottingham, Leicester, and all Towns.
Warden: Professor ALEXANDER PHIPPS, Mus. Bac.
Musical Examinations, June and July. Medals awarded. Fees, 6s. to £1 1s.
Diplomas of Associate, Licentiate, and Fellow granted to Teachers.
EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENTS.—Amateur and Professional Students trained in all musical subjects by eminent Staff of Professors, London, Liverpool, and Manchester. Apply, Secretaries.

THE MISSES BOSWELL (Vocal Duettists or Soloists). Concerts, At Homes, &c. Charities, expenses only. 109, Clapham Road, S.W.

THE LIEDERSINGERS' MALE-VOICE QUARTET.
Mr. WALTER LE NEAVE, Alto. | Mr. FRANK BUCKLAND, Baritone.
Mr. THEODORE WILLS, Tenor. | Mr. ERNEST STURMAN, Bass.
Apply, 4, Alexandra Road, South Hampstead, N.W.

ORGANIST (Assistant) WANTED. Church in East End. No salary, but practice upon a large organ. One with Tenor voice preferred, to assist in Choir. State age. Letters only, to Organist, 18, Brooklyn Road, W.

VOLUNTARY ASSISTANT-ORGANIST REQUIRED, for South London. Light duties. Vox, Novello & Co., Ltd., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (Out-door) WANTED, at once. Must have knowledge of repairing. Apply, Alfred Phillips, Ltd., 70, High Road, Kilburn.

TUNER, REGULATOR, and REPAIRER seeks permanent SITUATION. Good all-round man. Good references. Address. X., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a smart First-class PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER. One who understands Reed Organs. None but first-class men need apply. Apply, Heins and Co., Leominster.

MANAGER, TUNER, or SALESMAN'S BERTH REQUIRED, by thoroughly experienced Man. Advertiser is a successful salesman and has had four years' experience as manager. Apply to A. Brantom, Railway Villa, Narberth Road, Haverfordwest.

SMART MAN WANTED, to MANAGE BRANCH BUSINESS. Good Tuner and Salesman. Married. Knowledge of sheet music and small goods a recommendation. Address, M. O., care of Street's Agency, 30, Cornhill, E.C.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Sir John Stainer (with Portraits and Facsimile Sketch)	297
A curious Musical Instrument (with Illustrations)	310
Occasional Notes	312
What a High Sheriff may do for Music (with Portrait of Mr. Bosville)	316
Church and Organ Music	317
Reviews	318
The Bach Festival in Berlin	319
Presentation to Professor Niecks	320
The Æsthetic treatment of Bach's Organ Works	326
The Philharmonic Society	326
Crystal Palace Concerts	327
Sir Alexander Mackenzie's "Coriolanus" Music	327
Purcell's "Dido and Æneas," and "Dioclesian" Masque	327
Saturday and Monday Popular Concerts	327
Royal Academy of Music	328
Victoria Madrigal Society	328
Amateur Orchestral Societies	328
Mr. Edward Iles's Song Recital	328
London and Suburban Concerts	328
Music in Vienna	329
" America	330
" Belfast	331
" Birmingham	331
" Bristol	332
" Dublin	332
" East Anglia	332
" Edinburgh	333
" Glasgow	333
" Liverpool and District	334
" Manchester	334
" Northumberland and Durham	334
" Nottingham and District	335
" Sheffield and District	335
" Staffordshire	335
" Wales	335
" Yorkshire	336
Foreign Notes	336
Obituary	338
Correspondence	338
Miscellaneous	338
Brief Summary of Country and Colonial News	339
Answers to Correspondents	342
Music published during the last Month	342
Four-Part Song—"By the lone sea shore."—S. Coleridge-Taylor	321
Part-Song for S.S.A.T.B.—"Before me, careless lying."—C. Harford Lloyd.—(Extra Supplement.)

TWO Extra Supplements are given in this number: (1) A Portrait of the late Sir John Stainer, by Messrs. Elliott and Fry; (2) A Part-Song for S.S.A.T.B., 'Before me, careless lying,' by C. Harford Lloyd.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements for the next issue should reach the Office NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of this Month.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

PUBLISHED ON THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH. Price 1½d. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW FOR MAY

CONTAINS:—

JOHN STAINER (WITH PORTRAITS).
STAINER AT ST. PAUL'S.
THEORY QUESTIONS.
THE REGISTRATION OF MUSIC TEACHERS.
SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING READER—STAFF NOTATION.
TWO-PART SIGHT-SINGING TESTS.
STAFF NOTATION SIGHT-SINGING TESTS.
BRADFORD SCHOOL BOARD SCHOOL MUSIC DEMONSTRATION.
MUSIC COMPETITIONS AT HUNSTANTON.
REVIEW.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

THE MAY NUMBER CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC:—

"SWEET, TENDER FLOWER." For S.S.A.A., with Accompaniment ad lib. By J. STAINER.
"THOU ART THE WAY." Hymn. Words by Sir JOHN STAINER. Music by Rev. J. B. DYKES.
THE JUNIOR SCHOOL MUSIC COURSE.

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

A SMART young MUSIC and SMALL GOODS SALESMAN REQUIRED, immediately, for Chatham. Aged about 18. Apply, Angelus, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL SNELL ORGAN, 28 gns.; ditto, two manuals (no pedals), 25 gns.; a ditto, larger, with pedals, 40 gns.; a powerful toned two-manual Harmonium, 21 gns.; a three-manual and pedal "Mason-Hamlin-Liszt" organ, 32 stops, 21 setts; a 200 gn. "Bell," two-manual and pedal Organ, 75 gns.; a 95-gn. two-manual Mason & Hamlin, 28 gns. Also several large Organs and Harmoniums by Bell, Karn, Alexandre, Trayser, &c., including two powerful toned, nearly new Liszt organs. Phenomenal Bargains. Messrs. Stagg and Sons, 56, Red Lion Street, Holborn.

TWO-MANUAL PIPE ORGAN, £175, or payment arranged; 10 ft. high. Imposing appearance. Speaking front. Manuals, CC to A; pedals, CCC to F. 18 stops. Splendid tone; perfect order. Lead about 700 voices. S., 52, Hazlewood Crescent, Westbourne Park Station, London. Appointments preferred.

BROADWOOD GRAND PIANO. £20. Excellent value. Suitable for Schoolroom or Choir Vestry. Can be seen in Kensington any day. Write, B. H. E., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE.—Splendid PIANO and ORGAN BUSINESS in North of England, within 20 miles of Liverpool. Over £2,000 turnover. Stock and fixtures, £1,500. Good tuning connection. Ill-health sole reason for selling. No. 81, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street W.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENT BUSINESS for SALE on the South Coast. Apply, by letter, to Z., 79, Hayter Road, Brixton, London.

THE WOLF
GLEE FOR MALE VOICES. Price 4d.

COME, LIVE WITH ME
THERE IS A GARDEN
PART-SONGS
For two Medium Voices. Suitable for Schools. 3d. each.
COMPOSED BY
CHARLES E. TINNEY, A.R.A.M.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

J. F. BARNETT'S CANTATAS.

	Vocal Score
THE ANCIENT MARINER	3s. 6d.
THE WISHING BELL (for Female Voices)	2s. 6d.
PARADISE AND THE PERI	4s. 0d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SCENES FROM THE SONG OF HIAWATHA
BY
H. W. LONGFELLOW
SET TO MUSIC FOR
SOPRANO, TENOR, AND BARITONE SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA
BY
S. COLERIDGE-TAYLOR.

FULL SCORE (complete). Price £3 3s.

SEPARATELY, FROM THE ABOVE:
HIAWATHA'S WEDDING-FEAST
Full Score. Price 25s.
THE DEATH OF MINNEHAHA
Full Score. Price 25s.
Just Published.
HIAWATHA'S DEPARTURE
Full Score. Price 30s.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

CANTIONES SACRÆ
MUSICAL SETTINGS
OF
THE ROMAN LITURGY
EDITED BY
DOM SAMUEL GREGORY OULD,
MONK OF THE ORDER OF ST. BENEDICT.

4.	ADORAMUS TE, CHRISTE .. Mozart	2d.
22.	ADOREMUS (FOR BENEDICTION) F. E. Gladstone	2d.
2.	ADOREMUS (MOTET) .. C. W. Pearce	6d.
10.	ALMA REDEMPTORIS MATER W. Sewell	2d.
27.	AVE MARIS STELLA S. P. Waddington	6d.
11.	AVE REGINA CŒLORUM ..W. Sewell	2d.
26.	BENEDICTA ET VENERABILIS F. E. Gladstone	6d.
6.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (UNISON) S. Ould	3d.
9.	BENEDICTION SERVICE (UNISON) J. E. West	3d.
29.	COMPLINE HYMN .. .. S. Ould	3d.
3.	DEUS MISEREATUR .. F. E. Gladstone	6d.
12.	DOMINE, SALVUM FAC .. A. E. Tozer	2d.
30.	DOMINE, SALVUM FAC .. .. E. Silas	2d.
17.	HÆC DIES .. .. .. F. E. Gladstone	3d.
7.	HODIE SANCTUS BENEDICTUS Peter Philips	4d.
20.	LITANY OF LORETTO .. F. E. Gladstone	6d.
23.	MAGNIFICAT IN A .. .. F. E. Gladstone	8d.
1.	MAGNIFICAT IN B FLAT .. .. E. Silas	6d.
28.	MAGNIFICAT IN D .. .. .. E. Silas	1s.
31.	MAGNIFICAT IN E FLAT .. ..W. Sewell	4d.
15.	MISERERE IN F .. .. F. E. Gladstone	3d.
16.	MISERERE IN F SHARP MINOR F. E. Gladstone	6d.
25.	MISERERE (GREGORIAN CHANT) V. Novello	3d.
19.	O SALUTARIS HOSTIA .. F. E. Gladstone	2d.
8.	REGINA CŒLI .. .. ..W. Sewell	2d.
14.	RESPONSES AT MASS AND OFFICE Harmonised by S. Ould	3d.
13.	SALVE, REGINA .. .. .. Schubert	2d.
5.	SALVE, REGINA .. .. ..W. Sewell	2d.
24.	SALVE, REGINA .. ..R. L. de Pearsall	3d.
18.	SALVE, REGINA .. S. P. Waddington	4d.
21.	TANTUM ERGO .. .. F. E. Gladstone	2d.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

August Wilhelmj

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 700.—Vol. 42. JUNE 1, 1901. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

Conductor: Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

There are now VACANCIES in the CHOIR for Sopranos, Contraltos, Tenors, and Basses (especially Tenors). Only those who have good and powerful voices, and who can read music at first sight, will be accepted. Address, The Secretary, Royal Choral Society, Royal Albert Hall, S.W.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT, K.G.

Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc., F.R.A.M.

Midsummer Half-Term begins Thursday, June 13, Entrance Examination therefor, Monday, June 10, at 3.
Orchestral Concert, at Queen's Hall, Friday, June 21, at 8.
Fortnightly Concerts, Saturdays, June 1, 15, and 29, at 8.
Metropolitan Examination (L.R.A.M.) Syllabus now ready.
Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary.

F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD

OF THE

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC AND ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS.

For particulars see SYLLABUS A.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1901.

Entries for the October and November Examinations must be sent to the Central Office on or before October 11, 1901, or, with extra fee, on or before October 26, 1901.

For particulars see SYLLABUS B.

Copies of Syllabus A and B will be sent Post-free on application to the Secretary.

Theory papers set in Local Centre and School Examinations in 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, and 1900 can be obtained on application. Price 3d. per set, per year. Post-free.

The Board gives annually Six Exhibitions tenable for two years.

JAMES MUIR, Secretary.

32, Maddox Street, London, W.
Telegraphic address: "Associa, London."

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The Midsummer F.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 15, 1901. The solo-playing tests are: Prelude and Fugue in C, Bach (No. 1, Vol. 4, Peters' Edition) (Novello and Co., Book 7, No. 4, Augener and Co., Book 3, No. 13); Sonata (No. 6) in E flat minor, Op. 119, Rheinberger (F. Kistner, Leipzig) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.); Orgel-Sonate in D minor, J. G. Töpfer (Peters) (Novello and Co., Augener and Co.).

The A.R.C.O. Examination commences on July 22.

All Candidates, including those claiming exemption from fee, must send in their names for FELLOWSHIP by June 28, 1901; for ASSOCIATESHIP by July 5. In the case of New Members, proposal forms, duly filled up, must be sent in before June 20. No names will be entered after the above dates.

The College Library is open daily rom 10 to 5. On Saturdays the College is open from 10 to 1.

Members desiring practice on the College organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, can be hired for Concerts, Meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

The Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in Durham in March and September.

For particulars, with copies of former Examination Papers, apply to the Secretary of Examinations, or to Dr. Armes, Durham.

MR. ROBERT

NEWMAN'S CONCERTS,

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

YSAYE AND BUSONI.

VIOLIN & PIANOFORTE SONATA RECITALS.

Solo Violin .. .. .. Mons. YSAYE.
Solo Pianoforte .. .. Signor BUSONI.

THURSDAY, June 6, at 3. THURSDAY, June 13, at 3.

THURSDAY, JUNE 20, at 3.

ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.

WAGNER CONCERT.

TUESDAY, JUNE 4, at 3.

Conductor .. .. Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
Vocalist .. .. .. Mdlle. de LAROUVIERE
(Her first appearance in England).

BEETHOVEN CONCERT.

TUESDAY, JUNE 11, at 3.

Conductor .. .. Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
Solo Violin .. .. Mons. YSAYE.
Solo Pianoforte .. Signor BUSONI.

TSCHAÏKOWSKY CONCERT.

TUESDAY, JUNE 18, at 3.

Conductor .. .. Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
Solo Violin .. .. Mons. YSAYE.
Vocalist .. .. .. Mrs. HENRY J. WOOD.

VERDI'S "REQUIEM."

SATURDAY, JUNE 8, at 3.

Conductor .. .. Signor MANCINELLI.
Choirmaster .. .. Mr. ALLEN GILL.
Organist .. .. .. Mr. PERCY PITT.

Madame GADSKY.
Miss MARIE BREMA.
Signor ANSELMI.
Mons. PLANÇON.

ROBERT NEWMAN'S

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA & CHORUS

OF 300 PERFORMERS.

The Full Programmes can be obtained on application to
ROBERT NEWMAN'S BOX OFFICE,
QUEEN'S HALL, Langham Place, W.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—

Estab. by the Corporation of London, 1880.—Principal: William H. Cummings, Esq., Mus.D., Dub., F.S.A. Lessons daily, 8.30 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Every branch of Vocal and Instrumental Music. Students trained for Opera and Drama in the new Theatre. Prospectus on application. By order of the Committee, H. SAXE WYNDHAM, Secretary. Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

BIRMINGHAM AND MIDLAND INSTITUTE.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Principal .. .. .. Granville Bantock.

The Session consists of Autumn Term (September 17—December 22); Winter Term (January 21—March 30); Summer Term (April 1—June 22).

Instruction in all branches of music. Students' Choir, Students' Orchestra, Fortnightly Rehearsals, Students' Concerts.

Prospectus and further information may be obtained from

ALFRED HAYES, Secretary.

GUILD OF ORGANISTS, Incorporated.

Established 1887. Incorporated 1898.

Patrons: The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, &c.
Warden: Percy Rideout, Esq., Mus. Doc., London.

For Musicians of the Church of England and Churches in Communion only.

Subscription for Membership, 10s. 6d. per annum.

The next Examination for F.Gld.O., and the Certificate of Practical Musicianship will be held on Tuesday, July 9, 1901. Examiners: H. C. Perrin, Esq., Mus.B., Organist, &c., Canterbury Cathedral, and T. Tertius Noble, Esq., A.R.C.M., Organist, &c., York Cathedral.

ORGAN WORK.—Test Pieces.

Fellowship: Adagio (in free style) in E, Merkel (Novello); Sonata, No. 18, Rheinberger (Novello); Fugue in E flat major, Albrechtsberger (Vol. XII., Cecilia) (Augener).

Certificate: Andante in G, Wesley (Novello); Fantasia in E minor, Merkel (Novello); Fugue in C minor, Boëly (Vol. XXXII., Cecilia) (Augener).

For all particulars of Membership, Branches, Free Register, &c., address, Fred. B. Townend, Hon. General Sec., Mansion House Chambers, 11, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.; or to Hon. Secs., H. A. Needham, Church Schools Offices, 3, Newhall Street, Birmingham; and F. R. Boraston, "Stoneleigh," Sandown Park, Wavertree, Liverpool.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

(Under the direction of The Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.)

INCORPORATED 1891.

Hon. Patron: His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.T.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Principal).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
(Chairman of the Board).

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

Director of Studies: Churchill Sibley, Mus.D.

West-End Premises: 42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W.

First-class instruction in all musical subjects. Moderate terms.

Metropolitan Examination in all subjects, including the Diplomas of A.V.C.M., L.V.C.M., and F.V.C.M., commencing July, 1901.

Local Theoretical Examinations, July, 1901.

Practical Examinations are now being held at the various centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

All communications to be addressed as usual to the Central Office, 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

42, Berners Street, Oxford Street, London, W.

Patron: His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury.
President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, in June and July, at the following Centres: London, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Bristol, Leicester, Leeds, Glasgow, and Belfast.

Annual Membership Subscription, 10s. 6d. Life, £5 5s.

The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for six stamps.

Free register for Organists requiring appointments.

For further particulars, apply to

Dr. LEWIS, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

THE NATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

Warden: Dr. Tindall, A.T.C.L. [Ltd.

Summer Exams. for Diplomas and Medals, also Local (Primary, Junior, Intermediate, Senior). Medals awarded for approved MS. Entrance fee, 5s.

Cheap music printing, practically free, through exchanges.

192, Sutherland Avenue, W. W. J. MOSS, Secretary.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS ANNIE DAYMOND, A.R.A.M. (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Peverey, New Clive Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine St., Ashton-under-Lyne.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Burley Road, Leeds.

MADAME ANNIE HAYMAN (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Thorncliffe, Lowfield Road, Stockport.

MADAME ANNIE GREW (Contralto, Medalist)
Waverley Road, Bradford.

MISS GERTRUDE LONSDALE (Contralto)
Of the Crystal Palace, Queen's Hall, St. James's Hall, Scottish Orchestra, and Principal Provincial Societies' Concerts.

Miss Gertrude Lonsdale's Concert.—The Times: "A vocal recital was given at the Queen's Hall on Tuesday night by Miss Gertrude Lonsdale. The most ambitious number upon the programme was Schumann's 'Frauenliebe und Leben' cycle, which the concert-giver sang with considerable taste."

Standard: "Of such pleasing proportions was the song recital given on Tuesday night at the Queen's Hall by Miss Gertrude Lonsdale that a large audience was entertained throughout a somewhat lengthy programme. Miss Lonsdale has a rich, deep voice, and her singing is characterised by a marked poetic insight. There are not many vocalists who can give Elgar's lovely 'Sea Pictures' their true expression, but Miss Lonsdale may be accounted one of them."

The Queen: "Miss Lonsdale is the possessor of a rich and sympathetic contralto voice, and her songs were rendered with true artistic feeling."

St. Paul's: "Miss Lonsdale is the fortunate possessor of a full and sympathetic voice, and sings with remarkable taste and expression."

Musical Standard: "Miss Lonsdale's voice is of pure quality and extensive compass."

Huddersfield Choral Society.—"Messiah."—Huddersfield Chronicle: "The beautiful quality of Miss Lonsdale's contralto voice was admirably displayed in the solo music of the part. 'O Thou that tellest,' 'He shall feed His flock,' and 'He was despised' were all sung with great tastefulness and expression."

Leeds Mercury: "'He shall feed His flock' was beautifully sung by Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, who all through created a most favourable impression. She has a pleasant, mellow, contralto voice."

"Israel in Egypt."—Yorkshire Post: Miss Gertrude Lonsdale's voice and style were alike excellent."

Halifax Choral Society.—"Messiah."—Halifax Guardian: "Miss Lonsdale sang all the matchless solos that are the happy lot of the contralto with dignity well in keeping with the wondrous music. We were very glad to hear the too-little sung second part of 'He was despised.'"

Yorkshire Post: "Miss Gertrude Lonsdale's fine even voice is full of expression."

Bolton Philharmonic Society.—"Messiah."—Bolton Chronicle: "Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, who took the contralto parts, invested her singing with much pathos and dramatic colour, especially in 'He was despised.'"

West Bromwich Choral Society.—"St. Paul."—Birmingham Mail: "So well did Miss Lonsdale acquit herself of her responsibilities that one felt that it was a pity that the contralto part was not of greater importance."

Bolton Choral Union.—"Messiah."—Bolton Daily Chronicle: "Miss Lonsdale took the contralto parts, and proved herself to be well imbued with the spirit of oratorio music. Her solos were given with accuracy and fervour, and in 'He was despised' and 'He shall feed His flock' emotional power was so blended with vocal skill as to convey the pathos of the airs in all its intensity."

For Vacant Dates, apply—

Messrs. W. B. HEALEY AND SON,
17, Great Marlborough Street, W.

Telegrams—"Healey's Agency, London."

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.)
Address, 1, Dorothy Road, Lavender Hill, S.W.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
(Of the Queen's Hall Choral and Wagner Concerts; Crystal Palace; St. James's Hall; London Musical Festival).
24, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Common, S.W.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
(A.R.C.M., Solo Singing and Teaching Singing).
For Concerts, &c. Address, 1, Craven Mansion, Lancaster Gate, W.

MR. EATON COOTER, A.R.C.M. (Bass)
St. George's Chapel Royal and Her Majesty's Private Chapel, Windsor Castle. Address, The Cloisters, Windsor.

MR. J. S. BINNIE (Lyric Author)
60, Cadder Street, Pollokshields, Glasgow.

BEATRICE E. KENT (Lyric Authoress)
Apply, 155, Rye Lane, Peckham, S.E.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto). Engagements at Finsbury, Whitechapel, Highbury, New Cross, Highgate, City, Stockwell, Nottingham, Dudley, Brighton, Mile End, Lewisham, Blackheath. Address, 14, Gladsmuir Rd., Whitehall Pk., N.

MISS FANNY CHETHAM
(DRAMATIC SOPRANO).
Daily Telegraph: "Sang in splendid style."
Glasgow Press: "Created a most favourable impression as a cultured and accomplished artist" ("Song of Miriam").
Isle of Wight Express: "Thrilled the audience with a lovely voice of splendid compass" ("Eli").
Bedfordshire Times: "Sweet unstrained quality of tone, and, best of all, her artistic sympathetic expression."
For terms, &c., address, National Concert Agency, 9, Berners St., W.

MISS EMILY DAVIES
(SOPRANO).
Oratorios, Operatic and Ballad Concerts, Banquets, At Homes.
Address, Severn House, Finsbury Park, N.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO),
Pupil of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Albert Visetti.
For Oratorio or Ballad Concerts.
18, Halesworth Road, Lewisham, S.E.

MISS AMY SARGENT
A.R.A.M. (SOPRANO),
140, Marylebone Road, N.W.

MRS. TILTMAN
(SOPRANO)
(Silver Medal and Certificate, Royal Academy of Music).
For Oratorios. Concerts, &c.
Address, Royal Academy of Music, Hanover Square, W.

MISS LILLIE WORMALD
(SOPRANO)
(Gold Medalist and Professor of the Royal Manchester College of Music, of the Bradford Permanent Orchestral Society Concerts, Manchester Town Hall Concerts, Bolton Orchestral Society Concerts, Stockton-on-Tees Choral Society, Accrington Chamber Concerts, &c.)

"Miss Lillie Wormald sang Félicien David's 'Couplets du Mysoli' and Mr. Frederic H. Cowen's 'Swallows,' the latter accompanied by the composer, in a highly artistic manner."—Manchester Guardian.

"Miss Lillie Wormald was an ideal vocalist for the occasion."—Bradford Observer.

"Miss Lillie Wormald sang with great flexibility of voice and charm of manner."—Leeds Mercury.

"The Legende from the 'Lackmé,' of Delibes, sung by Miss Wormald, was most cleverly delivered. The elaborate introductory passages, containing many unusual and difficult intervals, were rendered as only a highly cultivated singer could render them."—Manchester Guardian.

"Miss Wormald sang the 'Deh vieni' from 'Figaro,' and by the purity of her intonation and finish of her singing did justice to the flawless beauty of Mozart's virgin melody."—Yorkshire Post, January 21, 1901.

Terms for Oratorios and other Concerts on application to 18, Hartington Road, Charlton-cum-Hardy, Manchester.

MISS ADELAIDE LAMBE
(CONTRALTO), Principal, Peterboro' Triennial Festival, 1898; Sheffield Subscription Concerts, Queen's Hall, Crystal Palace, &c.
For terms and dates, address, 13, Garway Road, Bayswater, W.

MR. FRED. FALLAS
(TENOR),
SOLOIST, SCARBORO' MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1899.
Terms, &c., address, Horbury, Yorks.

MR.
JAMES LEYLAND
TENOR.
Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. JOS. REED
(PRINCIPAL TENOR),
Trinity College, Cambridge.
Terms, &c., apply, 31, Chesterton Road, Cambridge.

MR. HENRY DOBSON
(BARITONE)
(Of the London, Provincial, and Scottish Concerts),
7, Station Terrace, Hucknall Torkard, Nottingham.

MR. MONTAGUE BORWELL
(BARITONE).
Mr. Henry J. Wood (Conductor, Queen's Hall Concerts) writes:—
"1, Langham Place, W., Feb. 14th, 1901.
"Mr. Montague Borwell is an excellent vocalist.
"He has been most successful both at Queen's Hall, and at my Nottingham and Wolverhampton Concerts, in most difficult and trying rôles, and I consider him one of the most reliable and painstaking baritone vocalists now before the public.
"Henry J. Wood."

AND

MISS WINIFRED MARWOOD
(Mrs. Montague Borwell—SOPRANO).
Address, 56, Forburg Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. DAVID HUGHES
(BARITONE).
"Messiah."—Cardiff Festival.—"Mr. David Hughes's delivery of 'Thus saith the Lord' was one of the finest examples of Handelian declamation within my experience. Not only every note, but, what is more important, every word told the story belonging to it. So in other parts of the work this singer had to do."—Daily Telegraph (Mr. Joseph Bennett).
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Lady Somerset Road, Kentish Town, N.W.

MR. & MRS.
WALLIS A. WALLIS, I.S.M.
(Baritone and Soprano, Elocutionists).
Quartet, Concerts, Resident and other Pupils. Sharon, Acton, W.

MR. EDGAR ARCHER
(PRINCIPAL BASS of the City Temple, of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, Langdale, Rutland Park, Willesden Green, N.W.

MR. BERNARD FOUNTAIN
(BASS-BARITONE).
Complete répertoire Concerts, Dinners, Masonic, &c.
Mentmore, Southwold Road, Upper Clapton, N.

MR. WATKIN MILLS
Has REMOVED to BROADLANDS, TORQUAY, for the summer months only, and has appointed Messrs. HEALEY & SON sole Business Managers, to whom all business communications should be addressed.

For next season engagements are booked from October 19 to November 23 consecutively, and December 2, 14, 17, 20, 26; January 1, Royal Choral Society; March 20, Hanley; March 28, Royal Choral Society.

Notwithstanding rumours to the contrary, Mr. Watkin Mills has not the remotest intention of retiring from the profession in the zenith of his fame.

HEALEY & SON,
17, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, W.,
Sole Business Managers.

MR. ENRICO NOVO
(BASS-BARITONE).
Concerts, Masonic Banquets, At Homes, &c.
Daisy Bank, Penhale Road, Portsmouth.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN
(BASS),
Licentiate (Artist) of the Royal Academy of Music, of the Gloucester and Cheltenham Festivals, &c.
Concerts, Oratorios, At Homes, &c.
Please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

MISS MARIAN JAY
(A.R.A.M.). (SOLO VIOLINIST.)
"Miss Marian Jay's Recital.—That a violin recital can consist of something more interesting than a series of trashy show-pieces was proved last night by Miss Marian Jay, an accomplished violinist, who, though possessing an amount of technical skill which would have seemed astonishing a few years ago, did not disdain to include in her programme several pieces of real music. With Mr. Bird, she began with an excellent performance of Beethoven's early Sonata in G, Op. 30 (No. 3), and played Lalo's characteristic "Symphonie Espagnole" as well as Tartini's Sonata in G minor, leaving such things as Vieuxtemps's "Rêverie" and Sarasate's "Bolero" for those who cared to hear them at the end of the concert. In Beethoven's sonata she showed intelligence and musical instinct, and Lalo's fine work was given with faultless brilliance; her tone is excellent, and her execution of difficult passages is wonderfully neat and accurate. She is not merely a virtuoso, but an artist."—The Times, May 14, 1901.
Concerts, &c., address, 5, Hollywood Road, South Kensington.

MR. BANTOCK PIERPOINT

Begs to announce his CHANGE of ADDRESS to 105, Brondesbury Villas, London, N.W.

MR. HERBERT WALENN

(SOLO VIOLONCELLIST).
Address, 5, Wellington Place, London, N.W.

MR. F. G. H. MOORE (A.R.A.M.)

(Walter Macfarren Gold Medalist, R.A.M.).
Solo Pianist and Accompanist, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons.
27, Lady Somerset Road, Highgate, N.W.

SOLO BOYS.

LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS,
POLYTECHNIC, REGENT ST., W.

PRESIDENT, MR. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Thoroughly trained, experienced Solo Boys, holding positions as Solo Boys at twenty-four of the principal London Churches, can be strongly recommended for Church Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts Organ Recitals, &c.

Over 100 excellent Chorus Boys also available for all kinds of concerted music.

A special branch for the preparation of scholars (resident or day) for Cathedral or other Choristerships has now been opened. Full particulars of Mr. Bates, as above; or, 7, Blomfield Crescent, Upper Westbourne Terr., Hyde Pk., W. Telegrams—"Musicomane, London."

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Boys, personally trained and thoroughly reliable, for Church Festivals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. For terms, vacant dates, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 17, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. TANN'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. W. R. B. TANN, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Saviour's Church, Paddington, is prepared to supply well-trained Solo Boys for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

A number of excellent Chorus Boys also available

For terms and vacant dates, address, Mr. W. R. B. Tann, 55, Warwick Road, Maida Vale, W.

THE CLOISTER MALE VOICE QUARTET.

Mr. WILLIAM S. RULE. | Mr. RAYMOND HUTCHINSON.
Mr. OLIVER HACKER. | Mr. CHARLTON HUTCHINSON.

Concerts, At Homes, Garden Parties, Masonic and other Banquets.
For terms, &c., address, Mr. Charlton Hutchinson, A.R.C.M., 106, Carysfort Road, Clissold Park, London, N.

MR. STEDMAN'S MUSICAL AGENCY

(Established 1877).
Artists for Opera, Theatre, Oratorio, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Choruses, Choir Boys and Girls.
Singing Lessons and Coaching
58, Berners Street, W.

LONDON CONCERT & CHOIR AGENCY.

SOLOISTS and CHORUS VOICES for Festivals, Oratorios, Concerts, Glee and Madrigal Societies, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Mr. JAMES BATES, Polytechnic, Regent Street, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, London, and Durham Universities; Diplomas of L.R.A.M., A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as English Cathedral and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Silver Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of seven hundred. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D., 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 60, Berners Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

THE VIRGIL CLAVIER PIANOFORTE METHOD.—Mr. STIEBLER COOK, A.R.A.M., gives LESSONS on the above system (recommended by Paderewski, Von Bülow, De Pachmann). The most rapid and certain means for acquiring a perfect technique. 17, Keppel St., Russell Sq., London, W.C.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes: Mus. Bac., Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; gives LESSONS, Personally or by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, FORM and ANALYSIS, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1901, 1900, and all previous years; OXFORD FINAL and FIRST MUS. BAC., 1900; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1900 and 1901; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1900, 1899, &c.; A.R.C.M. (Theory of Music, Composition, and Pianoforte Teaching); CAMBRIDGE, LONDON, and DUBLIN, MUS. BAC. degrees in recent years; L.Mus. and A.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., A.T.C.L., and Special Certificates, 1899, 1900, and 1901; Senior Associated Board. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. MSS. corrected for publication; Analysis of classical works for Exams. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Parkhill Road, London, N.W.

MR. A. MANGELSDORFF, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M., Pianist, Coaches for DIPLOMAS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING and TEACHING. Paper work, postal. Address, Atherstone.

DR. MARCHANT, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Author of "500 Fugue Subjects and Answers," Novello's Primers, No. 35), &c. PREPARES CANDIDATES for all Musical Examinations by Post. 29, Castle Street, Dumfries, N.B.

MR. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, Mus.B., desires to state that TWENTY-ONE of his Pupils were SUCCESSFUL at the A.R.C.M. EXAM., 1901. Hazelwood, Dollis Rd., Finchley, N.

SPECIAL COACHING for DIPLOMAS by Post. A.R.C.M., 1895-1901, SEVENTY-SEVEN passes, L.R.A.M., 1897-1901, TWENTY-SEVEN passes. Many successes in other Degrees. Lessons in all branches of Theory, Piano, Organ, and Singing. Address, Mr. H. H. L. MIDDLETON, MUS. BAC., F.R.C.O., Hazelwood, Dollis Road, Finchley, N.

DR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Doc., Dunelm, A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., Personally or by Correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and all other Examinations. Classes. 25, Palliser Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. WILLIAM H. SPEER, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and the PIANOFORTE, at pupil's residence, or by correspondence. Apply, W. H. Speer, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE (Composer of "The Ascension," contributor to Novello's Octavo Anthems, &c.) prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, Personally or by Post. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Address, "Melrose," Eardley Road, Sevenoaks.

POSTAL LESSONS in HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT. Corrections and examples given. Reference, past and present pupils. A. E. Taylor, Mus. Bac., Durham, A.R.C.O., 4, Brookfield, Lancaster.

DR. E. W. TAYLOR, F.R.C.O., begs to announce that he has REMOVED from 67, Wolverhampton Road, to 28, Eastgate, Stafford. PIANOFORTE, ORGAN, THEORY, and CORRESPONDENCE LESSONS, as usual.

MR. ALFRED W. TOMLYN, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, L.Mus.T.C.L., COACHES and PREPARES CANDIDATES for all MUSICAL EXAMS. Particulars, giving revised terms, sent post-free. Address, 58, Comiston Road, Edinburgh.

DR. J. WARRINER can receive professional and, if desired, resident PUPILS for TRAINING and INTRODUCTION. Voice Culture, Keyboard or Theory. Postal or personal courses for all Exams. Favourable terms for real promise. De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—TUITION by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., Professor of Alto Singing, G.S.M. Solo Alto, Temple Church, 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

MR. ALLEN GILL, A.R.A.M., attends at 60, Berners Street, for LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and for REPERTOIRE. For terms, apply to 21, Cathcart Hill, N.

MISS JEAN HUNTER, L.R.A.M. LESSONS at 60, Berners Street, W., in VOICE PRODUCTION, SINGING, and PIANOFORTE. Letters, 87, Herbert Rd., Plumstead.

DR. CROW, Organist of Ripon Cathedral, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL.

ST. DAVID'S CATHEDRAL.—Organist requires RESIDENT ORGAN PUPIL. Willis Organ. Daily services. Seaside town. Recent successes of resident pupils: 1899, A.R.C.O. F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., and Organ Scholarship at R.C.M.; 1900, A.R.C.O. and F.R.C.O.; 1901, A.R.C.O. and L.R.A.M. For terms, apply to Mr. Herbert C. Morris, F.R.C.O., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M., The Cathedral, St. David's, Pembrokeshire.

ST. ANNE'S, SOHO.—VACANCY for SOLO BOY; also Voluntary Bass. Precentor, 28, Soho Square, W.

THERE will shortly be VACANCIES in a CHOIR SCHOOL in the country. Boys must have a good voice and a good ear, and be between nine and twelve years of age. Board, lodging, and education free. Evelyn, Countess of Craven, Ashdown Park, Shrivenham.

TENOR (£18) WANTED, for St. Cuthbert's, Kensington. Apply, by letter, Cyril Miller, 49, Philbeach Gdns., S.W.

LAY CLERK (Tenor) REQUIRED, for St. Saviour's Collegiate Church. Two Services on Sundays, daily Evensong at 5. Rehearsals, Monday and Friday evenings. £50. Apply, Dr. A. Madeley Richardson.

BROMPTON ORATORY.—WANTED, DEEP BASS. Good reader. Apply, Musical Director.

MR. JOSEPH RUSSON (Solo Alto, Brompton Oratory) is open to JOIN a good QUARTET at once. Address, 2, Gallia Road, Highbury, N.

TO VOCALISTS VISITING ILFRACOMBE.—Organist of St. Philip's Church would be grateful for OFFERS of ASSISTANCE at Summer series of Organ Recitals. Also offers from Organists before July 14 and after September 8. W. A. Montgomery, Mus. Bac., Montpelier Road, Ilfracombe.

WANTED, in July, ORGANIST, for St. Mary's, Windermere. Salary, £45. Apply to A. H. Raikes, Churchwarden.

ORGANIST or CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Apply, Rev. Eric Farrar, St. John's Vicarage, Hoxton, N.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, A.R.C.O. (28), desires an APPOINTMENT after Midsummer. Six years' experience as Church Organist and Director of Music at a school. Good organ essential. Excellent testimonials. Communicant. Good recitalist. Apply, C. E. J., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

MR. W. A. MACDUFF, F.R.C.O., having resigned the post of Organist and Director of the Choir of St. Paul's, Brighton, is open to a similar APPOINTMENT, temporary or permanent. Address, Ashby Rectory, Spilsby, Lincolnshire.

GENTLEMAN'S SON (three years with Organist, Norwich Cathedral) desires Engagement as Organist and Choirmaster. Excellent tests. G, 950, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners St., W.

ORGANIST, accustomed to Full Choral Services, desires ENGAGEMENT in London or suburbs (temporary or otherwise). Apply, J. B., Messrs. Novello & Co., Ltd., Queen St., E.C.

ORGANIST and CHOIR-TRAINER desires a POST, or would take temporary duty. Experienced. Communicant. Highest references and testimonials from the late Sir John Stainer, &c. Organ, 15, North Villas, Camden Square, N.W.

TO EXCHANGE.—POST of ORGANIST at Parish Church, Music Master at important School, and other work. Suburb of large town. Address, X., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

SUMMER ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—The Organist of the American Episcopal Church, Nice (late Organist, Wigan Parish Church), could take Holiday Engagement. Address, J. W. Potter, 20, Boulevard Gambetta, Nice.

ORGANIST-ASSISTANT PUPIL.—GEORGE HAVELOCK, Doncaster, who is Organist of six country churches, needs Lad who can play Service. In return, lessons in four subjects, preparation for Coll. Org. or Degree, and independent post when qualified. Advertiser's Pupils have been uniformly successful.

WANTED, ORGANISTS to write for SPECIMENS of HARVEST MUSIC, &c., to Ambrose Abbott and Co., 14, Hanway Street, London, W. (Please note new address.)

EVERY ORGANIST should send for DINHAM, BLYTH & CO.'S Specimens and Price List (free) for Lithographing Anthems, Kyries, Hymn Tunes, &c., from twenty-four Copies and upwards. 27, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

LADY VOCALIST and PIANIST wishes to meet another for Mutual Accompaniment Practice. Letters only, to Soprano, 9, Althorp Road, Upper Tooting, S.W.

WANTED, a thoroughly efficient PIANO TUNER, with knowledge of American Organs and Repairs. Good salary and commission. Permanency. Send photo and references to A. B. C., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, for the North, PIANOFORTE TUNER (IMPROVER). One who understands Organs and Harmoniums preferred. Apply, A. R. L., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, good Out-door TUNER, with good business capabilities. Send references and photo to S. Hermitage and Sons, Eastbourne.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED. Must have knowledge of Harmoniums and American Organs. Apply, Goulden and Wind, Ashford, Kent.

TUNER and REPAIRER WANTED, also a Salesman, for India, aged about 23. Apply, by letter, to S. Harraden and Co., 11, Rose Street, Newgate Street, E.C.

FIRST-CLASS FINE TUNER will shortly require RE-ENGAGEMENT in a high-class Pianoforte Warehouse; best work, and good salary wanted. Thorough knowledge of American Organs, &c. 23 years' practical experience. F. F., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

SITUATION WANTED, as Out-door TUNER, or Tuner and Repairer. Address, Tuner, 3, Fairfield St., Wrexham.

WANTED, an ENGAGEMENT as PIANOFORTE TUNER, in a good house of business. Aged 21. Address, C. S., Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

ASSISTANT and SALESMAN WANTED. Aged 22 to 27. Must have thorough knowledge of Sheet Music and Small Goods. One able to tune preferred. Apply, stating age, experience, and salary required, to Alfred Phillips, Ltd., 70, High Road, Kilburn.

YOUNG LADY (experienced) REQUIRED, for Pianoforte and Music Warehouse. State age, salary required, and references (with photo). C. Thurnam & Sons, 4, Devonshire Street, Carlisle.

ENGAGEMENT REQUIRED, by young Man, as MANAGER, TRAVELLER, or ASSISTANT. Plays Organ and Piano. Theorist. Good business man. Linguist. Smart, competent, trustworthy. First-class refs., character and ability. Pronto, Novello & Co., Ltd., 1, Berners Street, W.

A FAVOURABLE OPPORTUNITY occurs for an energetic Gentleman who thoroughly understands the Music Trade, and who would be willing to INVEST some CAPITAL, securing by this a good and responsible position. O. V. W., 22, Edwards Square, W.

SHOW-CASES.—WANTED, one or two good SHOW-CASES for Small Goods. Particulars to Henry Farmer and Co., High Street, Nottingham.

ORGAN STUDIO.—3 manuals, C.O. pedals, 1s. hour. Willis, "Tower Organ Works," 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C. (Estd. 1827). Musical Instruments and Fittings.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

VARIOUS high-class ORGANS. Suit Church or Chapel. Two and three manuals. Constructed with all modern appliances. W. E. Richardson and Sons, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester, and Preston.

REED ORGAN, by FARRANT. Two manuals and pedals. Six rows reeds on manuals, two on pedals. Fine tone. Carved oak case. Front and back blower. Organ bench. Complete cost, 103 guineas; take 50 guineas. Can be seen by appointment. Apply, first, to A. Goulding, Toll Gavel, Beverley.

MODERN-BUILT ORGANS for SALE.—Three-manual (CC to G) and Pedals (CCC to F), 33 stops, £350; Two Manuals and Pedals, £175 and £145; One Manual and Pedal Bourdon (10 stops), £65; also Chamber Organs, 20 guineas and 15 guineas. Inspection invited. Specifications and estimates furnished on application. Eustace Ingram, Organ Builder, only address, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

PIPE ORGAN.—2 manuals and pedals, 475 pipes, 13 stops. Hydraulic motor by Blennerhasset. Only £85. Photo and specification from C. Heaviside, 27, Torwood St., Torquay.

ORGAN for SALE. Two manuals and pedals; by LEWIS. 12 stops; powerful tone. £100; or what offers? Apply, Chas. Smith, 38, Vespasian Av., South Shields.

ORGAN.—Fine-toned modern 2-manual ORGAN. Contains fourteen stops; handsome oak case; spotted metal pipes. Price £200. Organist, 24, Endsleigh Gardens, Gordon Square, London, W.C.

PIPE ORGAN for SALE. Handsome mahogany case. Ornamental front. One manual, 6 stops, swell, CCC pedals. Hand and foot-blowers. Apply, R., 6, Raveley Street, N.W.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

15 GUINEAS.—PIANO ("Empress" Model), solid iron frame upright grand (list price, 35 guineas); full compass, full trichord, French check action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet two inches in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 116 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

BROADWOOD small BOUDOIR GRAND PIANO. Modern iron frame; 7 octaves; slightly used; lovely tone. 40 gns., cost 110 gns. Also small upright by BROADWOOD, 16 gns. View at Mr. Fieldwick's, Organist of St. John's, Cromer House, Putney.

SHORT GRAND, in Rosewood case, by BLÜTHNER, in first-class condition. £45, cash. Apply, Rowe, 77, Bartholomew Road, N.W.

A MUSIC and PIANOFORTE BUSINESS for DISPOSAL. Splendid position in main road of rising North-East suburb. Large tuning connection. Long lease, at low rental. Splendidly fitted. Practically price of fittings and stock only. Address, M., Street's Agency, 30, Cornhill, E.C.

ORGANISTS, &c.

RUMMENS'

Organ Pedal Attachment to Pianofortes

FOR HOME PRACTICE OF ORGAN MUSIC.

STRAIGHT AND CONCAVE, RADIATING AND CONCAVE
Or any other form of Pedal Board.

UNRIVALLED FOR TOUCH, APPEARANCE, DURABILITY AND PRICE.

Sir JOHN STAINER: "I can confidently recommend it . . . nothing more valuable."
Sir FRED. BRIDGE: "I have tested t . . . successful . . . will give satisfaction."
Sir GEO. MARTIN: "I think very highly of it . . . clever."
Dr. HARDING: "I am delighted with it . . . in every way a success . . . the best."
Similar Testimonials from the most distinguished Organists and Musicians.

Particulars free. Write or call.
1, WYNNE ROAD, BRIXTON, LONDON, S.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easier to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus and price list free. Apply to Norman and Beard, Ltd., 11, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,

Organ Builders,

SPRINGWOOD WORKS,

HUDDERSFIELD.

TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights. Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

WILLIAM HAYNES, DECEASED.

ALL persons having CLAIMS against the Estate of WILLIAM HAYNES, late of St. Cecilia's, Sheepcote Road, Harrow-on-the-Hill, and of Malvern, Worcestershire, Music and Musical Instrument Merchant, are requested to forthwith send full particulars to Mr. A. H. Weller, 3, Edith Walk, Malvern, Chartered Accountant, or to us the undersigned.
Dated this 2nd day of May, 1901.
NEVINSON & BARLOW,
The Old Vicarage, Malvern, Solicitors for Executors.

TO COMPOSERS

MARRIOTT AND WILLIAMS,
MUSIC PUBLISHERS,
92, GREAT PORTLAND STREET, LONDON, W.,
Undertake the Revising, Engraving, and Publishing of Authors' Musical Works, in the very Best Style and at the lowest charges. The Finest Paper used and the Best Workmanship in the trade. Estimates free on receipt of MSS. Composers' works included in list without extra charge.
PRIVATE ROOMS FOR PRACTICE AND TEACHING.
Lessons by competent Professors given in every branch of Music, Vocal and Instrumental.

SEND four stamps for new number of MUSICAL OPINION to 35, Shoe Lane, E.C. About 250 cols. of interesting musical literature and advertisements.

TO CHORAL and ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.—Several CHORAL WORKS, PART-SONGS, and ORCHESTRAL WORKS for SALE. Applications for lists to Dr. Bunnett, Cathedral Close, Norwich.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.
THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes, as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Fourth Thousand.
TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited

Fourth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By ARTHUR CARNALL, Mus.B., Cantab. 4d. Sample copies, Penge, S.E.

Sixth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By WILLIAM S. VINNING, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

KYRIE ELEISON in D flat. By Rev. T. NORMANDALE, B.A. Price 1d. Third Edition.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—"Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Graciously accepted by HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
HATSUR (THE ROCK)
MEMORIAL ANTHEM (Hebrew and English Words)
Forming part of the Memorial Service held in memory of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, which was used in the Synagogues as authorised by the Chief Rabbi, the Rev. Dr. Hermann Adler.
Music Composed by ARTHUR M. FRIEDLÄNDER.
Price One Shilling.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

SINGING CARDS for CHOIR BOYS:—
No. 1. Rudiments and Exercises (3rd Edition) .. .. 2d.
,, 2. Exercises to teach boys to sing a second part .. 2d.
Compiled by C. SYDNEY VINNING.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

COMMUNION SERVICE
("ASSUMPTA EST MARIA")
COMPOSED BY
G. PIERLUIGI DA PALESTRINA.
EDITED AND ADAPTED TO ENGLISH WORDS BY
GEORGE C. MARTIN.
Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Just Published.
Composed expressly for the Choir of St. Paul's Cathedral.

THE
COMMUNION SERVICE
(KYRIE, CREDO, SANCTUS, GLORIA IN EXCELSIS)
SET TO MUSIC IN THE KEY OF C, FOR SIX VOICES (S.S.A.T.B.B.), UNACCOMPANIED, BY
J. STAINER.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

"Such settings as these cannot do otherwise than tend to popularise the Church Service."—Musical Standard, June 6, 1891.
"Good, effective, easy, and dignified."—Musical Times, April 1, 1891.
"Admirably adapted to meet the requirements of the majority of choirs and congregations." "Deserve extensive recognition and use."—Musical News, September 4 and 25, 1891.
Also recommended by the Guardian, Church Times, &c., &c.

POPULAR CHURCH MUSIC
BY
J. H. MAUNDER.

	Staff Notation.	Tonic Sol-fa.
HARVEST ANTHEMS.
Sing to the Lord of Harvest	3d.	2d.
While the earth remaineth	3d.	2d.
Blessed be the Name of the Lord	3d.	2d.
SERVICES.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C (partly in Unison)	3d.	1½d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D	3d.	2d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G	3d.	2d.
Te Deum in Free Chant Form	3d.	2d.
Te Deum in B flat	3d.	2d.
Communion Service in G	8d.
Amen in G	1d.	1d.
ORGAN.
Voix Seraphique (for Recitals)	2s.
CHURCH CANTATA.
Penitence, Pardon, and Peace (for General Use)	1/6	1/-

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

Specimen copies free on application to J. H. MAUNDER, Hilltop, Belmont Park, London, S.E.

CHURCH MUSIC
BY EDWARD BUNNETT, Mus.D., CANTAB.

SERVICES.

Te Deum in A. Four voices .. .. 3d.
Benedictus in A .. .. 3d.
Jubilate in A .. .. 3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D .. .. 3d.
Communion Service in E .. .. 9d.
Preces and Responses. Arranged .. .. 4d.

ANTHEMS.

The Lord is my Shepherd. Four voices .. .. 3d.
The Lord hath prepared. Four voices .. .. 3d.
I was glad (Festival Anthem) .. .. 3d.
Blessed be Thou. Four voices .. .. 3d.
O clap your hands (with Solo for Soprano or Tenor) .. .. 4d.

ORGAN.

Three Short Pieces
Larghetto in A flat
Allegretto Pastorale in A
Andante con moto in F
} in one Book .. .. .. Net. 2s. 0d.
Largo in E flat .. .. 1s. 0d.
Minuet in D .. .. 1s. 6d.
Twelve Short Easy Pieces .. .. 2s. 0d.

London: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, Limited.

NOVELLO'S
SERVICES, ANTHEMS, &c.
FOR MEN'S VOICES.

SERVICES.

No.		s.	d.
40.	BLAIR, HUGH.—Communion Service in G. T.B. ..	1	0
14.	COBB, GERARD F.—Magnificat and Nunc dim. in F. T.B.B.	0	6
16.	CORFE, C. J.—Ditto, in E flat. T.T.B.B. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	4
25.	DISTIN, THEODORE. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G. A.T.T.B.	0	6
48.	FORD, E.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E flat. A.T.T.B.	0	4
19.	GARRETT, GEORGE.—Ditto, ditto, in B flat. T.T.B.B.	0	6
23.	HAYNES, BATTISON.—Ditto, ditto, in D. A.T.T.B. ..	0	6
18.	ILIFFE, FREDERICK.—Ditto, ditto, in D. T.T.B.B. ..	0	6
46.	LEMARE, EDWIN H.—Final Amen. A.T.T.B.B. (on Card)	0	1
38.	LLOYD, C. H.—Versicles, Responses, and Litany. T.T.B.B.	0	6
39.	MARTIN, G. C.—Te Deum in A flat, with Benedictus in Chant form. A.T.T.B.	0	6
13.	READ, F. J.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D. A.T.B.	0	6
33.	READ, F. J.—Te Deum and Jubilate in B flat. A.T.B. ..	0	6
3.	READ, F. J.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. A.T.T.B.	0	6
9.	SELBY, B. LUARD.—Ditto, ditto, in E. T.T.B.B. ..	0	6
35.	SELBY, B. LUARD.—Ditto, ditto, in G. A.T.B.	0	6
37.	STAINER, JOHN.—Ditto, ditto, in D. A.T.T.B.	0	6
49.	STAINER, JOHN.—Te Deum. A.T.T.B.	0	4
50.	STAINER, JOHN.—Benedictus. A.T.T.B.	0	4
52.	STAINER, JOHN.—Communion Service. A.T.T.B. ..	1	0
45.	STAINER, JOHN.—Versicles and Responses. A.T.B.B. ..	0	6
26.	STEGGALL, CHARLES.—Te Deum and Benedictus in B flat. A.T.T.B.	0	8
27.	STEGGALL, CHARLES.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in B flat. A.T.B.B.	0	6
32.	WEST, JOHN E.—Ditto, ditto, in C. A.T.T.B.	0	6
21.	WEST, JOHN E.—Ditto, ditto, in E flat. A.T.B.B. ..	0	6
41.	WEST, JOHN E.—Te Deum laudamus and Benedictus in E flat. A.T.B.B.	0	8

ANTHEMS.

17.	BARNBY, J.—Lord of all power and might. A.T.T.B. ..	0	2
34.	BARNICOTT, R. S.—O worship the Lord. A.T.T.B. ..	0	3
31.	BENNETT, W. STERNDALE.—God is a Spirit (The Woman of Samaria). A.T.T.B.	0	6
15	CALDICOTT, A. J.—Behold, how good and joyful. A.T.T.B.	0	3
24.	CULLEY, ARNOLD D.—Try me, O God. A.T.T.B. ..	0	2
20	DISTIN, THEODORE.—Hear me when I call. A.T.T.B.	0	2
54.	DVORÁK, A.—At Thy feet in adoration (Fac me vere), from the Stabat Mater. Tenor Solo and T.T.B.B. ..	0	3
42.	ELGAR, E.—Seek Him that maketh the seven stars (The Light of Life). T.T.B.B.	0	6
7.	FORD, ERNEST.—O Lord God of my salvation (Domine Deus). T.T.B.B.	0	4
44.	GLADSTONE, F. E.—Almighty and everlasting God. A.T.B.	0	3
1.	GOUNOD, CH.—As the hart pants. T.T.B.B.	0	3
30.	HANDEL.—The Lord is a Man of war (Israel in Egypt). B.B.	0	1½
22.	ILIFFE, FREDERICK.—Jesu, Lover of my soul. A.T.T.B.	0	2
43.	LLOYD, C. H.—Lord, teach us to number our days. A.A.T.T.B.B.	0	3
4.	MENDELSSOHN.—The word went forth (Festgesang). T.T.B.B. .. .. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	4
5.	MENDELSSOHN.—For ever blessed (Beati mortui). T.T.B.B.	0	3
6.	MENDELSSOHN.—The righteous living for ever (Periti autem). T.T.B.B.	0	3
29.	MENDELSSOHN.—The Lord hath commanded (Psalm 42). T.T.B.B.	0	4
8.	READ, F. J.—My soul, wait thou still. A.T.T.B.	0	4
51.	READ, F. J.—Sing we merrily unto God. A.T.B.	0	2
47.	READ, F. J.—Why art thou so heavy. A. Solo and A.T.B.	0	1½
28.	ROBERTS, J. VARLEY.—O Saviour of the world. A.T.T.B.	0	2
10.	SAWYER, F. J.—Ponder my words. A.T.T.B.	0	2
2.	SCHUBERT, F.—Great is Jehovah. T.T.B.B.	0	4
11.	THORNE, E. H.—Let us now praise famous men. T.T.B.B.	0	3
12.	THORNE. E. H.—Let my complaint come before Thee. A.A.T.T.B.B.	0	3
36.	WEST, JOHN E.—Whom have I in heaven but Thee. A.T.B.B.	0	3
53.	WEST, JOHN E.—O tarry thou the Lord's Leisure. A.T.B.B.	0	2

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY LIMITED.
AND
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

(INSTITUTED 1872.)

MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.

President:
The Right Hon. LORD COLERIDGE, M.A., K.C.

Warden:
EDMUND H. TURPIN, Mus.D.

Registrar:
J. GORDON SAUNDERS, Mus.D.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

JUNE 22 is the LATEST TIME FOR ENTERING for the FIFTY-SIXTH HALF-YEARLY EXAMINATIONS as under, taking place at the College in Mandeville Place, from July 22 to 30.

These Higher (Professional) Examinations are open to all Persons (whether students of the College or not).

DIPLOMA OF ASSOCIATE IN MUSIC (A.Mus. T.C.L.).

Candidates are required to pass the Matriculation Examination, or an equivalent, and to satisfy the Examiners in the following subjects:—Harmony (four parts), Counterpoint (three parts), Musical History, and either Choir Training, or Vocal and Aural Physiology, or Elementary Acoustics.

DIPLOMA OF LICENTIATE IN MUSIC (L.Mus. T.C.L.).

Candidates, except in the case of a Graduate in Music of a British University, must previously have obtained the Diploma of Associate in Music. The Examination will include the following subjects: Harmony (five parts), Counterpoint (five parts), Double Counterpoint, Imitation, Canon and Fugue, Form and Instrumentation.

HIGHER CERTIFICATES, PRACTICAL DIVISION.

Candidates for the Higher Certificates (Practical or Theoretical) are not required to pass the Matriculation Examination. The subjects of Examination are:—

i. Pianoforte Playing, with the titles of Associate-Pianist (A.T.C.L. Pianist) and Certificated Pianist.
ii. Organ Playing, with the titles of Organ-Associate (A.T.C.L. Organist) and Certificated Organist.
iii. Solo Singing, with the titles of Associate-Vocalist (A.T.C.L. Vocalist) and Certificated Vocalist.
iv. Orchestral Instruments, with the titles of Associate-Violinist (A.T.C.L. Violinist), &c., &c.

A Prize of the value of Five Guineas is awarded annually, in July, to the Candidate gaining the highest number of marks of the YEAR in Pianoforte Playing at these Examinations.

HIGHER CERTIFICATES, THEORETICAL DIVISION.

Subjects: Harmony, Counterpoint, and Choir Training.

PRACTICAL LICENTIATESHIP.

Candidates are required to pass (1) a Practical Examination of Associate Standard, and (2) Examinations in Harmony and Counterpoint, in not more than four parts.

CLERGY EXAMINATION.

An Examination for testing the efficiency of Clergy desirous of undertaking "The Priest's Part" chorally.

Regulations and forms of entry may be had from the undersigned.

By order of the Board, SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.

Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

Patron: HIS MAJESTY THE KING.
Director: Sir C. HUBERT H. PARRY, D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

MIDSUMMER HALF-TERM will commence on MONDAY, June 17.

Syllabus and official Entry Forms may be obtained at the College, Prince Consort Road, South Kensington.

FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

BANQUET TO DR. JAMES HIGGS.—In order to celebrate the honour recently conferred upon the above-named distinguished and highly esteemed musician, a Banquet will be given at the HOLBORN RESTAURANT, on MONDAY, JUNE 17, at 7 o'clock (Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D., in the Chair), and a Presentation in the form of a Cheque will be made to Dr. HIGGS.

The Tickets are 5s. each (exclusive of wine). Both ladies and gentlemen are invited to be present. Evening dress.

Tickets (for which application should be made by Monday, June 10) may be obtained at the Royal College of Organists, Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

Subscriptions are solicited by the Committee. These are limited to One Guinea, and should be sent to the Hon. Secretary or Treasurer, at the above address. It is earnestly hoped that many friends will contribute, in order to make the occasion a thoroughly representative celebration.

Professor Sir FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.
(Chairman of Committee).
E. H. TURPIN (Hon. Secretary).
T. SHINDLER (Hon. Treasurer).

BROADWOODS' (ESTD. 1732)

NEW OVERSTRUNG PIANOFORTES
40 to 400 GUINEAS

GRAND PRIX (HIGHEST POSSIBLE AWARD)

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1900.

GREAT PULTENEY STREET, LONDON, W.

THE LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL

AND INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
22, PRINCES STREET, CAVENDISH SQUARE, W.
Established 1865.
Principal: T. H. YORKE TROTTER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

The London Organ School provides a thorough Musical Education in all its branches, either for amateur or professional students. Lessons may be commenced on any date, and students may take a single subject if desired. The School is open till 9 p.m. for those students who cannot attend during the day.

Private Lessons are given in the following subjects:—Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration and Composition; Pianoforte, Organ, Singing, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Double Bass, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet and Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Mandoline and Guitar, Zither, Choir Training, Elocution and Stage Deportment, Modern Languages, &c.

The following are some of the Classes:—
HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, ORCHESTRATION, and MUSICAL DICTATION (Dr. York Trotter).
QUARTET and ENSEMBLE PLAYING (Mr. Edward O'Brien and Mr. J. Edward Hambleton).
ELOCUTION and DRAMATIC ART (Mr. Charles Fry and Mr. Arthur Fayne).
CHORAL (Mr. Henry Beauchamp).
LADIES' CHORAL (Mr. J. Mewburn Levien).

The Full Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Yorke Trotter, and the String Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Edward O'Brien, meet weekly. There are three 3-manual Practice Organs.

Prospectus, on application, from the Secretary.

BOSWORTH EDITION, No. 293.

PISCHNA

SIXTY PIANO EXERCISES. 2s.

Revised and Fingered by A. RUTHARDT.

BOSWORTH EDITION.

CZERNY-ZWINTSCHER

		s.	d.
Bosworth Edition, 16.—100 Studies.	Op. 139	1	1
" " 17/18. " "	In two Books, each	0	7
" " 19.—School of Velocity.	Op. 299	1	4
" " 20/23. " "	In four Books each	0	7
" " 24.—Art of Technic.	Op. 740	2	9
" " 25/30. " "	In six Books .. each	0	9

BOSWORTH EDITION.

No.		s.	d.
238.	CARPÉ.—Grouping, Articulating, and Phrasing in Musical Interpretation	6	0
82.	Piano Pedal Studies from Rubinstein's Historical Concerts	3	0
292.	HABERBIER (Germer).—Twelve Poetical Studies ..	2	0
92.	ARENSKY (Ruthardt).—Suite for Two Pianos	2	6
185.	" Trio in D minor (Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello)	8	0
235.	STANFORD, C. V.—Trio, No. 2, in G minor (Pianoforte, Violin, and Cello)	6	0
58.	HRIMALY.—Scale Studies (Violin)	2	6
191/192.	KULLAK (Germer).—Kinderleben .. .. .. each	1	0
246.	LISZT (Germer).—Liebesträume	1	6
	SITT.—Op. 70. Concertino for Violin	4	6

BOSWORTH & CO., 5, Princes Street, London, W.
Leipzig, Paris, Vienna.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
JUNE 1, 1901.

AUGUST WILHELMJ.

WHO is the oldest living fiddler? This is a somewhat difficult question to answer, but whoever in response should say Ober-Procurator August Wilhelmj, would not be far wrong. Although this August Wilhelmj is ninety years of age he plays his violin, as becometh an enthusiastic amateur, every day. He was a fellow-student of Bismarck's at Göttingen and became very intimate with the great German Chancellor. He is best known as the far-famed Rhenish wine grower. He married Miss Charlotte Petry, an excellent pianist and singer, who was a pupil of André, of Offenbach, of Marco Bordogni, and of no less distinguished a personage than Frederic Chopin. One of the two sons of that marriage forms the subject of this biographical sketch.

August Emil Daniel Ferdinand Victor Wilhelmj was born on September 21, 1845, at Usingen, the former residence of the Princes of Nassau-Usingen. Some thirty years later he visited his native town on the invitation of the magistrate, when he received an extraordinary ovation, which took the practical form of the foundation of an institution agreed upon by the Town Council, and to be called the A. W. Institute, as a lasting memorial of the day of his visit. At the same time he was made an honorary citizen of Usingen.

THE GERMAN PAGANINI.

The boy received his first lessons on the violin from Conrad Fischer, court conductor to the Duke of Nassau at Wiesbaden. He must have made rapid progress in his studies, for when Henriette Sontag (Countess Rossi) stayed at his parents' house, August played with such mature tone-production, precision, and clearness, combined with natural expression, that the great singer, deeply moved, kissed him and exclaimed, 'Some day you will be the German Paganini.' The little fellow was then only seven years old. Under Fischer's excellent tuition the boy made rapid progress in his art. In addition to his characteristic broad tone he possessed an extremely fine ear, which enabled him, on hearing any combination of notes sounded together, to distinguish and name with certainty each individual note.

REPARTEE.

At the age of eight he first played in a quartet—one of Haydn's—and performed his part with such coolness and certainty that it seemed as if he had already played for years in public. On the 8th of the following January (1854) he made his first appearance in public at a concert given at Limburg-on-the-Lahn in aid of the poor of that town. Two years later (March 17, 1856) he appealed to a wider circle when he played at the Court Theatre, Wiesbaden, and caused a great sensation by his skilful performances.

Master August was a smart boy and clever at repartee. At the age of fourteen he once played at a concert Ernst's Elegie, which, although in the minor key, ends with the major third, the said E natural being a harmonic note in the violin part. His accompanist, however, played an E flat in the final chord, to Wilhelmj's agonised horror. The boy turned to his accompanist and said, 'Donkey.' 'Do you call me your donkey?' was the response. 'No,' said August, 'if you were my donkey, you would have played E natural!'

THE VERDICT OF LISZT.

In spite of the musical endowments nature had lavished on his son, Wilhelmj père was averse to his following a musical career—he wished him to enter the legal profession. But upon the earnest solicitations of his son the father consented to reconsider the matter, providing that some high musical authority would testify to August's chances of success in the art of music. In the Spring of 1861 the fifteen-year old youth, armed with a letter of introduction from Prince Emil von Wittgenstein, paid a visit to Liszt, at Weimar, when he played to the great pianist Spohr's 'Gesangsscene' and Ernst's 'Ungarische Weisen.' Liszt, who accompanied him on the pianoforte, at once recognised his superior gifts, and after Wilhelmj, at Liszt's request, had played several pieces prima vista with surprising skill, Liszt said to the little fellow's mother: 'Is it possible that there can be the least hesitation concerning your boy's career? He is a born musician. He is so entirely predestined for the violin, that did not the instrument already exist it ought to be invented for him.' A few days later Liszt personally took Wilhelmj to Leipzig to place him under the trusted guidance of Ferdinand David for further study. Liszt, on introducing him to David, said: 'I bring you the future second Paganini.'

FERDINAND DAVID.

From 1861 to 1864 Wilhelmj was a student at the Leipzig Conservatorium, where he had as teachers of theory Ernst Friedrich Richter and Moritz Hauptman; later on he studied under Joachim Raff, at Wiesbaden. But Ferdinand David superintended his violin studies, and it is to that great artist's influence that Wilhelmj owes those noble classical traditions which distinguish his performances in solo playing and in chamber music. He became David's favourite pupil. 'It is a true delight to listen to him,' David would say, his face beaming with joy; 'difficulties do not exist for him.' In course of time David became more and more attached to Wilhelmj, so much so that the vignette which appears in David's Violin School, and which represents the picture of an ideal violinist, is taken from a photograph of his favourite pupil, August Wilhelmj.

At the public examination of the Conservatorium (April 9, 1862) Wilhelmj played Ernst's Concerto Pathétique in F sharp minor, with results that roused almost unprecedented enthusiasm. Seven months later (November 24, 1862) he played for the first time at the Gewandhaus concerts, his solo being Joachim's Hungarian Concerto, and came through the fire of criticism, which such an event calls forth, with an enhanced reputation and the hall-mark of a first rank artist.

FIRST VISIT TO ENGLAND.

Switzerland was the vantage ground of his first tour, in the autumn of 1865. In the spring of the following year he visited Holland, and in the autumn he made his way to London, ætat twenty-one. Through the influence of Jenny Lind, Wilhelmj made his first appearance before an English audience at the Promenade Concerts given at Covent Garden Theatre under the conductorship of the late Alfred Mellon—who, by the way, was an excellent conductor. It may not be without interest to mention that three great violinists made their first appearances in England at theatres—Miss Wilhelmina Neruda (Lady Hallé), at the Princess's Theatre, Oxford Street; Joseph Joachim, a boy of fourteen, at Drury Lane (the benefit of the versifier, sometimes called the poet, Alfred Bunn); and August Wilhelmj, at Covent Garden. The actual date of his début was September 17, 1866. The Musical World, probably in the words of Mr. J. W. Davison, thus recorded the event:—

MR. ALFRED MELLON'S CONCERTS.

Mr. Alfred Mellon is a true believer in novelty. No matter what talent he has at command he seeks for more. . . . On Monday a new violinist, Herr Wilhelmj, appeared, and created an extraordinary sensation. Very little is known about Herr Wilhelmj. He is, we hear, a Pole. He is little more than twenty years of age. He played a piece by Paganini and Ernst's 'Airs Hongrois,' and was rapturously encored in both. At present we are obliged to content ourselves with stating that a greater success could not possibly have been achieved; that from the opening notes of the violinist the audience was enraptured and the members of the band astonished; and that all concurred in the opinion that Herr Wilhelmj was a first-rate master of his art.

At one of these concerts he played Paganini's Concerto in D, which on that occasion was conducted by Bottesini, the great performer on the big fiddle.

THE LONDON AND EDINBURGH CRITICS.

The fame of the new violinist soon spread beyond the walls of Covent Garden Theatre. On November 26, 1866, he appeared, for the first time, at the Monday Popular Concerts, when he led Mendelssohn's Ottet, played Beethoven's Romance in F, and took part, with Charles Hallé and Piatti, in Mendelssohn's C minor Trio. The late Prince Leopold (afterwards Duke of Albany) was present at this performance. Concerning Wilhelmj's part in the concert, the Pall Mall Gazette (then under Mr. Davison's influence in regard to musical criticism), said: 'In a Romance (in F) of Beethoven he [Wilhelmj] proved himself as consummate a master of the simply "expressive" as in Mendelssohn's Ottet of the "grandiose" in chamber music.' The Morning Post, in a notice of the same concert, did not approve of the spelling of the new violinist's name. 'Wilhelmi would be more simple and intelligible to English eyes,' is the recorded opinion of that critic. On the Saturday following his first appearance at St. James's Hall, Wilhelmj played at the Crystal Palace concert of December 1, 1866, with much acceptance, his solos on that occasion being Lipinski's Concert Militaire and Vieuxtemps's 'Reverie.' Subsequent appearances at the 'Pops' confirmed the good impression his initial performances had made, and his fame extended to Edinburgh, where he so worked upon the feelings of a critic of one of the Auld Reekie journals that he was described as 'a gentleman who burst upon (!) the English public lately, and at once took his stand among the first performers of the age.'

His performances in Paris were attended with much enthusiasm. At one of Pasdeloup's concerts populairs pour la musique classique, given in the Cirque Napoléon, on January 20, 1867, he was called by the critics 'le nouveau Paganini,' and the Parisians used to say in tones of admiration, 'Inconnu hier, le voila célèbre aujourd'hui.' He visited Italy in the autumn and at Florence his performances of classical music earned for him the title of Protector of the Societa di Quartetto. In January, 1868, he accepted an invitation from the art-loving Grand Duchess Helena Pawlowna of Russia to visit St. Petersburg. In the Russian capital he resided in the Palais Michel with Hector Berlioz, who said: 'Never before have I heard a violinist with a tone so grand, so enchanting, and so noble as that of August Wilhelmj.'

For many years Wilhelmj led the life of a travelling virtuoso, touring in Europe, America, and Australia, where he met with the greatest success. At Leyden he was even surprised by a torchlight procession; at Milan, where he arranged a series of Evening Chamber concerts of German music, he was created an honorary member of the famous Milan Societa di Quartetto. He re-appeared in England early in 1875 as one of the artists engaged by Messrs. Novello for their daily concerts given at the Royal Albert Hall during the season of 1874-5, at which he frequently played with much acceptance.

An important event in the life of Professor Wilhelmj (the title of Professor was bestowed on him in 1871) occurred in August, 1876, when he led the orchestra in the memorable performances of Wagner's 'Der Ring des Nibelungen' at Bayreuth. His 'meritorious energy'—to use Wagner's own words in appreciation of his efforts—was on the same high level as the splendid attainments of Dr. Hans Richter as conductor of those famous representations.

AUGUST WILHELMJ, AGED 17,
AS A STUDENT OF THE CONSERVATORIUM, LEIPZIG.

THE WAGNER FESTIVAL IN LONDON.

Professor Wilhelmj initiated the Wagner Festival held in the Royal Albert Hall in May, 1877. The following is a letter (translated from the original German) from Wagner to Wilhelmj relating to this, the last visit paid by the composer to England:—

Bayreuth, March 15, 1877.

My dear Friend,

I have just signed the contract with Messrs. Hodge and Essex. They will receive my further instructions to-morrow. I only hope this undertaking may have a happy outcome.

During the past few years I have often received invitations of a like nature from England. You know, however, that concert-giving is not at all my sphere of action, and those who have wished of late to make my acquaintance I could only invite to Bayreuth. It seems, then, that in this way I have gained good friends, especially in England. You, dearest friend, have so urgently begged me to convince myself of this upon the spot, that I have gladly determined to consent. You had won, in fact, a very definite right, through the splendid share you took in the performances of my 'Bühnenfestspiel' at Bayreuth. Any earnest wish expressed by you, I had to comply with! I come to England—I say it openly—upon your invitation. May you never regret my obedience!

You will have much to do for me, since it is your promise to place yourself at the head of the orchestra which I shall conduct, that has made me take kindly to the thought; for I thus am fore-assured that even the most laborious hours of toil will be refreshing to me, and hereafter shape themselves to pleasant memories.

Every detail now will swiftly be in order. Heartily do I rejoice at the prospect of seeing you soon again, and thank you for all your past and future works of friendship.

Yours very sincerely,

RICHARD WAGNER.

Wagner conducted some of the performances of this Grand Wagner Festival, the remainder being under the direction of Hans Richter. The orchestra of 170 performers was led by Wilhelmj. At the conclusion of the Festival the band presented their distinguished leader with the following address:—

WAGNER FESTIVAL.

Royal Albert Hall, May, 1877.

To August Wilhelmj.

Sir,—The members of the orchestra of the Wagner Festival cannot separate without expressing to you their admiration of your great abilities as a violinist and musician. They are assured that to you they are largely indebted for the opportunity that has been afforded them of assisting in the interpretation of the works of the great master, under his own immediate superintendence. For these reasons, and for the great assistance you have rendered in the arrangements for the Festival, and especially as leader of the orchestra, they beg your acceptance of a violin bow as a mark of their respect, and as a memento of one of the most important events in the musical history of this country.

Signed on behalf of the orchestra:—Hermann Franke, Carl Deichmann, Hugo Daubert, Richard Blagrove, Edwin Ould, C. Thomas, Charles Harper, John Hedley (Secretary).

In connection with this Wagner Festival it should be remembered that Dr. Hans Richter made his first appearance in England; moreover, his initial visit to this country was due to Wilhelmj. The great conductor in presenting his old violinist friend with his photograph not long ago inscribed it with these words:

* Dem ersten Concertmeister in Bayreuth, anno 1876, dem ersten Rufer nach London, anno 1877;
dem ausgezeichneten Kunstgenossen, dem lieben Freunde, August Wilhelmj.

HANS RICHTER.

London, 5 November, 1900.

* To the first leader in Bayreuth, anno 1876; to the first inviter to London, anno 1877; to the excellent brother artist and the dear friend, August Wilhelmj.

QUEEN VICTORIA AND THE SCHERZO.

It is very interesting to hear Professor Wilhelmj converse upon his experiences and the distinguished persons he has met during his long artistic career. He once played before Queen Victoria at Osborne, his colleagues being the late Sir William Cusins and Signor Piatti. The Queen asked for Mendelssohn's D minor Trio—'only three movements,' she said, 'not the scherzo.' 'Piatti didn't like that,' laughingly observes the Professor. The Emperor and Empress Frederick held Wilhelmj

WILHELMJ, THE LONG-BOW!

(A caricature by Mr. Charles Lyall, reproduced—reduced size—by the kind permission of the artist.)

in high esteem. As Prince and Princess Frederick of Prussia they paid him a visit at his place, Mosbach-Biebrich, on the Rhine, when Wilhelmj played on the violin and organ to them, and on the following day he dined with their Royal Highnesses.

MOLTKE A LOVER OF MUSIC.

His recollections of Count von Moltke are unusually interesting. The general impression of that great war strategist is that he was a man of a hard, stern nature. This is largely true of him in regard to his temperament generally, but music melted his cold heart, 'He was the most musical man in the world,' recalls Professor Wilhelmj. 'When he visited Wiesbaden in 1877 his first enquiry of the magistrate who received him was for me. He asked about musical matters in England. Usually a very silent man, Moltke became exceedingly animated when talking about music. When I played to him he cried like a child, and in complimenting me on my performance he said: "It carries one above this mortal world."

Here is a characteristic anecdote of Hans von Bülow. During one of the visits of the redoubtable Hans to London he received tickets from the late Sir Augustus Harris for a performance of Wagner's 'Meistersinger.' These he returned to the impresario, saying, 'I am sorry I cannot use the tickets; I have already booked places for the Canterbury Music Hall'!

AN AMERICAN ENTHUSIAST.

One of several amusing experiences during the round-the-world tour of the subject of this sketch may be related. At Denver, Colorado, Bach's 'Chaconne' was put down in the programme for performance. But the agent, thinking this would be a risky piece for a general audience, suggested that Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto should be substituted. One man in the audience, however, protested against the alteration in the programme. He said that he had travelled one hundred miles to hear the 'Chaconne,' as he was convinced that nobody could play it. In order to satisfy the gentleman Wilhelmj, although greatly fatigued by his exertions at the concert proper, consented to play the 'Chaconne' in private to this protestor. Judge of his feelings when, after he had thrown all his energies into the interpretation of that difficult work, this great connoisseur (!) of Bach (as Wilhelmj thought) calmly said: 'I don't think much of that piece.'

TECHNICAL ATTAINMENTS.

As a violinist Professor Wilhelmj excels equally in his performance of solos and of quartets. His execution of the later quartets of Beethoven—a true test of an executant's musical intuitiveness — and of works by modern composers is especially praiseworthy. He is a great interpreter of Bach. When Wagner heard him play the Chaconne for the first time he embraced him with tears in his eyes and said: 'My dear Wilhelmj, I can scarcely speak, but you must feel the deep impression you have made upon me. It is the most perfect artistic interpretation I have ever heard.' The music of Paganini, which he plays with great finish, is a fine outlet for the display of his technical attainments. But, although he is very eclectic in his tastes, Bach and Paganini appeal very strongly to his artistic temperament.

One remarkable feature of his playing is his fine broad tone. A man of splendid physique, Wilhelmj reflects his massive frame in the rich tones, beautifully pure withal, which he extracts from the instrument. His long-drawn bow is well portrayed in the caricature sketch of Mr. Charles Lyall, which, by that artist's kind permission, we reproduce. Not in tone only, but in left-hand technique, Wilhelmj, by common consent, is unrivalled. His double-stopping skill manifests itself in the ease with which he plays thirds, sixths, octaves, and tenths. Moreover, as Ferdinand Laub once said: 'I believe August Wilhelmj could not play out of tune, even if he wanted to.' His peculiar treatment of double-stopping is the result of an entirely original and thought-out system, which some day he may give to the world in a detailed form. It is not surprising that he has been the recipient of many orders and distinctions. Of his numerous violins the chief treasure is a Guarnerius, 'the finest ever made.'

As a composer Professor Wilhelmj has written chiefly for the instrument with which his name is so eminently associated. These include solos for violin with orchestral or pianoforte accompaniments, many transcriptions—which he has made a specialty—two string quartets, &c. He has edited many classics for the violin, including the Beethoven and Mendelssohn concertos. He has furnished the Beethoven concerto with a cadenza which Bülow declared to be 'the best.' Compositions for orchestra and songs prove that Wilhelmj has not narrowed his interests in the field of productive activity.

LETTERS FROM WAGNER AND LISZT.

In regard to the transcriptions for the violin already referred to, the following letters from Wagner and Liszt to the transcriber will be read with interest. The first, from Wagner, refers to Wilhelmj's well-known transcription of the Albumblatt and to orchestral matters. It is dated 'Bayreuth, October 6, 1872.'

My dear Herr Konzertmeister in partibus!

Your transcription of the poor little Albumblatt has converted the trifle into something very beautiful. Accept my best thanks for it, together with my full appreciation of your talent! I am right in assuming that you wished me to return the manuscript to you??

If you are going to make use of this also, in your efforts on behalf of the Festspiele, you will be rendering a good service, as I cannot, in any case, expect any definite results before this coming winter. On no account, however, should the cost of the orchestra trouble you. It is true that my estimate respecting the orchestra is based upon the assumption that I shall be able to enrol it, for the most part, with musicians from the great Court orchestras, in about the same way as for our performance of the 9th Symphony. In order to obtain the services of these Court musicians, I should, of course, have to apply to the respective sovereigns, and I anticipate no refusal in those quarters. To these musicians, then, who will continue to draw their salaries from home, I shall certainly need to offer no more than an honorarium for their extra expenses, which I believe I estimate sufficiently high at 50 thalers per month. As most orchestras are, at that time, entirely disengaged, I may reasonably assume that many musicians will be glad even of obtaining a little extra pay in this way. Now, it would, of course, be a different matter if I were to have recourse chiefly to unattached musicians, who would expect a larger honorarium. I must confess to you that such an eventuality would embarrass me, and that I should not willingly enter into negotiations with people who have no

RICHARD WAGNER AT THE ROYAL ALBERT HALL IN 1877.
(A caricature by Mr. Charles Lyall, reproduced—reduced size—by the kind permission of the artist.)

real conception of the undertaking, and would look upon it merely as an occasion for earning money for services rendered. Indeed, it can only be a question of compensating them for the expenses of their stay here, which—if no absurd demands are made—should surely be adequately covered by an amount equal to their regular salaries (the principals, for instance, at Dresden, do not get more than 50 thalers). However, do not allow this consideration to stand in the way of your increasing the offer, in particular cases, and the necessary funds will have to be obtained somehow.

Meanwhile, matters are not as yet so far advanced as to necessitate our proceeding in haste. I am myself only planning my journeys for this winter, in order to make myself acquainted with my German vocal coadjutors. Such heaviness of heart do I feel in this respect, that I can only say, if I can find my singers, you will certainly find your players. Had we not better wait till then before we make an official announcement? . . .

Be good enough to present my best compliments to Herr de Swert, and to tell him that we must have 16 first and 16 second violins, as well as 12 violas, twelve violoncellos, and eight double basses.

I hope, ere long, to have the opportunity of seeing you in my approaching travels, either in Wiesbaden or elsewhere. I am looking forward with sincere pleasure to the further extension of our personal acquaintance, which began under such favourable auspices, and remain,

Your truly devoted

Richard Wagner.

The two following letters from Liszt speak for themselves:—

Weimar,

12 June, 1872.

Greatly esteemed Sir and Friend,

Your Chopin transcriptions are very pleasing, tasteful, and well done, the keys aptly chosen and the accompaniments well adapted. Congratulating you upon the success which these transcriptions cannot fail to meet with everywhere, it would give me additional pleasure if you were to play the four Nocturnes and the two Concertos, and if then there should still remain a few grains of criticism to be added by me, I shall take the liberty to indicate such insignificant alterations in the pianoforte accompaniment, as requested.

Anticipating the pleasure of soon again meeting and admiring you at the Musicians' Congress, in Cassel, I remain, with sincere esteem,

Your devoted friend,

F. Liszt.

Please give my most friendly greetings to J. Raff.

Weimar,

18 June, 1883.

Highly esteemed Friend and Colleague in Art,

Kindly excuse the delay in thanking you for your Siegfried-Paraphrase.

It is a by no means easy task to transpose the motivi of Wagner's 'Nibelungen,' properly and effectively, upon a single instrument. You have accomplished this most successfully, and genuine praise will always be due to you from

Yours faithfully,

F. Liszt.

By the same post you will receive your manuscript, to which I have merely added a few pedal directions and some fingering. From the first to the last bar, your Siegfried Paraphrase is excellent.

PUPILS AND 'A MODERN SCHOOL FOR THE VIOLIN.'

Although Professor Wilhelmj has now settled in London as a teacher, he has not spoken his last word—to quote his own expression—as a public performer. 'I hope to concertize again,' he says, 'and perhaps take another tour in America.' The Professor is held in the greatest esteem—nay, venerated—by his numerous pupils, among whom may be mentioned as having played in public with success:

Misses Dorothy Baly, Margery Bentwitch, Jessie Grimson, Gladys Hooley, Beatrice Langley, Irma Sethe, Ethel Spiller, and Amy Llewellyn Toms; Messrs. Percy Frostick, Harold Grimson, Donald Heintz, William Henley, Hugo Kupferschmid, Otto Spamer, Henry Such, and Gordon Tanner.

Another pupil is Uric Tschaïkowsky, a nephew of the composer. Yet another, in stature the least of them all, little Sybil Keymer, of Aylesbury, who, although a tiny fiddler of seven summers, plays the Mendelssohn Concerto with wonderful technical skill and artistic insight.

Professor Wilhelmj says that 'English lads and lassies are as good as any pupils in the world.' This may account in some measure for the interest he is taking in the new Violin School which, with his able collaborator and old pupil, Mr. James Brown, is now being issued. This complete and exhaustive treatise, so distinctly educational in its scope and design, is the result of his long experience as a performer and wide knowledge of the capabilities of the instrument he loves so well. Thus, by precept and example, does a great artist like August Wilhelmj transmit to posterity his artistic methods and high ideals.

The special supplement portrait of Professor Wilhelmj is by Mr. A. H. Fry, of Brighton.

QUEEN VICTORIA AND MUSIC.

The Quarterly Review contains an exceedingly interesting and well informed article on Queen Victoria. This exhaustive and admirably written appreciation is evidently from the pen of one who had unusual opportunities of forming an estimate of the late Queen's character and personality from the inner circle of Court life. In regard to the musicianship of our late Sovereign the following extract furnishes an instance of her outspokenness:—

'A piece of very modern music had been performed in the Queen's presence, manifestly not to her approval. "What is that?" she asked. "It's a drinking song, Ma'am, by Rubinstein." "Nonsense," said the Queen, "no such thing! Why, you could not drink a cup of tea to that!"'

The Queen's dislike to Handel may be traced to the predominance of his music in the Georgian Era, which, of course, covered the period of her childhood and girlhood. But the Quarterly Reviewer must speak for himself (or herself) in an extract which is amusingly interesting:—

'Her attitude to music and to drama was much more interesting [than to painting], though very simple. She had a sweet soprano voice, and had been trained by Costa to produce it prettily. She was very modest and even deprecatory about this accomplishment of hers, in which, however, she acquitted herself charmingly. Her favourite musician was Mendelssohn, who had greatly pleased her in early days as a man. She would have nothing to say, until quite late in life, to Wagner or Brahms, and once dismissed them all in one of her abrupt turns of conversation, "Quite incomprehensible!" "I am bored with the Future altogether," she used to say, "and don't want to hear any more about it." She was not more partial to some of the old masters, and once closed a musical discussion by saying, "Handel always tires me, and I won't pretend he doesn't." She carried out her aversion to the last, and forbade that the Dead March in Saul should be played at her funeral.'

In regard to prima donnas, she placed Grisi on a higher level than all other operatic performers. When that actress flung herself across the door in 'The Huguenots,' or arranged the poison scene with the Duke in 'Lucrezia Borgia,' and when Viardot Garcia rose to the height of her invective in the 'Prophète,' the Queen's face blazed with approbation. She would turn in her box and say, 'There! not one of the others could do that; no, not even Alboni!'

The love of humour was a marked characteristic in our late Queen's nature, and, by those well qualified to judge, she possessed remarkable intuitiveness as a musical critic. As the writer of the article observes:—

'She thoroughly enjoyed a good farce, and laughed heartily at the jokes. She delighted in Italian opera, and when she liked a piece, she steeped herself in every part of it, the melody and the romance, and heard it over and over until she knew the music by heart. "Norma" was a great favourite; and in late years Calvé won her heart in "Carmen," to which opera—music, plot, and everything—the Queen became absolutely devoted. And the pieces of Gilbert and Sullivan were an endless delight to her; she would even take a part in these, very drolly and prettily. No one could form a more sympathetic audience, whether in music or drama, than the Queen. She gave her unbroken attention to the performer, and followed whatever was being done with an almost childish eagerness. If the tenor began to be in the least heavy, the Queen would be observed to fidget, as though hardly restrained from breaking into song herself; and at the slightest deviation from perfection of delivery her fan began to move. No part of her character was more singularly interesting than the way in which, in such matters as these, she preserved a charm of juvenile freshness like an atmosphere surrounding the complex machinery of her mind.'

Would it not be interesting to know which parts Queen Victoria took—so 'very drolly and prettily'—in the Gilbert and Sullivan comicalities?

SIR JOHN GOSS.

1800—1880.

(Concluded from page 231.)

Before resuming this biographical sketch, a slight error in its first instalment (p. 225), kindly pointed out by Mr. John S. Bumpus, must be rectified. The habitation of Mr. Stafford Smith, with whom the Chapel Royal Children lived in Goss's day, was located at Broad Sanctuary, Westminster, and not at Adelphi Terrace. One of Sir John Goss's daughters has furnished us with a curious side-light on her father's old master. She says: 'In my childhood Stafford Smith lived in Paradise Row, and I remember our servants going to see him as he lay in his coffin, where he was attired in full court dress, satin breeches, buckles, &c. He it was who made all the boys learn the 13th chapter of the first Epistle to the Corinthians, which my father never mentioned without saying, "God bless him for it."'

After his appointment to the organistship of St. Paul's (on April 25, 1838), the life of Sir John Goss was not crowded with incident. He did his work conscientiously and without fuss or self-advertisement, content with doing his duty in that state of life into which it had pleased God to call him. In 1841 (the Preface is dated '30, Sloane Street, October of that year') he issued his well known collection of 'Chants, Ancient and Modern, in score, with an accompaniment for the organ or pianoforte.' This publication of 257 chants contained some practical 'prefatory observations on chanting.'

A COMPOSER OF ANTHEMS.

Goss is best known to posterity as the composer of anthems, just as Handel is regarded as the great oratorioist—if that word may be allowed. Both musicians, however, did not embark upon the great work of their lives till a late period in their careers. In the year 1842, when he was forty-one years of age, Goss contemplated composing an anthem to words from each of the 150 Psalms, but he never got beyond the first—a setting of 'Blessed is the man.' This composition was received with such coldness by the members of his own Cathedral choir, and such unkindly criticisms were passed upon it, that Goss did not write another anthem for ten years. 'Blessed is the man' (the anthem above referred to) was not published till twenty years after its composition, when it formed one of a 'Collection of Anthems for certain Seasons and Festivals of the Church,' edited by Sir Frederick Ouseley. Four years later (in 1846) Goss edited, in collaboration with James Turle, organist of Westminster Abbey, a collection of cathedral services and anthems in two volumes, some of which had not then been printed.*

* For a complete list of these services and anthems, which appeared periodically, see 'The Organists and Composers of St. Paul's,' an invaluable book on the subject, by Mr. John S. Bumpus, p. 162.

The reputation of John Goss as a master-composer of English church music received its hall mark in the two anthems he composed for the state funeral of the Duke of Wellington, in St. Paul's Cathedral, November 18, 1852—the settings of 'If we believe that Jesus died' and the Dirge, beginning 'And the King said to all the people.' The latter, accompanied by wind instruments (flutes, oboes, bassoons, horns, trumpets, cornets, trombones, ophicleide, drums, muffled side-drums, and organ), concluded with the words (recitative), 'And the King said unto his servants, Know ye not that there is a Prince and a Great Man, fall'n this day in Israel?' which led on to the Dead March in 'Saul,' 'during the performance of which the Body was lowered,' as the score indicates. From The Times report of that solemn function we learn that there were 'two choirs in two lines,' one being conducted by James Turle, the other by Mr. Francis.* There was no full rehearsal of the music, as the wind instrument players were engaged at a Sacred Harmonic concert at Exeter Hall. As The Times said, 'Their absence was a serious drawback.' On that occasion the Precentor presented himself for admittance to the cathedral, but the vergers would not let him in, as his features were to them totally unknown. No wonder that Sidney Smith called this Precentor, the Absentor!

PRAISE THE LORD, O MY SOUL!

Two years later Goss wrote one of his most popular anthems for the Bi-centenary Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, held in St. Paul's Cathedral, May 10, 1854. This was the well known 'Praise the Lord, O my soul.' On that interesting occasion the anthem was accompanied by a full wind band. Goss's neatly written autograph of the full score is before us, and it is interesting to observe that he has indicated the recitative for tenors and basses ('They that put their trust in the Lord') to be sung 'strictly in time,' and at the end 'Go on at once to the chorus.' Mr. John S. Bumpus records that the beautiful slow movement of this anthem ('O pray for the peace of Jerusalem') was sung sotto voce by the whole of the choir, 250 voices, on that 1854 occasion, and that the choral recitative—how thrilling in their nobility of expression are those seven simple bars—was given forth by all the tenors and basses in unison — 120 strong. Orchestral accompaniments in church were suspiciously regarded in those days. Even the Guardian considered it a duty to observe: 'We do not admire the unnecessary addition of wind instruments.' Who would consider them unnecessary now? To the same year (1854) belongs the editorship of the Psalter and Hymnal known as Mercer's, a meritorious book which enjoyed a large circulation. On November 28, 1856 (to commence his duties on January 1, 1857), Goss was sworn in Composer to Her Majesty's Chapels Royal, in succession to William Knyvett. No better appointment could have been made.

* Thomas Francis (1812—1887), a well known Alto Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral.

AN ORATORIO PERFORMANCE IN ST. PAUL'S.

A practically unknown, but important event in the quiet life of our composer has now to be recorded. In 1860 the organ screen in St. Paul's Cathedral was removed and Father Smith's organ placed under the North-East arch of the chancel. At the same time the organ, originally in the Panopticon, Leicester Square, was acquired by the Dean and Chapter and erected over the South door. In connection with the re-opening of the Cathedral after the alterations, and in aid of the funds for the purchase of the organ above referred to, a performance of 'The Messiah' on a festival scale was given in the Cathedral and under the dome, on Friday, January 25, 1861. It was the first time that an oratorio had been performed in St. Paul's since its erection by Wren, nearly two hundred years before; and so important did the event loom in the journalistic horizon of Mr. J. W. Davison, the critic-in-chief of the day, that he devoted to it no less than three leading articles, in three successive weeks, in the columns of the Musical World. Here is the announcement of the performance:—

> ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.—Opening of the magnificent New Organ, Friday morning, Jan. 25th, 1861, the Festival of the Conversion of St. Paul, a Grand Performance, under the Dome, of Handel's Messiah, in Aid of the Cathedral Fund, especially the purchase and erection of the new organ.
>
> Principal vocalists—Madame Lemmens Sherrington, Mrs. Lockey, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Lockey, Mr. Francis, Mr. H. Buckland, Mr. Winn, Mr. Lewis Thomas. Conductor, MR. GOSS. Organist, Mr. G. Cooper. Band and chorus of 600 performers.
>
> Tickets, under the dome, 1*l.* 1*s.*; transept, 10*s.* 6*d.*; nave, 5*s.*, &c.

Through the kindness of the veteran Mr. Charles Lockey, a Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral since 1843, we are enabled to give an interesting letter written to him by Goss in connection with this great oratorio event in St. Paul's Cathedral forty years ago.

> 25, Bessborough Gardens,
> Pimlico.
> 18 Dec., 1860.
>
> My Dear Sir,
>
> We owe you and Francis thanks for advocating the change of the oratorio. I now write to ask you to send word to Mr. Headland (whom perhaps you know), 9, Heathcote Street, Mechlenburgh Square, W.C., that (as I hope) you and Mrs. Lockey consent to be announced for the 'Messiah,' at St. Paul's, on Thursday, the 24th January, at 2 o'clock. I mentioned to Mr. Webber,* &c., the very handsome way in which you alluded to the engagement of Reeves, should it be thought expedient; and, as you are so out of voice, and of course unable to

* Then Sub-dean and Succentor of St. Paul's Cathedral.

answer for being all right at that particular time, I have, with Mr. W.'s concurrence, sent to offer Mr. Reeves an engagement, hoping thus to secure one or both of you. It is, you know, absolutely indispensable to put out an announcement with no further loss of time. We will put in no names of course without the previous consent of the parties.

I did not ask Francis, but do you think he would like to sing one of the alto songs?

The quartetts in the 3rd part, except perhaps the treble, might also be taken by our choir.

These are merely thoughts occurring to me at the moment.

Yours ever truly,
J. Goss.

Ch. Lockey, Esq.

Excuse haste—and any advice will be thankfully received.

In sending us the above interesting letter, Mr. Lockey (now an octogenarian) writes: 'I was prevented from taking part in the oratorio performance through severe hoarseness. Mrs. Lockey was the contralto. It would seem that some other oratorio was originally fixed, but in this matter my memory fails me.' Was it Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul'? In this connection the concluding paragraph of one of Mr. Davison's trenchant leaders in The Musical World (January 26, 1861) may be quoted:—

To conclude. Would not Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' have better suited the anniversary of the Festival of St. Paul's (or Saul's) conversion? Answer: decidedly not. 'The Messiah' draws more money; the Dean and Chapter want money; they don't want 'St. Paul'; 'St. Paul' won't pay Mr. E. T. Smith;* 'The Messiah' will (perhaps).

The same journal, in a notice of the performance, said:—

Mr. Goss, the accomplished organist of the Cathedral, wielded the baton over the six hundred who composed the band and chorus; and, taken altogether, a more solemn and impressive rendering of the masterpiece of Handel, which assuredly was 'not for an age, but for all time,' has never been heard in the metropolis. . . . The whole of the tenor part was given to Mr. Sims Reeves, who more than ever distinguished himself, being in remarkably fine voice, and infusing all the pathos, tenderness, and energy of which he is so thorough a master, into his singing from first to last. Mrs. Lockey's wonderfully rich voice was heard to eminent advantage in the contralto music. . . . The choruses, with some few exceptions, were impressively given—'All we like sheep,' the 'Hallelujah,' and the final 'Amen' being remarkable for vigour and sonority.

Thus it will be seen that Sir John Goss, in this impressive performance of Handel's 'Messiah,' foreshadowed those notable renderings of oratorios which, under the direction of Sir John Stainer and Sir George Martin, have so largely and so beneficently entered into the musical life of our great Metropolitan Cathedral.

To the same year as 'The Messiah' performance (1861) belongs the well known anthem 'The Wilderness,' written by Goss for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy and first performed in St. Paul's, May 21, 1862. On December 27, 1866, a banquet was given in his honour, when he was presented with a handsome candelabra and a silver inkstand.

The long period—thirty-four years—of Goss's organistship of St. Paul's came to an end in 1872. It was signalised by an important event in the history of the nation—the Thanksgiving service for the recovery of the Prince of Wales (now King Edward VII.), held in the Cathedral, February 27, 1872. For this event he composed an anthem, 'The Lord is my strength and song,' and a Te Deum, both performed in the Cathedral. Gounod, then residing in London, had composed a Te Deum for that occasion, and he was very desirous of having it performed in St. Paul's. The following correspondence between the French composer and the English organist speaks for itself:—

Tavistock House,
Tavistock Square,
Friday, Jan. 19, 1872.

My Dear Mr. Goss,

I have composed in commemoration, and as a thanksgiving for the recovery of H.R.H. The Prince of Wales, a Te Deum on the text of your English church service for chorus and organ. I should be very happy if it could be performed at St. Paul's on the occasion of Her Majesty's going to St. Paul's to render thanks, as I see it is her intention to do so in February next; and I would be very grateful to you if you could manage this for me.

Believe me, dear Mr. Goss, to remain, sincerely yours,
Ch. Gounod.

The organist of St. Paul's replied in the following terms:—

Jan. 23, 1872.

My Dear Sir,

As soon as I received your letter about the Te Deum I took it to our Dean, but I have not since heard from him. In all candour I must confess to you that I do not wish it to be accepted for the occasion of the National Thanksgiving in St. Paul's, for the very natural reason that there are yet Englishmen in existence who surely are capable of and would be expected to produce the music required for the ceremony. I am quite sure their hearts would be in the cause.

You will, I trust, forgive my hasty remarks and, Dear Sir, believe me, with all veneration for your genius,

Yours faithfully,
John Goss.

Very soon after the Thanksgiving Service, Goss, full of years and honour, retired from St. Paul's on his full emoluments and thenceforward lived a quiet life. He was knighted, by Queen Victoria, at Windsor, on March 19, 1872, and five days later he played for the last time in the great Cathedral. On June 1, 1876, in company with his old pupil, Arthur Sullivan, he received the honour of being created a doctor of music (honoris causâ) by the University of Cambridge. He was also an Hon. Member of the Royal Academy of Music, and a member of the Royal

* Then proprietor of the Panopticon, now the Alhambra, Leicester Square, who sold the organ to the Dean and Chapter.

Society of Musicians and of the Philharmonic Society, and an original member of the Musical Association (1876). He died, in his eightieth year, at 26, Lambert Road, Brixton Rise, May 10, 1880. The first part of the funeral service was held in St. Paul's Cathedral, when his anthem 'If we believe that Jesus died' was sung. His remains are interred in Kensal Green Cemetery. His grave, surmounted with a runic cross of red granite, is near the last resting-place of Tom Hood, Michael William Balfe, and Vincent Wallace. His devoted wife, Lady Goss, who survived him for nearly fifteen years, died on February 15, 1895, in her ninety-fifth year!

THE GOSS SCHOLARSHIP AND CENOTAPH.

Soon after the retirement of Sir John Goss from St. Paul's Cathedral, steps were taken to commemorate his life-work in the cause of English church music. The testimonial took the form of a Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music 'for a choir boy intending to enter the profession, and taking the organ as his principal study.' The trust deed was presented to Sir John Goss in the Chapter House, St. Paul's, on April 14, 1875; the first two holders of the Scholarship were Mr. Ernest Ford (1875) and Mr. Edwin H. Lemare (1878). On the sixth anniversary of his death a cenotaph, to the memory of the distinguished composer, was unveiled in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral. In this connection the following letter from Mr. Hamo Thornycroft, R.A., to [redacted], dated '18 March, 1901,' may be quoted:—

I am in receipt of your letter of 17th. The memorial was designed by Mr. John Belcher, A.R.A., the architect, and the centre panel, which is in marble, was modelled and carved by me. I selected four or five of the St. Paul's choir boys and they came and sat to me in my studio, but their names I do not recollect.

Yours faithfully,

HAMO THORNYCROFT.

We give a photograph of this chaste and very beautiful memorial. It is not without interest to place on record that one of the St. Paul's choristers who sat to Mr. Hamo Thornycroft was Charles Macpherson, now sub-organist of the Cathedral.

ANTHEMS.

The following is an attempt at a complete list, with dedications, &c., of the anthems composed by Sir John Goss.

Almighty and everlasting God. Congregational Church Music.

Almighty and merciful God. A setting of the Collect for the 13th Sunday after Trinity. 1858.

And the King said to all the people. Dirge. The words selected and altered by Dean Milman. Composed (with 'If we believe') for the State funeral of the Duke of Wellington, in St. Paul's Cathedral, November 18, 1852, and performed with orchestral accompaniment of wind instruments.

Behold, I bring you good tidings. THE MUSICAL TIMES, December, 1857.

Blessed is the man that considereth the poor and needy. 1854. (MS.)

Blessed is the man that hath not walked in the counsel of the ungodly. 1842, but first published in Sir Frederick Ouseley's Collection, 1861.

Brother, thou art gone before us. Dean Milman's words. Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, May 17, 1865, and dedicated to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, who was a Steward on that occasion. (The first movement of this anthem was subsequently adapted to the words, 'Lord, let me know mine end.')

Christ is risen from the dead. Congregational Church Music.

Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us. Easter. Written for THE MUSICAL TIMES, March, 1857, at the request of the then proprietor.

Come and let us return unto the Lord. National Humiliation, 1866.

Enter not into judgment. The Office of Praise, 1870.

Fear not, O land. Harvest. Words selected by the Rev. Precentor Dickson. 1863.

Forsake me not. (MS.)

God so loved the world. Contributed to Sacred Harmony, edited by Henry John Haycraft, A.R.A.M., 1851.

Have mercy upon me, O God. Gresham Prize Anthem, 1833. Inscribed to Thomas Attwood, by 'his gratefully attached pupil.'

Hear, O Lord, and have mercy. 1865.

Hosanna, for unto us is born this day. Congregational Church Music.

I am the Resurrection and the Life.

If we believe that Jesus died. Composed for the State funeral of the Duke of Wellington, in St. Paul's Cathedral, November 18, 1852. (See also, 'And the King said.')

I heard a voice from heaven. Dedicated to his son, the Rev. John Goss, Vicar-Choral of Hereford Cathedral, and Vicar of S. John Baptist Church (the Lady Chapel), Hereford, who died September 27, 1877.

In Christ dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead. Circumcision. Sir Frederick Ouseley's Collection, 1861.

I will magnify Thee, O God, my King. Harvest. 1864.

Let the wicked forsake his way. Contributed to Sacred Harmony, edited by Henry John Haycraft, A.R.A.M., 1851.

Let Thy merciful ear. Congregational Church Music.

Lift up thine eyes round about. Double choir. Epiphany. Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, 1863. Dedicated to the Rev. Francis Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal.

Lord, let me know mine end. (See Brother, thou art gone before us.)

My voice shalt Thou hear in the morning, O Lord. Congregational Church Music.

O give thanks unto the Lord. Dedicated to Henry Buckland. Composed for the Special Sunday evening choir of St. Paul's Cathedral, 1866.

O Lord God, Thou strength of my health. Composed for the funeral of Admiral the Earl of Dundonald, in Westminster Abbey, November 14, 1860.

O Lord, grant the Queen a long life. Composed in celebration of the Coronation of Queen Victoria, 1838.

O Lord, Thou art my God. 1868. In MS., but shortly to be published by Messrs. Novello.

O praise the Lord, laud ye the Name of the Lord. Composed for the enthronement of the Bishop of London (Dr. Tait), December 4, 1856, and sung in procession from the West door to the Choir.

O praise the Lord of heaven. Dedicated to J. Joyce Murray, Esq. This anthem has a footnote to the following effect: 'The first phrase taken inadvertently from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul."' 1868.

O Saviour of the World. Dedicated to his friend, Joseph Barnby, Esq. 1869.

O taste and see how gracious the Lord is. Composed expressly for and inscribed to the members of the special Sunday evening choir of St. Paul's Cathedral. 1863.

Praise the Lord, O my soul. Dedicated to H. C. Hextall, Esq. Composed for the Bi-centenary Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, St. Paul's, 1854, and sung (on May 10) with orchestral accompaniment of wind instruments.

SIR JOHN GOSS, KNT.
MUS: DOC: CANTAB: COMPOSER TO H.M. CHAPELS ROYAL
FOR 34 YEARS ORGANIST & VICAR CHORAL OF THIS CATHL
BORN 27TH DECR 1800. DIED 10TH MAY 1880.

THE CENOTAPH TO THE MEMORY OF SIR JOHN GOSS IN THE CRYPT OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

Praise waiteth for Thee, O God, in Sion. A new handbook of anthems, 1862.

Stand up, and bless the Lord your God. The words selected by the Rev. Dr. John Jebb. Composed for the re-opening of Hereford Cathedral, June 30, 1863.

The glory of the Lord shall endure for ever. Dedicated to Captain Malton. Composed for the seventh annual Festival of the Richmond and Kingston Church Choral Association, 1869.

The Lord is my strength and my song. Composed for the Thanksgiving Service in St. Paul's for the recovery of the Prince of Wales, February 27, 1872, and dedicated to Queen Victoria.

The Queen shall rejoice. Composed in honour of the marriage of Queen Victoria. 1840.

There is none like unto the God of Jeshurun. Unfinished, completed by his pupil, Sir Arthur Sullivan.

These are they which follow the Lamb. Composed for the Feast of the Holy Innocents, 1859. Contributed to Sir Frederick Ouseley's Collection, 1861.

The Wilderness. Dedicated to the Rev. W. C. F. Webber, Sub-dean and Succentor of St. Paul's, the words selected by him. 1861.

Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? Congregational Church Music.

Will God in very deed? Congregational Church Music.

In addition to the information already given in regard to 'Praise the Lord, O my soul,' the following remarks upon three other anthems may be found interesting. The copy of 'O praise the Lord of heaven' which Goss gave to Sir John Stainer is thus endorsed in the composer's own hand: 'The "quotation" from St. Paul was not noticed by me until the anthem was engraved. J. G.' The familiar setting of 'O taste and see' was first sung at the special Sunday Evening Service at St. Paul's, on February 15, 1863. The Guardian, in commenting upon the service, said:—

The anthem, 'O taste and see how gracious the Lord is' (34th Psalm, 8, 9, 10), was also sung for the first time at these services. To these words Mr. Goss has composed graceful and expressive music, admirably suited for performance by the numerous and chiefly amateur choir, for which it was recently written by the talented theorist and composer. This little anthem is in good form; the music lies well within the compass of ordinary voices, the tenor part not ranging higher than D, and the harmony is chiefly diatonic.

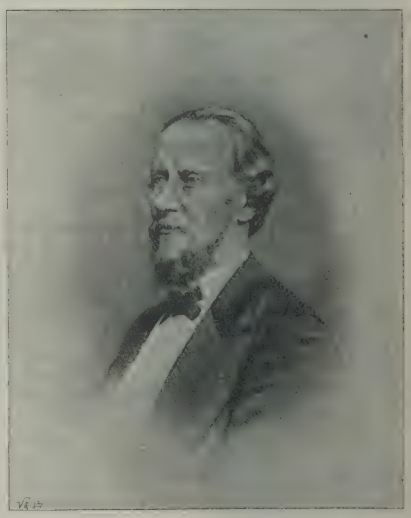
'O SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD.'

His wonderfully expressive anthem, 'O Saviour of the World,' owed its origin to the late Sir Joseph Barnby. 'I was very much struck,' remarked Barnby to the present writer, 'with the beauty of those words in the Order for the visitation of the sick—O Saviour of the World. One day I was sitting with Goss in the organ loft of the Chapel Royal, to which he was Composer. I handed him a prayer-book, and, pointing to the passage, said: "I wish you would set these words to music." Goss, after reading them, replied: "You try your hand." "No," I said, "words like those should be set by an older man than I—one who has had a deeper experience of life."' Goss eventually acceded to Barnby's request and composed the anthem. Barnby finished the story by saying, not without just a touch of pride, 'he dedicated it to me.' The original folio edition bears the inscription: 'To his friend, Joseph Barnby, Esq.'

In addition to the compositions already referred to, mention must be made of his fine Services in C, D (two settings), A, F, and E, and the Burial Service in E minor, hymn tunes, carols, and chants, all of which, while written in the true church style, are as melodiously beautiful as they are devotionally impressive. The double chant in E, the setting of Lyte's words 'Praise, my soul, the King of heaven,' and the carol, 'See, amid the winter's snow,' for example, are models of congregational church music.

GEORGE COOPER.

No biography on Sir John Goss could be considered complete without even a bare mention of his deputy-organist, George Cooper (1820-1876), who was his faithful assistant at St. Paul's for nearly thirty years. Cooper was



GEORGE COOPER (1820-1876).

SUB-ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL FROM 1834 TO 1876.

(Reproduced by kind permission of the Vicars-Choral and Assistant Vicars-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral.)

not only one of the greatest organists of his day, but he had some very distinguished pupils—e.g., Sir John Stainer, Sir Arthur Sullivan, and Sir Walter Parratt.

GOSS AND THE DEAN AND CHAPTER.

Much has been said, often to the disparagement of Goss, as to the state of the music at St. Paul's during his organistship. But in justice to him it must be recorded that he tried again and again to rouse the Dean and Chapter to their responsibilities, but without success. Here, for instance, is a specimen of the letters—doubtless one of many—he wrote to the Cathedral powers that be, on a subject that was constantly giving him the greatest anxiety :—

15, Clarewood Terrace, Brixton,
January 29, 1870.

Very Revd. Sir,

In answer to your question—what is the smallest number of voices requisite for the due performance of Choral Service in St. Paul's Cathedral? I beg to say that at least 18 adults and from 24 to 30 boys should be present at every service, to give anything like proper effect to the music.

With this number of good trained voices, under proper discipline, our daily service, instead of being a humiliation and disgrace to all concerned (as it is now), might be made a worthy pattern for the whole Diocese.

In the above number I, of course, do not take into account absentors. To allow for such our number should be so much the greater.

I am, Very Rev. Sir,
Your obedient servant,
John Goss,
Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral and Composer to Her Majesty's Chapel Royal.

The Very Rev. the Dean of St. Paul's.

P.S.—I would not lengthen my letter by any unnecessary details, but I do wish to lay stress on the necessity for having in our vast edifice voices of power as well as sweetness.

The ordinary run of volunteers have little power and, what is worse, they have not skill enough to bring out what they have. Witness the comparatively small effect we obtain from our 200 voices at the Special Sunday Evening Services. During the week-days our service is much deadened by the street noises.

J. G.

PUPILS AND LETTERS.

Sir John Goss was a very busy teacher. His professional pupils included Sir Arthur Sullivan, of whom both he and Lady Goss were very fond, Dr. F. H. Cowen, and the two Bridges—Sir Frederick Bridge, of Westminster Abbey, and Dr. Joseph C. Bridge, organist of Chester Cathedral. Sir Frederick Bridge has kindly lent us some letters—and Goss was an excellent letter writer of the old school—he received from his old master. Here is one, in response to a request that he (Goss) should write an introduction to his anthem (altered to) 'Sister, thou art gone before us,' sung in Westminster Abbey, on March 12, 1876, the Sunday after the funeral of Lady Augusta Stanley :—

Clarewood House, Brixton,
March, 1876.

My dear Sir,

I am sorry not to have furnished you with what I did put on paper as a prelude. Believe me it was quite an anxiety to me. I did what was not at all to my liking—failing in previous attempts. I forced myself to try again on Sunday morning, and, good or bad, I completed it, and fully meant to bring it with me to afternoon service.

I may someday shew you what I wrote, but I think so little of it that you will not be allowed even to touch the paper it is written upon.

Ever yours,
John Goss.

Dr. J. F. Bridge.

Those who are familiar with the caligraphy of Sir Frederick Bridge may read between the lines of the following postscript.

P.S. Forgive my question—but whose ink do you use? It must be Waterlow's I fancy.

The following is the origin of a well known sobriquet—Goss being its inventor :—

Clarewood House, Brixton,
July 3, 1875.

My dear Bridge,

I heartily congratulate you on your success in gaining the appointment at Westminster Abbey.

I dine this evening with Stainer at the Albion. He gives his treat (if I understand) as I and past vicars-choral had done before him. If a fitting opportunity offers to give such a toast, I mean to give Westminster Bridge.

Yours sincerely,
John Goss.

GOSS AND THE INCOME TAX COMMISSIONERS.

Sir Frederick Bridge has been kind enough to record, in his own graphic style, the following amusing incident in the life of his old master :—

Goss once told me an amusing episode in his life—an appeal against the Income Tax Commissioners, who had assessed him too highly on his earnings as a teacher, &c. I will try and tell the story of Goss's successful resistance to this action. It contains a moral which may be useful to other people in a similar dilemma.

Goss presented himself before the Commissioners, some of whom knew him personally—and, of course, all knew who he was. Bowing politely to the row of gentlemen Goss approached the table, carrying in his arms a large number of small neat-looking books. These he spread out carefully in front of himself, and arranged in some special order. His proceedings took a little time (for he was not a man to hurry) and excited the curiosity of the Commissioners.

'Well, Mr. Goss,' said the chairman; 'you are here to appeal against the assessment of your income as being too high?'

'Certainly, sir, with your permission,' was the answer.

'Can you give us any idea of the number of lessons you usually give, and the amount you earn?'

'I can give you exact information, sir.'

'Oh, that's capital; we shall soon settle it,' said Mr. Commissioner.

'I hope so, sir,' said Goss, with a bow.

'Well, now, Mr. Goss, go on.'

At this request Goss hunted about among his numerous books (which were diaries, kept with great accuracy, which he wrote up regularly), and, after some time, to the relief of the anxious Commissioners (who had many other applicants to attend to), found the right book. After clearing his throat and wiping his spectacles, Goss proceeded to read out every entry from the beginning of the year which had any relation to his teaching. These, and casual earnings, comprised many entries about 'Miss So-and-so's school,' and the number of lessons given at so much an hour. Then came the deduction for travelling expenses—threepence for a 'bus, or two shillings for a cab (being wet!), profit on music supplied, &c.

Another entry referred to his journey to act as judge in an organ competition, when his profits were reduced by a donation of 1s. he gave to the blower. There were many other interesting items which the applicant read out, and having finished one book, he hunted out for the proper one to follow. This was too much for the Commissioners.

'Do you propose to read us the whole of the entries in those books, Mr. Goss?'

'I propose to prove you have assessed me too highly,' was the reply; and on he went with full particulars of the profits he derived from selecting a piano, which (being a second-hand one) were somewhat complicated!

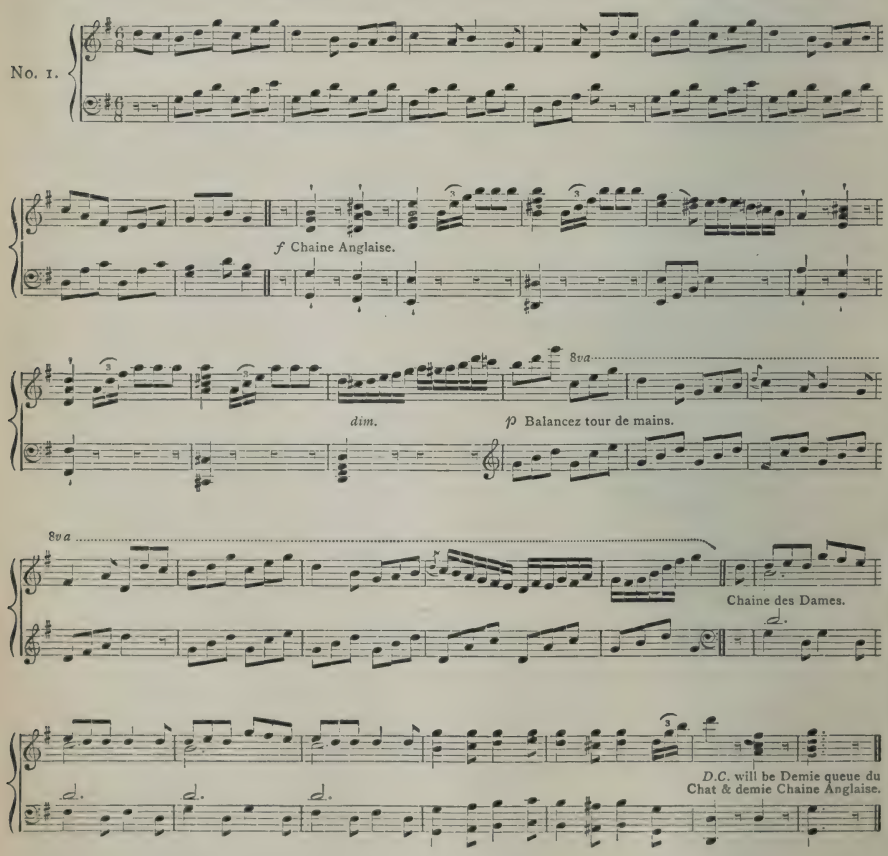
The Commissioners looked blank, and the other applicants outside were furious at being kept. The situation was unbearable, and at last one gentleman said: 'Will you kindly step outside for a moment, Mr. Goss?'

'Certainly, sir,' was the reply; and, after carefully gathering up his books and sorting them, Goss bowed, smiled, and retired.

In a few minutes he was re-admitted and informed that the Commissioners were quite satisfied and would not trouble him to read the rest of his diaries, neither would they raise the amount upon which he had formerly paid. 'Thank you, gentlemen,' was the courteous rejoinder, and Goss retired triumphant. Moral—always keep a diary.

THE SERJEANT'S WIFE.

La Pantalon, or The new Figure by Mrs. Wells, as danced at the Theatre Royal English Opera House.



All eight commence with half set to Partners and cross with right hands. Repeat the same till half round (16 Bars) Half Promenade and turn Partners forming two lines facing your Partners (8 Bars) 1st and 3rd Couples advance and retire twice. Cross over giving right hands. Back with the left (16 Bars). All eight move to right and left (1st Lady facing 2nd Gent.: 1st Gent. facing 2nd Lady &c) and turn with both hands (8 Bars) 2nd and 4th Couples advance and retire twice. Cross over giving right hands. Back with the left (16 Bars). All eight move round in a circle to the right and form line joining hands (the Ladies hands under the Gents. hands over) (8 Bars). All eight move to the right and left with hands join'd (8 Bars) retire and perform the honours.

THE SERJEANT'S WIFE QUADRILLES (FIRST FIGURE). COMPOSED IN 1827, BY JOHN GOSS.

CONSECUTIVE FIFTHS.

Like all great musicians, Goss had no fancy for pedantic discussions of the consecutive-fifth-hunting order. Here is a letter to a professional friend in reply to some criticisms passed on his anthem 'The Wilderness':—

Brighton, 28 July, 1871.

Many thanks for your kind letter. Be assured that I value much both your criticism and your judicious and careful corrections of the proofs of the 'Wilderness.' Doctors however will not always agree. I confess to feeling no objection whatever to such consecutives as you so obligingly quote, between the closing chord of my last Chorus and the Amen—by way of Coda. The pause in the former so deadens the sense of progression, that I would rather alter nothing. Between ourselves I confess though that I am sorry I ever appended an Amen to the Chorus. It would musically be better without one.

Let me now reply to your several comments.

At page 8 in the Choral Recit. you draw my attention to the octaves G A which I did not object to, as I considered the G to descend to the following F and be a sufficient escape; however, I shall please you by putting an F in the treble; let the A remain for those who still fancy they find a consecutive (which I do not); and I will carry on a C in the bass clef to satisfy you still further (?).

I own I am pretty free in my treatment of the term octaves. To please my eye, at one time I write in the octaves in notes, at another I indicate that they may be or must be continued by the sign 8ve. I know of course that the hands cannot at times reach all the notes, and I expect that the pedals as a rule are used. I do not however mark the word 'pedals' in general—and I scarcely wish anyone to be at the Organ when my music is going on, if he is unable to follow my meaning. . . . I am really much obliged to you, and especially re the consecutives, which candidly I had left as explainable.

Yours very truly,

John Goss.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Sampson (our composer's eldest daughter), we are enabled to give the first figure of her father's 'Serjeant's Wife Quadrilles,' which will serve to illustrate the lighter side of his musicianship, and at the same time furnish fresh proof of his gift of melody in simple dance tunes.

PERSONALITY.

In conclusion, no better estimate of the personality of John Goss could be furnished than that written by his distinguished successor at St. Paul's, and which formed part of the excellent obituary notice the late Sir John Stainer contributed to these columns in the issue of June 1880.

'That Goss was a man of religious life was patent to all who came in contact with him, but an appeal to the general effect of his sacred compositions offers public proof of the fact. It is not less true in music than in other arts, that the artist writes his character in his works. In uncouth modulations and combinations can be traced the man who wishes to be thought original; in over-wrought tone-colouring the bad taste of a man who, had he been trusted with a paint-brush instead of a pen, would have revelled in violent contrasts and in the grotesque; in pedantries and conventional clever tricks stands out the man who is anxious to be thought learned, and values artifice more than art. A careful study and familiar knowledge of the sacred compositions of Goss leaves a very definite feeling that their author was a man of refined thought, religious in life, possessing a keen appreciation of the resources of his art tempered by a firm resolution to use them only in a legitimate manner. There is that gentleness and repose about them which eminently characterised the man himself. His disposition was tender and sweet; an unkindness or rough word did not rouse, it wounded him. He treated all others with consideration and goodness, and seemed hurt when he had occasion to realise the fact that others did not always treat him in the same way. He loved quietness, and valued the affection of others.'

Grateful acknowledgment is made to the following for their kind help in preparing this biographical sketch of Sir John Goss:—

Mrs. Sampson (his eldest daughter), Sir Frederick Bridge, Mr. John S. Bumpus (for much valued assistance), Mr. Burnham Horner, Mr. C. T. Johnson, Mr. Charles Lockey, Mr. F. W. Renaut, Secretary of the Royal Academy of Music, Mr. Eugene Spinney, Organist of Fareham Church, and Mr. T. Lea Southgate.

F. G. E.

MUSIC IN THE ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

A rough analysis of the various pictures in the present exhibition of the Royal Academy which bear upon the kindred art of music indicates that the favourite instrument of painters is the lyre, their favourite musician Orpheus. This is, perhaps, natural enough, for in early days there was a closer connection between the different manifestations of the artistic faculty; the musician was not satisfied that his instrument should be well-sounding, it must also be well-looking. But as art progressed there came the tendency to specialise: instruments as they improved in tone became less decorative in appearance, and the cottage pianoforte, adorned like a cheerful coffin, but with a tone that would have terrified the players on the beautifully decorated clavichords of olden times, is the last outcome of civilization. Nay, not the very last, for it must in fairness be added that there has been awakening of late; not only have millionaires commissioned Royal Academicians to design and adorn their grand pianofortes, but manufacturers are providing instruments that will harmonize with their surroundings, whether they be Louis XV., or Chippendale, or the unrestrained and irresponsible efforts of the 'Arts and Crafts' school.

In attempting a sketchy review of the musical subjects treated in the pictures now at Burlington House, it may be convenient if they are sorted in a rough series of periods.

There are, first, the prehistoric and archaic subjects, then come the historic times, when persons in picturesque costume strummed on lutes and tinkled on spinets, and lastly we come to modern times, beginning with the violin and ending with the concert grand.

We find the lyre, most ancient, most formly, but surely feeblest of instruments, figuring in five different works. Two of these relate to Orpheus, whose story would seem to show that the powers of the virtuoso to rouse the enthusiasm of his hearers are not limited by any imperfections of his instrument. In Mr. George Wetherbee's 'Orpheus' (423) the instrument is the primitive 'chelys,' a small form of lyre, apparently made of a pair of antelope's horns with the shell of a tortoise as the sounding-board. In this case there are but three strings, so that the resources of the performer must have been exceedingly limited, and we may rest assured that in his time at least there was no danger of the voice being smothered by the accompaniment! Of the power of his song, however, there is no room for doubt, and in the present picture we find it has attracted an attentive audience of sirens and little fishes in the stream on whose bank Orpheus is performing. We are told that the wood-nymphs were his constant companions, but that Eurydice was the only one who made a lasting impression on his heart. Everyone knows the story of his constant affection for her, thanks in a large measure to Gluck, but the sequel is less familiar. According to the faithful Lemprière, Orpheus, when finally bereft of his spouse, withdrew from the society of mankind, and the Thracian women, who had been accustomed to attend his recitals, and mob him in the artists' room with pressing requests for autographs, were so offended at his disregard for their attentions, that they waylaid him, tore him into pieces, and threw into the Hebrus his head, which still articulated the beloved name 'Eurydice!' as it was carried into the Ægean sea. History repeats itself, and virtuosi are still occasionally pulled to pieces by their lady friends, though generally behind their backs, while it is anything but uncommon for injudicious admirers to make them lose their heads. The last incident in the career of Orpheus has been taken by Mr. J. W. Waterhouse for illustration in 'Nymphs finding the head of Orpheus' (231). Here the lyre, floating near the head, is of a more advanced type, being what is more strictly styled a cithar, or kithara. I cannot forbear adding, though it is beyond my present purpose to discuss the quality of the art in the pictures, that the two just mentioned are of exceptionally high quality from a technical and æsthetic standpoint.

The classical lyre appeared in three more works, two paintings and a statue. Mr. F. J. Waugh's 'Springtime and Song' (805) is the first of these, Mr. Sydney Carter's 'A Summer Song' (471) the second. In the latter a maiden, 'clothed in chastity,' is playing on a five-stringed instrument, while in Mr. Horace Montford's fine piece of sculpture, 'A hymn to Demeter' (1,707), the lyre has seven strings, indicating a much higher degree of perfection.

Next to the lyre in the estimation of the ancients came the flute. The one is more closely associated with the Greeks, who especially cultivated vocal music, and used it for the purpose of accompanying their songs, the other was more particularly affected by the Romans. The musician in Sir L. Alma Tadema's picture, 'Under the Roof of blue Ionian weather' (220), who is delighting his hearers, especially two charmingly painted girls, by his performance on the flute, is playing on an ivory instrument, with a raised mouthpiece. It is a true flute according to the modern idea, not the reed instrument with a mouthpiece at the end, in form like the flute à bec or the flageolet, which was very popular in ancient times. Such an instrument is seen in Miss Ella Casella's 'Euterpe' (1,721), one of the small reliefs in coloured wax which she and her sister have made a specialty. In this case it is the double flute, or diaulos, which is being played by the Muse who was regarded as the inventor of the instrument. The conservatism of Oriental nations is illustrated by the appearance of practically the same instrument in the modern Egyptian band represented in Mr. Goodall's 'Snake-charmer, Cairo' (185), in which the music is provided by three performers, one having a double flageolet, the second a six-stringed lyre, not unlike that given to Orpheus in Mr. Wetherbee's picture, and the third, a girl, representing the percussion department on a tambourine. This is scarcely a less crude orchestral combination than the purely fanciful band which, according to Mr. Boughton's imaginative picture, supplies 'The music in the pines' (193); and it is indeed a curious coincidence that he has hit upon an idea which is translated into present-day fact in Mr. Goodall's picture hanging a yard or two away. Again we have the double-pipes, again the lyre, also of six strings, and the only difference is that the percussion is represented by cymbals instead of tambourine, so that the relation of fiction to fact could hardly be closer! As another illustration of barbaric music may be cited Mr. Oliver Wheatley's statue, 'Awakening' (1,817), a recumbent figure of an Egyptian girl-musician, with the typical Egyptian harp by her side; and a piece of sculpture deserving mention here is 'Song and Dance' (1,815), a decorative group for a fountain, by Mr. George Simonds, the dancers being three flamingoes, performing a solemn and stately pas de trois round the base of the fountain.

The Lorelei myth, which takes us to rather later times than the corresponding one of Orpheus, has furnished the subject matter of one picture, by Mr. Isaac Snowman (529).

The dangerously seductive songstress seems to have a bodyguard of eagles, and here for the last time we come across the lyre, and that in its purely classical form.

This old German legend of the Rhine brings us, by an easy transition, to mediæval times. The minstrel's harp is now the favourite instrument, and it appears in two pictures, both of which are somewhat theatrical in effect. "The Cloister and the World" (392), which is the title of a painting by Mr. G. Sheridan Knowles, suggests a dramatic contrast that has often been serviceable to painters. Here we have a harpist entertaining a party of four ladies and a gentleman grouped about a carved marble bench, by which a monk is passing. The second picture, 'The Bard' (435), by Mr. George E. Robertson, is best described by the couplet given in the catalogue:

> The bard awakes his lays, and tuneful string,
> To noble deeds wrought by the aged King.

The situation rather suggests Uhland's famous ballad of 'The Minstrel's Curse,' though the quotation is apparently from some other source, for the 'aged King' seems by no means exhilarated by the recital of his youthful prowess, in which the minstrel accompanies himself on a harp of nine strings. After the harp of the minstrel, the lute becomes the popular instrument, and it appears in three pictures at Burlington House. I take it that the instrument on which a musician plays in Miss Eleanor F. Brickdale's quaintly didactic picture, 'The deceitfulness of riches' (449), is an early form of lute, with seven or eight strings, one of the small instruments, not unlike a mandoline, on which the troubadours of the thirteenth century accompanied their songs. The fully developed lute is seen in Mr. S. Goetze's 'The echo of a voice' (406), in which a mysterious vocalist, whose face is shadowed by a capacious hood, awakens the memories of the lady seated near him, probably betrothed, if not wedded, to the gallant who is, physically as well as morally, 'between them.' Still more accurately presented is the lute played by Mr. Seymour Lucas's cleverly drawn figure in his little picture, entitled 'The nimble Galliard' (33). The lively strains of this dance measure, which the severe old Pretorius styled 'an invention of the devil,' are happily reflected in the jovial aspect of the player. Last of the obsolete instruments come the precursors of the modern pianoforte, the clavichord, spinet, and harpsichord. In the water-colour room there is Mr. Rudolf Lehmann's 'The world forgetting, by the world forgot' (1,112), in which a monk fingers an old clavichord or spinet of quaint design, while his older brother is turning over one of the large manuscript service books which could be read by half-a-dozen choir boys at a time. An instrument of the same type is seen in a drawing in the Black and White section, 'Music' (1463), by Mr. A. W. Cooper.

We now come to modern days. The violin and its family appear a good many times, sometimes in 'subject pictures,' sometimes in portraits, and sometimes in paintings that savour of both these types. 'The Gipsy' (315), by Mrs. S. A. Forbes, presents what a character in the latest Savoy operetta politely styles 'an impecunious violinist,' alias a poor fiddler, with her instrument by her side. In 'A Rehearsal' (439), by Mr. W. B. Fortescue, the scene is a ship's cabin, in which a brace of musical tars are apparently scraping acquaintance with an unfamiliar duet for violin and violoncello. And in a piece of still life, 'Old friends' (641), by Miss C. M. Wood, a violin lies in the company of an old fashioned German flute. The violin appears again in a portrait of Miss Norah Nicolas (279), by Mr. R. Lance Owtram, a charming work, suggestive of harmony of tones in two senses, in which the subject is seated with a violin in her lap, while a pianist is seen in the background. Another portrait, of Miss Dorothy Crompton (415), is by Miss Gertrude Homan, the sitter being in this instance a young violoncellist, who plays from an oblong quarto manuscript book that excites one's curiosity.

Chief among the pianists portrayed is the life-size picture, by Mr. C. M. Q. Orchardson, of a lady playing by lamplight, entitled 'Memories' (520). The humorous vein is displayed in Mrs. F. Mura's little picture, 'When the cat's away, the mice will play' (484), in which the housemaids are indulging in 'a little music' on their own account. In a very different vein is Mr. H. J. Stock's water-colour drawing, 'Listening to Brahms' (1,187), in which the rapt attention of the listener is well suggested. The zither appears in two pictures, the more conspicuous being Mr. von Herkomer's very dashing study, 'A zither evening with my students in my studio' (605), which is remarkable for its force, but gives one the impression that the students form a rather unsympathetic and restless audience. As a piece of minute water-colour technique, Miss Lilian Rowney's miniature of 'The Zither Player' (1,335) deserves notice; there is a remarkable sense of reality about the instrument.

There are not many pictures suggested by musical works, and of these the most important by far is Mr. H. J. Draper's 'Tristram and Iseult' (561), which, though presumably suggested by the legend, is equally illustrative of the scene in the great music-drama in which the lovers drink of the magic potion. Mr. Draper has stage-managed his picture excellently, for he is of course not fettered by stage conventions and necessities. In the fore part of the vessel the crew are bending to the oars, and the lovers are hidden from their sight by the great bellying sail spread to catch the favouring wind. As in the drama, Brangäne is there, overwhelmed by the near approach of this great crisis. In the same room is

Mr. Campbell Smith's very remarkable and powerful picture illustrating the ballad of 'The twa Corbies' (568):—

> His hound is to the huntin' gane,
> His hawk to fetch the wild foul hame,
> His lady's ta'en anither mate,
> Sae we may mak' our dinner, sweet.

And another familiar ditty, 'Come lasses and lads!' (798), furnishes the subject and title of a clever picture by Mr. J. Y. Hunter. 'In the Venusberg' (794), by the Hon. J. Collier, is an entirely fresh version, but hardly an improvement, on the scene in 'Tannhäuser,' and Mr. Frank Dicksee's 'Yseult' (52) does not throw any light on the heroine of Wagner's music-drama, if indeed she be the same personage, for there were, of course, two Yseults in the original legend.

Finally, attention must be called to portraits of two personages well known in the musical world. Mr. Watkin Mills's portrait, by Mr. Percy Bigland (800), requires no name for its immediate identification, for it is an unmistakable likeness of the famous baritone. The other is a likeness of Canon Pemberton (1,806), the conductor of the Hovingham Festivals, who is in the New Gallery depicted on perishable canvas by Mr. Llewellyn, but is in the Sculpture room of Burlington House (1,806) immortalized by Miss Ethel Bower in the 'perennial bronze' of a well-modelled medallion.

Herbert Thompson.

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

Influence has played no small part in the world's history, and though talent, not to say genius, will invariably raise its head, a friendly hand to lead the way to the opportunity road is not to be despised. So thought Arthur Sullivan, when, as a young man of twenty-one, he wrote the following letter to the great and mighty Michael Costa:—

47, Claverton Terrace,
St. George's Road, S.W.
February 15, 1864.

My Dear Mr. Costa,

You have always been so kind and helpful to me that I do not hesitate to come again to you now to ask your counsel and assistance.

Some good friends of mine at Birmingham have been using their influence to bring my name before the Festival Committee in order to procure me the honour of having some work of mine performed next September. They have so far succeeded in disposing the Committee to listen favourably, that I am quite convinced that if you were to say a word on my behalf I should have the privilege of composing something for the next Birmingham Festival (of which I should not be a little proud). In this case I need scarcely say how grateful I should be, if, through your instrumentality, my name were to come before the public under such honourable circumstances, and I would try and write my very best, in order to bring no discredit upon your recommendation.

You have nearly finished your Oratorio, I suppose, as you will have little time to write when the Opera begins. We are all very anxious to hear it as we expect great things from it. You told me once that you thought it was the best thing you had done.

Hoping that you are in good health and spirits, I am

My dear Mr. Costa, with all esteem,
Yours very sincerely,
Arthur S. Sullivan.

The Costa oratorio was 'Naaman' and Sullivan was represented at the Festival by his 'Kenilworth' cantata. The above letter is from the fine collection of Mr. T. W. Taphouse, by whose kindness we are enabled to print this interesting communication.

'Adeste Fideles' is one of those familiar tunes which have given antiquaries much trouble without any very satisfactory results. It is reputed to be the composition of John Reading (1677-1764), not the John Reading of Dulce Domum fame. The fact that more than one John Reading distinguished himself in music has led astray unwary seekers after truth. Indeed, one investigator, in giving the date of the tune as 1680, goes on to describe the John Reading who was then three years old! The latest information on the subject, though it does not remove the obscurity which surrounds the origin of the tune, is interesting. It is to be found in Messrs. Cowan and Love's 'The music of the Church Hymnary,' which we review in another column. The first known appearance of 'Adeste Fideles' in print is contained in 'An Essay on the Church Plain Chant' (London, 1782), a practically unknown book to which we referred in connection with the tune 'Melcombe' in our issue of September last, p. 602. With the above as a preliminary, Messrs. Cowan and Love may speak for themselves:—

Although the Essay on the Church Plain Chant [1782] is at present the earliest book known to contain 'Adeste Fideles,' it is found in manuscripts of older date. The earliest of these yet discovered is a volume preserved at Stonyhurst College, Lancashire. It is the work of John Francis Wade, a priest who seems to have employed himself in writing out music for Roman Catholic families and institutions. The volume is entitled:

Cantus Diversi pro Dominicis et Festis per annum. Gloria Patri. Post Introitum. Kyrie. Gloria in excelsis. Credo. Sanctus and Agnus Dei. Cum Hymnis et Antiphonis ad Elevationem and Benedictionem. Et ex præcordiis sonent præconia. Nicolaus King, Ejus Cantus. Joannes Franciscus Wade, Scriptor. Anno Domini, MDCCLI.

The 'Adeste Fideles' in four stanzas, with the music repeated to each, is the second last piece in the volume, and is headed 'In Nativitate Domini Hymnus.'

The words of the hymn have not been found in any manuscript or book of earlier date than that just described . . . the conclusion seems to be that the hymn and tune came into use together, in the services of the Roman Catholic Church, during the first part of the eighteenth century; that they were in circulation in manuscript before they appeared in print, but that nothing definite can as yet be stated as to the author of either words or music.

Thus we get a definite date, 1751, as to the existence of 'Adeste Fideles.' Perhaps some other 'grubber brudder,' fired by the rivalry natural to the species, will further investigate the tune and its origin and discover a still earlier date.

The R.A.M. Club Magazine for May contains an interesting account of 'A Colonial Examination Tour,' by Mr. Stewart Macpherson, who went to Canada, New Zealand, Queensland, and the northern part of New South Wales as an examiner for the Associated Board. His first task upon arrival at the Antipodes was to examine 700 theory papers. Some of the answers to the questions in the Elements of Music paper were distinctly amusing, e.g.—

Q. Define an Arpeggio?

A. A chord, the bottom note of which is shaken alternately with those above.

A running chord; all the notes run after one another.

Q. Define Enharmonic?

A. An unagreeable sound in a piece of music.

Means that the Harmonic is turned into Enharmonic, and is to be played over again when the notes do not sound harmonious or true to the ear.

Q. Give the meaning of sf?

A. Sol-forte = solemn and loud.

To the simple enquiry, 'What is the Italian term for the slowest tempo in music?' one fair candidate philosophically replied: 'Rallentando—i.e., gradually getting slower and slower, therefore it must be slowest in the end'! Advance, Australia!

In a recent examination of high repute—which need not be specified—one of the 'questions' consisted of a number of abbreviations of Italian words used in music which the candidates were asked to write out in full. Among them was the contraction 'mert.' This so puzzled one of our correspondents—a fair candidate who, we are very glad to learn, passed—that she wrote to us asking for an elucidation of the mysterious letters. As the result of enquiry we find that that dreadful boy—how he should tremolo—actually reversed the four letters, thus turning what should have been 'trem.' into 'mert.'! Those candidates who worked the few papers in which this curious contraction occurred were, we understand, allowed the benefit of the misprint, and it is to be hoped they duly obtained their certificates of 'mert.,' abbreviationally speaking. By the way, one candidate—he must have been a man—un-abbreviated the familiar indication pf as più forzando, on the analogy of rf. To adopt an Italian abbreviation, that candidate was probably pizz.

The vocabulary of musical critics is so limited that any additions thereto should be regarded with favour, providing, of course, they appear in a suitable dress (or address). To speak of Mr. Alfred Gibson as a 'perfect fifth,' he being the extra man in the Joachim Quartet when a quintet was performed, was a very happy thought; but when we are told that 'Mr. Mancinelli conducted with his usual authority and address,' we are a little puzzled. Does 'his usual address' refer to his private address? We have heard of old-time conductors beating time with a roll of music, but not with a visiting card.

The London County Council has this year decided to increase the grant for music in the parks and open spaces under its control by £1,000. This will enable the Parks department to increase the number of performers and to keep the season open from May 16 to Michaelmas Day. The combined bands, consisting of the 108 performers specially engaged by the Council, gave a 'dress rehearsal' at Queen's Hall, on the 15th ult., when they furnished abundant proof of their fitness to give pleasure to Londoners and others during the summer. The hand of the new Musical Adviser to the Council, Mr. Carl Armbruster, may be traced in the excellent programme performed on the above occasion, which is a great advance on previous years. If, as may be assumed, it is a specimen selection, the educational value of these performances will be greatly increased while their enjoyment will by no means be lessened. The programme was furnished with brief annotations. It is to be hoped that this feature will find its way into the ordinary programmes of the 1,131 performances to be given at fifty-seven different places during the season.

Here is the programme performed at Queen's Hall on the 15th ult.:—

1. Fackeltanz 'The Princess Royal' .. Meyerbeer.
   (Composed for the Wedding of the Empress Frederic, Dowager Empress of Germany.)
2. Overture .. .. 'Rienzi' .. .. Wagner.
3. Three Dances from 'Henry VIII.' Edward German.
4. Andante con Moto from 'The Unfinished Symphony in B minor' .. .. .. Schubert.
5. Overture, 'The Land of the Mountain and the Flood' .. .. .. Hamish MacCunn.
6. Allegretto Scherzando from the 8th Symphony .. .. Beethoven.
7. Ballet Airs in 'Faust' .. .. .. Gounod.
8. Peer Gynt Suite .. .. Grieg.
9. Grand Operatic Selection, 'Reminiscences of Rossini' .. .. F. Godfrey.
10. Overtura di Ballo .. .. Sullivan.

'God save the King.'

The half-score of pieces were capitally played under the direction of Mr. Armbruster, Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Macdonald, and Mr. Mackinnon, the last three name being highly suggestive of 'The Land of the Mountain and the Flood.'

Those boys—there is a trio of them—have been at it again. They hail, or shower their typical comicalities from an English University city, our Great Naval rendezvous, and—must it be said?—London. Here they are, in the order above named:—

1. Miss —— played violin solos by Tscharknosky and Wienramski.
2. Symphony, 'The Cellinor' (Beethoven).
3. The test pieces were taken from Sullivan and from Wagner's 'I Puritani.'

Yet two more, from Leipzig, as contained in the Zeitschrift der Internationalen Musikgesellschaft for last month. The address of an English member of the Society is given as

Ressal School, Heetwood, Lanes, and a biographical article which recently appeared in a certain English musical journal is indexed as

Sir John Gots.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie conducted his 'Ravenswood' Overture and Violin Concerto (soloist, Mr. Hans Wessely) at the 360th Symphony concert given by the Municipal Orchestra of Bournemouth, on the 6th ult., both works being well received. We may take this opportunity of again calling attention to the excellent work Mr. Dan Godfrey, Jun., is doing for music in Bournemouth. It appears that during the sixth series of sixty symphony concerts just concluded, no less than 223 different works have been given, including fourteen first performances in England, and eighty-five pieces for the first time in the popular watering-place. Moreover, forty-two works by British composers have been played, many of these having been conducted by their composers. This and the fact that all the symphonies of Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Dvorák, Brahms, and Tschaïkowsky have been included, is in the highest degree gratifying. If the enthusiastic Bournemouth conductor were under examination we should ungrudgingly award him full marks—and a few over.

Purcell's 'Fairy Queen' was produced at the Queen's (or Dorset Garden) Theatre in 1692, and repeated in the following year with several additions. In 1701, six years after Purcell's death, an advertisement appeared in the London Gazette (October 9-13) offering a reward of twenty guineas for the 'score, or a copy thereof.' This advertisement was repeated several times, but in vain. Some of the 'Fairy Queen' songs were published during the life-time of the composer, and much of the instrumental music in 'Ayres for the Theatre,' published by his widow, enough to give a fair, though certainly not full idea of the original work. The complete score has now, after two hundred years, been found in the library of the Royal Academy of Music, evidently the very copy used at the performance or performances of the work in 1693. But a special interest attaches to the score in that some of the music is in the handwriting of Purcell himself. In the Athenæum of May 25 there is a letter from Mr. W. Barclay Squire, of the British Museum, attesting this fact. That paper also states that the volume contains the names of R. J. S. Stevens, the well-known glee composer and Gresham Professor, and William Savage. Stevens was the pupil of Savage, and the latter of Dr. Pepusch. It seems, then, as if the score came in some way or other into the possession of Handel's predecessor at Cannons.

A performance of the work mentioned above will be given, under the direction of Mr. J. S. Shedlock, at St. George's Hall, Langham Place, on the 15th inst., at 3.30. The vocalists at present engaged are Miss Evangeline Florence and Mr. Denis O'Sullivan, and Mr. S. Beel will be leading violinist. The chorus will consist of members of the Purcell Operatic Society, by arrangement with Mr. Martin Fallas Shaw and Mr. Edward Gordon Craig, and the accompaniments will be those of 'strings, wind, and harpsichord.' Explanatory comments will be given by Mr. E. F. Jacques. There should be a large audience to hear this interesting work of our great native composer.

A large number of the friends and admirers of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan having expressed a desire that his memory should be perpetuated by some appropriate form of memorial, both visible to the public and useful to the musical profession, it was determined at a meeting held at the Savoy Hotel, on the 17th ult., to form an executive committee, which was forthwith constituted for the purpose of fulfilling the three following objects:—

1. The erection of a monument in St. Paul's Cathedral, the Dean and Chapter having graciously given their consent to this proposal.

2. The endowment of a Scholarship, to be called the Arthur Sullivan Scholarship, to be alternately within the gift of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music.

3. The placing in some public position (the Embankment Gardens, immediately in front of the Savoy Theatre, was a position which found favour) of a statue or bust of Sir Arthur Sullivan, if the necessary permission can be obtained from the First Commissioner of Works.

The meeting was called and presided over in a most able manner by Mr. Charles W. Matthews. Among those present were Sir George Martin, Sir Squire Bancroft, Dr. F. H. Cowen, Mr. T. P. Chappell, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Henry J. Wood, Mr. Frank Cellier, Mr. Alfred Littleton, Mr. John Hare, and Capt. Basil Hood, and about £500 was forthwith subscribed towards the fulfilment of the above objects. An account has been opened for the Fund at Lloyd's Bank, Law Courts branch, 222, Strand, into which donations may be paid.

The practicability of Dr. Edward Elgar's setting of 'The Dream of Gerontius' was fully demonstrated at a performance of a selection of the work given by the Worcestershire Philharmonic Society, at the Public Hall, Worcester, on the 9th ult., under the composer's direction. The Worcester amateurs sang well in tune throughout and with real devotional feeling, and the work proved to be well within the capabilities of an intelligent choir. The audience, one of the largest ever assembled in the Hall, was profoundly impressed by the performance, in which Miss Helene Valma, Mr. William Green, and Mr. F. Lightowler were efficient soloists. The concert concluded with a Romance and Bolero for orchestra, composed by Mr. J. W. Austin, Junr., a genial, clever, and well-scored work, which was conducted by the composer, the leader of the orchestra. During its performance the leader of the second violins occupied the place of the principal violin, and Dr. Elgar led the second fiddles.

Dr. Boyce will form the subject of the Biographical Sketch in our next number. The special portrait of the composer will be that which hangs in the Music School at Oxford, and which we believe has not hitherto been reproduced. Important extracts from the interesting and appreciative lectures on the late Sir Arthur Sullivan, delivered by Sir Alexander Mackenzie, at the London Institution, will also be given in the July issue.

Professor Villiers Stanford's new opera, 'Much Ado about Nothing,' was announced to be produced at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, on the 28th ult., too late for notice in the present issue. We hope to give a full report of the work—its music and initial representation—in our July number.

Dr. Percy Carter Buck, organist of Bristol Cathedral since 1899, has been appointed music-master of Harrow School, in succession to Dr. Eaton Faning, who has resigned that important post, which he has held since 1885.

Professor Niecks is announced to deliver the Queen Victoria Lectures at Trinity College (London) on the 20th and 27th inst. The Professor has chosen 'The Ethical Aspects of Music' as the subject of his discourses.

CHURCH AND ORGAN MUSIC.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

The lamented death of Sir John Stainer has prompted several memorial services as a tribute of respect to his life and work in the cause of church music. This was notably the case in America. At All Angels' Church, New York (organist, Mr. Clement R. Gale), the first Presbyterian Church, Chicago (organist, Mr. Francis S. Moore), and Trinity Church, San Francisco (organist, Dr. H. J. Stewart), special services consisting entirely of Sir John Stainer's compositions were most impressively rendered.——At the Parish Church, Falkirk, N.B., of which Mr. James Love is the organist and choirmaster, a similar In memoriam service was held on April 21, when the music, all by Sir John Stainer, was very effectively rendered.——The musical service and organ recital at St. Matthias' Church, Hastings, Barbadoes, on April 23, deserves mention as showing the good work that is being done in the churches in our colonies. Under the direction of Mr. W. D. Bayley, the choirmaster, an excellent selection of music, which included Wesley's 'Blessed be the God and Father,' was performed.——Coming near home, Bach's church cantata, 'Ach Gott, vom Himmel sieh' darein' was sung in Corpus Christi College Chapel, Cambridge, on Sunday, the 5th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. E. S. Roper. There was a small but efficient orchestra of ten performers, which included Dr. Naylor, organist of Emmanuel (one of the violas), and Dr. Sweeting, organist of St. John's (oboist), while Dr. Mann, organist of King's, rendered excellent service at the organ, and played the great Cantor's Prelude and Fugue in C. That the performance was regarded as being very successful is not the least gratifying feature of a service that should have many imitators.——Purcell's Te Deum and Jubilate were sung, with orchestral accompaniment, as the anthem at St. Anne's Church, Soho, at the Evensong of Ascension Day. In an excellent interpretation of Purcell's noble music, the alto soloist displayed his high notes to great advantage, and the trumpet parts were in the safe keeping of Messrs. Morrow and Solomon, who also used their instruments with thrilling effect in the 'Alleluias' of the opening hymn, 'Hail! the day that sees Him rise.' The whole performance was under the able direction of that earnest-minded musician, Mr. E. H. Thorne, organist and choirmaster of St. Anne's.

ALDERMANIC ORGANISTS.

In further response to our enquiry as to instances of church organists and musicians holding Municipal offices, we learn that Alderman Arthur G. Leigh—a reader of The Musical Times for forty years!—has had twenty-one years' continual experience of municipal affairs. Fourteen years ago he was elected Alderman, and he has twice served the office of Mayor of Chorley; moreover, he is the father of the Council, so far as length of service is concerned. Five years ago he resigned the post of organist of St. George's Church, Chorley, which he had held for twenty years, on which occasion he was the recipient of several tokens of the regard in which he is held, both for his musical and municipal attainments. He has raised the sum of £1,000 for the purchase of books for the Free Public Library and edited a tune book. For several years he has been an Overseer of the poor of Chorley. Thus it is abundantly evident that Alderman Leigh has not spared himself in being useful to his fellow men. He fully deserves 'honourable mention' in these columns.

The following letter furnishes yet another candidate for the roll of municipal honour.

TO THE EDITOR OF 'THE MUSICAL TIMES.'

Sir,—The current number of The Musical Times contains a paragraph referring to 'An aldermanic and J.P. organist,' with a note to the effect that it would be of interest to hear of other similar instances.

In this borough (of Portsmouth) we have (1) the ex-Mayor, Harold R. Pink, Esq., J.P., an excellent organist, who has often played at the Town Hall, and who for some years acted as organist at St. Peter's Church, Southsea; (2) Alderman G. Ellis, J.P., who drew up the specification for the large four-manual organ in the Town Hall, and who has himself built an organ for his own use; and (3) the Clerk of the Peace, J. F. Glanville, Esq., who for many years has officiated as organist and choirmaster at several of our local churches, and who is now discharging those duties at the Parish Church, Portsea (of which Canon Lang, the new Bishop of Stepney, was recently the vicar), during the serious illness of the organist, Mr. W. D. Pillow. These instances may perhaps interest you.

Believe me, yours truly,

Bedworth House, W. Monk Gould.
Yarborough Road, Southsea, May 2, 1901.

ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. T. H. Collinson, St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh (who played his own MS. Sonata and Andantino in F sharp minor).—Mr. Norman Kendrick, Christ Church Congregational, Penarth (Grand Chœur, Tempo di Menuetto, Hollins).—Mr. J. Gray, Parish Church, Kirkcaldy (Postlude in D, Smart).—Mr. Edward Cutler, K.C., Parish Church, Preston (who played his own Andante in E flat and Postlude in G).—Mr. G. T. Pinches, St. Clement Danes, Strand (Fantasia and Fugue in E minor, Silas).—Mr. R. E. Parker, Parish Church, Wilmslow (Overture in C, Hollins).—Mr. G. Denholm-Walker, Dutch Reformed Church, Adderley Street, Cape Town (Offertoire in C minor, Grison).—Mr. Albert E. Workman, Emmanuel Church, Bootle (Overture to 'Joseph,' Mehul).—Mr. R.W. Strickland, College Street Chapel, Northampton (Fantasia on the Hymn tune 'St. James,' C. E. Stephens).—Mr. F. Gostelow, St. Paul's Wesleyan Chapel, Bedford.—Mr. G. Dorrington Cunningham, Congregational Church, West Hampstead.—Mr. C. J. Brennan, Elmwood Presbyterian Church, Belfast (Reverie, Stainer).—Mr. Ernest H. Smith, St. Bede's, Liverpool.—Mr. J. H. Pearson, Parish Church, Brighouse ('O Sanctissima,' Lux).—Mr. J. Armistead, St. Margaret's, Burnley.—Mr. James Tomlinson, Centenary Church, Stonewell, Lancaster (Guilmant's Sonata in D minor).—Mr. F. A. Sewell, St. George's Chapel, Albemarle Street, opening of new organ (Archer's Andante in D and Smart's Theme and Variations in A).—Mr. H. Crackel, Bethel Primitive Methodist Chapel (Reverie and Jubilant March, Stainer).—Mr. W. Wolstenholme, Leamington Road Baptist Church, Blackburn (Overture in F, Faulkes).—Mr. Percy Birmingham, St. David's, Merthyr Tydvil (Allegretto cantabile, E. J. Hopkins).—Mr. H. E. Baker, Mr. H. M. Higgs, and Mr. Charlton Speer (joint recital), St. Nicholas Parish Church, Sutton.—Mr. W. Gillies Whittaker, St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, South Shields (a Bach recital, which included the lovely chorale prelude 'Schmücke dich, o liebe Seele').

ORGANIST, CHOIRMASTER, AND CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. T. S. Beswick, Christ Church, Jarrow.

Mr. Kenneth G. Burns, Parish Church, Thirsk.

Mr. William H. Dawes, Baptist Church, Ealing Road, Brentford.

Mr. C. Vincent Fosbery, Daventry Parish Church.

Mr. Ernest Foster, Parish Church, Langley, Bucks.

Mr. Arthur Gosling, St. Andrew's Church, Willesden Green.

Mr. Norman B. Hibbert, St. Luke's Church, Derby.

Mr. R. Higgins, Parish Church, Honiton.

Mr. W. Lucas, St. John's Church, Lewisham High Road.

Mr. C. H. Payne, Monmouth School Chapel.

Mr. Horatio Robinson, St. Leonard's Parish Church.

Mr. Bertram Pearce (choirmaster), Trinity Presbyterian Church, Bromley, Kent.

Mr. Bert Elsmore (Alto), Winchester Cathedral.

REVIEWS.

The Music of the Church Hymnary and the Psalter in Metre: its sources and composers. By William Cowan and James Love. [Henry Frowde.]

The compiler of a bibliographical work is a public benefactor, but only if the work is done well, otherwise he is an irritator. The preparation of the volume before us, which, however, is the product of a joint-authorship, has been prompted by the issue of the 'Church Hymnary,' a Scottish hymnal, of which the late Sir John Stainer was the musical editor. The division of the book into two sections, historical and biographical, is a convenient one. It is no disparagement to the latter portion—which, within its limits, is quite satisfactory—to say that the chief interest and value of this handbook lies in the historical information therein to be found. The research which has tracked so many tunes to their original sources and first appearances must have been very exhaustive and, at the same time, arduous. Only those who have tried their hand at this kind of thing know the difficulties that beset the path of the conscientious investigator. Unqualified praise must therefore be given to the authors for something attempted, something done, and, moreover, very thoroughly done; in fact, speaking from some considerable experience of the subject, we venture to say that nothing quite so complete has been done before. The plan has been to take each tune in alphabetical order and to give the full title and date (whenever possible) of the book in which it made its first appearance. In several cases—e.g., Bedford and Harts—the original form of the tune is given, and thus an interesting study of the metamorphosis which a familiar hymn tune has undergone is rendered possible. Much new and valuable information is furnished in regard to the history of the tunes, as, for instance, 'Adeste Fideles,' to which we refer in our 'Occasional Notes' column. The ordinary reader would probably like to have had the anecdotal element more fully developed, but this would have added to the size of the book, which, as a bibliography pure and simple of the subject, leaves nothing to be desired. In a future edition an index of composers, with the names of the tunes written by them, would be a useful feature. As the 'Church Hymnary' contains the cream—and, must it not be added, some of the skim milk?—of all current hymnals, the practical utility of the publication for general reference is obvious. Some day there may rise up a hymn tune Julian—one who will treat the whole subject as exhaustively as has been so incomparably achieved in the 'Dictionary of Hymnology.' In the meantime, the labours of Messrs. Cowan and Love deserve an unqualified 'well done.' We heartily commend the book to our readers as a most valuable contribution to the literature of the subject which it so ably treats.

The Military Church Parade Service Book. Compiled and arranged by Thomas Conway Brown.

[Novello and Company, Limited.]

This handy little shilling manual has been compiled by Mr. Brown, a serjeant in the Royal Artillery Mounted Band and organist of All Saints' Garrison Church, Aldershot, for the use of military bands and chaplains at parade services in camp and in church. It consists of Morning Prayer, Litany, and Holy Communion, and includes a selection of hymns for open-air services. The Preface says that, as the bands at military parade services are usually small, the condensed score of the music in these pages will not only be found very useful, but it will obviate the necessity of copying out separate parts for the various instruments employed. The three staves used throughout are (A) for B flat clarinets and cornets, (B) for cornets, flutes, and oboes, (C) for bassoons, trombones, and basses, while B and C together are to be played on the organ when that instrument is available. Nothing could be more compact and practical than this manual with its eleven hymn tunes (including, of course, 'Onward, Christian Soldiers'), its varied selection of chants, and its general equipment for the rendering of the choral service in the British Army.

The Primitive Methodist Sunday School Hymnal, with accompanying Tunes. [Robert Bryant.]

The saying that the average life of a hymnal is twenty years seems to be borne out by the fact that the book before us is the third that has been prepared and issued by the Primitive Methodist Church, its predecessors having appeared in 1862 and 1879 respectively. The musical editor of the present publication, Mr. George Booth, M.D., J.P., in the course of his preface, furnishes the following interesting information:—

> The Editor may perhaps be permitted to give an illustration on this point [the progress of Sunday School music] from his own experience. In the first Sunday School in which he taught, the singing was accompanied by a flute, occasionally heard at the beginning and ending of the verses. As a result of a great effort and much self-sacrifice, a harmonium was obtained, and it was then thought that the climax had been reached and nothing further could be desired. In the present school to which the Editor is attached [at Chesterfield], the service of song is accompanied by an organ, pianoforte, and full band of stringed instruments, played by the scholars and teachers. Thus, while the devotional character of the singing has been retained, a new element of interest, first awakened in the day schools, has been added, resulting in an increased love for, and attachment of the children to, their Sabbath School.

This is very satisfactory, and the spread of such aids to worship music is deserving of every encouragement.

This hymnal has been compiled to meet the requirements of the various agencies connected with the Sunday School and its offshoots, thus a certain grownupness which characterises many of the hymns and tunes is accounted for. It contains some 600 hymns, a decidedly comprehensive selection. So far as we can discover, the new tunes number between fifty and sixty, contributed by a score of composers, of whom the best known to fame is Dr. Henry Coward, of Sheffield. Dr. Coward has also revised the harmonies of the old tunes, but we can scarcely think that he is responsible for the mutilated form of the last line of 'Rockingham' (157). 'Ladysmith' and 'Mafeking' appear as names of tunes. In this nomenclature connection, there are no less than twenty-seven instances of the same name being used for two different tunes, and in one case three tunes. Is not this rather confusing? An unsightly typographical excrescence, in the form of ", is used to indicate the end of a line (of words) when there is no double-bar. This unnecessary sign, peculiar to this hymnal, irritatingly asserts itself at all possible beats of the bar, and disfigures concords and discords alike, and it has the effect to the eye of disturbing the natural flow of both the verbal and musical phrases. As we have before remarked in reviewing new hymnals, it seems a pity that, in regard to tunes for children, greater use is not made of unison melodies with simple instrumental accompaniments, instead of dressing every tune, or nearly every tune, in four-part harmony, a garb which ill befits many tunes suitable for singers of tender years. Sullivan's setting of 'Hushed was the evening hymn' (201) is a case in point—it is here in a grown-up four-part form, instead of in its unisonal and more natural version. Every book has its blemishes, and perfection is difficult of attainment in this world. We find in these pages some tunes of the species which the late Sir John Stainer said he would not touch even with a pair of tongs; but its merits far outweigh such shortcomings as a critical eye and experienced worker in the field can detect. Therefore 'for better,' rather than 'for worse,' this collection merits a welcome to the ever growing field of hymnal literature. The care and trouble which have been expended upon its preparation will assuredly not have been labour in vain.

Albert Lortzing. By C. A. Webster. (Novello and Co., Ltd.) A pleasantly written monograph on the composer—shockingly neglected during his lifetime—of meritorious comic operas, of which 'Czar und Zimmermann' (produced in London as 'Peter the Shipwright' in 1871) is the best known. The proceeds of Mrs. Webster's interesting pamphlet are to be given towards the monument erected to Lortzing's memory in Berlin.——Organs and Tuning: a Practical Handbook for Organists. By Thomas Elliston. (Weekes and Co.) The third edition, with new addenda, of a very handy and valuable book of reference to organists. ——The Organist's Chant Book, containing original chants for the whole of the Psalter, including the Venite for every day and the proper Psalms for certain days. By the Rev. S. J. Rowton. (Weekes and Co.)——The Litany and Suffrages from the Book of Common Prayer, with the musick from the Sarum Processional. (Charles Vincent.) A publication of the Plain Song and Mediæval Music Society.—— Sims Reeves on the Art of Singing. (Chappell and Co., Ltd.)——The Elements of Singing: an Introduction to Voice and Choir-Training and Sight-Singing. By J. T. Bavin. (Novello and Co., Ltd.)——The Boy's Voice at the Breaking Period. By E. Davidson Palmer. (Joseph Williams.)——The Psalms, Canticles, and the Athanasian Creed, pointed for Chanting. By L. S. Tuckwell and John Stainer. (A. R. Mowbray.) The fourteenth and a cheaper edition of The Magdalen Psalter.——How to Learn the Fingering of Scales and Arpeggios. By Sidney Hann. (Patey and Willis.) A concise method for committing to memory the fingering of scales and arpeggios without the aid of musical notation; for the use of students of the pianoforte ——Concise Scale and Arpeggio Manual. By I. Stuart Smyth. (Charles Vincent.) Useful to those who are examinationally inclined. Miss Smyth adopts English fingering in her little book.

THE LONDON MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

WITH the financial aspect of the festival which took place in the Queen's Hall during the week beginning on Monday, April 29, we have nothing to do, though we may presume there are solid considerations which induce Mr. Robert Newman to continue these festivals year after year. As regards the artistic side of the question, if anyone was inclined to doubt the necessity of an orchestral festival in the Metropolis, he might have found an answer in the hosts of provincial musicians present, not only from the smaller towns, but also from the largest centres of population out of London. To hear a week's round of concerts, given by a highly disciplined orchestra, under some of the most famous living conductors, makes it worth while for a country organist to repair to London, brush off the cobwebs of provincialism, and freshen his ideals, which a country town's routine is apt to obscure.

The leading characteristic of this year's festival was undoubtedly the appearance of five eminent conductors—or, to be precise, of four eminent conductors and one famous musician. Dr. Saint-Saëns is, above all things, an all-round musician, and we do not suppose he would care to pose as a virtuoso of the baton. The concert he conducted consisted, with but a single exception, of his own works, and the best performance of all was that of the symphonic poem, 'La Jeunesse d'Hercule,' which was conducted by Ysaye. The great Belgian violinist appeared, indeed, to particular advantage in the less familiar part of a conductor at the second concert of the series. He has a strong, nervous beat, a fine sense of breadth of phrasing, and a complete command over his resources. M. Colonne, who appeared at the opening concert, is more vivacious, if less poetic. He brings out every detail with the utmost clearness, and there is a polish and a smartness beyond praise in his performances. Still, there is not quite the same breadth or tenderness one feels under Ysaye. The finest orchestral performances of the festival were, perhaps, those under the conductorship of Herr Weingartner, who gave quite a superb reading of the C minor Symphony of Beethoven. He combined warmth, dramatic force, and vivacity in a remarkable degree, and the force and character of this most Beethovenish symphony were realised to perfection. Though the titanic power of the music was so well brought out, the performance was polished in the smallest detail, yet details were never forced at the expense of breadth. Finally our own Mr. H. J. Wood conducted the last two concerts, and stood the test of comparison most satisfactorily, giving a characteristic reading of the 'Pathetic' Symphony of Tschaïkowsky, which he has made quite his own. It may be said, indeed, that the symphonies allotted to these four conductors typified not inaccurately their respective individualities: Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, the most vivacious of all, being taken by Colonne; the broad and warmly coloured 'Eroica,' by Ysaye; the forceful and dramatic C minor, by Weingartner, and the strongly emotional 'Pathetic,' by Wood.

There was nothing absolutely new in the programmes, but several quasi-novelties were given. M. Colonne introduced the Symphonic Prelude to Part II. of César Franck's 'Redemption,' a beautiful example of refined and tender polyphony, orchestrated very brilliantly. A manuscript Adagio in C minor for strings, by Guillaume Lekeu, a Belgian composer, who died in 1894, on the threshold of his twenty-fifth year, was given by M. Ysaye. It showed Wagnerian influence, which is only what might be expected, and was in its tender and somewhat elegiac mood not unlike Franck's Adagio. M. Saint-Saëns played, for the first time in London—though the piece has been heard at Sydenham—the brilliant 'Africa' Fantasia for pianoforte and orchestra, which he introduced to this country when he graduated at Cambridge in 1893, and the sparkling character of the solo part proved, it is needless to add, well suited to his incisive style, though, as we have intimated, he did not seem in his very happiest vein on this occasion. Then Herr Weingartner appeared as a composer, through the medium of his symphonic poem, 'Das Gefilde der Seligen' (Op. 21), a composition very sonorous and rich in orchestral colouring, but displaying no very marked individuality in the thematic material. Finally, as samples of native art, there were Dr. Cowen's new and fanciful overture 'The Butterfly's Ball' and Dr. Elgar's now famous Variations, which are too well known to need further criticism.

The instrumental soloists were, in addition to M. Saint-Saëns, Signor Busoni, Lady Hallé, M. Ysaye (who played Saint-Saëns's B minor Concerto very finely), Herr Becker, Dr. Joachim (who introduced a delightful concerto by Mozart, an early work in D major), and Mr. Harold Bauer, who made an excellent impression by his finished and most artistic playing of Saint-Saëns's Fourth Pianoforte Concerto, in C minor. The vocalists were Madame Blanche Marchesi, Miss Marie Brema, Mr. Andrew Black, and Mrs. H. J. Wood, who signalised her first appearance at Queen's Hall by a sympathetic and polished reading of Tatiana's Letter Song from 'Eugene Onegin.'

THE NEW OPERA AT THE SAVOY, 'THE EMERALD ISLE.'

ALTHOUGH the Sullivan dynasty has, alas, come to an end in the little kingdom of the Savoy, one felt almost justified by the success which 'The Emerald Isle' achieved when it was first produced, on April 27, in crying 'The King is dead, long live the King.' It was certainly a delicate and difficult situation in which those responsible at the Savoy Theatre found themselves. In 'The Emerald Isle, or the Caves of Carrig Cleena,' a subject had been provided peculiarly suited to Sir Arthur Sullivan's genius. He had always kept a warm corner in his heart for the land of his fathers—witness the work which he always intended for, and in later years acknowledged as, an 'Irish' Symphony. And here was a theme suggestive of reels and jigs, redolent of Hibernian fancy and humour, just such as was calculated to appeal to his fanciful genial humour and lyrical grace. How much it had, in fact, appealed to him is sufficiently indicated by the fragments of composition which he left behind him. Of late years there were, as might be expected, some occasional signs that the stream of inspiration did not run quite so freely as of old; but here there is a delightful freshness in the melodies which he created, an aftermath, so to speak, of the captivating lilts which, perhaps more than anything else, formed the most individual characteristic of his music.

The charm of these fragments made the task of completing them the more difficult, and the undoubted success achieved by Mr. Edward German is, on that account, all the more remarkable. The choice was obviously a wise one. No living English composer is more in sympathy with Sullivan's individuality as a musician than Mr. German, and we will even venture to say that none would have so commended himself to Sullivan's own mind. The rhythmical grace and energy of his music, the clarity of his orchestration, to which a refined and easy polyphonic method gives the character of a beautifully designed mosaic, rather than the broad brush-work of an oil painting—these are qualities closely akin to those of the older composer.

It may be worth while to record with some particularity the exact share of each composer in the operetta. There are altogether an Introduction and twenty-eight separate 'Numbers.' Of these Sullivan completed Nos. 1 and 2, and left sketches for fifteen others, often consisting of little more than a line of vocal melody. These Mr. German harmonised and orchestrated, composing entirely original music for ten numbers, and adding an Introduction and a Finale based partly on Sullivan's melodies, partly on his own.

It is time, however, before going into details concerning the music, that some idea should be given of the libretto. It is difficult to give a succinct account of Captain Basil Hood's ingenious and amusing drama, for the plot is by no means simple, or even coherent. The scene is in Ireland, the time 'about a hundred years ago,' and the first act takes place just outside the Lord Lieutenant's country residence. The hero is an O'Brian, with the inherited instincts of a rebel to Saxon rule, but with the education of a Saxon University. Of course, as will be expected, he loves the Lord Lieutenant's daughter, so that when, after many complications and much mystification, he and his rebellious followers are finally cornered, he has a powerful advocate to soften the Lord Lieutenant's wrath. So far the lines of the story are simplicity itself, but they are amusingly entangled by some characters not material to the plot, but very material to the humours of the drama. There is a blind fiddler, Pat Murphy, who isn't really blind, and his sweetheart, who thinks him blind, and treats him accordingly, who provide a subsidiary plot, and there is a quaint personage who, as represented by Mr. Walter Passmore, provides a great proportion of the genuine fun of the piece. Professor Bunn (of Bath) is an elocutionist, mesmerist, conjuror, character-impersonator, and anything else you please—an altogether delightful individual, who appears upon the scene with a view to assisting the Lord Lieutenant's scheme of furthering and ameliorating elementary education, but is impressed by the rebels, and, by endeavouring to run with the hare and hunt with the hounds, both complicates the plot and increases the humours of the situation. He is full of devices, mostly futile, and his chief one is as quaint as it is original. The rebels, disturbed in their 'secret' meeting outside His Excellency's park gates—the idea is delightfully Hibernian—adjourn proceedings to the Caves of Carrig-Cleena, that give the sub-title to the operetta, and furnish a charmingly picturesque scene for the second act. In his capacity as 'hound' Mr. Bunn gives the Lord Lieutenant information of this change of scene, and then, in the alternative rôle of 'hare,' he plans to keep the soldiery away. Learning that they belong to a Devonshire regiment, and may therefore be presumed to have a lively faith in fairies, he plays upon their superstition and makes his appearance, after the manner of Rip van Winkle, with a story of having been entrapped by the fairies of Carrig-Cleena, and kept there for fifty years and more.

Eventually the Gordian knot of complications is cut after the most approved traditions of the House of Savoy. It is discovered that the pompous Lord Lieutenant, being an English peer, has, as a matter of course, Yankee blood in his veins: 'therefore,' as the rebel leader says, 'you are our friend. . . . We are no longer rebels. It would be absurd to shoot us.' This subtle argument, as the Lord Lieutenant ingenuously says, 'sounds conclusive,' and at any rate it affords sufficient reason for all to end happily, which is all one desires at 11 p.m.

The success with which Mr. German has 'played up' to the model set him is quite remarkable, and has more than realized anticipations. His music is sufficiently like Sullivan's to avoid all sense of patchiness, yet this is obtained without sacrifice of individuality. The difference strikes one as being, if one may risk a generalization, that whilst Sullivan's tunes are lyrical and vocal, German's seem to owe their genesis more to dance rhythms. However this may be, he is hardly a whit behind his predecessor in the sense for lightness and gaiety so essential to an operetta. In two respects it may be said that he has made a step in advance. He has put more interest into his orchestration than Sullivan was wont to do, at least for Savoy purposes, and has greatly elaborated his scoring without for a moment obscuring the melodic charm, which is all that appeals to so many opera-goers. And he has greatly heightened the artistic value of the more serious songs. The chief soprano air, 'Oh, setting sun,' is a really beautiful, well-balanced, artistic conception, more dramatic and individual than most songs of its kind.

The operetta owed much to its interpreters, who were all admirably suited by their respective parts. As has been mentioned, Mr. Passmore's intensely humorous impersonation of Bunn was the most striking feature of the performance; other characteristic figures were the Sergeant Pincher of Mr. Crompton, whose Devonshire burr was delightful, and the very stately Lord Lieutenant of Mr. Jones-Hewson. Miss Isabel Jay's highly artistic singing in the part of the heroine was one of the chief musical successes of the performance, and the excellent singing and acting of Mr. H. Lytton and Miss Louie Pounds made the second pair of lovers more than usually interesting. Mr. Evett was an acceptable hero, and Miss Brandram, Miss Easton-Murray, and Mr. Rous also contributed to the success of the opera, which was, on this initial occasion, conducted by Mr. Edward German himself.

THE ROYAL OPERA.

THE opera should be always with us. As matters stand, however, we have to be content with performances during three summer months, when, in addition to many interesting concerts, there are the counter attractions of fragrant woods and silver streams. The cheaper parts of Covent Garden theatre during the past week have, notwithstanding, been crowded, and this seems to show how well opera all the year round, as in German cities, would be appreciated by the general public. Here, many nights are filled up with certain standard operas, such as 'Faust,' 'Carmen,' 'Lohengrin,' so that there is little room either for old works unduly neglected or for novelties. For the present, however, we must be content with such operas as are presented to us, and, so far at any rate as the first week is concerned, there is little ground for complaint. 'Romeo et Juliette' was selected for the opening night, Monday, the 13th ult. Madame Eames impersonated Juliette, and her excellent singing and refined bearing won for her the goodwill of the audience. At first the quality of some of her upper notes was doubtful, but as the evening advanced matters mended; in the second duet for the lovers she was admirable. M. Saléza played the part of Roméo exceedingly well, but his voice was not in good order. Of the other performers we only mention Mr. Lawrence Rea, new to the stage, who acquitted himself well in the small rôle of Gregorio. Signor Mancinelli conducted with his usual skill and enthusiasm.

On the following evening came Humperdinck's 'Hänsel und Gretel,' sung in German, still the cleverest opera on Wagner lines produced since the Bayreuth master ceased to write. The fresh, naïve story, so striking a contrast to the sensational and, at times, coarse libretti of modern opera, explains in part its success; but the marked ability and ease with which the composer develops dainty folk themes arrests and maintains the interest of musicians. With such simple material and so elaborate a method, a composer of ordinary merit would have utterly failed. With regard to the performance we would only mention the clever impersonations of the two children by Fräulein Felser and Fräulein David, the excellent singing of Herr Mühlmann and Mdlle. Olitzka (the father and mother), although it must be said that the make-up of the former bordered somewhat on the grotesque. Miss Agnes Nicholls and Madame Kirkby Lunn, in the small parts of the Dewman and Sandman, made first and favourable appearances on the Covent Garden stage. Herr Lohse Lilian.

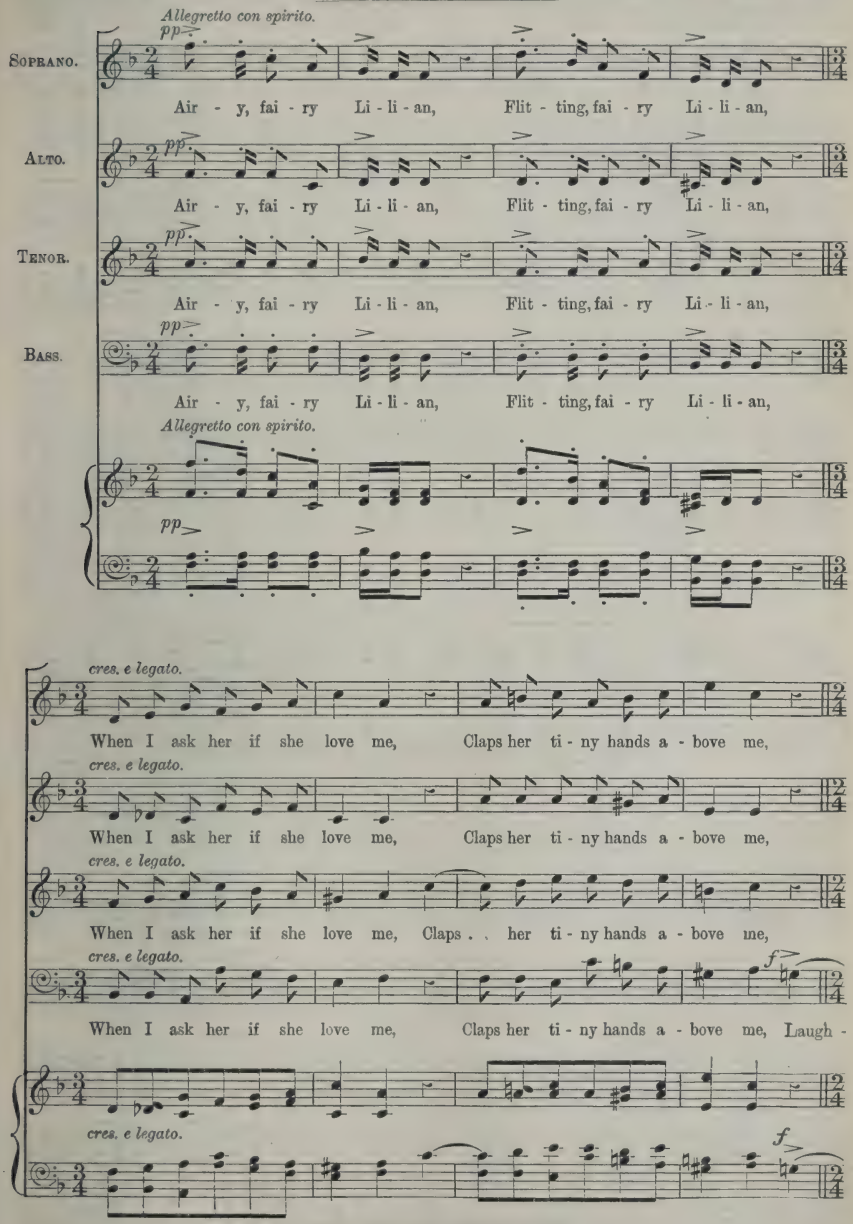
A FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by TENNYSON. Composed by S. P. WADDINGTON.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Allegretto con spirito.
pp
SOPRANO.
Air - y, fai - ry Li - li - an, Flit - ting, fai - ry Li - li - an,
ALTO.
Air - y, fai - ry Li - li - an, Flit - ting, fai - ry Li - li - an,
TENOR.
Air - y, fai - ry Li - li - an, Flit - ting, fai - ry Li - li - an,
BASS.
Air - y, fai - ry Li - li - an, Flit - ting, fai - ry Li - li - an,
Allegretto con spirito.
pp
cres. e legato.
When I ask her if she love me, Claps her ti - ny hands a - bove me,
cres. e legato.
When I ask her if she love me, Claps her ti - ny hands a - bove me,
cres. e legato.
When I ask her if she love me, Claps . . her ti - ny hands a - bove me,
cres. e legato.
When I ask her if she love me, Claps her ti - ny hands a - bove me, Laugh -
f cres. e legato.
f

Copyright, 1901, by Novello and Company, Limited.

Laugh- ing all she can ; She'll not tell me if she Laugh- ing all she can ; She'll not tell me if she Laugh- ing all she can ; She'll not tell me if she love me, she'll not tell me if she
- - ing all she can ; She'll not tell me if she love me, Cru - el lit - tle Li - li - an, cru - el lit - tle
love me, Cru - el lit - tle Li - li - an, cru - el lit - tle
love me, Cru - el lit - tle Li - li - an, cru - el lit - tle love me, Cru - el lit - tle Li - li - an, cru - el lit - tle
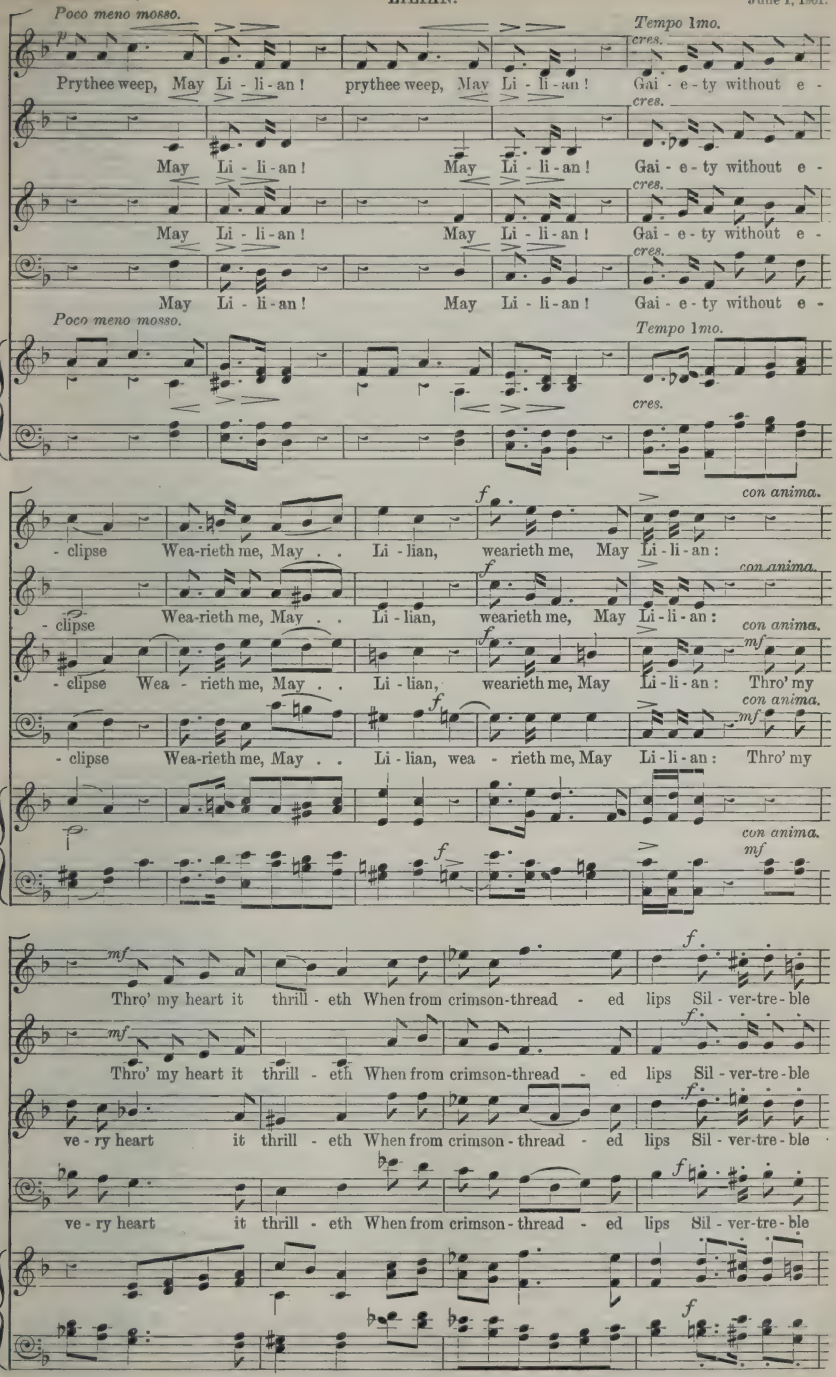
rit. espress.
a tempo.
Li - li-an, She'll not tell me if she love me, Cru - el lit- tle Li -li-an.
Li - li-an, She'll not tell me if she love me, Cru - el lit- tle Li -li-an.
Li - li -an, She'll not tell me if she love me, Cru - el lit- tle Li -li-an.
Li - li -an, She'll not tell me if she love me, Cru-el lit - tle Li -li-an.



Poco meno mosso.
Tempo 1mo.
cres.
Prythee weep, May Li - li - an! prythee weep, May Li - li - an! Gai - e - ty without e -
May Li - li - an! May Li - li - an! Gai - e - ty without e -
May Li - li - an! May Li - li - an! Gai - e - ty without e -
Poco meno mosso.
Tempo 1mo.
cres.
con anima.
- clipse Wea-rieth me, May . . Li - lian, wearieth me, May Li - li - an:
- clipse Wea - rieth me, May . . Li - lian, wearieth me, May Li - li - an: Thro' my
- clipse Wea-rieth me, May . . Li - lian, wea - rieth me, May Li - li - an: Thro' my Thro' my heart it thrill - eth When from crimson-thread - ed lips Sil - ver-tre - ble
Thro' my heart it thrill - eth When from crimson-thread - ed lips Sil - ver-tre - ble
ve - ry heart it thrill - eth When from crimson - thread - ed lips Sil - ver-tre - ble
ve - ry heart it thrill - eth When from crimson - thread - ed lips Sil - ver-tre - ble laugh - ter trill. - eth: Pry-thee weep, May Li - li-an, pry-thee weep, May laugh - ter trill - eth: weep, May Li - li-an, weep, May laugh - ter trill - eth: weep, May Li - li-an, weep, May laugh - ter trill - eth: weep, May Li - li-an, weep, May Li - li-an, weep, May Li - li-an. . .

Li - li-an, weep, May Li - li-an. . .
Li - li-an, weep, May Li - li-an. . .
Li - li-an, pry-thee weep, pry-thee weep, May Li - li-an. . .
Pray-ing all I can . . If prayers will not hush thee, Air-y, air-y Li - lian,
Pray-ing all I can If prayers will not hush thee, Air-y, air-y Li - lian,
Pray-ing all I can . . If prayers will not hush thee, Air-y, air-y Li - lian,
Pray-ing all I can If prayers will not hush thee, Air-y, air-y Li - lian,

No. 832. CREATION'S HYMN.—L. van Beethoven. Price 2d.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

A COLLECTION OF PART-SONGS, GLEES, AND MADRIGALS.

IN VOLUMES, CLOTH, GILT, 5s. EACH; OR IN SEPARATE NUMBERS.

FIRST SERIES.

17 All among the barley (Prize) ... ... E. Stirling 2d.
20 An emigrant's song ... ... W. Macfarren 2d.
25 Awake! the starry midnight hour (Serenade) Mendelssohn 2d.
3 Boating song (The sun is high)... ... ... E. G. Monk 2d.
36 Come away, death. S.A.T.T.B. ... ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
14 Come, heavy sleep... ... ... Douland 2d.
8 Countryman's song (Oh, the sweet contentment) E. G. Rimbault 3d.
2 Cricketers' song (Bestir ye). T.T.B. ... G. A. Macfarren 2d.
29 Dirge (The glories of our birth) ... ... S. Wesley 2d.
23 Fairies' song (From grassy blades). S.S.S.S. H. R. Bishop 6d.
15 Fisherman's song. S.S.A.T.B. ... ... E. F. Rimbault 2d.
34 Football song (Brawling Boreas blows) ... E. G. Monk 3d.
32 God speed the plough. S.A.T.T. ... ... E. Richter 2d.
5 Good morrow, fair ladies. S.S.T. ... ... T. Morley 2d.
28 Green leaves (Prize). S.A.T.B. ... ... Bianchi Taylor 2d.
13 Harvest song (Prize). S.A.T.B. ... ... W. Macfarren 2d.
35 Haymakers' song (Prize)... ... ... R. P. Stewart 3d.
16 In all thy need ... ... Douland 2d.
11 Integer Vitæ. T.T.B.B. ... ...Fleming 4d.
24 June (She is coming) (Prize). S.S.A. ... ... Finlay Dun 2d.
10 Magdalen College song (Lily, sweet lily). S.S.A.B. E. G. Monk 2d
27 O happy he who liveth. S.S.A.T.B. ... ...Gastoldi 2d.
12 Orpheus with his lute ... ... G. A. Macfarren 4d.
1 Our native land ... . G. Reichardt 2d.
22 Pedlar's song ... ...Douland 2d.
21 Shepherds' song (Turn, Amarillis) ... ... Brewer 3d.
4 Song of the railroads ... ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
30 The angler's trysting-tree ... ... J. Corfe 3d.
31 The dream (Prize) .. .. R. P. Stewart 2d.
26 The fair flower of Northumberland ... E. F. Rimbault 2d
6 The home fairy (Quartet). T.T.B.B. ... ... Winter 2d.
19 The jolly cricket-ball ... ... E. G. Monk 2d.
9 The students' greeting. T.T.B.B. ... ... Berner 2d.
33 There is a ladie sweete ... ... Ford 2d.
7 The wreath ... ... J. Benedict 2d.
18 When icicles hang by the wall ... G. A. Macfarren 2d.

SECOND SERIES.

VOL. I.—SIR JULIUS BENEDICT.

37 Old May-day, in A ... ... 3d.
38 Invocation to Sleep ... ... 3d.
39 A Night Song ... ... 3d.
40 Dirge for the faithful lover ... 1½d.
41 A Drinking Song (T.T.B.B.)... ... 3d.
42 Sylvan pleasures ... ... 4d.

HENRY SMART.

43 Consolation .. .. 1½d.
44 Good night, thou glorious Sun ... 3d.
45 Hunting Song ... ... 3d.
46 Lady, rise, sweet Morn's awaking 3d.
47 Summer Morning ... ... 3d.
48 The Sea King ... ... 3d.

SEVEN SHAKSPERE SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

49 Orpheus with his lute ... ... 3d.
50 When Icicles hang ... ... 1½d.
51 Come away, Death (S.A.T.T.B.) ... 3d.
52 When Daisies pied ... ... 3d.
53 Who is Sylvia... ... ... 1½d.
54 Fear no more the heat o' the Sun 3d.
55 Blow, blow, thou Winter Wind ... 3d.

J. L. HATTON.

56 The Belfry Tower ... ... 4d.
57 England ... ... 3d.
58 Come, celebrate the May ... ... 1½d.
59 Song to Pan ... ... 3d.
60 The Indian Maid ... ... 3d.
61 The Pearl Divers ... ... 4d.

VOL. II.—G. A. MACFARREN.

62 Robin Goodfellow ... ... 3d.
63 Break, break on thy cold grey stones 3d.
64 Echoes (The Splendour falls) ... 3d.
65 Song of the Railroads ... ... 1½d.
66 Christmas ... ... 3d.
67 Adieu, Love, Adieu ... ... 3d.

C. A. MACIRONE.

68 Sir Knight, Sir Knight ... ... 3d.
69 The Wounded Cupid... ... ... 1½d.
70 Woman's smile ... ... 3d.
71 Autolycus' Song ... ... 3d.
72 Footsteps of Angels ... ... 3d.
73 The Sun shines fair on Carlisle wall 3d.

VOL. II. (continued).

HENRY LESLIE.

74 The Pilgrims ... ... 3d.
75 My soul to God, my heart to thee... 3d.
76 Awake, awake, the flow'rs unfold ... 3d.
77 How sweet the moonlight sleeps ... 1½d.
78 Land, Ho! ... ... 3d.
79 Up, up, ye Dames ... ... 3d.

SIX MADRIGALS.

Including the Bristol Prize Madrigals.

80 Thine eyes so bright (S.S.A.T.B.B.) } 4d.
Henry Leslie }
81 All is not gold (S.A.T.T.B.) ... } 3d.
W. J. Westbrook }
82 Hark how the birds (S.S.A.T.T.B.) } 3d.
Henry Lahee }
83 All ye woods (S.S.A.T.B.) Do. 1½d.
84 My love is fair (S.A.T.B.B.) H. Leslie 3d.
85 Charm me asleep (S.S.A.T.B.B.) Do. 3d.

VOL. III.—HENRY HILES.

86 When twilight dews ... ... 1½d.
87 A Finland love song ... ... 1½d.
88 Evening... ... ... 1½d.
89 To the Morning Wind ... ... 3d.
90 To Daffodils ... ... 3d.
91 Summer longings ... ... 3d.

FRANCESCO BERGER.

92 Night, lovely Night ... ... 1½d.
93 Essay, my Heart ... ... 3d.
94 Childhood's melody ... ... 1½d.
95 Now ... ... 3d.
96 Sunset ... ... 1½d.
97 Arise, the sunbeams hail ... ... 3d.

J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.

98 Night winds that so gently flow ... 1½d.
99 Breathe soft, ye Winds ... ... 1½d.
100 My lady is so wondrous fair ... 1½d.
101 Chivalry of Labour (S.S.A.T.B.) ... 4d.
102 Come, fill, my boys (A.T.T.B.) ... 3d.
103 Echoes ... ... 1½d.

J. BARNBY.

104 Phœbus ... ... 1½d.
105 Luna ... ... 1½d.
106 A Wife's Song... ... ... 1½d.
107 Home they brought ... ... 1½d.
108 Annie Lee ... ... 1½d.
109 Starry Crowns of Heaven ... ... 1½d.
110 The Wind ... ... 3d.
111 The Skylark ... ... 3d.

VOL. III. (continued).

G. A. MACFARREN.

112 The Sands of Dee ... ... 3d.
113 Alton Locke's Song ... ... 1½d.
114 The Starlings ... ... 1½d.
115 The Three Fishers ... ... 3d.
116 The World's Age ... ... 1½d.
117 Sing, heigh ho! ... ... 3d.

VOL. IV.—A. ZIMMERMANN.

118 Fairy Song ... ... 3d.
119 Good Night 1½d
120 Gone for ever ... ... 3d.
121 Flowers ... ... 3d.
122 To Daffodils 1½d
123 Good Morrow ... ... 3d.

EIGHT SHAKSPERE SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

124 Sigh no more, ladies ... ... 3d.
125 You spotted snakes (S.S.A.A.) ... 3d.
126 Take, oh, take those lips away ... 1½d.
127 It was a lover and his lass ... ... 4d.
128 O mistress mine 1½d
129 Under the greenwood tree ... ... 1½d.
130 Hark, the lark ... ... 3d.
131 Tell me where is fancy bred ... 1½d.

HENRY LESLIE.

132 The Violet ... ... 3d.
133 One morning sweet in May ... ... 3d.
134 Daylight is fading ... ... 1½d.
135 Down in a pretty valley ... ... 3d.
136 The Primrose ... ... 1½d.
137 Arise, sweet love ... ... 3d.

HENRY SMART.

138 'Tis break of day ... ... 2d.
139 My true love hath my heart ... ... 2d.
140 Doth not my lady come ... ... 2d.
141 Spring Song ... ... 2d.
142 The Curfew ... ... 2d.
143 Hear, sweet spirit ... ... 2d.

SAMUEL REAY.

144 Spring Voices ... ... 3d.
145 Waken, lords and ladies gay ... 3d.
146 As it fell upon a day ... ... 3d.
147 Huntsman, rest ... ... 3d.
148 'Tis May upon the mountain ... 3d.
149 Take, oh, take those lips away ... 1½d.

Copyright, 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

No. 832. NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK. Price 2*d.*
(SECOND SERIES.)

CREATION'S HYMN

FOUR-PART SONG

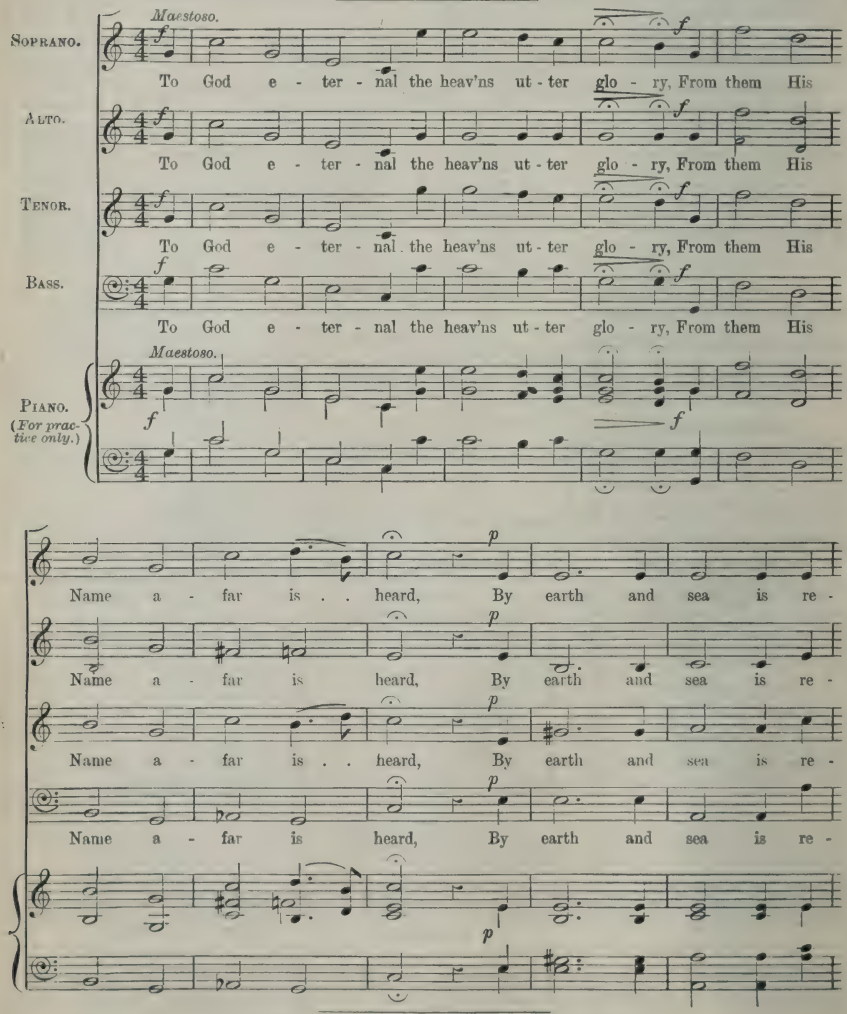
THE ENGLISH VERSION (FROM THE GERMAN OF CH. F. GELLERT) BY THE REV. J. TROUTBECK, D.D

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

L. VAN BEETHOVEN.

ARRANGED BY E. SACHS.

LONDON: NOVELLO AND COMPANY, LIMITED; AND NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., NEW YORK.



Maestoso.
Soprano.
To God e - ter - nal the heav'ns ut - ter glo - ry, From them His Alto.
To God e - ter - nal the heav'ns ut - ter glo - ry, From them His
Tenor.
To God e - ter - nal the heav'ns ut - ter glo - ry, From them His
Bass.
To God e - ter - nal the heav'ns ut - ter glo - ry, From them His Maestoso.
Piano.
(For practice only.)
Name a - far is . . heard, By earth and sea is re -
Name a - far is heard, By earth and sea is re -
Name a - far is . . heard, By earth and sea is re -
Name a - far is heard, By earth and sea is re -

Copyright. 1899, by Novello and Company, Limited.

cres.
f
- peat - ed the sto - ry; Let all man - kind re - ceive their word.
pp
Who
Who holds the num - ber-less stars in their pla - ces?
holds . . . . the num - - ber-less stars in their pla - ces?
p
Who bids the sun his light dif - fuse? He comes with bids . . . . the sun his light dif - fuse? He comes with bids the sun . . his light dif - fuse? He comes with Who bids the sun . . his light . . dif - fuse? He comes with bright - ness and smiles in our fa - ces, And he - ro - like his bright - ness and smiles in our fa - ces, And he - ro - like his bright - ness and smiles in our fa - ces, And he - ro - like his bright - ness and smiles in our fa - ces, And he - ro - like his

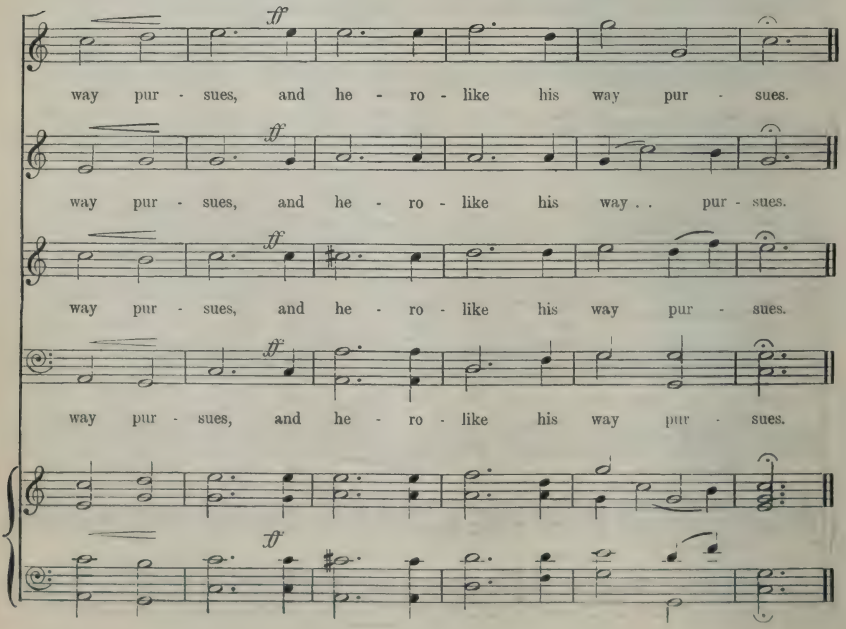
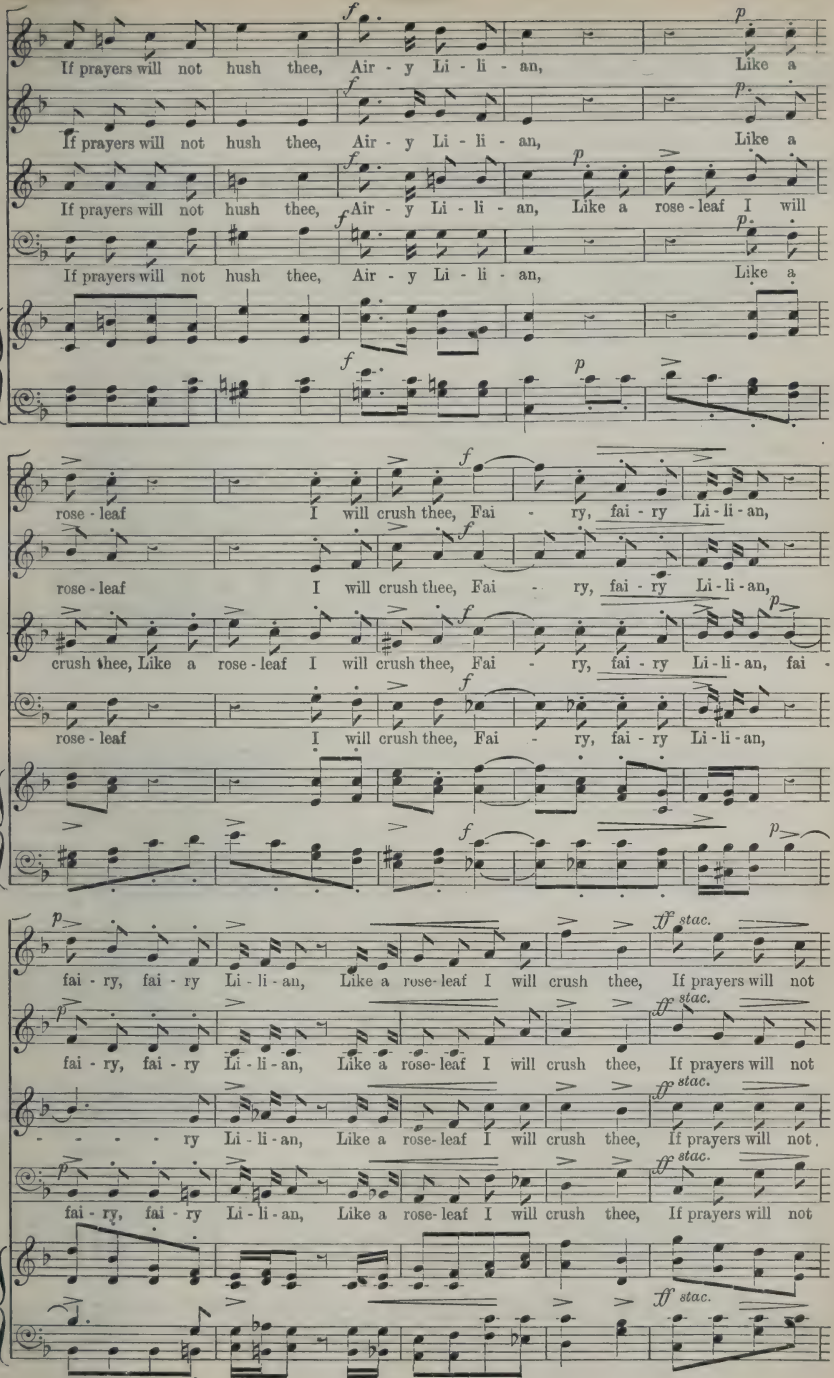
f



way pur - sues, and he - ro - like his way pur - sues.
way pur - sues, and he - ro - like his way . . pur - sues.
way pur - sues, and he - ro - like his way pur - sues.
way pur - sues, and he - ro - like his way pur - sues.
ff



If prayers will not hush thee, Air - y Li - li - an, Like a
If prayers will not hush thee, Air - y Li - li - an, Like a
If prayers will not hush thee, Air - y Li - li - an, Like a rose - leaf I will
If prayers will not hush thee, Air - y Li - li - an, Like a rose - leaf I will crush thee, Fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an,
rose - leaf I will crush thee, Fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an, crush thee, Like a rose - leaf I will crush thee, Fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an, fai - rose - leaf I will crush thee, Fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an, fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an, Like a rose - leaf I will crush thee, If prayers will not fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an, Like a rose - leaf I will crush thee, If prayers will not
- - - - ry Li - li - an, Like a rose - leaf I will crush thee, If prayers will not fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an, Like a rose - leaf I will crush thee, If prayers will not stac.

pp hush thee, Like a rose-leaf I will crush thee. Air - y, fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an, hush thee, Like a rose-leaf I will crush thee, Air - y, fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an,
hush thee, Like a rose-leaf I will crush thee, Air - y, fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an, hush thee, Like a rose-leaf I will crush thee, Air - y, fai - ry, fai - ry Li - li - an,
cres.
f air - y, fai - ry Li - li-an, air - - y, fai - ry Li- li-an.
air - y, fai - ry Li - li-an, air - y, fai - ry, air - y, fai - ry Li-li-an.
air - y, fai - ry Li - li-an, air - y, fai - ry Li-li-an.
air - y, fai - ry Li - li-an, air - y, fai - ry, fai - ry Li- li-an.

conducted with great vigilance, and fair, if not full justice was rendered to the difficult orchestral music. The opera was followed by 'Cavalleria Rusticana,' with Mdlle. Strakosch as Santuzza and Signor Valero as Turiddu; though the latter sang fairly well, he over-acted his part. Signor Mancinelli conducted. The chorus sang vigorously. Wednesday was devoted to 'Tannhäuser,' with M. Van Dyck in the title-rôle. He is one of the finest impersonators of the vacillating minstrel knight, but as a vocalist he is uncertain. This year, however, his voice is in good order, so that he achieved a great and well deserved success. Herr Mohwinkel, the Wolfram, made, on the whole, a satisfactory début. Fräulein Gadski (Elisabeth) sang well, and was especially fine in the Finale of the second act, which, indeed, was most impressively rendered.

'Rigoletto' was given on Thursday with Madame Suzanne Adams (Gilda), who sang charmingly. Signor Anselmi, the new tenor, and M. Seveilhac (Rigoletto) both won favour. In 'Faust,' on Friday, Madame Eames and M. Plançon gained chief honours. On Saturday evening M. Van Dyck impersonated Tristan for the first time here. His acting was magnificent and his singing good, though not quite so good as in 'Tannhäuser'; but the Tristan music is far more trying. The Isolde was Fräulein Fränkel Claus. She is earnest, sometimes over-earnest as an actress, and sings well. Her upper notes are somewhat shrill, and the lower ones somewhat colourless; her voice in the middle register is of pleasing, sympathetic quality. Miss Brema as Brangäne and Mr. Bispham as Kurwenal were most successful. The rendering of the orchestral music, under the direction of Herr Lohse, deserves high praise.

Much money and time have been spent on the new stage arrangements. As yet the machinery is not in perfect working order; next month we expect to be able to record satisfactory results. The hand of M. Messager is also visible. But Rome was not built in a day, and neither can stage reforms be carried out at a moment's notice.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

M. Basil Sapellnikoff appeared at the fourth concert, on the 9th ult., and played Tschaïkowsky's Pianoforte Concerto in B flat minor, a work which he performed here in 1889 under the composer's direction. M. Sapellnikoff is now, as he was then, a great executant, and in the matter of technique there was nothing wanting; he appears, indeed, to have gained in power and brilliancy. Again his reading of the work showed intelligence of a high order, and the fact of his having been personally acquainted with the Russian composer was a strong guarantee that he understood his intentions. And yet there was something wanting. Tschaïkowsky's concerto makes, in various ways, strong appeal to the senses; but throughout is heard an inner voice speaking to us of the composer's own self, and this personal character of the music was not fully revealed, possibly not fully felt by the pianist. Anyhow, he achieved a brilliant success, and was recalled several times; that he did not grant an encore redounds greatly to his credit. The rest of the programme does not call for detailed notice. Lady Hallé played the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto even better than at the London Festival a fortnight previously. Dr. Cowen gave a refined and sympathetic rendering of Sterndale Bennett's 'Paradise and Peri' Overture. The performance of Beethoven's Symphony in B flat was thoroughly good; that of the Adagio, however, created the strongest impression. Miss Ada Crossley, the vocalist, sang an arid aria from Max Bruch's 'Odysseus,' and consequently did not achieve her usual success. The concert took place, as usual, at Queen's Hall.

THE JOACHIM QUARTET CONCERTS.

The six concerts recently given by Dr. Joachim and his able associates, Professors Karl Halir, Emanuel Wirth, and Robert Hausmann, will rank among the most memorable events of the present season. Artists have often been tempted to appear in public, although enfeebled powers have prevented them from doing justice either to the music of great masters or to themselves. And, on the other hand, the public is naturally indulgent towards old favourites, and strongly inclined to ignore any perceptible shortcomings. Dr. Joachim shares the common lot of humanity, and over sixty years of active service in the cause of high art have not passed by without leaving some trace. It would be false flattery to say that he is the same as he was a quarter of a century ago; that neither the strength nor the fire of manhood has in any wise declined. But it may truthfully be said that Dr. Joachim is still a master of his art, and the few signs of advancing age which he gave were more than counterbalanced by his wonderfully pure and dignified readings of the music of various masters. Then, again, the four players were in perfect unity with one another; Dr. Joachim never seemed—to use the common expression—to be leading the concerted music.

Each of the six programmes contained three works, for the most part quartets. The first concert was devoted entirely to Beethoven, and the three quartets, Op. 18, No. 5, Op. 95, and Op. 130, represented the composer at various stages of his art career; and in all the other programmes that great master of instrumental music was duly represented. Haydn and Mozart came in for their share of notice, and the renderings of their works were most delightful; the performance of Mozart's Quintet in G minor (with Mr. Alfred Gibson as a capable second viola) was, indeed, superb.

Schubert's D minor Quartet was not omitted in the scheme. Special honour was paid to Brahms, the life-long friend of Dr. Joachim, by the performance of the Quartets in A minor (Op. 51, No. 2) and B flat (Op. 67), and the Sextet in G (second viola, Mr. A. Hobday, and second violoncello, Mr. Percy Such). For many a long year did Dr. Joachim persevere with Brahms's music; the public was cold and many a critic hostile, but he was nothing daunted. And now Brahms ranks among the classics. The last work in the last programme was Schumann's Quartet (Op. 41, No. 3), and that name recalls another fight against coldness and prejudice, and another victory in which Dr. Joachim and the widow of the composer were leading spirits. The fine work was played with rare sympathy by the four artists.

At all six concerts St. James's Hall was crowded, and enthusiasm prevailed from first to last. The Joachim Quartet will pay another visit to London next year. They will be heartily welcomed.

MR. D. F. TOVEY'S PIANOFORTE RECITALS.

Pianists' recital programmes run, as a rule, in one groove: a transcription of a Bach organ fugue, a familiar Beethoven sonata, a group of Chopin solos, and some showy modern pieces by way of conclusion. Mr. Tovey, however, opens up new paths. He has selected for his present series of recitals works with which the public is by no means familiar. At St. James's Hall, on Thursday, the 9th ult., he played the 'Goldberg' Variations of Bach, and for his admirably clear and thoughtful rendering of them deserves all praise. It is really a wonderful work, yet one which requires study ere it can be properly appreciated. We admire Mr. Tovey's courage, but we fear that some of the audience, like the man in the gallery when Beethoven's 'Eroica' was produced at Vienna, heartily wished that the blessed thing would stop. At his second recital, on the following Thursday, Mr. Tovey performed, and skilfully, the 'Diabelli' Variations of Beethoven. For both these elaborate works the interpreter contributed, in the form of essays, a detailed analysis. They show much reading and much thought, also intelligent insight into the music; if less bulky they would, however, probably prove more serviceable. We, however, fully admit the difficulty of describing long works within a short space, but that is what Mr. Tovey should aim at. At both recitals he played some short, refined, and ably written compositions of his own; at the first, three pieces for violin and pianoforte, in which he was indeed fortunate in having Dr. Joachim as an associate; and, at the second, some Bagatelles for pianoforte solo.

COMPETITIONS.

(By our Special Correspondents.)

THE WESTMORLAND FESTIVAL AT KENDAL.

If the sixteenth Westmorland Musical Festival presented no very novel features as compared with its predecessors, this is not very surprising, for indeed the institution is now so highly organized that it is difficult to see in what direction there could be any marked development. According to the custom of late years, it occupied three days, from April 18 to 20. Owing to the gradual heightening of the standard of performance at these competitions, it has been possible to correspondingly increase the searching nature of the tests. It seems, however, as if something like a limit had been reached in this direction, for a slight but noticeable falling off in the number of entries is generally attributed to the difficulty of some of the test pieces. It is by no means a question to be settled without consideration, for, while the selection of music of practically prohibitive character would defeat its own end, the material lowering of the artistic standard would deprive the festivals of their chief reason for existence—the cultivation of a good taste in music. Schumann's male-voice part-song, 'The Lotus Flower,' for instance, with its frequent changes of tonality, is a serious thing for a country choir, with its very limited choice of material, to attempt; while the 'Serenade' of Brahms, being in six parts, presents a very obvious difficulty. Every country choirmaster knows, and it is indeed almost a matter of necessity, that the tenors are numerically by far the weakest section of a chorus, so that the prospect of having to divide them, save for a bar or two, is a very uncomfortable and risky one. United they may stand, divided they will certainly fall. There are no very populous centres in the Westmorland district, which is, by the way, an important reason why these competitions have proved so successful and so useful; but it was noticeable that the largest centre, Kendal, was the only one capable of furnishing a choir that was not severely tried by the 'Lotus Flower' or 'Serenade,' which, with Parry's modern madrigal, 'Come, pretty wag,' were the trial pieces in the competition for the larger village choral societies. In the important madrigal competition, the most honourable of all the series, there was some singing worthy of the highest achievements at these gatherings. How good it was will be understood when it is added that Dr. McNaught, who once again made a truly admirable judge for the choral competitions, awarded to the winning choir from Windermere, fifty-five marks out of a maximum sixty, while Kendal Parish Church gained fifty-three and Grasmere forty-nine.

Mr. J. St. O. Dykes judged the village orchestras, which, in the possibilities they suggest, may be regarded as the most important of all the classes of competitors. The first and second movements of Haydn's 'Military' Symphony afforded a sufficiently severe test for the three miscellaneous assortments of performers that appeared. Here again, even more than in the choirs, the difficulties of getting together in rural districts a well-balanced, to say nothing of skilful, set of executants seem almost insuperable. Wind instrument players have disappeared since the disestablishment of the village church bands in favour of the ubiquitous and convenient organ. Their absence, or at least their scarcity, was a serious disadvantage to the bands that appeared; but though the performances did not attain a high level of accomplishment, the idea is a good one, worth persistent effort, which sooner or later will meet with reward, not only in increased efficiency of orchestras, but in the greater appreciation of audiences.

The solo singers, who were adjudicated upon by Miss Lucy Broadwood, presented no very marked features. Some possible competitors were in all probability frightened away by the difficulty of some of the tests. Such a piece as the duet 'Graceful Consort' from the 'Creation' is peculiarly trying in these days, when singing is so largely practised according to the light of nature, and it was less surprising that only two couples essayed it than that they sang it so well.

The concerts have always been made an important feature at Kendal, and during the last two years their character has been greatly enhanced by the co-operation of a thoroughly efficient orchestra, composed to a large extent of members of the Hallé band, and under the conductorship of Mr. Risegari. Their excellent playing of the 'Eroica' and 'Unfinished' Symphonies, with other familiar classics, furnished a most useful object-lesson, apart from the pure enjoyment they afforded. Another feature of the Kendal festivals is that the choral competitors have all to prepare and take part in performing selected choral works. This time Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's cantatas, 'The Death of Minnehaha' and 'The Departure of Hiawatha,' had been rehearsed by Mr. George Rathbone, the exceptionally able choirmaster of the festival, and they were sung at the two evening concerts by the combined choirs with good effect, the composer conducting. The proportion of chorus to orchestra would not have satisfied Professor Prout's requirements, but it must be remembered that it is not the sole object of these concerts to give ideal performances, but that they are primarily meant to extend the knowledge of good choral music over as wide an area as possible.

On the last day the children had their turn. They competed in the morning, and did some very good work, while in the afternoon they formed a huge chorus of 750 voices to sing in Mr. Luard Selby's tuneful cantata 'The Waits of Bremen,' under the energetic conductorship of Mrs. Argles. This concert was memorable for a delightful performance of Liza Lehmann's 'Daisy Chain' song cycle, peculiarly appropriate under the circumstances, in which the chief soloists of the festival, Miss Evangeline Florence, Miss Mary Wilson—a product of these competitions—Mr. Whitworth Mitton, and Mr. J. McInnes, a very promising baritone, took part. Miss Wakefield, the originator of these festivals, was present as President of the institution, though she has given up her long and arduous labours as its conductor. That her work is thoroughly appreciated was indicated by the presentation, on behalf of some two thousand subscribers, of a diamond ornament in the form of a laurel wreath. It was formally presented by the Countess of Bective, who expressed very happily the debt which Westmorland owes Miss Wakefield, a debt which, it is satisfactory to think, seems to be thoroughly recognised by the inhabitants of that county.

YORK.

That the lady amateur is a force to be reckoned with is indicated by the success of the music competitions which have been organised and engineered at York mainly by the enterprise of Miss Mary Egerton. They follow in all essential particulars the lines laid down by Miss Wakefield at Kendal (above referred to), and elsewhere, and the proceedings on April 23 and 24 gave abundant evidence of the good which is being done in the city of York and the villages and small towns round about.

A very encouraging sign was the singing of the numerous school choirs that took part, in which there was evidence that much care is being bestowed on the teaching of music in elementary schools. For them these competitions are invaluable. They furnish a zest to the labour of practising, a means of testing and comparing results, and, in short, a practical object lesson that should be of the greatest possible value to both the competitors and their teachers. The advantage of being heard and criticised by a judge as competent as Dr. J. C. Bridge, of Chester, is obvious, and indeed the only fault that could be found with his judgments was that they might, in some instances, have been more detailed.

